Tahoka Offers Two Days of Entertainment

TAHOKA, Sept. 2.—Brownfield and Terry county people are being given a special invitation to attend the first annual Tahoka Round-Up, Wednesday and Thursday, Sept. 8 and 9, sponsored by business men of Tahoka.

Many entertainment features are being arranged for the two days' event, among them being the rodeo twice daily, afternoon and night, 2 and 7 p. m., negro ball games, cowboy platform dances, carnival attractions, parade each day at noon, etc. On the first day there will be an old fashion picnic dinner.

Thursday will be free barbecue day, and Tahoka business men have contributed more than $1,000 with which to buy 15 heaves, a ton of bread, 1,000 pounds of onions, barrels of pickles, and huge vats of coffee. Tahoka will be prepared to feed fully 10,000 people Thursday.

Charlie Copeland of Plains and Brownfield assisted by Carl Dykes of Fort Worth will direct the rodeo and are this week building the pens and arena just west of Tahoka high school. Copland has engaged the famous "Curley Daugherty herd of wild brahma steers and bulls, and is bringing in wild horses from the Pecos country. Other assistants are Luther Jones and Mayes Jenkins of Brownfield. The local rodeo committee is Ed Sanders, Boyd Smith, and Judge Tom Garrard.

Premiums totaling $600 in cash are being offered contestants, with first prize to junior boy yearling riders, third at $100.00 in each event each day for bronc riding, calf roping, wild cow milking, bulldogging, and brahma steer riding. Also, there is a $100 roping saddle for the Tahoka Round-Up champion cowboy, and a prize to junior boy yearling riders. A number of Terry county riders are expected to enter the rodeo events.

Among other rodeo entertainments will be exhibition riding by the famous cowgirl, Loraine Yale, and antics by a cowboy clown.

Tahoka is sparing nothing to entertain the crowds these two days. Everybody is invited to partake of the festivities, and all riders are urged to enter the contests.

STATEMENT

The Hon. Marvin Jones, Member of Congress from Texas.

I have requested each member of the House Committee on Agriculture to hold conferences, during the recess, with the farmers of his particular district, and, in so far as possible, with the farmers of his state, in reference to general farm legislation.

There are 25 members of the House Committee on Agriculture, representing as many different states. Every different part of the nation is thus represented.

We have asked each of the four major farm groups to submit to us the provisions that they feel should be included in the measure. They have indicated their willingness to do so and some of them have already submitted their suggestions.

We have planned for the Committee to return to Washington a month before the convening of the next session, for the purpose of endeavoring to have legislation ready for the consideration of the Congress soon after it assembles.

Ross Motor Co. to Soon Have New Home

J. L. Cruce is constructing a nice building 30x60 just east of his Auto Parts department, which when completed will be occupied by Ross Motor Company with his Hudson-Terraplane and Oldsmobile agency. The building will be better equipped for show rooms than his present location.

Besides, the new location will be on Main street, highway 84, and the loop of highway 51, giving him better access to the public. There will also be a side entrance without having to back out or pull in from the street, and lots of outdoor parking for used cars.

Mrs. Ira Duke is visiting in Fort Worth and Dallas for two weeks.

Magnolia Building A New Station Here

According to Tom May, agent for the wholesale department of the Magnolia Petroleum Co., here, that company will have one of the prettiest retail stations in this section, when it is completed. The new station will occupy the site of the old station, which is now being wrecked. When the old station was built in 1924, it was the pride of Brownfield, being the first modern drive-in station here.

The new one will be 50x87 from curb to the rear of the building, the building proper being 67 feet in length, and will be constructed of brick and concrete. Rest rooms will be beautifully finished in tile, floors and walls, and the whole building from front to back will be the last word in modern stations. In the rear will be the wash and grease racks, one being built to care for the largest trucks built.

Brisenbeen Construction Co., of Amarillo received the contract, but we understand Shamburger Lumber Co., will furnish the material. During construction Jim Miller, who has had charge of this station for a number of years, has moved to the Magnolia station on the southeast corner of the square, but will have charge of the new station when completed.

Secretary Shelton Calling For Your Aid

Secretary J. E. Shelton of the local Chamber of Commerce is calling for the folks of Terry county "to come to the aid of their party." However J. E. is not wanting votes he wants EXHIBITS, and he wants them that are the best, that will stand up, and put old Terry in the front rank of the South Plains counties as the South Plains fair at Lubbock.

He gave you a list in last week's Herald of the things he needs most. Remember them? If not, ask him, or get your last issue of the Herald. Sheriff Ches Gore brought in two very fine melons he found somewhere last week. We are not going to say how big they are, but they are thumpers. We don't want other counties to slip in on us some night and get a larger one and claim it as theirs.

Any way, District Attorney Truett Smith announced this week that he was going out to hunt some melons like those in Shelton's office, and we promised to "scratch his name" next summer if he palmed them off at the Fair as Lynn county products.

Joking aside, we do know of a county in central west Texas that won on corn at the Dallas Fair one year that was raised in Terry county. This is the God's truth.

Brick and Tile Work On Hospital Completed

Sanders & West informed us early this week that weather permitting, brick and tile work on the Treadaway-Daniell hospital would be finished by the time the Herald went to press. The job would probably have been finished Wednesday if tile laying had not been held up by having to lay concrete beams over the doors and windows.

The west "L" is almost ready for the roof, and most of the partition studding has been put up. So if the weather remains favorable, the men will be on the finish job under roof by this time next week, perhaps.

So far the work has been going along very satisfactory, the brick masons, carpenters, plumbers and electricians all seeming to keep their part of the work up, and out of the way of each other.

Mrs. Hubert Davis of Celeburne spent the past week end with Mrs. Chris Quante.

Monday is Tradesday here.

Terry Allowed 13 NYA School Jobs

LUBBOCK, Texas, August 30.—J. C. Kellam, Texas Director of the National Youth Administration, has informed County Superintendent R. A. Simms of Brownfield that the quota of part-time NYA School Aid jobs for Terry County this year will be thirteen.

The county allocation was made by the State Director after consulting with state school officials and relief and welfare agencies, on the basis of the latest and most reliable figures available on youth population in financial need. The total number of jobs available to Texas this year was only 75 per cent of last year's original quota.

Superintendent Simms has been requested to organize a County Committee from among the school officials of Terry County for the purpose of making recommendations to the State Youth Director regarding the allocation of jobs to schools within the county. As soon as this recommendation has been made, local schools will be notified and supplied by the County Superintendent with forms necessary for execution of an application for approval for participation in the NYA program.

Local school officials should communicate with the county superintendent to inform him and the County Committee regarding the needs of their school for part-time NYA jobs, Mr. Kellam said.

Youths seeking NYA jobs should apply to the principal or superintendent of their school, since it is the function and responsibility of the local school officials to select those students who shall be given employment.

Western Union Has Doubled Business

After two months trial with a down town office of Western Union, Mr. H. G. Brenaman in charge, announced that the business of the company has greatly increased, but just how much he was unable to say, but Bob Harris who was operator at the depot says that the business has practically doubled.

One thing that has caused a great increase in the use of WU is the fact that night letters as well as day messages are cheaper than formerly, and together with the fact that the location in the Alexander Drug store is handy, and free from interruption, as at the depot, has made it popular with people. Mr. Brenaman states that there was no trouble in getting up the quota of time clocks here.

IHC Enlarging Their Plant in This City

At the request of C. T. Edwards, local manager of the International Harvester Co., E. C. Roberts of Seagraves, owner of the building, corner of Hill and Seventh, is adding 50x30 feet to the warehouse, making a building 50x90, which will for some time take care of this growing business.

Mr. Edwards stated to a Herald representative that the new addition would be stuccoed and conform so well to the other part that one could not tell where they joined. The new part will be petitioned off from the display and stock rooms, and used as a repair department.

New and well equipped offices will be fitted up in the older part of the building.

Wholesalers to Show Wares in Lubbock

LUBBOCK, Aug. 30.—October 10 to 13, inclusive, were the dates set for the 15th semi-annual West-Texas New Mex Wholesale Clothing Market, according to announcement made by the Association's new president, Luther Gowdin.

Only preliminary details of the event were discussed at a meeting of the Board of Directors here Friday, except for setting the dates of the season's fashion show which will be held in the ballroom of the Lubbock Hotel on Tuesday evening October 12th, to be followed by the merchants' ball the same evening.

Advance interest in the coming event indicates a more lavish display of merchandise than has ever been displayed at the Lubbock Hotel since the organization of the Association.

Dr. G. S. Webber cleared out from the Palace Drug Store last week on his vacation. He is building fence on his farm in the north part of the county. Some vacation!

er, preacher and evangelist has brought him into a very intimate sympathy with the average man, making him able to approach men with a gospel they understand and appreciate. And besides that, he is said to be a preacher of unusual ability on the platform. He will be here at the eleven o'clock service Sunday morning and will continue preaching twice a day until the close of the meeting. Services will be held at ten mornings and at eight evenings, with a song service in charge of Mr. Martin preceding each service of gospel preaching.

The pastor and members of the Methodist Church cordially invite all singers to assist in the choir and congregational singing and to make the services their own, for this is a meeting held in the interest of the Brownfield communities. Every person attending will not only be welcomed, but everyone will receive the utmost in Christian courtesy.

Scudday Farmer Gets First '37 Bale Cotton

N. E. Townsend of the Scudday community had the honor this year of having the first bale of 1937 cotton ginned in Terry county. The bale weighed 559 pounds, was ginned free by the Griffin Gin, formerly known as the Holt Gin.

At this time it has been announced that the bale will be sold at public auction, but we were unable to find just when. Nor could we get in touch with the Chamber of Commerce offices to find out whether or not premium for the first bale would be given.

Mrs. Ray Christopher spent the past week with her parents in Perryton. Mr. Christopher went there for the week and they returned home Sunday. Mr. Christopher also attended business in Amarillo while gone.

The Rainbow Tourist camp on highway 51 is being re-stuccoed and re-painted this week.

Mrs. O. B. Miller of Wheeler, Texas is the guest of Rev. and Mrs. R. T. Breedlove.

Ready For CCC Enrollments in Terry

"A call of approximately 11,000 white and 1,200 colored boys to be enrolled into the Civilian Conservation Corps during October has been issued by Adam R. Johnson, Director of the Texas Relief Commission, to various County Welfare Boards.

"This number far exceeds any former enrollment and will give almost all boys in the State an opportunity to enroll if they are unemployed, 17 to 23 years of age, in need, and whose parents or themselves, due to financial limitations, are not in a position to secure or provide comparable training. Full strength of the Texas quota is 16,000 white and 1,700 colored, and due to discharge of enrollees reaching the age of 24 and of completion of the maximum enrollment of two years, replacements will be necessary.

"Heretofore, rules did not allow boys from other than the groups receiving or eligible to receive public assistance be accepted but these have now been modified. Such boys who have no dependents may allow two thirds of their pay to remain on deposit and upon discharge or completion of their enrollment receive the full accrued amount. Where there are dependents an allotment will be made each month direct.

"Over $500,000.00 each month is brought to Texas through these allotments to dependents, which materially relieves the burden that would otherwise be carried by the communities."

Young men who are interested in enrolling in CCC should see Mrs. Hazel Holt at the Terry County Relief Office, Brownfield, Texas.

Another Serious Wreck on Hiway 51

In a serious car wreck about three o'clock Tuesday morning on highway 51 at a curve near Wellman, R. H. Martin, 54, Lubbock baker, and Paul Fuqua, Fort Worth baker, were seriously injured when their car turned over several times. They are in the Lubbock Sanitarium receiving treatment.

Three other men in the car were more or less injured, but all have been discharged from the hospital following treatment. Being at such a late hour, the injured men lay several hours before a car came along. The Hudgens & Knight ambulance carried the men to Lubbock.

Merchants Prepare Bargains For Sta.-Mon.

Brownfield merchants are prepared to offer some special inducement to shoppers here Monday, as well as Saturday of this week. Monday will be the regular Tradesday, and a great crowd is expected to be on hand.

The usual programs of the day will be carried out at the location on the east side of the square, so don't leave your tickets at home. Bring the entire family if school has not started in your neighborhood and spend a delightful day.

Remember that cotton is opening, and you may be a very busy person next first Monday. So don't miss this one.

Buy Hardware at Your Own Price Mon.

In addition to the other bargains offered by merchants here on First Monday the Chisholm Hardware is to put on an auction sale, beginning at 1:30 P. M., on that date. Be sure to attend this auction and buy many useful household articles at your own price.

You are privileged to pick out the article or articles you wish to buy before the sale begins, and then when it is offered, make your bids. This firm is cleaning up a surplus stock of hardware to make room for a furniture stock.

Carson Building a Duplex on His Lots

Mr. A. L. Carson is wrecking some old out buildings this week on the back of his lots, and will use them in the construction of a modern duplex, which we understand will be located on First street.

These apartments will be furnished by Mr. and Mrs. Carson, and will be ready as soon as carpenters can erect them. They will be finished in stucco.

West Texas Judges Name New Officers

ABILENE, Aug. 28.—Judge Omar T. Burleson of Anson was named president and Judge Homer Bouldin of Albany, secretary-treasurer of the West Texas County Judges and Commissioners Association at their semi-annual convention which closed here today.

Brownwood was chosen as the scene for the Spring convention, as Hal Burnett, Pecos County commissioner, was named vice president. All officers and the convention city were chosen by acclamation. Retiring president is Judge Alvin Allison of Levelland. Burleson was advanced from the secretary-treasurer's post.

Passage of seven resolutions regarding legislation also marked the closing sessions of the convention. Two of the resolutions asked passage of state soil conservation laws, another opposed cutting off Works Progress Administration rolls, and the fourth asked amendment of the officers' salary law.

Appropriations to care for rural school aid for transportation was asked in one resolution, and Congress was urged to carry out a program to raise cotton prices to at least 17 cents per pound. A seventh resolution recommended provisions for the hiring of auditors in counties with $10,000,000 calculations and upward.

B'field-Meadow to Tangle in Donkey Game

It was announced last week that the Brownfield Lions Club would play the winner of the Lubbock-Crosbyton Donkey baseball game, but satisfactory arrangements could not be made with Crosbyton, which won that game.

However, satisfactory arrangements have been made with Meadow Firemen, and the first game will be played Sunday afternoon at Meadow, and the second here Monday night under lights.

Monday is Tradesday as well as Labor Day, and a good crowd will likely see both games.

First Week of Petit Jurors Used This Week

District Court is in its second week with a rather heavy docket to be disposed of this week, some of which are jury cases. This being the first week in which the petit jurors have been used. Cases tried last week and this were mostly land title cases and divorces, etc.

District Attorney Truett Smith informed us Monday that next week would start the trial of criminal cases but he did not enlarge on whether or not there was a heavy or light docket.

Com. Lyon Hears That Worms Bad in E-Tex.

Commissioner Lee Lyon got this hefty one off his chest. Some one was telling how bad the worms were in some east Texas county, when a native of the piney woods told this one: "Out my way," said the nester, spitting a gob of snuff on the hood of a nearby car, "the leaf worms eat all the leaves, the boll worms eat the bolls, the cutworms finished the stalks, the weavils cut down the fence posts and the tumblebugs rolled up the wire."

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Coleman are visiting Mr. Colemans brother, Walter in Los Angeles, California. They expect to be gone two weeks.

Mrs. Ollie Bruton of Monahans was here this week enroute to Wewoka, Okla., where Mr. Bruton has recently accepted a position with a jewelry store.

A VISITOR FROM DETROIT, MICHIGAN

Detective James E. Bennett and family of Detroit, Michigan returned home Wednesday after a 10 days visit to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Bennett and a sister Mrs. Tobe Helms of this city, also a sister, Mrs. Paul Lea of Lubbock. James is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Bennett and had not visited home in 11 years. The Bennetts, Helms and Lea had a family reunion in the New Mexico mountains, they also visited the Carlsbad Cavern.

Detective Bennett reported a most wonderful trip. He likes Texas, in fact he is an old Texas boy, who went to the city and made good. Come back to see us folks.

No Road Debt in Texas —We Pay-As-We-Go

Wisdom of Texas's highway policy is proved once more by a report of the American Petroleum Industries Committee that nearly one-fourth of the States have floated such a large volume of highway bonds that payment of interest and amortization charges absorb an important part of current automotive tax revenue, thus handicapping road-building activities. In one State the road debt is equivalent to a mortgage of $645 on every motor vehicle registered in the State. In view of the fact that the average value of automobiles operating on the highways is $212, the highway debt of that State imposes, in effect a mortgage of three times the vehicle's face value.

Texas is one of only sixteen States that have no road debt. For the thirty-two States with road debts the average debt per vehicle is $69.18. In other words, every automobile in these thirty-two States is laboring under a highway debt nearly one-third the value of the average vehicle. But Texas is among the fortunate States able to devote their entire current highway revenue to road improvement.

Obviously, the relation of road debts to current revenues has an important bearing upon the progress of a State in carrying out its road program, since roads must be maintained after they are built and since programs of highway improvement cannot be static. And it follows that if debt service reduces too greatly the margin available for maintenance, administration, and needed expansion, the best interests of the State and its motorists are not served by such financing policies.

Texas's highway fund is in excellent condition. And it should be kept that way. Incidentally, the debt-free highway department should be kept in mind in considering the States' finances. Texas has no highway debt to be added to the deficit in its General Revenue Fund.—The Texas Weekly.

Judge Simms Proves to Be a Poor Fisherman

Judge R. A. Simms, who took in the West Texas County Judges' Convention at Abilene, says that he thoroughly enjoyed the meeting, as most of it was instructive and constructive, and that Abilene certainly did itself proud in entertaining the body.

But, he explained, us fellows out here on the ballies with no water holes bigger than a windmill surface tank were thrown to a bad advantage in trying to fish with those fellows from the "crick and branch" section of the state.

Somehow, he stated, they knew just how to wobble and drag their hooks to get a strike.

Moves 5 Room Home Here From Slaton

Mrs. Joe Brown of Morgan Mills, Texas, recently purchased a lot on east Tate street, and Monday afternoon a house moving concern of Lubbock arrived here with a five room residence on trucks from Slaton, which will be settled on the lot when the concrete foundation is finished.

It is our understanding that two others have been moved here from Slaton, and several to Seagraves, and that good houses can be purchased rather cheap in that city. Mrs. Brown has a daughter whom she wishes to put in school here.

State Bank Remodeling Front of Building

The Brownfield State Bank is adding greatly to the looks of the front of their building by remodeling, raising the plate glass some three feet, and making the wall under the window conform more to the architecture of the rest of the building.

We understand that the old doors will be eliminated, and one larger door used, with paneled glass on each side, adding to the beauty and at the same time admitting more light.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Huckabee of Snyder visited Ed Turner, who is in the Treadaway-Daniell hospital, Wednesday of this week.

Dr. and Mrs. A. H. Daniell were business visitors in Amarillo, Tuesday.

Mrs. Carl Lewis and children were Lubbock visitors Monday.

The Star-Telegram says there must be a great degree of difference between drunks before the law. For instance, what drunken driver will not plead, and get others to sustain him if possible, that "he only drank two beers." On the other hand, there is the fair maiden and sometimes the innocent boy that will plead diligently before the judge that they "were drunk as lords when they got married," in order to get a divorce.

Willard T. Bright, general ramrod of the Seagraves News tells us that he actually caught a driller guzzling a strawberry milkshake recently. When we first heard of oil field "roughnecks" we imagined they were the real "bulls of the woods," but later on when we came to know some of them, as well as drillers, we found that they were just humans, the same as you and I—good men with bad names. They lack a heap being the tough humbergs they are pictured to be.

Down at staid old Abilene, it seems they have a very "blue Sunday law." One of the Taylor county editors tells us that he plead faithfully one Sunday for the sale of just one can of tomatoes. Nothing doing. Some time later, some plain clothes men had better luck with the neighborhood groceryman, and promptly arrested him for selling food on Sunday. Agreeing with the Lawn Echo editor we confess that we cannot see a great deal of difference in selling food or gasoline or a newspaper a meal or a railroad ticket on Sunday.

Col. Ernest O. Thompson says that Europe is in no immediate danger of war as we have their guns spiked. No nation can now carry on a successful war without oil and gas for their various and sundry war machines and that Uncle Sam just about has a corner on that commodity. Col. Thompson intimated that some of the flat as well as round heads in Europe plead with him while over there recently for a little more leniency with oil exports to Europe "for emergencies." They would not exactly explain what they meant by emergencies when pressed but a blind man could see through their scheme, he said.

Reading between the lines of Monday's Lubbock Journal, Hon. Chas. Armour Guy seems to get some glee that the Herald is to have a competitor, and predicts that we will have to go to work. Maybe, we might get a rest, Charley, who knows? And with the present growth of Lubbock, Charley, there is no assurance that you will not have a Democratic Daily competitor, some of these days. One of Charley's latest fatal outbursts was his panning of FDR for appointing Senator Black as Supreme Court Justice. Did Charley expect the President to appoint Mr. Hoover, Hamilton or even the forgotten Landon?

After Charley had taken Black for a cleaning, his friend, Dr. Bradford Knapp sorter took old Chas. down a button hole or two by telling him that Black was not a bad guy.

Good gosh! these south Plains newspapers are a bad lot to keep in the straight and narrow. Now comes Editor Hale of the Yoakum County Review trying to make a mountain out of a molehill. He either misunderstood, misread or misquoted us on the old chestnut about when "Heck was a pup." Evidently Editor Hale dropped his glasses in the churn while he was reading that article, as we did not refer to Yoakum county people as pups, as he tries to infer, but we were merely computing time as the good Arkansawyers do, based on the age of some of their ancient hounds, generally referred to as Old Heck. We've been teasing those old Yoakumites since way back when some people we know were trying poor devils down on creeks and sloughs of east Texas and Louisiana, dressed up in sheets, with a pillow slip cap with three letters in front. And should we stop teasing them now, they'd think we were swelled at 'em. Still looking for you to come over, Bro. Hale.

A little invention I'd like to see perfected is an elevator for the ice and cherry found so snug in the bottom of every glass. Some smart guy thought of an elevator for the drink but he let the most tantalizing content down. The fingers are always a sure method of retrieving the ice or cherry but it is considered rather barbaric and uncouth. Anyone with a determined disposition will always get his cherry, but it is the timid soul I'm thinking about. He would like to have the coveted content as much as you or I, but he lacks the courage to carry out his desire. —Jean Suits' Lockney Beacon Chat-tergrams.

We have always heard that finger were made before forks, perhaps before spoons. Anyway, one way to get around offending the finicky would be to ask the bartender for a spoon as if there was a bug or fly in the ointment which you wished to shovel out of the way. Then use the spoon to extract the berry. Not long since, we "got 'um up" to a lady friend (no our wife won't see this as she never reads our editorials) when the good lady in question dropped her cherry while trying to eject it from the bottom of the glass. She was so put out that we had the soda-jerker to substitute another, which he gladly did. Personally we detest the things as they always leave a bitter farewell.

Scurry County did not follow the state in accepting most of the six amendments that were submitted in Monday's election. And we'll lay a wager that if the voting had been held on Saturday instead of Monday, at least one or two more amendments would have been defeated in the state. Legislators did not set the voting for Monday instead of Saturday as a so-called "experiment." They set it Monday because they knew the farm vote, which does not believe too strongly in amendments, would not turn out very heavy.—Snyder Times.

THIS DIDN'T HAPPEN ON THE SANTA FE

It was a very pretty young school teacher who was making the trip on a night train but unfortunately she was unable to obtain a berth on the sleeper. She sat nodding and sighing in the uncomfortable seat of the day coach when the attention of the conductor was attracted by her tired wistful face.

"I'm sorry you were too late to get a berth tonight," he said stopping beside her. "May I offer you my berth?"

"Oh, would you?" I should be so grateful." The conductor took her to his own berth in the Pullman and shortly afterward she was sleeping peacefully while the conductor went about his business. But at 4a. m. the colored porter was sent to find the conductor and of course, he made straight for the conductor's berth. Reaching through the curtain he found a shoulder and shook it.

"E-E-E-E!" A piercing shriek caused the porter to jump as if he had just seen a green horse. "Get out, get out. I'm a nice girl!" the startled girl screamed.

"Sho' you is," said the porter soothingly, "sho' yo' is—but is dey any nice conductahs in dar wid you,"

WISE ACTION

While the total vote Monday was disappointing in an election of extreme importance, the percentage of opinion reflected in the returns can be accepted as representative of the mass of Texas thought. The electorate rejected by a decisive majority the ill-advised effort to restore the fee system to Texas and approved five amendments to the State Constitution all of which have more or less merit.

The amendments which authorize aid for the deserving blind and for needy dependent youngsters will serve, when effectuated by the Legislature, to apportion over the whole State the care of two charges upon our sympathy and our support. A practicable, permanent State-wide policy of dealing with this responsibility is far better than localized charity. It is vitally necessary however that politics should be kept completely out of an administrative need that calls very loudly both for efficient and sympathetic handling.

The new tax discounts amendment for the first time recognizes the merit of the unsung hero of civic support, the prompt taxpayer. The other two approved amendments involved minor matters. One relieves stockholders in State banks of double responsibility and is meritorious if it can be coupled with mandatory participation in deposit guarantee. The other authorizes a single county

Last spring some parties down at Dallas notified us as well as perhaps other suckers that we had been selected to go in a book to be known as Who's Who in Texas. We complied with a request for a brief biography or should we state autobiography, but failed to include the sum of $5.00, which was stated as the advance price of the book. Now the little woman is receiving invitations from the Madam Secretary of the publishers to buy the book at some $8.50 stating that men are forgetful, and the edition will soon be gone, and that our offsprings will have lost a great bet by not having the records of old dad or granddad to brag about when company comes. Hey! ho, hot, ain't it. —Terry County Herald.

Editor Stricklin has plenty of sense and can skip such fakes as indicated in the above, but how the people do "nibble." Just mention, "Who's Who" and let them get a chance to get in on the proposition and they "cough up." People all over the state of Texas fell for the scheme mentioned above, and we know of several who rushed the $5.00 in to get in on the "bargain price." When this plan is worn out, when the people get fully wise to it, then some other plan will be thought out, and it will work.—Abilene Times.

Cotton Classing Act To Aid Texas Farmers

COLLEGE STATION.—The drive for improvement in the quality of Texas cotton will be aided in 1938 by the terms of the cotton classing act, E. A. Miller, agronomist of the Texas Extension Service, believes. The act was passed by the present Congress and signed by the President on April 13 of this year. Designed to correct the "hog round" system of cotton buying, the act requires that the Department of Agriculture, upon request from any group of producers organized to promote the improvement of cotton, determine and make promptly available to the producers the classification of any cotton they produce. The act, as explained by Miller, also provides that the Department of Agriculture shall collect and publish timely information on the market prices of the various classes of cotton. Information on the current prices for grades and staple lengths of cotton will be posted at gins and other public places in cotton growing communities. When the services provided by the new act are started, samples will be sent to central offices for classing, and Miller indicated that growers should receive their classing turnout within four days after ginning.

ROAD BOND ISSUE IS SOUGHT FOR ANDREWS CO.

A Campaign is being waged in Andrews county for the support of a $30,000 bond issue, object of which would be the opening of a road from Andrews to the east county line, along the route approved by a district highway engineer for the Andrews-Big Spring road. The vote has been called for Sept. 18. On event of a satisfactory vote, Howard county supporters plan to campaign for a road out of here to the west county line.—Big Spring News.

A Brief History of Terry—It's Development

An election was ordered by the Commissioners' Court of Martin county early in the year 1904 for organization of Terry county, the later being attached to Martin county for judicial purposes. There were two candidates, Gomez and Brownfield. Brownfield won, being named for a citizen of this city by that name.

Early in its history, Terry county became noted as a corn producing county, and has held that reputation since. Being 100 miles from Big Spring, the nearest railroad at that time, most of the corn found a ready market in adjoining counties whose soils were harder and not so well adapted to that grain. Finding that it was an almost sure producer of this highly prized fattening grain, William Randolph Hearst, rancher and publisher put in some large feeding pens here, and has fattened and marketed in the neighborhood of 40,000 steers since about 1934. Other feeders local and otherwise, large and small, have been attracted here for the same reason. Terry usually stands third in the State in corn production and fifth in hog production.

Other grains such as, maize, hegeria and sudan, also do well, and cotton is a prominent crop, although Terry county has never gone as heavy on cotton production as some of the neighboring counties. Being a diversified farming county, its marketing season most always lasts from September to March, corn coming on the market generally after the cotton harvest, around the holidays.

For that reason, the bank deposits remain high longer generally than most counties of this section. For instance, the call of June 30th, showed up almost as well as the call of December 31st or March, 31, being nearly one million dollars on deposit June 30th, with unusually low loans, and big cash and reserve funds.

According to the Federal census of 1930, Brownfield had a population of 1906 people. A private census was taken by the Chamber of Commerce in May 1936 which showed 3555 people living within the corporate limits. The population today is conservatively estimated at 5000. Building permits this year will run in the neighborhood of $150,000. Some 75 new homes have been built or moved here from other places since January 1, ranging in price from a few hundred dollars to around $7,000, and many are under construction. About a dozen business houses have been built or building, including a hospital costing $25,000 for the building alone.

Aside from the Texas Utility Co., who have an ice plant here, and the West Texas Gas Co., all utilities are owned by the city, including light and power, water and sewer systems. Our kWh rates are as low as anywhere, our water the cheapest perhaps on the Plains, and our city tax rate 50c on the $100 valuation, which is considered very low. One year ago, it was considered that we had enough motor power at the plant to last several years, but the city has recently purchased a new 550 horsepower engine to help care for the ever increasing load. Auditors say Brownfield city is in the best financial condition of any city in this area, its credit rating AA-1.

Brownfield has one highway, 51 already paved, and paving will soon be finished east to Tahoka, and grading and putting on caliche base is now under way to the Yoakum county line on 84. Some 14 blocks of the city are paved with brick on concrete base, and some 21 blocks are paved with rock asphalt. Brownfield's trade territory covers Terry and Yoakum county in Texas, and the north half of Lea county in New Mexico. It is said to have one of the most extensive and diversified trade territories on the Plains. Five gins and a compress operate here, and a cottonseed oil mill to cost $150,000 is being organized.

Aside from farming interests, there is extensive ranching interests in the section, with pure bred cattle mostly Hereford breed as well as the popular dairy herds on the farms. Hundreds of car loads of hogs go out of here annually, mostly to Los Angeles. With the recent oil development almost surrounding the city, it gives promise of an even more rapid growth in the future. All the rate 50c on the $100 valuation, which are represented here, all having strong, well organized congregations.

Brownfield has a fully accredited school with an enrollment of 1200, and 39 teachers. Buildings and grounds are valued at about $200,000. Meadow, Wellman and Union also have high schools of the first class and commodious buildings. Other districts have good buildings and are either consolidating, or sending their high school pupils to neighboring high schools.

Brownfield is well equipped with all the old standard lodges, Masons, Blue and Chapter, Odd Fellows and Woodman, and has three civic clubs, the Lions, Rotarians, and the Maids and Matrons Club, the later being a study club, the Cen-Tex Music Club and many others. The rural sections have also organized many clubs, and all have their Parent-Teacher associations, and 4-H clubs. No county has a higher class of citizenship than ours.

Lamb County Fair September 23-24-25

For the first time in the history of Lamb County, a major county fair is being staged at Littlefield, Texas, on September 23-24-25. Headlining the entertainment features will be three days of rodeo, while attractive premium lists will insure interesting exhibits in every phase of agriculture and home life.

Curley Daugherty, manager of the Olton Rodeo for seven years, will be arena director of the three afternoon rodeo performances. Curley will feature wild steer bulldozing and boasts some of the meanest and wildest bucking horses and brahma steers in West Texas. Due to his splendid shows at Olton every summer, Mr. Daugherty has built up an enviable reputation as a rodeo manager.

In addition to the rodeo, the fair management has booked an unusually large carnival with thrilling free acts. Other entertainment will consist of fiddling contests and amateur nights.

Farm diversification will be the theme of this year's Fair. Twenty-five-hundred 48-page premium lists mailed to all farmers of Lamb County last week show new departments added and old ones enlarged. Thursday will be devoted to horses and mules, Friday will specialize in swine and sheep, while a fine dairy show will be the order of the day on Saturday.

Premium List of P-SP Fair Being Distributed

LUBBOCK, August 30.—Distribution of the premium lists for the 24th annual Panhandle South Plains Fair was begun this week and they will be available in the offices of the County Agents of each county on the South Plains.

Following the posting of $3,000 in purses for a six-day race meet in connection with the fair, a deluge of entries from race horsemen from all parts of the State are being received, indicating considerable interest and insuring the best race meet ever to be held on the South Plains.

CIGARETTES, WHISKEY, BEER PAY MOST OF PENSIONS

Where does the pension dollar come from? How much of each payment to an old person is supplied by the liquor tax? What part of each old age assistance dollar comes from cigarette taxes?

These questions were answered this week by the statistical division of the Old Age Assistance Commission.

Of a dollar paid out in the form of old age assistance, 5 cents is put up by the federal government to match 50 cents paid by the state. The state's 50 cents, based on Nov. 1, 1936, through July 31, 1937, revenues, was derived as follows: 23 cents from cigarette taxes, 2 cents from tax on vending machines, 23 cents from liquor, wine and beer taxes, one-fifth of a cent from the amusement tax, one and four-fifths cents from the tax and license on parimutel.

NOT TOO SOON

Texas State Commissioner of Agriculture, McDonald did not start too soon to tell Texas farmers that they should keep complete, accurate record of their cotton sales this fall, when he issued a statement to the Texas press this week. We might have learned from previous years that these will certainly be necessary, not at some vague uncertain future time, but within the next twelve months. One system followed by a local farmer consists of filing carefully the gin ticket, which has dates, numbers, weights, and other data; then when compress ticket is received, enter on the back of the gin ticket the compress number, date, and corrected weight. When sale is made put all information, date, buyer, weight, price and total received on the back of the gin ticket. Paste the ticket in a cotton record book made of a five cent composition book. The book-keeping is adequate and simple enough for anybody.—Ralls Banner.

Looney Advocates Tax Reform For Tex.

ABILENE, Sept. 2.—The abolition of the state property tax is the greatest tax reform need in Texas today, Everett Looney of Austin, former assistant attorney general, told the West Texas County Judges and Commissioners Association convention here last week.

"You all know of the many demands—to take care of the needs of your citizens—you must have additional revenue. There is but one logical, sensible way to get this revenue—that is for the state to abolish the ad valorem tax, and levy property taxes entirely for local purposes," Looney told the officials.

"We can confidently expect two great results from the abolition of the state property tax—

1. Local governments—counties and cities can—adequately take care of the needs of their communities, and
2. The property-owners—the homeowner, the farmer, the ranchman, the storekeeper—will be given a long needed tax reduction," Looney declared.

Looney suggested that the loss in state revenues due to the abolition of the property tax should be replaced with a reasonable net income tax.

Such a tax, Looney said, should exempt the little man—the man who makes only a small income, 2. should be based on a man's net and not his gross income, and 3. should be graduated so that the man who makes an enormous profit would pay more proportionately than the man who makes just a small profit.

"There are thousands of people in Texas today with large incomes who pay no taxes except perhaps those on cigarettes and gasoline because they own no property. In other words, we who happen to own a little property are overburdened so that these folks can go tax free," he asserted.

"Moreover, there are thousands of people living in other states who get dividends and profits from the exploitation of Texas resources, who, because they own no property in Texas, do not pay even cigarette and gasoline taxes," Looney pointed out. "There is only one way to make these tax-dodgers pay their fair share of taxes. That is by the levy of a net income tax.

"Let's give the property owner—the farmer, the rancher, the storekeeper—some tax relief, and at the same time everyone do his part to support the government of Texas," Looney urged.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Herod returned Thursday from Corpus Christi, from a ten days vacation.

Jess Smith attended the reunion held at the park in Lubbock, Friday, August 27th, for former Jack county citizens.

The Rest of The Record

Several months ago, when the industrial North and East were paralyzed with sit-down strikes, I issued a statement that we were not going to have any confiscation of property in that fashion down here in Texas. I said I was convinced that the sit-down strike method did not represent the desires of an overwhelming majority of organized labor in our State; and that while I was and had always been friendly to organized labor, it was "un-American and unlawful to sit down on somebody's property and try to remain there." If a man wants to quit a job, or strike, he has a perfect right peaceably to do so, but after quitting he has no more right to sit down on property or premises without permission than he would have to sit down in a private home uninvited. The people of Texas approved of my statement because it represented the sentiments of an overwhelming majority of them. We haven't had any sit-down strikes in Texas and have had very little labor trouble as compared to other states.

Now another unfortunate situation has developed. Recently in Dallas a man who was trying to show a pro-labor picture in a public park was kidnapped and taken out into the country by a bunch of hoodlums who tarred and feathered him. Another labor organizer was kidnapped and beaten so brutally that he was laid up in the hospital for over a week. Other outrages of a lesser nature were perpetrated and threats were freely being made as to what was going to be done with labor organizers. Everyone concedes that labor has a right to organize and to select organizers and leaders of their own choosing. The freedom of speech and the right to assemble peaceably are guaranteed by both State and Federal Constitutions. The brutal treatment accorded these men in Dallas is indefensible. I recall a few years ago when the unfortunate Ku Klux epidemic broke out and many men were taken from their homes at night and flogged because they had violated the laws. The people of Texas rose up in their might and took the position that even if a man had violated the law he was entitled to trial in a courtroom and not in a creek bottom. Today it isn't even claimed that the men who were kidnapped or tarred and feathered were violating any law. All that was said by those who perpetrated the outrages was that the men belonged to the CIO. It is a violation of the laws of our country for these men to belong to the CIO, regardless of what we may think of that organization. In my opinion, it is just as important to protect from outrages of this kind as to prevent the taking of property from the rightful owners by the sit-down strike or other unlawful method. Because I didn't want to see the thing get started again in Texas I immediately sent twenty-five members of the State police to Dallas with instructions to protect men in their right to speak freely and to assemble lawfully. These officers are instructed not to take sides in any controversy but simply to prevent violence on either side. I was surprised to get a bunch of inspired telegrams apparently approving the treatment given these organizers because the telegrams said, they were members of the CIO. I don't care to what organization they belong. If they violate any law they ought to be prosecuted for it; but no set of men has the right to take the law into their own hands and kidnap, or beat, or tar and feather, these men. I think the people of Texas are backing me up in this stand. Since the State police went to Dallas these troubles have practically ceased. I am very hopeful that the situation will adjust itself without any further trouble. I really wish the general public could know in detail the many fine things that have been accomplished by the Public Safety Department. I am particularly proud of the intelligence branch. In this division we have fingerprint, handwriting and ballistic experts. This has been a great help to local officers everywhere and, of course, has materially assisted the State in dealing with the more hardened type of criminal. Just as illustrative of what has been done in the one field of ballistic work: As perhaps most of you know men from this department can take a bullet that has been fired and trace it to the gun that fired it by markings on the bullet. They have done this in many instances and solved cases that might otherwise have gone down as "perfect" crimes. For instance, recently in one Texas town a man was murdered at night as he slept. He was not robbed, and officers were at loss for a motive. They did, however, find shotgun shells of a certain type. They picked up every gun of this caliber in the little town and fired some test shells from them and sent these test shells together with the ones found on the ground in to Austin. The fired shells from each gun had been numbered and the experts in the Public Safety Department shortly advised that the shell with a certain number on it was fired from the gun found at the scene of the crime. It was no trouble to trace the ownership of this shotgun and its use to a negro in the community who promptly confessed the crime. This is just one of a number of similar cases that illustrate how quickly the department can assist your local officers. Some time ago I had occasion to use the handwriting experts. The State of Illinois had asked for extradition papers on a prominent citizen of this State on a charge of forgery alleged to have been committed in Illinois. The notary public who took the acknowledgement in Illinois identified this citizen and in an affidavit asserted that he had seen him sign the instrument in question. While I was hearing the case I had the handwriting expert from the Public Safety Department to go over the alleged forged deed and compare it with samples of the defendant's handwriting; and before I could close the hearing these experts reported to me that without any question the defendant had not forged the deed. You can imagine how grateful these people were to our Department of Public Safety for the service, which cleared the name of a good citizen of Texas. From time to time I shall try to tell you more of the work of this department and other departments of the State Government in which I think you may be interested.

ARSONIST ON THE RUN

It is gratifying to report that there have been notable decreases in the crime of arson in recent years. Where, according to records of the National Board of Fire Underwriters covering about 75 per cent of all the arson cases in the country, there were 1,544 arrests for this crime in the peak of 1932; there were 635 in 1936. And in 1936, convictions attained the remarkable high of 78 per cent, as compared with 76 per cent in 1935.

The fact that we are making progress in fighting the arsonist doesn't mean that we may rest on our laurels—to the contrary, efforts to stamp out this crime should be redoubled until fires of incendiary origin are reduced to the vanishing point. No crime offers greater peril to life and property—no criminal is more despicable, or less worthy of public sympathy. The arsonist works in the dark, with the aid of explosives and inflammable liquids. "Successful" arson fires often cause the death of innocent persons.

The methods used in the past to fight arson have proven splendidly efficient, and provide a sound groundwork for future action. The National Board of Fire Underwriters employs authorities in various parts of the country. Complex records concerning arson gangs are kept, and all fires involving suspicious elements are thoroughly investigated. Through the work of these agents, many arson gangs have been broken up and their members sent to prison for long terms. Public officials have generally shown a fine spirit of cooperation, and prosecuting attorneys have been aggressive in bringing the criminals to justice. The National Board has likewise prepared a model arson law which has been adopted by a number of states and used by others as an aid to framing arson legislation.

The arsonist is on the run—every community should keep him going!

LOOP HIGH SCHOOL BUILDING UNDER CONSTRUCTION

Work was started last week on the construction of a new brick high school building at Loop. The building will have six class rooms and a large auditorium, which will also be used for a gymnasium. The need for the new building was made last spring when tax payers voted to make Loop the center of a new consolidated school district, including Ashmore, Sawyer, Cedar Lake and Loop schools. With about an enrollment of three hundred students the first year, officials plan to make the Loop Rural High School an accredited school before another term. There will be seven members of the faculty, with J. G. Miller as Superintendent. The school will start about September 20th.—Seagraves News.

BIG SPRING BOND ISSUE FOR HOSPITAL WINS

BIG SPRING, Aug. 26.—A bond issue of $50,000 to finance purchase of a site for the new West Texas state hospital for the insane, carried here today by the overwhelming majority of 606 to 16. A 580 acre tract, designated three weeks ago by the state board of control, will be purchased. Architectural work already was underway on the eight buildings of the first unit, for which the legislature appropriated $817,000.

INDUSTRIAL INSPIRATION

Armadillos may be objects of laughter to some people, but to a farmer in South Texas they are means of a livelihood. An accident was responsible for his discovery. He killed and skinned one of the queer-looking animals one day, put it in the sun and the heat caused the shell to curl up in the form of a basket. Struck with the idea, he fastened the tail around to make the handle, lined the basket with colored silk, and offered it for sale. Tourists liked them, and the idea has grown into a large and remunerative business. E. C. Buell Jr., of Roanoke, Texas is visiting in the home of his sister, Mrs. Loyn Moore.

Mr. and Mrs. George Hurley and son of Hamilton county were guests last week of Mrs. Hurley's sister, Mrs. Will Moore.

HOLDING OUT FALSE PROMISES TO INCURABLES

AUSTIN, Texas, Aug. 30.—In speaking of health racketeers, Dr. Go. W. Cox, State Health Officer, said "There is no meaner method of hittin' below the belt than by holding out false promises to incurables. This fact, however, does not in the least deter the unscrupulous who thus heartlessly prey upon thousands of unfortunates who are in a hopeless stage of illness. Thousands of dollars are extracted annually from individuals whose conditions direct their hopes to the promises made by the super-scientific gentry who claim to have beaten the untiring researchers of endowed laboratories to cure for cancer, diabetes, tuberculosis, epilepsy pellagra, and other serious conditions. "Unfortunately, it is words rather than deeds that create the miracle. A miracle which, instead of being related to a cure, is entirely associated with the transfer of large sums of money from innocent persons to those whose only interest in health and health matters stops at the cash register. "It is the sad and killing fact that in addition to the incurables, there are thousands of believing persons who become the victims of this type of racketeer, and thus through self-diagnosis and self-treatment, postpone a real investigation of their ailments until the incurable stage is reached. "Two main rules should be followed in this connection. The first is to have an annual physical examination by a reputable physician. In this way incipient conditions can be discovered and by proper treatment the disease can frequently be conquered. The second rule is to mistrust all high promising statements of 'amazing discoveries'."

ROPESVILLE REVIVAL DRAWING LARGE CROWDS
The Ropesville church of Christ opened a ten-day meeting Friday night of last week, with O. M. Reynolds of Beaumont, doing the preaching. Large audiences are attending and there have been four baptisms. The revival will continue through Sunday night.

There will be an all day meeting next Sunday with basket lunch. The afternoon will be given over to singing and the visiting Elders and preachers will discuss the subject of "Evangelism." Week day services are conducted at 10 a. m. and 8:15 p. m.

CHOPSTICKS NEEDED

DENTON, Aug. 30.—Using chopsticks could easily become a Texas fad, considering the amount of rice produced in this state annually. One tabulation shows that enough is grown to furnish cereal every day for every breakfast table in the state over a two-year period. In other words, a little matter of 3,254,447 bushels were harvested in 1934, with the majority of this crop coming from the southeastern counties of Wharton, Matagorda, Chambers, Colorado and Liberty.

A wagging tongue makes no friends.

Greta Garbo's secret romance has NOT been revealed. Two weeks ago this column reported that a hunt was on for the car making tracks to her back door. The newspaper reports caused her to move hastily. Now she's in a Cliffwood street house not far from the last one. And there are as yet no back alley car tracks.

IT'S NOT ALL FUN BEING A STAR! Ralph Byrd finished his leading role in "Women of the Night" on Thursday, 11 p. m. Three hours later he started driving 200 miles to Ensenada, Mexico, for a week end of ocean fishing. After spending the next day in a boat wrestling with barrico cuba, yellowtail and other famous fighting fish, he got a wire to return and replace an actor who had been accidentally injured. He drove most of that night to get back. Then the sleep-mad actor had to drive another 200 miles to location in the High Sierras!

Louisiana's governor planned a huge birthday cake to Cecil de Mille last Thursday for the director's 300 guest luncheon. The guests also were treated to favors in the form of small bales of cotton within which were hidden Louisiana pralines.

Notice that Robert Benchley, famous for short comedy roles, is wearing a hat in his latest. His car skidded, rolling over three times enroute to the studio. So Bob got bumps that had to be hidden under the hat!

PREVIEWS: Sonja Heinnie's second picture, "Thin Ice" finds the blonde little skater less self-conscious and with more charm. It presents two grand ice ballets with Sonja more thrilling than before. Our old friends Arthur Treacher, Raymond Walburn and Joan Davis give some grand fun and the latter two knock-out comedy songs.

"Sophie Lang Goes West" has two little known but very effective leads—intriguing Gertrude Michaels and crisp Lee Bowman. Although the picture flashes with speed and suspense it's just fair.

Veteran Tully Marshall gives an impressive performance and the only big laugh in "She Asked for It," a comedy romance with Bill Gargan and Oriun Hayward which is slowed by more dialogue. Marshall, as the enigmatic grandfather, is told he will have a candle-covered cake for his 89th birthday. "Yeah," he angrily growls, "it'll look like a forest fire!"

And speaking of birthdays, handsome Ray Corrigan who heads the "Three Mesquiteers" westerns, boasted he's an excellent cook. His birthday fell on the final day of making "Heart of the Rockies" so he was challenged to make a cake. He did—one big enough for the cast and crew of thirty—and they all fought for more.

ON THE SETS: Eddie Cantor tells this on himself with glee. His wife Ida has consistently refrained from ever going on a set when he's making a picture. This week he is doing a love scene, at which he is notoriously bad, when his director frantically yelled "Cut!" He had seen Mrs. Cantor arrive as Eddie had Louise Hovick in his arms. "Don't stop for me," said Mrs. Cantor. "Eddie needs a few rehearsals!"

Gary Cooper and Binnie Barnes had a terrible time making Tartar love in "Marco Polo." She giggled and he smiled away the needed seriousness. The reason—instead of kissing, the Tartars rub nose. You'll be relieved to see a new kind of climatic clinch!

Talented Bob Livingston for some time has been wanting to get out of westerns into feature pictures. Looks now like an accident will do just that. Locationing in blistering Kernville he dove into the river to cool off, went to deep, and slashed his scalp on the bottom. He went to a hospital instead of into the western. Probably by the time the cuts have cured he will be given the romantic leads he had been promised.

rightful heritage of a sound mind and a sound body, health authorities urge observation of the following measures: (1) blood tests for syphilis affecting both parties who contemplate marriage; (2) a blood test for syphilis on every expectant mother, and (3) through treatment if necessary for the benefit of both mother and child.

ONLY HOT AIR

Those credulous and unsophisticated souls who take the speeches of their Senators and Congressmen seriously may have been rudely jarred if they read a statement once made by Senator Glass of Virginia, says an exchange.

"In all my experience of 30-years in Congress I have never known a speech to change a vote.

"While this is a rather broad assertion, it is practically true. A large percentage of the speeches printed in the Congressional Record are just so much hot air. Many of them are never delivered at all, but are written out and printed for distribution "back home" for the purpose of impressing the voters with the great statesmanship of their authors.

"Therefore, oratory of colleagues does not influence them very much. They are thinking always about what their own constituents will say and vote accordingly regardless of anybody's speech."

Truett Flache, who has been attending the summer school at A. & M. College, is home for a few weeks before returning for the regular term.

Drs. R. B. Parish and A. F. Schofield, local dentists, are to attend the West Texas Dental Society convention at Lubbock today and tomorrow.

Dr. Hughes stated that he aimed to attend if possible.

Federal Beer Tax Reaches Billion

BEER, designated by national leaders as the bulwark of moderation, has also become a tax bulwark to such an extent that on August 10 it had netted the Federal Government its billionth dollar in excise revenue since it was legalized on April 7, 1933.

On June 30, 1937, at the end of the fiscal year, the aggregate had reached $958,159,756, of which $27,500,000 was for wort, malt and special taxes and the balance for barrelage tax. With tax stamps being purchased during summer at the rate of more than a million dollars a day, statisticians were able to fix August 10 as the day when the billionth beer tax dollar was earmarked for the Federal treasury. This, incidentally, is exclusive of the State-imposed taxes, which have aggregated in the neighborhood of a quarter-billion dollars since legalization.

Economists point out that this billion is practically "net profit" for the Government, there being almost no expense for collection—in contrast to the millions paid out for futile enforcement and loss of revenue for the Federal treasury during prohibition, when only bootleggers and speakeasies were the gainers. Under the present set-up, Uncle Sam exerts almost no effort in collecting his beer tax. The brewer purchases revenue stamps in advance, canceling them as the beer leaves the brewery. Meters, installed at the brewers' expense and supervised by Federal inspectors, provide an extra check against possible inaccuracies.

One of the reasons why the billion piled up so fast in comparison with previous years is that the current Federal beer tax is five times the amount levied by the Government before prohibition. In 1914, when the per capita consumption was at its peak, the Federal tax was $1 per barrel and there was no State tax. Today the Federal tax is $5 and State taxes vary from 62 cents to $4.96 a barrel.

At least three factors have been suggested to explain the arrival of the billionth dollar date in advance of early anticipations: (1) improved economic situation, itself induced by legalization of beer stimulating industry; (2) growing popularity of packaged beer; and (3) return of beer as a home beverage.

WHO BUYS FARM PRODUCTS?

A recent study of agricultural income by the Federal Trade Commission revealed many interesting facts relating to the handling of many leading farm products.

While figures for big income-producing farm products indicate that large marketing concerns buy more than 50 per cent of the U. S. production, total milk purchased by a dozen large dairy firms is only about 10 per cent of the country's annual 47 billion quart "crop."

Contrary to the usual impression, purchases of farm products are probably less concentrated than the average person would expect. Ten leading meat packing companies sold only the equivalent of 79.3 per cent of the beef, 35.1 per cent of the fresh pork and 54 per cent of the cured and processed pork products. In the case of veal, however, purchases of these concerns totaled 98.5 per cent, the federal figures showed. Two of the largest packing companies' beef sales were but 47 per cent of the total.

Purchases of 10 leading packers for a year equalled 51.3 per cent of the total production of cattle and calves, and 37.4 per cent of the hogs. The three largest companies purchased 40.8 per cent of the beef and 25.3 per cent of the hogs.

Thirteen millers bought only 65.2 per cent of the commercial wheat flour crop, while 13 tobacco manufacturers bought the equivalent of 64 per cent of the nation's tobacco crop, selling 97 per cent of the cigarettes and 90 per cent of the smoking tobacco.

With milk the so-called big companies are but a minor factor as 12 major concerns purchased only about 10 per cent of the total milk production in 1934 and about 13 per cent of the commercial milk. Eleven leading companies marketed 18 per cent of the fluid milk and cream sold in cities and villages and about 25 per cent of the butter.

TRUTH ABOUT SYPHILIS

AUSTIN, Texas, August 24.—"The eradication of syphilis is today's major health problem and our children will hold us incompetent if we fail to control syphilis within this generation," said Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer.

Since inauguration of the national campaign, the public has been made aware of much of the truth about syphilis. While the vast importance of syphilis in general has been stressed, further emphasis needs to be placed on hereditary or prenatal syphilis, one of the most readily preventable types of the disease. Prenatal syphilis is an innocently contracted form, transmitted by an infected expectant mother to her unborn child. The disease in the child can be prevented in almost every instance, provided the mother receives proper treatment during pregnancy. Syphilis, in a sense, is chivalrous; it deals more kindly with women than with men. The early signs of infection are usually not manifest in women; this is especially true during pregnancy. Blood tests, therefore, are all the more essential in the early recognition of syphilis in women.

It has been determined that syphilis affects approximately two to three and a half per cent of the white children attending hospital clinics. People should appreciate also the fact that many cases of syphilis are contracted innocently, in marriage and before birth. Syphilis in itself, is not a disgrace. Disgrace lies rather in the failure of people to take advantage of modern science and in failure to assure an equal chance in life for all of Texas' children.

To eradicate prenatal syphilis and thereby give the newborn child its

"I met Mrs. Morrison—Lord, she is a lovely creature!" Quentin observed, plunging at once into his abstractions. "She'd started to walk to the village, it was .00 much for her, and she asked me to telephone for a taxi to pick her up. But instead I ran her downtown—it seems he wanted the mail, I guess he gets his own way pretty well—and then took her home. It only took me ten minutes. She tells me—" he looked out of a towel, his hair in wild wet confusion to say in satisfaction—"she tells me you called there today, Vic. I'm glad. She's a lovely woman, and she'll be great company for you."

Victoria, at her dressing table, continued to brush her hair. Once she looked steadily at Quentin, in the mirror, but he did not see her. "I told you they could come Thursday night?" she asked. "Yep. Who else are you going to have?" "Gita and Gwen and ourselves and Mother." "Quentin turned, his face coloring with amazement. "Why, my dear, you can't do that!" he said quickly.

"Why, have those people, the first time, and not make an occasion of it?" "Vicky was genuinely astonished. "How d'you mean, Quentin?" "Well, I mean that they're important people; his father is Sir Percival Morrison. I do think that if ever—if ever we're going to spread ourselves, this is the time!" "But he's an invalid, Quentin!" "He's and he isn't. He's lost an eye, of course, but he's an Englishman, and you'll find them regular sticklers for formality. Oh, no, we'll have to make it a formal affair. I'd ask the Rays and the Sinclairs and Dr. Austreicher."

"I see!" Vic murmured as he paused. Her heart was lead. "Why do you say 'I see?'" Quentin demanded suspiciously. "Well, we haven't given that sort of an affair since before the twins were born. We've had nothing but Sunday lunches, and bridge dinners for just four!"

"Why, but there's nothing so formidable about it, Vic!" He spoke with a sort of amused impetuosity. It was not amusing to Vic. She understood his mood too well; his unwonted fussing over every detail of the approaching dinner; his strange excited spirits when the night finally came. Quentin, who usually loathed such affairs, was nervous as a young wife over the candles and flowers, and welcomed the guests with a joviality and assurance that seemed to Vicky almost as bad as his usual manner of grim and polite endurance.

The Morrises came last; the man, who wore a black patch over one eye, limping a little, evidently glad to drop into the nearest chair; Serena shining in flawless beauty. Vicky herself felt tired; things had not gone any too well throughout the long rainy day, she had small heart in the affair.

The earlier stages of the dinner were not a success. Just why not, Vic was unable to perceive. Serena sat next to Quentin. Vicky was miserably impressed, from her end of the table, that the guest of honor did not have much to say. Anyone as beautiful as that did not have to have much to say; she made all the other women look plain and badly dressed and sound chatter-boxes.

The atmosphere seemed definitely clearer when they had gone. They went early; the bowed, carefully walking lean man with the neat black patch over one eye, and the superbly moving woman with her fair head held high. Everyone could discuss them then, and the contract fanatics could settle down to their game. Vicky and Violet and one or two of the other women turned the lights low in the drawing room, gathered about the fire, and analyzed the Morrises at their leisure. Quentin had said that he would walk through the garden with the Morrises, but the night had proved to be still blowy and rainy, and they had had to have the car for the twice two hundred yards. On the whole, wearily glad that it was over, limping upstairs in her stiff new slippers, Vicky pronounced the affair a drag, a bore, a failure.

It went on and on; he never saw it; she could see nothing else. Vicky grew nervous and irritable, wondering about it; wondering when-ever he was out of her sight where Quentin was, wondering how often he saw Serena, and under what circumstances.

"I saw Serena today," Quentin said one night, when their acquaintance with the Morrises was of only a few weeks' standing. "Oh, that was nice. Did she come to the office?"

"No, I took her to lunch."

"Oh?" A pause. Then the inevitable interrogation, as unwelcome as ever.

"Doesn't Mrs. Morrison play?" Vicky Asked.

to Victoria as to Quentin, but dragged from her nevertheless by a power stronger than herself. "Happen to meet her?" "No-o. I spoke of it Sunday. She said that she was going to be in town."

"I see." And do what she would, the pause would seem to have significance, and do what she would, she could not seem to fill it with some casual pleasantries. Presently Victoria and Quentin had to dine with their neighbors. Quentin, who rarely went to dinners, had accepted this invitation as a matter of course, without consulting Victoria. She knew in advance that the event would hold no pleasure for her, she felt like a rough-headed child in a home-made gown when the night came and she and Quentin walked across the side lawn and past the berry patch and the pasture field, and went through the old gate into the lane, and so on to the Morrises for dinner. The affair was indeed informal. Only their four selves were at the table. Serena was no such housekeeper as Victoria Hardisty, but she made no apologies for a poor dinner and indifferent service. The winter night was clear and cold; after dinner there was a fire intermittently replenished by Quentin, and Victoria and Spencer Morrison played backgammon, and then cribbage.

At first they played in the sitting room, but presently Spencer suggested his rather untidy study, where there was an electric heater. He and Victoria went in there, and she exerted herself charitably to make the game interesting. Nine o'clock, ten o'clock struck; Victoria was overcome with sleepiness, and she felt that she could decently suggest going home. Her heart was not on the game; she felt nervous and distracted. Presently she rose; they really must go now; after all, she had a household of small children to consider, and Quentin must make an early start in the morning.

Her host seemed petulant and angry that she should break up the evening, but contented himself with asking her to come over any day, any hour, to get her revenge. "Come tomorrow at about two, if you can," he urged.

"Doesn't Mrs. Morrison play?" Vicky asked, with an inward smile at the idea that she could find time tomorrow, or any day, for an idle afternoon game with a neighbor. "Oh, yes, plays backgammon very well," Spencer answered, with his characteristic little bitter smile twisting his mouth. "But she gets no particular thrill from playing with me."

The drawing room was almost dark when they reached it, but Serena immediately snapped up the lights. Only one lamp had been burning, and in its light and that of the fire Quentin and she had been sitting in big chairs, at the hearth. Had they been there all these long two hours, Vic wondered?

Serena detained Quentin for a moment at the door. "Are you working tonight? Sometimes I see your light quite late? Last night you were late."

"Last night I was playing bridge with three men," Quentin told her. "She watches his light," Victoria thought, disappearing into the outer blackness with a farewell nod over her shoulder.

"If you're working tonight," Serena said to Quentin then, without the slightest expression in her voice or her face, "come over when you finish and I will give you a cup of chocolate."

"Good-night!" Quentin said. He followed Vicky down the porch steps. When they reached their room he said that he thought he would do a little work: fifteen minutes, maybe.

The next morning at breakfast Vic said to him casually: "You didn't go back to the Morrises' last night, did you?" "Well, yes, I did," Quentin answered, looking off his paper. "I'd meant to take her a book and left it on my dresser. I ran over with it, and she was making chocolate. She says she often has a little supper, after he's gone upstairs. We sat in the kitchen awhile."

Well, what was a wife to say to that? After that night there was another change. And this one, to her sinking heart, seemed to Victoria much more ominous than the first. Quentin was always good-natured and gentle now; absent-minded; uninterested in what went on at home. He no longer defended Mrs. Morrison, or seemed especially to want to exchange family courtesies, dinners, and evening meetings, with the house next door. Whatever his relationship with Serena had become, he was content never to mention it; it was their own affair now, his and Serena's, and needed no apologies, no justification.

From Vic's confused thoughts there emerged surprisingly one concrete fact: she loathed Serena; she would have been glad to hear of Serena's violent and sudden death. And this made it increasingly hard to endure Quentin's simple revelations concerning her neighbor. "She's always been just a little girl," Quentin would say. "She says she still likes to get a kitten and a plate of apples and a good book on a rainy afternoon and curl up in the attic and read."

"Folks ask me where is OUR TOWN'S MILEAGE MERCHANT"

'Atta cop! . . . sending people right where you should—here to my station. Because the only real official Mileage Merchant is a CONOCO Mileage Merchant like me. I sure appreciate half a dozen cars from different states driving in this morning already. But let me tell you. Being in business for myself here, my surest living is from always pleasing the homefolks. And they're just as sold as any long distance tourist, on having the engine Oil-Plated by my Conoco Germ Processed oil. You know the way Oil-Plating is altogether different from anything else. It holds on like a leech, where all the worst wear used to come in the engine. Can't drain off the working parts. Then it can't leave any spots without oil . . . nor even while the car is standing still . . . nor all the while it's spinning along on the hottest day. This Oil-Plating is really like a long-lasting part of the engine. Then where's any chance for too much wear, or needing more oil all the time? And there you are . . . people notice all their mileage and the way the engine keeps quiet and cool from Oil-Plating. That's how I've got them picking me out for their Mileage Merchant.

Boy Scout News

The Boy Scouts of the South Plains Council plan the biggest Scout Exhibit in the history of the South Plains Panhandle Fair to be held September 27th to October 3rd.

A complete building is to be devoted to Scout exhibits. Each Troop will have a booth and exhibit one or more Merit Badges. Individual handicraft work in Scout craft will be exhibited by the Scouts in a separate booth.

The Cubs, the younger boys division of the Scout program, will have a separate booth to exhibit their handicraft work. This year there is to be an exhibit made by the Sea Scouts and the Council.

A very substantial increase of attendance in all Scout Camps for this year is seen in a recent report released from the Scout office of the South Plains Council.

A Total of 354 Scouts and 42 leaders representing 26 Troops were camped in the regular Council camps, 91 Scouts and 11 leaders representing six troops were camped in individual Troop camping. The grand total of 445 Scouts and 53 leaders representing 32 Troops were encamped this summer. This is an increase of approximately 100 per cent over the attendance of 1936.

HUNGARY TO START PAYING ITS WAR DEBT TO U. S.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—The White House announced today that the government of Hungary had notified the United States it would begin payment soon on its post-war debt to this country.
