That chamber of commerce secretary at Lamesa is some press agent. It is said that when a Lamesa student was used who was governor of Texas, he readily answered with the name of the Lamesa secretary.

The Texas Tuberculosis Association says that their sales of Christmas Seals only decreased 2 1/2 per cent last year compared to a decrease of 20 percent average in other states. They attribute this to the loyalty of Texas newspapers who gave them thousands of columns of free space.

A young man came back to Brownfield this week to pay up all that he owed. Owing to circumstances over which he probably had no control, he had to leave here owing some debts, but he got the money this fall as times are good in his community, and came back to straighten out every debt he owed, as far as he knew, he told us. And yet some people say that honesty has vanished from the earth. They just don't know.

There were perhaps few people either anti or pro that believed one year ago that the 18th amendment would be a dead letter today. Indeed, we have seen no one who claimed to be a "I told you so," on this measure at least. About two years ago, a good friend of ours, now passed on, explained to us how utterly impossible it would ever be to erase it from the constitution of the United States, and we agreed with him, because his line of argument seemed impregnable. But, just like it went in, with each state trying to be the first to ratify the 18th, so did the 21st come.

Editor Richards editorially attacked the administration last week for not doing anything for the farmer. It seems to us that the farmer has been the very man that the administration has tried to help most. Of course, at present, the progress has not been all that we of the farm sections, or the administration would like, but we believe that President Roosevelt has honestly tried, and will keep on trying. If Editor Richards will tell us how much time the administration has spent trying to help country editors—for instance who are having a struggle to meet current expenses, not to say anything about taxes, interest and principal on debts, then we will be inclined to agree that Mr. Roosevelt has helped everybody but the farmer.

A lady this week, who herself is no spring chicken, says that her first ring came from J. Lynn & Co.; that her mother's came from the same place, and that her grandmother got her engagement ring from the same place at 48 Bond street, New York. The rings cost from 8 to 14 cents each, she said. This firm has been selling cheap jewelry for several 100 years, and no doubt have served old customers in this section.—Clarendon Leader.

Well, Old Apostle, we are glad to see that you are not too critical; your first 13 cents, plus postage cuff links probably came from J. Lynn & Co., as well as your 11c shirt studs. And don't tell us you did not order that famous "bean shooter" (nigger shooter" to you.) But why do you persist in bringing back the past in which the most of us present financiers anointed ourselves with cheap jewelry and paraded for our friends? Forget it man! Forget it!

Rev. Stricklin, the local minister for the Church of Christ, came by the printing office Wednesday afternoon and showed us a nice string of catfish he had caught that day. Our questions as to the location of his fishing hole were evaded, but we are going to keep an eye on him from now on. A place where nice catfish like those can be hooked at this time of year is something that we didn't know existed around here.—Jayton Chronicle.

So, that's the reason we can't hear from that preacher brother of ours. We have written him twice since he moved to Jayton, inviting him and his better two-thirds up some week for fish instead of men. We just can't keep these preachers straight. But we'd "shore" like to have been at his house for dinner that day. So, Bro. Wade, set a detective on his trail, to locate that hole of water, and then write us and we'll be right down.

Editor Hill of the Tahoka News is still calling for some temperance editorials from us. Well, Bro. Hill some men, David, Solomon, Elijah, and a lot of the other major and minor prophets that existed some 3000 years ago, wrote so much better editorials on the subject than is possible for an uninspired country editor to pen, we are almost ashamed to try our hand. And coming on down to New Testament times, there was Paul, Peter and James that gave us some fine editorials on the subject—but not a word about prohibition. Temperance just means to be temperate, but does have a modern abstract meaning that carries with it the thought of total abstinence, according to Funk & Wagnalls. About the only totalitarians we read of in the Bible were the Nazirites, and they prohibited something else. A razor was not to touch them. Now, Bro. Hill, we two are considered very handsome men in our communities, but suppose we were to boycott the barbers for a year or two? Why our people would ship us off to the House of David.

The Abilene Times comes back at us on our editorial in which we endorsed the legislation which was enacted at the called session which forbids the asking of an applicant for a position as school teacher about his religious beliefs. The burden of the Times' argument was that a protestant had no business applying for a school in a Catholic or Lutheran community. The argument could be carried on that a Baptist has no business in Methodist communities, or a Methodist in a Presbyterian community, etc. To our notion, it would be a poor sort of literary teacher that would go into a community to try to change religious beliefs, or one that could not attend Sunday School, church services or help in the song services of anybody's community. And so far as we know, there would be no violation of the law to ask an applicant if he believed in the Christian religion, or was an infidel. Not many Texas communities would want the latter. But to ask what denomination one belonged to is what, we believe, the law stops.

AMERICAN LEGION TO SPONSOR PLAY SOON
At some date during the near future the Brownfield American Legion will sponsor a play, which will be presented by home talent at the high school auditorium. The play is to be a new comedy, carrying a 1932 copyright. It is said to be one of the best selling and best received plays put out by the Baker Publishing company last year. The title of this comedy is THE BLUE BAG. It will be directed by Mrs. M. L. Penn. Announcement as to the cast and exact time of presentation will be made in next week's Herald.

Health Dept Warns of Uncertified Oysters
Austin, Nov.—"Beware of uncertified oysters," warns Dr. John W. Brown, State Health Officer. In Texas, each grower of oysters is furnished a certificate from the State Department of Health covering the oyster beds he uses, provided surveys of such areas are shown to be free from pollution and that the shucking houses are sanitary. With each certificate is granted a shipping number which much accompany each shipment to show the source of the shellfish.
Each operator of a shucking house where oysters are opened must have a certificate testifying that his shop has been found sanitary and his employees have been examined and found negative for communicable diseases, especially typhoid fever. These certificates are issued annually. The federal government co-operates with the states by exercising supervision over methods used and issues lists of certified shippers in all parts of the country.
The safest oysters in Texas are accompanied by a certificate. The

Trinchera Sets New Arlington Downs Record

The enterprising cameraman here took a picture of what a swell horse race looks like to a little bird sitting on the inside rail at Arlington Downs, Texas. The horse in the lead is Trinchera, who is running three lengths ahead of Liberty Limited to win the Fort Worth handicap Saturday and set a new record of 1:10 3-5 and win $1,600 for his owner, T. C. Worden. Twelve thousand people attended the race meet Saturday, and thousands more will have a try at parimutual betting made legal by Texas solons, before the Arlington classic is over November 11.

LIKE OLD TIMES

It took just such a shakeup as this country has been going through for the past three years to bring it around to the point where its citizens could realize the full worth of their neighbors. Most every one was too busy for ten or twelve years following the World War to give much thought to their neighbors. Visiting and community gatherings went out of style in a hurry. It had grown to be pretty much of a case of "every fellow for himself and the devil take the hindmost."

Conditions prevailing throughout the past three decades have changed this. The change can be noted right around Big Spring. Papers from other localities reveal a like change in their neighborhoods. It is not uncommon now to pick up an exchange and read about a big community fair home-coming, fall festival, or even an old-fashioned "husking" or a "quilting" bee. People are coming to find out that there is more in life than working their hands and heads off in an effort to make money. For the first time they are getting acquainted with their neighbors, and finding them pretty decent folks. They are finding that life still holds a lot of happiness in store for those who try to make others happy. We may not emerge from the economic slump with as much of this world's goods as we had when we started in, but we will at least have found out what good neighbors are worth to us, and what it is worth to mingle with them.—Big Spring News.

THE ELECTIONS POINT

Boss rule got some hard blows at the elections in Philadelphia and New York. In the Quaker City the Republicans were upset; in New York it was the Democrats. The bossism of Farley was as little respected as that of Tammany Hall.

Mr. Farley, genial and ingenious as he is, had it coming to him. A little deflation of Farleyism will do the country no harm. Indeed, the Journal anticipates that Farley himself will be the better for it. He was succeeding too enormously for his own good.—Dallas Journal.

J. W. Hyatt, editor of the Ralils Banner and son of Mrs. A. C. Hyatt, publisher, is reported to be very ill.

Miss Wofford is president of the Women's Athletic association at T. C. U. and Miss Freeman is vice-president. Both will represent T. C. U. at the annual Women's Texas Athletic conference at Denton.

REPEAL

In spite of the unexpected stubborn dry stand of the devoted Carolinas, the Nation wiped prohibition out of the old Constitution Tuesday with the votes of Utah, Ohio and Pennsylvania. These rounded out the thirty-six State whose approval is required for repeal. The necessary formalities in several Legislatures postpone formal cancellation for a few weeks of the Eighteenth Amendment. The Nation is now brought squarely up to the issue of what is to be done about liquor.

A majority of the States are still dry, Texas conspicuous among them. Prohibition repeal in these individual cases will still be fought out by wet and dry forces, but the latter fighting a rear-guard action with small hope of success in most States. The national repeal vote in every State can be regarded as a fair record of wet sentiment. In most cases the record shows an overwhelming majority. As for the dry States, the State option guarantee, on which the Democratic administration based its plea for repeal, puts the Federal Government on its honor to exclude rum running from the dry areas. But Tuesday's vote foreshadowed reduction to a minimum of prohibition enforcement personnel. The Federal Government is now chiefly interested in enforcing the excise laws.

The continuance for some time of technically dry States offers no immediate relief from the evil of bootlegging. State local option will also encourage it, so that, while illegal liquor sale may not be so great as in the last decade, it is still a factor to be reckoned with.

Settlement of the liquor control problem now becomes an important issue in State politics. Prohibition has had its fling and has been dismissed. Liquor is back. What will the States do about it?—Dallas News.

Wins Air Damages

What is thought to be the first damage suit on record between occupants of two airplanes crashing in mid-air has been won by L. M. Crannell of Dallas, pictured above. Testimony showed that Crannell's plane, and that piloted by A. V. Cox collided fifty feet above Love Field, when Cox went into a steep climb, crashing into Crannell's plane. The plaintiff received a judgment of $1,500.

NATIONAL FIRE LOSS GOES DOWN

As the year draws toward its close, the National Board of Fire Underwriters makes a heartening announcement—the estimated fire loss for the first nine months of 1933 was $245,350,000, as compared with $341,050,000 in the same period in 1932.

Though a large part of this saving must be attributed to depression values of property rather than to actual reduction in value of property destroyed, these figures show definite and striking progress—the greatest progress in fire prevention made in many years. Every reduction in fire loss means that wealth which would otherwise have been totally destroyed has continued to work in channels that provide opportunity and employment—that it has gone into the pockets of workmen and through the tills of merchants and touched the hands of farmers. It is reflected in the balance sheets of companies, and in the return they are able to pay their security-holders. It is, in brief, a strong influence in support of recovery.

Now it's time to think of the $245,000,000 that was destroyed. It's safe to say that at least $200,000,000 of the waste was entirely unnecessary. People were careless with gasoline—with electricity—with heating plants—with explosives. They allowed waste to accumulate. They didn't trouble to correct known fire hazards, thinking they could do it tomorrow. Tomorrow never came—but fire did.

We've made a fine start. But that's no reason for sitting still and congratulating our selves. There's much more to be done—and every citizen should join the ranks to not only maintain but better this record.

Cullen Forbes handed in two dollars on subscription, Saturday, remarking that he was getting nearly a year behind.

A BIG MAN SPEAKS

With so many influences and agencies working to extend the socialist program in the United States, is it heartening to those who believe in the superiority of private initiative and enterprise, to read the following courageous expressions from a recent address of former governor Alfred E. Smith at the Century of Progress exposition in Chicago. Mr. Smith said in part: "As I went through the fair I thought to myself that there is still another great lesson for the people of this country to learn. . . . Aside from the assistance of Divine Providence, what has made this century of progress?"

"If you will study this fair, you be obliged to come to the conclusion that this century of progress was brought about by individual initiative; by the strength, the power, the courage, the brains and the ability of the men and women of the Republic of North America. Whether you point to progress in industry, science, invention, transportation, or the arts, what you see here is the triumph of the mind and the hand of free men, without dictatorship.

"Ninety per cent of the exhibits here mark advances in our civilization due entirely to individuals, private individuals, working without inspiration, compulsion, control or even suggestion from the government itself. In fact, it is noteworthy that the government has done little to contribute to this century of progress, while on the other hand, much has been thwarted, much has been hindered, by the heavy, cold hand of bureaucracy.

"Now let us not be too cynical about the motives that have actuated the men who have wrought these

Principals in Valley Political Slaying

A political feud of long standing in the Lower Rio Grande valley of Texas has reached newspaper headlines again when two Mexicans have allegedly confessed to the killing of Claude Kelley, son-in-law of Ed Couch, prominent county judge of Hidalgo county. The Mexicans, Mateo Cuellar and Julian Ybarra, are alleged to have admitted that they thought they were killing Judge Couch, since Kelley was sleeping in Couch's room at the time of the slaying in 1929. Others held in connection with the slaying are Cam Hill, former county held in connection with the slaying are Cam Hill, former county treasurer of Hidalgo county, now of El Paso, and George Beck.

Picture Proves Ancient Texas Legend True

One of the Southwest's most venomous has been spotted for all time. Legend tells that chaparral birds, or paisanos, or road runners, as they are sometimes called, are natural enemies of rattle snakes. The bird pictured above, caught by dogs on the farm of J. C. Caraway near Robstown, Texas, proves the story, for six inches of an 18-inch rattler dangled from his beak.

Horned Frogs Smear Aggie for Major Upset of Year

Plays like the one pictured here are what turned tables on a highly touted Texas A. and M. college eleven, which found itself roundly defeated late Saturday afternoon by an inspired T. C. U. team, score 13 to 0, at the T. C. U. bowl in Fort Worth. The picture shows Frog John Kitcher, star of the game, beginning a 20-yard dash through a big hole in the left side of the Aggie line—one of many good gains he made during the afternoon.

HOME ECONOMIC CLUB

The Home Economic Club was called to order, November 13 by the vice-president, Betty Jo Savage. There was a discussion concerning means of earning money to carry out the club project. The girls are trying to raise money to buy curtains for the Dining Room. After a brief discussion of various plans the club adjourned to meet again on Monday morning, Nov. 20.

LITERARY CLUB

You bet we're pleased with our club. On Monday Francis McPherson read an interesting essay, Evelyn Judd gave us a "corn" reading for the benefit of our better self, and Doy Murphy sang "Springtime In The Rockies" in order to keep Mr. Wester and his heart in perfect harmony. These three numbers put the audience up in the air and there it stayed until the Mr. A. T. Fowler stormed the fort and brought them all back to earth with a few well directed "cracks at the crowd."

RED GOOSE—THE OJIBWA INDIAN BOY

An Indian Story for Boys and Girls By Carlyle Emery

Red Eagle and his son, Red Goose, are trying to catch a big eagle alive, so they can get some fine feathers for a war bonnet.

Slowly, almost inch by inch, Red Goose lowered himself down the side of the cliff, keeping his eyes shut tightly so he wouldn't get dizzy.

After several minutes he felt the hard rock of the ledge under his feet and, letting go of the rope, he stood firmly on both feet, keeping close to the side of the cliff because the ledge was not very wide.

"Red Goose is safe," he called to his father and Little Beaver who were both lying flat on the ground peering over the top at the boy below.

Working with speed and accuracy, Red Goose set the snare; then, taking the rope firmly in his hands again he started on the long climb up, which was even more dangerous than the trip down.

But hardly were his feet off the ground when the heavy rope which had been rubbing against a sharp piece of stone, parted with a loud snap and as Little Beaver screamed, her companion dropped three feet back to the ledge.

"Red Goose is not hurt," he reassured his father. "Only short drop to ledge."

"Red Eagle will hurry and get new rope."

As the Chief spoke, he turned quickly and started back, leaving Little Beaver at the top of the cliff and his son fifty feet below on a narrow ledge.

But the real danger was approaching. The huge eagle was returning to its nest and to the little eaglets in it. Little Beaver was first to see him, and terrified she screamed:

"Red Goose, eagle come back! Shoot him quick!"

"Red Goose has no rifle. It is on top of the cliff."

"What shall Little Beaver do?"

"Take rifle and try to shoot the eagle."

"Little Beaver's hands were trembling so much she could hardly hold the gun at first, for she knew the life of her best friend was at stake."

"Great Spirit," she prayed, "make aim of Little Beaver straight."

As the big eagle, enraged at the disturbance of its nest, prepared to strike with its sharp claws, two shots rang out, and with a scream of pain the eagle tumbled headlong down the cliff.

Little Beaver had saved the life of Red Goose.

"Well, we do too, sometimes," replied the creamery man, with a twinkle of his eyes; "won't you have some more?"

MRS. HUDGENS PASSES

After a siege of typhoid that left her in a weakened condition, the spirit of Mrs. L. F. Hudgens, passed to the great beyond Saturday afternoon, Nov. 11th at 4:15. Funeral services were conducted at the church of Christ Sunday afternoon at 3:00 by Elder Daley, local minister, assisted by Elder Liff Sanders, of Lubbock, who was minister here several years ago. The body was laid to rest in the Brownfield cemetery. One of the largest crowds that has been seen at a funeral service in some time was on hand and the floral offering was profuse.

Mrs. Hudgens, who lacked just eleven days of being 63 years old, was born at Fayetteville, Ark. She moved with her parents to Johnson county Texas, when just a child, and later to Erath county, where she met and married the husband that survives her. To this union was born three children, Claude, Clarence and Mrs. Kyle Graves, all of Brownfield. A foster child and niece, Mrs. Mildred Renfro, of Amarillo, also survives and was here with the others when the end came.

Other relatives and friends who attended from a distance were Mrs. C. W. Evans, a sister of Mr. Hudgens, and her son, A. C. and wife of Stephenville; also Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Graves of Stephenville; Dr. Duff Ross and wife of Liberty Hill, Texas, Mrs. Ross being a niece of Mrs. Hudgens; Elder Liff Sander and wife; B. S. Adams and wife and Mr. and Mrs. Barton and son, Melvin, all of Lubbock.

SCHOOLS OR ROADS?

There is no use side-stepping the situation. Practically every school district in this country—as well as those scattered throughout the United States—is lagging behind in finances.

Yet we all know we cannot afford to tinker with the school system of our individual communities or of the land as a whole.

Public education of the best possible sort is one institution we Americans must support if our country is to forge ahead.

Alfred E. Smith, who even his staunchest foes must admit is a great American, sums the matter up neatly in a recent address he made at Albany when The University of the State of New York conferred upon him the degree of doctor of laws.

Declared the great Democratic leader and humanitarian:

"Education writes a good large insurance policy against the foolish notions of the Socialists, Communists, Nazis and all the others and all the others who are arranged against constitutional government. It is all right to have economy. . . but don't let false economy fall on our public schools. . . It wouldn't do this state a bit of harm if we didn't build another mile of road for the next three years. But one single year that education is neglected can never be brought back!"

We agree thoroughly with Alfred E. Smith in the above quoted opinions. He has, we think, hit the nail squarely on the head—not only for New York, but for the nation as a whole and including our part of it.

Although Texas needs more roads than New York needs them: although West Texas, and this section of West Texas in particular, needs them worse than any other part of West Texas. The Morning Avalanche believes Governor Smith's yardstick could apply here as aptly as it does in the Empire State, were it necessary to apply it.

Of course, we do not have to make the decision between roads and schools—and may be thankful for that. We can have both and must have both.

But were it necessary for us to choose between the completion of our needed highway system and keeping public schools running we know that we would consider the most essential to the welfare of our territory.

There is no substitute for education!—Lubbock Avalanche.

Elder M. O. Daley left this week for his home in San Antonio to join his wife, who has been under treatment of a physician there for some time. He has labored with the local church of Christ here for about one year, and has the good wishes of the entire congregation, and the prayers for the speedy recovery of his wife.

He is so fine that his dad hasn't decided on a name yet, but like his brother, will likely have a nick name.

CRANES AND DUCKS DESTROYING FIELDS

Multiplied thousands of sandhill cranes and ducks are destroying hundreds of acres of crops in Parmer county, according to reports reaching here.

Most of the destruction being wrought by the migratory fowls is in the Friona and Bovina sections, where heavy rains during the late summer filled surface lakes to overflowing, and the birds are making the fields their feeding grounds.

Under the law, there appears that nothing can be done to rid the fields of the destructive birds. There is no open season on sandhill cranes and ducks cannot be killed until November 1st.—State Line Tribune.

Mrs. Cecil Smith, Miss Olga Fitzgerald and Ralph Bynum are all the typhoid patients that are now confined to their rooms that we know of, and they are all recovering and clear of fever we understand. There has been no new cases in some three weeks.
