

A Real Book of Cattle Brands, At Last

A real book of cattle brands, the first ever to be seen in this country, has just been published and a copy received by this paper. The book contains actual drawings of some 2,000 interesting, amusing or historical brands together with the name of the brand, its owner and the location of the ranch. The brand information is listed by Counties, and practically every cattle section of the state is included.

The book has a foreword by Amon G. Carter, a short history of Texas, written by Peter Molyneux, author of "Romantic Story of Texas," and a short review of the Texas Cattle Industry and Texas Cattle Brands, by Frank Reeves, livestock editor of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram. It is illustrated with pen and ink drawings of actual ranch scenes, done in West Texas.

Of special interest to ranchers and cattlemen of this section of the Country are the brands of Terry County, among which the editors have listed the "Buckle," the "Raft-er U," and several others. This publication will undoubtedly attain a wide circulation over the United States, and Terry County feels proud to have these brands included in the volume.

The publication of the book came about as a result of public interest in Brands, fostered by the great revival of Texas history engendered by the Texas Centennial. When a Fort Worth department store, early in the spring of this year, put about 500 brands on its wrapping paper, a flood of requests poured in for information about brands, some of them from residents in the New England States. To satisfy this demand, as well as to fill a long felt want among Texas ranchers and cattlemen, the Fair Publishing Company, Fort Worth has assembled in this book an authentic list of a large number of representative Texas brands.

No other industry in Texas or elsewhere can boast of such a colorful and romantic history and background as can the cattle industry. No phase of cattle work is more glamorous than branding. Brands are the coat of arms for a cattle empire. Men have made fortunes by the proper use of branding irons, and others have paid with their lives for their improper use.

Every person interested in Texas, or in romantic history will appreciate this book. The younger generation will find it interesting and amusing; the ranchers of today will take pride in their listing in its pages; and old timers and early day cowboys will find excellent "grazing" and many a fond picture in memory's pasture as they wrangle through the list of brands shown in "A Century of Texas Cattle Brands."

We Visited A Hot Country July Fourth

The writer and wife, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Limer of Long Beach, Calif., took a trip to the sticks on the Glorious Fourth, and was it hot? We know that it has been hot up here, but no weather that we have seen this year; not even the "infamous" June 26-27th compared with that weather we saw Saturday. Mighty few days of that would take all the taste out of our mouth. In fact, none of us felt any too good up on return.

The crops through Dawson and Howard counties compare favorably with Terry county, but was getting dry in places. However, they, like we, have had rain now. Stops were made at Big Spring and Coahoma in Howard county, and at Sweetwater in Nolan county. The former and later were having celebrations, and were hot enough to make the DAY seem real.

Crops off the cap were larger than on the Plains, as they received rain two weeks before we. But on the harder lands around Roscoe, they had begun to burn, especially corn. But no farmer had more than a few acres of that article. The crops are all good north of Roscoe, Snyder, Post and Tahoka. In fact it looks like this whole section of west Texas is in for a good crop this year.

Post along with the rest mentioned above was having a celebration, and according to the papers it was a real big affair. It was getting late when we passed through there, and most of the crown had disbursed. While the day was hot and sultry, we enjoyed it, because we saw much country, lots of crops, and a few old friends in our rounds.

This Week In Texas History

1821—Stephen F. Austin, with the commissioner Don Erasmo Seguin and a party of 14, left Natchitoches on July 6 for San Antonio to confer with Governor Martinez. His purpose was to secure a transfer of grant made to his father, to ask permission to explore the country and settle a suitable place for his colony. 1842—On the night of July 6 General Davis moved his force of 192 Texans on the Nueces from an open space to a ravine where the river and timber offered protection. General Antonio Canales, not knowing that the Texans had moved, made a charge where they had been. Discovering his mistake he led his men to a position of better advantage, but wounding of the commander of the detachment with the cannon, discouraged the Mexicans and they withdrew. The Texans had one man wounded.

1848—On July 5 Congress passed an act fixing the eastern boundary of Texas along the middle of the channel of Sabine Pass, Sabine Lake and Sabine River, rather than along their west bank. —Texas State College for Women (CIA).

Two Big Sales Now On In Brownfield

Last week the Cobb Department Store started a sale which means that they are cleaning up on all summer merchandise at greatly reduced prices in order to put in a huge stock of fall and winter goods, which they anticipate from a good crop and fair prices for farm products. We learned about this sale too late for publicity, except that it last week, but it is not too late yet for you to share in this wonderful sale of a mammoth stock, considered one of the best on the south Plains.

This week the Aryain Dry Goods store starts a store wide sale, and while they are not quoting a lot of things, they are giving the readers of the Herald a sample of what they may expect when they enter this popular store. Be sure you call on Aryain store, and don't be too long about it, as your neighbors will get the cream and pick of the stock if you don't.

RED CROSS DECLARES WAR ON HIGHWAY ACCIDENTS

The above accident victim's life was saved by proper First Aid treatment. However, 36,400 others implicated in traffic accidents in 1935 lost their lives. The Red Cross, through its local chapters, is opening First Aid stations in hundreds of establishments along major highways to curb the frightful toll. In the inset (standing) are leaders of the Tyler, Texas, chapter, first in the state to open a highway First Aid station. Sitting are two of the First Aiders, all of whom serve as volunteers and give emergency treatment only until the doctor arrives. After selecting station sites and training attendants, local chapters equip them with 24-unit kits and conduct regular inspections. In Texas 151 of the emergency stations already have been designated.

Three Schools Vote For Consolidation

In their vote last Saturday, the three school districts of Wellman, Hunter and Sawyer voted for consolidation of the three districts, and those who know these people say they will later come through with sufficient bond issues to assure a high standard, first class high school. The vote follows: Hunter, for consolidation 27 Hunter against consolidation 5 Wellman, for consol. 36 Wellman, against consol. 4 Sawyer, for consol. 20 Sawyer, against consol. 9 Total for Consolidation 83 Total against consolidation 18 It is the desire of the people of that section of Terry to get Willow Wells in on this consolidation, and we understand Seagraves is fighting this move, as it will lessen their schoolastics not to draw from this and the Sawyer districts in Terry county. While we don't blame Seagraves in the least for making this effort, Terry county people should fight to keep as much Terry county school money as possible in Terry county, and build up our own schools.

Lets Have Our Garbage Hauled Away

The Herald knows that the city council with limited funds cannot do everything, and no one but a radical mind would expect it. But the Herald does believe that garbage collections in the rear of residences, is to a large measure responsible for the large amount of flies we are having this summer. The Herald family is just as guilty as any, but we are ready to help remedy matters. Our proposition is that the Mayor or some member of the city council arrange with some man who has a wagon and team or truck, to call at least once a week or oftener to collect garbage, and let the householder pay the garbage man a small fee. It need not be large after the first week, for there would not be a very heavy accumulation. The Herald believes that for 15c, not more than 25c per week will take care of this through the summer. And if there is any possible way to make all comply with this schedule, let's do it if they have to be fined. Let's join hands and help the city officials keep the town clean.

Mesdames Eileen Pegues and Marie Graham, of Odessa, and Mrs. Maurita Imman of Midland, all daughters of Dr. M. C. Bell, are here visiting friends. We understand that Dr. Bell will be here the later part of this week when one of the ladies mentioned above will undergo an operation at the local hospital.

Charles Limer and family are here from Long Beach, Calif., visiting her sister, Mrs. Stricklin Sr. Wisdom is more than the absence of ignorance.

West Texas Held Up As Bloody Area

CLARENDON, July 4. — Plains folks generally admit this once was a wild and woolly country but deny it was as bad as easterners painted the picture. A Missouri newspaper once said of Mobeete: "They are killing people down there for their old clothes, while at a public gathering in open daylight they kill only on fine points of honor." Of Tascosa, an Iowa newspaper writer said: "Sudden death by shooting and a free ride to Boot Hill is a daily occurrence. Killings are as common as chili and beans." An Arkansas editor wrote of Clarendon: "There is too much reckless shooting in Clarendon between cowboys. The practice of shooting at lights in private homes is annoying and some times dangerous. Sooner or later some one will get hurt." "Two thirds of the men go about town weighted down with artillery." These stories were gathered from dusty newspapers by the Donely County Leader for its recent Centennial edition.

Terry County School Districts Consolidates

At an election held on the 1st day of July, the following school districts voted for the formation of a consolidated school district: Wellman Independent School District, 12 miles southwest of Brownfield, and the Hunter School together with Common School District No. 15 known as the Sawyer School District. The grouping of these three school districts will make it possible to maintain an accredited High School. All other grades below the High School will remain in their respective schools at present, except Sawyer. These school districts were in need of better school facilities as it was impossible to maintain a High School separately. The cost was too great and the school could not be properly classified, running separately and independent. It seemed to them that the only thing for them to do was to consolidate. In this way, a rural high school could be built and the rural boys and girls would realize their dreams. They will be in a rural environment and at the same time receive those educational opportunities that all boys and girls deserve. This need will be supplied at home. The time has come for everyone who expects to survive must prepare himself for this age of machines, where life is so complex. There is now an opportunity for the boys and girls to receive at least a high school education at home. This opportunity must not pass unless they take the best advantage of it. This movement will increase the educational opportunities of all, or a majority of the children affected and it should not curtail the school priviledged of any of the children who want a high school education. The new district is contemplating the erection of a modern high school building with a combination gym and auditorium. The building will provide rooms and equipment for the teaching of Domestic Science, Agriculture, and plans to meet all the requirement for a full accredited High School. The auditorium and gymnasium will be used as a Community center; it will be a place to meet for all activities of the district, such as, P. T. A. Association, various farmers' organization, literary societies, the 4-H club and etc. The gym will be used for athletic games such as basketball, volleyball and Physical Education, will be taught. The Benefits Derived Are Many To The Pupil: Greater inspiration by reason of association with larger numbers; longer term; more teaching force; better division of time in recitation and study; betting in agriculture, art, music etc.; increased percentage of boys remaining through the seventh grade and entering high school; increased opportunity for promotion; better provisions for athletics; better social and moral training; boys and girls finish high school without leaving the community; better adapted to their needs as future citizens. To The School: More efficient staff of trained teachers; better supervision; less truancy and tardiness; better housing conditions; better equipment; community center, an opportunity for organization of clubs, social literary, musical, lectures, conventions, farmers' institute; and cost less considering advantages obtained. To The Teacher: Specialization of work; inspiration, support, and encouragement through co-workers; satisfaction obtained through good school conditions. To The Community: Better school, better general living conditions; school a better social, musical, and literary center; stimulation of a "get-together-habit"; elimination of local prejudices; demand for better roads; increased value of real estate as result of good school and good roads; fostering ideals among all the people for the best life can give; it is the building up the home community rather than some other community. In order to be able to obtain the best results, it is necessary that we have the full cooperation of each patron. We will be able to take care of all the pupils no matter what grade, because all the grades will be taught, and will work for affiliating of eighteen accredited units. A bus will be available so each pupil will have an opportunity to get to school on time. The bus will be an all steel body and operated by an efficient bus driver. The bus will be checked for its efficiency from one to five times a week. It will not be necessary for anyone to transfer out of either district, because we will be in a position to take care of them.

The affair if held, will be on August 21st, it being the anniversary of the creation of the county which occurred in 1976. Just 60 years ago. Mr. C. R. Speaking about propaganda, the Stamford Cowboy Reunion puts over about as much stuff as any affair we know of. They start in about March first with stuff that all sounds about alike, but finally in June they begin to tell about the champion this and the champion that, not to mention beautiful cowgirl riders, some of which perhaps never loped a horse across a 60 acre pasture. Then, after the affair is finished on July 1 to 4th, we are regaled with another long article about how the affair turned out—and that on a campaign year. Josh all hemlocks!

Next week is railroad week, and while small towns like Brownfield that has but few employees of railroads, do not make much ado about it, larger towns with shops and division points do. Railroads are one of the nation's greatest assets, employing thousands of people at good wages and are among our heaviest tax payers, state, county, school and city. While trucks have taken a lot of their short haul freight, the railroads must still be depended on to move huge commodities like wheat, cotton, corn and numerous manufactured articles long distances and in minimum time, and perhaps will always be the governments greatest

That fine exchange of ours, the State Line Tribune at Farwell, seemed to have been unusually on the peck last week. Don't know whether some irate subscriber called and bawled him out, or whether some of his merchant friends "et" him out for an error, or some candidate demanded to know point blank if he was for them—if not, why not? We editors all get that way sometimes, when everything under the earth and on top of it seems to pester us in concert. He even lambasts some of his own fraternity for getting wrought up over some candidate. Why not, Bro. Graham? Hasn't the weather been near the "billin' pint" and don't the state candidates send us enough propaganda to raise our temperature? Why not heave and haw and cuss for them? Probably we will be "appointed" Nortorious Republicans for two years, and we'll at least have the privilege of using the Great Seal of the State of Texas on legal documents for another two years, and get a thank you for our trouble. Hope the nice cool weather we are having this week has cooled you some, Graham.

Contrary to erroneous opinion in some quarters, the United States did not lend our wartime allies cash money or gold to the tune of more than $10,000,000,000, which they now seem unwilling to pay. During the World War, the total stocks of money of all kinds in the United States amounted to less than $6,000,000,000. By the end of the war it had increased to over $7,500,000,000 showing that little of it went across the "pond." The present debtors "touched" Uncle Sam for as great a sum in this way: During the war period we sent abroad not money but munitions, cotton, foodstuffs, tobacco, cloth for uniforms, steel, and other supplies of war that were so badly needed. Not only did we send the flower of our manhood free, but all of these materials were sent on credit. There wasn't enough gold in all the world to pay for the goods we sent. After the war several different debt refunding agreements were made and payments were made on the installment plan up to June 1934. Since then all of the nations except Finland have defaulted on their semiannual payments.

Despite recent references in France and Great Britain as to the resuming of war debt discussions and possible payments, there is little hope that anything will be done. Europe is in a constant state of turmoil and terror. All of the principal debtor nations, and in fact nearly all nations of the world, are burdened to the gills with large expenditures for armaments. Because of this there is no chance for curtailment of their American debts. And as pathetic as it seems, the only thing left for the United States to do is to hope that some day international conditions will improve sufficiently to allow substantial part payment, if not payment in full.—Pathfinder.

Of course we are away off down here in West Texas and in a Democratic state, far removed from the center of politics, but it looks from this distance as if Roosevelt, Garner & Co., will bowl the Republican ten pins over for a clean sweep in November. The Roosevelt administration has a wonderful story of accomplishments to relate and it keeps the Republicans on the defensive all the time. All the Democrats have to do is to mention the Hoover administration and it sends the cold shivers up and down ones spine. It will take years for the Republicans to overcome, or the people to forget, the Hoover administration and the accomplishments of the Roosevelt administration will linger long in the minds of the people as one that has done more for the common people of the country than any administration during the past 40 years.—Lockney Beacon.

THE TRIBE ROOSEVELT IS AFTER

A committee following a two year investigation, submitted to Congress just before adjournment a 125 page indictment fairly reeking with disclosures of gross fraud and dishonesty perpetrated by investment bankers who, before the crash of 1929 looted 5,000,000 American investors of more than 35 billion dollars through the state of spurious mortgage industrial and foreign bonds.

The same interests, the committee charged, are now picking the bones of bankrupt properties to the tune of hundreds of millions of dollars. take to flight when Jim Allred begins talking facts, issues and principles as only he can.
Even now there is rumor that one Texas demagogue will withdraw his puppet from the race because he has found not a single issue to make and no appeal with which his colorless personality could even attract crowds. Others undoubtedly will follow and Governor Allred will be given the customary second term in office by default or by a tremendous majority in the first primary. Texas owes Allred this honor and Texas should elect him on the first ballot and save him for the national campaign of the Democratic Party.
There is no reason for run-off primary this year. The candidates opposing Governor Allred might show their patriotism and their appreciation of the greatness of the Outstanding Young Man of the nation by withdrawing now and saving themselves the humiliation of utter riot at the polls in July. Such action on their part would reflect credit to them and to the man who will be the next Governor of Texas and who may be the presidential or vice-presidential nominee of the Democratic Party in 1940. It would be appreciated by a tremendous majority of the voters of Texas who simply cannot take any candidate or any issue in the Governor's race seriously this year.—Editorial from The Amarillo News.

AUSTIN, Texas, July 6.—Employment and pay rolls in Texas during June showed a slight gain over the preceding month and a substantial increase over the corresponding month last year, the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research reports. The number of workers increased 5 per cent over June, 1935, and pay rolls rose nearly 15 per cent. The increase over May was about 1 per cent for both the number of employees and the total pay rolls.
Cities whose records for the month were better than the State average during the two comparable periods were Amarillo, Denison, Galveston, Houston, Laredo, San Antonio, Waco and Wichita Falls.
Industries showing an increase greater than the average for the State were retail trade, petroleum refining, electric railway car shops, and hotels.

Compact With The Dead

WHEN Francis Spies of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., a collector of names and epitaphs on gravestones, pushed aside the tall grass in front of a monument in an old cemetery near New Haven, Vt., he suddenly drew back with a startled exclamation. For he was looking straight into the face of a dead man! He looked again. No, it wasn't an optical illusion. There was the face clearly apparent through a thick slab of plate glass. Here's why:

The man, a resident of New Haven long before the Civil war, had a horror of being buried alive. So he made arrangements to be buried in a hermetically sealed coffin with a plate glass window in the top. In his will he gave the town a small fund, the interest on which was to be used to employ a man to go to the graveyard twice a day and look through the plate glass to see if he was still dead and to rescue him if he came back to life.

For nearly half a century the town faithfully spent the income from this fund for hiring men to go to the grave. Eventually they decided that the man was safely dead and these men were just wasting their time making the twice-daily visits. But it was necessary to go to the state legislature and have a special act passed in order to permit the town to break its agreement with the dead man and spend the money from his fund on some much-needed public improvements.

Glory, Glory, Hallelujah!

WHENEVER you sing Julia Ward Howe's "Battle Hymn of the Republic" or "John Brown's Body Lies a-Mouldering in His Grave" with its thundering chorus of "Glory, glory, hallelujah" you unconsciously pay tribute to the memory of a forgotten American composer who deserves, but lacks, the recognition that has been given Stephen A. Foster. Also you perpetuate "a joke on a sanctimonious brother-in-law." Here's why:

The composer was Thomas Brigham Bishop, a Maine farm boy whose fondness for strolling around strumming a banjo or guitar and "making up tunes" was a source of great annoyance to his serious-minded brother-in-law. One day the brother-in-law had an attack of religious fervor, slapped himself on the chest and shouted "I am bound to be a soldier in the army of the Lord! Glory, glory, hallelujah!"

The swing of those lines kept running through Bishop's head and after a while he put a tune to them—the tune now so familiar to all Americans. Back in those days, just before the Civil war, this song, just two lines, verse and chorus, became the favorite at revival meetings "down East." Later, Bishop, taking the same air, adapted it to new words suggested by the Harpers Ferry raid and the famous "John Brown's Body" was the result.

It was a favorite marching tune for the soldiers of 1861-65 who sang it with variations—both sacred and very, very profane! Then Julia Ward Howe took the same music and used it and the "Glory, glory, hallelujah" chorus in her magnificent "Battle Hymn of the Republic." Thus a song composed as a joke on a brother-in-law has become a part of a national hymn!

Racket Store

REMEMBER when many American towns had "Racket Stores"?

The first one was in Leesville, La., its proprietor, Simon West, started with a capital of $300 and became one of the wealthiest men in the state. He called it the "Rouss Racket Store" because he bought his goods from Charles Broadway Rouss of New York, who was the originator of the term.

As a jobber of general merchandise, his trade was mainly with small-town storekeepers in the Middle West and Southwest. Twice a year these merchants went to New York to lay in their stocks. Rouss bought most of his merchandise at auction and his warehouses and store were filled with bales, barrels and bundles of an odd assortment of goods.

As he conducted his customers through his store, he would point to some exceptionally good buy, and say "Now, here's something you can make a racket with in your town!" Soon the storekeepers adopted his phrase and when their business was dull they would write to him, saying: "What specials have you in prints or calico that I can make a racket with?"

A modern survival of the "racket" idea in merchandising is found in the catalogues of some of the big wholesalers who designate their "specials" as "Noise makers."

The Only Cornet

NO, it's not a musical instrument. It's a commissioned army officer and there's only one in the world today. Whenever the chief of the military bureau of the United States army makes a report to the War department, tabulating the number of generals, colonels, majors, captains and lieutenants, he writes down "Cornet: 1."

That one stands for Frederick Colons Wheeler, cornet in the headquarters troop of the Fifty-second Cavalry brigade, Pennsylvania National Guard, otherwise First troop, Philadelphia City cavalry.

The Philadelphia City cavalry was organized back in 1774 and naturally modeled its organization after British army custom. At that time the British army had the rank of cornet, which was equivalent to third lieutenant. When congress passed the National Defense act in 1792, establishing a militia in the different states, it allowed the various military organizations in existence at that time to keep their accustomed privileges.

So the First troop retained the rank of cornet while the British did away with it many years ago. Thus it is the only military organization in the world which has a cornet. The troop is also unique in this respect: It has a guidon, presented to it at the outbreak of the Revolution in 1775, with a union of 13 alternate blue and white stripes in the upper left-hand corner, corresponding to the blue field in the present American flag. This is believed to be the first flag on which the 13 colonies were represented by 13 stripes.

On the guidon also appears silver bands denoting the troop's service in war as follows: Revolution—Trenton, Princeton, Brandywine, Germantown; Civil war—Gettysburg; Spanish-American—Porto Rico; World war—Champanne, Oise-Aisne, Lorraine, Meuse-Argonne, Ypres-Lys.

Baby-Swapping

THE "baby-swapping" incident in Owen Wister's "The Virginian" was no figment of the novelist's imagination. It was based on fact, even though it took place in Kansas instead of Wyoming.

In October, 1867, Capt. Perry Hutchinson finished erecting a flour mill on the Big Blue river, only a short distance from the Oregon Trail, near the present city of Marysville, Kan. Then he and his wife decided to hold a "house warming" and invite settlers from all parts of the county to a dance to be held on the lower floor of the mill. An upper room was arranged for a banquet and an adjoining room, also upstairs, was fixed for the mothers who brought their babies.

It was into this room that three young daredevils of the community—Dave Walker, Cale Osborne and Andy Travelute—stole quietly while the parents of the youngsters were enjoying their dance below and mixed up the babies. Just as Wister has described the incident in his book. And it was to the mill early the next morning that the indignant fathers and mothers came to "swap offspring" and get back their own.

How did the incident become transplanted to Wyoming? Two of the indignant parents were Dr. and Mrs. J. J. Crawford. A brother of Doctor Crawford was Capt. Jack Crawford, the famous "Foot-Scout," who was a friend of Wister's and told him the tale. At a dance in the Bear Creek country, which Wister attended one night while he was in Wyoming, he remembered the yarn. Result: It was woven into his story and attributed to his fictional heroes, "the Virginians" and "Lin McLosa."

Milk Best Source of Farm Cash—
Survey Indicates Steady Increase

DAIRY farmers' income from milk for the first four months of 1936 increased $25,000,000 over the first four months of 1935 according to K. V. Lipscomb, Texas dairy leader. As the largest single source of farm income, milk put $435,000,000 in farmers' pocketbooks during the period—a new high since 1932.

Although storms and flood cost farmers and distributors extra expenses this year to get milk to consumers, increased farm milk income is particularly gratifying to the milk industry despite heavy losses, Mr. Lipscomb declared.

Milk was less than 15 per cent of total farm income ten years ago, while for 1935 it was about one-fifth of the total. With yearly farm milk income about $340,000,000 greater in 1935 than the 1932 total, dairying brightens the agricultural picture, as milk is paid for monthly while most crops only bring in money at the end of the season.

During the last quarter of a century, the number of cows in the United States has grown to more than 25,000,000, with yearly milk production of approximately 46,500,000,000 quarts. These increases are due chiefly to scientific progress and expansion of daily distribution of milk to consumers.

Increased cooperation of dairy farmers and milk distributors to produce high quality milk by maintenance of rigid health standards and a steady, dependable supply forecast continued improvement in farm return from milk during the year, according to Mr. Lipscomb.

CORN MASTER KEY TO PRICES

WASHINGTON, July 4.—Agriculture department economists, boring into a labyrinth of food price factors, have termed the prospective supply of corn as a feed for meat animals the master key to the drought effect on table expenses.

As in 1934, they said, if feed supplies are drastically reduced the consumer will be touched first by an increasing cost for meat. The outcome of the corn crop will be determined within the next three weeks. The prospective loss of 100,000,000 bushels of spring wheat, the experts said, has been largely discounted by higher grain prices without penalty to the cost of flour. Secretary Wallace's program of buying 1,000,000 drought distressed cattle they expected would be reflected chiefly in firmer farm values for foundation herds.

The I. O. O. F. installed new officers Tuesday night, and had several visitors down from Lubbock. After installation, light refreshments were served. The new officers are, C. A. Wilhite, N. G.; Fred Henson, V. G.; J. C. Green, Secretary.

Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Winger and daughter spent the 4th in Ruidoso.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD LANDSCAPES IN THE PARK

In this springtime panorama, consider how the branches of the tree in the foreground attractively frame and give perspective to the distant bridge. How would the picture look without the tree?

WHAT is a city park for? Why, for nothing less than to give city-dwelling camera owners a chance to take landscape pictures without leaving the city. It is surprising what opportunities the public parks afford for charming bits of landscape composition. Indeed, it is quite worth while for the country dweller to come to the city and take advantage of them. True, he will find that Mother Nature's handiwork has been considerably maniaured, but often so much the better from an artistic standpoint. Moreover, walks and short grass make it easy to seek out camera viewpoints.

There are many broad panoramas in the larger city parks, but an especially wide view is not needed. There is good pictorial material even in the smallest of parks. A path through a grove of trees where sunbeams fall, the pond reflecting the knolls or hill tops in its calm surface, or a bit of a brook rippling through the meadow, each can make an artistic picture with the right composition. Stroll about and you will see many such chances.

The first rule in pictorial composition is: There shall be but one picture, one setting of dominant interest. On reaching the summit of a hill there is great temptation to throw all rules of composition to the winds and try to include everything in sight. The panorama is attractive to the eye because of its sweep and bigness. But when the print shows nothing but a myriad of minute objects very nearly at the vanishing point, with no prominent foreground objects, the result will be disappointing.

Almost any quiet scene which the eye finds interesting is suitable for landscape work. But to be a picture it must have a center of interest, a dominant point where the eye will come to rest, without being conscious of the drawing power of the light that gives it accent and the lines that lead to it. This may be, for example, merely a single tree silhouetted against clouds, a bend in a stream where it emerges from the shadows of foliage, or the vista of a woodland path converging at a point emphasized by a highlight. Often a human figure, if properly placed, will give balance and add interest to a picture without dominating the scene. The center should, of course, be avoided and the person used as a "foil" should not look toward the camera nor appear too close in the foreground.

And don't forget to have a sky flatter with you to take full advantage of striking cloud effects.

"She-Money"
AMONG bank-tellers two-dollar bills are known as "she money." To most people they're a synonym for "bad luck." This superstition is usually attributed to race-track men and is said to go back about a half century.

According to one story, a certain bookie lost everything but his shoes on the races and traced his bad luck to the day when he wagered a two-dollar bill on a certain horse. That story got around and soon all race-track men began believing that these bills were Jonahs.

Another story traces it back to Pythagoras who more than 2,500 years ago declared: "The number two is the symbol of diversity, or inequality, of division and of separation. Two is an evil principle, a number of bad augury, characterizing disorder, confusion and change."

Anyway, few people like to be given a two-dollar bill. The exceptions are paymasters in mills, factories, etc., who pay wages such as $12, $14 and the like. A paymaster who pays off a lot of $12-a-week workers can save himself a lot of extra motion by reaching for a $2 bill instead of two ones to add to the $10 bill or two fives. In fact, with 1,000 workers he saves just 1,000 extra motions. So paymasters are about the only people who ask for these bills at banks.

Few banks will give you $2 notes unless you ask for them. One reason is that they are easily confused with $1 bills and handed out as such. That's why they're called "she money"—they confuse you and cost you money!

Right-o!
BACK in the days when Americans amused themselves with thinking up curiosities in the use of words, some unknown poet composed these lines to aid writers of "write":

"Write" we know is written right,
When we see it written "write";
But when we see it written "right";
We know it is not written right;
For "write," to have it written right,
Must not be written "right" or "wright";
Nor yet should it be written "rite";
But "write," for so 'tis written right!

Appropriate comment on that, of course, is the English expression of "Right-o!" Which recalls the verse written by an American after his return from England where he had difficulty in adjusting himself to English traffic laws. He declared:

The laws of the road are a paradox quite
For when you are traveling along,
If you keep to the LEFT you're sure to be RIGHT,
If you keep to the RIGHT you'll be WRONG!

Greatly Exaggerated
ONE of the most famous of Mark Twain's witty remarks resulted from a case of mistaken identity.

In 1897 his cousin, James H. Clemens, was taken seriously ill in London. Samuel L. Clemens (Mark Twain) happened to be in the British capital at the time and somehow a report got out that the great humorist had died.

Thereupon several reporters from London newspapers called at the house where Twain was staying to get the details of his death. Great was their surprise when the supposed dead man opened the door to admit them. When they confessed to him their purpose in coming, he said, "You find a pretty lively corpse, don't you?"

"But our editors expect us to bring back a story about your death," persisted one reporter. "What shall we do?"

"Well," said Mark Twain, "you can just tell them that the report of my death has been greatly exaggerated!"

Are You Getting Smudgy Pictures?

Fascinating winter scenes of all types can be snapped with inexpensive cameras. Don't let the winter stop you.

There are in this world many amateur photographers who simply do not give their cameras a "break." They complain of smudgy looking pictures and sometimes believe something is radically wrong with the camera.

You have looked through dirty eye-glasses with probably a few finger prints on them. If you haven't it's a sure bet that you have experienced the difficulty of looking through a smudgy window.

Cleaning a lens is a very simple operation. All you need is a soft, unstarred linen handkerchief and perhaps a match or pencil, if the lens is quite small.

the shutter opening also applies to cleaning the front surface of single lenses fitted to box cameras and certain folding models.

Remember that your camera is a precision instrument and should be treated as such. Know your camera's limitations or its versatility—give careful thought to composition and story-telling possibilities.
