SIXTH AND SEVENTH GRADES ENJOY PICNIC

The sixth and seventh grades have been very enthusiastic over a picnic for some time, and finally a date was chosen. As the hour drew near numerous packages, containing the supplies for a feast were brought into school. Later a number of cars were lined up in waiting. The bell rang, dismissing school, then it was that Mr. Fagala drove his car near the steps. The first box placed in the car seemed to christen it "Our Chuck Car." Of course none of us even thought of distrusting Mr. Fagala, yet we conferred the honor of leading the way on him and Mrs. Fagala. Following close behind were eleven cars and trucks, in which were about 75 joyous students, our teacher, Mr. Price, Pete Bennett, Elwood Tiernan and Bessie Burnett.

Despite the slippery roads we did not limit our picnic to the campus, but instead the cars rolled off on the eastward highway, later turning to the south into the Brownfield pasture. We thought the journey so gratifying, we wondered why we need ever stop. However, when we beheld the beauty surrounding Red Onion mills, we halted, and there our real fun began.

Realizing that firewood was necessary, several boys accompanied by Mr. Price sallied forth to supply the demand. With plenty of wood, which of course was wet by the heavy rain that fell the night before, also that morning, our immediate need was kindling. This we expected from the top of our apple crate, but alas we found we had a crate of lemons, branded apples. Right here we extend our thanks to Loyd Sears, W. T. Karr and Edwin Watson for their generosity in driving back to town and exchanging the lemons for apples.

While games were played, the "cooks" were busy preparing the table, slicing bread, cakes and pickles, unwrapping sandwiches, frying bacon, and last but not least in scrambling more than one gross of eggs. The preparations being complete, the "chow" was called, and it proved more than a feast, as there was plenty and some to spare. Emery, Roy, Terrell, Cecil, Dolphus and Mr. Fagala wonder yet just why their capacity was so small. None being present with the power of Joshua, we looked with regret at the sun disappear from our sight behind a low bank of clouds.

At a given signal we scrambled to the cars. The cars rolled away and each of us expressed our regret at not having more time to spend on the spot that would forever hold pleasant memories for the 1925 sixth and seventh grade students.—Reporter.

Rev. Bowen, of Lubbock, preached the commencement sermon here at the school auditorium Sunday night, but as the Herald representative as well as perhaps 200 others were unable to gain admittance, we are not prepared to tell very much about what took place. It is a pity we do not have a public auditorium that will hold our citizens who really want to attend such things, and especially the school affairs.

Mrs. H. N. Key was in Monday with country produce. This is another Terry county farm that doesn't depend altogether on cotton to keep the home fires burning.

Ben Lee dropped in one day recently and renewed for his own Herald and that of his brother-in-law, Ollie Hising, down in Knox county, and also had us send the paper one year to his half brother, Julian M. Jensen, of Clifton, Texas.

Chester Gore handed us the coin one day recently to keep his Herald coming for another twelve months.

Jno. C. Scuddy handed us a dollar recently, and remarked: "Keep 'er comin' Jack."

Method of "Starting at Bottom" Given Up

For many generations the only way one could learn to be a business man was through apprenticeship. We called it "starting at the bottom." Most of us were reared with a conception of a business career derived from the Alger books—"from train boy to president," writes Richard J. Walsh in Century Magazine.

That this idea still persists is apparent when we look at the stories of success in some of the popular magazines. Steadily, however, formal methods of education have gained ground replacing the apprenticeship or "watch me, my boy," system.

Commercial education first appeared in our public schools about 1895. It grew naturally out of the multiplication of industrial occupations. At least one-fourth of the jobs today are utterly unlike any that our grandfathers had to do, and many of them such that the boys could not teach them, because he never mastered them himself. F. V. Thompson says:

"Commercial education was perhaps the first subject to be adopted by the high school as a concession to the public desire that the school should furnish preparation for vocations."

By 1915 we were spending more for the commercial course than for any other in our city high schools, and at least one-third of all pupils in the high schools of large cities were enrolling in commercial courses, while business training for adults was being offered in evening and continuation classes.

Early Gatherings of Baptists in Alabama

Lorenzo Dow, who is said to have reached the distant frontier settlements of Alabama along the Tombigbee as early as 1793, at the age of twenty-seven, preached as a son of thunder, says a staff correspondent of the Birmingham News. He was a Baptist. The first trace which the writer finds of the presence of the Baptists in Alabama is around Huntsville, but shortly after they found a footing in the southwestern part of the territory in the neighborhood of St. Stephens, the first capital of Alabama.

Rev. John Nicholson had the honor of organizing the first Baptist church in the state. It is said that in the fall of 1831 a number of families met and spread their tents near Elyton and held the first campmeeting ever held in Alabama. There were unusual demonstrations among those who became interested in the matter of religion. One who witnessed these peculiar manifestations thus described them: "It was not unusual to have a large part of the congregation prostrated upon the ground, and in some instances they appeared to have lost the use of their limbs. No distinct articulation could be heard; screams, cries, groans, shouts, notes of grief and notes of joy, all heard at the same time, made much confusion, a sort of indescribable concert."

Source of Quinine

Cinchona, or cinchona, is the name of the South American tree, the bark of which produces the well-known drug called quinine. The virtues of the bark were discovered about 1535, and in 1625 a decoction made of the bark cured of fever the wife of the viceroy of Peru whose name was Cinchona. The bark was introduced into France in 1649, and is said to have cured of fever the daughter, who later became King Louis XIV. The bark came into general use in 1680, and Sir Hans Sloan introduced it into England about the year 1700. The cinchona tree has been planted in India and Ceylon and thrives there.

Painting Deceived Birds

Zeuxis, a famous Greek painter, who flourished in the latter half of the fifth century B. C., is said to have painted grapes so naturally that the birds pecked at them. Parrhasius was a young rival of Zeuxis and in a competition between them the young artist was allowed by Zeuxis to surpass him. It was on this occasion that Zeuxis, perhaps the greatest of all the Greek painters, painted a bunch of grapes which were so natural that the birds pecked at them. Or so says tradition.

A letter was received from Elder C. B. G. Glasgow recently stating that his father died at the Baptist Sanitarium, Waco the 13, and was buried in that city the 14th inst.

Randall and the unknown heirs of Saul J. Randall; and for cause of action, plaintiff respectfully shows the Court: 1st: That heretofore, to-wit: On or about the 4th day of November, A. D. 1921, he was lawfully seized and possessed of the following described land and premises, situated in Yoakum county, Texas, holding and claiming the same in fee simple, to-wit: All that certain lot, tract or parcel of land, lying and being situated in Yoakum County, Texas, and on the Waters of Colorado River, about 11 miles S. 20-W from center of county, and being the west half of Survey No. 7-7, in Block D, Patent No. 45, Vol. 39, patented to the Island City Saving Bank, Assignee of Jno. H. Gibson, and described as follows: Beginning at a stake, the N.W. corner of the N.E. quarter of said section No. 7-7, this day granted and sold to E. O. Kinnison by the grantors herein, for the N.E. corner of the West half of said Section 7-7 in said Block D. Thence West 950 varas to a stake for corner; Thence South 1'00 varas to a stake for corner; Thence East 950 varas for a stake for corner; Thence North 950 varas to the S.W. corner of the N.E. Quarter of said Section No. 7-7. Thence North 950 varas along the west line of said N.E. Quarter of said Section No. 7-7 to the place of beginning, containing 320 acres of land. And being the west half of said Section No. 7-7, the patent to said Section or Survey being of record in Liber 8, page 61, of the Deed Records of Yoakum County, Texas. 2nd: That the defendants, each and all of them are claiming some interest in said above described land and premises, and would withhold from plaintiff the possession thereof. That the defendants aforesaid, each and all of them, have no bona fide title, interest or claim in said land and premises and that their alleged claims casts a cloud upon the title of this plaintiff which should be removed.

We are glad to be able to receive the Seminole Sentinel again after a few weeks absence. Editor Stone has recently undergone another operation at a Lubbock sanitarium, and as he was unable to secure help, the Sentinel was dormant during the time.

Volume I and No. 1 of the Meadow Review reached us the past week. It is a six column, four page paper and reasonably well supported by the business men of Meadow, Brownfield, and Lubbock, is well edited and seems to have the real Terry spirit.

Now comes some smart elix officers down near Wichita Falls and put more work on the already overworked Governor of Texas. He went and arrested one of her pardonees, who is held for another burglary stunt, and if he is sent up, she will have to turn him out all over again.

"What sayest thou of thyself." What a question to ask a public man. Yet that is what the Pharisees asked John the Baptist. Once a noted evangelist was holding a big "revival" in a town. He had spent several sermons talking about himself and his wonderful work. One night some one sent him the following question: "We have heard about you. Now what sayest thou of Christ."

Planting is now the real order of the day, and it is no uncommon thing to see from two to seven planters all going in the same field. Farmers are also reporting the best and most uniform stands in years. The Herald is of the opinion that the outlook for a bumper crop is right here with us, and with reasonably good prices this fall, the wheels of industry will turn in old Terry. On with our goal of 25,000 bales of cotton and 300 cars of corn this fall.

There is much talk of international disarmament these days, and a stab is also being made to carry it out, but a very, very puny effort is being put forth to disarm our own citizenry. It has just about gotten to the point that when our daily newspapers fail to carry several big headlines announcing robbery with firearms, or some man killing his wife and family, or the wife the husband and family, we think the people all slept that day.

Let's clean out our own gun totes before we make a big buggyboon about international disarming.

There has been much talk in the past few years of trying to simplify our court procedure, being as it is based on the relics of medieval England and perhaps ancient Rome, and somewhat modernize and shorten the rocky road to court and thereby lower the costs. Much of the language used is "dead" and understandable only by those versed in law and ancient languages. Take for instance a citation by publication, and it will start out by telling the sheriff to summon so and so in a newspaper in his county, if there be one, but if not in the nearest newspaper printed in a county nearest to their county, but if no newspaper is published in that county then in one in that judicial district, if there be one, then if not in the nearest district to said district, etc., etc. There is hardly a county now in the state without its newspaper, sometimes several, and not a judicial district in the state without several, and all this vain repetition only goes to make up a big cost for the plaintiff. Then too, some of the language could be Englishized and better understood by the laity. However, the newspaper should not worry, for it gets so much per for each word used, but the masses of the people pay the bills, and they should demand a reform here.

It is the candid opinion of the Herald that one of the most successful as well as the most harmonious term of our school in years is coming to a close this week, and this has resulted largely from the work of the P.T.A. of Brownfield. These patriotic parents and teachers have met regularly all during the term, and instead of an abating interest and attendance, it has acquired momentum as the term advanced. The parents and teachers in this way have become personally acquainted and have learned to work together for the advancement of the cause of education in Brownfield. At its weekly business sessions and good programs, they have learned to pass the acquaintance stage, and have become friends and neighbors with a common cause to be worked out, and the results of this was shown in the huge parade here Tuesday afternoon, which was not only a credit to the P.T.A., but to the town and county, and worthy of a town many times the size of our town and our school. Again, the attendance at all the commencement exercises have drawn overcrowded house, and the programs have all been carried out with a spirit of good will and co-operation that is conclusive evidence that a school spirit has been worked up here that will stand us in good need to begin our next session.

Mrs. Hoseney Key, of Clovis, N. M., is here visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Will Moore, of Gomez.

Albert Curry, editor and owner of the Seagraves Signal, was up Monday on business and paid the Herald a friendly call.

Nearly every week several people comes in the News office and asks to see a paper from some nearby town. In most cases some remark is made about the appearance of the paper and a guess is made as to the kind of town represented. When a paper has an up-to-date appearance with a clean front page and the advertising grouped in line with the best authorities, with all lines of business represented, they always make some approving remark, but when other conditions obtain—the less said the better. You can't get away from the fact that a town is judged by its newspaper, and it takes the co-operation of everyone to make the paper what it ought to be. When the merchants advertise in the home paper and have all their printing done at home, they have a right to expect a paper that will do justice to the town, but when the traveling printing peddler is patronized, whatever notoriety the paper gives the town is donated by the editor. Every town should strive to help make a paper that everyone can be proud of.—McLean News.

Not the Same "Kitty"

The other evening Jimmy's mother was settling herself down for a good read when she saw her small son stride over to the window, seize the kitten that was dozing on the ledge, and swinging it about by its tail, give it a vigorous shaking.
 "Jimmy! Jimmy! Stop that at once," she cried, and making a grab at the kitten, rescued it from its tormenter.
 "What do you mean by being so cruel to the poor little thing?" she demanded.
 "I wasn't cruel," said Jimmy. "When dad was playing cards last night I heard him say, 'Now boys, there's at least five dollars in the kitty,' and well, I was trying to shake it out."—London Answers.

Not So Dumb

When the earl of Bradford was brought before the lord chancellor to be examined on the application for a statute of lunacy against him, the question was asked him from the wool-sack:
 "How many feet has a sheep?"
 "Does your lordship," answered Lord Bradford, "mean a live sheep, or a dead sheep?"
 "Is it not the same thing?" said the chancellor.
 "No, my lord," returned Lord Bradford. "There is much difference; a live sheep may have four legs, a dead sheep has only two; the two forelegs are shoulders, but there are only two legs of mutton."—Yorkshire (Eng.) Post.

Cancer in Lower Animals

Scientists seeking a cure for cancer have been attempting to find a solution for their problem and to learn more of the nature of the growth by producing it in animal specimens. Experiments with rats and mice have shown that a certain kind of tar will cause cancerous formations six months after it is applied to the living tissue of the animals, and it was also found that cancers were produced in the stomachs of the specimens after they had eaten cockroaches infested with a certain kind of worm. While the cure is being sought, efforts are also constantly in progress to improve existing methods of treatment to allay the ravages of the mysterious affliction.—Calgary Herald.

WE ARE IN BUSINESS TO SELL YOU CERTAINTY AND PEACE OF MIND ABOUT YOUR TITLE TO YOUR PROPERTY

Unless your abstract of title is as solid as the foundation upon which the house is built—and unless you know it is that solid—you will inevitably be in a constant state of uncertainty about your investment.

To have absolute knowledge that your title is all you think it is, and all that it should be, is worth a lot more than the small cost of securing a complete and accurate abstract from us.

We are specialists in this work. Nobody but a specialist knows enough to give you the best service—for only the experienced training and the complete, systematic and accurate records possessed by us make it possible to furnish a perfect abstract and do it every time.

If you buy or exchange property, we cordially invite you to call and find out how we can serve you.

EDUCATING THE DEALER TO HIS HOME TOWN PAPER

The town is known to the outside world by its newspaper. Those towns which have rallied 'round their newspapers have extended its borders far beyond the sign boards painted "City Limits."

Community spirit is built up from Service as well as buying and selling farmers and laborers, and runs highest in those towns which have advertised their shops and stores through the local papers. No town stands still long—either it rallies around the local paper, the bandstand and the ball team for a pride of advancement and achievement, or it dozes gently off to sleep and decay while active neighbors and the bigger cities drain off the life blood that should course through its civic veins.

The business houses of any town or city, large or small, can move the "city limits" out two miles, five miles and even ten miles and more where hard roads and advertising are used. Instead of their city limits being set by the signboards erected by the town council, they can set them by their reputation for service and their advertising in the local paper to include an area a hundred times as large—yes, even a thousand times as great. A dealer's store occupies important space on main street, space that is worth from $100 to $500 per month, frequently. The more people brought from the outside into that store, the more economical service he can render the community, and the more profit to himself and everybody in that community.—Country Newspaper Service.

RUNNING WATER CUTS OFF 14,000 MILES IN HOME

Kansas farm women living in Reno county recently had several years added to their lives by the Extension Division of the Kansas State Agricultural College through the demonstration of running water installed for the farm home. Only about one farm home in ten have running water in the home, according to Prof. Walker, head of the agricultural engineering department of the college, who insists that this backwardness on the part of farm families is due more to lack of information than anything else. Hence, a motor truck was fitted up with several types of water systems, a kitchen sink with simple pitcher pump that could be installed for around $20 for the renter who might have to move the outfit from farm to farm, being the simplest.

A series of demonstrations were held at eight different points, some 220 attending and twenty leaving requests for the college architect to visit their farms and recommend systems. Calls are coming in for further visits, and it is confidentially predicted that the 100 now systems aimed for will be installed in Reno county as a result.

According to the research department of the national association of farm equipment manufacturers this would cut about 14,000 miles a year off the needless walking of farm women in that community besides adding at least a century to their lives and permitting them to do some constructive work for themselves and their families. Were every county in the U. S. to do as much for its farm women by giving them running water in the home where they are now carrying water for washing, cooking, scrubbing, laundry and both, the saving in farm women power would be so tremendous as to be almost beyond belief. Virginia, California, Illinois, Minnesota, New York, Indiana, Nebraska, Tennessee, Arkansas, and others of the state agricultural colleges are all doing work in this line, and all are finding similar situations.

Bumpers for Faucets

The faucets at the kitchen sink often cause trouble because they are so exposed that now and then a dish is broken on them. At the 10-cent store (and at others, too) you will find rubber tips used on cans and crutches which sell for five cents each.

Two of these will fit over the ends of the faucets and, when the rubber is bored out to allow the water to flow, make admirable bumpers for the faucets at practically no cost. Twenty cents will equip both hot and cold water faucets in the kitchen and bathroom. They can be removed instantly for cleaning.—New York Herald-Tribune.

Two Helpings

Linton B. Arnold, director of the recent Atlantic City Hotel exposition, said on the steel pier:

"A good many people dislike music with their food. The finest food, as a matter of fact, is always served without music, just as the finest music is always served without food."

"The only advantage of the combination of food and music is that the food helps you to forget the music, and the music helps you to forget the food."

Writing Paper Told

The credit of making the first sheet of paper is due, according to the American Forestry association, to a scholar of the name T'ai-lun of China, in the year 75 A. D. For this achievement he was 40 years later raised to the rank of marquis.

It appears that T'ai-lun, believing that old bamboo tablets and stylus had outlived their usefulness, set for himself the task of making new writing materials. After 30 years he produced the first hand sheet of paper, and it was made from the bark of a mulberry tree.

Prior to T'ai-lun's day leaves of trees and various barks used in crude form had served the Egyptians, Romans and other nations as paper.

T'ai-lun, however, did not use the crude inner bark of the tree as the final material on which to make his records. He did use the bark, but merely as a raw material from which he produced a finished sheet of paper by a series of processes which, crude as they may seem now, were the forerunners of paper manufacture today.

Heine, Like Others, Felt

Charm of Don Quixote

Heine, a later magician in laughter and tears, has narrated his own alternating attitudes toward Don Quixote. It was the first book he read after he had really learned to read; and he took the tale, he has told us, with the unshaken faith and seriousness of childhood. . . . he wept bitter tears over the ridicule and rebuffs of the noble-hearted knight. He re-read the book every five years or so with ever-varying feelings. As a youth he was, he confesses, bored by it. Later he saw in it only the comic side, and laughed at the follies of the mad knighterrant. Older yet again and wiser he made friends for life with Quixote and Sancho. Afterward he had but to glance over his shoulder to perceive attending him the phantom forms of the thin knight and the fat squire—more particularly, he adds, when he himself, hung irresolute at some parting of the ways. What Heine felt by turns, the world has felt by classes.—Times Literary Supplement.

Miracles of St. Leonard

If there were such a personage, St. Leonard would certainly have been the patron saint of prisoners. He was originally a French nobleman at the court of Clovis I, and became a monk and founded a monastery which, after his death, about 500, was known as St. Leonard le Noblat. He was famed for his charity toward prisoners, and is reputed to have worked many miracles on their behalf. These miracles in releasing unhappy captives continued after his death, according to tradition, which was very convenient, as his festival happened to be the first day of the Michaelmas term, when writs were made returnable.—Family Herald.

Early Adding Machines

That the ancient Inca civilization in Peru possessed an adding and calculating machine has been revealed in the recent discovery by excavators of a knotted cord, or "quipu," in the ruins of a prehistoric tomb. The cord is sixteen yards long and contains 100 knots. Divided into ten unequal sections these knots represent the odd numbers from one to nineteen. The sections are of different colors, including red, brown, yellow, blue and green, and are separated by silver beads, which represent the even numbers from two to twenty. By using this simple way of counting, based on the decimal system, rapid calculations can be made.—Montreal Star.

Marriage Ethics in East

"Proudly the first wife stands on the river bank while at her feet the 'second wife' washes all the plates and all the dishes. She is training the young second wife, whom she had herself advised her husband to take, to wash the dishes and plates. She was tired of being the only wife of her husband, who was earning quite enough to take a second young wife. Her jealousy is dead. She herself found the girl, and her husband was quite pleased with this charming little second wife, and the first wife has a maid at last. Never again will she wash dishes and plates in the river."—Eastward.

First Recorded Divorce

A German magazine suggests that Thebes may have been the Reno of ancient Egypt. According to this paper, a papyrus document found in a tomb excavated on the site of that city contains the first divorce decree in recorded history which is thoroughly authenticated. The document is probably two thousand years old. It bears the signature of a notary named Thut. On the reverse side of the papyrus are the signatures of four witnesses. The grounds for the divorce are not stated.—Pioneer Magazine.

Put Naturalist Down as "Poor Innocent"

The patient devotion of the naturalist to observations that seem to the ignorant onlooker trifling and meaningless often creates in the minds of those onlookers a reasonable doubt of the scientific man's sanity. In the "Human Side of Faure," by Mr. P. F. Bicknell, there is an amusing incident in point; that the great French naturalist was himself fond of relating.

Ever since daybreak, he says, I had been sitting in watchful waiting on a stone at the bottom of a ravine. The digger wasp of Languedoc was the subject of my morning's study. Three women, grape-pickers, passed me on their way to the vineyards. Glancing at the man sitting there apparently lost in thought, they gave him a polite good morning, which he as politely returned. At sunset the same three grape-pickers passed again on their homeward way with their heaped-up baskets on their heads. The man was still there, sitting on the same stone; his eyes were turned upon the same spot.

My immobile attitude and my long-continued station on the one spot all alone must have struck them as something extraordinary. As they passed me I saw one of them touch her forehead with her finger, and I heard her whisper to the others in their patois: "A poor innocent. Oh, poor man!" They all three crossed themselves.

An innocent she had called me, an innocent—that is, an idiot, a poor devil, harmless but bereft of his reason—and they had all three made the sign of the cross, for in their eyes an idiot was marked with the seal of God.—Youth's Companion.

Persian Rug Classed as Work of Real Art

A truly unique piece of oriental work is Persia's wonderful "Crownation" rug. It embraces a pictorial record of Persia's rulers from times antedating the Christian era to the time of the World War. Work upon the rug was started in 1906 and went on until it was completed. It was to have glorified the crowning of the sultan Ahmed Mirza, on the occasion of his expected ascension to the throne of Persia, but was diverted mysteriously to New York. Moving like the enchanted carpet, it was spirited 6,000 miles to that modern Bagdad. The rug is a multicolored one, is 16 feet long by 11 feet wide, and was specially woven during the period of 17 years, being the handiwork of the 27 most famous rug makers then living in Persia. With remarkable fidelity to features and absolute verity to costume of the time of each individual depicted, this rug represents the portrait of 160 of Persia's great kings, or shahs, and is otherwise highly decorated. There are 1,000 knots to each square inch, or about 25,300,000 knots tied to the linen warp threads to produce the wool nap that forms the velvety body and creates the portrait and decorative features.

Roosevelt's Idea of Man

It is not the critic who counts, nor the man who points out how the doer of deeds could have done better. The credit belongs to the man who is actually in the arena; whose face is marred by dust and sweat; who strives valiantly; who errs and may fall again and again, because there is no effort without error and shortcoming, but who does actually strive to do the deeds; who does know the great enthusiasm, the great devotion; who spends himself in a worthy cause, who, at the best, knows in the end the triumph of high achievement and who at the Principles of Operation

We believe that a bank should not only be a depository of funds, but indeed a haven where the rich and poor alike can confide their financial troubles, fears and doubts into the attentive ear of their mutual friend and counselor, the BANKER. This Bank, like the great oak from the little acorn, of persistent effort and sound business principals has grown. It stands today like the Oak, its many services and ample resources, like the limbs, cast their shadow of protection over those who seek its shelter, a mecca which invites the confidence and patronage of the public.

PRAISES GRADUATE OF BROWNFIELD-HIGH SCHOOL.

John Tarleton Agricultural College, Stephenville, Texas, May 12, 1925. Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Knoll, Brownfield, Texas.

Dear friends—Knowing how I should feel when my boys would make good away from home, I want to express my sentiment about Bennie. I did not have him in my classes the first semester until the semester was almost up, but I have had him five hours a week this whole term. I have found him a sturdy honest student, one asking nothing except an even break with his work. He has never asked a special favor, and never wanted one. He has made good with me and I am proud of it.

Bennie has been in my family like a relative. In fact, I do not believe that my family ever stop to ask themselves if he is not a relative. He comes and goes. We have ceased to treat him as a visitor. He knows he is welcome at any hour, and comes as he wishes. I have a boy in the junior year with him, and they seem almost like brothers.

The best thing that I can say about him is the courtesy and consideration he has shown my father and mother this year. I shall always love him for that. Mama would no more think of having him leave her than she would one of her grandsons leave. In papa's recent illness that resulted in his death, Bennie never took of his clothes for two or three nights. He stood by papa and the family as if he belonged to them. Mama and the girls join me in these expressions of praise of your boy.

We say of him: "He has been tried and not found wanting."

We wish you both the very best of success in all things, and ask that our opinion of Bennie be given to the other children. It may be an encouragement to them.

Kindest regards from all the family.

W. E. Wilkins.

Well, we have played hookie long enough, and we are going to tell the people what a nice rain we had last Saturday and the week previous, and some of the Liberty bunch are planting cotton and feed.

We have had two nice rains besides some nice showers.

Liberty is planning for a Children's Day the 4th Sunday in May. There is a very small bunch of us here, but we are going to do the best we can for the children, and all are very welcome who wish to come. We expect to have our new school house complete for the occasion.

Model Lover a Bricklayer

Common brick has always played an important part in the building industries throughout the world. Volumes have been written on the history and uses to which bricks have been put, but not on their romance, says the New York Herald-Tribune.

In the Italian city of Bologna there remain two towers of brick, sole survivors of approximately 180 similar ones said to have been erected between the Tenth and Thirteenth centuries. Legends say it was the custom to knights to win their ladies fair by erecting brick towers, taller than the one constructed by rivals.

Famous Group of Stars

The Pleiades is a group of small stars in the constellation Taurus, very conspicuous on winter evenings about 24 degrees north of the equator. For some unknown reason there were anciently said to be seven Pleiades, although only six were conspicuous then as now; hence the suggestion of a lost Pleiad. In mythology the Pleiades were said to be the daughters of Atlas and Pleione, and were named Alcyone, Merope, Celaeno, Electra, Sterope or Asterope, Taygeta and Maia.

The first inventor to take advantage of the first national patent act, which congress passed in 1790, was Samuel Hopkins of Vermont. His patent was for an improved method of "making pot and pearl ashes." In those days the potash industry was important. Potash, which was used in making soap and glass, was produced by leaching wood ashes and boiling down the lye. To make a ton of potash, which was worth about $25, the trees on an acre of ground had to be cut down and burned, the ashes leached and the lye evaporated in great iron kettles.—Youth's Companion.

Koran Inspired Work?

The Koran or Alcoran, the sacred book of the Mohammedans, was written about 610 by Mahomet, who asserted that it had been revealed to him by the Angel Gabriel in 23 years. It was published by Abu-bekr about 635. The leading articles of faith preached is compounded of an eternal truth and a necessary fiction, namely, that there is only one God, and that Mahomet is the prophet or apostle of God. The Koran was translated into English by Sale in 1734. It was a rhapsody of 6,000 verses, divided into 114 sections.

No Change in Status

A man ran away with the wife of a neighbor. The local clergyman called upon the deserted husband to attempt to console him, but the man seemed singularly cheerful considering the nature of his loss.

"It's too bad; too bad!" said the clergyman. "I understand that the man who persuaded your wife to elope with him was your best friend."

The husband smiled.

"Yes," he said, "he was—and he is!"

REAL COWBOYS TO CONTEST IN RODEO

Here's a news item that will interest Texas cowboys and cowgirls. It concerns the Roundup and World's Championship Rodeo which is to be held in Chicago August 15 to 23.

Thirty thousand dollars in cash prizes is being offered. This in addition to the world's championship titles, belts and trophies will go to the victors of the "Chicago Roundup," which is to be held at the Grant Park Stadium under the auspices of the Chicago Association of Commerce.

The "Roundup" marks Chicago's debut as the rodeo capitol of America. Cheyenne and Pendleton have been the two great rodeo centers of the country; hereafter there will be three, with plans laid to make Chicago the greatest of all. Chicago, the original and biggest cowboy town, is assured of the cream of rodeo talent.

There will be none of the "circus" atmosphere about the Chicago Roundup, it is announced. No paid performers need apply. It is a free-for-all and open to the world, and Texas boys and girls who really think they are good will never have a better chance to prove it. Entries have already been received from "busters" and "doggers" who will compete in the Wyoming and Montana tournaments, and the challenge has gone out to Canada, Mexico, Argentina and Australia. Previous winners of the championship titles are being notified of the Chicago event and those who fail to defend them will automatically forfeit their claims to these honors to the winners of this contest who will be the undisputed world's champions.

The program of the Chicago Roundup covers all the customary branches of the contest and the purses offered are alluring to cowboys and cowgirls alike.
