Chamber of Commerce

By the Secretary

We did not secure the district convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, but we brought home the bacon on the annual convention of rural mail carriers of the 18th Congressional District, winning out over Amarillo by two votes. The convention will be held on next May 30. Claude Jones, J. O. Kinney and J. H. Carpenter were in attendance from Brownfield. All of them had a vote and saved the day for us. Of course it is quite a while before we are to entertain the carriers, but a program of entertainment will be prepared for them that will at least equal that of Floydada.

The United States Department of Agriculture places the number of milk cows in Texas as being 936,000, and one of the foremost authorities on the dairy industry of the State, says that less than 7,000 of them would be considered as milk cows in the real dairying centers of the North. Up in Wisconsin, nothing less than six gallons is considered as a milk cow with a butter production of not less than three hundred pounds. Good bulls are the solution of the dairy cow problem in our county as well as others. Agent Davis says that he is going to undertake to organize several bull circles over the county.

The Fourth of July Barbecue still hangs in the balances as not enough cash has been raised to put it over. Chris Quante and the writer are going to do some close figuring this week and if we think that there is any chance of making the grade, we will get out and shell the woods and get some subscriptions increased. Practically every one who was approached, agreed to assist and increases in amounts are what we will be after this time. Back in 1916 and before, it was an easy job to get out and raise several hundred dollars to pull off a barbecue or pay expenses of exhibits at fairs and the town was a great deal smaller than it is now, so it seems that it should not be a difficult job to raise cash for either of them now, altho money is not quite so plentiful now as it was then.

It became rumored a few weeks ago that we were not going to be served with natural gas and the writer more than half believed it, (but would not admit it) as he has never been able to figure where the company could get sufficient business to return any interest on the investment but just to be sure regarding the story, a letter was written to the headquarters of the company and a reply has been received, which stated that they would be serving us before the expiration of time limit of their franchise, which is not later than December 1st this year. Pretty good news for some of us "Doubting Thomases." It is now up to us to begin to figure on where the funds are coming from with which to pay for new stoves and connections.

Citizens who have visited other portions of the state within the last few days, bring back reports that the condition of crops in Terry County are far superior to any other section that they saw. County Agent, Davis says that no part of the country between here and Arlington, is as far advanced as we, except a small section of Parker county has corn a little further along. This portion of the state is usually about three weeks ahead of us and as they have had a lot of rain it is rather strange that they do not lead in growth this year.

Aged Pioneer Passes To the Great Beyond

Uncle Jack Coble, 86, one of the most highly respected citizens, as well as one of our pioneers, who has been making his home with Chock Hamilton and family for the past several years, passed away Sunday afternoon at 6:30. Uncle Jack had been getting gradually more feeble for the past few years, but had been unusually ill for the past several weeks.

Funeral services were conducted at the Baptist church Monday afternoon at 2:30 by the pastor, Rev. E. V. May. Burial followed immediately in the Brownfield cemetery.

Uncle Jack was born at Fayetteville, N. C., January 22, 1842, where he grew to manhood. At the age of 19 he entered the services of the Confederacy, and served with distinction with a North Carolina regiment throughout the war. It is our understanding that Uncle Jack never returned to his native state after Lee's surrender in Virginia, but came immediately to Texas, and settled in Titus county, where he helped to fight the carpetbagger and win back the government of Texas to white supremacy. There he met and married his first wife, who only lived a few years. He married again and a boy was born to this union, but both have been dead for 34 years, after the boy had reached the age of six or seven. He next moved to Red River county where he lived for several years. In 1900, he came to Floyd county and purchased considerable land, but sold it and came to Terry county in 1902 when it first began to attract attention, and two years before it became an organized county. He soon entered the livery stable business here but with the advent of the railroad and automobiles, he sold the site to the Higginbotham-Bartlett Co. for a lumber yard. Having enough of this world's goods to keep him the rest of his life, he quit work and has made his home with the Hamiltons as stated above, who were old time East Texas friends of his.

Uncle Jack was never a member of any church or lodge that anyone was aware of, but was almost a model man morally speaking. No one ever applied to this good old soul in need and was turned away empty handed. He was a friend of everyone, and everyone loved Uncle Jack. A man of his word, you need not be told twice, for everyone knew he meant just what he said and aimed to let that be his course. No double crossing could come from him.

Thus has passed another of our old land marks with the heartfelt regrets of every old time citizen in the county.

Brownfield Girl is Crowned Beauty Queen

Miss Mary Walker of this city was recently crowned as the prettiest girl in John Tarleton College at Stephenville, which is a distinct credit not only to Mary, but a good advertisement for the town. She is a splendid representative, but the town as well as the surrounding country is simply full of beauties, and who wants to move to a place where the girls and women are ugly?

Miss Walker is not only a natural beauty of the rarest brunette type, but she is just as sweet as she is pretty. She never "high hats" anyone, but has a good word for the youngest to the eldest. This accounts for her popularity at Tarleton. Not only that, but we understand she made excellent grades in school, and is therefore popular with her instructors as well as the student body who thus honored her.

If the world was made up with the class of girls to which Mary belongs, we would have no occasion to feel uneasy about the coming generation.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our friends and neighbors for the help and sympathy done or expressed during the last illness and death of our dear old charge Uncle Jack Coble. We thank each of you and pray that the Father may reward you in the Sweet Bye and Bye if not on this earth.

County Agents Column

By R. B. Davis, Agent

NOTICE TO 4-H CLUB MEMBERS

All boys who wish to try out for the Terry County grain and livestock teams report at the County Agents office Saturday evening at 2 P. M. Bring a pencil and pocket note book. R. B. Davis, Co. Agent.

R. B. Davis and T. L. Verner made a trip to Arlington last week to select the pigs for the Terry County pig club boys. They were favorably impressed with the quality of hogs that are bred on the Lillard Farms. Forty-nine Poland China, twenty-three Duroc Jersey and two Hampshire pigs were selected for the club boys of this section. This is not only the largest shipment of pigs to club members but according to Mr. Lillard they are without doubt the best bred pigs, as a group, of any shipment that has ever been made. The sires of these pigs have repeatedly won the grand championships at such fairs as the Dallas Fair, Missouri State Fairs and other big shows. Terry county through her club members now has a stock of hogs that if taken care of will put the county on the hog map and these boys are the ones to do the job.

The annual boys training course will be held at Lubbock this year on June 27-28. Training in judging of live stock, poultry and grain are given to the club boys making the trip. The county agent and club leader have issued their call to those interested in judging and expect to begin working Saturday. Every boy who is interested should make a determined effort to make the Terry county teams for the boys who make the county teams will get to represent Terry county at A. & M. College this summer. The winning teams at this contest will get to represent Texas at the National Dairy Show and at Chicago this fall. The winning team at the National Dairy Show will be sent to Europe next summer. Judging teams offer the greatest possibility of any teams that can be made. Both Mr. Davis and Mr. Williams have made judging teams and with hard work on the part of the Terry county boys they expect to make some one work for the high honors that are being offered.

PUBLISHER CARTER COINS NEW SLOGAN

FORT WORTH, June 4.—The Fort Worth Star Telegram, published by Amon G. Carter, of Fort Worth, who was reprimanded by Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson for yelling "Hurrah for Dan" at a Texas A. & M. football game, has coined a new campaign slogan for Louis J. Wardlaw, Fort Worth candidate for governor; which is:

"We've had a woman for governor. We have a boy for governor. Let's have a man for governor."

Destructive Hail Visits Meadow Section

One of the most destructive hails in the history of Terry county, area covered considered, visited the Meadow trade territory about 3 o'clock last Sunday evening, and practically ruined all the crops in its path. However, we heard of some farmers in the path of the hail storm who received a big rain in advance of the hail which covered up and protected their young growing crops and were saved from having to replant, but the majority were absolutely haled out.

Rudolph Moorhead, druggist of Meadow was down Tuesday morning and informed us that the hail cloud followed a big rain cloud, and in Meadow the sun was shining while the hail was falling. He reported that some of the hail stones were as large as hen eggs, and beat out the tops of two cars standing in front of the drug store. Owing to the fact that no wind scarcely was blowing, windows were saved from being broken out. However, many houses had the west side of their roofs riddled, and are being reroofed or patched up.

Neighbors on each side of the strip which was about a mile long and reached from about six miles west of Meadow and into Lynn county on the east, came with their planters Tuesday morning, and Mr. Moorhead figured there were about five planters running in each field Tuesday morning. He reports that they have plenty of seed to replant.

A shower of rain with a little sprinkling of small hail stones visited Brownfield about the same time, but no damage was reported outside the Meadow section. A cool norther blew up Sunday afternoon, and continued all day Monday, which is a good indication that other sections north of us were visited by hail. However, we have had no reports to that effect.

Mighty Fine Rain Visits Old Terry

One of the best rains in several years, judging by the way it fell, visited Terry and the neighboring South Plains counties Friday night, continuing to drizzle up until about 8 A. M. Saturday morning putting a deep season in the ground which will hasten the growth of young crops which are up to a fine stand all over the county. It is reported that Terry county as a whole has the best stand of all crops in its history.

The first cloud came up from the northwest with a slight electrical display, and began to sprinkle about 11 o'clock Friday night. After it rained out, another seemed to have formed even further back in the northwest and came over, raining for about six hours in a slow way, every drop sinking into our sandy loam soil, to be stored in our deep red subsoil to hold the crops up under any reasonable dry spell during July.

The fall was about one and one half inches according to the government gauge in Brownfield, and will probably average about the same over the entire county. Many sections of the county, including Brownfield, got another good shower Sunday afternoon.

HOUSTON PREPARED TO CARE FOR BIG CROWDS

Existing tourist camp facilities have been expanded to accommodate 3,000 cars, or 10,000 persons. Two new tourist camps are under construction with facilities for 5,000 cars or 15,000 persons. These camps have running water, bathing facilities and sewerage. Many of them have cabins and tents available.

Therefore, the impression that Houston cannot adequately house all visitors during the Democratic Convention is entirely unfounded. Every person who comes to Houston during this gathering, will be properly housed and fed.

In order to save time and secure the best of available rooms, we urge those planning to attend the convention to write The Housing Committee, Democratic Building, Houston, for reservation, and rooms will be assigned immediately. If this is done, the visitor who has written in advance for rooms will be conducted directly to his quarters with very little delay.

Town Full of Club Boys and Girls Tuesday

Tuesday was a gala day for the farm boys and girls of Terry county who belong to the pig clubs for they had come to town after their pigs, and believe us, they were in a hurry to register and see the pig they aimed to carry home to make something of, just in a few months. The County Agent, R. B. Davis, accompanied by T. E. Verner, of the Meadow country, one of the best judges of swine in the county, went to Arlington the latter part of the week where they selected 74 nice pigs from the Lillard herds. They arrived in a car Monday afternoon on a schedule, and were distributed out Tuesday afternoon.

Some of the boys and girls brought the cash or check for their pig, but many of them signed notes to the local banks for funds with which to purchase the pigs. They brought dad along to go on the note with them, and they sure hurried the old man around in order that they would have an early pick of the herd.

At noon a luncheon of sandwiches and pop were served to these fine young men and women by the business men of the city with Secretary J. E. Shelton of the chamber of commerce in charge. Directly after lunch the drawing for the pigs occurred.

These pigs all have the register tag in their ears, and their progenitors are among the best in the United States, therefore, in a few years, Terry can be stocked with the best hogs to be found. While not fat, they are now in good living shape, and stood the long travel well, but in just a few weeks you are going to notice a big change for the better in these pigs, and the boys and girls are going to be glad to claim them.

Judge Neill says, however, that if the people had not killed off all the jack rabbits there would have been no use in importing all these hogs.

Mr. Davis informed us Wednesday morning that everything went off nicely, but there was not quite enough pigs. Others will be supplied from home herds.

GIRL IS SERIOUSLY HURT WHEN TEAM RUNS AWAY

Miss Lois Light, the 18 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lon Light who live at New Moore west of O'Donnell, was seriously injured Monday morning about nine thirty when the team she was driving hitched to a two-row lister, became frightened and ran away, throwing the young lady under the plow and dragging her for over a half mile before they were caught.

The plow point had caught Miss Light in the abdomen tearing it wide open and cutting the muscles in two.

Dr. C. E. Collins of this city was summoned immediately, who with Dr. Sheppard, left at once for the scene of the accident.

The girl was found to be in such a bad condition that she was rushed to Lubbock to the Lubbock Sanitarium accompanied by Dr. Collins and members of the family. Mr. W. E. Guey drove the car. An operation was performed and the last report from Lubbock was that she was resting well and some hopes for her recovery given.—O'Donnell Index.

SENATE PASSES BOLLIES BILL

WASHINGTON, May 30.—A few hours before adjournment the Senate passed the Heflin bill, providing for the publication of additional statistics on cotton by the Census Bureau. The measure is yet to be passed by the House.

It provides for the publication of statistics on the quantity of linters and "snaps and bollies" ginned, the report on linters to be separated from the figures on the latter and both reports separate from other cotton statistics published by the Census Bureau.

Senator Mayfield's bill for the regulation of transactions on cotton seed oil futures exchanges was reached twice on the Senate calendar Tuesday but consideration of the measure was blocked by objections both times. Senator Copeland of New York, who blocked consideration of the bill several times in the past, was one of the objectors in the closing hours of the session. The bill is opposed by the New York Cotton Seed Oil Exchange and is endorsed by the New Orleans market.

Big Crowds Here Saturday Despite Mud

The fact that it rained all Friday night, beginning about 11 P. M., until about eight or nine o'clock Saturday, did not deter the folks from coming to town. Well, what else was there to do? It was decidedly too wet to get in the field, and the roads by noon were dry, and they just simply came to town, not only to see their friends from various other parts of the trade territory, but to do their week end shopping.

The writer milled around with the farm folks quite a lot Saturday and from what we could gather, something like the same amount of rain fell all over Terry county, but Plains reported the biggest rain there in ten years. It is said that the countryside was simply flooded. According to the government gauge here, 1.50 inches fell during the time, and about half an inch fell here Sunday afternoon.

As stated above, these people were trading. Collins Dry Goods Co., reported a very fine day with their big Clearance Sale just opening, and all other merchants we talked with said they could ask for nothing better. Everybody was as busy as hunting dogs, but not too busy to stop and smile and congratulate one another and Terry county in general on the big rain the night before. Almost all of us also had to compare conditions last year and this, and then finally have to admit there was no comparison.

The sidewalks were so crowded all afternoon that passing was difficult, and cars were parked as thick as they could be on both sides and through the center all over the business section. But they just naturally come to Brownfield to trade, for no other place in this section offers quality goods at prices as low as they are found in Brownfield.

Singing at the Baptist Church 3rd Sunday

While the crowd was not large, not being extensively advertised, the singing at the Methodist church the last Sunday afternoon in May was made up in enthusiasm and good singing what it lacked in numbers, and it was decided to have another at the Baptist church beginning at 2 o'clock on the 3rd Sunday afternoon in this month. You are invited to come and bring your book.

When you find a singing people you find a contented people, a patriotic people, a God-fearing people, and good neighbors too. We have enough of dissensions and strifes among ourselves, and if we just go to our own place all the time, we finally get selfish and narrow, and imagine "we and ours" are accomplishing all that is accomplished. By mixing and mingling with our neighbors we become broad and tolerant, and not only do we make better citizens, but better fathers, mothers, brothers and sisters.

The crowd at the Methodist church singing was hindered from several causes, principally a lecture at the tabernacle, but all can join in this one at the Baptist church. There were a number of good leaders on hand for the other one.

Everybody cordially invited, and be sure to bring your song book, as many old songs are found in all song books.

WILSON WILL NOW HAVE ELECTRIC LIGHTS

By the time you read this article the people of Wilson will be enjoying the use of electricity, a thing we have looked forward to for a long time. We are also proud of the fact that we are to be served by the Texas Utilities Company, because of the fact that every place they are serving the people seem perfectly satisfied with the service they are giving. We count ourselves very fortunate in receiving this service, our town being so small at this time. Let us hope that Wilson will soon grow to be large enough that this good company will realize a good profit on their investment and be glad they came our way.—Wilson Pointer.

C. Wines' condition is reported some better, and if nothing else develops, she can be brought home from Mineral Wells in the next ten days or two weeks.

Charm and Ability Handicap to Asquith

Lord Castelrose, writing on the death of Lord Asquith, dealt with the erudition of the Asquith family and said: "I could give you many examples of this. Years before the newspapers started their general knowledge questions Mr. Anthony Asquith invented a game of plying his father with strange and outlandish queries, and yet so great was Lord Oxford's erudition that I can hardly remember him falling over a fair question. I once heard Mr. Anthony Asquith persuade his father to recite backwards the Derby winners for the last 32 years, which he did accurately; to describe the duties of an official of the college of heralds; and also to give a brief description of a minor character in Max Beerbohm's "Zuleika Dobson." Elsewhere Lord Castelrose wrote: "It is true that Asquith was making a name for himself as a scholar in his youth, but unfortunately he was earning no money. One day Lord Portsmouth wrote the famous master, Reverend Doctor Jowett, and said: 'Have you got a suitable undergraduate to read with my son, Lord Lynton, during the long vacation?' Doctor Jowett replied that he had exactly the article required, in the shape of Mr. Asquith. As a tutor Mr. Asquith was a great success, but there was a drawback in having this handsome, penniless, clever young man in a household, for every single young lady in the countryside fell head-over-heels in love with him to the consternation of the matchmaking mothers. At last Doctor Jowett was communicated with again, and asked if he could not substitute a less clever, less attractive and less amusing tutor.—Pierre Van Passen, in the Atlanta Constitution.

DEMOCRATS OF NATION TO SEE REAL RODEO

HOUSTON, Texas, June 4, 1928. "Ride 'em, cowboy!" Let the effete East have its pink teas, the movie colony section of the West Coast bask in its balmy, sunken gardens and the rest of the world jog along most any old way it chooses, the Southwest, like the shoemaker, is going to stick to its last—good, old-fashioned cow chasing, broncho busting, bulldogging, steer riding, and other plain he-man stuff. And the Southwest will strut it all for the nation to see, because one of the biggest rodeo shows ever planned is now being outlined for June 26—Democratic National Convention time in Houston. Many forms of entertainment appear on the program to amuse delegates and visitors to the convention, but the rodeo show is expected to take a leading place. It is going to be a $40,000 expense event, and $10,000 in prizes will be awarded to stars of the range who will come to Houston to compete at the show. While hundreds from all sections of the country are expected to be drawn to the rodeo through the novelty of the event for them, thousands from Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana are definitely counted on to flock to the arena, for it is considered their very own event. Will Rogers, internationally famed humorist and writer, the man who put Claremore, Oklahoma on the map, will be an honorary judge. W. W. Bill Sterling, captain of the Texas Rangers, stationed at Laredo; Reece Lockett, Brenham; Lewis Jones, Christoval, who was world's champion calf and goat roper until 18 months ago when he was injured in an automobile accident, will be the official judges. World famed stunt riders and 'busters are now lining up. The complete list will soon be announced.

MAY CROP REPORT MORE OPTIMISTIC

DALLAS, June 1.—There is an optimistic tone to May crop reports for Texas, compiled by the Department of Public Relations of the Southland Life Insurance Company.

Two features of the report are especially noticeable this month; the surprising increase in prospects for grain crops in the northern part of the state, and the consistently conservative and sober attitude taken by farmers over the entire state.

Dryer and favorable weather, except in scattered communities, have increased chances for cotton considerably. While it is true that much of the cotton crop had to be replanted, this has been done and there seems to have been an unusual record of growth during May. The situation in Central and South Central Texas with reference to the cotton crop appears to be especially good. West Texas has been greatly helped by recent rains, that section having suffered up to some three weeks ago from lack of moisture.

Reports from some sections indicate that the wheat crop, some of which is now being harvested, may be better than normal instead of below normal as earlier predicted. Other grains appear to be coming along well, although there is little likelihood that the oat crop will be as good as last year.

The danger from insect infestation, as far as the cotton crop is concerned, appeared to be less than was believed a month ago.

One of the especially encouraging aspects of business conditions is that farmers, while optimistic, are being entirely conservative in their predictions and expenditures. This, of course would tend to slow business at the present time, but assures extreme prosperity in the fall, in case crops are as good as expected.

The Rio Grande Valley, both in crop prospects and business conditions is in unusually excellent shape, with the one exception of districts damaged by hail.

The writer received a card the past week from Bob Harris, local Santa Fe agent, who with the wife and baby are taking their vacation with Mrs. Harris' relatives in the state of Pennsylvania, stating that he was having a fine time. He was at that time taking in the big auto races at Indianapolis, Ind. He'll just about get run over before he returns home.

Mrs. Bill Cook underwent an operation at the Lubbock Sanitarium Tuesday morning, which was pronounced successful.

Explaining the Wind

The blowing of the wind is owing to the presence of more air at one place than at others. This causes a push from the places of more air toward those of less, and the greater this difference in quantity of air the greater the push, and the faster the winds. Now, it is difference in temperature that causes the difference in the accumulation of air; in March the difference in temperature between the southern and northern portions of the United States is greater than at any other time of the year, hence the difference in atmospheric pressure between these regions is then greatest and the resulting winds strongest. These winds are not mainly north and south, as the pressure is, but from west to east. This is owing to the effect of the rotation of the earth, in a way fully understood, but not capable of brief explanation.

Artificial Lace

There is no weaving employed in the production of artificial lace. The manufacturing is done by a machine, which consists in its essential parts of a receptacle containing a cuproammoniacal solution of cellulose, a metallic cylinder upon which is engraved the negative of the design and a coagulation vat. A rotary motion is given the cylinder, over which flows the solution, which, entering the interstices of the engraved pattern, fixes itself immediately in the coagulative liquid, out of which emerges the texture ready to be dyed and dressed. Artificial lace is both beautiful and unalterable. It will wear well and is less combustible than ordinary lace and is waterproof.

Try This for Amusement

Here is a little problem to try when you are lonesome. It is more than odd and interesting. Set down these figures—1 2 3 4 5 6 7 9, leaving out 8. Choose one of these figures and multiply it by 9. Then multiply 12345679 by the result. To your surprise the final result will be made of nothing but the first figure chosen. For example, suppose you choose figure 5. Multiplying 5 by 9 gives 45. Multiplying 12345679 by 45 gives 555555555. And no matter which figure is chosen to begin with the final result will always contain 9 duplicates.—Pathfinder Magazine.

No Splinters

Little four-year-old Tommie, with his parents, was spending the weekend at the home of his aunt and uncle. The aunt, who is an excellent cook, had prepared a number of appetizing dishes, among them a delicious pudding flavored with coconut. When the Sunday evening lunch was being served, Tommie said in a low voice to his mother: "I don't want any more of that pudding with splinters in it."

CHRYSLER-DODGE COMBINATION 3RD LARGEST IN WORLD

NEW YORK, May 30.—Merger of Dodge Brothers, Inc., with the Chrysler Corporation, through an exchange of Dodge stock for Chrysler, approved Tuesday by directors of both concerns, meeting separately, will make this combination the third largest in the automobile industry, with a total capitalization of nearly half a billion dollars at the current market value of Chrysler stock.

It is exceeded only by General Motors, the securities of which have a current market value of approximately $3,500,000,000 and the Ford company, which has only a nominal amount of capital stock outstanding but which is valued at between $1,500,000,000 and $2,000,000,000.

Wall Street understands that plans are in contemplation for the acquisition by Chrysler of other automobile units, particularly in the higher priced fields, to round out an organization comparable to General Motors.

78 PER CENT OF EVERY COMMUNITY READS NEWSPAPERS

We are "lifting" an editorial from Greater Amusements, Minneapolis. While the following editorial was written from a showman's angle, it applies to every business:

"It is a recognized fact by all experts that newspaper advertising is the most effective and most essential of all the forms of publicity that have been developed. Stunt advertising, trick exploitation and other forms of attention arresters have their places in the general scheme, if they are properly handled. But they must have for their foundation a solid, sensible newspaper advertising campaign.

"According to statistics newspapers are read by 78 per cent of every community. It is a member of the family, it has the confidence and respect of its readers. It reflects conditions. It is the absolute barometer of local conditions. Newspaper advertising is read, digested and respected.

POLITICAL SPOTLIGHTERS

Even a careless glance at the "political news" in Texas reveals that most of those whose names appear most prominently in the daily press are the same old spotlighters who are ready to stir up almost any kind of a political mess in Texas every two years if only they may be written about by the political reporters or get their newspaper contributions published in the "Public Opinion" columns. As regularly as a Texas election comes around they trot themselves around for public inspection and at times really come to think they are stirring up great political dust. During presidential years, opportunities being nearly twice as great for attracting attention, they feel like they are in a political heaven. Be patient with them. It is a delusion of a kind for which there is no restraining law in this state.—Will H. Mayes in Snyder Signal.

About Bachelor Buttons

By DEAN DOUGLAS

KITTY was making very good progress toward success in business and felt that all was well, except for one fact that stared her continuously in the face.

Kitty had fallen desperately in love with a man whom she had not even met and yet whose smiling eyes haunted even her sleeping dreams.

His was the face that appeared in all the advertisements for Bachelor's Buttons, the patent button that Kitty had put on the market and was selling in huge quantities.

The young man pictured on her buttons was so happy, so completely in harmony with the whole world merely because on his shirts, his pajamas, his trousers and his coats there were the wonderful little buttons that put all people in a good humor—simply because they were there to stay.

Kitty had gazed for hours at the handsome man with the golden mustache and heavy waving hair and the daintily trimmed Van Dyke beard and thought she had never seen anyone so disastrously good looking.

The firm who had got up the advertising pages for Bachelor's Buttons had certainly been in luck when they found the model for their pictures.

Kitty had written straight back to the town in the Middle West and secured the sole agency for the button for the Eastern territory.

And all during the months following, when her sales, begun in a small way, had arrived at most flattering heights, Kitty had kept right on admiring the young man in the photos.

The owners of the patent were nice people to deal with and had more than once complimented Kitty on the enormous sales her office was effecting.

All over her office were framed the various advertisements in which Mr. Buttons, as Kitty called him for want of knowing his real name, was pictured. She felt sometimes that all was vain in the way of success and the making of money if she was to go loveless all the days of her life.

She even went so far as to prow around some of the advertising offices with a view of picking up information as to where and how models were obtained and whether or not they were usually of the professional type.

Then one bright and shining morning Kitty had a long letter from the firm in the West who manufactured the buttons.

"Would Miss Woodrow be likely to come out and pay a visit to the firm? We feel that we should like to make the acquaintance, in a more personal way, of our Eastern representative and will gladly pay all expenses."

Kitty sat down and pondered over the letter. Certainly she would like a trip out through the West, and since she was feeling a bit fagged, she wrote back saying she would accept and would take great pleasure in meeting the firm.

When Kitty hopped off the train at Kankatoe in her well-cut costume of beige that so exquisitely matched her soft hair and threw into strong relief the bright blue of her eyes, she smiled at the big chap who seemed waiting for her and her alone.

"You are Miss Woodrow," he queried and Kitty realized that the young man meeting her had not expected—well—perhaps he had been looking for a more business-like person. "I'm John Vickers."

Kitty then smiled and held out her hand. So many letters had passed between these two that somehow the getting acquainted in person was not going to be difficult.

And much to her own disgust she realized that for the first time in two years her heart had leapt at the sight of a man. That organ had reserved all its leaps and bounds for the young man on the button advertisements. She felt truly fickle.

"You know," said Mr. Vickers, confidentially, "you were really the means of putting our firm on the map at all. We were just a little one-horse concern, trying to float the button my dad patented, when your letter came along. It's been wonderful the way you've made a go of it; I'm taking you straight to our home, if you don't mind—my mother is wanting much to entertain you."

"I am more than charmed," laughed Kitty, and when Mr. Vickers laughed and she cast a keen glance at him, she knew the whole story.

Young Vickers and her Mr. Buttons were one and the same person.

Her face must have reflected much of her inward elation for young Vickers almost gasped as he looked deep into her eyes.

"I say, I do believe you're as glad to meet us as we are you," he remarked frankly.

"As a matter of fact—perhaps I am more so. Even with that quaint little Van Dyke beard and mustache—I should like to have met you."

Vickers laughed loud and long and very boyishly and happily.

"We didn't even have the price for a regular model—at that time—so they used me and I certainly felt stung about it all."

Kitty smiled softly up at him. "You needn't have," she said, and knew now that all was really well.

lawbreaker. We have a mania for passing laws which offer loopholes for the escape of the criminal. As an example, an honest householder owns a revolver and a criminal owns a revolver. In order to prevent the criminal's using a gun, legislation is proposed which would make it unlawful to own a gun. Will such a law in any way tend to disarm the criminal?—Not that anybody has a record of.

If a criminal obeyed the law, he wouldn't be a criminal. Then why not make our legislation applicable to him, and not a dragnet affair which takes in every person who has committed no crime? In other words, punish the guilty and not the innocent. Such a policy will do more to secure law enforcement than pussy-footing around the main issue.

One of the oldest planes in use will be here, as will the very latest models. It promises to be one of the biggest air plane reviews ever staged in the United States. Still another feature will be a barbecue for the aviators. Already returns indicate at least one hundred planes.

26% more Studebaker Dealers this year than ever before

FOR nine consecutive months retail deliveries of Studebaker-built automobiles have increased over those of the corresponding months of a year previous. This is in the face of a decrease in sales for the industry as a whole.

The swing toward Studebaker is the inevitable result of adding spectacular performance to One-Profit value—and then proving the stamina and speed of the cars by severe tests under American Automobile Association supervision.

All official records for fully equipped stock cars are now held by Studebaker. Never before has one manufacturer thus swept the boards.

When such performance can be bought at Studebaker's remarkable One-Profit prices, why be content with less than a champion?

Studebaker's sensational proofs of speed and endurance come from engineering genius, quality materials, precision manufacture and rigid inspections. Because of these, any Studebaker may safely be driven 40 miles an hour the day you buy it. Motor oil need be changed but once in 2500 miles. The President, Commander and Dictator require chassis lubrication only after each 2500 miles.

Today in Studebaker and in Studebaker alone, you can buy the utmost in every phase of motoring—and behind it a name that for 76 years has meant dependable transportation. Come in, and drive a champion!

This table shows the number of Studebaker dealers in the United States today compared with totals for previous years.

A NEWSBOY PREACHER

A bright-eyed shabby little fellow was working his way thru a crowded car, offering his papers in every direction in that way that showed him well used to the business and of a temperament not easily daunted.

The car started while he was making change, and the conductor passing him laughed. "Caught this time, Joe!" he said. "You'll have to run to 14th Street."

"Don't care," laughed Joe in return. "I can sell all the way back again."

A white-haired old gentleman seemed interested in the boy and questioned him concerning his way of living and his earnings. There was a younger brother to be supported, it appeared. "Jimmy" was lame and couldn't earn much himself.

"Ah, I see that makes it hard, you could do better alone."

The shabby little figure was erect in a moment, and the denial was prompt and somewhat indignant: "No I couldn't! Jim's somebody to go home to; he's lots of help. What would be the good of havin' luck if nobody was glad? Or of gettin' things if there was nobody to divide with?"

"Fourteenth street!" called the conductor, and as the newsboy jumped out into the gathering dust, the old gentleman remarked to nobody in particular: "I've heard many a poorer sermon preached than that." —Presbyterian of the South.

It is reported that a number of frigidaire machines are to be installed in the convention hall at Houston. Good idea, and they should be started a week in advance, for we look for several of the politicians to run a hot boxes anyway.

The Herald has always been a great advocate of conservation. It has consistently advocated rather the dismantling of our old shacks around the square rather than burn them, as they can be used for hen coops, hog houses and kindling, and a fire from even them could do much damage to valuable property. It also believes in conserving other things, including work and space in the paper. Therefore it hereby advises the dailies to keep up the same headline from day to day reading: "Wardlow Attacks Moody Again Today."

Sell your old roosters and get from 25c to 50c each for them and get them out of the way, and at the same time get more eggs from the hens and a better price for them. Listen, Mr. Farmer, every time a customer breaks a bad egg, that disgusts him with eggs for a while at least, but if all your eggs are good, sound, unfertile ones, people will eat them regularly all the year for there is no better food than eggs, but people want good ones. Bring in your roosters Saturday and get rid of them. You won't need more roosters on the place until next spring.

The Amarillo News-Globe recently panned Lindbergh for the unsociable way he treated the people of Pampa and Amarillo while up there, and was in turn panned by people and other papers all over the United States. Of course Lindbergh is a national hero, and we are prone to worship at his shrine, but for sometime the Herald has read between the lines that he isn't the sort of fellow one can get chummy with or slap in the back. Some of the best citizens of Amarillo agree with the News-Globe that the hero in question treated the citizens with downright contempt while there recently. Lots of our heroes, however, were and are not personally attractive in their manners, and could never be popular on that score. Take Tunney for instance.

Some one said this week that the "fine haired" hog as pork would taste no better this winter than the common run we have in the county, which is probably true. It is said that the hams from the old Virginia scrubs and razorbacks are the sweetest in the world and are in demand of cafes in the larger cities. But, we must not consider the taste altogether, we must also take into consideration the bulk of meat and lard produced at the end of the year from a given amount of feed. The writer remembers an old uncle in Tennessee who always raised the razorback and maintained that feed was what did the trick, but it took his shoats two years to get ready to butcher. Once upon a time—as the story goes—his son, then about grown decided to buy a full blooded Poland China pig and try it out. You know young folks have to do all the experimenting; the old ones are to "sit" in their ways. Well, it just so happened that his dad had a litter of his scrubs furrowed about the same time. They were all fed together and ran together in the same hog pasture, but at killing time the Poland China outweighed any two his dad had. Hurrah for the Terry County Pig Clubs!

The general apathy of the public toward school matters was exemplified this spring when the merest handful of voters turned out at the polls when the election of trustees and school boards was called. Even when such vital matters as increasing the valuation of property or the school tax is to be voted on, thousands of citizens make no effort to exercise their franchise, though they seldom fail to find fault with the board and the ever-mounting taxes. The legislature is constantly beset with importunities to pass this, that and another law for the furtherance of education in the state, some twenty such measures being before the last session. One of the bills that was enacted into a law provided for the settlement of such matters as the creation of independent school districts and the establishment of district boundaries, to the communities involved. Obviously, it is impossible for the members of the state legislature to determine with fairness and justice such local matters and it seems strange that it should ever have been done. It is clearly impractical for a bunch of men who

PRINCIPLES OF OPERATION

We believe that a bank should not only be a depository of funds, but indeed a haven where the rich and poor alike can confide their financial troubles, fears and doubts into the attentive ear of their mutual friend and counsellor the BANKER. The bank, the foundation of all saving, should be solid like the granite, standing the acid test of time, pursuing a conservative but friendly course.

This bank like the great Oak from a little acorn, of persistent effort and sound business principles has grown. It stands today like the Oak, it many services and ample resources like the limbs, cast their shadow of protection over those whoseek its shelter, a mecca which invites the confidence and patronage of the public know nothing whatever of local conditions to decide upon contested cases and a great amount of the time of each session is taken up in hearing petitions and countre-petitions and law suits resulting from previous decisions, as well as listening to new delegations with new demands to be settled. The immensity of Texas makes it even more difficult for a body of lawmakers at Austin to make wise decisions in such local matters and the new law will relieve them of the necessity as well as make it unnecessary to spend so much time on matters in which they cannot be adequately informed.—Southwest Plainsman.

Leap Year Privilege Has Been Legalize!

Leap year was so named by the English because by the old Julian calendar every anniversary on that year leaped over one day in the week, but how long the name has been in existence is not recorded. Likewise the origin of "ladies' privilege" on this year is lost in antiquity, although legend has it that St. Patrick inaugurated the custom.

It is said that in 1288 the following law, legalizing leap year customs, was enacted in Scotland:

"It is statut and ordanit that during the rein of hir maist blisssit Mageste, for ilk maiden ladye of bothe hylthe and lowe estait shall hae liberte to bespeke ye man she likes, albeit he refuses to talk her to be his lawful wyfe, he shall be nuled in ye sum ane pundis or less, as his estait may be; except and awis if he can make it appear that he is herthrit and fithir woman he than shall be free."

When the Illustrated Almanac quoted this statute in 1865, however, its authenticity was questioned. It was said no such law appeared on the statute books of Scotland, nor were there records of any such fines. France once had a law on behalf of the female leap year wooers, and the custom was legalized in Genoa and Florence in the Fifteenth century.—Detroit News.

and say, "How do you perspire?" or ask you if you have eaten your rice, don't be offended. These are the words by which the Egyptians and Chinese say "How do you do?" when they meet in acquaintance.
All races have their own peculiar forms of salutation. On Islands near the Philippines natives grasp the foot of the person they wish to greet and gently rub their faces with it. South Sea Islanders rub noses and exchange gifts, while the Moors kiss each other's shoulders.
"How is your strength?" was the greeting in ancient Rome, where every man was a warrior. The Greeks, with other things than war on their minds, said, "What business are you engaged in?"
The Frenchman's "I am charmed and enchanted to meet monsieur" is difficult to improve upon. "How do you find yourself?" is the German's greeting, and when a guest rises from table they express the hope that he has had a hearty meal and that he will find himself the better for the cheer of the repast.

To Burn Wood Slowly
When wood is impregnated with an iron salt it will carry fire more readily, but will not break into flame—that is, it acts more nearly like punk in that it continues to glow for long periods of time. There is also a possibility that the impregnation of wood with a solution of sodium nitrate might be helpful, although in this case the wood would be more apt to cinder than to break into flame.

Defining Sanitary
The word sanitary was among the list of words being discussed in a local schoolroom. Robert, whose father has a thriving dairy business, was eager to express himself. "We will have Robert tell us the meaning of this word," said the teacher. "I know all about sanitary," said the alert eight-year-old. "It means clean milk."

Vol. 1 June, 1928 No. 9

Published in the interests of the people of Brownfield by Cicero Smith Lbr. Co. Ben Hurst, Editor.

Before you go away on your vacation this summer ask J. E. Shelton down at the chamber of commerce for some Terry county & Brownfield literature.

A building built of good lumber is a permanent asset. We know of some buildings back east that have stood for more than a century and giving good service. Out here if kept painted should stand much longer. We buy the best quality of building materials and that is why you would have to pay for inferior materials.

Nothing pays better dividends than to own your own home. A rent receipt adds nothing to your permanent capital, but if you own your own home you pay rent to yourself, besides having the satisfaction of owning your own home and which you can beautify according to your own good taste.

We wonder why it is that we have to have paint up and clean up campaigns when everybody recognizes the importance of such things at all times. The best way to start such a campaign in your neighborhood you should figure with us in planning your improvements. The best is always the cheapest, but sometimes you get the best at the price neighborhood and make it a most desirable residential district, is to paint your house and out buildings, plant trees and flowers, put your lawn to grass and your neighbor will contrast the beauty of your place with the dullness of his own and will soon try to do you in making your street a place of beauty, and before long enterprising prospectors will be trying to buy both of you out at a much higher price than he would have to pay in another district. Start the good work by calling around for one of our color charts, and we will deliver the best paint sold right to your door.

MEADOW BRIEFS

By Aesculapias.

Yes, it has rained and then some, winding up Sunday afternoon with a hail storm that has ruined a large area of crops, orchards and gardens.

The storm came from the northwest and was about four miles in width. The center of the area was not damaged as badly as the two sides. Farmers are busy getting ready to replant and seed is very much in demand.

Everything was looking very promising, cotton was looking good and feed crops were up in places when some malevolent spirit, whom we had failed to propitiate, vented his spleen on our crops. The fellow that can feel that all things happen for the best in such visitations as this, has my admiration. But I have always imagined there was something the matter with their heads.

The following have gone to Lubbock for the summer school at Tech and high school: Prof. Tiner and wife at Tech. Misses Vivian Turpin, Mary Francis Timmons, Effie May Moorhead, and Thelma Avary. Also Homer Causseaux. There may be others.

The activities of the County Agent is bearing fruit. Quite a lot of our boys are going to Brownfield to get them a pig. In other ways also we are beginning to get some results from his efforts. Our people should give him their undivided support and he will be of immense benefit to the county.

There were a number who went to Lubbock to hear Alvin Owsley speak and came away praising his effort. Owsley has been very outspoken in his views on public questions, even championing the candidacy of Al Smith, which will lose him some votes.

It makes one a little tired to hear some of the would be leaders talk of nullification, when the entire South have nullified the Fourteenth Amendment since its passage shortly after the War. It was obnoxious to the people of the south and still is and they put forward every effort to defeat its intent, and they will continue to do it. Just so with the Eighteenth Amendment, it is very obnoxious to a large body of our citizens and they have no less hesitation in violating the act than they had in putting one over the negro. Laws that interfere with the habits and customs of people have never been obeyed and although it turns a majority of the population into criminals—the Eighteenth has done that—it will not be respected for a generation if ever.

Mrs. Hardin died here Monday night at eleven thirty o'clock at the home of her son, Perry Hardin. She came here about one month ago from Big Spring for the benefit of her health which had been bad for a number of years. She came here to live in 1920 with her husband and after four years left and made her home at Sweetwater, where she lived until the death of her husband.

She was sixty-two years of age and was the mother of nine children, five boys and four girls. All of whom survive her. Death came to her as a sweet messenger, for she had suffered long with no prospect of getting well. She was a splendid lady, of the old school and her children and friends will miss her.

She will be buried at Sweetwater beside her husband.

When Dorothy Found True Love

By DUFORD JENNE

AS DOROTHY hesitated at the door of the boarding house, dreading to go out into the wild, wintry night, a sturdy figure stepped in, and she recognized Chester Irwin, one of the favored roomers.

"Where under the sun are you going on a night like this, Dorothy?" he asked quickly.

From the moment she had met him, only a week before, his easy manner of comradeship had won her; and now his first use of "Dorothy" gave her a little thrill. But she covered it with—

"I am going to earn my bread and butter, kind sir."

"Well, you ought to be in here where it is safe and snug," he urged.

As she tramped down the avenue through the snow, facing the keen wind, the friendly tones of his rich, manly voice followed her and comforted her. Between her hard study at the Conservatory of Music, her limited funds, her night work to which she was going, and the chance that she might not win the scholarship for which she was trying, she had a chance to worry.

"Buck up, honey," she advised herself. "It's dogged as does it."

She turned into the lobby of the cheap, avenue movie palace. There she was to play the tin-panny piano through the evening performance.

It was a tired girl who dragged her weary feet back through the heavy snow to the boarding house. And there Irwin met her.

"I have had Mrs. McCarty keep a hot lunch for you in the kitchen, little Miss Snowbird—so down to the kitchen you go," he announced.

She stood silent, forcing back the tears. "Don't be too good to me, I—I don't deserve it!"

She knew in an instant that some keen sense of sympathy he possessed had warned him what her mood was; so his words were bantering:

"The good are never rewarded according to their deserts, so I am told; but Mrs. McCarty will have my scalp and yours if you don't eat it!"

He did not follow her to the kitchen. Instead, he went with a joking good-night word.

The next day, her cup of bitterness was filled to the brim. When she woke, she knew she had caught a cold that promised to be a real one. Then came her fear of one disastrous result. The owner of the "movie palace," while fair enough, had his problems; and he told her that she must be on hand—if she missed one evening, she was done.

"I simply must go—I must!" she told herself in something of a panic.

Motherly old Mrs. McCarty tried to "doctor her up," and urged her to give up the thought of going to the "palace." But Dorothy knew what the money she received meant to her. Then the mail brought a long official envelope and a letter that told her the scholarship had been otherwise disposed of.

In the seclusion of her room, she fought the battle through, but it was a sick girl who bundled herself up and went to the door, to be caught by strong hands. She turned to look into Irwin's face.

"You're not going out tonight, little girl," he said, and his voice was firm. "But I—I have to play—Ches—Chester!"

"I'll play at the palace for you," he announced.

She went back to her room with a thrill running through her—he had held her just a moment in his arms as he removed her coat.

In her room she found one of the girls with a newspaper turned to the musical page. "Dora, if that isn't Chester Irwin—who is it? I'm sure of it!"

Dorothy stared at the face. "There is no doubt of it, Ruth. It is—I wonder—why he's a concert pianist—and see what they say of him!"

She drew back, her mind in a whirl. What was he doing here—or could it be a mistake—and what had his kindness to her meant?

She found out later. Her heart began to pound as he mounted the stairs, and she heard him pause.

"Well, you've lost your job, Dorothy. I've got it. Come out a moment," he suggested.

She stepped out, and seeing her, his eyes grew serious. "You look as if—what is it?" His eyes caught the newspaper still clutched in her hands, and she saw that his swift mind had sensed some connection between it and her mood.

She held out the paper, and he saw the picture.

He folded the paper, returned it, then looked up and down the stairs. "I was going to tell you, tonight, who I was, because I came here to get away from my work and rest. I am going tomorrow, and I am going to take you with me."

She swayed slightly.

"You were a good little girl when I told you to stay in tonight; are you going to be good about this?"

How could she speak with tears staying all speech?

With his wise understanding, he did not wait, but gathered her in his arms; and as she felt their strength about her she knew she was safe now from cold and wind, from weariness and struggle, doubt and question, in the circle of his love.

"Lvoof"

There is one thing harder to understand in Lwo than the Hebrew, Polish, German, Italian and Russian heard on its streets—the pronunciation of the city's name. Most of us would pronounce the "L" and follow it up by a well emphasized "woof." But the Poles will tell you to press your tongue to the roof of your mouth and say "L" as we do, then forcefully biting the lower lip with the upper teeth, to say "lvoof" (Lvoof).

World's Best Literature

A party of men were playing poker in the vast library of the pretentious new home of a movie director in Hollywood, when one of the players asked to be left out for a few rounds.

"What's the matter?" the host asked anxiously.

"Oh, maybe it will change my luck if I stay out a few hands," said the guest, and added: "I'll just go around and cut the leaves of some of your books here."—The New Yorker.

The weasel, whose white winter coat forms the ermine of commerce, is found in various forms from the Arctic to the Tropics, says Nature Magazine. It would seem as if nature had in mind a machine for keeping in check the hordes of mice and other rodents that without some restraining agency would devastate the earth, for the weasel has been evolved in a variety of sizes, the smallest of which traverse with ease the burrows of the lesser mice, while the largest, approach in size the mink and marten, and prey on larger species.

RULES TO PREVENT FIRE

Fire Chief Scott, of Los Angeles, enumerates ten rules for fire prevention which should be followed by every citizen. Their observance would contribute greatly to reducing fire losses to a minimum:

1. Remove all dry grass and weeds from around barns, garages, fences, etc. Never build bonfires on windy days.
2. Burn all oily rags. Do not leave them lying around, as there is danger of spontaneous combustion.
3. Remove and dispose of all rubbish and other waste material from the premises.
4. Provide yourself with an approved type of incinerator. That is the only safe way to burn rubbish and other waste materials.
5. Chimneys should be cleaned and examined once each year, especially in using coal or briquettes. Many fires each year are caused by defective chimneys and by sparks flying on shingle roofs.
6. Do not use gasoline to clean garments or gloves in the house. Do that kind of work in the open air away from the fire.
7. Keep an approved fire extinguisher in the house for emergency use. It is better to be safe than sorry.
8. Do not use flexible gas hose to connect gas heaters or stoves. Use solid pipe connections only.
9. Cooperate with the fire department by making your building safe against fire; by removing the cause of fire.
10. Keep in mind the location of the nearest fire-alarm box and memorize the telephone number of the fire department.

GOOD ROADS MAKE THE WORLD KIN

Paved city streets and improved highways leading to the city, affect the growth and prosperity of the community in many ways.

In the first place, cost of upkeep of an unimproved street or highway is much greater than if the thoroughfare were paved.

The entire surface of a paved street is usable; that is, there are not two lines or ruts which the traffic follows, as on a dirt or gravel road. Therefore, paving increases the capacity of streets and highways.

Paving enhances property values and acts as an inducement for home owners to improve the appearance of their grounds and houses, making that street a more pleasant place to live on.

Paved streets make a city more desirable from an industrial standpoint, for a factory or any business which requires hauling will naturally pick a town where hauling can be done most speedily and economically.

We are no longer living in the days of the old walled cities. Good roads, good streets and rapid locomotion have annihilated time and distance and virtually made the whole world kin.

W. C. Smith and family left this week for Glendale, Ariz., where they will visit their son, Mumford and family for a few weeks.

L. H. Plain and family, of Lubbock, were down Sunday visiting with his brother-in-law, Chester Gore and family.

K. W. Howell says the court and jury last week did not give the man who was adjudged insane half a chance. He maintains that the court should have put him out on the golf links with T. I. Brown and Clyde Lewis for a few days and tried the virtue of golf on him a few days before railroadng him off down to Wichita Falls, and at the same time saved the county and state some expenses.

Noah Bell reports that the big rain Friday night at his place on the north line of the county was about the same as fell here.

RURAL CARRIER MEET GOES TO BROWNFIELD

FLOYDADA, Texas, May 31.—Seventy-five rural letter carriers and their wives of the Eighteenth Congressional District attended the annual meeting of the District Rural Letter Carriers' Association held in Floydada Wednesday. By a majority of two votes Brownfield was selected over Amarillo as the 1930 meeting place.

Marvin Jones, Congressman, addressed the meeting in the afternoon. Other prominent speakers included State Secretary W. L. Fletcher of Hamlin and Postoffice Inspector Marshall of Beaumont.

Foster Carroll of Slaton was re-elected president; L. A. Nickols of O'Donnell, vice president, and W. O. Cobb of Paducah, secretary. A. B. Clements of Kirkland will represent the organization at the State convention. The welcome address was delivered by A. J. Folley, Floydada attorney, and responded to by Foster Carroll of Slaton. G. W. Burkett of Silverton made an address on the life of a rural carrier.

The visitors were entertained by the Floydada Chamber of Commerce at the Country Club with a luncheon at noon. This was the largest attended meeting in the history of the organization.

Mother Got the Wires Crossed

By JOHN LANE

DOROTHY LONGLY was not quite sure whether she would devote her life to missionary work in the Far East or marry a millionaire. Both propositions appealed to her. As to the millionaire side of the question she could not make up her mind whether she wanted a young millionaire or an old one. Each had points to be considered.

Dorothy was just out of Vassar, you see, and rather imaginative. Her parents took her for a trip to Europe and that took some of the non-sense out of her pretty little head—but not all of it. She discarded the idea of the cannibal islands entirely and changed her intended millionaire husband into a titled one.

There were plenty of titles for sale and some of them Dorothy liked very much; but whenever she picked out an especially pleasing title there was always a person who went with it whom she did not like at all. Her parents, being rather worldly people, did not object to a noble son-in-law—provided he did not come too high.

So Dorothy just flattered about. And then she met Christopher Granger. Being neither a nobleman, a millionaire nor a cannibal, Chris was rather out of Dorothy's line. Perhaps that was why he interested her so much—he was so different from anything she had dreamed of for a husband.

To tell the truth Chris was merely a drummer, a commercial traveler, an ambassador of trade, and was over in Europe to sell a patent gas engine. He was a well connected young man and had letters of introduction to really "superior" people which obtained him an invitation to dinner at the Villa Pompano-Bruno, then occupied by an American family. That was where he met Dorothy who was also a dinner guest.

After dinner they sat out on the terrace and gazed at the lights of Rome shining below them—and he talked gas engine to her. Think of it, gas engines—and Dorothy was so romantic! But she took to gas engines avidly, asked a hundred intelligent questions about the mechanism of the contraption and made several valuable suggestions regarding putting it on the European market. It was not for nothing that Dorothy's father was the owner of the biggest machine shops in the States and had worked his way up from a mechanic to his present affluent condition. Mechanics ran in the blood.

Christopher saw much of Dorothy after that, calling at her hotel and meeting her occasionally at social functions. Mother and Father Longly frowned; but Dorothy was a spoiled child, had always had her own way and expected to have it. Mother Longly wrote back home and had Christopher looked up.

A real "honest to goodness" first-class marquis who kept his automobile and was of irreproachable character had been hovering about Dorothy, and Mother Longly had come to the conclusion that it would be delightful to say "my daughter the Marchioness" or "my son the Marquis." She got a letter answering her queries in due season which filled her with delight. Christopher Granger was married and had a wife and family living in South Hebronville, Mass.

Dorothy bit her lip but said nothing when her mother showed her the letter. That night when the marquis called, Dorothy was especially gracious to him, so gracious, in fact, that he proposed and Dorothy agreed to take the matter under advisement.

The next night she and Chris met—met at that same villa on the hill overlooking Rome where they had met first, and sat out upon the terrace where they had had their first conversation.

"I suppose you will be returning home before long," said Dorothy—and somehow she managed to put a surprising amount of frigidity into that commonplace remark. Christopher looked at her, wondering at her tone. "Why, no," said he, "I expect to stay over here six months at least."

"Won't your wife and children miss you?" said Dorothy. "With such a happy home as you have I should think you would want to get back to it."

"Wife and children?" exclaimed Christopher. "Who has been spoofing you?"

"Oh, I know all about it," replied Dorothy. "Of course, it's none of my business—but do you think it is quite right for a married man to go about posing as a single man?"

"I was not aware that I had posed, as you call it, at all," said Christopher angrily, "and as to my being married I was never married in my life."

"What?" cried Dorothy, "have you not a wife and family living in South Hebronville, Mass.?"

"No, I have not," returned Christopher. "I have a cousin of the same name as myself who lives in South Hebronville—and he is married and has a family. But what does all this mean?"

"I guess it means that mother, when she investigated you, got the wires crossed," replied Dorothy.

"Oh, so that's it," laughed Chris. "Well, I am not married—but I would like to be."

"To whom?" asked Dorothy. "To you," replied Chris. And two months later he was.

BUT DIVERSIFICATION WILL ANSWER IT

"The cosmopolitan Texan gets up by the alarm of a Connecticut clock, button his Chicago suspenders to Detroit overalls, washes his face with Cincinnati soap, sits down to a Grand Rapids table, eats Chicago meat and Minneapolis flour cooked on a Sears & Roebuck stove. He goes to the barn and puts a New York bridle on a Missouri mule fed with Colorado alfalfa, plows the farm covered with Baltimore fertilizer with an Illinois plow—when bed time comes he reads a chapter from the Bible printed in Boston, says a prayer written in Jerusalem, crawls under a New Jersey blanket, only to be awakened by a Texas dog the only home product on the place) and then wonders why in the hell he can't make money raising cotton." Excerpt from speech of D. O. Crawford, secretary-mgr., Mill Co. C. of C. at 'Heart of Texas' Convention.—West Texas Today.

CURED!

He had just hung out his shingle. That morning a stranger entered. The doctor asked to be excused as he hurried to the phone.

Taking down the receiver he said: "Yes, this is Dr. Whoosit. Yes, I will be ready for you at 2:10 this afternoon. But please be prompt, for I am very busy. Two hundred dollars? Yes, that was the estimate I gave you."

Hanging up the receiver he turned to the stranger, and, rubbing his hands, asked: "Now, sir, what can I do for you?"

"Nothing," replied the stranger, quietly. "I only came in to connect the telephone."—Missouri Pacific Lines Magazine.

NICE PEOPLE

Liza—Are you satisfied with new employers?"

Jane—"Oh, yes! They are very refined people. I started to work there this morning and they only grumbled five times during the morning."

STRANGE!

"What caused your husband to leave home?"

"I haven't the least idea. He just picked up and left the morning after my mother and two sisters came to spend the winter with us."

Mrs. Myrl Hill has taken the American Cafe back, and can be found at her usual place again. Her brother Roland Brown, is now cooking for her, and that means good grub is found there.

Mr. Herndon, cattleman and farmer of Clovis, and Miss Dollie Miller, of Tahoka, were Brownfield visitors Monday night.

The Daughter of His Enemy

By H. LOUIS RAYBOLD

JOHN SHERMAN had great plans for his son Philip, but they did not include marriage in the near future.

"It's all very well, my boy, to play around with the girls in a friendly sort of way, but avoid any entangling alliances for the present."

Therefore the bit of news he had just read was a thunderbolt for which he was unprepared.

"Mrs. Lesbia Blodgett of 54 Mansfield street announces the engagement of her daughter Gloria to Philip Sherman of West Park road. Miss Blodgett is a scintillating member of 'Whose Sweetie Are You?'"

Perhaps it is best to allow Philip's father a few minutes to get control of himself and to shift the scene, meanwhile, from his private office to the outer room where Philip, all unconscious of the irate summons about to be his, lingers beside the desk of the firm's most capable stenographer, Eloise Smith.

Fate had been partial to Eloise, making her as pretty as she was capable.

Her slender fingers continued to fly nimbly over the keys of her typewriter as she firmly refused what Philip was asking of her.

"No, Philip, I will not lunch with you. Run along now and sell your bonds or whatever it is you do to make yourself invaluable to your father."

"Have a heart, Eloise—"

"Philip, you know as well as I do that my job here would be worth exactly nothing at all if your father ever learned that I was the daughter of his old enemy. I will not philander with his son. And that's—"

At this moment the door of the inner office was flung open by an unseen hand within. "Philip!"

Both heads turned at the note in John Sherman's voice.

"Yes, sir!" Then the door closed upon both of them.

Eloise frowned. Was it possible her employer had found out that the daughter of the man he had once hated, now dead, was drawing a salary as one of his stenographers?

But, within, the older man was thrusting the newspaper under his son's eyes and pointing out the offending item with a finger that shook.

"Who is she?" demanded his father.

"She's the third girl from the end in the front row with the pink hat," said Philip.

John Sherman's rage became apoplectic. "Now, don't get o' any gag about her being poor but honest."

"Oh, she's poor, all right!" said Philip.

"What d'ye mean?"

"Oh, forget it, dad!" said Philip wearily. "After all, it's your fault. You told me to play around with the girls but not to marry them. Well, some girls don't want to be played around with. There was a girl—only she happened to be the daughter of your old rival, W. B. Smith. I knew you wouldn't stand for her—"

"Who said I wouldn't stand for her? Don't you suppose I'd prefer you to marry W. B. Smith's daughter a hundred times rather than this—this—"

"Gloria's all right," said Philip, "and her father's a respectable merchant. Sells fish—and clams."

"Get out of here!" shouted his father.

Ten minutes later Philip had left the building and had found the nearest telephone booth.

"I say, Gloria," he was demanding presently, "have you seen the newspaper? What's the big idea?"

A hearty laugh came over the wire. "My wicked publicity man," she said. "I told him, like I told you yesterday, that I was engaged. Only you know it was to Jimmy Marvin. But this fellow, my not mentioning any names, thought it was you, or more likely he thought there'd be good advertising for me by using your name. He's a bird. But don't worry, old dear. It's being corrected in tomorrow morning's paper."

Another mad dash and Philip was back in the outer office. "Eloise," he said, rather out of breath, "you must go to lunch with me. I want to ask you to marry me and you'll admit a stuffy office is no place for a proposal."

"What would your father say?"

"That's all right," said Philip easily. "He as good as gave his consent twenty minutes ago!"

Philip strode to the door of his father's office and flung it open. "I say, dad, here I am back again, and didn't you tell me you'd a hundred times rather I married Eloise here than some other people I won't mention?"

But Eloise had risen and was standing with her hand at her throat. "Please!" she begged.

John Sherman had risen also, and his glance had been none too kind. Now, falling on the girl, it softened.

"You're a great deal too good for my crazy son," he said. "W. B. Smith may have been my enemy years ago, but he was a man of character and his daughter would be like him. Oh, yes, ever since you came here, looking at one with your father's eyes, I have known who you were. For Heaven's sake, if you can make a man out of Philip, you're welcome to try!"

Eloise and Philip looked at one another. Then, "I've got a thing or two to explain to dad as well as you," he said. "Afterwards, may I take you to lunch?"

SOAP AND WATER WON'T HURT SKIN

Skin specialists are inclined to look on with amused toleration at the complexity of oily substances with which the modern woman arranges her dressing table for the purpose of improving her skin. Most of them are unable to conceive of any logical reason why the skin should not be washed at least twice a day, using water, a considerable amount of vigor and a mild soap.

Dr. W. J. McDonald is convinced that the skin of the average man is superior to that of the average woman. He connects this observation with the fact that most men shave daily, using soap and hot water, and that they rarely use cold cream for cleansing the skin.

MAYONNAISE

1/2 teaspoon mustard
1/2 teaspoon sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
Dash of paprika
Yolk of 1 egg
2 tablepoons lemon juice
3-4 cup oil.
Sift dry ingredients; add egg-yolk and one-half teaspoon lemon juice. While beating constantly, add one tablepoon oil drop by drop; then add oil in a fine steady stream, continuing the beating, and thinning occasionally with lemon juice until all of the oil and lemon juice are used.

TECH TO ISSUE HOME ECONOMICS CERTIFICATES

LUBBOCK, Texas, June 4.—Authority has just been given Texas Technological College to recommend the issuance of certificates in vocational home economics under the Smith-Hughes law, according to Miss Margaret W. Weeks, dean of the home economics school. Under this act two certificates are issued, one to students who have finished two years of prescribed work in this department and the other to graduates.

Three other schools in Texas are authorized to make recommendations for the issuance of these certificates: University of Texas, San Marcos Normal, and College of Industrial Arts at Denton. The recognition of the home economics work being done in Texas Technological College under the Smith-Hughes law is a matter of general interest as there has not been any school in the west half of the State where students could secure these certificates.

Prof. O. W. Fagala, wife and children left this week for Lorenzo, where he has been elected superintendent of the schools for the coming term. Mr. Fagala has had charge of the Brownfield schools for the past five years.

Miss Violet Berryhill of Big Spring is here visiting her friend, Miss Lola Bell Johnson. These young ladies both taught in the Big Spring schools the past term.

Mrs. Charley Steel, of Thornton, Texas, is here visiting her sister, Mrs. D. D. Johnson. She was accompanied by her little daughter, Elizabeth.

R. E. Coleback, of Wellman, was carried to the Lubbock Sanitarium last Friday afternoon where he underwent an operation for appendicitis Saturday morning.

Rev. and Mrs. D. D. Johnson and family, were Lubbock visitors Tuesday of this week.

Miss Lucille Flache had her appendix removed at the Lubbock Sanitarium last Thursday and is getting along fine, probably will be able to return home by Saturday if no other complications set up.

Miss Margaret Bell, and Mesdames Ivy Savage and Leo Holmes left on Monday for Tech College where they will attend summer school.

BAPTIZING STOPPED

The following classified advertisement which has been appearing in a West Texas newspaper of late. As the Times-Signal sees it, it's "one for the book."

"Positively no more baptizing in my pasture. Twice in the last week my gate has been left open by Christian people, and I can't afford to chase cattle over three counties just to save a few souls."—Snyder Signal.

TECH TO ASK FOR THREE MAJOR BUILDINGS

LUBBOCK, Texas, June 5.—The next legislature will be asked for money for three major building projects at Texas Technological College according to the program of President Paul W. Horn which has had the official approval of the board of regents. Money will be asked for the completion of the administration building, and a library building and dairy products building.

Included in the program of enlargement is additional equipment for the engineering and chemistry building, sidewalks and street paving, more barns, sheds and fences for the school of agriculture, another well, an addition to the heating plant, and a quantity of trees and shrubbery for the campus.

Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Williams of Glendale, Ariz., came in this week for a visit to old friends.

Miss Mary Ann Bell is visiting her grandmother and other relatives at Marshall, Texas for a few weeks.
