Our Recent Trip to Sunny Tennessee

We believe we left the reader last week at the home of our niece, Mrs. Daniel Rogers. Here a great many of the relatives had gathered for the day and to talk old times. I looked to us like food might run rather low that day, and we were determined to get in on the first table. But law man! There was no use of any hurry. That niece of ours not only is one of the best cooks in West Tennessee, but she had enough food on that table to feed a log-rolling. You old people from East Texas or the old states will know what we mean by a log-rolling. For the youngsters, will say that instead of grubbing up those old giants of the forest, they were "deadened" by having some three feet of bark removed near the base, all around the tree. In a few years the roots of the old trees would rot, and the storms of winter would blow them down in the fields. The farm hands would see them in convenient cuts, and on a certain day, the men from around that section, were asked to the log-rolling. They came with their hand spikes, usually made from second growth hickory or dog wood, as large as your arm and about seven or eight feet long. Not only that, but the women folks came to help cook and wash dishes, for there would be several tables full.

But really, log-rolling is a misnomer, it should have been log-carrying, as more of them were carried than rolled. And here was where the young swains of the generation could show his prowess and muscular strength. One of our young cousins decided one time that he particularly wanted to bury a certain young man's knuckles in the ground, as he didn't like the fellow. Well, they always permitted two men of great strength to get their hand spike under the butt, and give "light" to others back of them by raising the log enough for them to get their hand spikes under it. Then the leader would yell, "let's go" and all would come up together. This was a particularly large and heavy old log, and our cousin jumped across the log when the fellow he wished to embarrass stuck his hand spike under it. When the word "give light" was given, it was our cousin that got his knuckles buried instead of the other fellow. He claimed that his end of the spike was under a root or something, but a big buck negro who took his place showed him that it took strength to lift that log.

But we have lead off the subject and spent most of our space telling the young people something that perhaps they care nothing about. But boy, that was some meal, and those old log rolling dinners were some meals. They always sent for Mrs. Bet McCarter to make the dumplings for those chicken stews—and such stews. She could so season them that you never knew when to quit passing your plate for more. We was just a boy, but ate like any good log-rolling hand. Just at this time, we can't think of any familiar vegetable our niece did not have on her table that day, but among the most prominent in our estimation, was a big dish of home made "white head" cabbage kraut, and it tasted just like it did when we were a boy, with some streaked ham gravy on it. There was a great dish of puree old country ham stacked in large slices as long as they would lay on, and a big dish of fried chicken, and chicken and dumplings. There was both biscuit and corn-pone. Now folks, this is a sample of the dinner we had each day we spent in the old state, and when we say dinner, we mean the noon meal. Of course we had dessert, which is none too popular with us on account of our general make-up at this time. We have to lay off sweets.

A fine afternoon was spent in conversation. A lot of melons, apples, peaches, or what have you had been brought from the field and orchard, and were always handy during both the forenoon and afternoon, for the company, and those old Tennesseans always seem ready to eat. We

All Star Cast Selected For "Dr. Monica"

The age-old theatrical policy of surrounding an outstanding star with a mediocre cast, in order that the featured actor might shine brighter in comparison with the others, is a thing of the past, insofar as Warner Bros. are concerned.

These producers, who have written motion picture history for the past decade, go to the other extreme, and each picture is given the benefit of the players who can best portray the characters, thus it frequently happens that a Warner star will appear in a supporting role.

In "Doctor Monica" which will open at the Rialto theatre on Sunday, Kay Francis is the featured star, but in the company are also Warren William, an outstanding screen favorite, who plays the part of Kay's husband, and Jean Muir, who enacts the role of the girl who stole William's love. All three are definite stars. There is also Verree Teasdale, who made her first hit in Warner Bros. "Fashions of 1934." She has one of the important feminine roles as the confidante of Miss Francis.

Other players in the cast are Philip Reed, Emma Dunn, Herbert Bunston, Anna Shoemaker, Virginia Hammond, Hale Hamilton and Virginia Pine.

The picture is a thrilling story of love and sacrifice. William Keighley directed.

Hunters Minus Stamps Arrested in Colorado

Five over anxious duck hunters in Colorado have jumped the gun and will probably be punished for shooting ducks before the season opened and without Federal duck stamps, reports the Bureau of Biological Survey, U. S. Department of Agriculture. The second shooters will be tried in Federal court Stamps may be obtained at the postoffice.

The five men, a deputy sheriff and four experienced hunters—are the first alleged violators of the Migratory Bird Hunting Stamp Act, which requires a hunter of ducks, geese, or brant to carry on his person a $1 duck stamp obtainable at the post office in any city of over 2,500 population, or in any county seat. The act was passed to provide funds for the reclamation of duck nesting areas and for the establishment of refuges.

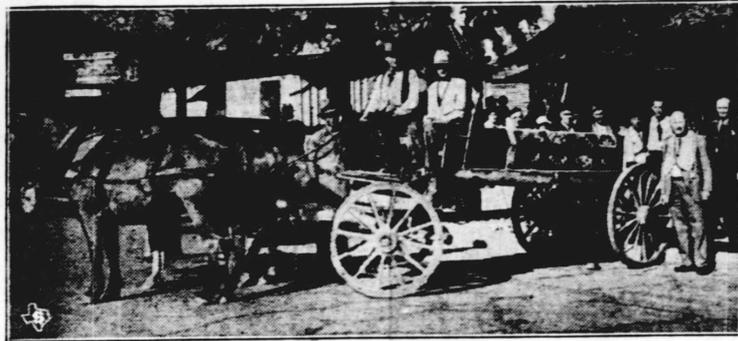

In this first year in which duck stamps are required the enforcement practice being followed, says the Biological survey, is in general to caution violators advise them of the provisions of the law, and give them an opportunity to purchase stamps. This policy, the Bureau points out, is not followed however when it is clear that a hunter has willfully and knowingly violated the statute. Penalties for violation of the act are a fine of not to exceed $500, 6 months imprisonment, or both.

brought that kind of appetite with us to Texas. One of the most interesting things we heard in the afternoon was Uncle Lee Smalley's explanation of his trip to his old home in east Tennessee among the mountains folk. He had not been there in some 60 years, and of course he found very few that he knew, and like west Tennessee was to us, great changes had taken place. Uncle Lee is around 80 years of age now, but he often walks to Middleton 6 miles away. Sometimes he is picked up and given a ride, otherwise it is all in a day's work to him. We found that he liked to hang out around the depot at the little town, where two trunk lines cross, and watch the trains go by. He once had a great ambition to be a locomotive engineer, and still loves to watch the trains. All the depot force, and most of the trainmen know him by name, and always have a good word for this old man.

In the next article, we are going to tell you of some of the other kin we visited, but no more descriptions of dinners, as the one in this article was a fair sample of all of them. This we will say. Those old woods: those old red hills are now and always have been full of good cooks—and they don't mind putting out a little energy in preparing a meal. So far as we know, we are the only lazy person that ever lived there, and for lack of company, we came to Texas. If those farmers would come to Terry county and put out as much work here as they do, they would not get through gathering their crops in two years.

More punishment next week.

Octogenarian Buried in Old-Fashioned Manner

The old-fashioned funeral specified in a letter to his wife, written a year ago, was conducted for John Jefferson Day, 80, who died in Breckenridge, Texas. The former singing master of Stephens county asked that his body be taken to the grave in a flat-bottomed wagon, driven by his old friend, G. T. Hewlet. In the picture Hewlet drives, while sitting by him is Jess Parkhill, who built the coffin, as requested by Day. (Texas News Photos.)

Ohio Newspaper Folks Visit Terry County

Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Gaymon, of Canal Winchester, Ohio, were visitors here this week. They are co-editors and publishers of the Times and the Buckeye News, of that city, and own a fine section of land 14 miles west of Brownfield on the highway. They are tickled pink that their land abuts the highway, and truly are glad that they have such a fine piece of property in this country. They are watching oil developments in south of us with much interest.

Mr. Gaymon stated to us that after reaching western Indiana he saw his next best crops in Terry county. There are places in Iowa, he said, that had fair corn crops, but that was about all, while here there was fair crops of most everything. He informed us that the pictures we saw in the summer of dirt blown up to the barn and house eaves in the Dakotas, Nebraska and Kansas were not overdrawn. It's an actuality, he said. He says that western Kansas, southwest Colorado, and the Texas Panhandle are as bare as a flood, save tumbling weeds, and such like.

They have some land in Colorado they came by to see, also some men Dalhart, Texas, but they seem to prize their Terry county holdings most. We were very sorry that they had to rush back home, but they said the man they left in charge had not had overly much experience in newspaper management, but they knew he would do the best he could. They left for home Tuesday. They stated, however, that they would surely be back in Texas in 1936 for the Centennial.

Politically, Mr. Gaymon is a true blue Democrat, always has been and greatly sympathized with the south in its struggle with carpetbaggers after the war. He just can't understand why Republican leaders then in power permitted it. On the other hand, Mrs. Gaymon is a Republican, but is an ardent admirer of Pres. Roosevelt.

National Recovery Act To Be Reorganized

Recent reports indicate that the long anticipated NRA reorganization will be effected in the near future. According to the Washington Post, which has a high batting average in announcing pending developments before official announcements, a policy-making board will be set up. Bernard Barouch and Raymond Moley will be among its members. General Johnson will be out. It is believed that the final straw came when General Johnson made his strike speech, which almost ruined the President's more tactful settlement plans, and implied that on legal matters he had the advice of Supreme Court Justice Brandeis. This was tantamount to saying that a judge of the highest tribunal in the land, who will eventually help decide the constitutionality of the new legislation, had a hand in its making. It is said that the justice hit the roof, as did the President.

Another development of interest comes from the United States Chamber of Commerce, foremost representative of industry. It is seeking an over-haul of New Deal laws. One of its committees has made a report holding that existing emergency agencies with stupendous spending power are operating without proper financial supervision, and recommends that measures be taken to give the President adequate power to directly control the spending.

Two Local Boys Kill A Large Bobcat Sun.

While out driving last Sunday night, Dell Smith and Otis Moore, local young men, ran over a large bobcat—but didn't aim to. One thought they had run over some farmer's house dog, and the other thought it a coyote. The dispute caused them to turn around and go back and see, when they really discovered that neither was right. Dell said it appeared to either be chasing another bobcat or a coyote, but in the dark they could not tell.

The animal was already dead when they got back to it, and it was put on the fenders and brought home. Many, including the editor and family viewed the big cat Monday morning. As Dell could not get any one here to mount it, he skinned and mounted the hide.

We were aware that there used to be several of these "kitties" out at Salt Lake on the east side of the county, and west Lynn county, but we had not seen or heard of one in so long that we had decided that they had been exterminated.

U. S. Biologist Down From Lubbock Mon.

J. M. Hill, with the biological department of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, was down this week looking after business and dropped in on us to get us to print the warning to duck hunters found printed elsewhere in this issue.

He had been over much of the territory to the north of us lately, he said, and found that Terry county was the best fixed of any. In some sections of the Panhandle, he said, they were even harvesting the Russian thistles and tumbling weeds in order to try to save their livestock this winter.

He said that it was the general opinion of many that Terry county had a closed season on quail shooting this year, and that hunters better find out for sure.

Humble Co. Acquires Andrews Co. Royalty

ODESSA, Oct. 13.—In two important deals Humble Oil & Refining company acquired Andrews county royalty in two sectors of the county this week.

The first trade was the purchase of 292 royalty acres under the 5243 acre R. M. Means ranch, where Humble completed their No. 1 R. M. Means discovery producer, some weeks ago. The consideration was $100 per acre or a total of $27,200.

For the second transaction Humble acquired one-half royalty interest under Jim Parker's twelve-section ranch, about 13 miles southwest of Andrews. The consideration was $5 per acre, totaling $19,200.

Farmers Vote 9 to 1 For Contract Plan

COLLEGE STATION, Oct. 15.—Texas farmers voted more than 9 to 1 in favor of an adjustment program in corn and hogs for 1935, a report of the statewide referendum, which ended today, made to Washington by extension officials showed.

Texas farmers also favored a program of one contract a farm dealing with grains and livestock in 1936 by more than a 3 to 1 count.

Local Canning Plant Now in Operation

The local government canning plant is now in full swing in the old Williams & Bowers warehouse. The building was furnished by the city, and the county has spent some $200 for repairs on the building. At the present time, only about six large pressure cookers are in use, but we were informed that in a few days, they expected to get two or three large hotel retorts that would be capable of handling an all day run on meats.

At the present time, the average daily canning is around 450, but corn and beans will run in the neighborhood of 800, as they are easier handled. It is believed that with the new setup, the same force will be able to can around a thousand cans per day. Enough foods of one nature and another has been pledged already to run the rest of this month. Apples and turnip greens were being canned at the time we were there. Twenty-one women and girls and two men were at work when we were there, at least Bart Stinson acted like he was at work.

A cooling plant will be installed as soon as possible, and connection made with the sewerage, as they are handicapped now by having to carry their rinse water to the door and throw it in the alley. Mr. Stinson stated that they had returned 40 per cent of the cans to those who brought in vegetables or meat to can, which is good on lots of farmers, as they are too busy with their crops to attend to the canning themselves. Besides it gives lots of work to people here. Each lady gets three days per week, then another force works three days is the way we understood it.

We asked Mr. Stinson if all these vegetables would be distributed here. He said if need be they would, but if they canned more than needed, they could be sent to other places as there were lots of places where nothing grew this year.

Bruton Installs a New Watch Cleaner

Ollie A. Bruton, local watch maker, who is located in the Alexander Drug store, has something entirely new in this section in a watch cleaning machine. It is probably the only one of its kind on the South Plains. That it will do the job and much better and quicker than by hand has been demonstrated several times since he received the machine.

It is a product of the Illinois Electric Watch Cleaning Machine Co., of Newark, N. J., and works on the cylindrical principle. The parts of the watch are put in fine mesh wire baskets, small parts in separate baskets, and these in turn are enclosed in a cylinder. The terrific whirl in a solution also made by this company starts the cleaning operation. It is run through two other solutions. The last operation is to lift it out of the solution and let it whirl at several thousand revolutions per minute, and the parts are then as dry as they were when put in. It is absolutely guaranteed not to injure any watch.

Mr. Bruton has a certificate in the way of a plaque of which he is very proud. Some six of the biggest watch manufacturers gave it to him because he uses only genuine parts for his repairs. He says that in lots of instances, he could put in off-brand parts at half the price of the genuine.

Cotton Growers Ass'n Ready For Business

Immediate and Effective Service Offered to All Cotton Producers

With every detail worked out for the handling of this season's crop, the Northwest Texas Cotton Growers Association, the only farmer owned and farmer controlled marketing agency in the southwest, is fully prepared to render efficient and immediate service to all cotton producers of this section and the association has opened a branch office at the Tudor Sales office at Brownfield.

The Northwest Texas Cotton Growers Association was organized last February at the interest demands of the leading farmers of the South plains area. Over one hundred leading cotton producers of the twenty-three counties embraced by the association, took active part in its organization. This action later received the unanimous endorsement of approximately eight hundred leading farmers of this area in a meeting held in Lubbock, May 1. The setting up of this association was in compliance with the privilege that any section which had delivered in any one year one hundred thousand bales of cotton through the Texas Association, would be given complete autonomy. The Lubbock area has done this several seasons and is therefore in all respects entitled to this privilege and is now proceeding with full force and handling a large volume of cotton.

This association is prepared to handle all details incident to the 11c and 12c cotton Government Loan and will have all cotton classed by Federal Licensed Classers under Direct government supervision. The United States Department of Agriculture cooperating in maintaining at Lubbock the headquarters of the association and the Government. The association is fully prepared to handle the transfer of 10c cotton to the 12c loan and can render exceptional service in the handling of option cotton secured under the 1933 Plover Campaign and the selling of last seasons Government Loan Cotton. Each farmer, whether he be a member or not, can secure these services and in every case will be furnished a copy showing the exact class on all cotton handled through the association. This insures full protection later in the sale of Government Loan Cotton. Mr. T. H. Henderson has charge of the local branch office at Brownfield. Directors of the Association are J. T. Elms, Littlefield, W. H. Hames, Crosbyton, M. S. Hudson, Hale Center, R. D. Jones, Paducah, J. Y. Thompson, Tahoka, C. A. Baron, Lamesa, and D. L. Tucker, Levelland, N. H. Payne is General Manager.

J. T. Whitley Terry Co. Pension Director

Jim Whitley, of the Gomez community, was here this week, and called on the Herald. He informed us that he had been appointed Terry county director of organization for the Townsend Clubs, Old Age Revolving Pensions. He will make each community in the county, organize, and get the names of those before congress at its next session, as it is believed that Congress will have to be shown that the people are for this measure.

Mr. Whitley stated that no one was to receive these pensions except those at the age of 60 or above, and they shall have to be in need. The pension is to be $200 per month, rather high at first thought, but one of the conditions is that this money cannot be hoarded, but turned back into trade channels each month, which will help all people in each community. It stops at the death of the pensioner.

Terry County Singing Convention at Wellman

Mack Thomason informed us this week that the Terry County Singing Convention will meet at Wellman, Sunday, and as Wellman has always done great by the convention, and they have some mighty fine voices in that section, it is expected to be a great day.

All singers and lovers of good singing are invited to attend the convention, and to bring well filled baskets.

Bowers Erecting a New Brick Building

Bob Bowers is having a new brick building 25x50 feet built next to the Carter Chevrolet Co., and using the west wall of the latter building. This will be a very pretty little building, when completed with decorated brick front and plate glass in the front and part of the side. George Snodgrass is the contractor.

The building will be leased to Chester Gore whose filling station is just across the driveway from the building. A full line of casings and tubes will be carried, and a battery service station will be put in as well as new batteries carried in stock. Room for storage of at least three cars will be made in the rear, and that is another item.

A stranger drove in this week and asked if there was a house or store building to rent. He was informed that there was not, and that all the tourist camps were full of people who actually live here. He said he had traveled about quite a bit and knew of no other place as crowded for lack of homes as Brownfield, outside some oil boom town.

WTSTC Celebrating Silver Anniversary

The Herald had an invitation to attend the Silver Anniversary of the West Texas State Teachers College at Canyon this week end, Friday and Saturday. From the program sent us, we note that Ernest Cabe, Jr., former student (in the Brownfield High, and a 1934 graduate of the college, was to make a short address. He now lives at Pampa.

The Herald is very sorry that it will have no representative at Canyon, as this college was the first state college to be given west Texas, and pioneered educationally. The good this great school has done this whole section, will never be known. We shall never forget how well this great school entertained the Texas Press Association, which met in Amarillo in June 1924. They took the editors in charge one mid-afternoon, and until about ten that night, we were royally entertained and feasted.

3 Noted Educators Visit in Brownfield

Mr. J. D. Holbrook, Deputy State Superintendent, Mr. K. E. Oberholzer, Superintendent of the Lubbock Schools, and Dr. A. W. Evans, Head of the Department of Education at Texas Technological College, were in Brownfield Saturday morning and addressed a group of teachers, school board members and others interested in education. Mr. Holbrook talked briefly on the classification of school and the educational program the State has undertaken in the rural districts. Mr. Oberholzer discussed the curriculum revision program that is being inaugurated this year. Dr. Evans attacked the proposed constitutional amendment proposing to limit the amount of revenue that can be collected and expended by the State.

Another Big Concert Closes Singing School

Friday night, October 19th, will close the singing school which has been in progress at the Baptist church for the past two weeks. To those who appreciate good singing and music, this will be a program that you will enjoy.

Local talent again will give thirty minutes of the hour and half program. The Stamps Quartet will be heard in a varied song entertainment, harmony comedy, etc. Other features will also be added.

There will be an admission of 10c to help on expenses of the singing school. Ask people who heard the concert two weeks ago. Come and give your family a worthwhile enjoyment.

A lot of small cottages of from four to six rooms are badly needed in Brownfield, and owners could keep them rented practically all the time at reasonable prices to both owner and renter. Some apartments and duplexes would rent well too.

The Lubbock Avalanche classes Scurry county as a South Plains county. There is not a foot, not a particle of that county above the caprock. A whole county, Burden, separates it from the South Plains or caprock. We would advise J. Sam to study his geography some.

The Herald joins the South Plains press in tendering condolence to Editor Guy, publisher of the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal in the loss of his father at Tulsa, Okla., recently. Next to mother and wife, the loss of a great old dad is a severe blow, and we are sure Charley had a real dad.

The Big Spring News says that the drouth is still with them, and is hoping that they get more rain right away. On the other hand, Terry county farmers, who received big rains in both August and September, are almost praying that rain stay away until they gather their crops.

Mr. Hoover in one of his speeches seems to think it almost a crime, at least socialism, for a city to own its own utilities. He thinks they should all be owned by the big syndicates. Well, if those who believe in a city owning its own light, power, sewer and water systems are socialistic, then the Brownfield citizenship are socialists almost to a man.

The Herald will not in these columns undertake to dictate to the voter, but will merely say that if you are against beer, scratch the top paragraph, and if you think beer should be continued in Brownfield, you will scratch the bottom paragraph.

ARISTOCRACY OF LABOR
A NATIONAL MENACE

Discussing the problems of labor and its renewed demand for a full week's pay for thirty hours work, as one of the greatest barriers to economic recovery constituting a menace to social order, Peter Molyneux aptly says in the Texas Weekly:
"Chronic unemployment as a social menace is no new idea to the readers of these columns. It goes without saying that we agree heartily with President Roosevelt when he says: "Demoralization caused by vast unemployment is our greatest extravagance. Morally, it is the greatest menace to our social order." And we are glad to have the President declare that "we must make it a national principle that we will not tolerate a large army of unemployed and that we will arrange our national economy to end our present unemployment as soon as we can and then to take wise measures against its return." We suspect that among the "some people" who have tried to tell the President that we must make up our minds that for the future we shall have millions of unemployed permanently there are members of his own official family. For some of his administrative lieutenants have been trying to tell that to the people. However, we sincerely hope that this declaration of the President's is more than a mere expression of purpose, for something more than that is needed. And the first thing that is needed is to get rid, once and for all of the nonsense about removing the menace of unemployment by creating an aristocracy of labor, working only thirty hours a week at high wages, and then "protecting" it against "foreign competition" with high tariff walls, embargoes, and other trade barriers. That is the surest plan we know to perpetuate "vast unemployment" and to make it chronic. It is the surest way we know also to foster discontent and promote extreme radicalism—to convert the army of unemployed into a very active menace to our social order. The counsels of Secretary Hull should have more weight and those of Miss Perkins less and less. Also it might help to fish the Democratic platform out of the wastebasket."—Clarendon News.

THE YOUNG OLD MAN

Brother, can you spare a dime?
I hate to ask you, see?
But I'm kinda cold and hungry
And ragged at the knee.
I'm not a regular beggar,
But I've got to live, you know;
I always had a steady job
Till 'bout a year ago.
I had some money in the bank
And everything was fine;
I didn't have to worry
'Bout that wife and kids of mine.
But I lost the job, the bank went bad,
And I nearly lost my mind;
I started out to get a job,
But they were hard to find.
If you've passed the age of forty,
No matter what your trade,
They class you as an old man
And you cannot make the grade.
It make me sad and heartsick,
My eyes they fill with tears,
To think that I am done for
At the age of forty years.
Thank you, thank you, brother,
For giving me the dime!
I've done the same to others
Many and many a time
I hope good old St. Peter
(When I meet him at the gate),
Won't say "I see your age is forty
When it should be thirty-eight."

MANY COMPLAINTS RECEIVED
BY RELIEF COMMISSION

AUSTIN, Sept. 17. —While legislatures Thursday were wrestling with the problem of mounting expenditures for relief in Texas, officials of the state administration, among other things, were working overtime to answer hundreds of protest from all parts of the state from clients who maintain that the present allotments are not sufficient to keep them from going hungry!
Letters protesting inadequate budgets reach the director by the score every day. These cases are referred to Charles Davis, investigation supervisor, who inquires into each case.
"Mostly," Davis said, "our complaints are from uninformed clients who do not understand that civil work administration projects have ceased to be and that our budget now are entirely on a subsistence basis. We are thoroughly in accord with these claims that budgets are inadequate but when we have only $10 or $12 per month to allot to each case, our hands are tied."

Davis explained that a case does not necessarily mean just one person. It may mean a family of eight or ten. The average number of persons per case is 4.8
H. L. Davis, field supervisor, explained how a county's case budget is calculated. At this time, rural counties receive $10 per case, urban counties $12, the difference being allowed for variance in cost of living. The effects of drouth then are considered and the total is increased according to number of persons added to rolls because drouth amount of feed necessary for livestock, damage done gardens and the like.

Can You Prove Your Oil is Better than the Others?

We Can and Do!

This Machine Shows Why this New Oil Cuts Motor Wear and Saves You Money!

YOU, as a buyer of Motor Oil, should ask that question—and demand facts! Here is Continental's answer: In the demonstration pictured below, the film strength and oiliness of every well known motor oil in America have been shown to be increased by the addition of a drop of Germ Essence.

Demonstrations before at least two hundred thousand motor-minded men have proved that "Any oil would be better oil if Germ Processed!" But there is only one oil made by the patented Germ Process—New and Improved Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil! Use this oil of proved strength in your car! It saves you money by giving greater motor protection and lower oil consumption. It gives you the comfortable feeling that you know your car is protected by the safest, finest motor oil made!

1 Assembled instrument. Split bearings and shaft, lubricated with competitive oil, are clamped between "jaws" of instrument. With set-screw, extreme pressure is applied.

2 Crank is now used to turn shaft. Oil film ruptures and bearings "seize." Shaft extremely hard to turn. You can even hear the metal-to-metal contact!

3 Drop of Germ Essence is added to oil in bearing. Same pressure applied. Shaft can now be turned easily. Smooth, quiet movement—no seizing—no sound. Proof that Germ Processing increases oiliness and film strength of any oil!

TO CAR OWNERS OF BROWNFIELD

Continental backs claims with facts. To prove that New and Improved Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil gives you lower oil consumption as well as greater motor protection, we drove six brand new cars to destruction, testing this oil against five other nationally known oils. Any Conoco station will give you a booklet that tells the story of this convincing test. It will pay you in money saved to read it. Drive in and ask for a copy—or try this oil!

LIFE INSURANCE AND NATIONAL WEALTH

In 1850 the national wealth of the United States was about $7,000,000,000. Life insurance in force totaled $75,000,000—one per cent of the wealth.

By 1900 the national wealth had risen to $88,000,000,000, and life insurance in force totaled $350,000,000,000—ten per cent of the national wealth.

In 1929 the national wealth was between $320,000,000,000 and $350,000,000,000, while life insurance policies outstanding aggregated over $100,000,000,000—close to a third of the wealth.

This constant progression is indicative of the attitude of the American people toward life insurance. During the present century there has been great decentralization of wealth, which has given the average man more to spend. As the average income rose, a steadily ascending percentage of it was applied to life insurance. Late estimates indicate that 67 per cent of our people own life policies. It is an encouraging fact that the trend is toward the purchasing of policies of the investment type which create estates and protect the head of a family as well as his dependents, rather than policies which mature only at the death of the wage earner.

Hard-headed observers forecast that life insurance is just on the verge of its period of greatest expansion—and that even its fine record in the past will look small compared to that of the future. If that is true, there need be little worry over the ultimate economic welfare of the American people.

Absentee voting started October 1th for the general election for November 6th according to Rex Headstream, county clerk.

Merle McCoy of Binville, La., is visiting his sister, Mrs. (Dr.) John R. Turner this week.

RED GOOSE—THE OJIBWA INDIAN BOY

An Indian Story for Boys and Girls
By Carlyle Emery

It is night in Pipestone Valley, and Steve Gray is singing to keep his spirit up. "What are you afraid of?" asks Pete Lukens, and Steve replies, "Ghosts." The Indians say they walk at night in this here Valley. Now go on with the story.

"I'm not feared of ghosts, so stop yer singing and let me go to sleep," said Pete, as Steve kept on with his rollicking song about "Californy."

But no sooner had Steve's song died out than a strange ghost-like cry of a wolf was heard over toward the West. Then it came again this time from the East, and almost immediately again from the South.

"What's that? What's that?" asked Steve, in a trifled whisper.

"I dunno. I dunno," answered Pete. "Sounded like a wolf and yet it didn't."

"I'll tell yer what it sounded like. It sounded like the ghost of a wolf, that's what it did." As Steve made this statement, his face turned as white as a piece of paper.

"I guess maybe we shouldn't have tried to steal this here pipestone," Pete volunteered.

"I told yer the ghost would be mad if we did, and now they're startin' ter act up. I'm gonna get outer here," and so speaking Steve began to gather in a blanket.

By this time the whole camp was aroused for every white man in the Valley had heard the three cries of the ghost wolf.

"Ah, yer all crazy," said Jeff Blake an old timer. "There ain't no ghost in this Valley, I tell yer. That's just Indian stuff. Fergit it and go ter sleep."

This quieted the men down for a little while, and then suddenly, Pete saw a small black figure silhouetted against the moon, standing on a rock not far away.

"Look, Steve look!" he whispered.

"What's that? I just saw it move!" As Steve looked in the direction toward which Pete was pointing, the black figure began to move. It began to walk slowly but surely directly toward them.

"It's an Indian," said Steve.

"It's a girl."

"She's coming this way"

"Sh-h-h-h—"

"Hey, there, What do you want?" asked Jeff.

Little Beaver, for it was she, continued to walk slowly straight toward the camp, and when Jeff spoke to her she answered in a cold monotone.

"Go - white Man - Go -"

"Whattye mean, 'Go'" growled Jeff.

"Ghosts all around you. Ghost walk tonight."

"Ghost, eh? Aw go on There ain' no ghost"

"I have warned you. Now I go."

And before the men could catch her, Little Beaver had slipped behind a rock and disappeared.

Houston in Life

Here is an oil painting of General Sam Houston, military liberator of Texas, that pictures him as he really was, for it was made from a daguerreotype taken in 1847. The painting is life-size and was made on order of prominent citizens of Houston, Texas, who presented it to the U. S. Cruiser Houston. The original daguerreotype was made when Houston was a U. S. Senator at Washington. (Texas News Photos.)

Now is a Good Time To Select Your Casket

Where would you like to be buried, or cremated, when that car you drive at 60 to 80 miles an hour turns over? Also, what kind of a coffin or urn would you prefer for all that's left of you after the pieces have picked up and prepared for the last sad rites?

Of course you are going to be killed. All careless drivers are killed sooner or later, and YOU may get it any day. We refer especially to you young fellows, and young ladies—some of you are high school and junior college graduates—who drive down Sixth street every day and evening as though you were going to a fire.

They don't bury'em any more on Twenty-five Hill, but you can order a nice resting place in the new cemetery. The grass is nice and green there and they furnish marble slabs on which the date of your birth and the day you "committed suicide" are engraved.

Or you might prefer to have a hole dug for you in Union cemetery, or up on the Kern river bluffs. It would be well to arrange for this part of the program for you are sure going to pass on one of these days.

Then, as regards a casket, Do you prefer a black walnut box, one made of hickory, or a plain metal container. They are lined in pretty shades of pink, blue, old rose, peacock blue and gossling gray. Go down to the funeral home some day and ask to be shown the latest in caskets, so you will be laid away in the kind and color you like best. Possibly you would prefer one that's lined with asbestos.

And be sure and have some life and accident insurance. Of course you won't be here to spend it, but there will be a big bill to pay for a coffin, hearse, grave, flowers, etc., and you should provide for this before you commit suicide by speeding your car and making a damn fool of yourself.—Taft (Calif.) Dispatch.

THE HIGHWAY—THE CAR—THE DRIVER

When you take your car on streets or highways, three definite factors are involved. First, the road. Second the car. Third, the human element yourself.

Practically every car accident can be traced to one of these three factors. And the third is infinitely the more important. Highway engineers have done their part to make driving safer—they have given us modile highways, with scientifically constructed turns and the safest of surfaces. Automobile development in safer bodies, brakes, steering, lights and tires have been nothing short of sensational.

For every accident that can be blamed on the road or the automobile a dozen can be blamed on the driver. It is an established fact that the bulk of accidents occur on good straight roads in ordinary weather and involve cars whose mechanical condition is adequate. Apparently, if a road and a car are produced which make it safe to drive ten miles an hour faster than in the past, a legion of drivers will at once start driving twenty miles faster—and the inevitable result is a mounting accident toll.

The present year is witnessing a tremendous increase in accidents over 1933—if the trend continues a new high in fatalities may be established. The cure is knowledge that tells you how to drive under all conditions, and a sense of the responsibility you owe to all who use the public highways. If every motorist would start an individual safety campaign of his own the automobile accident record would go into a tailspin.

Weekly Cotton Grade And Staple Report

The report released today (Oct. 13) by the Division of Cotton Marketing at Austin, Texas giving the quality of cotton produced in Texas indicates that nearly 40 per cent of the cotton classed is Extra White in color and between one-third and one-fourth is Strict Middling and better in this color.

The White Strict Middling and better grades amount to about one-fourth of the cotton classed this week while Middling is about one-tenth of the total. There is less than one per cent that graded below Low Middling.

Spotted grades are estimated to be near one-fifth of the cotton this week.

There is a very marked increase in the shorter staple lengths this week, with a corresponding decrease in the longer staples. The percentage of cotton shorter than 7-8 inch staple produced this week is approximately 30 per cent, which is an increase over than reported last week. 7-8 inch cotton is estimated to be 54 per cent, and 15-16 inch staple dropped to 12.5 per cent for the week. The staple lengths of 1 inch and longer are about 3 per cent.

The percentage of tenderable cotton this week is 68.4 as compared with 87.4 per cent to date.

SLEEPING GIANT AWAKES

Seeing the "Zephyr" here Saturday betokens the possibilities of what might be had the Burlington and other rail system heads through the years and chose to remain in 'chrysalis' form while the world moved on. Competitive auto manufacturers moved rapidly forward discarding each season's errors of the past, while the great rail transportation system held tenaciously to a system in vogue half a century ago.

The Zephyr is the astounding result of one stroke of clear-thinking. Should this course be pursued, what may we expect within the next few years in the gigantic battle of financial wits of "survive or perish." "Travel by rail" will become an actuality rather than a slogan if more Zephyrs are used to displace an expensive antiquated rolling stock of cumbersome junk of a past age that offers little comfort and convenience measured in terms of autos and trucks.

The public will welcome modernized rail traffic with passenger and tonnage patronage that will astound the most conservative—Clarendon Leader

Luther French was in with another bale of cotton Wednesday.

Mission la Bahia, a few miles from Goliad, will ever remain a shrine of all Texans. The mission, pictured above, was built in 1749 and formed the nucleus of the settlement of Goliad, one of the three Spanish outposts in Texas at that time, the other two being Nacogdoches and Bexar, now San Antonio. Here in 1812, Magee gave Salcedo, Mexican general, his first taste of Anglo-Saxon war tactics, and here Col. J. W. Fannin and his men surrendered honorably to Urrea, only to be slaughtered like dogs within sight of this mission. The massacre took place March 27, Palm Sunday, 1836, and of 357 Texans in that doomed band, only 27 escaped with their lives. Mission la Bahia is still used for worship today. (Texas News Photos.)

Young Texan Thrills State Fair Throngs

The State Fair of Texas does not have to go out of the state to get one of its greatest attractions, and the picture of Manuel King, 10-year-old Rio Grande Valley boy handling full grown lions proves it. Manuel, the only boy lion trainer in the world, is the son of "Snake" King, famous Valley rancher. He goes in for animals in general and snakes in particular. Manuel stages two big animal shows daily at the State Fair in Dallas this year, and they're free to all those who attend the Fair. (Texas News Photos.)

CUBS, CONDITION!

Are the Cubs in condition? Are we helping them keep in condition? The football player has many requirements to follow. We believe that smoking is detrimental to our team. We further believe that men of the town and boys not on the team should discourage the use of tobacco among the boys. Why should they offer a cigarette when it lessens our chance to win?

This applies also to drink. Drink lowers a player's vitality and weakens the team as a whole. We believe it is poor school spirit to tempt or encourage the boys in this habit.

We should consider a girl "yellow" who insists on regular dates with her "crush" during the football season. Where is her respect for his friendship? Let us show our appreciation for the boys by helping them make a favorable showing for themselves and their school. They need the night's rest for relaxation, and the relaxation for renewed energy with which to participate more effectively in their sport.

The boys should not "let up" on Saturday night. The girl who insists on "late hours" on these nights should not have the respect of a football player. She is being disloyal to her school and fellow classmates.

Football players are denied the drinking of sodas, cold drinks and the like but—some girls are so cleverly talented that they are able to divert the poor fellow's mind, and presently her pleasure "hath risen" to the nth degree for she daintily clasps in her small white hand, her favorite drink! Ah yes, the boys have many temptations and we must help them. That is our small part in developing a winning football club.

Every day we see a girl interfering with a player's study. Each evening there is some one who would hinder him from his practice. Is this fair? We not only hurt the player but we weaken the entire team and bring reproach upon the grand old school we love so dearly.

We need cooperation—And we must have cooperation if this year's football season is to be a success!

Are we helping the boys keep in condition? Cubs must condition.

CUB COMMENT

The first conference game for the Brownfield Fighting Cubs is only two weeks in the future. The boys go to Levelland Friday, Oct. 19, and then the following week Slaton comes to Brownfield for the first conference game. Are the student body, faculty, and the men of our town backing our club? Are the boys doing their best for the school? Let's go to see all the games that the Fighting Cubs play.

Miss Winston, B. H. S. Home Economics teacher, attended the Northwestern Home Economics Conference in Lubbock, Friday. Miss Lillian Peck, our State Supervisor was present. Mrs. Wester met with the H. E. classes, that day.

Coach made this remark, "What good does it do for a football player to keep training all week and then break it over the week-end? Will the player breaking training Saturday night be able to do his best in the game the following Friday?" We think not!

The Pep Squad will be suited out completely in their suits Friday when they go to Levelland, as their caps have arrived.

A football player made this remark, "I think it looks as bad for a Pep Squad girl to wear her suit other places as it would for a boy to wear his football suit." We wonder too?

The Seniors brought in their deposit for their class rings Wednesday. In about six weeks "watch out" for the Senior rings.

All the girls coming out for basketball have been examined by local physicians free of charge. These physicians giving this service were: Drs. Treadaway, Jacobson and Turner. Most of the 42 girls that were examined were found in good condition. We are grateful to the doctors for this help.

If you can't say anything good about the football players and their coach, "keep quiet."

According to Miss Winston, sponsor of the girl's playground ball, there are some twenty girls coming out in that sport for the Interscholastic League Meet. We are proud of this, and we believe that the coach will be able to pick a winning team from this group. Each girl is capable of winning, and each has the fine old school spirit that will help to make a winning team.

On Tuesday evening of this week, the Dramatic Club began rehearsing a three-act comedy entitled "Hold Everything" This play will be presented as a benefit program at an early date.

As we go to press we notice that the Initiation Program of the H. E. Club has not been written up. We hope to have a full report of this delightful event next week.

CUBS BEAT MEADOW

In a slow game, free from spectacular plays, the Fighting Cubs overran the Meadow Broncos, Friday, October 12, with a score of 32 to 0. Cub passes filled the air but few were completed because of fumbles or slow get-off. First downs were few for the Meadow team, but were made at will by the local boys. Twice during the first half, "Jimmy" Burnett scored for the Cubs by making short end runs. Neither of these goals was kicked. Chambliss and Duke were the next to make touchdowns, and later Manning accepted a pass and plunged over. Of the five touchdowns only two were kicked; these two points being made by Redford and Burnett.

This was the first home game of the season for the Meadow team, and the second they have ever played. Nevertheless, some members of this inexperienced team showed talent that was worth seeing, and all seemed to have the old fighting spirit that is necessary for any team to win.

Brownfield is looking forward to that time when the Cubs will meet the Levelland team, on the Levelland field, and return victorious. That time is scheduled for Friday, October 19.

The Sophomores met October 15. Several new, "peppy" yells were selected and practiced. The class intends to do big things this year, and they have the winning spirit. Several of the best football players come from the Sophomore Class, and almost all of the girls in the ninth are coming out for basketball. A social was planned for Saturday night, October 20, at the home of Mildred Adams.

CUB CHAPEL

On Wednesday morning, October 10, the students gathered in the auditorium for another interesting chapel exercise. Betty Jo Savage gave the reading "Find the Murderer;" Vondee Lewis gave an interesting reading also. A special song was given by a girls' quartette arranged by Doy Murphy. These selections were enjoyed immensely by all who were present.

Again on Friday morning the students were assembled to hear a special program arranged by Mr. Meek and Mr. Burleson. They were too late to present the program, due to the fact they set their time with a dead clock. The Pep Squad conducted a pep rally and got the spirit keyed up for the game with Meadow that afternoon. Mr. Meek stated that he would have a program ready for next Friday. Everyone is invited to attend this program of music.

Cub Clubs

The Dramatics Club met last Thursday. Clifton Jones gave a reading on The Life of Shakespeare. Bill Savage told us about Early American Drama. There was a try out of about thirty people to see who could best dramatize the sentence, "Your father has been shot, Sir, he is dying." We don't yet know who won, but maybe we can tell more about it next time.

The High School Girls' Glee Club practices every Wednesday and Thursday at 4:30 at the home of Mrs. W. H. Dallas. They have appeared on several programs already and have been invited to six or more schools to sing in the chapel programs. On October 27, the Club plans to sing over KFYO at 5:30 P. M. Mrs. Dallas is doing a great work. She has planned a "Coffee" for the club, Sunday morning, October 31. All members will be invited. Soon the girls quartette will be picked from the club and will appear on programs. An Indian program has been planned and will be presented as soon as it can be worked up.

The Science Club met in the science room October 16. Each pupil gave a great inventor's name and told what he or she invented. There were also, or some special talks. They were as follows:
 Life of Darwin—Addie Stuart.
 What Science Is—Harold Hill.
 Bacteria—Laddie Lynn Brownfield.
 Edison's Inventions—Melvin Spear
 The club is going to try hard to be one of the best clubs in High School. If the co-operation of the members will continue success is certain.

DRAMATIC CLUB GOES TREASURE HUNTING

On Monday evening the members of the Dramatic Club met at the school house and went in a body to see the famous screen play, "Treasure Island," which was taken from the book by Robert Louis Stevenson. Mr. Jones had reserved seats for the student body.

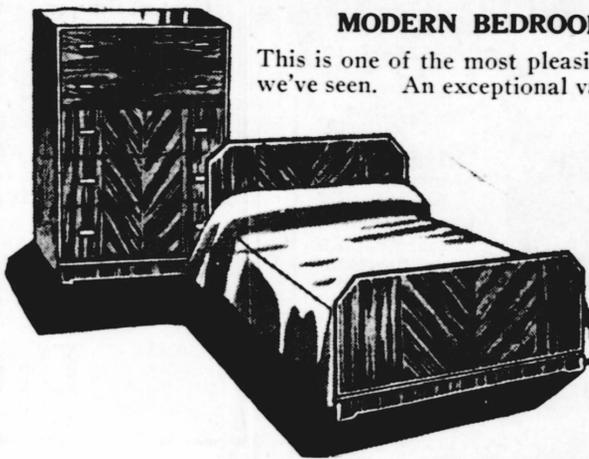

This program was enjoyed by about four high school teachers and sixty students. Some fifteen of whom have been studying the classic in English class. Everyone reported a good time and seemed to think that the people who missed it, missed a show that would have been well worth the money. The show offered a thrill to both young and old. Can it be that any boy of the Dramatic Club has any ambition to be a sea-farer after seeing "Treasure Island?" The Dramatic Club wishes to thank Mr. Jones for reserving seats for the students who saw the show.

Our 23 Year Column—

On the front page of our issue of October 20th, 1911, we have an account of the death of J. N. Groves, one of the pioneer ranchmen and farmers of this county. He was buried in Colorado City. On the same page was a writeup taken from a current copy of the Dallas Morning News, praising very highly the combined exhibit from Terry and Yoakum counties, which were carried down there by Wm. Howard and Col. J. T. Gainer. We note that editorially, the Herald was for C. B. Randle for U. S. Senator to succeed Bailey. But Morris Shepherd got the job.

John W. Gordon, of the Gordon ranches was a pleasant caller at the Herald office. Mrs. W. R. Spencer was taking treatment from an ear specialist in Dallas. Terry county beat Yoakum on the watermelon by a scratch. The Yoakum melon weighed 76 pounds, while Terry had two just a bit heavier. W. D. Winn reported having a good crop. Uncle Tom Holley was improving barn. M. V. Brownfield and daughter, Miss Effie, were business visitors to Lubbock. Rev. and Mrs. V. Trammell had left for Conference. One of Jim Walker's boys got a finger cut off in a cane slide. Miss Ann Hamilton had returned from a visit to Plainview. Mrs. Mary Duffau and turned from Clarendon where she brother, Henry Witt, called on the returned from New Mexico with Clay Hughes was working his way through the Cameron High School. Wiley Bridges brought us two huge yams, and Mrs. J. T. Hamilton Mrs. Henry Pulliam of Meadow. F. brought us a long necked kershaw. Pyeatt and wife had returned from Owing to scarcity of labor, many of the farmers had stopped their children from school. What a contrast to 1934. Rev. Kerby was holding a protracted meeting at Jay-Cross. Judge Spencer had the old Holden building remodeled. In company with V. E. Hargett, we saw some fine crops on his place southwest of the city, also some good stock. The Treasurer's Quarterly Report of A. B. Bynum showed the county in good shape for early fall. The jury fund had a balance of $250.43, the Road and Bridge, $97.02, and the General Fund, $6,211.43.

Gomez News: The youngsters enjoyed a party at Geo. Black's, singing at the Hotel Sunday night. Ennis Ware brought in a bale of cotton. Walter Gainer had done some stunt in traveling. He had carried a load of passengers from Plains to Lubbock, and got back as far as Gomez that night, something like 125 miles. Gee! Weren't they speeding in those days? Oscar Adams had carried a load of cotton to Lubbock, and would bring back freight. Miss Mary Pulliam had returned to her home in Plains, after a visit in Gomez. Rev. Lovelady of Plains, was visiting Gomez friends. All Gomez rent houses were full.

Primrose: Sam Moorehead had out two bales of cotton. Singing at Jim Walker's boys got a finger cut off in a cane slide. Miss Ann Hamilton had returned from a visit to Plainview. Mrs. Mary Duffau and turned from Clarendon where she brother, Henry Witt, called on the returned from New Mexico with Clay Hughes was working his way through the Cameron High School. Wiley Bridges brought us two huge yams, and Mrs. J. T. Hamilton Mrs. Henry Pulliam of Meadow. F. brought us a long necked kershaw. Pyeatt and wife had returned from Owing to scarcity of labor, many of ents, Mr. and Mrs. Tow. All for this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Wheatley of Santa Anna, Calif., are here visiting their parents, Mr and Mrs. J. O. Wheatley of the Johnson community; also Mrs. Whetley's sister, Mrs. H. L. Bryant, of this city.

We are requested to announce that Dawson county semi-annual singing convention will be held at Fairview, 29 miles southeast of Brownfield Saturday and Sunday.

Dr. J. D. Moorehead of Meadow, was down last Thursday shaking hands with his many friends.

LITTLE CAUSE FOR ALARM SEEN IN CHINESE SITUATION

Cotton acreage reduction campaigns in the South in 1905, 1915, 1921 and 1927 were acclaimed as life-savers to the South, but except for the 1905 campaign they were not very successful. The present Agricultural Adjustment Administration has effectively curbed production, removed a huge price-smashing surplus, helped cotton prices, and started farm and business recovery. There are some, however, who question these gains because of the fear of surrendering cotton markets to foreigners.

This series based on figures of the Cotton Section, Agricultural Adjustment Administration, has shown reported decreases in 1934 cotton acreage in India, Egypt and Russia. The difficulties in future big expansion of cotton acreage in these countries have been mentioned. In the present article the Chinese situation is examined.

The pressure of population on food supply is so great in China that increases in cotton acreage will probably come very slowly. Famine is a danger never very far distant from the Chinese people. Transportation is very poor, and this limits the importation of food into the interior where cotton might be grown. This also makes it hard to market cotton. Many areas are entirely shut off from the outside food supplies and must grow all their own food.

China had 6 million acres in cotton last year, and this increased an estimated 5 to 10 per cent this year. The estimated increased crop this year is seven per cent over last year. Average yields of cotton are high, being 206 pounds per acre over a period of years.

The Japanese are a strong influence in China. They are attempting to develop the country and this of course tends to increase cotton production. The average size of cultivated tract per Chinese Farmer in Kiangsu Province, which is a leading cotton section, is 3.7 acres. The average size of cotton patch per farm is slightly less than one-half acre per farm. Modern gins are unknown in many sections. This means that ginning must be done by hand, but there is no lack of labor for this work.

If cotton prices should get so high in China that they are out of line with food prices, there would probably be a tendency to increase cotton acreage in certain parts of the country. The chances, however, are that cotton acreage will continue to grow very slowly. At present China offers little threat to the American cotton grower.

No one would deny that foreign competition in cotton growing is a constant threat to the South and always has been. That such competition will rapidly take away America's markets is another matter. Sensible American production to assure a decent American price will not throw away foreign markets. Adjustment, which is the cornerstone of the AAA cotton program, does not always mean reduction.

THE ADMINISTRATION HAS MADE MISTAKES, BUT—

Regardless of the mistakes that have been made by the Democratic Administration, we cannot see that the recent attacks by Hoover and the old guard have helped the Republicans in their efforts to gain favor with the people. The Harding, Coolidge and Hoover administrations will finally find their places as the most corrupt in our national history. It was during this period that big business ran riot, swindling the people through combinations and unjust markup in values and unloading stocks in companies which were bonded for two or three times their appraisal value. These unholly combinations not only had leeway but the encouragement of such government as we then had.

Hoover remained perfectly passive until over one-third of the banks in the United States went broke, impoverishing almost as great a percentage of the people, and subsequent investigations made of the big banks which were profiting from this condition, did everything but add confidence to the stability of our country.

Hoover discouraged the plan proposed in Congress to investigate the utility debauch, when one of them alone had stolen over a billion dollars from the savings of the people. Some of the utilities which sold more stock than their capital investment, their appraisal value, and with their huge earnings went broke. It is not known yet who got the money except those who had access to it. This condition as to future swindles has been remedied by the Securities Act passed by Roosevelt's Administration. Our mails are burdened with propaganda fighting this one protection to the investor, when the only vital element in the law is that a company which wishes to float an issue must file in the Federal Trade Commission a statement of their assets, both real and tangible, personnel of officers and such other information as every investor should know before putting up his earned cash. It provides penalties for statements later found to be false, and was necessary to regain a confidence in the business structure that had been lost.

It is being charged that this act is impending progress, when as a matter of fact it was as necessary to confidence as the bank deposit guarantee. It is eliminating the corporation swindlers and hundreds of them have been forced to resign for official positions and control boards in corporations. They are fighting because they are forced to lay their cards on the table and give the buyer a square deal. Legitimate business is not complaining. The trouble seems to be with the old guard is that the legislation of the present administration has been for the benefit of the people which necessarily makes it hard on corrupt business. The Liberty League is but a non-parian element which has been organized to discredit the administration, and to advocate a throw-back to the days when plundering was both seemingly legitimate and respectable.—Levelland Herald.

CAUSES AND CURES OF THE DEPRESSION

"Nobody in the world knows exactly what causes depressions, not even Senators or Army officers," says Neill Carothers, Professor of Economics at Lehigh University, in article in the New York Herald-Tribune Magazine. "The economists, who do know quite a lot about depressions, admit that they cannot isolate the exact cause. They know that it is not the gold standard or the stock exchange or farm prices or the rich grinding the faces of the poor. In fact, they know there is no one cause but a combination. . . ."

"Depressions do not originate in non-capitalistic countries such as India. Economic breakdowns in such countries are reactions to depressions in capitalistic countries, not hastily conclude from this that capitalism is a failure. The non-capitalistic countries have chronic miser and recurrent famines. The awful spectacle of children starving to death by thousands is to be seen only in China, which has not developed capitalism, and in Russia. . . .

"Just as they hesitate to assign a specific cause for depression, so do the economists refrain from proposing a patent cure. They know that the one cure is that one remedy for all human ills—time. . . ."

"Trying to force recovery by statute is like standing up in a sail boat and blowing on the sails. The speed of the boat is determined by forces outside it. . . ."

It is natural that we should attempt to abnormally force recovery, and it is almost inevitable that such efforts should largely fail. Economic laws which are as old as organized government cannot long be circumvented—precisely as these laws make depressions they eventually present us with a cure. No one conversant with the history of this country can believe that it will not pull itself out of the doldrums—but natural, not artificial, forces will deserve most of the credit when that is done.

TEMPERANCE NEEDED

The eighteenth amendment came into existence because the American public believed that no step was too drastic to outlaw the evils that had appeared in the liquor problem. Millions of thinking American citizens, who were not "dry" in the sense of believing it a crime to take a drink, had seen the power of the saloon appear in politics, degrading city and state government, and had watched intruded interests successfully violate both the letter and spirit of the laws that then existed to control the sale of liquor.

The eighteenth amendment was repealed by this same thinking public when it became apparent that the evils existing before were magnified, rather than lessened. The ends of temperance were not served, the gangster came into his glory, and million-dollar bootleggers became as politically powerful as their legal predecessors had in the old days. Today the American people want temperance. They want the liquor

Norris Declares New Deal No Experiment

"Under the New Deal we are answering the demand for progress," said Senator George W. Norris in his first speech of the campaign at McCook, Nebraska.

"The changing attitude toward labor; and our social and economic reforms of today are no more an experiment than the actions of our forefathers in rebelling against England, freeing the slaves or adopting the initiative and referendum. Except that the fight in which we are now engaged is for the preservation of our civilization.

"It would only take one more such depression," said the senator, "to kill our civilization. If we are as wise as I think we are, we will recognize that we cannot permanently exist with an army of unemployed. We will devise, through legislation, a means to prevent the return of the depressions which the older school of economists tell us are 'natural.'

"To do so will require that we set aside some of our cherished 'ideals' which have outlived their usefulness. What we need is humanity in our statutes. We must learn to practice humanity in government, to recognize that we are our brothers keeper that human values and political theory must be harmonized and that the sole object of government is the happiness of the people.

"I am not worried as to where we are headed. The fact that we are on the move, progressively pressing forward, is what counts. As long as I am satisfied that every step being taken is honestly made and right I'm willing to take it.

"The charge we now hear that such a policy means experimenting with government is certainly no cause for fear. The constitutional bugaboo is flaunted whenever change has ever been suggested. Our constitution represented the ultimate in progress 147 years ago. It met the demands of that period with courageous measure such as we invoke today. It sought to guarantee to men the right to improve their station through improving their government. It was never intended to be a stop-signal to progress which many would make it."

MUCH LIKE A MONSTER

Carrido Canabal, Governor of the Mexican state of Tabasco, declaring that it is "against the race and treasonable to the state" for women to bob their hair, warns them to desist. Which only goes to show that Carrido Canabal has never heard of William Pryne (1160-1669), English Puritan and M. P.

William Pryne crusaded against bobbed hair three centuries before Governor Canabal ever thought of it. English gentlemen, he said with horror, "are now grown so farre past shame, past modesty, grace and nature, as to clip their haire like men with lockes and foretops, and to make this cut the very guise and fashion of the times."

Bitterly he admonished them: "Even nature herself abhors to see a woman shorne or polled; a woman with cut haire is a filthy spectacle, and much like a monster . . . it being natural and comely to women to nourish their haire, which even God and nature have given them for a covering, a token of subjection, and natural badge to distinguish them from man."—Literary Digest.

SPORTS

MIDDLE WESTERN newspapers commenting upon the overthrow of the Norte Dame football tradition a week ago, rather freely use the expression, "a football obscurity from Texas," in referring to the victors on that occasion. Provinciality, the dictionary says consists of unawareness toward anything not within the limits of ones own hallowick.—Fort Worth Star Telegram.

While the smaller dailies of the mid-west were rather brazen, that great magazine, the Literary Digest, uses a much better and softer expression. The sport writer of that magazine, after telling about several upsets in football, closes the article as follows.

"It is significant that the Southwest long neglected by the public eye, won two important intersectional games when Texas beat Notre Dame and Rice beat Purdue."

Most of the really great northern and eastern papers are beginning to learn that not only great baseball teams come out of the south and southwest, but great football teams and players as well. Sometimes an "obscurity" really happens along and eclipses those that think they, only, are in the sun.
