Between 10,000 and 15,000 attended the convention last year, and Mr. S. B. Summers, President of the Plains - Panhandle Singing Convention announces that this convention will be the Centennial session, with all efforts combined to make it the banner session of the organization.

COMES TO TEXAS FOR AN OPERATION

Mrs. Fred Schulz, of San Diego., was to have undergone a serious operation at a Lubbock sanitarium Tuesday of this week, having made the trip to Texas for that purpose. Mrs. Schulz is a former Terry county girl, and her friends are wishing her a successful operation.

We are requested to announce that Ex.-Van Zandt countians of this section, will hold their annual reunion at the fair park, Lubbock, next Sunday, 24th. All are invited to come and bring an old time picnic dinner.

The Brownfield Swimming Pool had a fine opening, according to the leasees. It was crowded with bathers Sunday afternoon until the shower came up.

A new postoffice is authorized to be opened at Pep, in Hockley county. It will be served by route one, out of Littlefield. M. A. Burke is the postmaster.

R. B. Barrier was up this week from San Antonio looking after business matters.

I shall endeavor at all times to show my friendship for public schools by my support of any legislation or movement that will consistently advance their interests. I am, however unwilling to place upon our schools the entire burden of training the child for society and citizenship.

I am a firm believer in the fact that the home has a responsible place in the child's life and that it is in the home that the foundation for character and service should be laid. Also, the local community has no small part in the support of its schools and in shaping policies. This responsibility should be met by each individual being loyal to the educational program of his community, paying his school taxes promptly and using special care in selecting directors for the districts.

THE STORY

CHAPTER XL-Tod informs Sherig Bridger that Bluejay has seen Holt taking money from a box which had been buried under the Downer cabin floor. A prisoner overhears and tells Erra Tod ses Kerry in town and is enraged at Bluejay, who already has collected his blood money. Bridger, his deputy, and Tod set out to take Holt, Young come: apon Bluejay, who is panic-stricken. After choking the Indian, Kerry orders him to leave the country. Erra tells Kerry of the frame-up on Stuart. They take a short cut to the cabin and dig up the planted box. The sheriff's party arrives and demands the box. Kerry refuses. They leave, and Kerry finds ingerprints and traces of honey. West's

"But how?" Holt whispered, voice shaking, now. "How the devil 'd you get 'em out? Where'd you find a Ducking into a cell he felt along the base of the brick wall, scraping up fragments of plaster. With these, he went quickly to the rear window and peered down. Tip lay there, still panting from his long, hard run.

Lightly, the dog leaped within, bunting the half opened door wide. He investigated at length, smelling here and there, pawing, and then, on a blanket which spread across the cushion, he found his master's scent and immediately began tugging at it stoutly.

"No! Not that! Not the robe!" Young moved his feet up and down to relieve the nervous tension which down the sewer." racked his body. "Stay there. . . . And fetch. . . . Fetch, old timer!"

Tip abandoned the rug. More snuffling, more pawing, and then he came trotting toward the jail wall, a limp glove in his jaws.

"Fine! Give. . . . That's a boy! And fetch again!"

He turned and beckoned Stuart closer with a jerk of his head.

"Working fine! Get a blanket and cut it into strips, about so wide,"measuring with thumb and finger. "And keep whistling! For the love of God don't stop whistling! It means more to us than you'll ever realize."

And now Tip was fetching a tire iron and next he brought a pair of pliers, handling the metal gingerly, head bent far to one side as the grip necessary to holding them hurt his teeth. As he deposited each against the wall he looked up and threshed his tail and panted.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE MEETING

Judging by its "rousing" performance last year the recent 24th annual convention of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States was a catastrophe" such as the World war tame affair. Whereas last year the and that only through such means as New Deal administration was criticiz- the administration reciprocal trade ed and condemned from every angle | agreements can the threat be averted.

And Nat Bridger might have his vanity satisfied by now by the gang at the pool room. Time was precious.

The blanket rope was long enough. He bent the shoe lace to it and made in it a running loop. Then cautiously be thrust the string through the bars and carefully paid out the strands

Tip stood there obediently, wrench in his jaws rolling his eyes toward that descending boose. It swung and swayed; the loop touched the dog's bead, dangled near the wrench and ... then closed of its own weight!

With a muttered curse, Kerry jerked it upward again, improved the knot and tried once more. Thrice and a fourth time he was forced to open the loop before it finally swung over the end of the wrench. Then, holding his breath, he drew it taut and with a muttered, "Give!" swung the wrench

It touched the wall with a dull clink; it came up and he drew a great gasp of night air as his hand, thrust between the bars, closed upon it.

How they worked on those tightlyset lag screws! On their knees, close together, ready to throw themselves back into the cells at the first alarming sound, they tolled. Two of the seven came easily. Two more yielded to their combined strengths. The fifth seventh . . . Ab, that seventh!

With Stuart's hands gripped over Kerry's they put their weights on the wrench handle until Young thought the flesh would roll from his palms. They sweated and panted and cursed in whispers and then, without warning, it gave, letting go so suddenly that Kerry lunged noisily against the cell bars. And on that sound came another: steps approaching; feet at the entry and they scuttled for their cells. "Any calls, Ma?"

It was Bridger's voice and a woman answered from somewhere. door, trying the lock. Young held his

The sheriff laughed and turned away. For an hour, then, they lay still and not until a muffled, regular snoring heralded the fact that rest had come to the county's servant did they leave

It was the work of a mere moment to remove the last screw and, with his shoulder to the panel, Young shoved

The bottom plate grated on the conerete, gave, squeaked a trifle and then ... swung free! A man could roll beneath it to the jail corridor and be on

But he let it swing back and crouched there on the floor listening. Abruptly, be said:

"After I'm gone, you set the screws back and cover the heads with dust." Stuart looked at him blankly.

"You mean . . . That is . . . You're going glone?"

"Listen, chum! It's tough, I know. But you're in as a murder suspect. Breaking jail would be damned serious for you. With me, it's a lesser offense. And, besides that, we'll need information about Bridger's plans, perhaps."

That was not his reason, his real reason. Good enough, to be sure; but knowing Stuart for a hot-headed, imating him now, when so much and such careful, patient work lay before him,

"Hell, Young! I hadn't figured-" "But I had. I know just what's got to be done, outside. Can't you see that maybe you'll be . . . you'll be helping Nan by sticking here and keeping your eyes and ears open?"

"Of course, if you put it that way

And silently he made his way into the sheriff's office, down the side steps and with a low whistle to Tip, leaped into the car standing ready.

He opened the choke wide, stepped on the starter and the motor caught and drummed. Then, quickly, he slipped in the clutch and turned down the jail drive to the street.

Once there he looked over his shoulder. Lights showed above two entrances to the jail but windows of the sheriff's living quarters showed blank. Nat Bridger was deep in dreams of continued grandeur while a prisoner used his car for escape and as Kerry bounced across the railroad tracks. leaving even the outskirts of town behind, and headed for the Mad Woman he beat Tip's ribs resoundingly with one hand and laughed until the muscles of his belly ached.

the tone of the entire convention this year was much more moderate, if not friendly. As was to be expected some phases of the New Deal were again attacked vigorously. But while some speakers denounced the spread of federal control others gave full credit to the Roosevelt administration for its contribution "toward the complete restoration of economic recovery in the United States."

Speaking before an early session of the convention Secretary of Commerce Roper challenged business to oust the government from private business by putting its own house in order and taking up the lack of unemployment. He bluntly warned that continued unemployment meant continued high taxes. At one of the sesions toward the close of the convention Secretary of State Hull warned of a "rising danger of a new world

In outlining his appalling and tragic picture of the Old World be said, in part: "In the past few months we have witnessed a swift increase in the international political tension: a recrudescence of the military spirit, which sees no goal in life except triumph by force; an expansion of standing armies; a sharp increase of military budgets, and actual warfare in some portions of the globe. Human and material resources are being shifted, on a truly alarming scale, in a military direction rather than one of peace and peace pursuits."

After hearing repeated demands that American business be given back the right to work out its own salvation without session of the convention quietly passed some 15 resolutions without revision from the floor. One of these resolutions declared the administration's new taxation program an attempt "to regulate the management of corporations. Another denounced the Social Security Act as an invasion of the rights and responsibilities of private industry. In two resolutions the Chamber approved the administration's reciprocal trade agreements, with some qualifications. Still another resolution approved the action of its board of directors in providing or a special committee to make a survey of re-employment possibilities private enterprise. The Chamber went on record os opposed to government control of production with private enterprise, and expressed its traditional opposition to any attempt to deprive the U. S. Supreme Court of any of its functions of powers. Other resolutions called for a cut in federal spending, term-He came on and peered through the ination of several emergency lend ing agencies, an adequate privatelyowned merchant marine, and urged private ownership of forest lands.

LANGUAGE MASTERY IMPOSSIBLE

If someone says he can speak or translate "practically all' tongues you can just put it down that he is talking through his hat. According to an estimate of the French Academy there are 2,796 languages and quite a few more when dialects are counted. There are 28 modern languages spoken in Europe alone according to the Federal Society of Translators. although all are based more or less on four key languages, English, German, French and Russian. As for knowledge of languages the Society's crack translator is Wilford Stevens, a former member of the State Department, who knows nearly 30. Paul Vogentiz of the Post Office Department is credited with a knowledge of 19 languages while Burton Lamore of the State Department is redited with 18.

To Americans corn means but one hing. Indian maize or its improved counterpart which is native to this country. This is quite different from the meaning of corn in accient Rome which, according to several Bible passages, referred variously to wheat, barley and other grains. Even today, in Scotland corn usually means oats and what Americans would refer to as a rye-field would be termed cornfield in most of Northern Europe. Likewise, many Englishmen speak of a head of wheat as an ear of corn.

Ranger Trophy.

This Apache war dance loin cloth. displayed by Rangerette Mabel Rooks, will be part of the historical collection in the Texas Rangers' Headquarters at the Texas Centennial Exposition, $25,000,000 World's Fair opening in Dallas June 6. The cloth was taken from an Apache war party by Rangers in 1860.

against any other Eight in your own driving test!"

This isn't a "chip-on-the-shoulder" challenge, but a friendly invitation. Make this test with a Hudson ... over any route you pick. Make it with any other Eight, regardless of price. And let the best car win!

LOOK!-Let the style of this 1936 Hudson speak for itself.

STRETCH!—You'll have to go $240 above Hudson's price to equal a Hudson in size (wheelbases up to 127 in.) and all-around roominess.

STEER!—Something brand new here . Tru-Line Steering and Radial Safety Control-patent applied for. Both exclusive on Hudson.

RIDE! - We'll back Hudson's Rhythmic Ride against the ride in any other

GO! - You can't match Hudson's power for nearly double Hudson's price ... or Hudson smoothness at any price.

STOP! - No other Eight gives you finest hydraulics with a separate safety

Take a "DISCOVERY DRIVE" with the ELECTRIC HAND

Flick a finger . . . and gears shift! The new way to drive . . . easier, safer. With a clear floor in front . . . real foot-and-leg comfort for three front-seat passengers! The Electric Hand is an optional extra not available on any other Eight.

braking system operating from the same brake pedal if ever needed. Plus a third braking system from the easy handling parking brake.

CHECK ECONOMY! - Hudson beat all other Eights in the Los Angeles-Yosemite Economy Run, averaging 22.54 miles per gallon, no coasting.

CHECK SAFETY! - No other Eight within $140 of Hudson's price gives you a body all of steel, with solid, seamless steel roof.

CHECK LONG LIFE!-We'll show you total mileages that will open your eyes . . . owner records of 150,000, 200,000 miles and up. Ask other Eights to match them!

Come in today for a "Discovery Drive." Judge Hudson by your own test, on any route, against any other Eight.
