the Cisco Hydro-Carbon Corporthe Fred Manning Pressure Maintenance Plant northeast of town will begin about August 1, according to reports Saturday.

Delay in starting the work has been due to shortages of pipe and steel, it was understood. The corporation received a large shipment of pipe during the past week for use in the plant.

The hydro-carbon plant will take the gasoline and other products from the gas before the Manning plant sends it back into the Caddo lime in the pressure naintenance program.

The General's Decision

General Dwight D. Eisenhower has laid down a "final and complete" refusal to accept the Democratic presidential nomination under any "terms, conditions or promises." His lack of interest in the nomination apparently is based on his belief that he is not qualified to hold that high office.

The General's decision came as a blow to the Texas delegation to the national convention, as well as to Democrats in many parts of the nation. There is little doubt that Eisenhower could have had the Senator Claude Pepper, of Florida, shows the telegram which he re-

While many people are genuinely disappointed that the General nominee. (NEA Telephoto). would not accept the nomination, it is understandable that a man would be reluctant to accept it. The general has just completed on of the most exacting tasks ever assigned a commander - that of directing an' allied victory over an enemy and then returning home to set up a peace-time military force.

That the general is well qualified to cope with the problems of the nation as its president has not been questioned. Some people feel that his nomination and election would have gone a long way toward taking politics out of government. They feel that he would have run his office as he ran the army - with efficiency.

Many of us would have been genuinely pleased to have supported the General for the nation's highest office( but none of us can blame him for his decision.

Coins and Prices

One of the reasons some prices have not gone up in the general inflation of the World War II period is because of the limited number of coins in United States money. Many items like candy bars, chewing gum, and soft drinks which always sold for a nickel still sell for Manufacturers and dealers in such nickel or dime commodities hate to raise prices because of the inconvenience to the customer of handling pennies. This is especially true for machine-vended articles

In some commodities, however, the trade has gotten over the nickel and dime barrier. Take cigars. They no longer sell for a nick el, dime or quarter - but for 6, 9, 11, 21 and 27 cents.

Now many merchandisers of nickel products are agitating for a 7-cent piece, so they can raise prices without having to take pennies. The way things are going they might just as well wait a few months and then jump all the way to a dime! In the meantime, the inflexi bility of our metal currency is pretty effective price control. -Big Spring Herald.

HOUSE CLEANING TRICKS

Washing painted walls and woodwork is the one house cleaning task most disliked by homemakers. But even it can be simplified by using equipment that saves both time and steps. A new galvanized steel twin pail set-two convenient, rust-proof pails fastened together by a carrying handle-keeps both wash and rinse water within arm's reach. This means that the washing and rinsing of woodwork, floors and even furniture can be accomplished with direct, timesaving motions, helping to complete spring house cleaning in record time.
