COMING! Richard Barthelmess in "CLASSMATES"

Rev. Joe R. Mayes passed through last week on his way from Fort Worth to Lovington, N. M., where he may become pastor of the Baptist Church at that place. Rev. Markham Brownfield Baptist Association Missionary accompanied him from this point. Mr. Mayes is a cousin of Hon. Will H. Mayes, dean of the school of journalism at the University of Texas.

Sam and Dewey Murphey of this county, accompanied by their father, W. F. Murphey, of Munday, Texas, paid the Herald a pleasant call Monday of this week. Mr. Murphey paid the Herald a high compliment, and remarked that he wished the editors down his way would say nice things about Knox county like the Herald does old Terry. Said he guessed they either could see no good in their home town and county, or did not know how to boost. He invited the editor down in May for a big fishing trip on Lake Wichita. We would be delighted, we know.

Before money, Cows were used as the unit of exchange. It may have been difficult in those days to make the proper change, and certainly it would have been a hardship to carry a purse well enough filled for a long journey away from home. However, the medium of exchange itself partook of the nature of a savings bank an advantage our money does not have, for the natural increase was a gratifying interest on one's funds.

This may come in handy for you some day, but it never will for me. However, it's interesting. The cold body of a snake, placed next to human skin, will absorb fever quickly and produce beneficial results for the patient. In Hollywood, where rumor says they do many strange things, they recently coiled a live, blue python around the neck of a feverish studio girl. In twenty minutes, the snake's body was warm; the girl's temperature reduced and the camera clicking again.

Mr. Earl E. Jones of the Pastime Theatre, informs us that his firm has recently purchased from the Famous Players Lasky Corporation the second Famous Forty Paramount contract for this fiscal year. This means that Brownfield will see these latest Paramount pictures as soon as any city in the Panhandle. Some of these pictures will be shown in Brownfield early in March and have only recently been released.

The romance of Abe Lincoln and Anne Rutledge makes the sweetest love story ever told.

Artist's Fee Too High Even for Profiteer

One of the good stories about the famous painter, Meissonier, is in regard to his experience with a wealthy gentleman who had erected a private theater at his chateau. Meissonier was just then at the height of his fame and was spending months painting pictures and selling them for about $200 a square inch.

The rich man conceived the idea that what his theater most needed was a drop curtain painted by the famous artist, so he went to the studio and proposed the matter to him.

"How large is the curtain to be?" asked the painter.

"It will be 30 feet high and 35 feet wide," was the reply.

"My friend," said Meissonier blandly, "it would take me 30 years to paint such a curtain, and it would cost you $6,000,000."

Counting the Cost

"Don't fidget!" snapped mother. Little Bertha stopped toying with the lid of her chocolate box and endeavored to concentrate upon the movie. But it was a very dull affair, and her mind soon came wandering back to the box.

In two minutes her small fingers were busy again.

"Bertha, don't fidget!" repeated her mother.

Once again the child obeyed, but once more the production failed to hold her fingers away from the lid of the chocolate box.

"Now, Bertha," exclaimed her mother, "I warn you."

Bertha opened her eyes wide. When her mother spoke like that she was not to be disregarded. Glancing doubtfully at the dull screen and then at the tempting lid, she whispered: "Would it be a hairbrush, mummy, or just your hand?"

Town Has Long History

Nice or Nicaea in ancient times was a town in Bithynia, a small country of Asia Minor and a province of the Roman empire. It lay to the southeast of the Sea of Marmora. During the Second century before the Christian era Bithynia was an independent kingdom and Nicaea was the seat of the royal government. Nicaea is celebrated as having been the scene of the first general council of the Christian church, which sat from June 19 to August 25, 325, and adopted the creed, which, taking its name from the name of the town in which the council met, is known as the Nicene creed. This creed emphasizes the divinity of our Lord and the doctrine of the Trinity. It is the fundamental creed of all Trinitarian churches the world over.

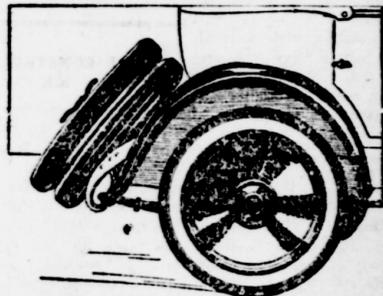

Mind Had Slumbered

A curious case on record is that of a blacksmith, Paul Stengel, who was kicked in the head by a horse while in the middle of a sentence addressed to his assistant, and rendered unconscious for several days. On recovering, his mind was an absolute blank, until one day he fell down a flight of steps, pitching on his head.

He was picked up in a dazed condition; and on recovering his senses the first words he uttered were the completion of the sentence that had been interrupted by the horse's kick some months earlier.

BILLBOARD BOOMERANG HITS MERCHANT

An editor and a merchant were discussing the virtue of billboard advertising. The merchant contended that more people read the billboards than the newspapers. After a lengthy conversation in which neither would give in, the men parted.

The next week the merchant came tearing down the street to the newspaper office wanting to know why the obituary of his wife's mother was not in the paper, especially when he had seen that a copy was carried to the office. "Well," said the editor, "I knew you wanted the obituary read by all the people, so I took it out and nailed it up to you billboard."

O'DONNELL PAIR RECEIVE AN UNUSUAL VALENTINE

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Nichols were visited Saturday by the stork and presented with an unusual valentine, for when the package was opened it was found to contain a fine son and daughter. This makes eleven children for the Nichols family. Come to O'Donnell.—O'Donnell Index.

You'll have to hold out a better inducement than two babies at a time to get us to come to O'Donnell. Too Many babies Kellis.

Rev. H. D. Heath has recently moved here from Wilson, Texas, having purchased the J. R. Carver residence on Lover's Lane. Rev. Heath is pastoring the Baptist church at Gomez. He is also owner of fine little ranch over in old Yoakum county.

Don't forget to see Abraham Lincoln at the Pastime Theatre next week. This picture besides being a very interesting one from a point of scenic beauty and unequalled acting is also of untold value from a historical point of view. It will be one of the greatest picture here this year. See it either Monday or Tuesday nights.

C. J. Bonham from the Willow Wells community was up Monday to see about their school. He informed us that they were trying to get an independent district down there, but the legislature has held up the bill for the time being.

CATCHING THE BABY IN EFFECTIVE POSE

Family Tyrant Has Her Own Ideas on Subject.

"Now hold her," says the photographer who is an expert in baby's pictures. Now "you stand there and you stand there and now all say 'Googoo-goo!' Loud! just like that! Now all together! And all at once! And now with a will! Quick and 'click' she goes and that was no good. We'll try it again."

Grandma darts into the house and emerges with a Japanese gong with a big striker that came with it when we bought it at Bar Harbor. She assumes an intentional highly amusing type of broad grin and a show of teeth. With it goes a line of baby talk. So she dances up and down on one foot, strikes the gong and says, "Will 'ee' litty lammie smile for gammy?" This is supposed to be an unfalling recipe.

Thus, while the baby's dad holds a large-sized rubber cat with a hole in its side, from which ooze certain piercing sounds supposed to delight a child, grandma strikes the gong, mother laughs aloud "ha-ha-ha-ha!" Marion goes "hee-hee-hee" in soprano; papa makes a noise which hitherto has been an unfalling recipe for smiles and which may be faintly described as similar to that which a duck's foot makes when it is suddenly drawn from the mud; auntie goes "toodle-toodle-oo-oo" in a low contralto, which makes even the child's grandfather roar, and I try to tickle the baby under the arms, writes A. G. Staples in the Lewiston Evening Journal. And the crowd along the railing of our yard, now increased to 125, is in gales. The baby regards us with solemn interest.

Says I, "Lemme, and I say it confidently, "Lemme, I'll show you." So I put on mother's hat and get a cane and parade. Baby regards me with withering glances. Mother beats the drum; grandmother beats a tin pan; father goes "putt-putt-putt," like the exhaust of a machine. Marion goes "Ha-ha-ha-a-a" crescendo, and two cars run into each other on the hill, because the drivers are not watching anything but us. What we need is Al Joison and Frank Tinney with Humpty Dumpty and a Punch and Judy. Baby regards us with pity.

We set her on the grass and all stand off and do our best to excite the peerless one's risibilities. Nothing doing. Now and then a faint suggestion of that heavenly charm that lurks in the corners of her mouth will appear, but most of the time she just carries that far-away look of wonder that resides in the limpid depths of innocence.

Then we rest. Then we cease; then we sit down, conquered, and the baby, looking at us all sober and serene as she most often sees us in our daily life, opens her lips, curls the corners of her mouth, bursts into a roar of musical laughter and the camera snaps her into the result that leaves nothing to be desired this side of perfection.

Sandpaper Lithographs

A new method of lithographing which will be of special interest to amateur artists and school children has been invented by Norman Jacobson of Coketown, Wyo., now studying art in Paris. In his method, sandpaper replaces the expensive stones hitherto necessary. Some brilliant effects can even be obtained by using as a "printing press" the family wash wringer.

The idea of sandpaper lithographs came accidentally when the young American etcher happened to run an ink roller over a piece of sandpaper. He noticed that the sandpaper would not "take" ink. He found that if he drew a design on it with wax crayons or a pointed piece of soap and then inked the sandpaper the design was printed not unlike that from a regular lithographing stone. A group of American art students are now turning out work by the new method.

Easy to Grow Edelweiss

Thrilling tales are told of the lure of the rare edelweiss. That it can be easily cultivated, however, has been proved by its frequent appearance in American and European gardens, according to the Detroit News. The plant grows about six inches high. Almost any soil, not too rich and fully exposed to the sun, will produce edelweiss plants, for the woolly covering enables them to hold moisture and endure exposure. The word is from the German and means "noble white."

The edelweiss is the national floral emblem of Switzerland. It plays an important part in the legend and poetry of that nation and, due to its rarity, laws protect it here. Appearing in exposed places, high in the Alps of Switzerland, Tyrol, Carinthia, Austria and Serbia, its fame is due chiefly to the difficulty of obtaining it.

Put in His Proper Class

"Want to marry my daughter, I suppose?" snapped the old millionaire as he glowered at the young man before him.

Then, adjusting his glasses, he added: "By the way, aren't you one of my daughter's former suitors?" "N-n-no, sir," faltered the timid youth.

"Well, you are now," said the old man as he turned away. "Good-day." —Stray Stories.

Flames of Happiness That Need Never Die

I always think of happiness as a flame. I always have, all my life. It's just a fancy of mine, but it's as clear as anything. Fire—a lighted fire throwing a gleam across the grayest day, an indistinguishable fire. Because, however it dies down, you can find embers at the heart of its ashes and build it up again with what you have. Almost without knowing it, almost in spite of yourself, you do just that. You take what you have; love, of course, if you are one of the lucky ones who have it, or friendship—anything that means happiness to you. Sometimes the fuel that comes to your hand is the joy you have in your own mind, in learning and thinking, in books and plays and music. Sometimes it's religion. Most people, after they're older, keep it burning with work, hard, clean work and the little things that make it crackle—jokes and nonsense and bits of singing and laughing. Now and then, of course, you pile it with the driftwood of your ambitions, and your dreams shoot up and up. It's a fire that costs you something, happiness; but you keep it going, as you keep life going. I suppose because it is instinct to preserve what's yours.—From "The Flames of Happiness," by Florence Ward.

New Light on Newton's Discovery of Gravity

Izaak Walton, the complete angler, should not be confused with Sir Isaac Newton, the discoverer of the law of gravity. Perhaps this little story, which has never been told on them before, will keep them separate in the mind of the student.

Those two gentlemen were sitting on a river bank one day—Izaak fishing and Sir Isaac watching him. Suddenly an apple fell from an overhanging tree upon the head of the latter, evoking a sound which posterity is aware was far from hollow. After some language which virtually spoiled the fishing, Newton remarked to his companion:

"It has just struck me that it is very curious that apples do not fall upward. Why do you suppose that is not so?"

"For the same reason," laughed Walton raucously, "that the fish bites the worm and the worm doesn't bite the fish."

Thus at one and the same time Newton demonstrated becoming gravity and Walton unbecomingly levity.—"F. D." in Kansas City Star.

History Told by Coins

Roman coins illustrate the religion, the architecture, the games and sports, historic events and, in a striking manner, the advent of Christianity. The early Constantine coins disclose the classic heathen gods; after his conversion the coins bear the symbol of the cross.

The diversity of this coin information was enhanced by the practice of sending the mint master along with Roman armies. Soldiers were paid in the field, often from locally mined metals. In England's civil war Charles I, during his refuge in castles and forts, struck off coins to pay his troops and defray his personal expenses. These are the "siege-pieces" referred to by collectors of English coins.

All Accounted For

The clergyman's daughter was a good, sweet soul. She was so interested in all the parishioners and loved to know that they were comfortable and had all they wanted. More than one ill-natured person had been heard to call it nosiness, but no matter.

One morning she met little Tommy Gunter on his way home with a basket of groceries.

"Well, Tommy," she said, stopping and smiling at the little fellow, "and how are you all getting on?"

"Nicely, thank you, miss," answered Tommy, touching his cap respectfully, "mother, she's got rheumatism, I've got a boil and father's got a mough in jail."—London Tit-Bits.

Probably Windiest State

The weather bureau says that the question of which is the windiest state in the Union has never been accurately determined, and it is probably impossible to make a positive statement. However, it is quite probable that Oklahoma, as a whole, is the windiest state in the Union. This is due to the fact that the winds are rather constant at moderately high velocities during the entire year in this state; in many other sections the wind may at times average higher than Oklahoma, nevertheless, they are not so constant or cover so completely the entire state.

Causes of Earthquakes

It has been thought by some that the center of earthquakes and volcanic disturbances is always near the sea or other large supplies of water, and that the disturbances are directly caused by the filtration of the water down to igneous matter, and the consequent generation of vast quantities of steam, which frees itself by explosion. Others have sought to explain earthquakes as part of the phenomena of a planet cooling at the surface or to the yielding of strata so as to slip downward upon each other.

GAINES COUNTY PEOPLE ASK FOR STOCK LAW ELECTION

We understand that a petition will be presented to the Commissioners at their next meeting which is on Monday, Feb. 9th, asking that an election be called for the purpose of voting on a stock law for Gaines county at large.

It is stated that at present there are fully two thirds of the qualified voters already on this petition, which, if so, undoubtedly means that this proposition will carry by a large majority.—Seminole Sentinel.

By changing the city charter by a vote Tuesday, puts Brownfield in line for some real street improvements of which we stand greatly in need.

Several readers asked us last week if we were going to tell the world about our sandstorm. No need to do that for all Terryites realize the fact that we had one, and other people probably don't care to know about it.

A drunken driver is a distinct menace to everybody, himself included. He has been fined long enough. It doesn't work. Let's send him to jail where he belongs if convicted after a fair trial in which his defense has been heard.—Ward County News.

Yes, and some that are perfectly sober are just as wreckless, at least we find it so in Brownfield. But, we have noticed an improvement in this city with heavy fines lately.

When one begins discussing the best asset or assets to a town, they are likely to overlook some very important things. For instance, how do you think we would get along without our banks, or our stores? What would be our statute without schools? What would our moral statute be if there were no churches or Christianity? What kind of publicity would we get without our newspapers? We must even have jails to conduct our affairs in an orderly manner. Some things we may do without, but there are some we must have, and the main basis, our mud sills, us usual must rest upon those who till the soil. We believe the farmer is therefore the biggest asset to any community. He is both at the same time a producer and a consumer.

As was expected, Mrs. Ferguson used the veto ax on the proposed free pass bill passed by both houses of the present legislature, permitting members and their families to use a free pass on all railroads in Texas—provided of course the railroads were minded to issue them. Her explanation of the reason for the veto as given was based upon the principal that the railroads were under no more obligations to alleviate the legislators' underpaid condition by issuing passes than to hand them the equivalent in money. She could have cited the fact that the legislator could still draw their 20c mileage from the state but she did not, considering the former reason sufficient. Jim has come in for some criticism for having a pass over a certain railroad on which he is employed as attorney. We believe a railroad attorney has as much right to a pass as any other employe of a railroad company. Still we are told he is acting as assistant governor. But does Jim Ferguson draw any salary from the state?

Two national heroes came to this earth in February. A very good month for America.

George Washington seems a shadowy figure to young folks now. But his romantic story goes beyond the thrills of fiction. His military skill would have made him a famous general in an age. Greater still was his unconquerable courage. If it had not been for that resolute spirit, we might still be serving the English. Who knows.

When ordinary human nature sank into despair, George Washington began to get into full action. When they told him nothing could be done, he began to get thoroughly interested. We can't rise to that level. But if we could follow our best leaders as Washington's men followed him across frozen valley Forge, we would get somewhere in this country.

Abraham Lincoln could direct the fighting armies with the relentlessness of any warrior. But when the fighting was over, the beaten man was his brother to be welcomed back to his old place in the family circle. If his big heart could have guided this country through the tragic reconstruction days, the bitter taint of that time could never have soured the relations between North and South.

Lincoln was a plain man. To him the show and tinsel of the world, its glories and pomposities, were but dust and ashes. If his warm sympathy were leading us now, the deep chasm between rich and poor would be obliterated. Men would be ashamed, in the revealing sunlight of that great soul, to strive for selfishly used wealth or to shirk honest toil.

The spirit of these great men asks us here in Brownfield and Terry county for higher civil aspirations. It calls to us from across the years, to manifest Washington's courage and resolution, and Lincoln's insight and sympathy as we enter the unknown future and deal with the problems that lie behind its veil.

I. M. Smith is carrying a nice ad in the Herald telling the readers about his home grown cotton seed. The Herald is of the opinion that cotton seed raised here are better than those shipped in from a lower altitude, providing the home grow seed are fertile, and we are sure Mr. Smith has tested his seed for fertility. Another farmer is advertising corn seed, and we are sure you will have better success with any acclimated seed.

Modern Courtship Not as Some Remember It

This will interest nobody except middle-aged men who have a bald spot and a twinge of rheumatism in the left knee. It concerns the way of a man with a maid.

The technique of courtship has changed greatly in three decades. In the old days the maid sat in a parlor to be wooed. Perhaps she sat on a squeaky stool to play an organ or a piano. If she did, you stood beside her to turn the music. You did not hear the music. Your only sensation was one of delight in the beauty of her six-inch pompadour as seen from above. If she did not play, you sat on a thing called a sofa and studied her whiskered ancestors in an album. At times your heads almost touched and little shivers ran up and down your back, writes one who knows, in the Baltimore Sun.

Little things meant much in those days. The first time you held her hand you were thrilled as by a visitation of angels. The youngsters never believe this, but it is true. You lost all sense of time and space, and just sat there numb with ecstasy.

And then the great event! It was a moonlight night, and the reins were slack on the dashboard, and the madness of spring was in you. You kissed her! Oh, my gosh! Right smack on the mouth! There wasn't any rouge in those days, and very little powder, and you didn't taste a blessed thing but girl! How commonplace—how utterly paltry and wearisome Paradise would have seemed to you then!

How long ago! How long ago! The modern maid is just as sweet, for all her shorn tresses and silken legs, but the way of the man has changed. He drives up in front and honks and he doesn't help her in. She doesn't need help. Given a running start, she could jump in without opening the door.

They don't hold hands. And a kiss doesn't mean very much to either of them. It is just a substitute for conversation. It takes the place of the family album. And it has strange flavors.

How wonderful to be wise! But how much more thrilling it was to be green.

Successful Australian

Sir George Brookman, regarded in Australia as the "Father of the Golden Mile," that field of rich deposits which has yielded millions of pounds sterling, is a native of Glasgow, but became a resident of Adelaide at the age of two. He began his career as a grocer. In 1893 he formed a small syndicate with a capital of 150 pounds ($700). With this trifling investment was made the mammoth discovery that, eventually, developed 12 great mining properties. Six years after the organization of the syndicate the shareholders went into one of the most remarkable liquidations on record, for the capitalization of the various properties represented a total of 9,275,750 pounds sterling ($36,000,000). Sir George was a member of the legislature for eight years and during the war rendered most efficient service. He is noted for his generosity. His donation of 15,000 pounds made possible the establishment of the Adelaide school of mines. He is identified with many philanthropic and patriotic organizations in Australia.

Prime Minister Slipped

The other day in parliament the prime minister made a strange slip for an old parliamentarian. He referred to the gentlemen in the gallery, whereupon there were sharp cries of "Order!" For it is one of the curious customs of parliament that a member must assume that no one is looking on. If attention were drawn to the fact that strangers were present the speaker would, by the ancient rules of the house, have to clear the public galleries. On this occasion Mr. Speaker turned a conveniently deaf ear to the reference.—London Opinion.

our service will be double value to you. You will want to know the exact condition of the title and you will want to know it in a hurry.

There is danger in hurrying the man who makes your abstracts, unless he is equipped for speed. A hurried and worried man is a poor one to rely on for accurate, complete and trustworthy work. But we are prepared to serve you quickly when you need it, and the reason is simply that we have a complete systematized, accurate set of records that make quick and correct work easy.

Without such records speed and safety would be out of the question for anybody. But we can give you an abstract "on time" and infallibly accurate. For your own satisfaction, come in and learn the details.

EMMA DEE RANDLE, Artist

MONODRAMATIC ENTERTAINER IS WHOLE COMPANY OF PLAYERS IN OWN MAGNETIC PERSONALITY.

A whole company of capable and resourceful players is combined in the magnetic personality of Emma Dee Randle, who is to be heard on March 4th, 1925, at the Brownfield High School Auditorium, in a program of interpretative recital.

Whether the dramatic selection be from the dramatic pen of Shakespeare or simply from "Polyana" or something quite as in keeping with our time, this real artist of the platform creates living characters with a straightforward and simple art. Freshness and rhythm are interwoven in her work. She unites vivid dramatic power and wholesome, humor, and awakens keenest interest and sympathy in her appreciative audiences.

Critics declare Miss Randle's voice to be like a wonderful musical instrument which responds, vibrates, throbs and echoes to every spiritual emotion and by its magnetic, dramatic power inspires the same deep feeling, whether pathos or humor, in the hearts of her hearers.

In "Polyana" Emma Dee Randle is at her best. Critics have proclaimed her work in this sweet, wholesome play as being unsurpassed from the standpoint of real dramatic art. The announcement of her coming here insures a capacity audience for this gifted lady.

BAPTISTS COLLECT $58,500,000 IN CASH

Final Report on 75 Million Campaign Is Issued by General Headquarters.

NEW PROGRAM PROJECTED

Men of Churches Will Assist In Enlisting Membership More Fully—Conferences Planned In States.

Total cash collections on the Baptist 75 Million Campaign, which closed finally in December, amounted to $58,500,000. It is reported by the general headquarters. This money came from the following states: Alabama, $2,717,464.62; Arkansas, $2,313,672.52; District of Columbia, $273,747.96; Florida, $1,609,419.89; Georgia, $5,282,523.24; Illinois, $6,777,575.81; Kentucky, $6,414,159.87; Louisiana, $1,681,438.52; Maryland, $729,449.82; Mississippi, $2,076,935.99; Missouri, $2,423,561.24; New Mexico, $708,124.50;

DR. J. T. HENDERSON,
Secretary Laymen's Movement

North Carolina, $5,171,049.83; Oklahoma, $1,461,822.83; South Carolina, $4,752,390.22; Tennessee, $3,963,011.13; Texas, $8,720,191.50; Virginia, $6,727,778.80; Home Board specials, $15,340; Foreign Board specials, $86,133; total contributed by foreign churches directly to Campaign $350,000.

Contributions for the five years represent nearly four times as much as was given in the preceding five years to missions, education and benevolence, the offerings for the previous five years being $15,164,245.00.

Campaign Gains Set Forth
Other gains of the Campaign period include the organization of 1,999 new churches; baptism of 950,943 converts; organization of 2,913 Sunday schools with a gain of 445,781 pupils; an increase of $52,847,258.00 in the value of local church property and contributions to local church objects, in addition to Campaign funds of $104,673,560.00.

In the special departments of work fostered by the Campaign the following typical results are noted: 235,000 persons baptized by state mission workers; 225,000 converts baptized by representatives of the Home Mission Board; entrance into 8 new countries and the doubling of forces on the foreign fields by the Foreign Mission Board; putting nearly as much money into the denominational schools as had been invested there in all the years before the Campaign was launched; increasing the number of Baptist hospitals in the South from 12 to 24 and giving $1,000,000 in free medical and surgical service to the deserving poor; raising the number of Baptist orphanages from 17 to 19 and caring for 4,000 homeless boys and girls and aiding more than 1,000 aged, worn-out preachers and their dependent ones.

New Program Projected
With the 75 Million Campaign finished, Southern Baptists have now entered upon the 1925 Program which embraces the support of state, home and foreign missions, Christian education, hospitals, orphanages and ministerial relief, on the basis of yearly rather than a five-year's subscription. It is hoped to raise this year a minimum of $15,000,000 among Southern Baptists for these causes or the equivalent of the goal for a single year in the former movement.

It is pointed out that only 37 1/2 per cent of the members of Baptist churches of the South had a definite share in the support of the 75 Million Campaign. It is the ideal of the 1925 Program to enlist every member of every church in giving at his regular church services, to every cause, according to his ability, through his church treasury.

With the hope of more fully enlisting the Baptist men of the South in definite Christian service, Dr. J. T. Henderson of Knoxville, secretary of the Laymen's Missionary Movement of the Southern Baptist Convention, is promoting a series of men's conferences in the majority of the Southern states during March. In this way it is hoped to bring before the men the needs of all religious enterprises fostered by Southern Baptists and, having informed them, then enlist them in adequate support of all these causes.

COMING! Richard Barthelmess in "CLASSMATES"

Day of Small Towns Coming in America?

That the modern city is doomed is the rather startling statement of Henry Ford. According to Drew Pearson, writing in Automobile Industries, Mr. Ford declares that in the America of the future there will be no mammoth collections of skyscrapers and towering tenements in which millions of people are crowded within a few square miles of territory. Instead, the country will be traversed by chains of small towns clustering around individual factories and inhabited by people who will divide their time between factory and farm. The picture of the America of tomorrow which Henry Ford paints, says Mr. Pearson, is a particularly rosy one. In his opinion, the passing of the big city will mean less crime, less poverty, less wealth, less unrest and less of that fierce, nervous strain under which myriads of our city dwellers live today.

Something like this, agrees the Philadelphia Record, will have to be brought about in order to correct the growing monstrosity of our big cities. There are some four hundred of these in the world whose populations exceed one hundred thousand, says the Washington Post. In Mr. Ford's opinion:

"The overhead expense of living in such places is becoming unbearable. The cost of maintaining interest on debts, of keeping up water supply, sewerage and sanitary systems, the cost of traffic control and of policing great masses of people is so great as to offset the benefits of the city. The cities are getting topheavy and are about doomed.

"Industry in the future is going to be organized on a big scale—somewhat along the lines of the vertical trust. Competition, however, will force big industry to move its various parts to the country, where labor is steady and overhead costs low.

"At the same time, it is nonsense to say that because the cities are overcrowded everybody ought to move to the farm. There must be a balance between the two. The farm has its dull season, when the farmer can come into the factory, and the factory has its dull season when the workmen can get out on the land to help produce food."—From the Literary Digest.

Find City of David

Excavations in progress for six months in Opel, close to the area where stood the Jewish temple, seem to have revealed this as the indisputable site of the city of David, according to Rev. J. Garrow Duncan, director of the Palestine exploration fund.

His explorations have led him to what he is convinced is the eastern side of David's city, where he has discovered not only a wall 27 feet thick and which he has traced for 200 yards, but also a magnificent tower of David. He is certain he has discovered the real Jewish wall of the fort, which was standing when David took it in the year 1000 B. C., says the Kansas City Times.

The discovery of the remains of the ancient city of David is of great interest to archeologists, who have long debated the location of the original site of ancient Jerusalem. Mr. Duncan says in addition to finally settling the point, he has been able to prove the site where David's city stood has been continuously inhabited for more than five thousand years, some of the pottery unearthed at Opel belonging to the cave-dwelling period of three thousand years B. C. and before.

But Not the Collection

Snoot Gulch, a metropolis of the great open spaces, had at one time supported a small church, but the population had slowly dwindled until it was impossible longer to collect enough money to pay the parson's salary. The parson, therefore, doffed the cloth and established a lunch room near the station.

One Sunday night a traveler who had regularly passed Snoot Gulch dropped in at the lunch room and ordered supper. After having waited for more than a half hour without being offered more than a glass of water, he called to the former parson. "Yes," replied that gentleman. "I was just wondering, parson, said the traveling man, "if you had cut out the Sunday evening service."—Judge.

Best Not to Be Hasty

The earth is neither round, flat, square nor hollow, but is crooked and shaped somewhat like a dumb-bell, says Charles Sarges of Elmira, N. Y. This is too bad, because it means that all the old geographies in the schools which show the world to be round will now have to be thrown out. Perhaps, however, it will be wise not to be in too much of a hurry about it, as some one else may shortly tell us that the earth is three-cornered, or shaped like a doughnut or a string of sausages or a bunch of bananas.—Pathfinder Magazine.

COUNTY TREASURER'S QUARTERLY REPORT

In the matter of County Finances, in the hands of Mrs. Lula Smith, Treasurer of Terry County, Texas.

Commissioners' Court of Terry County, Texas, in regular session, of the February, Term, 1925.

We, the undersigned, as County Commissioners within and for said Terry County, and the Hon. H. R. Winston, County Judge, Terry County, constituting the entire Commissioners' Court of said County, and each of us, do hereby certify that on this, the 11th day of Feb. A. D. 1925, at a regular term of our said Court, we have compared and examined the report of Mrs. Lula Smith, Treasurer of said Terry County, Texas, for the period beginning on the 31st day of Nov. A. D. 1924, and ending on the 31st day of Jan. A. D. 1925, and after finding that her report was correct have caused an order to be entered upon the minutes of the Commissioners' Court of said County, stating the approval of said Treasurer's Report by our said court, which said order recites separately the amount received and paid out of each fund by said Treasurer since her last report to this Court, and for and during the time covered by her present report, and the balance of each fund remaining in said Treasurer's hands on the said 31st day of January, 1925, and have ordered the proper credits to be made in the accounts of said County Treasurer, in accordance with said order as required by Articles 1448-1449-1450 and 1451, Chapter 1, Title 29 of the Revised Statutes of Texas.

And we, and each of us, further certify that we have actually and fully inspected and counted all the actual cash and assets in the hands of said Treasurer belonging to Terry County at the close of the examination of said Treasurer's Report, on this, the 11th day of Feb. The big ditching machine was put to work last Saturday getting our streets for the water mains, and a crew is following them putting the mains together.
Rev. L. L. Johnson and wife returned one day recently from Limestone county where they went to attend the funeral of his wife's step mother. He reports that country wearing out fast but that oil is keeping the country on its feet.

A. J. Nelson, prominent citizen of Meadow was seen on our streets the first of the week. He reports building active in his community.

THE DOLLAR YOU SEND AWAY

is a dollar gone forever from this community. It can no longer work for you and for me. The home-spent dollar is the dollar that pays us all return dividends.

You may never have thought about this angle of benefit that we all derive from the home-spent dollar. But the more you consider this idea, the more it will appeal to you. Every dollar that is spent in this community helps to build up the community, and we all benefit from this growth. It does not matter whether you are a home-owner or pay rent for the place in which you live, public improvements in which we all share can be made only when the community is prosperous. And it is only the community where home trade is practiced by all, that can be prosperous and enjoy a healthy growth. Trade at home because it will benefit you and your family.

Talkless Phone for Mutes

One of the most recent devices for use in communication between deaf mutes is a "talkless phone" that conveys messages by means of an alphabet printed on electric-light bulbs. As the operator presses the keys of a special typewriter wired electrically, the corresponding letters are lighted, spelling out the message.

The invention is the work of William E. Shaw of Cambridge, Mass., who was stricken deaf and dumb by sickness at an early age. He has been working with electrical and mechanical devices most of his life, and claims that deaf mutes miles apart will be able to "talk" with his device.—Popular Science Monthly.

Eagles Fight to Death

Capt. Hurley Boyd of the fishing steamer Maud J., in port here, reports that when ten miles east of Five Fathom Bank lightship he saw the most exciting air battle of his 20 years' experience as a skipper, says the New York Times.

Two eagles, he said, fought for a big eel, and one of the eagles was killed and the other so badly wounded that it could hardly fly beyond the reach of the steamer, which was stopped long enough to pick up the eel, which, Captain Boyd said, weighed over eight pounds.

The dead bald eagle, he said, measured ten feet from tip to tip of wings.

Wants His Money's Worth

A famous clothes designer, now in Los Angeles, has given up this prize secret for the benefit of the world: "Men are very seldom stingy with their wives on this one point: they are liberal in the matter of clothes, but with this proviso: A man will nearly always dig up $500 for his wife's clothes if she looks like $750 when she gets them on. What husbands object to is paying $500 for clothes in which a woman looks like $250."

An Up-to-Date Proposal

"Darling, will you make me the happiest of men in three letters meaning eternal bliss?"

"My answer is two letters meaning eternal freedom."

Lydea Lawson, 75, of Oklahoma City, is taking a course in stenography at a business college in her city. She feels that it will be of much use to her during many years to come. That should be good reading for the man of fifty who is considering retirement. This is not so good. Margaret Dodd, 101, of London, England danced a jig for the guests at her birthday party and died the following day from exhaustion. Youthful ideas and old bodies are not incompatible if the ideas are expressed in the proper manner. I like Lydea Lawson's mode of expression better than Margaret Dodd's.

Within a few days, the United States lost two of its best known citizens, Henry Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture, and Lew Dockstader, best known of this generation's Minstrels. I would not seek to compare these men. But I do wonder as to the work of which you attach the greatest importance. Wallace spent a life of serious effort for the benefit of his fellows. Dockstader used his great talent to make men laugh—to give them a recess from the deadening cares of the day. One represented the serious side of life; the other frivolity and play. Is work or is play the most important? Silly question! One might as well compare the value of a needle and its thread. One is worthless without the other. We work that we may later play. We play that we may be able to work some more.

In St. Louis, a comparatively young old couple sell a palatial home and move to a hotel. "The children have all gone out into the world for themselves," the mother explains—and she grieves. But it's part of the natural scheme of things that they should go. The more civilized we become, the sooner we break family ties. At about the time history began, families never separated. They only grew. Cousins, uncles, grandfathers and aunts were each a part of the same household. Individuals were afraid to encounter the dangers of the world alone. Numbers insured protection. Civilization came and society made laws to protect the individual wherever he might be. The stronger society became, the more protection it offered the individual. And then families began to break up and scatter more widely. At one time the African lion was king of beasts and he hunted alone. But for many generations he has been the pursued, not the pursuer. Today the lion is never far from his kind. That's another effect of the same law that breaks families into smaller parts.

COMING!

In His Honor

Were Washington alive today, nothing could please him more than to know that every bank in the country could forward him word that they had opened a number of new savings accounts in his money. He was a thrifty man, knew the value of saving money. So why not pay your respects to the Father of Our Country by starting to save today.

HUMORIST MADE HIT AT GRANT BANQUET

Mark Twain's Deft Compliment to Great Soldier.

The first meeting of Samuel L. Clemens and General Grant—men most unlike, yet destined to be closely associated—was in 1868 when Mark Twain was a newspaper correspondent in Washington. He had arranged for an interview with Grant, says the Mentor, and had looked forward to it with lively expectations, but when he gazed into the imperturbable, unsmiling face of the soldier he found himself for once in his life with nothing in particular to say. Grant nodded to him and waited in silence. At last Mark Twain's native resources came to his rescue.

"General," he said, "I seem to be a little embarrassed. Are you?"

That broke the ice, and all went well with them thereafter. In 1870 they met again. Meanwhile Mark Twain had become world famous, and General Grant had been President of the United States twice and had made a tour of the world, receiving an ovation in every land. On his return the Army of the Tennessee gave him a magnificent reception in Chicago, and the greatest men of the country were there to pay him tribute, Mark Twain among them.

Carter Harrison, then mayor of Chicago, was host and when Mark Twain came in introduced him to Grant. The general greeted him gravely and then looking Mark calmly in the eye, said, "Mr. Clemens, I am not embarrassed; are you?"

On that night, when Logan, Hurlbut, Vilas, Woodford, Pope, Robert G. Ingersoll and other brilliant men spoke, Mark Twain, although he was not called on until half past two in the morning at the end of a long list of speakers, was the bright particular star. Mark Twain had responded at many public dinners most happily to the toast "The Ladies," but for this occasion with whimsical fancy he chose "The Babies." His opening words were:

"We haven't all had the good fortune to be ladies; we haven't all been generals or poets or statesmen; but when the toast works down to the babies we stand on common ground."

At that the tired audience waked up, and with each sentence the enthusiasm of the assembly grew visibly and audibly. When he reached the beginning of his final paragraph, "Among the three or four million cradles now rocking in the land are some which this nation would preserve for ages as sacred things if we could know which ones they are," the vast audience waited breathless for his conclusion: "And now in his cradle, somewhere under the flag, the future illustrious commander-in-chief of the American armies is so little burdened with his approaching grandeur and responsibilities as to be giving his whole strategic mind at this moment to trying to find out some way to get his own big toe into his mouth—an achievement which—meaning no disrespect—the illustrious guest of this evening also turned his attention to some 56 years ago."

He paused, and the vast crowd had a chill of fear. After all he seemed likely to overdo it.

No one knew better than Mark Twain the value of a pause. He waited long enough to let the silence become absolute; then, wheeling to Grant himself, he said with the dramatic power of which he was master: "And if the child is but the father of the man, there are mighty few who will doubt that he succeeded!"

The crowd responded with a roar of appreciation. Even Grant's iron serenity broke, and he shook with laughter.

Chorus Girls and Dogs

"One of the amazing things to me," remarked a reservation clerk in a hotel, "is the number of chorus girls who carry dogs. They come in here with dogs of all breeds in their arms or on leashes, and then assume a woeful, injured air when we mention the fact that dogs are not allowed in guest rooms. At first they are indignant, resenting in a way—or making a great bluff at least—our attitude regarding their pets. We are obdurate and explain that we have a place in the basement where dogs are cared for, but the majority leave rather than be separated from their canines. Why, if we let the chorus girls, and others with speaking parts take their dogs to their rooms we could in a short time boast of running the biggest kennel in the world."—Detroit News.

Civil War Tobacco

A plug of tobacco found in Libby prison when General Sewell and his forces entered Richmond, is now owned by Wilmer T. Nields, of West Chester, Pa. It is about two inches by three in size and formed of Virginia tobacco mixed with licorice and molasses. It is as fresh as the day it was pressed into form. No one has sampled it as yet, nor is any one going to, if Mr. Nields has his way.

Sponge That Stays Wet

A rubber sponge, kept wet by running water, is a new time-saving invention for cleaning automobiles, says Popular Science Monthly. A rubber tubing is fastened to the sponge through a hollow handle and the other end of the tubing is attached to a faucet or garden hose. A small stream of water is sufficient to keep the sponge moist.

J. L. RANDAL'S DRUG

NEWS ALMANAC AN INDUSTRIAL GUIDE OFF PRESS

One of the really great needs of Texas has been met in the publication by the Dallas News of the Texas Almanac and Industrial Guide, which has just come from the press. Describing it briefly, it is a volume of facts about Texas—agricultural, political, industrial, educational, social and otherwise. It is not a "booster" edition, but is remarkable exposition of Texas resources thru authoritative statistics which do much to attract the outside homeseeker and investor to Texas, as well as to awaken Texans themselves to the great potentialities of their own State.

There is too much in the book even to enumerate in a short discussion, and as an example there is a complete tabular account of last year's strenuous political campaigns, giving vote by counties on State-wide races. Names of political officials are given, together with names of principal Federal Government officeholders.

Crops and livestock are covered with records of production, acreage and values for a number of years past, together with statistics upon farm property, mortgages, tenure and population for the State as a whole and by counties.

There is also a complete capitulation of all mineral production and values by kind of minerals, with an extended chapter upon petroleum. Detailed figures are given also upon Texas schools, roads, railways, utilities, ports, finances, industries, commerce, irrigation and reclamation projects, and there are many smaller chapters dealing with miscellaneous phases of Texas resources and development.

One of the most attractive features of the book is the large folded map of Texas in colors, showing counties, towns, railways, rivers and highways designated by official number and name.

The title page of the Texas Almanac aptly describes the volume as "A Textbook of Texas, a handbook, reference book and guide" to the commercial, industrial, financial, educational, political, governmental and social Texas. And such it is—a cyclopedia of Texas in compact form for farmer, business and professional man, club woman, school and college student and any other who would know about Texas. Published by A. H. Belo & Co., Dallas, who also publish the Dallas News. The Semi-Weekly Farm News and the Dallas Journal.

E. G. Alexander, one of our progressive druggists, is having the front of his beautiful store treated to a covering of linoleum, giving it a very pleasing and clean appearance.

Messrs. Tom May, Harry O'Harran, Ray Brownfield and Chester Gore returned Monday from a trip some two or three hundred miles down in old Mexico, to look at some ranch properties. They report flowers are all in bloom down there, lots of fat cattle, pretty señoritas and other pretty and good things to eat and drink.

Does a woman make as good an automobile driver as a man? In Los Angeles a sedan driven by a woman hit and killed a child who unexpectedly stepped into the street from between two parked cars at the curb. The driver fainted and the sedan came to a stop against a tree several hundred feet away. The woman was not to blame. Had a man been driving—any man—he'd have hit the child too. But the woman fainted. That means much. It largely indicates woman's limitations as a driver. For centuries men and women have been trained to follow certain, and different lines of endeavor. They each excel in those things for which nature and environment have adapted them. Driving an automobile is not a natural occupation for a woman. It is unjust to expect a woman to have the same mental reaction in an automobile as a man. When baby swallows a pin, however, she's worth ten men. Brain power has nothing to do with it. Nor is it a question of sex superiority. It's plain, ordinary sex adaptability—adaptability based on nature and influenced in its development by centuries old environment.

LIBERTY NEWS

By Bumble Bee. (delayed)

The sermon at Liberty today was good, and quite a few out to church. Singing Sunday night at P. M. Williams' was good.

Miss Agness Duffie was a guest of Miss Ida Mae Sharp Sun. afternoon. Mr. M. Taylor has been on the sick list for some time. He and two of his sons, Ben and Alvin have flu.

Aunt Mat Taylor has just arrived from Fort Worth.

People around Liberty are about done gathering cotton at last.

Mrs. H. P. French was a visitor at the home of Mrs. A. L. Husky, Wed. A. L. Husky, Ruben Sharp and P. M. Williams have been windmilling for the past week.

Mrs. Gertrude Taylor was a caller at Mrs. Sharp's last Tuesday evening. A new home goes up almost every week in the Liberty community.

Mr. M. Taylor went home with his married daughter who lives at Meadow to see if the change would help him.

(This Week)

Talk about a sandstorm, but we sure have one on hand, and has been for the past twelve hours, but in spite of the wind, A. L. Husky, P. M. Williams and Ruben Sharp are still windmilling, and has been for the past two weeks and no water yet at the old McMillan mill. Some suggest one thing and some another, but of no avail yet.

Mr. M. Taylor is reported no better, and is still at his daughter's at Meadow.

Mrs. K. Sharp and Marvin made a business trip to Brownfield, Friday.

Mr. H. P. French and wife, also made a business trip to Brownfield, Friday with a load of chickens.

Miss Kathrine Williams spent the day with Miss Ida Mae Sharp, Thurs.

Our teacher, Miss Blanche Commons, and Mr. W. B. Cotton, were callers at the Sharp home Friday evening.

Very little farming around Liberty yet, as the people have started working on the new school house.

H. P. French, P. M. Williams, Ruben Sharp and A. L. Husky, have been hauling rock for the foundation of the school building.

A. L. Husky lost a good work week, Monday last week.

Mr. Roy Coble has just built his new house and moved in, and his brother takes the place he was on.

Gems are often found in unexpected places. A western Judge has just granted a divorce to a woman whose husband received a note in which he was saluted as "Dear Old Hunk of Heaven."

There is nothing in the remainder of the note to indicate literary skill on the writers part. However, I place that salutation in a class by itself. No one but a master could select words that would so accurately convey one's thoughts.

DEATH ASCRIBED TO EAST INDIAN MAGIC

Hard Otherwise to Explain Sergeant's Demise.

Mr. O. Rothfield, author of "Women of India," I.C.S., relates the following remarkable incident, which he does not attempt to explain:

The incident concerned a smart young Sikh sergeant of the mounted police, a strapping fellow, with a great broad chest, the best wrestler on the force. The other part was played by a Mussulman fakir. He was an old, old man with a white beard, of quite unknown age, who beyond the memory of the living generation had crouched on a mat at a corner where two sunken lanes meet. The scene was a village, the poor successor of a dead city of palaces and of mosques, not far north of Bombay.

In the midday heat, under the glare of the sun, his eyes half shut, vaguely thinking of home and dinner, the sergeant came cantering loosely along, with the reins slipping through his fingers. An overhanging bank hid the fakir at the corner, and the pony shied before the rider saw him. The sergeant all but went over the horse's head, and pulled himself back into the saddle with an effort.

He was angry, of course, as any one would have been. It is not nice to be brought up with a jerk and feel a fool, when one is hot and tired and hungry and thirsty. So he cursed the fakir, and threatened to run him in as a nuisance.

He was not respectful, certainly, and he was an unbeliever—a Sikh, not a Mussulman. But this does not excuse the old fakir. He—this old fraud—lifted himself up in turn and cursed and cursed in a solemn, dignified way, chanting the words like a communication. And he ended with an imprecation that the officer should die in the sixth month after five months of wasting.

There was little real jauntiness left in the sergeant when the old man was done. But he carried it off well enough and laughed about it that evening with his friends at headquarters, and several times he laughed again during the next week. But it is a fact that he began to lose weight in the second week, that his cheeks fell in and a cough shook him, that he was spitting blood within three months, and that he was dead within six.

Did he die of a suggested fear? and if so, why should it take that form exactly? Or was it really the old fakir's fixed thought, his persistent hate, that held and shook him across space and across time?

Only the old man could have answered, and he was silent.

Militant German Woman

German courts are not very considerate of women who seek damages for wounded affections, consequently a young woman at Mannheim whose sweetheart had treated her slightly and told her his parents objected to their betrothal, consulted the mother of her halting fiance and was told by the mother that he had lied to her.

The young woman did not consult a lawyer, but invited her former sweetheart to take a stroll with her. She awaited her opportunity and felled her recalcitrant lover with a blow. Then she boxed his ears and beat him until the blood ran from his nose. Spectators of the affair rescued the chap and held the frate woman while he made his escape. The Mannheim newspapers in warning recalcitrant lovers to beware of hitting also informed them that heroines still live in Germany.

Weight of Eggs

The Department of Agriculture says that there is no government standard for the weight of an egg, as the weight varies considerably. However, eggs that are of a good average size usually weigh 24 ounces a dozen. Smaller eggs weigh as low as 15 ounces a dozen, and some exceptionally selected size eggs weigh 32 ounces a dozen.

Traveler in Africa Enjoys Many Comforts

In England "roughing it" is considered the sort of camping out. In tropical Africa it is quite the reverse. As protection from the sun, a double-fly tent is essential; generally this tent is fitted with a bathroom, a canvas contrivance not unlike half a bell tent, neatly laced to the end of the outer fly. A serviceable veranda is formed by extending the ridge-pole and adding a length of canvas to the outer fly, writes Maj. H. Rayne to the London Daily Mail from British Somaliland.

The best camp furniture—bed, table, chair and bath—is of canvas stretched on folding or collapsible frames, a canvas ground-sheet makes an excellent carpet, but of late years colored rugs have become very popular.

With the above equipment, well-fitted store-boxes, a good servant and cook, the modern African traveler is a man to be envied.

Watch him enter camp! The native carriers "down loads," and in the twinkling of an eye bundles are untied and the camp takes form.

The traveler may now call for anything from a hot bath to a three or four-course meal, prepared over an open fire, and the wonderful African servants will produce it as if by magic.

His table is laid with a snowy white cloth, his bed spread with clean fresh sheets, washed on trek and ironed on a blanket spread over a box, with a charcoal brazier iron.

One hour after entering camp he has shaved, bathed and fed; his dirty clothes are already in the wash; a stream and a stone, against which the clothes are beaten with dire results to the buttons, make an excellent laundry.

Cook has unpacked from his check-box a gridiron, a frying pan, a collection of aluminum saucepans, and everywhere you look there is such a profusion of paraphernalia that it appears as if the camp has become a semi-permanent institution.

But if the master lifts his hand and calls: "Let us go!" there is a methodical scurry, the check-box swallows up all it has disgorged, the tent falls, the furniture closes up concertina fashion, the equipment resolves itself into compact loads, which less than an hour later are lifted on the carriers' heads and a procession in single file sets off cheerily for the next camp.

Historic Fire-Grate Sold

The next great war may be between men and insects and, as during the World war, airplanes promise to play an important part.

"In the south of France army flame-throwers, designed originally to spread death among the Germans, are now turned against the locusts," says an article in the Forecast. "There has also been experimental use of certain kinds of war gases."

"The air service of the army supplied a specially equipped airplane, and the place chosen for the first work was southern Louisiana. The success of this new strategy against the boll-weevil suggested that it be also directed against malaria-bearing mosquitoes. The poison used against the mosquitoes was Paris green, heavily diluted with triplite earth.

"This experiment also proved successful, as the planes could fly over parts of the swamps which were otherwise inaccessible. The trees did not interfere with the spreading of the dust, the machines flying sufficiently high to avoid contact and circled them whenever necessary."

His Mighty Fall

A North side matron has lost one of her worries, the Detroit News relates. The day before the first real snow she dropped a flatiron she was taking to a neighbor. It broke the concrete of the driveway, a long jagged crack. Her heart has been in her mouth since for fear her husband would find it. With the first thaw the other night, she lost hope. When she heard friend husband bounding in all excited she knew he had found it. "Say!" he yelled, "say—remember that day I fell on the ice in the driveway? Well just you come out and see what I did—cracked the blamed concrete. Swonder I didn't kill myself 'n' you just stood there 'n' laughed. Fact is, I didn't realize myself how hard I fell."

Monarch Among Devils

In Jewish devil lore Asmodeus is the demon of vanity and dress, whom some have identified with Beelzebub and Azrael. He is called in the Talmud, "the king of devils." In the book of Tobit, he is in love with Sarah, the daughter of Raguel, and destroys her seven husbands in succession, each on his wedding night. When Sarah married Tobit, Asmodeus was driven by a charm into Egypt. Asmodeus has been given a lasting place in literature in Le Sage's novel "The Devil on Two Sticks."—Kansas City Star.

Make War on Pests

The famous old fire-grate in front of which Thomas Newcomen (1688-1729) was sitting when the steam escaping through the lid of the boiling tea kettle gave him the idea for the first piston engine was sold at Dartmouth, England, his birthplace. It was a model by Newcomen which aided James Watt in his more successful development of the steam engine.

Longevity and Then Some

The things that go on forever are eternity, the brook and tongues—Luth Herald.

Hark, Hark, the Lark!

A little daughter of the stumps, on her first day in the country, saw a lark motionless, high in air, pouring forth its lovely music. She listened a moment, then she ran to the matron. "Oh, Miss May," she said, "there's a sparrow up there, and he can't get up and he can't get down, and he ain't doin' a thing but holler about it."

Largest Man on Record

Miles Darden, who at the time of his death, in Tennessee in 1857, weighed more than 1,000 pounds, is said by some authorities to have been the largest man of whom there is any record. He was 7 feet 6 inches in height, and at the age of forty-seven weighed 871 pounds. He was fifty-nine years old when he died.

DON'T FORGET THE GRASS-HOPPERS MR. FARMER

By R. R. Reppert, Entomologist.
Observations just completed reveal that the severe weather experienced this year has not been greatly destructive to grasshopper eggs deposited last fall. This is about as could be expected. Unusually cold weather in our latitude will not be injurious to grasshopper eggs, since, as is well known, severe grasshopper outbreaks occur in Canada and in many of our northern states, where winter temperatures normally fall to zero and below. Cold weather combined with other factors may reduce the hatchability of grasshopper eggs, but the combined effect of these various factors cannot be determined without actual examination of the egg masses in the fields.

Mr. Gable of the United States Entomological Laboratories at San Antonio, the first week in February of 1925 undertook to determine the condition of grasshopper eggs in the vicinity of Brownwood. His examination revealed that 80 per cent of the eggs were in good condition. This percentage may be assumed to hold for the entire state. Comparison with last year's reports reveal that the percentage at this season is about the same for two years.

Farmers need not be unduly alarmed at the present situation. Conditions may yet arise that may prevent a destructive outbreak in 1925. On the other hand, the great possibility of another infestation should not be put of mind. Conditions last summer and fall and this far into 1925 have not been especially unfavorable to the insects. Last year's success in fighting them was due mainly to the fact that the farmers were prepared, and they cannot afford to be unprepared this season.

Farmers should recall the locations where grasshoppers were abundant in August and September 1924, as this will furnish a guide as to where eggs were being laid. These places should be carefully watched this spring, and if great numbers of little hoppers appear, they should be poisoned with the bran mash formula before they start to migrate from these points, which will be in about three or four weeks after they hatch.

The public will be kept informed from time to time as to further developments in a possible grasshopper infestation.

Raymond, Champion of Lockney, former Santa Fe railway agent for Brownfield, was over Sunday visit-friends and acquaintances. Mr. Champion returned to Lockney Sunday night.

THE COMING SCHOOL ELECTIONS

One-fourth of our entire population is engaged in school work as pupils, teachers, supervisors and administrators. The public schools constitute a great corporation spending over one and one-half billions of dollars annually. Each citizen is a shareholder and has a voice, through the school board, in determining what kind of a school his community shall enjoy.

School board members are representative citizens elected for the purpose of getting schools managed, and not for the purpose of managing schools themselves. They select a professionally trained school officer to present school policies for their approval and to organize and direct the work of the school system. The school board members are the legislative officers, the superintendent is the executive officer. Neither should assume or usurp the function of the other.

School elections largely determine the school's policies. The merits of the different candidates for election to the school board should be carefully considered. A candidate to be desirable should have good judgment, wide experience, and a wholesome attitude toward youth. Professor Mendenhall of the State Teachers College of Pittsburg, Kansas, suggests the following questions one may ask about the candidates:

Has he at least a common-school education?

Is he reasonably successful in conducting his own business?

Has he visited the school while in session at three least times during the year?

In voting for a teacher, is he influenced primarily by her professional fitness, as determined by the superintendent, or by other expert opinion, rather than by kinship, local influence etc?

Does he keep posted as to schools in other places and try to make his school equal to or better than the average school.

ELECTION NOTICE

The State of Texas, County of Terry, ss.—

On this, the 10th day of February, 1925, the Commissioners' Court of Terry County, Texas, convened in regular session at the regular meeting place thereof in the courthouse at Brownfield, Texas, all members of the court, to-wit:

- H. R. Winston, County Judge.
W. E. Harred, Com. Pre. No. 1.
W. F. Stewart, Com. Pre. No. 2.
W. H. Black, Com. Pre. No. 4.
being present and passed the following order:

It was moved by Commissioner W. H. Black and seconded by Commissioner W. F. Stewart that there be submitted to the qualified voters of the said County who are property taxpayers therein, the proposition for the issuance of bonds of the said county in the sum of $70,000.00 for the purpose of the erection of a Court-house and Jail, the election to be held on the 21st day of March, 1925; the motion carried by the following vote:

Commissioners W. E. Harred, W. H. Black and W. F. Stewart, voting aye; Commissioners None voting No.

Whereupon, the following election order was adopted:

Whereas, the County Commissioners' Court of the County of Terry, State of Texas, deem it advisable to issue bonds of the said county for the purpose hereinafter mentioned:

Therefore, be it ordered by the Commissioners' Court of said county that an election be held on the 21st day of March, 1925, at which election the following proposition shall be submitted:

"Shall the Commissioners' Court of the County of Terry, Texas, be authorized to issue bonds in the sum of Seventy Thousand ($70,000.00) Dollars, payable serially one to forty years from the date thereof, bearing interest at the rate of six per cent (6 per cent) per annum, payable semi-annually, and to levy a tax sufficient to pay the interest on said bonds and create a sinking fund sufficient to redeem them at maturity, for the purpose of the erection of a Court House and Jail, as authorized by Chapter 1, Title 18, Revised Statutes of Texas, 1911, and amendments thereto.

Said election shall be held at south Brownfield Box No. 1; North Brownfield Box No. 2; North Gomez Box No. 3; South Gomez Box No. 4; Scudday Box No. 5; Meadow school house Box No. 6; Sawyer school house Box No. 7; Harris school house Box No. 8; Tokio school house Box No. 9; Johnson school house Box No. 10; Union school house Box No. 11; Willow Wells school house Box No. 12; Hunter school house Box No. 13; Southwest Brownfield in Sheriff's office, Box No. 14; Northwest Brownfield in County Judge's office, Box No. 15; and at the Wellman school house in Box No. 16.

And the following named persons are hereby appointed managers of said election, to-wit:

- A. M. Brownfield at South Brownfield Box No. 1.
J. E. Shelton at North Brownfield Box No. 2.
Ben Broughton at North Gomez Box No. 3.

O. E. Adams at S. W. Brownfield No. 14.
Will C. Brown at N. W. Brownfield No. 15.
J. R. Garrison at Wellman No. 16.

The said election shall be under the provisions of Chapter 1, Title 18, Revised Statutes of Texas, 1911, and the Constitution and laws of the State of Texas, and only qualified voters who are property taxpayers of said county shall be allowed to vote.

All voters desiring to support the proposition to issue bonds shall have written or printed upon their ballots the words:

"For the issuance of bonds."

Those opposed shall have written or printed upon their ballots the words:

"Against the issuance of bonds."
The manner of holding said election shall be governed by the laws of the state regulating general elections.

A copy of this order signed by the County Judge of said county, and certified by the County Clerk of said county shall serve as proper notice of said election.

The County Judge is authorized and directed to cause said notices of the election to be posted up at the places designated for holding said election at least thirty full days prior to the date of said election.

The County Judge is further authorized and directed to have said notice of election published in some newspaper of general circulation published in said county and which notice shall be published once each week for five weeks, the date of the first publication being not less than thirty full days prior to the date of the election.
