By the Secretary

With the exception of the territory immediately surrounding Brownfield, sufficient rain has been received and all crops are growing nicely and in fact they are growing in all portions and people are becoming more hopeful that a good crop will be harvested.

The present highway situation seems to be occupying the attention of the people to the exclusion of most everything else and all kinds of stories concerning the loss of designations is being circulated. From the best information that this office is able to obtain, the proposition of the east and west line will be brought to a head within the next few weeks and we will know just what is expected of us. It is well to bear in mind the fact that no State designation has been granted west of Lamasa and while those fellows down there are working pretty hard, we are not going to lose very much if we cooperate with the highway department.

A considerable amount of road bond talk is being heard on the streets these days and general sentiment seems to be in favor of a county wide issue that would take care of all main highways and allow an amount to each precinct for lateral roads. It is possible that a petition calling for a road bond election will be presented to the court at its next meeting.

The clean up campaign is progressing in a satisfactory manner but the town surely did have an accumulation of weeds and trash and it was necessary for the committee appointed by the Rotary Club to allow an extension of one week in order to give more time for clearing vacant lots. It would pay all property owners to clean the weeds from all property owned by them as the city council is not bluffing when they say that fines will be assessed.

Several people were in the office last Saturday asking for bulletins and several desired them on turkey raising, which happened to be out of stock. This to advise that a new supply has been received since that time and we would be glad to hand them to those interested.

Don't forget that we are going to pull off a county fair. We have talked with farmers from several different portions of the county and they are all interested and willing to assist. The date will be set for the early part of October on account of lateness of crops. Dairy cattle, poultry and hogs will be exhibited.

Chisholm Brothers Open Second Store

As stated in these columns last week, Chisholm Brothers bought the A. B. Cook & Son bankrupt stock of groceries from A. M. Brownfield and these goods together with a new fresh stock additional, have been opened in the building first door east of the Post Office, from which they are now ready to serve their customers.

While this store will have the same policy and management of the parent store, no groceries will be delivered from it, and groceries only, no feed, will be carried in it, and the same courtesy and service with one price to all.

Band Concert Saturday Night For Farmers

There will be another band concert Saturday night at the band stand in the courthouse park, beginning strictly at 8:30, dedicated to the farmers and their families of the Brownfield trade territory.

The farm folk are asked to stay in until after the concert is over, if they live out a great distance, or if the distance is short and they have a car, they can go home and return after supper. "Pappy John" promises the "boys" and "girls" from the farm a real treat in the way of music to suit all who attend.

A. W. Enderssen and family got in last week from their vacation.

A. W. Enderssen had business in the oil fields south of here this week.

Prominent Railroad Men Visit Brownfield

The Herald was pleased to have for its guests just a few minutes Tuesday morning, Mr. J. C. Barton, Supt. of the Slaton Division of the Santa Fe, who recently succeeded Mr. Anton, also Mr. I. H. Hungate, of Lubbock, Transportation Inspector of the Santa Fe. This was our first time to meet the new division superintendent, and we found him the very best of fellows, agreeable, polite, and willing to see the viewpoint of the other fellow, and we are just sure Mr. Barton is going to have the full cooperation of the citizenship of Brownfield toward jointly making this the most desirable place to live in Texas. In fact, he said we might depend upon him.

We also found Mr. Hungate, a fine fellow, and like Mr. Barton a firm believer in diversification in order to avoid calamities with the one crop idea in the years of possible failure or low prices, and we hope to see more of both. It is good to meet fellows of this character, for after they leave, one has a better taste in their mouth to work for the general upbuilding of the community as well as taking more pleasure in their own work.

Mr. Barton was making the rounds of the business houses here to get acquainted personally with the people he aims to serve, and it seems to us this is a step in the right direction. We always have better respect for each other, not to mention more confidence if we are able to shake hands and know the character behind each other. It likewise says these old regrets, made known to late, "we would know each other better if we only understood."

The message Mr. Barton left with us for the people of Brownfield and trade territory was that at any time he could serve them in any way, it would please him to do so, and that he was willing at any time to cooperate for the general advancement of the community. But, if we have complaints about the service, he kindly asks that we first take the matter up with the proper officials before we make a general outcry. In other words, "if their service pleases us, tell others, but if not, tell them." Give them a chance to make it right.

It is the intention of Mr. Barton next year if possible to run another demonstration train through this section, and of course one of the stops will be Brownfield. It has been some four years since the last one ran, but the gospel of diversification that they preached during that time is still bearing fruit in Terry, and year by year, we are nearing the goal when the country will be near as it is physically possible live off the products of our own farms, as well as feed others in less favored sections.

He also said that he would assist us any time we wanted to take the initiative in getting some good publicity in the form of a write-up and pictures in "The Earth" the Santa Fe publication, thousands of which go to every state in the union. He also expressed his desire to see some of our people here to attend the Chamber of Commerce or Club meetings here for the discussion of anything for the good of the community. The Santa Fe is a member of our Chamber of Commerce, and we found that Mr. Barton is a Rotarian.

Terry County Farm Values 1910 and 1925

The following is a continuance of the statistics printed last week and taken from the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Bureau of Census.

The value of all farm property in Terry county in 1910 was $3,621,055 and 1925 was $9,992,546. This shows a good wholesome increase.

But where the bug under the ship comes in, while the valuations were increasing rapidly, the mortgages were not standing still, for in 1925 we find that 88 per cent of them are mortgaged. Bad.

The amount invested by Terry county farmers in farm machinery of all kinds was $325,974.

There was livestock on the farms and ranches of Terry county in 1925 to the value of $263,846.

The average value of each farm including live stock and machinery was $10,511 in 1925.

Those Amendments to the Constitution

On Monday, August first, the voters of the State of Texas will be given the opportunity to accept or reject the proposed constitutional amendments. Now Monday is, in our town, a pretty quiet day and the most of the farmers in this territory are at home working, but it occurs to us that this election is of sufficient importance to justify every qualified voter in this county allowing nothing to interfere with his going to the polls and registering his or her protest against this orgy of spending the taxpayers money that has so far depleted the treasury of the State that it now becomes necessary for the legislature to devise more and better means of taxation in order to get more money to squander.

Don't be deceived into thinking that this amendment will do away with the ad valorem tax now in use. If the present system of taxation brought in enough money to suit the spenders they would not want it changed. Those old timers who drafted our constitution were pretty wise and far seeing. They foresaw that the expense of government would eventually become so large that unless a limit were placed on the powers of the lawmakers to raise taxation that this government would follow in the path of so many of its predecessors and the whole top-heavy structure of government would topple and crush industry under the weight of public extravagance.

These amendments should be entitled "More taxes for the taxpayers to pay, and more taxes for the tax-eaters to eat." We're agin'em. Go to the polls next Monday and squash 'em.

Rotarians Report Big Time at Lubbock

Some seventeen of the local Rotarians went to Lubbock late Tuesday afternoon at the invitation of the Lubbock club, where one of the best feeds one can conceive was placed before their rather enlarged appetites along about 8 o'clock, at the Tech College pavilion. The quality and quantity of the food however, was fully equal to the task, for such famous eaters as Everett Michie, Bob Bowers, Judge Winston and Arnett Bynum, had to give up after a sigh of regrets and a second helping to a half chicken, making a whole chicken for each of them. They also sighed more on the road home.

This invitation went out not only to Brownfield, but to every club on the South Plains, and good delegations responded to the call of "come and bring nothing but your appetite" from each club, which together with the Lubbock boys, made around 200 or 250. The delicious food was placed on tables, and one secured a plate and passed down the tables, cafeteria style, and was helped to dressing, bread, pickles, onion, half BARBECUED chicken, potato chips, coffee or beer (very near) or both if you wanted them. You were then seated in the comfortable seats provided around the arena of the stock judging pavilion, where these palatable tickling viands were consumed.

After the repast, there was some mighty good speaking and singing. Neill Wright, of Lubbock was made toastmaster, and bore the brunt of jokes from members from all over this section from then on out, but he bore them manfully. He helped to organize most all the clubs in this section, and each speaker seemed to have a special pick at him.

Local boys returned home late but happy.

MEADOW BRIEFS

By Aesculapias.

The past 15 days found me traversing the highways and byways of New Mexico. I have never been a very extensive traveler, and have therefore wandered little beyond the smoke of my own chimney.

My objective was the home of a brother who had wandered into New Mexico some 35 years ago, and like myself had not left the country except at long intervals. I saw him twice in all those years. He had reared a family, none of whom I had ever seen.

Our route carried us through Roswell, which is quite a little city situated on the Pecos river, and is known and visited by most people of the South Plains, enroute to the Pacific coast or to the National Forests and the Ruidosa Springs, situated in this forest. These springs are visited by a large number of people from other states and some few have built cabins on the mountain nearby, and spend some weeks there either for health or to while away the hot days and nights that would be their lot further east.

After passing Roswell some 20 miles, we slackened our speed at the top of a steep grade and read the seamy signs stuck up by the roadside, such as "Dangerous Curves," "Drive Slow, You may meet a fool." These admonitions were wasted on me. Were entirely superfluous. A look into the depths below, the narrow roadway, and the disappearing road around the mountain were sufficiently impressive to subdue any sporting impulse that we may have had. We descended and lovingly hugged the mountain on our left in spite of all the hounding our more fearless traveler behind us could do. If there were any risks to be taken, we determined he should have them. But he meekly followed us down.

We traveled along a deep, narrow gorge, through which flows the Honda and Ruidosa rivers—never saw any creeks in New Mexico. Fortunately for me the road runs along the west side of these streams which put me next to the mountains, to whom warm sides I persistently clung. Every few minutes we were encountering "Dangerous Curve, Blow," which we consistently did until our horn was hoarse, and not hearing anyone else blow, I quit.

The entire distance along this canyon is dotted with small farms or rather patches devoted largely to fruit of various kinds. The houses are mostly adobe, and the population appears to be largely Mexican, and there is a continual string of dwellings, small stores and gasoline stations all the way to Ruidosa.

We camped our first night near the summit of the mountain in the National Forest. Next morning we were on the road bright and early and coasted down the western slope at a rapid speed. Suddenly at the turn of the highway we came upon a large encampment of Indians. To our left a large body, men and women were executing some sort of a dance, which proved to be the aftermath of a double wedding the previous night.

As our car approached the group we were met by the largest bunch of dogs I ever saw at one time. They were all sorts, sizes and colors, and each making the most noise possible. As they approached the car I began to slow down, and dodge them but finally knocked the stuffing out of a large black one who was a little more aggressive than the others. His wail attracted the attention of the nearest Indian, and knowing their fondness for a worthless cur, I considered that my presence would not be needed at the ceremonies and—stepped on the gas.

A few miles further down the m'tn we found the Mesalero Indian Agency—Apache. It is quite a nice town, substantially built and provided with modern conveniences. It is one of the picturesque places in that part of New Mexico and will repay many miles of travel to see.

The forest rapidly disappears as you descend the western slopes of the mountains, and on reaching Tularosa at the foot of the mountains, it has entirely disappeared. At this point those going to the Hot Springs continue westward, while those bound for the Pacific coast turn south to El Paso. We also turned south to Alamogorda, where we turned south west toward Las Cruces.

This route also shortens the journey for all going west to Arizona and the Pacific Coast, and it is 72 miles across to Las Cruces and 120 via El Paso. The terminating factor in making the longer journey is perhaps the crossing of Organ Mountain—if the shorter route is chosen. It is sure some climb, but one is repaid by the view from the top, which is the best we had in the state. The elevation is about 6,000 feet, and from the top Las Cruces, 16 miles away is visible.

Another very interesting feature of this route is the hills of "white sand." The formation is unique. It is some 12 or 15 miles from Alamogorda at its nearest point and extends many miles along the highway. It is many miles from any stream and extends in a semi-circle along the foot of the mountains. There is nothing either in the mountain nor along the Tularosa that resembles it or from which it could be derived. It seems to have been poured out from above. It is pure white and is not scattered or blown about into piles as is usual with sand, and at its southern end turns to a right angle to the mountain.

The Organ Mountain, seen from Las Cruces, appears to be just on the outskirts of the city, although 10 miles away, and its rocky column resembles the ruins of some ancient city. The city is one of the oldest in the state, and I was told that it received its name from a massacre by the Indians in its early history. Las Cruces—Lost Crosses—would indicate that the Catholic clergy of that period were wiped out.

We crossed the Rio Grande a short distance from the city, and saw our first irrigation of a large scale. The crops looked well, and in fact this portion of the Rio Grande Valley was cleaner and better cultivated than we found higher up the stream.

There is little exhilaration, and few thrills in crossing the mesa of New Mexico. Mesquite, Soap Weed, Spanish Dagger, brownish looking bushes with very little grass, cacti of several varieties constitute the flora of this region. The soil is occasionally sandy or a redish looking soil with gravelly ridges, make up most of the state with the exception of a few streams whose valleys are productive when adequate water supply can be had.

From Las Cruces we went to Deming and from there to Lordsburg, at which place we turned south to Animas, a small station on the El Paso & Southwestern railroad. From here we continued south through another National Forest whose presence you would never suspicion. Whatever timber there may have been on the Animas Mountain is about as accessible as the mountain in the moon. Along the Animas there is some cottonwood, desert willow, and live oak.

However, there is some real grass in this portion of this grazing section and it was green and looked well. The best portion of the grazing is all owned by a large cattle company, whose holdings extend to the fence that separates old and New Mexico.

Our destination was in 20 miles of the line of Old Mexico, near the Arizona border. We therefore concluded that we would drive to the line. The line is marked by a seven-barbed wire fence, and at this particular place there was a large monument about four feet at the base and 18 inches at the top, and 18 feet high. It was numbered on the east side, about half way up, No. 67. On the Mexican side there was some inscription in Spanish, and on the American side, or N. M. side, the following:

"Repaired by the Boundary Commission Created by Treaties of 1892-1893. The destruction or displacement of this Monument is a misdemeanor punishable by the United States and Mexico.

To the south of this monument some eight or ten miles is a high range of mountains, and to the west and north a lesser height. Across the valley running from northwest to southeast is a narrow elevated tableland called by the inhabitants "The Dyke." It is some 20 feet above the valley on either side, about 100 feet in width and level on top and practically straight, and extends from mountain to mountain some 12 or 15 miles in length. It looks like the work of human hands, and if narrower one would think it the grade of some railroad. There is a roadway on top of the most of its length on the New Mexico side. The monument referred to above is on this dyke. It is a real natural wonder.

This corner of N. M. and Mexico is a wide and beautiful valley. Some of it is being farmed, and at its western side the National Forest crosses

Darden Brings in a Wide-Awake Animal

T. R. Darden, manager of the Gordon ranch in Terry county brought to the Herald office Tuesday morning a small and rather young animal of the weasel family that was just about the most wide-awake native we have seen this summer. The young gentleman, or maybe lady, was imprisoned in a big rim tub, whose walls it would have been no trick for him to scale had he been entirely at himself, but he seemed to have been hurt in the hips, thought by Mr. Darden to have been done by being run over by stock in the horse pasture, as he was captured about 20 yards from the house.

The little animal, pronounced by some as a weasel, lynx, swift, and maybe other names—we admit it had us bested. Most of the body was nearly the color of a prairie dog but his legs were black from the knees down, black nose and black streak around his forehead just about where his little beady eyes were located. He was about the size of a fox squirrel, appeared to be but a few months old; was lean and lank, with slender body, neck and head. He possessed a bark or rather chatter that reminded you both of the monkey and prairie dog, and this noise seemed to be a warning cry, as he took a very threatening attitude when molested, and seemed to be watching all sides of his tub at once.

He was turned over to Jno. S. Powell to either use in a private zoo, or to kill and mount, as he pleases.

John S. Powell Has Early Laying Pullet

What may prove to be the record for early laying pullets on record may be right here in Brownfield in the form of a young Rhode Island Red pullet belonging to Jno. S. Powell, our efficient band master and local chicken fancier. Mr. Powell informed us that this pullet was taken from the incubator on the 17th day of February, this year and layed her first egg on July 9th, or just four months and 20 days after she herself came from a shell. Some of the eggs from which these chickens came cost Mr. Powell $35.00 per setting.

Of course the Herald does not know just what the record is, but Mr. Powell recently wrote the Farm & Ranch, and while they too did not know the exact record, they promised to find it for him if possible. They also informed him that they were sure that while it might be possible that his bird did not have the record, they were just as sure that his bird would be a close runner-up.

Mr. Powell has long made the breeding of fine chickens a keen side line to his work as local musician and work in his little shop where he mounts all kinds of animals and birds for neighbors and friends, as well as for people away from here, including many specimens for the Technological College. He also does quite a lot of framing pictures, mending musical instruments, phonographs, etc., at which he is an expert. But chickens are his pets and pride.

If any of the readers of the Herald know what the record of this strain of birds is for laying after hatching, we would be pleased to know.

The great slogan Mr. Powell loves to use, and one which he says will make Terry rich and famous is Sow-Cow-Hen.

Mr. and Mrs. Green, son-in-law and daughter of J. S. Corning, from Magdalena, N.M., are here now making their home.

and a village, Cloverdale, consisting of store and school house is situated at the beginning of the prettiest wooded valley I saw in New Mexico. There is a small stream with springs running back into the mountains, with irrigated farms. This was the only place in New Mexico where I saw trees native to our own Texas such as spruce, elm, black-jack, live oak, black walnut, along with pine and spruce. The timber would compare in size with that found in Texas.

I did not encounter any tourists in this section. At the village, Cloverdale, I saw enforcement officers, immigrant officials, line riders and forest rangers, all provided with an automatic Colt on the hip. I will write of my return trip at another time.

Mr. Farmer, go to the polls Monday and swat those amendments.

It seems that the city authorities of Jayton are having quite a time with some of their boys who insist on bathing in a lake near town a la nude. While the Jayton folks say they appreciate art to some extent, they do not care for it dished out in the Parisian modes, and if after a fair warning, if the youngsters are caught again, they may be marched to jail in a barrel.

The shock of red hair was not put on Gov. Dan Moody's head for nothing, and recently when attacked by the W. C. T. U. for having vetoed an item intended to enforce the Deam laws, he replied with vigor, showing that the item was just another added expense, and would only occasion duplicating work done elsewhere. In fact was only intended to create a new office and a new pay roll for somebody.

The old town is slowly but surely coming out from under a good coating of weeds, and if there is nothing at all in the better health part of weeds cutting, it may at least be a sign for sore eyes to make the town look clean and decent once more. By the way, isn't it strange that no matter how dry it gets, weeds grow as if under intense irrigation. They never seem to think about or sing "how dry I am."

The tax eaters down Austin way when they set the election day for Monday to vote on the constitutional amendments, were betting that the farmers of Texas would go to town Saturday and for that reason stay away from the polls Monday. They are not getting all the blood out of us they want, but if they get to set our taxes instead of being set by our county commissioners, they will get all they want. You found out what they can do at setting automobile taxes—so better lose a day and swat all four of them as the whole business of them is either to tax, provide more offices or more salaries. Swat 'em hard.

THEY ADMIT IT

Everyone who receives business letters from business houses of any consequence will note that the party who signs the letters also has his name typewritten under the signature. So this is an admission that he does not expect the recipient to be able to read his writing, and he has to typewrite his signature in order that the party addressed will know who the communication is from.

This is admitting they can't write; that is, they can't write legibly. It seems that typewriters have made writing a useless art, but we still like to see a good old flowing script affixed to the bottom of letters.

A typewritten letter lacks personality; it has the appearance of mechanical thought. It bears the relation in personal correspondence to the system of the busy Christian who wrote his prayer on a card and each day he would fish out the card, hold it up and say, "Lord, them's my sentiments."

The typewriter permits one to write faster than was possible with pen and ink. No doubt it permits ones thoughts to move faster in the formation of a communication. But all that cannot make friendships flow deeper, nor will it intensify our emotions toward loved ones.

This writer can't write prettily, but thank the Lord we can write our name to the average person can read it.—Retail Advance.

A reduction in the assessed valuation of property in Dawson County and pleasing lop in the tax rate are announced this week as a result of the action of the Commissioner's Court in session last week. The assessed valuation of the county has been reduced in the aggregate $200,000. The total valuation previously was $5,500,000. On the records now it will be $5,300,000.

The old county tax rate of 80 cents per $100 valuation has been reduced to 70 cents. Under the old rate an valuation the tax income per annum was $44,000. Under the new 70 cent rate and lowered assessed valuation the income will be around $37,100, as a saving to property owners of about $6,000 per annum.

Judge Divie Kilgore as spokesman for the commissioners declared that body was actuated in the matter solely by a desire to effect an economy for the farmers and others who have been in bad circumstances the last twelve months.

"In the county affairs it is our purpose to stick closely as possible to economy and while we must stint the affairs of our department, we are glad to do it when thereby we can relieve the situation of the farmer and resident until such times as conditions improve," Judge Kilgore said.—Lamesa Journal.

A cheap tube can cost you 10 times its price

THIRTY-NINE YEARS of tube-building experience has proved to Dunlop that "cheap tubes" do not pay.

That is why Dunlop tubes are made casing shaped. It costs a little more than to build them on a straight pole, as cheap tubes are built.

But a casing-shaped Dunlop tube is strong everywhere. The outside edge is not weakened by excess stretch. The side next to the rim has no wrinkles to crack with age and blow out. A Dunlop tube protects your casing, because it fits. And your casing is worth ten times the cost of the tube.

We strongly recommend a Dunlop tube for every casing

News From Lahey

By Bob

I will step in for a few minutes this morning.

Everybody is feeling somewhat better this week, for last week we got a nice rain in and around Lahey. And that is what makes the people feel good, for we sure were needing a rain.

Most of our people went down to Wellman Sunday evening to the close of the meeting, and some of our folks attended singing over at Happy school house in the afternoon.

There was quite a crowd of Lahey folks shopping in Brownfield, Saturday afternoon. All were looking for bargains I guess.

Mrs. L. C. Dixon's father and mother of Anson, Texas, spent Saturday night and Sunday with her and family.

Miss Lillian Dixon has returned home after a ten day visit with her sister, Mrs. John Jones, of Tokio.

Rev. Haynes preached for us Sunday at 11 o'clock and at night also. A large crowd attended. A good crowd was present at Sunday School also.

Well as the writer didn't gather up much news will close for this week.

Mrs. M. H. Jordan, 300 North Lincoln, Amarillo, Texas is here visiting friends and relatives. She paid the Herald a pleasant call Wednesday afternoon and had us put her name on the subscription list.

At a meeting of the Brownfield School Board Tuesday, they decided to send the Brownfield teachers to the Lubbock institute, September 5 to 9th.

The extremely attractive and modernly equipped home of Mr. and Mrs. Krueger has been the scene of many visitors recently. Mr. and Mrs. Flem McSpadden and little daughter were among recent guests in this lovely home.

IDEAL KLUB

With an attractive list of young matrons making up the membership of this club, doubtless the "Ideal Klub" will in every respect live up to its clever title, and be an ideal club during the approaching social season. Mrs. B. D. DeBois was selected and elected president at a recent meeting. The "Ideal Klub" is the newest of the bridge organizations in our city.

1927 SENIORS BROWNFIELD HIGH ENJOY THEATRE PARTY

Thursday night, July 21st, the Senior class 1927, were happily entertained with a Theatre Party at the Rialto, where reserved seats were in waiting for them. Following the picture show they enjoyed ice cream and cooling drinks at the Palace Drug Store, where many plans were formed that they may keep in touch. Some may enter Universities and colleges and others enter upon life's work in various vocations, but it will be interesting for them to continue in touch and finally a Big Re-Union 1931. At least this is the anticipation of the class.

Seniors of class attending were Misses Cox, Newton, Chisholm, Hamblon, Jacobs and Lane, with James Hasley Dallas and Joseph Shelton.

MRS. I. M. BAILEY HAS LOVELY BRIDGE PARTY WEDNESDAY

One of the loveliest summer parties was given on Wednesday afternoon, July 20th, with a very charming young matron, hostess, in the person of Mrs. I. M. Bailey.

The artistic little Spanish bungalow was in party appearance, and the members of the "Ideal Klub" and a few other guests, were delightfully entertained with Bridge. Table favors drawn were pretty hot dish mats or coasters with blue windmills of Holland for decoration. Mrs. Roy Wingerd and Mrs. Joe Bailey, sister of the hostess, assisted her throughout the afternoon's duties and pleasures. Concluding the play high score of guests was made by Mrs. Roy Wingerd, receiving a lovely piece of apparel. Mrs. Henry Alexander held high score among the members of the club and was presented with a beautiful garment also.

The delicious refreshments served by the hostess and assisting ladies were nut filled sandwiches, ice tea and Parfait.

Enjoying the play and the charming party were, Mesdames E. D. DuBois, Flem McSpadden, A. A. Sawyer, Henry Alexander, O. W. Fagan, Leo Holmes, J. E. Michie, W. H. Collins, W. C. Smith, A. M. Brownfield, Roy Brownfield, Morgan Copeland, James D. Miller, Roy Wingerd, Joe Bailey, Joe J. McGowan, Fred Smith, John King, Dalton Lewis, A. M. McBurnett, W. H. Dallas.

Miss Viola Brown, of Abilene, will arrive soon to be the guest of her aunt, Mrs. Jim Moore, for a few weeks.

Miss Brown will teach in the Gomez schools, as part of the faculty in high school work. She is an experienced instructor and a most excellent young lady. She is not a stranger, having taught before in Terry county, and her character is established along with the sweet womanly qualities so much admired.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse D. Cox with their daughter, Miss Gladys Cox and Mrs. J. L. Bishop, another daughter, returned to Brownfield recently after an extended visit in South and East Texas. Mrs. Bishop will spend the remainder of her vacation with her parents and will teach again.

Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Plain with Miss Frances Plain and Miss Billie Plain came down from Lubbock, Sunday, bringing with them Miss Lois Adams who has been their guest the past week. Miss Billie remained over this week visiting with her friend Miss Alma Brown.

After having had a pleasant stay with her parents and friends in Brownfield, Mrs. Roy Wingerd left for Odessa, Friday afternoon. She is in company with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Brownfield, went via Sterling City, Texas where they will visit relatives, thence home. Mr. and Mrs. Joe Bailey, sister to Mrs. Wingerd joined the family at Sterling City, Sunday returning to Brownfield the first of the week.

MRS. H. H. HUGHES OBSERVES LITTLE SON'S BIRTHDAY

Mrs. H. H. Hughes celebrated her little son's birthday with a gay and happy party on July nineteenth.

The little son, Homer Knoll, made a modest host, and his many little guests were delighted to be one of his party visitors. Studied plans and preparations were complete and the guests were certainly a happy lot of children.

T. E. L. CLUB ENJOYS AFTER-NOON WITH MISS WELCH

At the home of her mother, Miss Norma Dell Welch entertained Wednesday afternoon the members of the "T. E. L. Club." Forty-two was never more interestingly played. Prizes were awarded Miss Rebecca May and Wynona Burnett. These were beautifully painted handkerchiefs. Delicious cake and food luncheon was served to the following: Misses Lucille Jones, Rebecca May, Mae Holgate, Wynona Burnett, Lela Mae McPherson, Cordia Mae Shepherd, Winnell McCoy, house guest of Miss Shepherd, Doris Bandy and Norma Dell Welch.

The girls will meet in their regular club meet with Miss Shepherd.

MRS. COLLINS PROCLAIMED A CHARMING ENTERTAINER

Perhaps the most charming event of recent occurrence was the lovely party given by Mrs. W. H. Collins on Friday afternoon, July 22nd. The guests of the day were members of the Friday Forty Two Club. The hostess received her guests in her usual happy way and the party was an ideal one despite the extreme heat of the day. When the pleasure of 42 ended precisely embroidered lunch cloths were placed and a two course service followed. The first course consisted of daintily prepared pimento cheese sandwiches and tuna sandwiches, pickles, potato chips and iced tea. Refrigerator cake with whipped cream and lemon ice made the delicious second course enjoyed.

This was indeed a lovely party and guests report a wonderful time and proclaimed Mrs. Collins a charming entertainer. Guest list included the following matrons: Edgar Self, H. O. Longbrake, Dalton Lewis, Roy Herod, P. B. Brothers, Charles Hamblon, S. H. Holgate, F. C. McSpadden, J. B. Knight, W. B. Downing, R. M. Kendrick, Ben Hurst, A. A. Sawyer, J. E. Michie, J. C. Scudday, W. C. Smith.

KNOLL-PARRISH MARRIAGE OCCURRED JULY 16TH

Miss Mary Elizabeth Knoll and Mr. Sam Parrish Jr. were quietly married on the eighteenth of July. This came as quite a surprise to the many friends, as the young couple drove to the parsonage and made their vows. Reverend Liff Sander performed the ceremony. The only attendants were Miss Irene Knoll and Mr. Hollis Windfield. Mr. Parrish left in a few days for Albany, Texas, where he prepared a home for his bride and returned in a short while for Mrs. Parrish.

RECENT DEATHS

—CASWELL—
Mrs. P. F. Caswell, aged 28, nee Audrey Burnett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Burnett, died last Thursday night, July 21st, at Panhandle, Texas, of typhoid fever. Her mother reached her the Saturday night before and remained until the end, and the body prepared for burial and shipped to Brownfield, where interment was made Saturday afternoon. After reaching Brownfield, the body was taken to the church of Christ, and the services conducted by Elder A. L. Burnett, old friend of deceased, by request, although she was a member of the Baptist church, but often attended services at the church of Christ when Elder Burnett was the local minister, when visiting in Brownfield. After the services at the church the body was laid tenderly to rest in the Brownfield Cemetery.

Deceased leaves a husband and son four years old, her parents, and a sister and brother to mourn her departure. Mrs. Caswell had many warm friends in Brownfield as she had lived here a number of years before moving away, who are grieved at her untimely death. Relatives have the sympathy of the entire community.

—HENDRICKS—

The oldest citizen of Brownfield and possibly the oldest in Terry county passed to his reward about two o'clock Friday morning in the person of J. D. Hendrick, who if he had lived until November 9th, would have been 98 years of age, or a little over two years of the century mark. Deceased was born November 9, 1829, in Green county, Alabama, and lived there until 1862 when he went to California during the gold rush. He remained there until 1865 and returned to Texas and settled near the line of Bell and Milam counties. In 1917 the Hendrick family moved to Goldthwaite in Mills county, and to Portales, N. M. in 1925, and to Brownfield in the fall of last year.

On July 7, 1870, he was married to Miss Sarah Graham, who survives him, now age 86. To this union was born seven children, two boys and five girls, one boy, J. E. with whom he was making his home, being the only child to survive him. In 1876, Grandpa Hendrick obeyed the call of the gospel and has been a faithful member of the Church of Christ ever since, and was very active in the church work until feebleness prohibited regular attendance. His children say they never heard their father swear an oath, nor repeat an ugly story. It is also reported that he was at one time in nice financial circumstances, and that no young man in worthy need of assistance ever came to him to be sent away empty.

Funeral services were conducted at the Church of Christ Friday afternoon by Elder Liff Sanders, and the body laid to rest in the Brownfield Cemetery. Those attending the fun-
