It has been many moons since I contributed to the columns of the Herald. Not from any ill will toward the paper or its Editor, for in fact, I have high regard for both, but length of years and other private matters has kept me in a rather disgruntled frame of mind.

Like most people the depression has left its mark on me as well as most others, but unlike a great many of our population, I don't expect the government to alter the physical or financial facts one iota. All the wealth of the world poured out in our midst would not help for one great length of time the mental and physical conditions of our population.

Literally it will take time to restore the confidence of the people in the stability of government affairs and the intentions of those in authority as well as its ability to meet the situation. The government cannot feed us all nor can it provide jobs for any great number of idle people, who are floating about like a rudderless ship, waiting for the impossible.

Let every one feel and know that on his and her own efforts will depend the future of their well being. You cannot gather "figs from thistles" nor can you or I obtain money without giving an equivalent either in labor or other tangible security.

If in the good old days from 24 to 29 you like the Prodigal Son, spent your time in riotous living—especially having it charged—you have small reason to abuse any one but yourself. I do not find any wide spread effort on the part of those most in need to meet the situation by their own efforts, but content themselves by howling hard times and inability to secure profitable employment.

One indication of the dampishness of Congressmen is the the statement in Nations Business that if all the bills presented to Congress dealing with the present depression, should pass, it would amount to $30,000,000,000. More money than all the nations of the earth possess, and in the present state of mind would be swallowed up like soap suds in a sink hole. If the idle do not go to work and make some effort to feed themselves—which they can do—our people will soon join the hosts of Chinamen and the hoards of India in starving to death.

The writer in his seventy-three years on this Planet has passed through several depressions. The Confederates on returning from the war between the States faced infinitely worse conditions than now obtain. Four years of devastating war had torn the south to pieces; the flower of her manhood had perished; her farms had been laid in waste and her returning soldiers were pursued by a relentless foe who had subdued them and sought by every means foul, to place over them a military dictatorship with former ignorant slaves as their masters.

There was no effort on the part of their conquerors to replenish the empty larders, nor a Hoover to dispense food as in the World War. Aftermath to Belgium and other countries devastated by the German armies; but with a determination, that has fled from us, in these perilous times they accepted their plight and have rebuilt the South Land. Are we degenerates? I have lived on corn pone and sorghum molasses and by the eternal gods I would attempt it again before accepting a dole from the government or an association handing out charity.

Politics are warming up. Everybody that has the time to spare is out for office, or expecting to run. A few hundred dollars per annum is a powerful stimulus to many who don't fancy pulling the bell cord over old Beck or mowing the hay when the thermometer, is registering 100 F and above. The primaries and conventions are upon us and we will soon be making asses of ourselves over who will mis-govern us the next two and four years. In the State, the Fergusons are again to the fore, Sterling seems to be suffering from stage fright, while Mr. Small informs us he is ready to "shoot from the hip" if only Sterling will get out of the way. Most of us here got all we wanted of Small the last campaign. Woodard is also spoken of but I can still remember that these two birds assisted in saddling Sterling on the State. Of the three I should choose Sterling, but don't want either of them.

The Hooverites, Love and Moody are out doing what they can to destroy the Democratic Party in Texas. Moody advising all his kind to stay out of the primary. Love is somewhat chastened by his failure to scout the Pledge fixed by the Democratic Committee and promises to go just as far as his conscience will allow, meeting the demand of the committee. Let Moody and his bunch of ultra drys go on into the camp of the Republicans. When a man's honesty and integrity and fitness depends on how he thinks on the liquor problem, we are surely in a bad way. I don't know anything about either of them but feel sure the majority of the people will surely put them in private life again if they offer for office. Twelve years of universal murder and gang war, with one in every five or six families in the country in the penitentiary for violating the Prohibition Law, it is certainly time to halt and take stock, ponder if something better can't be found, for we feel sure nothing worse could possibly happen.

I am not yet willing to turn the country over to a few old matrons, however lovely, nor a few old stags who have been repeatedly repudiated, because they have only their Dry Proclivities as recommendation for fitness.

Lets get back to fundamentals. I am a follower of and a believer in that convivial spirit—not the man of sadness that some would name Him—who did not think it derogatory to provide on a certain occasion for those who were making merry. Aesculapius.

We will be obliged from this on to charge the old price $1.75 for the Herald and Farm News one year, as the extremely low rate of $1.50 has been withdrawn. Be glad to take your order at this rate, however. It is worth it, you save 25c and don't have to bother with doing the ordering.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Ellis, of Rising Star, were here this week to attend the funeral of Mrs. Ellis' uncle, Mr. J. L. Randal. Mr. Ellis was in the drug business here in the early days with Mr. Randal, and Mrs. Ellis taught in the Brownfield schools here for several terms in the early days. They left here some 20 years ago.

E. L. Causeaux, prominent farmer and breeder of Meadow, was down Friday and dropped in to renew. He reports that they had a good dairy show at Plainview again this year, and that he made a good showing despite the fact that his cows were quite rundown on test this year, and were in no shape to show.

H. H. Stevenson, local radio man left this week for New York, where he will join his wife and little daughter, who have been up there for some time. We do not know whether it is his intention to return or not. We hope so, as he is one of the best radio men in this section or any other section for that matter.

Howard Swan dropped in one day last week to renew for his Herald another year.

A. C. Beard one of the old timers, was in Saturday after supplies. He handed us the dollar to keep 'er coming.
