The Gay Philosopher

(Copyright New York Graphic Society) By J. W. S.

THIS IS OIL Progress Day in all the United States and it is fitting for us all to pause for a tribute to an industry that has contributed a very great deal to the progress of the world.

IN TEXAS, OIL means more than in any other state of the union. More than 44 per cent of the nation's crude oil production comes from Texas.

MORE THAN 139,000 Texans work in the Petroleum industry. Their pay checks totaled more than $580 million in 1947.

OF TEXAS MORE than 108,000 oil wells, Eastland County has some 350. New wells are being drilled in the state at the rate of some 10,000 annually.

THREE ARE ABOUT one-third of the state's 58 million acres of land under lease for oil and gas.

WETHER WE realize it or not, we're all in the oil business, so to speak. Take oil out of our city and county and state and we would probably never recover from the blow.

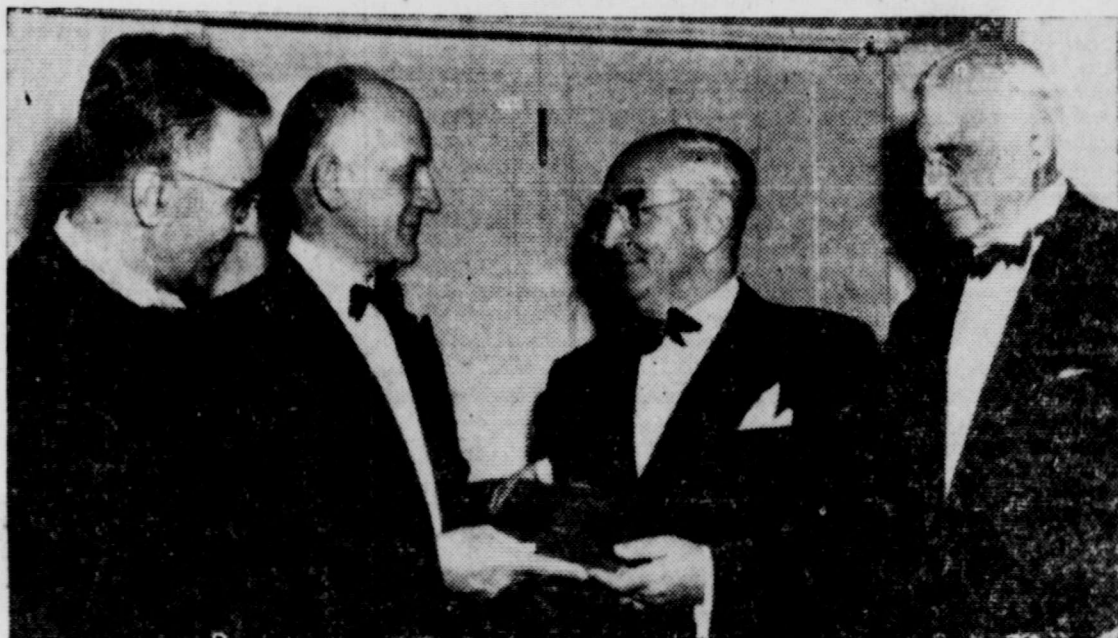

Men May Volunteer After Receipt of Questionnaire

Many men who are now receiving questionnaire from their draft boards misunderstand the purpose of the questionnaire, according to S-Sgt James Hendrick of the Eastland Recruiting Station.

Many of them think that when they receive the questionnaire they are no longer eligible for voluntary enlistment in the Regular Armed Forces.

Ordinarily a man will receive his call for pre-induction examination about 10 days in advance and until he receives that call is eligible to apply for admission in any of the Armed Forces, which will continue to rely on volunteer enlistments.

VANDENBERG RECEIVES AWARD

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg receives the 7th Annual Freedom Award "for service to a free world" at Freedom House dinner at Waldorf-Astoria in New York City.

Crippled Wranglers Play Naval Team in Grand Prairie Friday

The Cisco Junior College Wranglers, still plagued by injuries that have followed them throughout most of the current season, will leave from College Hill at 7:30 a. m. Friday for Grand Prairie High School stadium.

With several of the starting eleven on the sidelines as a result of injuries and illness, coaches Everett and Davis were pessimistic about the chances to win from a Navar eleven that is much improved over last season.

Wangler coaches will be without the services of Doug Garner, star back, who has been out for three weeks. Garner suffered a sprained ankle in scrimmage two weeks ago and prior to that was benched with an attack of influenza.

Melvin Nobles, mainstay in the Wrangler forward wall, will be on the sidelines nursing an injured shoulder, and Smith who replaced Nobles in the game with Ranger, will be out of action with a similar injury.

Paul Moseley, suffering from a broken finger, will go in only when needed to do the kicking. Wayne Hayes, blocking back, has left the school to join the Navy.

URGENT MEETING

The camera club voted to meet every Wednesday. Students interested in joining were invited to attend any time the club convenes.

As a part of Scouting's outdoor program, Boy Scouts of Troops 58 and 101, playing six man football, hammered to a 6-6 tie here Tuesday night on the Recreational lawn of the First Presbyterian Church.

'Civil War' Looms On College Hill

Dark, blitz patterned war clouds are hovering over Cisco Junior College once again as the annual traditional "civil war" threatens to invade campus hill life—the seniors versus the junior. Here's how it all started:

Yesterday—representatives of both classes warned the other that "a royal battle" would flare-up once a junior or senior attempted to run up "The Jolly CJC" on the flagstaff.

Today—four members of the junior class, catching the upperclassmen napping, hoisted their class banner, thus serving notice to the seniors "to take it down, if you're big enough".

Tomorrow—Not a healthy place to be.

"Alley Oop!" is a signal used by acrobats.

As a colony, Virginia was often called The Old Dominion.

Butler Talks On Part Industry Plays In Building Nation

The outstanding part that the petroleum industry has played in building a strong America was outlined today in an Oil Progress address by Secretary B. A. Butler, of the Cisco Chamber of Commerce, at a joint meeting of the Rotary and Lions Clubs at the College Cafeteria.

The luncheon was the highlight of Cisco's observance of the national event.

"No single industrial development has contributed more to the progress of civilization," Mr. Butler said, noting that during the past 100 years there has been more progress than in all the previous 2,000 years.

Mr. Butler pointed out possession of oil had placed the United States out in front in the building of war machines—machines with which "we hope to preserve the peace."

"Mechanical energy and transportation are two factors most responsible for the physical America that we know today. Petroleum has made both them possible to such degree that man is no longer bound to one spot or limited to his contacts and influence," he said.

"These are not the only contributions of petroleum. Its incredible penetrations into all phases of our civilization has made it an indispensable factor in our lives. It is done as much for man's social and economic life as it has for the progress of science and technology. Oil is one of the most versatile of all the commodities known to man."

"Each person in America is provided with an average of 646 gallons of petroleum annually—as much oil in two weeks as people in the rest of the world get in an entire year."

"In Texas oil is the greatest money crop... one-fourth of the state's income... 56 per cent of all taxes."

Mr. Butler complimented the industry on its successful effort to meet ever-increasing demands, describing their activities as "the secret of American industrial strength."

Lions President Westfall announced that the district governor of Lions International would visit the Cisco Club at their next meeting.

Visitors at the luncheon were Rotarians Jim Harrison of Abilene and Dan Hill of Amarillo, L. A. Warren and W. J. Foxworth of Cisco were guests of Rotarians.

1. This is the "Christmas tree" you've heard oil men talk about. It is a complicated arrangement of valves and meters which regulate the flow of oil from a producing well. This well is on Humble's lease in the Conroe field in Texas.

2. Oil pipe lines have worked wonders in oil transportation to carry your record demand for oil. This is the interior of Humble Pipe Line Company's pumping station at Comyn. This company operates 8,703 miles of oil and finished products pipe lines in Texas and New Mexico. Though construction of additional pipe lines has been slow because of the high demand for steel for other purposes, the Humble Pipe Line Company has been able to handle the largest volume in its history; during 1947, main trunk lines delivered 253,000,000 barrels of oil.

3. The oil industry's efforts to find more oil for you have greatly increased the activity of scientific exploration. This picture of Humble geophysical exploration in the Louisiana swamps illustrates the difficulties field crews encounter. It is more difficult—and expensive—to drill wells in areas like this; engineers must solve construction and supply problems before drilling operations can even be considered.

The oil industry is breaking the production records it set in World War II

Never before in U. S. history have the oil fields produced as much oil as they are producing today—not even during the crucial days of World War II, when the winning of the war depended on oil production. Today, you're asking for 15% more oil than was required at the peak of the war effort, when the huge war needs of U. S. fleets, armies and airplanes were added to the demands of industry and the civilian population.

In the 12-month period before VJ day, the oil industry was asked to produce 5,110,000 barrels of oil daily, and it did.

Today, you are asking the industry to produce 5,700,000 barrels of oil daily, and the industry is doing that, too.

New fields have been discovered, developed, extended. New possibilities are being explored.

This is a slow, tedious, expensive process. The search for oil has reached into swamps and dry, dusty places, and offshore into the Gulf. It has brought about a more intensive exploration of previously explored "prospects." Wells have been drilled more than two miles deep into the earth to find new producing oil sands.

The result has been more oil for your present and future needs. But everyone can help this effort by making their personal demands for petroleum products reasonable and by cooperating with programs designed to conserve oil products.
