Chamber of Commerce CURRENTS By the Secretary

Our hog campaign has not brought the results that were expected to this date. In fact, only three people have spoken for gilts and all of them live in town. Now I may be mistaken about the scarcity of hogs in Terry county, but if so, they were in the shinnery eating acorns at the time I was out getting exhibits for the fair.

We would surely like to unload one car, and it would be better if it could be two, as we could then soon stock for each man's needs.

We are not undertaking to get any person to enter hog raising as a business, because nine-tenths of them would lose money, but we would like to see enough hogs on each farm for home use and a little surplus for the use of the town man. Over $100,000 is going out of Terry county to the packers for meat, and lard, and we could keep this money at home and assist wonderfully in the face of the present price of cotton.

And the price of cotton brings on another thought. Had you noticed that the merchants of Brownfield had the price of their goods reduced to conform to the low price of cotton, and that you can buy goods at home for less money than the mail order houses will charge you for the same stuff, aside from the fact that the money stays at home and gets into circulation again, and a dollar in circulation in Brownfield will be of more benefit to Terry county people than several thousand would be if circulating in some other man's country.

Why not plant a few thousand acres in wheat? It has been demonstrated that it will grow here and fully 65 per cent of the land is adapted to it, and there is no question but that it would bring in some much needed cash at the right time. We still have more than 30 days in which to plant it, and while we do not have the fall seasons every year this is one that we do, and 1925 was another one.

Have you some hens and cows. Ask R. S. Heartsill, J. L. Hyman, T. B. Hood, J. H. Howze, D. J. Broughton, Arch Fowler, Frank Proctor and numerous others if they are not profitable.

COLLINS DRY GOODS OPEN STORE AT LAMESA

Three carloads of fixtures and merchandise for the Collins Dry Goods Company arrived in Lamesa this week. The stuff is being unloaded and placed in the Quinn building at the northeast corner of the square.

A force of carpenters are busy putting up the shelving and fixtures for the store.

W. B. Collins, owner and manager of the store, arrived here Wednesday accompanied by his family. Mr. Collins says that it will be about a week before he will be ready for business here.

This store is being moved to Lamesa from Boswell, Oklahoma, where he has been doing business for 21 years. Mr. Collins says he has come to Lamesa to stay.—Lamesa Journal.

HALLOWE'N PRANKS HERE ABOUT AS USUAL

Most of the young people of the town enjoyed themselves one way then another in a social way last Saturday night with Hallowe'en parties, parading with the false makeups etc., and gave the authorities very little trouble.

But as usual, also, there were a few hoodlums out for a lark, and the destruction of property, or lowdown dirty tricks mean nothing to them.

Some of these tricks could not possibly be funny to anyone except those of a depraved disposition, and if the officers can find out who is responsible for these tricks, they will make it very warm for them.

It's alright to be a boy—all boys—but there is a right way and a wrong way to have fun.

FREE BABY CLINIC

There will be a free baby clinic next Wednesday at the office of the County Health Nurse from 2:30 to 5:00 P. M.

All wishing to have their babies examined will please be there at the appointed hour.

HOW ARE WE GOING TO CELEBRATE ARMISTICE?

Armistice is nearing us again, and so far we have not heard one thing said about a program during any part of the day or evening, parade. The Legion boys may have something in mind they have not broached as yet, but it seems to us that the time is mighty close for something to be done if the day is fitly celebrated.

Of course we may all hang out our flags, go on with our work and call it a day of patriotic devotion, but it will just be "called" and that's all.

We, as a people should not soon forget the supreme sacrifices so many of our people paid in the Big War, nor its glorious ending, and if we do nothing but pull a parade of the school children headed by the band and one or two good addresses, we have done much better than just merely putting out our flags and going on with our daily routine.

Why not have a rousing program at night in our new district courtroom or some other auditorium.

BETTER HAVE YOUR CAR LIGHTS TESTED

It is said that the Highway Department is going to clamp down on law violators. Here are some of the requirements issued testing stations.

1. When a car is new, that is, one carrying a dealer's license number or no number at all, comes in for test, the certificate should be made out as usual except that in the place provided for the license number the word "NEW" should be written.

2. Cars or trucks not equipped with headlamps will not have to be so equipped unless they are operated on the highway at night. An affidavit made at time of registration to the effect that a truck or car is not equipped with headlamps will take the place of a certificate from a test station and the car or truck will be registered as usual.

3. The adjusting screen should be set up with its base on a level with the car-guide.

4. Your Commissioners' Court will furnish you certificates of adjustment to be issued to the individual motorists.

Lest We Forget

AMHERST 13—BROWNFIELD 6

Friday morning the local football went to Amherst to meet the Amherst eleven on the gridiron field. This was the sixth game of the season, and hopes were running high for a victory, but hopes were forced to die as Amherst's powerful fullback Nickles used his toe and scored a field goal from the forty nine yard line, which he close followed with a touchdown and extra point. Then toward the close of the game scored three more points with his educated toe, making a score of 13 points to our 6.

Brownfield's touchdown came in the first quarter when Clovis Kendrick broke through and intercepted a pass behind the line and raced 25 yards for the center.

The local boys have no alibi to offer. They admit they were just out classed and played.

To lose a game should not weaken the spirit of the town but should strengthen it. Help win from Post, Friday!

Reporter.

FIRE DESTROYS OLD TAHOKA LANDMARK

The Tahoka Coal and Grain building and the supply of feed it contained were totally destroyed by fire about one o'clock Monday night. The business was owned and conducted by Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Jones, and Mr. Jones estimates his loss at about $7,000.00. Insurance was carried to the amount of $5,000.00.

The origin of the fire is unknown. When it was discovered by night watchman W. M. Lee it had already made considerable headway. He rushed back to town and turned in the fire alarm but before the fire boys could reach the scene the fire had made such progress that it was impossible to save the building or any of its contents.—Tahoka News.

G. E. Ault and wife, of Tulsa, Okla., here for the past several days on business, are stopping at the Hotel Brownfield.

The public is kindly requested to arrange their business accordingly in order that they may not be inconvenienced.

OLD TIMER SAYS THIS REMINDS HIM OF EARLY DAYS

L. Townsend, of the Bronco community in Yoakum county, was here Monday afternoon during the rain storm, and in conversation with the writer, he grew quite reminiscent.

He said the heavy rains of this fall reminded him of the first winter he spent on the Plains some 20 odd years ago, when he moved his family from Dickens county and located a small ranch just over in what is now Lea county New Mexico. The cows and horses he brought, of course were used to the breaks below the cap, and the winds and cold rains of the first fall begin to tell on them wonderfully, although he said the grass was high enough to mow, and some did mow it in that section.

He moved his family to Gomez for a few months during late fall, but heard that his cows were scattering from a big snow which fell just before Christmas, and although his baby was only three weeks old, they started for home to try and round up the herd. At that time practically all of Lea county, as well as Chavis was open range, with only a county line fence, and it was down in most places. The LFD's had the range of all that section. Mr. Townsend said he could frequently hear of his herd but was never able to find any except the poorest. Along about the middle of March, another big snow fell and he gave up the cattle business in disgust.

He sold his holdings near Harris, now owned by J. R. Hill and moved his family to Plains, and have lived in that section most of the time since. The fact that it has been a wet fall which makes it almost impossible for the farmers to gather their big feed crops, he says reminds him of that fall and winter. He bought maize to feed his stuff from a ranch north of where Tatum now stands, but he said even feed would not keep them from drifting during bad weather after he threw them out on open range. Mr. Townsend has a large feed crop this year but no cotton.

SINGING CONVENTION AT FORRESTER WAS GOOD

President J. F. Thomason of the Terry County Singing Convention, was in one day recently to renew his Herald for another year, and informed us that while the recent convention at Forrester was attended mostly by Terry county people, there was a nice crowd on hand, and some fine singing was enjoyed by the people.

There was not a great deal of special songs, but what there was certainly were up to the average.

At the noon hour a fine basket dinner was spread by the people of that community, joined by the people of adjoining communities, which was fine and plenty of it.

Mr. Thomason did not inform us who got the next convention, but it will be advertised in these columns in due time.

SELLING SOMETHING BESIDES COTTON ON THESE FARMS

There are still a few farms in Terry county where they have not gone hog wild over cotton, and it is not at all strange that these farms are not sorry of the fact this year. In fact some of them have recently informed the Herald that they are glad that they do not have a big crop of cheap cotton on their hands to harvest.

One of these farms is situated on or close to the Brownfield-Lamesa road in the Pride country, and belongs to one of the oldest settlers in the county, Mrs. J. K. Epperson. She has had entire oversight of the farm two years ago, and you know that women generally speaking, are better farm managers than most men.

This year Mrs. Epperson devoted a portion of her farm to the large Tennessee red peanuts, and brought in a supply of them that would do credit to any of the old States which have made them famous. They are as sound as a dollar, and bear a flavor to suit anyone who loves this fruit. She found a ready market here for them to those who just wanted a few to carry home, and we imagine she could find a market with little effort in which she could dispose of the entire crop.

Another farmer who has something to sell besides cotton is E. H. Tandy, of near Brownfield, out on the south route. We know, for Mr. Tandy was in one day recently with as fine lot of yamaters as one could wish and offered to swap a lot of 'em for another year of the Herald. He was traded with before he could have backed out to save him, and now if we just had the 'possum, we surely would be riding a high horse these days, and would mighty near forget ten cent cotton. Mr. Tandy did not raise a great many of these potatoes as he did not have a large supply of water, but he has plenty for his own use and some to sell.

The sweet potato is one of the easiest vegetables to raise in this section as it takes very little if any more cultivation than any of the field or garden crops, and we never heard of any potato insects here or anywhere else that we know of.

The only thing that one has to contend with in connection with potato raising on a large scale is rotting after being dug, and this can be eliminated by curing plants.

But these curing plants will have to be built just as they have in the Clovis and Portales sections of New Mexico, and as they are rather expensive, a community will have to go into together, or some man of capital has to build them and charge a fee for curing the community potatoes. We understand that most of those in the Portales country are community owned, and each has the right to their stalls during the curing season and the one heating plant does the work for the entire community.

Potatoes when dug in this country where they are heavily irrigated, are very full of sap and with the quick changes incident to our climate, the potatoes easily rot in this section as a consequence. But after being kindred they keep indefinitely, and may be marketed at the will of the producer, which is twelve months in the year. They can also be readily cured, and in this form especially are finding a ready market in the north, which a few years ago knew nothing of the value of the sweet potato.

We believe it would be advisable for our farm associations to take this matter under advisement, as it is a well known fact that our sandy soils are fine for sweet potatoes, and the market demand seems to be unlimited for them.

MAN AND STILL CAPTURED

Sheriff Len Irvin was in town Tuesday afternoon and while in conversation with a representative of the News reported that he has taken into custody a very prominent citizen north of the Sand Hills and placed him in the Olton jail, charged with the possession of intoxicating liquor. He also has on exhibition one 20 gallon capacity copper still that was found on the premises of the man arrested.—Sedan News.

Dr. J. W. Head, the ear, eye, nose and throat specialist of Fort Worth will be here from tomorrow until next Wednesday at Dr. Treadaway's office. Dr. Head is now too well known over this section for any recommendation from us.

A HALLOWE'EN PARTY

Last Saturday evening a number of the young people of our town met and had the most wonderful of this season, at the home of Mrs. J. W. Welch, Miss Dona Welch being hostess. The guests arrived at the appointed hour and after registering, the fun began. The evening was spent in playing bunco and other games.

The house was beautifully decorated with the Hallowe'en colors, and everything that would make it look "spooky."

Refreshments of orange soda pop and cookies were served and on each bottle was a fortune which was read aloud.

Those enjoying the party were: Lillie Mae Baily, Lena Mae Ballard, Lou Ellen Brown, Christine Price, Glays Kendrick, Anna Bell Scudday, Mary Kathryn Anthony, Lois Adams, Minnie Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Anthony Jr., Clyde Eicke, Tom Herod, Bill Collins, Joel English, W. D. Smith, Vance Glover, T. P. Edwards, William King, Luther Tannery, Buster Edwards, Pete Bennett, Guy T. Nelson, Pete Tirenian, Sam Price, Lee Orval Lewis, Red Black and Jack Tiernan. Those of the special guests were Maurine Lemons, Blanche White and Ruth Hill from Lubbock.

After some of the guests had departed, a large majority remained to go spooking. After a long ramble, with the serenading several homes, we were homeward bound when one of the guests happened to the painful accident of spraining her ankle. She was carried to a nearby home and a doctor quickly summoned. It proved nothing serious, and she is up and going, we understand.

The accident holding in our fun and frolic, we quickly adjourned and went home. But nevertheless we had a wonderful time and hope for many more parties like this one.—A Guest.

THE FARMER'S UTOPIA

Inasmuch as the farmer's problem is the chief problem of the hour inasmuch as we possess first hand knowledge of the farmer's problem, inasmuch as the farmer is the coming man, and inasmuch as we have the answer to the farmer's problem, in a nutshell; we shall proceed to set forth the same. For years we have wondered—"What is the answer?" Now we know the answer.

One of these days we are coming to town, singly, perhaps, not in large numbers to be sure, but we are coming. (Now friends, if we chance to overlook anyone, please let us know. It is not our desire to slight anyone.)

First we will visit the grocer. We are sure that he has on hand many perishable groceries, of which he may not be able to dispose these hard times. There would be nothing amiss in his giving us a few of these, just to get them out of his way. And we are sure too, he'll be glad to give our children some of his confections. Who could be little with children?

Now we will visit the dry goods merchant. Surely much of his stock will soon be out of date. Mr. Merchant, you can't be so "close-fisted" as to refuse to give us of your goods. You can't sell them all to a profit.

We'll just run around to the hardware and pick up some of the things that must soon give place to something more modern.

We must have our noon day meal, but any hotel or restaurant will gladly supply that free, if they are not rushed.

Mr. Druggist, haven't you a lot of goods that you've had on hand for a long time? Perhaps we can rid you of some of your rubbish. You might throw in some of your cosmetics, also, just to be obliging.

We'll visit our friend the barber. If he isn't rushed he couldn't object to doing a little barber work for a friend.

We can't slight our good friend, the Theatre man. We'll wait and see if the seats are all occupied, if not we'll just slip into a vacant seat. It will cost no more to put on the show because we are there.

Mr. Banker, money is cheap these days, when measured by anything except raw farm products. Please make us a present of a hundred or two.

The products of the land yield such small returns, we are sure the large land holders will be glad to give us just a few acres; enough to build our residences and outbuildings on, and raise us a garden and orchard. Thank you.

The lumber men cannot be so inhospitable as to refuse us enough lumber for our buildings.

Be ready friends, we are coming to visit you. Yes, we'll visit you often, and go home with our problems all vanished. The farmer's problems in a nutshell! Utopia at last!

Madness? Far from it! These self-same principals are enacted before your eyes, every day.

Friends, we are paying thirty, forty, fifty dollars, and upward and then upward and still upward for our land. Then interest and taxes.

Our farm tools cost like wild fire. Our machinery or farm animals is no small item. Feed is enormous. Seed is not handed to us for the asking. Labor is beyond the reach of our pocketbook. Besides all this consider the labor of the farmer and his family, wee toddlers and all, from January 1st to December the thirty-first.

We preach anti-child labor, but the farmers children are forced to hard labor, constantly. The law says, "Thou shalt send thy children to school." Necessity says, "Thou shalt keep thy children incessantly at hard labor." The Good Book says, "No man can serve two masters." Yet, we are in a straight "betwixt" two.

The production on any ordinary farm, any ordinary year is enough to feed the family for several years, and any good reasonably good year the cotton produced would about clothe the family half a life time. Then why such incessant, grinding servitude?

Only this: Let us drop the subject of cotton, just as the price has dropped. Let us talk of vegetables and all other kind of eatables.

We take our eggs to town and sell them for fifteen cents per dozen. Where else can you get that much nourishment for fifteen cents? We sell tomatoes, nice fresh, large tomatoes at twenty cents per gallon. Go to the dealer and you'll pay a dollar or more for the seed alone from a gallon of tomatoes. Any ordinary melon contains fifty cents worth of seed, yet we sell the melon for thirty or more, likely twenty-five cents. Everything else goes the same way.

Then because they are plentiful, because they are perishable, because we like to be hospitable, because we are, to a certain extent isolated and naturally crave friends, because we have practiced this for years and know no better and because we don't like to be termed, (as we so often are) stingy; we say to our friends and neighbors "Just come in and help yourself. There is plenty." We say this repeatedly not to one, but to many.

Yes, friends, there is plenty, while it lasts, and we think we are being liberal and kind—but are we? Is it kind to rob our children of their education, of their rightful pleasures of life, of all the niceties which other children enjoy, and keep them incessantly at hard labor, while peoples children other than the farmers' go to school, to the movies to—anywhere their fancy calls? Is it liberal, is it kind to take the products of our labor and give it away or sell it for less than the seed would cost?

We are robbing our own children; we are working a hardship on ourselves, on our neighbors, on every honest, hard working farmer, on the world at large, when we give things away, or sell them below cost.

(This of course, does not apply to helping those who are really in need and unable to help themselves. To help the helpless is a duty we owe to humanity. But all missionaries and social and charity workers are fast learning that the best way to help the dependants is to teach them as far as possible to help themselves.)

"But," we say, "What we give away is mostly perishable. Of course we may give our friends some corn beans, and the like for their table but who wishes to be little?"

Yes, my friends, perishable, but people must eat. If you don't give them your produce they will buy it of you. If you don't sell it below cost they will pay your price. If you can't sell it profitably, can it be future use.

If you have more than you can use that way, feed it to your live stock and let it come back to you in the form of milk, butter, meat, eggs, or efficient labor from farm animals. Rather than give it away do as a certain Pennsylvania farmer did—He hauled a load of potatoes to town, could not sell them profitably brought them home and used them for fertilizer. He took a load of eggs to town, failed to get his price took them home and broke them on his farm. Congratulations Mr. Pennsylvania farmer. If we are producing more than we can use or sell profitably, we'd better reduce the production, thus reducing both time and expense and labor, giving us time to at least breathe comfortably, occasionally. As one farmer so aptly expressed it—"It is about time we farmers quit so much farming, retire on about forty acres, and make a living."

And what family could not live comfortably on forty acres? The common store house was proved a failure in early colonial days. We think it must have been proved a failure in still earlier days, when the Apostles had all things in common for it was not long until some were complaining that their widows were being neglected and they had to organize. Later St. Paul in writing to the churches used the very words afterward made famous by Capt. John Smith—"He that will not work shall not eat." Oh, for some wise Capt. Smith or good St. Paul to teach us again "He that will not work shall not eat."

Too long has a big majority of the people "sat down to eat and to drink and rose up to play." Too long has much of the population frittered away their time in useless nothing-dressed in the height of fashion silks, satins, laces, jewels, silk hose paint and powder, while the farming minority slaved away, powdering their faces with the dust of the earth, wearing cotton hose when they can afford any at all. Cotton to be sure but lace, making the lace themselves with their feet rather than their hands. Too long has the farmer fed the world, while he and his own family have lived niggardly—"He that provideth not for his, and especially they of his own house—is worse than an infidel." Too often have we heard the expression, "Our grocer feeds us." No friend you've got the cart before the horse. Nobody feed the farmer—the farmer feeds the world!

Too long has the farmer been scorned, as a certain back number, High School Superintendent used to say to his backward pupils, "Do you wish to grow up to be just an old farmer?" Too long has the "hand said to the foot, I have no need of thee." The farmer has been forced to the wall, he has borne the world's burdens already too long. "A house divided against itself cannot stand."

Not long since in speaking of a certain section of country in these United States of ours, a friend was heard to remark—"The farm houses looked like real city houses." And who, pray, has a right to those lovely homes than the farmer?

The farmer may be uncouth in appearance, harsh of language, slow of thought, from overmuch working "brick without straw"—but God bless the farmer, the salt of the earth the backbone of the nation, the very foundation and groundwork of all civilization!

Moreover, who said that certain things should be worn and certain were taboo? Who said everything must be by a fixed rule? Who is Dame Fashion, Where does she reside? Who crowned her queen, and where does she reign?

The farmer is "the salt of the earth, but if the salt have lost its savor wherewith shall it be salted?" But the farmer is the coming man. Many efforts have been made, some honest, some otherwise, to help the farmer, but the farmer must help himself. Must work out his own salvation with fear and trembling. He that came that we might have life more abundantly; meant that abundant life for all, and we need not wait until after death to inherit it. It is for us now.

Come on up fellow farmers, come on up! We are not dogs, nor slaves, nor peons, we are the people!!! We are sitting on top of the earth." If this be treason make the most of it but "give us justice or give us death."

Friends, we are coming into our own. Not by sword or bloodshed. Never! We have neither time, means nor inclination for war. Moreover, "it is written, vengeance is mine, I will repay," sayeth the Lord." But the time is fast approaching when, "They shall beat their swords into plough shares, and their spears into pruning hooks," and shall sit every man under his own vine and his own fig tree. You can no more stay the progress of the farmer than the Pharaoh of Egypt could prevent the exodus of the children of Israel. And we challenge any one to try. Is the arm of Jehovah shortened that he can not save?" "The word of the Lord is sure enduring forever." He who came to set the captive free, will as surely liberate the farmer as He liberated the Israelites from Egyptian bondage, when the farmer learns to serve God as well "with all his mind" as he has served humanity "with all his strength!"

We are coming friends, make way. We have no desire to trample anyone, not even the smallest silken clad toe. Friends, we bear you no ill-will. We realize that you are no more responsible for the existing conditions than we are. We are not averse to your powder and rouge, your silk hose, your luxury and leisure. Revel in them. The while we revel in our "Cucumbers and melons and leeks and onions and garlic," and God's beautiful and free sunshine! When you are willing to share with us your luxury and leisure, then will we share with you the products of our farms and labor.

Until that day,

Farewell,

Mary Isenhower Perkins.

One of our good farmers acknowledged that the dairy business had or has been his saving grace this year. Others might also try it on a small scale with good profit.

The fleecy staple is rolling in at the rate of about 200 bales a day when the weather permits. The price seems to be holding its per-report price very well. This is believed to be caused from the low ginners report, being about one and a quarter million bales short.

Well, old Terry went overwhelmingly Democratic as usual, to the tune of probably 50 to 1. The Republican report of nationwide prosperity had no effect whatever upon the unfrightened democracy of this portion of the good old U. S. A. We are unable to give the vote this week but can no doubt give it next week.

Local cotton buyers are of the opinion that cotton will advance to maybe 15c for good cotton as a result of the formation by bankers of the plan to retire several million bales of this crop. They are sure the price will be no lower. The farmer should certainly do his part by not only agreeing but actually reducing his acreage next year.

Do farmers really work in this country? One mighty good farmer of Terry county says they don't. He says if farmers worked as hard here as they do in the eastern part of this State or any of the old States, they would all get rich. To begin the year they sit around, he says until about the middle of March "cussing" because it don't rain, and when it does rain, not more than 90 per cent of them are ready for it. By this time it is somewhere in May, and they list and plant all the same time. After the crop is up, if it don't blow out, he says they give it a lick and promise and leave it until the middle of September, then fool around all the fall looking for hands to gather it. He says they put in about three months of the year, raise nothing at home except cotton and a little feed and expect the Lord to do the rest. Do you believe this farmer is right or wrong?

TERRY IS KNOWN AS EGYPT OF WEST

Variety of Products and Richness of Soil Base of Appellation By Nadine Wells

"The Egypt of the West" is the slogan which attracts one as he stops at the Terry county exhibit in the Agricultural Building. Then in explanation of the slogan are the words: "In Egypt there was food."

In Terry County everything is raised that any county outside of the tropic raises, according to J. E. Shelton, who has charge of the exhibit. There is no irrigation in any part of the county.

The exhibit includes milo maize, hageri, a large watermelon, sweet potatoes, onions, turnips, Irish potatoes, apples, broom corn, hay, alfalfa, oats, wheat, millet and other forage crops, a kershaw, peanuts, both off and on the vines; a large pumpkin, beans, sweet clover and canned fruit, such as cherries, pears, plums and peaches.

Corn cotton and sorghum grains are the most important crops of Terry County. A picture showing the process of handling the sorghum plant is an interesting feature of the exhibit. The sorghum is first crushed by a machine. After a thorough crushing it passes through a pipe to a huge vat, under which is fire. In this container the plant is cooked into a syrup. When it is entirely done it is drawn off into gal lon cans, which are sealed and labeled. The entire process is done out in the open fields where the sorghum is raised. The syrup is sent to local markets and exported to markets all over Texas.

This county has had an exhibit at the State Fair of Texas for twelve or fifteen years. This fact has been the prime factor in settling that region. Until now there is not much more land to sell. Terry county is the third county in development of Texas in the years from 1920 and 1925. The increase in farms has been enormous, the number having grown from 231 farms in 1919 to 1,200 at the present time.

The people of this county are endeavoring to develop poultry raising to take the place of so much cotton. —Dallas Journal.

Jim Hatton, druggist of Pampa, formerly of this city, was visiting his family the week end.

A large crowd was on hand at the country store last Friday night at the Rialto Theatre, and some thirty five prizes were distributed to the lucky ticket holders. The editor felt lucky that night, and bought the first ticket he has purchased we believe since the Rialto has been in the present building, and got a three pound pail of White Swan coffee given by W. R. Lovelace Grocery. Don't we never patronize the theatre? Yes, certainly, but the management grants us a free pass to entertain the audience with our hearty hallo's!

As a result of Dawson and Lynn county gins refusing to gin bollies, hundreds of bales of county line cotton is coming to Brownfield to be ginned and marketed.

The Littlefield school board has announced that unless the taxes of 1925 are paid up, the school is in danger of having to close. They announced that they had already borrowed $41,000 and was at the end of their borrowing capacity. As we understand it, just about all the highly bonded and jumbo independents are having about the same trouble, with their expensive way of having to run several trucks in getting the children to school. Brownfield has a small district and we are glad of it.

Bad Color (liver trouble)

"OCCASIONALLY I am troubled with spells of constipation and inactive liver," says Mrs. John L. Pence, Broadway, Va. "I always use Thedford's Black-Draught when I feel a spell of this kind coming on, for it saves me a bad headache. My color gets sallow at times. I get real yellow, showing that the trouble comes from the liver.

"I have found Black-Draught to be the finest kind of a remedy for this. I take Black-Draught and make a tea out of it, and take it, along in small doses for several days. I have never found anything that served me so well.

"Since I have known about Black-Draught, I have not suffered nearly so much with headache, caused from indigestion. If I find my tongue is coated, and I wake up with a bad taste in my mouth, I know I have been eating indiscreetly, and I immediately resort to Black-Draught to straighten me out."

LOCAL DISPLAY WINDOW MENTIONED FAVORABLY

Suggestive armistice displays are certain to bring desired results. In the first place such displays create good will for the firm from the public, while in addition they pull in many direct sales.

The Jones Dry Goods Company, of Brownfield, Texas, use such displays to build up a strong list of friends and customers for the store. Miss Anne Hamilton, a salesclerk of this firm, arranged attractive displays for this occasion last year that went over fine with the public.

Campfire Depicted

One of these windows was dressed to resemble an outdoors scene. Brush and vines of various types were cut and placed in the background and to one end of the window. Leaves and small twigs were scattered over the window floor. Several small logs and chunks of wood were placed over the display, while directly in the center of the window was an electric light bulb that was connected to an extension cord that ran through the back of the window. Red crepe paper was wrapped around this bulb, while small chips and sticks of wood, which had actually been partly burned by fire, were then placed over this bulb.

Three small dolls, dressed in khaki suits and wearing khaki oversea caps, were stationed around this campfire. Three toy guns were stacked near the fire, while a roll of blankets and small cooking utensils were about the fire.

Two American flags were erected in the window in a prominent place, while open letter that were written during the World War were placed around the border of the display.

The second window showed a small toy white bed in the center of the window floor. A doll with its head in bandages was upon this bed. Two other dolls were standing by the bedside. One of these wore a Red Cross cap, while the other one represented the surgeon. This doll was wearing a beard and was also equipped with a tiny pair of spectacles. Other dolls, dressed in Red Cross uniforms, were stationed over the window. Flags and such decorations set off the display to the best advantage.

This means of catching attention was very successful for this firm. These displays stopped the prospects for closer inspection which resulted in many of them coming in for purchases.—Dry Goods Economist, New York.

LOVELY "42" PARTY AT MRS. T. H. WILSON'S

Very attractive Hallowe'en invitations were sent out by Mrs. T. H. Wilson and Mrs. H. M. Oehler to a party at the former's home on Saturday, October 30th. As the clock was striking four the guests arrived being met at the door by a ghost. A wicked witch then introduced and seated them.

The Hallowe'en spirit was realized all during the party by decorations and gaunt black cats perched on each tally card.

After two hours enjoyed at "42," sandwiches, hot chocolate with wafers and roasted nuts were served to the following ladies: Mesdames W. H. Dallas, R. M. Kendrick, Bob Bowers, W. R. McDuffie, C. R. Baldwin, Ralph Carter, Tom May, Earl Jones, Hudgens, T. I. Kessler, Jno. King, J. D. Miller, J. F. Winston, Burk, Brothers, Endersen, Dalton Lewis, and John Scudday.

8,722,066 BALES GINNED PRIOR TO OCTOBER 13

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—Cotton of this year's crop ginned prior to October 18 amounted to 8,722,066 running bales, including 253,199 round bales, counted as half bales and excluding linters, the census bureau announced today.

THEY ALL GO TO TOWN ON SATURDAY

The visitor a large diamond back rattler was discovered on Main street directly in front of the Cothes Drug Store. The venomous reptile put up a good fight for liberty but was finally killed by Lee Wyatt.—Seminole Sentinel.

SWASTIKA CLUB PARTY

The Swastika members and a few special guests gathered at the home of Miss Jewel Graves on Hallowe'en night, Oct. 30th. The home was beautifully decorated with ropes of orange and black crepe paper.

Bunco ensued throughout the evening. Prizes were given to Miss Othe Rentfro and Fred Youree for high, and Miss Gladys Copeland and Howard Swan for low.

TECH TALK

by a Tech Student

The Tech-T. C. U. game Saturday at Ft. Worth resulted 16 to 23 favoring T. C. U. Although the Matadors were defeated they surprised Texas football fans by their wonderful showing as a new organization against a long established and strong Southwestern Conference aggregation. The Matadors made a higher score against T. C. U. than has any team this season.

SENIOR B. Y. P. U. ENTERTAINMENTS WITH SOCIAL

The main auditorium of the First Baptist Church was turned into a playground last Friday evening when the local B. Y. P. U. entertained the Tahoka B. Y. P. U. and the local Epworth League with a gala Halloween social.

The clowns, the fairies, the goblins and the witches were all there and since the room had been previously decorated for the occasion the whole affair produced a very weird and enchanting place.

Indoor sports such as "The Smile Factory" with various places having names of Giggletown, Smileville Ha Ha Hollow and Gridale. "It's a circus" and "Kismet" wherein partners were matched and a basket of apples was then passed each couple taking one. The number of seeds in the apple having a fortune corresponding to that amount.

The "Relay Race" was acclaimed the prize winning game of the evenings entertainment. Eight runners of the four above mentioned towns were selected also a chaffeur and the judges. Chairs were placed directly in front of each other and each runner had to run around all the persons in front of him, back to his seat and touching the man in front of him who duplicated the feat, which caused a great deal of excitement as all four races were being run at the same time. Ha Ha Hollow of which Bro. Thomas was chauffeur was given the prize. Cheers were then given by the winning and losing towns.

A call to the dining room was then sounded were the guests were seated at tables beautifully decorated with a pumpkin hollowed out and filled with large chrysanthemums as center piece and black ribbons were then run from the pumpkin to the pumpkin place cards on which was written the future of the holder. A plate lunch of chicken salad, potato chips, olives and cracker and peanut butter sandwiches and hot chocolate was served.

Appropriate talks were enjoyed from Bro. Ball, Mrs. H. M. Oehler, Miss Sue Crawford, Rev. Thomas, Rev. Shepherd of Tahoka, Mrs. Thomas and our missionary Bro. Markham.

A glorious time was expressed by all and we are hoping this won't be the last one of it's kind.

HUMOROUS LETTER OF THE LATE WAR

The following is considered the best humorous letter received at Washington during the war:

"Mr. Headquarters,

"U. S. Armory,

"Dear Mr. Headquarters:

"My husband was inducted into the services long months ago and I ain't received no pay from him since he was gone. Please send me my elopement as I have a four months old baby and he is my only support and I need it every day to buy food and keep us enclosed. I am a poor woman, and all I have is at the front. Both sides of my parents are very old and I can't expect anything from them, as my mother has been in bed thirteen years with one doctor and won't have another. My husband is in charge of a spittoon. Do I get any more than I am going to get? Please send me a letter and tell me if my husband made application for a wife and child and please send me a wife form to fill out. I have already wrote to Mr. Wilson and got no answer and if I don't hear from you I will write Uncle Sam about you and him."

WILSON EDITOR ENJOYS A TERRY DINNER

It has been some time since we visited the little city of Brownfield. Together with our mother, Mrs. A. N. Hughes, we motored over last Sunday afternoon to see our brother, Dr. H. H. Hughes, and found him gone. We just decided he must be out to the home of his father-in-law, Mr. Knolls, who lives eight miles northwest of Brownfield. So we drove over there and found them just about ready to sit down to a three o'clock dinner.

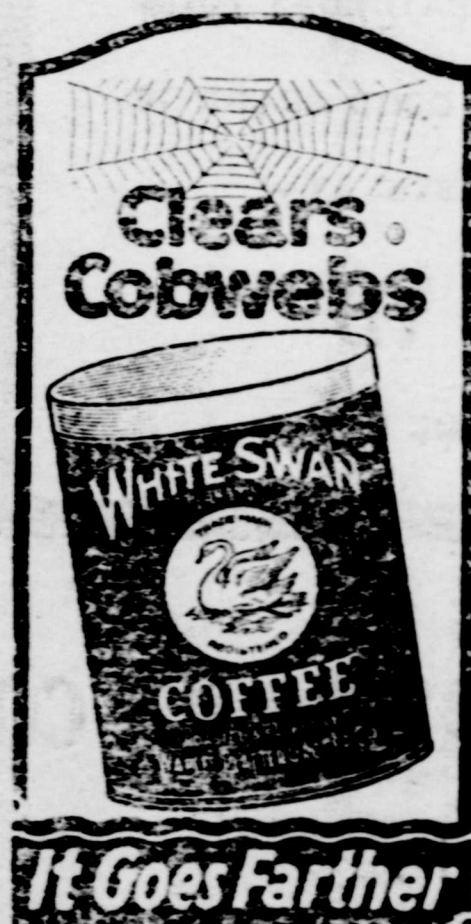

What we did for that dinner was a plenty. They even had kasha pies, the best we had ever eaten. After dinner Mr. Knoll asked us to go with him to see his hogs, six or seven of the finest that corn and maize can make. One would be as much as we could eat in a whole year.

On our return we drove through the city and found two new bricks under construction and a lot of improvement since we were over there last. By this time it was five o'clock and we decided if we were to get back to Wilson in time for E. Y. P. U., it was time to turn eastward, which we did, and arrived at the church in time.—Wilson Pointer.

SEVEN EXHIBITORS REMAIN THROUGH FAIR

Of Those Staying With Exhibits Full Term, Most Are West Texans.

Only seven exhibitors have remained with their agricultural booths throughout the State Fair. These were mostly West Texas exhibitors who are seeking new settlers and remained to distribute literature.

J. C. Temple of Parmer County is distributing much literature describing his county. I. E. Irwin of Atascosa County is emphasizing fruits and vegetables and E. F. Temple another East Texas exhibitor, is urging new settlers to come to Gregg County to grow potatoes and corn as well as numerous other crops.

Cheap but fertile farming land is the principal note sounded by Paul T. Vickers of Midland County, who is assisted in distributing Midland literature by Mrs. Vickers. W. H. Upchurch of Hartley County is also emphasizing cheap lands. He says Hartley has 1,500 square of territory, 1,500 square people and wants 1,500 more just as good.

J. E. Shelton of Terry County is so well pleased with advertising received at the Fair he is already planning to return next year with a better exhibit. T. R. Broun Jr. of Wheeler County loudly proclaims: "If you want apples, come to Wheler County. Unique in the exhibits is the tobacco shown by Mack Boswell of Hale County. W. M. Gourley of Briscoe County is emphasizing his county as a grower of grain sorghums, cotton and vegetables.

TRUE BLUE GIRLS

The Intermediate Girls of the Baptist Sunday School organized Sunday October the thirty first. Mrs. Ivey Savage, the teacher, took charge of the meeting. Mary Thelma Copeland was elected president; Hazel Es-lack, 1st vice; Blanche Williamson, 2nd vice; Minnie Alexander, 3rd vice. Vivian Eubank, secretary; Ruby Tandy treasurer and Lois Adams, reporter.

"The True Blue Girls" was the name selected for our class. The colors are blue and gold.

The class will be honored with a slumber party given at the home of Mrs. Ivey Savage, Friday evening, November the fifth.

AFTER TWO WEEKS OF DRY WEATHER—RAIN AGAIN

Terry county folks for the past two weeks had just about gotten to where they did not watch the clouds all the time and mutter various and sundry adverse criticisms directed at the honorable weather man. In fact they had about settled down to work with no time to spare for sky gazing. Just at this time Mr. J. Pluvius took opportunity by the forelock or forearm as the case may be, and gave old Terry another serious ducking, which said section resented, but took it all the same.

It started misting early Monday morning, and rained pretty fast all afternoon, registering somewhere we presume in the neighborhood of 3-4 inch, although with the ground already soaked, it looked more like two inches, and thus crop gathering is for the next few days at least, knocked out.

The sun was out however, Tuesday with the wind in the southwest, which used to mean fair weather, but now lays don't seem to mean anything.

FRESHMEN ENJOY ENTERTAINMENT

The Freshman class was entertained at a very delightful party given by Miss Rebecca May at the home of her Aunt's, Mrs. W. B. Downing.

The guests arrived at about eight o'clock and had several games which were very much enjoyed by everyone. Refreshments of Nehi and sandwiches were then served. After the refreshments we all went over the town and walked ourselves down and started home and found out it was only nine-thirty! So we went back to the house and played several more games. We were also favored with a Charleston act from little Miss Virginia May.

ATTENTION! BROWNFIELD METHODISTS

As next Sunday is the last Sunday of the Conference year for the North West Texas Annual Conference, and as the pastor will leave the first of next week for Childress, where the conference will be held, the pastor is earnestly urging every one to be at the Church Sunday morning for the morning services. This being the last Sunday and the importance of the work for another year being in the mind of us all, as a member of the church you are obligated to be on hand next Sunday.

As appointments will be made for the new pastors for another year at the session of the conference, the pastor feels that if you would like to see him come back for another year, you will tell him so by your presence Sunday. If you do not make an effort to come he will of necessity feel that you do not want him back, or at least you are not interested.

As a citizen of Brownfield the pastor has enjoyed his stay here. And the year has been filled with pleasantness. And as a pastor of the Methodist church there has existed a most pleasant harmony all the year. For all of which we are indeed grateful. And whether we move on and give place to another, or stay for another year or not, there exists in our hearts nothing but love and esteem for all the people.

We will look for you Sunday, and we cordially invite every one.

J. G. Thomas, Pastor.
