ALBERT B. FALL MUST SERVE OUT PRISON TERM

The U. S. parole board this week refused to recommend clemency for Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior and now serving a sentence of the year in the penitentiary at Albuquerque for accepting a bribe...

One of the principal reasons advanced for Fall's release was the contention that the other parties who were charged with him had never been punished and that it is a grave injustice to punish him while permitting the others to go free.

Those who were associated with Mr. Fall seem to be the most bitter against him. Among this number is President Hoover himself. The president recently made an address at the dedication of President Harding's monument in which he bitterly attacked those who betrayed Mr. Harding's trust...

But Fall made the mistake of getting caught and so must suffer the punishment. When one of a pack of wolves is wounded, the remainder of the pack are the first to turn upon their unfortunate number.

THE NEW YEAR

By J. D. Templeton (From Quests and Conquests) I am the New Year, and I come to you pure and unstained. Fresh from the hand of God. Each day, a precious pearl to you is given.

That you must string upon the silver thread of life. Once strung can never be unthreaded but stays An undying record of your faith and skill. Each golden minute link you then must weld into the chain of hours. That is no stronger than its weakest link.

Into your hands is given all the wealth and Power. To make your life just what you will. I give to you, free and unstinted, twelve glorious months. Of soothing rain and sunshine golden The days for work and rest, the nights for peaceful slumber. All that I have I give with love unspoken. All that I ask—you keep the faith unbroken.

COTTON AND THE NEW YEAR

The best thing possible for the cotton business of the south would be for the farmers not to plant a stalk of it in the year of Our Lord 1932. There is now a hold-over of 12,000,000 bales in sight, which is ample to take care of the needs of the world until the 1933 harvest.

However, the machinery of the south is harnessed to cotton and undoubtedly cotton will be the chief cash crop planted in Texas and other states when spring arrives. No one can figure out how with the set-up we have we can get along without including quite a bit of cotton acreage in the 1932 plans. However, if every Floyd County farmer will keep in mind that every acre he plants will be adding just that much to the surplus of the world supply, perhaps he will be inclined to hold his acres down just as low as possible, under the circumstances.

"How many acres of cheap cotton—surplus above the world's need—will I plant this year?" ought to be the question that every Texas farmer asks himself this spring.—Floyd County Hesperian.

"If the person who stole the jar of alcohol out of my basement will stop same and return Grandma's appendix, no questions will be asked."—The Chaser.

The shoe dealers of Texas and Oklahoma forgot about shoes for a while at their convention in Dallas last week, and attended a big show at the Livestock arena, staged especially for their benefit by E. F. Anderson, manager of the Dallas Wholesale Merchants association.

FEDERAL WAGE CUT PREDICTED

Washington, Jan. 21.—Opinion in congress is being marshaled in favor of a reduction in federal employees' salaries, with the belief rather general that the cuts will be voted. A showdown is expected before many more appropriation bills are approved.

Opposition to the reductions proposed is loud and insistent, but the example of big business in wage and salary cuts is being cited, along with the precarious condition of the treasury, as sufficient reason for U. S. workers to give up part of their pay.

If salaries are reduced it will be with President Hoover's approval, and his acquiescence would destroy the last shred of his policy for wage maintenance which was the keystone of the White House's first plan to overcome the depression.

It was reported today that some definite statement from Hoover on whether he would permit salary reductions for federal workers, and, if so, how far he would go, was being sought. Just how could not be determined.

BRUNETTES TO BE FASHION IN 1932

Baldness Threatened by Platinum Blond Craze.

Nineteen-thirty-two will be a brunette year with black hair preferred, hairdressers predict.

"The platinum blond craze, were it to continue for another year, would create a race of bald women," one asserts.

For those women who have dyed their chestnut or raven locks extremely blond there is only one sure way to avoid the telltale widening band of dark hair as the hair grows out.

The hair must be bobbed quite short and a transformation of the desired color used until their own crowning glory, growing longer, edges out the last traces of its blond bleach.

There is a decided swing backward to femininity in all the fashion forecasts for the new year and the hair styles must follow suit.

The back hair will be longer, long enough to curl softly over the edge of the new hats. The new wave will have a continuity that makes the head attractive from any angle and may start at the side front and progress in a gently rising line around the head to the other side.

LET YOUTH RUN WORLD ADVERTISING MAN URGES

Chicago, Feb.—Old men made the World War, and it was a failure. Old men made its peace, and every day proves it, too, a failure. Things are now in a middle and need the frank thinking of young men to set the world-house in order.

That, in a few words is the opinion of Ernest Elmo Calkins, dean of American advertising men, as expressed in an article in the current issue of "The Rotarian."

"Today," Mr. Calkins writes, "all business including the business of government needs the courage, honesty, and energy of youth far more than it needs the caution, experience, and conservatism of age. Civilization is in flux, ready to be refashioned into a better pattern. It is the age of youth, which all ages really have been, had youth but known before. With the average age of the population of the United States 25.2 years, old age looks backward; while youth has nowhere to look but forward. It is its world. It will live longest in it."

A potent factor in the disillusionment of youth was the World War, Mr. Calkins points out. "This was made by those older and wiser heads for their own selfish economic ends, and youth paid the price as youth always does. Young men are no longer dazzled by the trapping of war, nor do they enjoy strutting around in uniforms of mimic soldiers."

"Every day we read the announcement that some young man in his thirties, or even his twenties, has been made head of some public utility, or business corporation, or educational institution. This does not mean that age has asked help from youth. It means that youth has made a non-stop flight like Lingbergh straight for its goal. Youth has simply taken the bit in its teeth and bolted. It is beginning to do its own thinking—and the results is that a tremendous amount of creative energy has been released for better or for worse."

A lot of people work hardest when they come home from their jobs.

In 1908, Mrs. Clara Driscoll Severer made a state-wide campaign for funds to buy the Alamo, historic place of the last stand of William B. Travis against Santa Anna. She obtained part of the funds, and donated the necessary $65,000 herself. Recently, to keep private enterprise from building business houses on the land adjoining the Alamo, Mrs. Severer added another $65,000 to $150,000 appropriated by the state for purchase of the park site next to the building. Mrs. Severer is shown in the inset. The Alamo, with the Medical Arts building in the background, is shown.
