HARMONY NEWS

Now while so much is being said about cleanings up vacant lots, side streets, back yards etc., let's extend this good movement to the country to our homes, and this little poem expresses my sentiment:

"Back Yards," By Mrs. F. A. Chandler.

"Back yards have a way of saying things,
Silently of course,
But the message that they bring,
Comes to us with force.
Some, back yards are a joy to behold
Manicured and neat.
With flowering shrubs and perennials
Showing from the street.
Some back yards are mutely crying
out at indignities,
Heaped up on them year by year.
(Is yours one of these?)
They whisper of shiftlessness or thrift
And they never lie,
Back yards have a way of saying,
Things to the passerby."

When a Hearth-Fire's a Friend

OUT from the apartment-crowded center of cities where space begins and houses become homes, the open fire on the hearth plays an important role in family life. But even in districts where wood and coal are plentiful, the fire-tender has an unpleasant job. To lug fuel from the basement and tote out the ashes is arduous, to say the least. That's why so many people are resorting to the radiant gas fire that is always ready at a moment's desire. And believe it or not, this fire will pop corn and toast marshmallows in the good old way.

A variety of styles and sizes makes it possible to select a wood or coal type of gas fire suitable to the individualized hearth (be it period or modern)—and complete with andirons or designed to be utilized with andirons already in use. A high fire-back will conceal a smoke-scarred back-wall when a fireplace has been used for a long time.

Clean, odorless, and heat-controlled by a thermostat, these scientifically designed new gas fires consume a minimum of fuel and substitute for the healthful rays of the sun with a cheery radiance.

deaths 75 per cent. When otherwise healthy people are operated upon soon after the beginning of the "pain in the stomach" caused by appendicitis, little danger is experienced, but the surgeon's work is made more difficult and the patient's chance of recovery considerably lessened when there is a long delay in seeking medical help, and especially if a cathartic has been given.

How to prevent appendicitis. Keep the body in perfect health as long as possible. Watch your teeth, your tonsils, any place where an infection may occur. Get plenty of good food, plenty of sleep, plenty of exercise. Have a thorough medical examination at least once a year and have your teeth examined and cleaned by a dentist at least once every six months. This kind of watchfulness will not only help you to avoid appendicitis, it will help you to avoid many other illnesses as well.

One way to be unhappy is to wish that you were somebody else.

Bragging about your operations makes others wish you had died.

You can't go wrong as long as you are headed right.

BIGGER AND BETTER BOTTLES

DENTON, Sept. 21.—A whole town bottled up—such is the situation in Three Rivers, where over 100,000 bottles are turned out a day. Milk bottles, beverage bottles, food containers and medicine bottles are a few of the bottled goods produced by the large glass factory located there. The necessary raw products are furnished by a heavy deposit of white, fine-grained sand near the town, which is located midway between San Antonio and Corpus Christi.

Don't be so progressive that the times are behind you.

Don't mistake your in-law for out-laws.

To be wrong every time is a poor way to be consistent.

Enemies come only from those you dislike.

The way to get out of your dead is to keep another on your mind.

The biggest ideas are usually expressed in the simplest words.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD
DO'S AND DON'TS

Give your camera half a chance and you'll get good snapshots.

IT'S really quite surprising the number of amateurs who go merrily along snapping pictures without giving any thought as to why their snapshots appear somewhat smudgy or cloudy.

If your snapshots can be classed with the above the chances are the trouble can be attributed to your own neglect and not to faulty construction of the camera.

A dirty lens, for example, will cause smudgy prints. A lens is the eye of your camera. Can you see clearly if your glasses are smudged by finger prints?

Cleaning a lens is a very simple operation. All you need is a soft, unstarched linen handkerchief and perhaps a match or pencil, if the lens is quite small. The rear surface of the lens can easily be reached by removing the back of the camera.

If the camera has a double lens (one behind and one in front of the shutter diaphragm), the front combination may be removed by turning to the left, which will allow you to work through the shutter opening when set for "time," with the handkerchief over the end of the match or lead pencil. If the lens is quite dirty breathe on it and then rub quickly with the handkerchief. Be sure, when replacing the front lens, to screw it back into the shutter as far as it will go.

The suggestion to work through the shutter opening also applies to cleaning the front surface of single lenses fitted to box cameras and certain folding models. Work carefully and don't exert too much pressure.

It isn't necessary and might scratch the surface.

Taking it for granted that you have a clean lens and that your camera is in good mechanical condition let's discuss some "do's" and "don'ts."

With the familiar box type camera it is so easy unknowingly to have your finger extend slightly—or more so—over the lens. The result is obvious. You will have an unattractive black smudge over part of your picture. So keep your fingers away from the front of the lens.

Another error is a double exposure caused by failing to turn the film roll to the next number after snapping a picture. If you fail to turn it you may find, when your prints are returned, that quite miraculously grandma is sitting in her favorite chair out in the middle of a lake.

When using a focusing type camera be sure to set the lens at the correct distance mark, for if you don't the chances are that your picture will be out of focus and blurred.

Here's another one. Unless you have an extremely fast lens and shutter don't try to take broadside snaps of fast-moving subjects. Moving objects can, however, be caught, even with an angle of about 45 degrees and not too close up.

Amateur snapshotting is really anything but difficult and it is quite safe to say that the majority of picture failures are the result of carelessness or lack of thought on the part of the snapshotter.

John van Guilder

soil conservation work—and the Legislature did not provide other taxes to take the place of the division for which you voted. Senate Journal, pages 1588 and 2134. I vetoed it and saved the taxpayers $1,500,000.00 per year.

"You voted for the departmental appropriation bill (S. J. 2228), which carried an appropriation of $750,000.00 for a Big Bend park, and $250,000.00 for a cotton research laboratory. The Legislature provided no funds to take care of this appropriation, and I saved the taxpayers one million dollars by vetoing it.

"Thus, it will be seen that in addition to the 'admittedly top-heavy appropriations,' which you now wish to correct, you voted for a total of almost seven million dollars, which I vetoed. I am wondering if you can point to any such saving that you made for the taxpayers during the regular session? Or to any vote to save the taxpayers that much money? Had it not been for my vetoes, the State would now be about seven million dollars more 'in the hole' as a result of the measures for which you voted.

"I do not personally condemn you for these votes—I simply take the position that it is now the Legislature's duty to raise money to pay the increased appropriations they themselves made.

"You now suggest that I submit the matter of appropriations and reorganization of the government at a special session which can only last thirty days; and after the appropriations have been made for several months and acted upon by the departments, contracts having been let under them.

"I want to appeal to your sense of fairness, Senator, is it reasonable to suppose that, waiving the question as to whether it is equitable to try to work these appropriations over after the departments have acted upon them and contracts have been made, if I should submit this subject to a special session, the same Legislature would do something in thirty days that it failed to do during a four months' session?

"In any event, even if you passed any economy measures, which I seriously doubt, could I hope for the passage of necessary tax measures that you failed to pass during a four months' session if the calendar is cluttered with anything other than revenue measures. As Governor, I am firmly convinced that no substantial saving would actually be accomplished."

The Legislature has submitted several constitutional amendments. The people have voted these amendments. No one can deny but what it is my duty as Governor to finance the people's program. Is it reasonable to expect that the Legislature who so recently passed the appropriation by overwhelming votes, would not reverse themselves and substantially reduce the appropriations? I point to the fact that only four senators voted against the general departmental appropriation bill in the regular session. This vote is typical of all other votes on appropriation bills.

APPENDICITIS STILL TAKES BIG TOLL IN TEXAS

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 13.—During the past year 786 persons died of appendicitis in Texas, according to Vital Statistics complications of the State Department of Health. Many of these deaths might have been prevented had the patient been more aware of the disease and its symptoms.

There are two forms of appendicitis, acute and chronic. The form that appears suddenly, with great pain and sickness is acute. Chronic appendicitis may extend over a long period of time and consists of slight attacks at intervals, but, at some time, there will usually occur an attack worse than any before and the disease may then become serious.

"In the presence of abdominal pain, give nothing by mouth. Never give laxatives. Apply an ice pack. Call your family physician. Abdominal pain which persists over a period of six hours is usually serious," advises State Health Officer Geo. W. Cox.

Hospital records show that the above advice has reduced appendicitis

U. S. Map-Maker Logs Mexican

Map-maker James D. McClure took to the railroad ties (upper left) from Uruapan, State of Michoacan, to the west coast, in his logging tour of Mexico. Forging the rocky crevices (upper right) was no novelty for McClure, as he pushed his Chevrolet over 75 such crossings in the course of a two-day journey of 48 miles. Straddling a 2 1/2-foot ditch (center) was frequently necessary, too. One of Mexico's first-class highways (left center) provides a beautiful setting for the map-making car. Typical of the scenic wonders in Old Mexico is the view at right center in Hausted Canyon, about 15 miles off the Laredo highway at Monterrey. Sunrise from the summit of the Nevada Toluca road (lower right). Three hours from Mexico City, McClure had gained an altitude of 15,000 feet. "Mexico not only offers scenery of unsurpassed beauty and grandeur, but is friendly and hospitable to tourists," McClure reported. "It is an ideal vacation land."

WPA WORKERS RELEASED TO COTTON FARMERS

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 20.—Demands of Texas farmers for cotton pickers have been the major factor in reducing current WPA employment to 45,000 workers, the lowest number in the history of Federal agency, it has been announced by Robert J. Smith, deputy state administrator.

Since September 1, thousands of workers have voluntarily left projects or have been released for agricultural employment, WPA records reveal.

Smith called attention to the fact that during the month of August there were 70 counties in Texas in each of which less than 50 WPA workers were employed on Federal projects. In 24 of these counties no workers were on the Federal payroll during this month.

Sheppard Finds Tax Leaks and Plugs Them

State Comptroller George H. Sheppard ran a total on his books today and found that by plugging up the holes in the Motor Fuel and Cigarette tax laws, he had saved the State of Texas approximately $10,000,000, in three years.

There are, everybody agrees, only two ways to raise money to carry on the many functions of government:

GEO. H. SHEPPARD

Enact new tax laws; or the less painful method of enforcing the existing taxes so that the state gets a maximum return.

The second method may sound easy; Comptroller Sheppard found it anything but easy.

Sheppard's employees occupied in collecting gasoline taxes will testify it's not easy. They will tell you of working nights—something almost unprecedented in state government—because at night is when the gasoline tax racketeer works. And the Comptroller wanted most, of all, to get the gasoline tax evader, the man who takes the pennies from the gasoline consumer and drops them in his own pocket.

It was with this idea in mind that Sheppard, coming to Austin from Sweetwater after serving thirteen years as Tax Assessor of his County and Mayor of Sweetwater, started back in 1932 to plug up the leaks in the state's taxing structure.

The No. 1 job was to find the leaks; then discover why; and finally, obtain legislative assistance in plugging them.

The "leakiest" laws were found to be the cigarette tax and the gasoline tax. Funds from the cigarette tax are divided between the schools and the Old Age Assistance funds of government. Schools likewise get one penny out of every four cents tax you pay for gasoline.

Week After Next Is Fire Prevention Week

Next week from October 3-9, has been designated National Fire Prevention week throughout the nation, and every section from the hamlet to the metropolis should cooperate in every way to make this the greatest success. Even the farm homes and barns, and other outbuildings should be inspected, and everything that might cause a conflagration removed.

The State Fire Marshall of Texas has written articles to local fire marshalls and firemen, as well as the newspapers to thoroughly inspect all premises possible to see that the city fire hazard laws are complied with. Householders and others to examine or have examined their flues, chimneys, if any, as well as all gas connections, to see there are no leaks. Houses, under which gas mains run, should have openings so that fresh air can circulate thereunder, routing all accumulation of gas that might explode.

Let us thoroughly understand first and last that every fire, or damage from one, adds to our insurance rate. With no fires to speak of from year to year, the state fire rating board gives us a discount on our policies for good fire records.

Brownfield has been very lucky in the past that she has had no fires that amounted to much, and we have saved literally thousands of dollars in insurance due to that fact.

Burning trash and dry weeds too close to buildings, have caused the spread of many destructive fires.

TECH REGISTRATION SHOWS LARE GAINS

LUBBOCK, Texas, Sept. 21.—At noon Friday, September 17, Texas Technological College showed 3,068 students had begun registration. This compares with 2,609 on the same day a year ago. The total enrollment for the fall semester of 1936 was 2,703. It is predicted that the enrollment for the fall of 1937 will be very close to 3,100.

In agriculture, the increase over a year ago is 82 students. Cards have been taken out by 387, against 305 a year ago. In engineering, the increase is 153 students, 679 having taken out cards for registration as compared with 526 a year ago.

In home economics, the increase is 67, 371 students having taken out cards for registration as compared with 304 a year ago. Arts and sciences has an apparent registration of 1,505, against 1,404 a year ago, an increase of 101. Percentage increase for the whole school is 13.7.

In agriculture, the percentage is 26.8, in engineering 29, and in home economics 22. The college is busy checking up the sections, dividing the students up so as to obtain the proper instruction in classrooms and laboratories. On account of the crowded condition of the buildings it has been further necessary to hold quite a number of night classes from seven to nine in the evenings. Many students apparently like this innovation and the plan seems to be working well.
