A TRIP DOWN THE RHINE VALLEY

BY MINNIE L. HILL

We went into Germany at the Netherlands border town of Nijmegen, and continued by train to Cologne (Koln), Germany. We alighted at the main railway station which was only a shell of steel girders. Allied bombings during the war had stripped it of any covering. Across the street stood the famous Cologne Cathedral which had suffered 14 bomb hits and 17 incendiary bomb hits. Cologne is a city more than 2,000 years old. It was settled between 38 and 42 B. C., and the cathedral was built in the ninth century. The cathedral later was burned and was abandoned for 300 years; when, in the 12th century, building was resumed and for the next 400 years artists and artisans worked on it. It is estimated that 50 years will be required to repair the war damage. The Romans built a high wall, with four gates, around the city and three of the gates and portions of the wall are still standing. Cologne was 85% bombed. Our guide told us that in three hours of bombing in one night, 30,000 people were killed including his family. There was hardly a block in the entire city that escaped damage, and in the heart of the business section, and along the railway tracks, everything was destroyed. The five bridges across the Rhine had been destroyed by the German army as they evacuated, and the temporary military bridge built by General Patton is still the only road into the city from across the Rhine. From Cologne, we went on to Bonn and visited the house where Beethoven was born. The house is a three-story cottage with casement windows, narrow, steep stairways. The room in which the great musician was born has a very low ceiling and a badly worn wide board floor. The room contains nothing but a marble bust with a wreath of flowers against it. An annex houses a museum in which are two pianos and other musical instruments used by the master, and glass cases contain dozens of original scores. Many busts and portraits of Beethoven, who appeared to be an unusually homely man, and portraits and letters from friends and family fill the small rooms. Traveling by bus out of Cologne, we stopped between Bad Neuenahr and Coblenz to visit a winery. In the wine cellar, we were shown huge wine casks that had been in use hundreds of years, many of which had beautiful historical carvings on the heads. We were briefed on wine-making and given a glass to sample. This section of Germany claims to make the best red wine in the world. Coblenz nestles in a bend of the Rhine River, and although the city was 50% bombed, most of the rubble has been cleared and it is a beautiful place. Here we took a boat for a half-day trip down the Rhine to see the vineyard-covered mountains that rise on each side, and to get a better view of the many castles that once guarded the approach, by water, to the interior of Germany. Our guide, Walter, a former German bomber pilot, told us that the Germans considered the castles robber hideouts, and told us the stories of some of them. Sterrenberg and Liebenstein were built on adjacent bluffs by two hostile brothers. These two have been repaired and are now art studios. Others have been occupied since the war, and, through our glasses, we could see children playing about them. Some of the castles were painted across the fronts of the main towers, and one is still a toll station, being on a small island in the river. The most interesting castle to me was Rheinstein, a proud and beautiful castle built by the city of Mayence as a toll station and later acquired by the ancestors of Ruth Bartel, a member of the party, and one of my very good friends. We passed Lorelei Rock where the maiden Lorelei is said to have thrown herself in the Rhine in despair over a faithless lover, and became a siren whose voice lured fishermen to destruction. When we reached Bingen, the sun was setting and Klopp Castle seemed to stand out in all its majestic beauty. Mrs. Saenger of our party recited "Proud Bingen on the Rhine," and I'm sure none of us will ever forget Bingen. Our hotel in Weisbaden had been partially bombed away. I could have stepped across the hall and opened a door to the outside air. We found this same condition in the Mayerischer Hof Hotel in Munich. It was while we were on the "Vaterland" on the Rhine trip and in Weisbaden that we began to see youth caravans. Groups of about 20 young boys from the ages of 8 to 14 dressed in leather shorts, and carrying packs, were seen everywhere, usually accompanied by one or two older men. Walter told us that they were going into the mountains for hikes, but left us wondering. Often, bus loads of girls of similar ages, or a bit older, were encountered on the roads. In Frankfurt we noted that the hands of all the clocks in bombed buildings indicated 12 o'clock. The guide said that Hitler ordered

Racing Program Is Planned For Arena on Sunday

At least eight good horses were in prospect for the Cisco Roundup Club sponsored horse race meet at the arena just north of town on the Moran Highway scheduled for 2 p. m. Sunday. Invitations were sent to leading horsemen of the area and word has been received that a good card is assured. The track has been placed in top shape and Runt Dill, who is to be in charge of the program said that everything pointed to an attractive affair. The public was invited to be on hand in time for the show. Seats are available on the stands at the rodeo arena with the track running directly in front of the stands.

6,000 Buses Are Used By Schools

AUSTIN, Sept. 16 — Texans are now taking good care of their million and a half school children including the transporting of 320,000 of them 55,350,365 miles during the last school year, the Texas State Teachers Association pointed out today. Nearly 6,000 public school buses carried the children to and from their homes during the 175 school days last school term a distance equal to 2,222 trips around the earth at the equator. The daily total of travel was 317,431 miles. State school funds provided for transportation averaged a little more than $30 per pupil for the year, or a total of $10,346,175. Only children living two or more miles from their school are provided transportation. A total of 25,212 more pupils were carried by school buses the last scholastic year than during the 1948-49 term.

The Gay Philosopher

By J. W. S.

HOW MANY FANS would you guess were present for the Cisco-Brady football game Friday night? We guessed 2,000 or more. But the official record showed that 1,035 paid admissions. This did not include those who got in on passes. And the bands of both schools weren't charged to enter.

WE CERTAINLY heard a lot of compliments on the Cisco High School band. The band, directed by Kenneth St. Clair, did a splendid marching and playing job. And the girls out front were attractive and handled the band in a splendid way.

WE'VE DECIDED we have a pretty good bunch of readers. In Friday's paper, we forgot to hold up our hands before determining which was left or right. And we suggested the best way to Stephenville was to go out toward Fort Worth and turn left. As everybody knows, you turn right. We couldn't go down the street Saturday in peace. And the telephone rang often.

WE HAD "right and left" trouble when we joined the Navy some years back. They say "starboard" and "port" for "left" and "right" and it was a battle to translate quickly.

CISCOANS GOT a big hand at Rising Star Friday. More than 100 persons joined a caravan headed by Mr. E. L. Jackson. They drove down and wished the fair visitors well. They wore "Howdy, Neighbor!" signs.

In the early afternoon, a band composed of Ray Judia, Travis Farmer and Al Anderson went down and played for more than an hour. The National Guard unit sent several pieces of equipment for the parade.

ACCORDING TO all reports, the annual Policemen's and Firemen's Ball at the Country Club on Friday night was a big success. A full house enjoyed the music of Ray Judia and his band. And the sponsors were highly pleased with the generous way Ciscoans supported the big party.

AND WERE GLAD to report that a very good crowd of Cisco and area residents called at the Victor Hotel last Thursday night to greet Mrs. H. N. Lyle, the new state president of the American Legion Auxiliary. The roof garden was decorated with attractive flowers. The various materials and souvenirs collected by Auxiliary members at the state convention made an interesting display for the visitors.

An interesting fact was that just about everybody who went through the receiving line needed no introduction to Mrs. Lyle. She left Saturday for Marlin for her first appearance as state president in connection with the dedication of a new hospital.

Monday, Mrs. Lyle is due to be in Austin for conferences at the state office. She will probably be home by mid-week.

According to our calendar, fishermen are in for a rough week. They won't be biting again until Sept. 27, it says.

S. F. Byrd of Converse, who was injured seriously in the accident with Mrs. Ziehr, is still in the hospital but is improving well. Mrs. Alice Henson is seriously ill and undergoing treatment.

R. P. Lisenberg was admitted last week for treatment as was Billy Ray Swindell.

400 RACING PIGEONS RELEASED HERE BY CLEBURNE SPORTSMEN

Some 400 racing pigeons belonging to the Cleburne Racing Pigeon Club were released in Cisco at 6:30 a. m. Saturday in one of the club's regularly scheduled flights. The birds were competing in a race against each other and against time in the 92 air line mile flight to their home rooks in Cleburne.

The pigeons were brought to Cisco in eight specially prepared crates which held approximately 50 birds each. Horace King and Roster Shelton, members of the Cleburne Racing Club, brought the pigeons to Cisco and released them for their flights. As each crate was opened the birds took to the air and circled the city seeking their bearings. After circling the town they were seen to head southeast toward home.

King and Shelton estimated that it would take from two hours to two hours and a half for the birds to reach Cleburne.

The Cleburne club is affiliated with the American Racing Pigeon Union which has some 15,000 members and the flights are staged under Union regulations.

Former Resident To Be Ordained

Scott New, former resident of Cisco and brother of Mrs. R. R. Jones, 2107 Humboldt, will be ordained to preach at the Woodland Heights Baptist Church in Brownwood at 3 p. m. Sunday. Rev. Arthur Johnson, former pastor of the First Baptist Church in Cisco, and now pastor at Comanche, will preach the ordination sermon.

Mr. New was ordained as a deacon in the First Baptist Church shortly after Rev. Johnson left Cisco. He has accepted a call to be pastor of Woodland Heights Baptist Church.

Osborn Attends Waco Ceremonies

Rev. B. J. Osborn of Cisco, a member of the board of directors of the Methodist Home in Waco, spent Friday in Waco and participated in ceremonies in which construction was begun on four additional home units for the institution.

Official functions included a breakfast for the board of directors at the Lois Perkins Home at 6:30 a. m., followed by a business session. The ground breaking ceremonies, over which Bishop W. C. Martin presided, took place during the day.

The official board and other home officials were honored at a dinner given by citizens of Waco at the Student Union Building at Baylor University at 7 p. m. Thursday. Mr. Osborn also attended that function.

STATE HATCHERY STILL MOVING FISH; CITY WON'T CUT WATER

A dozen trucks were at the Lake Cisco State Fish Hatchery Friday to transport fish to hatcheries at Possum Kingdom and San Marcos in the State Game, Fish and Oyster Commission's effort to complete the transfer by Sept. 15.

The City of Cisco notified hatchery officials that water would not be cut off until they had completed moving the fish. Mayor G. C. Rosenthal reported. The city had set Sept. 15 as the deadline for the discontinuance of free water.

An article in The Fort Worth Star-Telegram recently quoted state game officials as saying they were moving the fish because the city was seeking to charge them $6,000 or $7,000 a year for water. Other facts were misleading.

In Friday's Star-Telegram, Outdoor Writer Upshur Vincent clarified the following article to clarify the situation:

There are always two sides to any fish problem, and there certainly are two sides to the problem the Texas Game, Fish and Oyster Commission has in determining the future of the Cisco Fish Hatchery. Very naturally, a fish hatchery has to have a big supply of good water and for 25 years the city of Cisco has supplied just that to the state hatchery below the dam at Lake Cisco. That water has cost the state not a cent. . . . Back 25 years ago it seemed that Lake Cisco would provide inexhaustible water throughout future years and that there would be plenty for all users — including the fish hatchery!

But Cisco has grown like all other Texas cities, and dry weather has come in Eastland County just as it has to every other Texas area. . . . And water is not as plentiful as it used to be — even in Lake Cisco. So the citizens of that city have been demanding for a long time that the fish hatchery be charged for its supplies. . . . In fact the character which held approximately 50 birds each. Horace King and Roster Shelton, members of the Cleburne Racing Club, brought the pigeons to Cisco and released them for their flights. As each crate was opened the birds took to the air and circled the city seeking their bearings. After circling the town they were seen to head southeast toward home.

King and Shelton estimated that it would take from two hours to two hours and a half for the birds to reach Cleburne.

The Cleburne club is affiliated with the American Racing Pigeon Union which has some 15,000 members and the flights are staged under Union regulations.

The value of carrier pigeons in time of war has been stressed by the armed services and the National Racing Pigeon Union, who cite one instance where a carrier saved an Italian town and possibly many American lives.

In World War II during the Italian Campaign the Air Force had orders to bomb and strafe a certain town in advance of the American Infantry. The Infantry division advanced rapidly and reached the town six hours in advance of their schedule, finding it deserted. The only means of communication was carrier pigeons. One bird was released and reached headquarters in time to save off the air raid and saved the lives of many American soldiers who would have been there if the raid had taken place.

Last Period Pass Wins For Brady

Cisco High School's Loboes forgot that they were a smaller, underdog team as they fought the powerful Brady High Bulldogs every inch of the way to lose an 18-to-12 decision here Friday night.

The Bulldogs, rated as one of the state's best Class A prospects, were forced to resort to a last quarter passing drive to come out on top. The spirited Loboes might have been the victor had a few untimely breaks gone the other way.

Nine of the starting Loboes played a full 60-minute game. And the other two men didn't miss more than five minutes. The Lobo eleven had only six reserve men on the bench, evidence of their lack of replacement material.

Brady scored first. After a scoreless first quarter, during which Cisco drove to Brady's 6-yard line only to bog down, the Bulldogs took advance of a break. Cisco fumbled and Brady recovered on the 51-yard line. On last down, Billy Brown passed over the goal to Bobby Eklund for a touchdown.

The Bulldogs came back strong after the half and Eklund ran for a touchdown on the third play after the kickoff. The extra point was not good.

Cisco then went to work. Doug Johnson took the kickoff to midfield. Robert Jackson skirted left end to Brady's 15. Johnson ripped off tackle to the Bulldog's 2, and Jackson plunged over to score. He missed the uprights for the extra point.

The Loboes held the Brady attack and took over soon afterwards on their own 17. Bobby Black, who weighs 130 pounds dressed, got loose for 45 yards. Jackson hit center for a first down on the Brady 14. Johnson circled right end for a touchdown to even the score.

Brady's Billy Brown hit end Weldon Dacus with a long pass for a fourth quarter touchdown that gave the visitors their hard-earned victory.

The Loboes disregarded the fact that the Bulldogs had two full teams of reserves and outweighed them 14 pounds per man. Cisco very definitely wasn't outplayed, and the statistics will bear this fact out.

Much of the credit for the outstanding game goes to the Lobo line where brilliant defensive play by Dave Pippin, Irvin Brunkenhoefer, J. C. Suggs, Gene Ves, Donald Watts, Leo Farmer and Doc Dawson stalled the Bulldogs in a good many drives.

Johnson and Jackson were probably the game's two outstanding offensive backs. The Loboes came out of the game with their starting eleven in good condition. They take Class AA Graham here next week before opening their 1950 conference season here on Sept. 23 in a game with DeLeon.

the area, will move equipment just north of the No. 7 Owens to drill the No. 5 A. V. Clark. Drilling will probably get under way early this week.

The No. 5 Owens, completed early this week, flowed 472 barrels per day on a potential test. Gilchrist Drilling Co.'s No. 1 Ayers, offset location to production in the pool, was drilling at 3,100 feet Saturday morning. It had been shutdown with a fishing job for several days.

Surface pipe had been set and drilling was underway in the J. Lynn et al No. 1 Mize in the Owens pool. This location offsets production. Ace Drilling Co. has the contract.

Drilling was underway Saturday in a wildcat for the area northeast of Cisco. It was the B. F. Phillips No. 1 Smith, located one and a half miles southwest of the Owens pool. Gray Drilling Co. was drilling the well.

Southeast of Cisco The C. W. Phayer No. 1 W. L. Lewis, semiwildcat some 12 miles southeast of Cisco, was drilling at 2,160 feet early Saturday. It will test the Ellenberger. Wells on the lease were plugged while still flowing some 20 years ago. It was understood that formations in the hole were running high, which was regarded as a good sign by oil men.

East of Cisco Just east of Cisco, the Hickok Producing Co. was rigging up to deepen their No. A-2 B. B. Owens Saturday. The well was a Lake sand discovery for the area, a half mile east of town, last December. It is 660 feet from the Flash Ranger production in the E. C. Johnston No. 1 Mahan-Edwards.

The Owens well will seek the Ranger production. Drilling will be with cable tools.

ed all clocks that would not run, to be set on 12 o'clock so the Allies would not be able to tell at what time of day the building was hit. Frankfort was 75% bombed and most of the city has not been cleared of debris. At one place we noted a small cross on a heap of stone and cement, and we were told that the bodies of the dead were still in the heap and that the cross was their tombstone. The guide explained that where entire families were killed and no one left to pay the expense of clearance, the bodies had just been left. Later, he said, either the city or national government would get around to cleaning up, and the bones would be buried. Near the city of Frankfort we were shown one of the airlift bases.

highways. Mussolini built similar roads in Italy called autostradas. No advertising signs are allowed along German highways, except on the bridges. We had lunch in Heidelberg at the inn frequented by the university students, called "The Red Ox." Here we saw photographs and autographs of most of the world's great. Near our table, were Mark Twain and "Teddy" Roosevelt, and many others. The inn is very ancient and very quaint, and is one of the showplaces of Heidelberg. In Old Heidelberg Castle, a photographer made us a group picture. We were then shown the 50,000 and 60,000 gallon wine casks in the cellar. The larger one had a door in the top, level with the courtyard, and the carts of grapes were driven onto the top of the cask and dumped into it through the opening. Heidelberg was not bombed in World War II. The Germans had occupied and fortified the city, but one night, so the story goes, two German girls took a rowboat, crossed the Neckar River that circles the town, and told the officers of the Allies how and where to enter the city. The retreating Germans blew up the bridge behind them, and that is the only damage Heidelberg suffered.

After a visit through some of the Heidelberg University buildings with a university student as a guide, we left for Baden Baden where we were to spend the night. (Our Heidelberg guide had been a German prisoner of war at a camp near Jackson, Miss. When he learned that there were people from Jackson in our party, he asked to meet them, and said it was his ambition to finish his degree and try to come back to live in Jackson.)

We entered the hills of the famous Black Forest at Badach. The forest region is approximately 130 miles long. Small villages of Bavarian houses dot the floors of the valleys, while the mountainsides, not covered by forest, are covered with crops. Crops grow to the very summits in strips and patches of varying colors to give the country the appearance of a patchwork quilt. We saw mo-til- (xen used for plowing and hauling, and the field work was being done by women. Our guide explained that the men were either killed during the war, were in the cities working on reconstruction jobs, or were still in the Russian labor camps.

Passing through badly bombed Ulm, and on through Augsburg, we began to see German concentration camps, now abandoned and weed-grown. The drab buildings, steel fences with loose rolls of barbed wire along the top, and guard boxes at intervals, all spoke to us of the horrors suffered by the inmates. We saw Dachau, but our German guide would not show us the infamous camp there. We reached Munich, once the capital of Bavaria, late in the afternoon and went to the Bayerischer Hof Hotel, which had only about half its bedrooms still intact. Munich had been only about 30% bombed, but we were told that 33,000 people lost their lives in one night's bombing.

Munich is a 12th century city built by the monks and dominated by the Frauenkirche church (Church of Our Lady). St. Peter's is the oldest church of the city, a fort-like structure near the Town Hall. This Town Hall is a Gothic structure that looks like a church, and crowds gather in front of it every day at 11 o'clock to see the comic figures on the facade march around in a circle and strike the chimes. It was in Munich that Hitler started his rise to power, and we were shown the site of the "beer-hall putsch" and the window through which Hitler watched and directed the meeting. We also saw where the bomb explosion occurred that injured Hitler's hand.

Near Munich are the royal palaces built by Ludwig I, the most beautiful of which is Nymphenburg Castle, that was used for a hunting lodge, and in which the court dances were held. The gardens are still kept though the fountains are turned on only on special occasions. We rode down long avenues bordered by lindens and were told that Munich was famous for its linden trees, its beer and its art galleries. The guide said that descendants of the royal family still live in Munich, many of them working among the trades people, and that most of the people still hoped for a restoration of the royal family, a separation from the rest of Germany, and the establishment of a Bavarian government so that they might enjoy peace and prosperity rather than unrest, strife, and destruction brought about by the fanatical ambitions of one man.
