E. H. Eaton, of Amarillo, representing the Western Newspaper Union branch at Wichita, Kans., was here this week.

Judge H. R. Winston reports that the road between Meadow and Repes is being widened to 80 feet and that land owners are giving the additional space without question. It seems that in some portions of the county they want good roads and in others it takes plenty of money to get the right of way.

We notice last year's corn still being put on the market, both in the ear and shelled.

The county trustees, about 125 in number, met here Wednesday in annual session, and were fed complimentary of the town at the noon hour. The Methodist ladies served the dinner in the store vacated a few months ago by Chisholm Bros. on the east side of the square. A report of the meeting will appear next week.

TECH MAY HAVE SCHOOL OF AERONAUTICS

LUBBOCK, Texas, Aug. 16.—Answering the demands for the latest in technical education, a modern school of aeronautics will be included as one of the courses in the Texas Technological College, if tentative plans discussed and approved at a meeting of the board of directors of the college in Dallas, Monday, are perfected and become operative.

Through negotiations with the Lubbock chamber of commerce, a landing field is to be installed on the campus soon which will be used by both the school and the municipal fliers. Dr. Paul W. Horn is in San Antonio where he is conferring with authorities at Kelly Field regarding the course of study and competent instructors. The tentative plans call for the ground work of flying and when that has been completed, the school is to be equipped to offer actual flying work.

Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh will be invited to visit the school when he is in Texas.

TRUCK BADLY WRECKED AND DRIVER INJURED

What came near proving a very serious accident occurred near the Highlonsome ranch last Friday night when a loaded truck was turned over and badly wrecked and the driver escaped death by a seeming miracle.

A truck loaded with gasoline from Seagraves, which had broken down near the Highlonsome, was being pulled in by Mr. Gathings, and was being steered by Clayton Lister, who had gone out to assist J. C. Lister to bring it in. In some manner the front wheel seems to have run across the chain by which the truck was being pulled and it was turned completely over, scattering the gasoline barrels all along the highway and dragging Mr. Lister some little distance. His clothing was torn to shreds and his body was scratched and bruised all over, from head to foot.

The truck was almost a complete wreck and it is difficult to understand how the driver escaped with his life, but he received no very serious injuries.—Lovington Leader.

$15 PER PUPIL FOR SCHOOLS THIS YEAR

AUSTIN, Texas, Aug. 10.—The state next year will pay the long sought $15 to Texas public schools for every child enrolled, thus making the highest rate in history, the state board of education voted unanimously today in a meeting in which it deferred until Thursday acceptance or rejection of bids for proposed re-binding of state free text books.

The board boosted the per capita apportionment to $15 on the belief that increased gasoline tax and other higher levies will make sufficient revenue available. S. M. N. Marrs, state superintendent of public instruction, Governor Dan Moody, Comptroller S. H. Terrell and Mrs. Jane Y. McCallum, board members, all were strongly for the raise.

Comptroller Terrell's estimate of revenue indicated that a per capita of only $14.53 would be available, but all members, including Terrell, agreed that the estimate probably would be too "conservative."

L. W. Rogers, assistant instruction superintendent acted for Marrs, who was out of town. Marrs, through Rogers, gave the scholastic estimate at 1,370,000.

SLEEP

Sleep is the most important thing in the world, more important even than food. For we eat to sleep—but we sleep to live. Men have gone sixty-three days without food and a week without water—but they cannot go more than ten days without sleep.

Loss of sleep causes a form of starvation for the food we eat is digested and transmitted into new muscle, brain, blood, and nerve-cells only while we are asleep. Endurance racers prove this. Those engaged in six-day bicycle races and other witless forms of diversion eat four or five times as much food as does the ordinary man. Yet the end of the contest find them hollow-eyed and cadaverous from the loss of sleep more than from the physical exertion.

Sleep recharges the exhausted body-batteries and fills the organic furnace with fresh fuel. Sleep is a positive process—not a negative one. It isn't merely a stopping of bodily activity. It's the substitution of a constructive process for a destructive one.

Only while we are unconscious do we fully recuperate. The deeper the sleep, the quicker the recuperation. The lighter and the more disturbed the sleep, the more we need it, the longer it takes to effect repair.—Clinical Medicine.

NOVELIST SAYS HE HAS SINNED

Howard Vincent O'Brien, the novelist, has had a change of heart and admits he has been unfair in his estimate of the Rotary movement. Mr. O'Brien says, in the August issue of The Rotarian, that he had always been under the impression that one belonged to Rotary "in order to sell things to other Rotarians." As a serious movement it seemed to him somewhere between the Ku Klux Klan and a high school "frat," its basic go-getting purpose covered with a pious camouflage of language.

When he went to Ostend to observe the International Convention of Rotary held there he consoled himself with the thought of the amusement he would have "watching 7,000 Rotarians rotate."

"As the days passed," Mr. O'Brien says in his estimate of the Convention, "I realized I was witnessing the most remarkable phenomena, men thinking as men, not as Americans, nor Britons, nor Frenchmen. These Rotarians had gotten a prospective. They measured accurately the trivial differences which set apart the men of one nation from those of another. And without rhetoric or cant they were expressing the strange conviction that if 'Service Above Self' could be made a living conception for the individual, it could be made a living conception for groups of individuals,—for nations.

"In this great Kursaal of Ostend, which eight years before had echoed with the clang of rifle butts and hob-nail field boots, there was not merely an atmosphere of hope, there was an atmosphere of confidence. There was a serene faith that 'understanding, goodwill and international peace' were definitely possible.

"Nor was it a gathering of emotionalists and doctrinaires, making faces at the lightning. It was a gathering of eminently practical men who had found a cure for some of the ills of community living, who had found something which had made their personal lives richer and fuller and happier, now serene and confident, turning their eyes to a wider horizon.

"From the King of the Belgians to the editor of a French socialist newspaper (who felt that Rotary, consciously or otherwise, was the bourgeois solution of the profit system and in its way, as revolutionary as a fair cross section of intelligent European opinion, hopeful, in-Carl Marks!) there was at the Con-deed, that from one end of the scale to the other they were ready not merely to accept Rotary but to acclaim it."

Mr. O'Brien goes on to say that Europeans may be skeptical of the ultimate good of Rotary but they are one the less hopeful. He believes that Europeans do not think they can be convinced but want to be and respond with eagerness to the call of Rotary as it is to them a radically new conception combining economic soundness with philosophical beauties at once appealing and workable.

With the low government estimate of slightly over 13 million bales of cotton for the South, comes the report from the older growing cotton sections of this and other states that boll weavils are rife, and destroying the crop. This, then can mean nothing else but that we are almost sure of a decent price for our cotton if we make any at all, and we are almost sure of a half crop if not more, or at least 10,000 bales, and plenty of corn if we get rains in the next ten days. With good prices for a half crop, and the people practically out of debt, except land notes, we should be in far better shape this fall than last.

First Fire-Irons
It is less than one hundred and fifty years ago since stoves were first used on a large scale. The only fire-iron in the time of Henry VIII of England was the fire fork, a two-pronged implement for stirring and shifting the logs. The development of the tongs, poker and shovel came along with the eventual general use of coal. Crude strips of bent sheet-iron were, in the beginning, used as fenders.

NEW FORD WILL MAKE 65 MILES; FAST ON PICKUP

WILL UNDERGO FURTHER TESTS BEFORE PLACED ON MARKET, SAYS ANNOUNCEMENT

The new Ford automobile will run 65 miles an hour. It can be driven for hours at an average above 50 miles an hour.

It will use less gas and oil than any previous Ford model, and with one exception, has all other cars backed off the boards in getaway and pickup.

These statements about the new Ford are from Edsel B. Ford, in an interview released in Detroit.

The new car is an accomplished fact but before it is put on the market it will undergo further tests, he said. Mr. Ford's statement:

"The new Ford automobile is now an accomplished fact. The engineering problems affecting its design and equipment and affecting also its manufacture have all been solved.

"But before a single car of the new type is offered for sale to the public each part will have been tested under every condition which we have been able to discover in more than twenty years of building automobiles for use all over the world.

"We know now exactly what this new car is. We have built a number of these cars and they have been performing even better than we had hoped for under a variety of conditions.

"We know also what is needed as to personnel and factory equipment in order to produce these new Ford cars in greater numbers than any manufacturer has ever attempted before. The work of retooling our plants throughout the country to prepare for the heaviest production schedule we have ever undertaken, is now nearly complete.

"But we realize that any new automobile that is to gain and hold public esteem today, whether it shall sell for $500 or $10,000, must perform exactly as it is designed to perform. No automobile manufacturer, in this day and time, should allow the public to do his testing and proving for him. The Ford Motor company cannot afford to permit the automobile user to discover imperfections in these new models.

"The building and testing of these first new cars is costing millions of dollars. But it will give us the complete assurance that we are offering the public a car tested and proven as a new car should be.

"Some of the things we have discovered already in the tests of these new cars are interesting.

"We have accomplished with them a speed of 65 miles per hour—which is slightly higher than we had expected.

If you want to get your NEW FORD promptly better get your order in without delay as they are going to sell fast.

Why we sell the DUNLOP TIRE

FOR 39 YEARS Dunlop has been building the world's supreme tire. Dunlops wear longer because Dunlop knows how to build better at each vital point.

Take the hidden carcass beneath the tread. Dunlop owns its own cotton mills for no other purpose than to spin the best long-fibre cotton into the famous cable-twist cord that goes into this carcass.

The extra strength in these cords means an added factor of safety against constant load and pounding of roads—longer life and greater mileage.

The extra "stretch" enables the carcass to give under severe blows, and to come back into its original position without internal injury.

The Dunlop tread—the toughest rubber development known—wears slowly and smoothly, making sure that you get out of your Dunlops, all the extra mileage that added care and longer experience have built into them. We recommend that you put Dunlops on your car.

Minds of Orientals

Impressed by Pomp

There is reason for the elaborate camps of India and the reason is this: The maharajas, the rajahs and the nawabs are luxury-loving. Always they are hemmed about with pomp and circumstance. Wherever they go, they travel royally. In the old days, before the British government built railroads in India, high-caste travel was a matter of gorgeous pilgrimage. Even when bent on sport, elaborate caravans lumbered slowly into the jungle and there was much regal display. Simplicity is not an oriental trait. Now the British sahib is the representative of England in India, and in a land where the outward trappings are a sign of a man's caste the eastern viewpoint must be considered. A white man, a sahib who travels or camps without a retinue of ample import, loses caste. He cannot be a pukka sahib. The Indian does not respect him and he will be served poorly, if at all. Hence the prestige of the white man suffers. Therefore Indian camps have come to mean for the British sahib—and very particularly for high government officials—elaborate affairs of every comfort. I knew this was to be a pukka show, and I was all agog with curiosity and anticipation.—Florence Morden in Hearst's International-Cosmopolitan.

Salem Highly Prizes

Ancient Indian Deed

The original Indian deed of Salem, Mass., has been ordered placed in a specially built vault, and a photographic copy now hangs where the original used to be. The ravages of time have injured the face of the document and it now is barely decipherable with the aid of a reading glass. In the turbulent period of English possession many disputes arose over the ownership of the land. The crown contended that the Indians had not possessed a legal claim to the soil which had been obtained from them as the town site of Salem, so to protect themselves against encroachments, the citizens in 1686 had the Indians sign this deed "in consideration of ye full and just sum of 20 pounds." Today this same land has an assessed valuation of $100,000,000. During the great fire of 1914, when more than a third of Salem was swept away, Mayor John F. Hurley hastened from his home, which had been destroyed with all his possessions, to the city hall, where he sat in the council chamber prepared to carry this priceless relic to safety.—New York Times.

Convicts Staged Plays

Though the first regular theater in Sydney, N. S. W., was Levey's Theater Royal, opened by Barnett Levey, a hotel keeper, back of his public house on October 5, 1833, some performances were given in a building erected on Church hill, erected at a cost of $500 as early as 1798. These earlier performances were staged by convicts who were warned that any impropriety in the show would cause them to be banished to the outlying settlements. That warning apparently was heeded, but it was discovered that the homes of people who went to the theater were persistently robbed, probably by other British penal exiles in league with the players, so the theater was closed and the building razed shortly thereafter.—Sydney Bulletin.

Fortunate Exclamation

A friend of Prof. William Lyon Phelps related this odd incident to him: My nephew and I arrived in Paris at 2 a. m. and later went to the Gare St. Lazare to get our trunks. We knew no French and the porters at the station could not speak English. After failing to make them understand what we wanted, my nephew in despair exclaimed: "Oh, b'gosh!" Immediately a porter replied, "Oui, bah-gahz; oui, oui, bah-gahz" and soon he brought the trunk. We never knew before that the French language contains the word "baggage" or how it was pronounced.—Boston Transcript.

Sound Common Sense

Between the value of a man's work and the money a buyer will pay for a finished article, the capitalist has his indispensable function. He must supply what people will find they want. But that will not in itself make them want good things. Sir Ernest Beven advises them to save rather than to spend, but only taste and morals can teach them spending. And when they have done both, they will need to adjust the social organism by some giving, which means as much from mind as from pockets. If the dues for that are left to the state, hundreds of millions will be thrown away.—Robert Lencourt in the Atlantic Monthly.

The Domesday Books

When Queen Victoria came to the throne the national archives were scattered in about sixty places, but by an act passed in 1838 they were concentrated in the public record office, which now contains records of the chancery, exchequer, various courts, and departments of state such as the treasury, home office, foreign office, war office, admiralty, board of trade and customs.

Amongst the principal exhibits are the Domesday books, that are the outcome of a general survey of England ordered by William the Conqueror at the end of 1085.—London Answers.

MANY SNAKES THAT ARE MAN'S FRIENDS

Useful in Destroying Predatory Rodents.

On the walls in the "front office" of a little country newspaper in Indiana there used to hang a collection of trophies and curios from many lands. Among them was the skin of a diamond rattlesnake with the rattles attached. Seldom was there a word of appreciation of the beautiful coloring and the exquisite markings of the skin. Fear and hatred of snakes seem to be inherent in mankind, a writer in the Indianapolis News comments. And yet there are several kinds of harmless snakes which are useful in that they destroy great numbers of predatory rodents. One of them is the king snake, so called because of its courage, its strength and its fearlessness. There are seven species of the king snake in the United States. So fearless is it that it will capture and devour other kinds of snakes much larger than itself, including the rattlers, to the venom of which it seems to be immune. It eats rats, mice, lizards, and birds, but not toads. The corn snake, so called because it frequents fields of growing corn in quest of rodents; the pilot snake and the fox snake are also allies of the farmer. Because of their habit of haunting barns and stables two or three different species have been called house snakes. They consume large numbers of rats and mice, and it must be confessed, an occasional young chicken and eggs, as well, but the good they do doubtless overbalances the harm. The so-called milk snake does not steal milk from cows, contrary to an old-time fallacy. In captivity this snake shows no liking for milk. It frequents the cow stable for the mice and rats it finds there. Other beneficial snakes are the chicken and the gopher snakes, the latter sometimes known as the black snake. The blue racer, like all the other racers, is an athlete. It is quick in movement, climbs well and swims rapidly. It is harmless and is a great destroyer of moles and mice. Many of the water snakes are harmless, but as they live on toads, frogs and fish they are not especially beneficial to mankind. The garter snake, the most common and the most prolific of all the harmless snakes found in the United States, is really of doubtful benefit to the farmer. It subsists on cold-blooded creatures, toads, frogs and fish-worms. By devouring toads it destroys one of man's best agencies in his fight against insect pests.

Old Figurehead Saved

What is said to be one of the finest examples of figureheads from American ships of the old days is to be seen at the home of Robert Moran, the Seattle shipbuilder, on one of the San Juan islands in Puget sound. It is a classic Greek figure of a woman with a short sword and flowing garments, suggesting the figure of Liberty, and once adorned the American clipper ship America, built at Quincy, Mass., in 1874.

The America was wrecked on one of the San Juan islands in 1914. The figurehead was carved from a solid white pine log and is of heroic stature. It is painted white and set in a concrete imitation of a ship's prow, on a pretty beach with a background of cedars and fir trees.

The figure led the gallant America on some renowned voyages. One was from New York to San Francisco, around the adventurous Horn, in 80 days, and once from San Francisco to Liverpool in 102 days.

Taming Speed Maniacs

Authorities in Bulgaria sometimes adopt crude methods to enforce the speed limit. During the months when because the roads are not macadamized, there is a great deal of dust, soldiers and policemen are stationed on roads leading into Sofia. When a car is adjudged to be going too fast an admonition is shouted. If the speed is not slackened immediately a rifle shot is fired into the air. If that does not produce the desired effect a rifle is directed at the wheels. It may be imagined that unless the rifle is in the hands of an expert marksman the occupants of the car are likely to be hit. But the treatment stops the cars.

Useless Test

Dr. Lewis H. Haney, head of the business research bureau of New York university, said at a dinner:

"I am against communism and bolshevism. We'll always have successes and failures, as we'll always have good weather and bad weather, sun and rain, light and darkness.

"Why, if you reduced all mankind to one dead level, that level would soon get full of hillobs and hollows. "In other words, even if you put the rich man under the poor man's foot the poor man would only just be walking on his uppers."

The Rare Okapi

It is to be hoped that the okapi, which has been captured alive in Belgian Congo by Capt. Marshall Field, will be brought safely to this country. These are the shyest animals known and until a few years ago was entirely unknown. This is said to be only the second one captured and very few have ever been seen. The first one was taken to Europe and died after six months in captivity. The okapi resists capture to the point of death and its nearest relative is the giraffe. It lives in the most inaccessible parts of the country.

The weed cutting campaign in Brownfield did not stop when the contest was over, but merrily goes on. The city is now doing its part near the streets and alleys, and the good example set has caused others to keep on cutting both weeds and mesquite bushes until the clean appearance of the town is now the talk of traveling men and tourists.

We note that Wilson, Tahoka, Lamesa, O'Donnell and other towns have been offered a gas pipe line from the panhandle, which is merely an extension of the one from Lubbock and Slaton. So far as we know this branch of the Santa Fe has not been offered a gas line by the company that is building to the South Plains, but we hope to be using our own gas perhaps by the time they are tied on—and we do not mean this sarcastically.

We acknowledge receipt of an invitation from the committee of arrangements at Abilene asking us to serve on the reception committee to welcome Capt. Chas. Lindbergh when he comes to that city in the near future. After paying a heavy tribute to West Texas newspaper men for their share in the upbuilding of the country, they then feel that the newspaper folks should have a large share in the entertainment of this famous flyer when he reaches Abilene. The Herald graciously acknowledges the tribute; it feels honored by the invitation, but is humiliated at its bank account.

We are glad that Terry county, and the balance of the South Plains for that matter, is clear of that gangster with a "banana" sounding name they have in the larger cities of the north, that parade and riot when the authorities are talking of hanging some of their murderers. We of this section, composed of pure American stock that reaches back to the Pilgrim fathers or the John Smith colony of Virginia, would have little patience to contend with these murder sympathizers, and such folks here might get drug from the horn of a saddle if they got too fresh. Yet, we have an inkling, weakling few that will sometimes stand up and, with a show of admiration tell how some criminal stood off the officers with a brace of guns. We have heard such expressions right here in Brownfield and over in Oklahoma these birds will hang out in the offering of a jail and ask bank robbing murderers to make a speech. Such people to our notion are not greatly superior to the criminal themselves, and have a touch of this "catinambolshevika" blood in their veins. Such people seem to expect an officer of the law to walk up in the face of these fools with firearms and disarm them without breaking the hide or musing a hair on the criminal's head. We are just like them, only we think the officers should walk up with a sawed-off shotgun and fill their tarantula hides so full of hot lead that it would be a fair warning to others of their ilk. We have no patience with premeditated murders and robbers, or with those who sympathize with them.

Mrs. Smart, answering the doorbell: "Oh you are a life insurance agent, are you?" Thus spoke Mr. Smart to the agent, whose hearing was impaired.

"I beg your pardon," said the agent, with his hand to his ear.

"I say," said Mrs. Smart, "you are just selling insurance?"

"No, no I am selling food, clothing and shelter for future delivery. I am contracting to pay off the mortgage, educate the children, pay the taxes, and prevent the gnawing agony of debt, doubt and despair that so often comes to the home when the head of the house has been called away by the great enemy, Death.

"I am selling sunshine, happiness, and freedom from want and worry. I am contracting to make boys and girls worthy members of society, and a source of pride and joy to their widowed mother. I am selling a real guarantee that mother will not have to bend her back over the wash tub to earn her bread, and that these little fellows will have an honest opportunity to become useful men and women.

THE TALE OF A HORSE

There was once a French scientist who bought a horse. Each day he reduced slightly the food given him. This progressed for several weeks and the experiment bid fair to be a great success, but just as the point was reached where no feed was given the horse died.

We occasionally encounter an advertiser who seems to be trying this same old experiment. He has a thriving business which he has strengthened and fed with a normal amount of advertising. However, his "feed bill" looks rather large and he begins the cutting down process. The business is strong and for a while goes along pretty well on its reduced advertising ration. The owner, just like the Frenchman, is much pleased with himself—he has made a money-making discovery. But we should remember that the laws of business are much like the laws of nature. The horse died, which points a moral which needs no comment. If you would be successful with your business do not emulate the tale of the horse.

By sometimes having such courses and sometimes omitting them, the pattern of the family meals is more interesting and varied.

One of the secrets of French flavoring in cookery is the discreet use of garlic. Put one nubbin or 'clove' of garlic in the stewing or soup chicken, its flavor will be scarcely perceptible, but will greatly improve the flatness of the boiled meat. Rub the salad bowl with garlic, and drop it into gravy or stew, removing it as soon as the flavor is delicately noticeable. Garlic can be used so that those who think they object to it do not know what gives a dish its unusually good taste.

Expression Job Used
Now Ordinary Slang

The expression, "I escaped by the skin of my teeth," used, say, when a pedestrian has just dodged a motor car by a hair's breadth, is often regarded as pure slang, and many a boy has been rebuked by his very proper maiden aunt for using it. Yet it is taken direct, with the change of one small preposition, from the most literary book in the Bible, that great poem of "the ways of God with man," that we know as the Book of Job.

It occurs in chapter 19, verse 20, that reads: "My bone cleaveth to my skin and to my flesh, and I am escaped with the skin of my teeth." It is a forceful metaphor, because the teeth have no skin, and thus it carries the idea of the closest shave imaginable.

Job is referring to the fact that all his family have perished and all his riches have flown away, and that he himself is not only in dire poverty, but in very bad health as well. The only thing left to him is his life, and even that is so full of misery that it is hardly worth retaining.

French Financial Law

An apprenticeship tax was provided for in the French financial law passed July 13, 1925. By the terms of the law a so-called "apprenticeship tax" is imposed on every person or organization engaged in industrial, commercial or mining enterprises, with certain exceptions, whose annual pay roll amounts to more than 10,000 francs. The tax is used to extend the work of trade, commercial and industrial schools, of the national vocational schools, and of occupational or other courses which have for their object the restoration of apprenticeship training or the preparation of young people for a commercial or industrial occupation, and also to extend the development of scientific laboratories.

Li-Po

In the days when the venerable Bede was writing church history in Northumbria, and Charles Martel hammering Saracens at Tours, and Leo the Isaurian smashing images in Byzantium, the intelligent Chinese were writing poetry. And when, just a thousand years later, a selection was made from the still surviving verse of this Tang dynasty (Seventh, Ninth centuries A. D.), even the anthology included nearly fifty thousand poems in nine hundred books (which may teach our sorely tried generation that others have suffered even worse); and of the twenty-three hundred poets there enrolled, the greatest was Li-Po.—F. L. Lucas, in "Authors."

The Gift of Water

The gift of a drinking fountain to a city is the eldest of all such gifts. It was first given when libraries were for the priestly, learned few, and when parks were owned by savage, autocratic nobles. Thither the pious came, and gossiping girls with water urns, and grined travelers, and paunchy merchants, and pariah dogs, and laboring horses, and even the beggars of the market place. And with an intemperate sun beating down upon them all these drank or drew water, in the democracy of thirst.

Woman Accorded High Rank in Intelligence

That Anatole France had a high regard for women may be gathered from the conversation which took place between himself and his secretary, Sanaor Keimera, and which is reported in her book, "Rambles With Anatole France."

"The intelligence of the woman is very high and she is ready to go to all extremes in asserting herself," he says. "More than the man she is aware of the age in which she lives, because she carries it within herself. In our search for the history of the past it is the woman who shows us the way. It is she who makes us foresee the future. It is the woman, heroic, sentimental, romantic, emancipated, independent. She was taken from Adam's breast, near his heart, brought to life by his ardent desire. How could she be anything else but his image? Therefore the woman's destiny depends on the man."

J. C. Anderson, M.D. State H.O.

THIS column will be given to discussion of matters pertaining to public health. Any questions regarding public health administration, prevention of diseases, child care, sanitation, etc., will be answered in succeeding issues of this paper. Questions in regard to cure of diseases will not be answered, as the scope of this Department includes only disease prevention. Address Question Box, State Department of Health, Austin.

QUESTIONS

1. My little boy does not like milk. How can I overcome this dislike? (Mrs. J. B. M., Bay City.)
2. How can cancer be prevented? (J. D., Belton)
3. Which has the highest death rate in Texas, heart disease or tuberculosis? (Mrs. X, Henderson)
4. I have 3 children, and I find that none of them are registered. We had a physician at each of these times and paid his fee promptly. As registration of births is part of a physician's duty, would I not have been justified in withholding such fees until my babies were registered? (Mrs. B.)
5. What foods are recommended for fat people? (Anxious)
6. If smallpox can be prevented, why do we hear of so many cases scattered over the state and country?
7. Should a baby be allowed to suck a pacifier? (Mother)
8. Why is it that some children will take a communicable disease when exposed to it, and others will not? (Mrs. L. Plano.)

ANSWERS

1. A dislike for milk is often acquired by children through having been given a some time, milk of bad odor or taste. It is the natural thing for a child to like milk, and the first time the child refuses to drink his glass of milk, the mother should immediately find out the reason. The milk may be of bad quality, and if so, the child shows good sense in not liking it. If this is the reason, be sure that the next milk given him is of good quality, as if he once gets it fixed in his mind that he doesn't like milk, he will thereafter refuse any that is given him. Children are great imitators and often refuse milk, because some other member of the family doesn't drink it. Every child should drink a quart of milk a day.
2. There is no known prevention of cancer, such as used in the prevention of smallpox, diphtheria, and some other diseases. Cancer is usually a disease of middle and late life, and this is one of the reasons why a person should have a health examination once each year after reaching this age. Cancer may be cured in the early stages, but in advanced stages, it becomes a more difficult problem.
3. More people died in Texas last year of heart disease than of any other cause.
4. The mothers of Texas can assist materially in putting this state in the registration area of the United States, if they will call their physicians and insist that their children be registered.
5. Eat freely of cabbage, lettuce, tomatoes, carrots, turnips, greens, carrots, and other filling foods. Eat sparingly of meat, eggs, bread, cereals and other foods made from grain and grain products. Eat no desserts and no sweets of any kind. Extreme dieting is not recommended for reducing overweight, as the body becomes undernourished, and disease resistance diminishes. Proper physical exercise is the correct method of getting rid of excess fat.
6. The reason that smallpox exists at all is because people refuse to be vaccinated. In Germany, vaccination is compulsory at birth and again in early youth. During the last 10 years, there has been less than 40 cases of smallpox reported in that country, and these were mostly tourists.
7. Mothers long ago learned that a baby should not be permitted to suck its thumb, but many have yet to learn that a pacifier is also harmful to the welfare of a child. A pacifier alters the shape of baby's mouth, helps cause adenoids and protruding teeth, as well as causing digestive trouble.

8. Not everybody takes communicable diseases who are exposed to them. The disease resistance agencies of the body may be able to conquer disease germs entering the system, and in this case, one escapes infection. One may also obtain immunity from certain diseases by vaccination and other methods.

RECORD PROVES INEFFICIENCY

A District Criminal Court judge in Dallas county, Texas, recently received congratulations from members of the bar on his record of trying eight murder cases within a period of six months. Indeed, under our procedure in Texas, Judge Adams deserved to be congratulated. In England and Canada, however, four days to a murder case is about the maximum, so this Texas records stands, not as a monument to the efficiency of our courts, but as evidence of inefficient, antiquated procedure which encourages delay and heaps expense on both the State and defendant. And, when this district judge received the report of the juries on these cases, he had no assurance that he was through with them. In most instances new trials were asked and refused and the cases appealed, and so in the course of three or four years they may be sent back to him to occupy the attention of his court for another six months or longer.

Judge Adams, in trying eight murder cases in six months, probably used every means at his command to make time, but under our rules of procedure, the judge does not actually try a case. The case is tried before by the lawyers. All the judge has to do—all he can do—is to act as an umpire and see that the rules are obeyed. He may discover that one lawyer is taking an unfair advantage. He may know that one of the attorneys is cleverly misleading the jury as to the facts. He probably knows that evidence is being concealed and that the verdict will be influenced, but he is not in a position to even protest. It takes days to select a jury in some cases. Hundreds of men are taken from their work to go before the court only to be rejected. And, after a jury has been sworn in, the trial of the case may continue for weeks. It is not generally a case where law and evidence are chief factors, but one in which the ability and cleverness of the lawyer controls. Officers of the court are under oath to uphold and sustain the laws of the State and the Nation, the average lawyer goes in to win at almost any cost.—Farm and Ranch.

MEADOW BRIEFS

By Aesculapias.

Things are looking better or some at least have taken a more rosy view than has obtained for the past few months. Two of our very popular young people think that it is safe to embark on the matrimonial sea and accordingly hid themselves to Lubbock the past week and took the usual vows "Until death do us part." The adventurers were Miss Velma Horton and Mr. Loy Bolen.

Following the wedding the ladies of Meadow gave them a shower at the home of Mrs. Bertram, Saturday afternoon. Mesdames Bertram, Burleson and Handly had charge of the program and the newlyweds were the recipients of numerous useful and ornamental presents.

The bride was also instructed in the gentle and useful art of "How to manage a husband." There is little doubt that if the formulas submitted by these experienced ladies are carried out this young Benedict will be all that his bride could wish. "Here's hoping."

Mr. M. L. Handley, our very popular gin man has purchased a gin at Tahoka and is moving to that berg. We are very sorry to lose Mr. Handley and his excellent wife and daughter but we can heartily recommend them as useful citizens and good neighbors. With them went several others that have worked with Mr. Handley the past two seasons. We regard them all as a real loss to our little city.

Another family that we regret to lose is George Gafford and wife. They have been identified with the moving picture show here since it was installed. The plant was moved to Trent as times have been rather hard for the business the past few months. We hope the gold will be found at the end of this rainbow.

Some of our good farmers becoming discouraged at the outlook here have been hunting a new Eldorado and have visited the Ozark section of Arkansas. There is undoubtedly much to recommend the section for many purposes. However being largely a fruit growing section they will have many things to learn before they will be able to better their condition. Land is much higher than here and crops subject to drouths and insect pests the same as here. Prices will be no better, and the renter will have to be content with less land as small crops are the rule. But why enumerate. The writer has made several moves and can't say he ever bettered his condition.

The Stork has been making rather infrequent visits to these parts for some months past. However he paid a visit to Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Stephenson last Sunday night and left them a boy. All parties concerned express themselves as well pleased.

Rain has fallen in sight every day the past week and threatening clouds passed over us but never a bit fell here. North, east and west have had their turn why not Meadow.

Almshouse Child Who Won Favor of World

When Jenny Lind, the "Swedish Nightingale," was a child in Stockholm she accompanied her grandmother to an old women's home to which poverty had consigned her; and at the window of the almshouse Jenny would sit in the sun and sing. Some one heard the child and told of her sweet voice, and before long she was enrolled as a pupil at the Royal opera house, Stockholm, and trained at the expense of the government.

In her early twenties her triumphs began. Europe contracted a Jenny Lind madness. Her gentle beauty, her exquisite voice, her charming personality, her amazing histrionic ability, and above all, her sincerity, her precious quality of conviction, set the world afire, and for years she toured Europe and America in one long pageant of triumphs. It was in America that she met a musician, Otto Goldschmidt, whom she married.

At the zenith of her career, with an adoring world at her feet, she decided to give up all for home quiet and peace. In 1859 she made her last appearance as an opera star. Thereafter she sang only in concerts and oratorios. Following her marriage she lived in England and gave up her musical career. Of the $250,000 she made on her American tour, she gave $40,000 at once to charity. She lived for 35 years after her retirement.—Mentor Magazine.

Planned to Connect England and France

For more than a century plans have been discussed from time to time for constructing a tunnel under the English channel, but the project never has been seriously attempted. The first person to propose a tunnel was a French engineer named Mathieu. Later Thome de Gamond, another Frenchman, managed to excite much interest in an idea for submerging a series of iron tubes and in the construction of a tunnel proper and he obtained the support of the French emperor in the tunnel plan. Thirty years ago a channel bridge of colossal dimensions tickled the public fancy. It was to cost $150,000,000 and a company actually was formed to carry out the proposal, but the formation of the company was as far as it went. More startling was an idea for building two immense chutes, one on each side of the straits, by means of which passengers could be projected quickly from one country to the other.—London Tit-Bits.

Hymn an Inspiration

According to the story of the composition of "Rock of Ages," Wesley, the great leader and hymn writer, and Toplady, the Anglican churchman, met and were drawn into a very heated argument over some current theological questions. They argued until long after midnight. Neither yielded a point. When they separated, Toplady was wrought up to a high state of spiritual excitement. Not being able to sleep, he sat and thought. In a moment of exaltation the words of the hymn, "Rock of Ages," began to come to his mind. He began to write. Before dawn he had produced this master hymn.

Big Executive's Plan

The president of one of the largest public utilities corporations in the country, who began as an underclerk, frankly admits that his organization makes a practice of paying beginners a little less than they are worth. Why? Because they can speed the new man up by a raise a short while after he has joined the concern and they know he's a coner. That insures loyalty to the corporation and keeps men on their toes. And it breeds the desire to get another raise.—Paul Kinkead in Liberty.

"Ghost Money"

"Money" and other articles made out of tinfoil, and intended for the special use of departed spirits, provides the town of Shaoching, China, with a curious and profitable industry.

All day long the din of thousands of hammers pounding on anvils can be heard, and the production of these symbols for departed spirits is said to bring in $3,000,000 a year.

The symbolic money is made by hand, the tin being hammered out on anvils until a surprising thinness is obtained. Although the "money" is intended for the use of the dead, there is considerable traffic in the ashes of the fires burnt at the tombs where the "money" is placed. The tin is extracted from the ashes and used again to make more "money."—London Tit-Bits.

WHICH MAKES THE PROFIT?

No Complications to Justice in Abyssinia

Abyssinia is a country without lawyers, explains Rosita Forbes, famous woman explorer, in an article telling how the East solves its crime problem in Liberty. "For there are no courts except for foreign nationals in the capital. Any respected citizen may act as judge. Seated by the roadside, or in the open market, he will listen patiently. The witnesses will often make the whole scene."

"If one man accuses another of crime, they are chained together until the case can be adjudged. If the couple are of opposite sexes, the plaintiff has to produce a man or woman of his own family, according to the sex of the defendant, to be chained to him or her until judgment is given."

"Death can be imposed only by the empress or her regent. Treason or any crime against the imperial person is punished by slow strangulation in the public market. Ordinary cases of murder are often settled on a basis of blood money. If blood money is refused, the murderer is taken to the potter's field outside the city and handed over to the family of his victim."

"He must be killed exactly as he is killed—by knife or bullet or rope, as the case may be. Two policemen stand by to see that no torture is committed."

Order Was Placed

The teacher of the kindergarten Sunday school class was asking each member if there was a little brother or sister at home who might soon be eligible for admission to the class. One little boy, as he heard the proud responses of the children in front of him, felt that he was rapidly losing caste.

"No, ma'am," he admitted reluctantly, then added in sudden desperation, "But we're going to get one!"

Two neighbors each own herds of dairy cows. One herd produces 2,500 pounds of milk per cow per year. The other herd produces 4,500 lbs. per cow. With milk selling at $3 per 100, butter fat test 4 per cent, which dairyman makes the profit, if any? If one herd tests 5 per cent butter fat and the other 3 per cent, would it make a difference in net returns? These questions can be answered by any farmer or dairyman. Yet, here in Texas, our average production per cow is less than 2,500 pounds. In view of the fact that there are many herds producing above 5,000 pounds, there must be thousands of cows that produce far below the average. The average in our leading dairy States is around 5,000 pounds per cow. A cow producing less than 4,000 lbs. of 4 per cent milk is not considered profitable.

Does that not answer the question as to why dairying is not profitable.

Farmers with three or four good cows, if they feed the skim milk to hogs and chickens, find cows profitable when dairymen who depend solely upon the sale of milk and cream suffer losses. This has been demonstrated so often that Farm and Ranch does not hesitate to advocate two or more good cows on every farm, whereas it does not suggest that every farmer go into the dairy business. Dairymen must be developed. Not one farmer in 100 could successfully plunge into the business of producing milk and cream. Every farmer, however, should have enough good cows to provide for family use and a little to sell at the local cream station during times of flush production.—Farm and Ranch.
