What's The Matter With, Texas?

By S. W. Adams-Room 65, Driskill Hotel, Austin

There are three large and many small hotels in Austin. They are crowded all the time, and legislation is embarassed, harrassed and shackled by these lobbyists; yet no one is wise enough to handle them.

The man at home would understand what is the matter with Texas IF he could see the hotel processes at work. Then, too, if he could see the special interests represented here, he would understand that legislation is a mighty adjunct to corporate business. Texas legislation, in spite of the efforts of honest men in the house and senate, is used to protect the strong at the expense of the weak.

The masses have no articulate lobbyists down here—all are busy seeking special protection and special favors—and the public must pay and pay.

But, the greatest -handicap legis lation has when it undertakes to inaugurate economy, is the powerful official lobby with education leading. The capitol rats, with their cousins ramifying every section of Texas, swarm about committees, stalk members, and not only openly plead for more and more tax money, but use every known means of intimidation to get it.

The cry of the tax dodger is: property taxes have broken down, then private property will crash; for no private right, immune from taxes ever survives. That means that these men here, representing the 10 per cent who won the wealth of Texas, are crying for freedom from tax burdens, not realizing that they are hastening the day of paternal government, and then we shall have socialism, communism or facism.

The discerning eye can see down here as at Washington, that the slowly converging forces that will put government in all business which will give us a facism, regardless of what we think about it. If we want security in job at the expense of security in liberty, all we have to do to have it is to sit idly by and let these forces at work, have their way.

One wing down here says, "We are not for the sales tax, except as an expedient—we must balance the budget."

Then we retort, "You would employ the modern costbulary hijacking methods. You know the police could make more money IF they had the nerve to raid the rendesvoux of the rich, but that would be dangerous; they turn to the resorts of the poor, and make their raids. To turn from property tax and income tax to the sales tax is admitedly the course of a government afraid to match its strength with the strength of entrenched wealth-yet, should the dignity and power of the State raid the treasury of wealth, it would find thousands of dollars, whereas in the pockets of the masses it will only find pennies.

Texas legislators are crying for the masses; they are being shoved into legislation for the classes. Only the Weekly press can cry out NOW, and it must; or peonage will becom more abject, and our nation will cease to be the charm of the free and the home of the brave.

-By J. E. Shelton, Secretary

It is expected that the Feed & Seed Loan will be ready to accept applications within a day or two after March 1st, but there is nothing certain about it as there is a state meeting to be held and a district meeting for the purpose of instructing County Committees and after that will come the necessary blanks that are to be used in taking applications. No member of the committee knows anything about the new rules and the landlord may or may not have to waive his rights. It is hoped that he may not be asked to do so, but don't bank too much

There is one Government Crop Loan, for which applications are being received and on it, the landlord does not have to waive. Applications are made through the banks and the security is the same as is usually required by banks. Many people have the two loans confused. On the loan that is secured through the local banks, the interest rate is seven per cent and there is no restrictions upon the use of the money. On the farmers Seed & Feed Loan, there is restrictions, as it is not supposed to be used for any purpose, except to enable the borrower to make a crop, which he might not be able to do unless he secured the loan. The interest rate on the seed loan is five and onehalf per cent.

Dr. Treadaway Does Operation At Lamesa

Dr. T. L. Treadaway of this city was called to Lamesa one day last week to perform an operation for gall bladder on a patient at one of the sanitariums of that city who wanted him to perform the operation. We understand that the operation was entirely successful and that the patient is recovering nicely.

He was connected with the Lamesa Sanitarium before returning to Brownfield, and performed many of these serious operations while there and several here, all of which have while living there that called for his services there again.

INFLATION-A PLAN BY TOM F HUNTER

Regardless of what the claim may be there is not more than $12 or $15 per capita money in circulation. One needs but know conditions over his own state to realize the absolute necessity of money inflation. A number of bases have been suggested, some which are sound. Permit me to suggest the following:

Fisher Keeps The Dudes All Scared Away

Sam C. Arnett, President of the Citizens National Bank at Lubbock not stepped into that bank while in Lubbock recently to shake hands with tirely lost this one. Sam was one of Herring, former City attorney of the old time ranchers in Terry, being ters. Mrs. Arnett was a Louisiana lady and sure knew the route to man's heart-through his stomach.

Well, to begin the story, Sam was down a week or two ago to look over the Hearst steers that are being fed here. He was, like most cowmen taking them in at close range, going through the lanes to better view the cattle. All at once, he said, Jot Smith and another gentleman whom this writer does not know, came up with Sam and told him they had orders to "clear out." Sam says he told them that he guessed he would be ankling along too, if that was the orders.

Just as he was nearing the edge of the pens again where his car was parked, Will Fisher, who is helping to feed the steers came upon him, and asked where he was going. Got orders to get out, Sam replied. Oh! that's alright, returned Fisher. "we have to keep these Dam Dudes run out. We don't know the gentleman as stated above that was with Jot, but you that know Jot, just try to feature him as a dude if you can.

But of course Will knew Sam, well, as Mr. Arnett gave him his first job as a cowboy on the old L7. Just why Will did not recognize Jot Smith is not clear to us, as he was for years Association Cattle inspector in this section, and was generally at all roundups as well as at loading pens when cattle were being shipped. He always dressed like any other cattleman and invariably wore his ten gallon Stetson, and his more than six feet in height always made him stand out in a crowd.

Authorship of Poetic

Gem Long Kept Secret What a big niche in literature can be secured by a little poem is proved by the history of that exquisite ballad, "Auld Robin Gray," written by Lady Anne Barnard in 1771. The other half dozen or so pieces by Lady Anne are entirely negligible. For more than fifty years the authorship of "Auld Robin Gray" was a complete mystery. It was in 1823 that she revealed her secret to Sir Walter Scott.

When Lady Anne Lindsay (as she was before her marriage) -set about writing a new Scottish ballad to the tune of an old one that had "naughty words," she produced a song she never could have guessed would be celebrated for generations. In the letter to Scott in 1823 (given in "The Private Letter Book of Sir Walter Scott," edited by Wilfred Partington) in which Lady Anne confesses to the authorship of "Auld Robin Gray," she

in "Simplified English"

What is described as "a scientific and practical method of simplifying English spelling" has been worked out by a Swedish professor, who calls his system "Anglic." It is designed especially for the use of foreign students. The professor apparently has the idea that "Anglic" may become a sort of universal language, because, he explains, in the "nue speling" he has devised, that he wants to "pae" our "langgwig the hiest kompliment possibl by endevering to mack it noen. nezd, lurd, and apreeshiaeted aul over the wurld." Such a language-which all may read-has been worked out between the British railways and a Monday 20th, the Junior class number of foreign lines. It consists of goods carried by rail, which are going from one country to another. The labels show the nature of the goods and, consequently, how they have to be treated. For instance, one design shows a fish, a flower, and a bunch of grapes. This means perishable traffic which would deteriorate if not delivered quickly.

> We have, at least, put behind us some of the things which made 1932 the hardest year in recent American history, for most folks, we are closer to some of the things which promise better for the future. The election is over, for one thing: the European debt situation is at least beginning to be clarified. We seem to have reached the end of the procession of bank failures. Farm products touched new all-time low prices in 1932, not average higher in 1933.

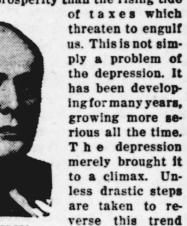

It seems to us that the coming year will necessarily be one of thorough readjustment, not alone in matters of money and trade, but in people's mental outlook. It may have been necesary for us to go through three terrible years of depression to purge our minds of the fallacious notion that the road to universal prosperity and individual wealth is an easy one. If it turns out by the end of 1933 that everybody has learned that he is entitled only to what he can get by working for it, and to be content with that, the New Year just beginning will be the greatest success ever recorded on the calendar.-State Line

THE TAX MENACE A GROWING CRISIS

By FRANCIS H. SISSON

President American Bankers Association TO danger, economic or social, more seriously menaces our life, happiness and prosperity than the rising tide the problem will not end with the depression. It will continue to weigh down and retard progress for an indefinite period.

In city, county, state and nation the orgy of spending has run on. It is estimated that in the United States the total cost of all government is nearly five times what it was before the World War. Many localities have been brought to the verge of bankruptcy by their expenditures, while many have saddled their citizens with a debt burden that will darken their lives and hamper their progress for years to

The total cost of Federal, state and local government in the United States is estimated at forty-six million dollars a day. Based on national income in 1930, this represents about one-fifth the total income of our people, or about $110 for every individual in the nation. Total taxes in 1931 are estimated to have taken more than 22 per cent of the national income. It is occasion for serious thought on the part of everyone when one day's income out of every four or five must be contributed to the maintenance of government machinery.

Reductions Possible

United States Government expenditures were reduced one hundred and forty million dollars during the first quarter of the current fiscal year. The recent action of bankers in calling a halt to unnecessary expenditures of New York City as prerequisite to loans will reduce the cost of government in the country's metropolis, which is second in its expenditures to only the Federal Government. No state in the Union, in fact, no other government and we cannot imagine that they will on this hemisphere, spends half as much as this one city. These saving in Federal and municipal costs are only the beginning of a movement needed throughout the country, if we are to be led out of depression into prosperity.

Unless the people can be made to realize that money for governmental expenditure can come only from their own pockets as taxpayers, casting depressing effects on both individual effort and general business, there is an peal the Robertson law," he says. imminent threat that we may be forced to meet economic difficulties similar to those that have so seriously handicapped other countries. The question is not primarily one of merely paring government salaries or shaving budgets, but rather of curtailing government activities for which we cannot afford to pay.

The idea that money for these mounting extravagances can be raised by following the slogan "Soak the Rich" is utterly fallacious, for such a policy will simply exterminate "the rich" and eliminate sources of revenue. It is also important to realize that corporate business in this country is in no position to withstand the effects of indefinite advances in tax rates. Current earning reports reveal that fact beyond shadow of doubt. The tax base must be broadened, and it therefore seems likely that Congress will be called upon to reconsider the sales tax, at least as a temporary measure to help meet a critical condition in the nation's

Deposit 'Guarantee' Fails of Purpose

LOS ANGELES .- While the idea of the guarantee of bank deposits by some legally enforced plan seems to appeal to many people who give it casual thought, the fact is that it has not only failed in every instance in the eight states where the experiment was tried, but actually produced unsound banking and increased the number of failures, it was declared by the recent convention of the American Bankers Association held here.

"Guaranty of bank deposits carries an idea that naturally appeals to people in general on casual consideration." the declaration said. "However, in principle it is unsound and in practice it is unworkable. It has been tried in eight States and it has not only failed in every case, but it has resulted in increasing the number of bank failures. Taxing properly managed banks to make up losses of failed banks is not only unfair and unreasonable, but it weakens the whole banking structure. Again, guaranty of deposits places the incompetent and reckless banker on an equal footing with the able and conservative banker, which encourages bad banking at the expense of sound banking. We are therefore opposed to the passage of any law carrying a guaranty of bank deposits and believe that it is against the interest of the people of the United States to develop any such system."

The great central ideal of every legislature as well as congress when they meet is to find some new way to tax the already over-taxed people. Just why they don't spend some time in trying to find ways and means to economize is not clear to us.

Tom Hunter, candidate for governor of Texas last year, says that while real estate produces only 15 percent of the wealth of the state, it bears 77 percent of the ad valorem taxes. If this is a fact, and statistics shows that it is true, then there's a lot of tax dodgers in Texas that should be brought to justice and lighten the taxes on property that is burdened.

Three or four years ago the increasing crime wave was laid to prosperity. Those maintaining this position argued that all were following a leader, and all wanted to have dered of Lincoln, and he had been the best in life. A Country Editor Looks at Banking

THE editor of the Norwalk, Ohio, view of the banking situation from a good many people. His idea is as

"With rents falling and unpaid, real estate does not present a happy picture. Nor does the owner of carefully selected bonds feel any happier, with a bunch of them going wrong. A lot of folks very carefully invested in preferred and common stocks in the finest companies in the world and have seen them fall to perhaps a tenth of what they paid for them, and no dividends at all. Som folks kept their money in savings accounts in banks, and some banks have closed and left them high and dry. But the situation

"On government authority, most banks that closed were really solvent but for frozen assets and popular timidity. Gradually the closed banks are coming out from under and depositors in even bad cases will get at least 50 per cent of their savings. That's tough of course; nobody likes to lose half of what they had scrimped and sacrificed and saved. But when you hoard and stick the roll of bills in a coffee pot or under a mattress, some plug-ugly comes along and burns your feet till you tell him to take it and welcome.

"And what about the great majority of banks that weathered the storm, met all comers and are doing business as usual, carefully and conservatively. but safely? What about the savings in those banks? They are a full 100 per cent today-and they are the only thing we know of at 100 per cent anywhere. After all is said and done, a good, well managed bank is still the best place in all the world for money or savings. Right now in Ohio the banks pay the taxes on all savings and pay their depositors net interest on their savings. We can't think, just now, of many other investments that are a tenth as safe as a savings account in a solid bank. Why, even a savings account in a closed bank is actually worth more today than most us fix that leaky radiator.

NATION'S LAW MAKERS SEEN AS HARD WORKERS

by Members of Congress on Mass of Technical Measures

OUTLINING legislative procedure, Robert V. Fleming, President Riggs National Bank, Washington, D. C., gave the recent convention of the American Bankers Association a description of the difficulties and problems confrontconcurred by a vote of 289 to 121, body gets into the way of thinking ing the law-makers. Mr. Fleming said

"The most important part of organization of the two branches of congress is election of standing committees. There are 34 standing committees in the Senate and 46 in the House. These Committee Rooms.

"The task of legislating for 124,000,-000 people is a tremendous one. Of recent years approximately 20,000 bills are introduced annually in the two come law, but they must be weighed in committee, accepted or rejected, perhaps amended, reported out, and then considered on the floor.

"Lawmaking involves about 99% of hard and unspectacular work and pear so easy and are so difficult as enislation. Few individuals in any line of activity work harder or longer hours than the chairmen of the important committees during a session. I have great sympathy for the members of Congress whose constituents expect undivided attention to every piece of legislation in which they may be interested. From my personal observation, they earnestly and conscientiously endeavor to do all that is humanly pos-

Public Hearings

"When a bill is introduced, referred to Depression is very largely a state committee and printed the next step, portance, is to conduct a public hearing. The committee makes an effort to listen to anyone who cares to be heard either for or against a measure, although witnesses are frequently limited as to time. Members of the Cabinet and other officials of the administrative departments of the Government usually testify on measures in which they are interested and furnish the committee information in executive session or otherwise. In this way the Administration takes a prominent part in shaping legislation.

"Due to pressure of work and the fact that it is impossible for members of Congress to be technical experts on every subject of legislation, the committees are inclined to give consideration to the merits of arguments presented in testimony and the recommendations of the Cabinet and other officials. It is therefore highly desirable, both from the standpoint of Congress as well as those affected by proposed legislation, that the latter have an opportunity to discuss frankly the effects of such legislation.

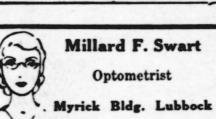

"We sometimes complain about the technicalities of legislation, but when we observe organized minorities endeavoring to force class legislation through one House it is a comfort to know such measures may be caught in the meshes of technical procedure in the other and there suffer what is

QUEER SUPERSTITIONS

Superstitions regarding the prevention and cure of disease have persisted from time immemorial, many of them being still prevalent in the more backward sections of the country. A few were called to mind by a recent writer, in noting the death of an aged Kentuckian who continued to wear ear-rings to the last, in the belief that they were good for his

Another old-time notion was that wearing a mustache was beneficial to weak eyes, just as it was thought that carrying a buckeye or a potato in the pocket would prevent or cure rheumatism.

One doesn't have to be so very old to remember when children were caused to wear a little bag of asafetida strung around the neck as a protection against "catching" diseases and when in many homes bunches of various dried herbs were hung about for the same purpose. Some believed that keeping a goat around the house was a prime health measure.

The writer remembers being warned when a boy not to wade in water when afflicted with the hives, lets they "strike to his heart and kill him." He waded, never-the-less, and lives to tell the tale.

These superstitions, like the belief that a horsehair placed in a rain barrel would turn into a snake, are gradually dying out-but many presumably intelligent persons to this day will refuse to take the third light from a match or walk under a ladder for fear of dire consequences .-

Is Your Diet "Adequate"? Name Minerals Most Commonly Lacking in the Average Diet Food Habits of Children

May Create Physical Condition That Will Never Be Outgrown.

Hardly a century has elapsed since the microscope revealed that the human body is made up of numerous cells, and it is not half a century since chemical analyses showed that these cells are composed of as many as 16 or 17 elements.

The mointenance of life is bound up with and dependent upon a never-ceasing interplay of all of these elements. Good nutrition, however, does not depend merely upon the presence of all of these substances; they must be present in certain amounts before the body can be in a state of perfect nour-

Unfortunately, not many human beings left to follow their own inclinations will consume foods that make up an adequate diet. Modern conditions have interfered with man's physical activity, and consequently with his appetite and food habits. As a rule, his diet is low in three of the 17 required minerals. These important three are calcium (sometimes called lime), phosphorus and iron.

Even the layman can discover when ne is not obtaining enough iron. Pale. anaemic color is a sign that blood and tissue are starving for iron. It is a little more difficult, however, to de tect a calcium and phosphorus defi ciency, especially in the adult. Teeth may start to decay, blood may he so reduced in its calcium content that it does not readily clot, and bones may hecome alarmingly fragile. In the child, the effect is more damaging than it is in the adult. The foods that supply the largest amounts of phosphorous and which are emphasized are meats, eggs. fish cheese, milk. Specific vegetables or other foods that contain smaller amounts of these minerals are not generally pointed out, but as many of them are consumed regularly and ir fairly generous amounts, their contribution in these particular minerals is really worth of notice. Grains used to pre-pare breakfast foods and flours for bread and all kinds of pastry are an example. While milling does remove some of the minerals in the grain, such incredients as milk and eggs which are used with the flours supply a greater amount of these minerals monocalcium phosphate used for leavening contributes a liberal amount of calcium and phosphorous in a etilizable form, although inorganic. Me-Collum and a number of other well known nutritionists have found in their experimental work that the Inorganic form of these minerals is used by the body just the same as are the organic forms, such as milk. This is an important bit of knowledge, for it permits mothers who have trouble in getting a child to drink milk to plan a dlet providing the necessary amount of these minerals. Vegetables like cab bage, cauliflower, green beans dried beans, spinach, carrots and breads made of self-rising flour, will add a lot of calcium to the diet. MORE HEAT LESS GAS

There is only one suggestion for the better use of a radiant type Gas Heater, beyond having a good flame, proper connections, keeping burners and heating elements clean and general care in not burning gas needlessly. This suggestion is to watch the flame so that it does not go OVER THE TOP of the radiant grid which throws out the heat. This wastes heat and gas, besides not giving you all the heat there is in the gas that burned. The flames should be just high enuogh to heat the grid or other radiating material and no higher.

The principle of this radiant type heater is incandescence, the use of a small amount of gas to produce a great deal of heat, practically all of which is utilized.

Simply turn on enough gas to make the entire grid slow-and no more.

A NEW CLUB ORGANIZED IN BROWNFIELD

Folks, if you are a business man or woman and you are interested in made by decision of the League of some practical and ejoyable training Nations. in public speaking, you will want to join the Public Speaking Club which recently has been organized in our town. The club is modeled after one which Dr. Jacobson attended while in Kansas City, and which he says of Argentina, just completed after 29 was very successful in training men and women in the art of being able to speak well in public.

The club has its meeting once a week, meeting on Friday night in the study hall of the High school building. At these meeting each member is required to make a five minute talk on a subject of his own choosing. At the end of five minutes time is called on him by a timekeeper. Immediately after his talk he is criticized by another member who has been appointed by the chairman greatly aided by his wife, who acas his special critic. Following that the house is opened for general eritieism, and anyone who wishes to offer a suggestion in regard to the speech may do so. Then Mrs. M. L. Penn, who is acting as critic and instructor, gives any further comment the claire." a holdover from medieval or criticism which the speech and the dimes. While some continue the old speaked merits.

In this way each member learns what are the good points and also what are the poor points in his manner of speaking, and at the next meeting he is able to try to concentrate on some of his mistakes. This club is built around the idea that one learns to do by doing and that practice makes perfect. Anyone who is interested in bettering himself along this line and also in helping others to better themselves is cordially invited to join.

H. P. (Dude) Thompson, who recently moved here from Johnson county, and rented the McGowan place just northeast of the city, has already became a real citizen by getting on the mailing list.

Saar Valley Mines

Under the terms of the peace treaty between Germany and the allies the mines of the Saar valley were given to France as compensation for the destruction of her northern mines during the World war and as part payment of her reparations. French occupation was to hold until reparations were completed. The districts containing the mines were detached from Germany and formed into the Saar territory. No Real Evidence That Reveals Origin of Golf The only facts definitely established concerning the game of golf are that the game, in some primitive form, was played in Holland at an early date and that it was developed in Scotland before the middle of the Fifteenth century into a popular game. An act of the Scottish parliament in 1457 was directed against the playing of this sport, as interfering with the important practice of archery. Old Dutch paintings show that the Dutch used posts instead of holes in playing their "Kolf" or "Kolfje." This name is derived from a word signifying "small club." James IV of Scotland played the game about the year 1500 and made it a royal as well as ancient game. There are other claims about the origin of golf that are not so well substantiated. One is that it was played by the Chinese as early as 1100 B. C.; another is that it was played in Ireland in the time of St. Patrick. Another claims that the Roman game of "pagania," played with a crooked stick and a leather ball stuffed with feathers, resembled golf. A game called bandy-ball or cambuca, played in England since Edward III's reign, has also been mentioned in this connection, though it appears to be more like hockey. A legendary origin of the game is that a Scottish shepherd, tending sheep on a stony hillside, found amusement in striking the stones with his shepherd's crook.

Deadly Tarantula Easy

Prey of "Killer" Wasp Some insects are very ferocious. The tarantulas, as Rene Bache points out, spin no webs, but rely upon their strength and agility for the capture of their victims, the latter including an occasional mouse or ground-nesting bird; and their homes are burrows, usually in the side of a clay bank, lined with silk. The door of the tarantula's house is set on a strong silken spring, and shuts with a snap when the owner has entered or comes out.

At home the tarantula is perfectly safe: the entrance of the burrow being so camouflaged as to escape even scrutinizing observation, but on its walks abroad, the giant spider is always in danger of attack by the Killer, which is a species of wasp. Against this wasp it has no adequate means of defense. Constantly turning this way and that, to face the enemy, it is inevitably taken, sooner or later, and stabbed with the Killer's envenomed lance, and paralyzed. The duel invariably ends with the death Thursday. or total disablement, of the tarantula, in whose body the Killer lays its eggs, in order that the baby wasps, when they are hatched, shall have food to eat.

Town of the Ugly Duckling

Lovers of the tales of Hans Christian Andersen will probably agree that his story of the "Ugly Duckling" is one of his finest. What more natural, therefore, when in Denmark, after Mr. L. D. Jackson left Monday for you have visited his home at Odense, to journey to Kjoge, and when there seek out the old and interesting castle of Gisselfeld, where the story teller often stayed. Here the Ugly Duckling first saw the light and not far away is the castle of Bergentved, where the swan was bailed by the children. Al-Mr. J. S. Kizer and son, J. B., of though Kjoge is best known today for its bacon and sausage, the visitor will find it a splendid old town with a church of the Thirteenth century named for Santa Claus and everywhere old castle homesteads beside the sea which will make it a scenic mem-

Rises From the Water

For a short period each year the ancient ruins of Philae, in the Nile, are to be seen. It is in the early winter and many tourists visit the place at this time. Then the water rises and the Nile buries the lovely island of ruins and temples beneath its waters. Much ancient beauty has gone, but anyone who looks on its ruins today can see what a lovely spot it was in the days of ancient Egypt. The villages and palms have gone, as modern need has changed the dashing cataract into a reservoir, but the damage done to Philae is slight, its sculptures are still clear on the walls and columns in spite of their annual drenching.

Most Deadly Plant

Discovery of the most deadly plant in the world, a small quantity of which was said to be sufficient to kill thousands of persons, has been reported from Pretoria, South Africa. The discovery was made by a botanist, who named the plant Adenia. One tenthousandth of a grain was reported as sufficient to kill an adult. The polson is not traceable after death. Railway workers in the interior died after they inadvertently tasted the plant. A botanist and two natives were overcome by the fumes of the plant when they sliced a bulb, reports said.

Land Bismarck Forgot

On your way to Austria, which should never be omitted from a European tour, stop a while at Liechtenstein, "the country that Bismarck forgot," in the reorganization of Europe. You can make a special trip there if you are staying near Lake Constance, by going to Brebenz, thence to Feldkirch and Vaduz. Its political life is almost play, for its prince pays nearly all its expenses and crime and poverty are almost unknown. Winter hardly touches it and spring comes early .-

WILLOW WELLS WORRIES

A few weeks ago this reporter was informed that the next play to be put on at the school house would be "It Happened In June." But on account of the lightening system and such a small stage this play will be impossible to put on. So the next play will be "Insurance Randy." This is a three act comedy drama and a laugh from start to finish. You people who enjoy good clean plays come to Willow Wells and see our plays. They are always free of charge, and when you see our amateur characters act one time you can hardly wait to see them again. Watch for the date of the play "Insurance Randy."
