The Gay Philosopher

By J. W. S.

CISCO JUNIOR College's choir, Madrigal Singers and the Madrigal Quartet did their very proud Friday night concert for the home town. Director Robert Clinton brought the music department way forward since he organized it in 1949, and the appearance of a full auditorium spoke of appreciation of the community.

The program was splendid in respects. The high wind and storm that blew in shortly after the concert didn't bother the choir. Mr. Clinton explained their recent tour of West Texas was conditioned by the sand storm weather.

Jack Chambliss demonstrated again that his fine tenor is of top quality. One thing also notice about Jack's singing is that he seems to enjoy every minute of it. Notable solo performances also were turned in by Misses Jane Huestis, Pat Agnew and Ruth Beaty. Miss Huestis, who is an outstanding pianist as well as a gifted singer, sang the choir's "pitch pipe" and the square dance.

Huffmyer, the square dance, showed that he can do things beside run with footballs and score the most basketball.

Mr. Clinton is doing a top job of the college and is making a contribution to our town by the training he is giving the young people. Keep up the good work, sir.

MAYBE YOU SAW all the people on Lake Birnie way the other day. It was from burning brush. City workers sprinkled little oil on the dead cat-tails, which were all out of water due to the drought, and touched off the fire. The cat-tails are no more. We understand, however, that cat-tails are kind of like prairie grass. Once you have them you keep them.

LOOKED INTO THE new Pentecost store building the other afternoon, and it appears that they are about to wind up the remodeling project. The floors are very nice, and the walls have been decorated. Mr. Tom Smallwood, the electrician, was there to report that the light fixtures will be going up Monday.

Work is progressing, too, at the Baptist Church's nursery building. It appears that the work is about done and inside finishing is underway. Work is scheduled to be finished May 1.

THE subject of new construction, the junior high building is being finished.

SEE BY THE Breckenridge men that the folks over that are fixing to put up some things up near Weatherford to let tourists to travel Highway 10. Do you suppose they haven't heard that we're all trying to encourage tourist travel on Highway 10?

ABOUT ALL WE know about oil business is that you have to keep some in your car. But we were interested in a talk with the man the other day about the drilling of wells in the south limits pool. He says that the property owners would pool their lots into drilling plots of several acres, there would be a city block with the streets.

alleys contains two and a half acres. Four city blocks, would be 10 acres. Conventional laws provide that wells be spaced to 4,000 feet deep should be spaced one to 20 acres for the economical drainage re-quirements. Special permits, then, would be required for a well on city blocks.

We understand that the allowance for wells drilled on plots smaller than regular spacing requirements is cut down somewhat. With the costs of drilling and equipping a well around $10,000 one can see why an oil man would want more acreage in a city block for his well. Some months back, the city issued an ordinance regarding well drilling. Purpose of the ordinance was to safeguard property and people. The ordinance provides for no more than one well to a block. Actually, drilling permits are controlled by the

Community Clinic Week

(An Editorial)

The citizens of Cisco will have an opportunity this week to help their Chamber of Commerce develop a work program. The opportunity will come in the form of a Community Clinic, which is being held to give everyone a voice in the selection of projects needed to make the Cisco area a better place in which to live.

A dozen or more committees will hold meetings during the week to study area needs — and opportunities. The general public has been urged to take part in these meetings. Civic work is an obligation of every citizen, and in developing the clinic program the Chamber of Commerce is giving each resident an opportunity to discharge his duties and responsibilities to his community.

The Chamber of Commerce will be ably assisted by the regional West Texas Chamber of Commerce in conducting the clinic. The larger organization is bringing a wealth of experience to Cisco in the interest of progress. Your part is to attend any or all of the meetings and to fill out one of the cards to offer your suggestions for a better city.

Let's take advantage of this clinic program and help lay out a needed and useful plan of work for the year or years to come. Let's examine our every resource with the view of its effective utilization in future progressive work.

As a tax-supported organization, the Chamber of Commerce belongs to every citizen. It wants to serve every citizen. And here is every citizen's opportunity to put it to work for him.

CJC CHOIR APPLAUDED BY BIG AUDIENCE AT SPRING CONCERT

A capacity audience applauded the A Cappella Choir of Cisco Junior College at the annual spring concert Friday night at the college auditorium. The auditorium was full despite a cold norther and sandstorm that blew in an hour before program time.

Director Robert Clinton's choir, composed of some 35 voices, gave evidence of much work in presenting a well planned program that featured all types of music — from the classics to folk music. The performance of the choir and feature ensembles reflected considerable credit on the director and the college.

The program opened with the choir singing five sacred numbers, including the music of Bach,

FLEMING A. WATERS

Fleming Waters Seeks Office Of District Judge

Fleming A. Waters, Cisco attorney and a resident of Eastland County for many years, announced Saturday that he will be a candidate for Judge of the 91st Judicial District Court, subject to action of the Democratic Primary.

The son of the Late D. E. Waters and Mrs. Waters, Fleming Waters was born in Dallas on November 13, 1902, and came to Eastland County with his parents in 1915. The family settled on the old Rockwell place north-west of Cisco.

Mr. Waters attended the schools at Bluff Branch, and Dothan before entering and finishing at Cisco High School. He attended the University of Texas and was admitted to the bar in 1932. He has practiced law in Austin, Dallas, and Cisco.

For five years Mr. Waters was in Washington, D. C., as counsel for the Federal Housing Administration. He is married to the former Mary Louise Van Hooser of Chattanooga, Tennessee, and they live at 1304 West 14th Street in Cisco. They are members of the First Christian Church, in Cisco.

Mr. Waters is a war veteran, having served in the Texas National Guard, the United States Army and the United States Marine Corps. He is currently a member of both the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars. He serves the Legion as Post Service Officer and is County Service Officer for the Cisco area.

A member of both the State Bar Association of Texas and the American Bar Association, Mr. Waters is a practicing civil attorney, with offices in the Crawford Building in Cisco. His some twenty years as a lawyer have given him the varied law experience which is worth a very great deal to a jurist.

In seeking the office, he says, "I am humbly cognizant of the high moral and legal standards necessary to be maintained. If elected, I can assure the voters of Eastland County that I will ever strive to uphold and justify the responsibilities and dignity of the Court."

"During the coming months, I shall endeavor to contact as many of you as possible. Be assured that I will greatly appreciate your consideration."

W. E. (Bill) Solomon, pictured above, recently announced that he is a candidate for the office of Sheriff of Eastland County, subject to the Democratic Primary in July.

"I have lived in this county 25 years," he said. "If elected, I will do justice and serve the county to the best of my ability. Your vote and influence will be greatly appreciated. This is my first time to run for office."

Community Clinic Week Opens With Group Meetings Monday

Robert Tucker Is In Campaign For Commission Post

Robert Tucker of the Pleasant Hill community Saturday authorized The Press to announce his candidacy for the position of County Commissioner of Precinct 4, subject to the Democratic primaries to be held in July.

Mr. Tucker was born and raised in the Pleasant Hill area where he is a land owner and farmer-stockman. He has raised his family there and has two sons and two daughters that have attended schools there and in Cisco. He worked for eight years as an employee of a former county commissioner and one year for a highway construction firm in the building of roads and highways.

In making his announcement, Mr. Tucker stated: "After weighing the problem for a long time and at the request of many friends and acquaintances in the precinct I have decided to enter the race for commissioner of Precinct 4."

"I feel that the experience I have had in working for the Precinct from 1924 to 1932 and my year with Womack-Henning Construction Company in highway construction has fitted me for that part of the work and my years of operating my own business as a farmer and stockman have fitted me for the business part of the job."

"I offer my services to residents of the precinct and Eastland County in an effort to repay in part the obligation every man should feel to his country and community. If elected I pledge to serve you honestly and efficiently. I shall issue a later statement giving you my ideas and my stand on problems facing us now and in the future."

AUCTION BARN OPENS MONDAY FOR WEEKLY LIVESTOCK SALES

Everything was ready for the beginning of regular weekly livestock auction sales at the Cisco Livestock Exchange sales barn located on the Rising Star highway Monday, it was announced by W. C. Cravey, the new owner, Saturday.

Mr. Cravey, veteran Breckenridge sales barn operator, has completed all preliminary work necessary to open the sale. He has spent considerable money in repairing the arena, the seating and the pens and has them in good condition for the opening sale. He reported that additional improvements would be made as time permitted and that he planned to make the plant one of the most modern sales installations in this section of the state.

Mr. Cravey was brought to Cisco and interested in the purchase of the barn and pens by a committee of Merchants Credit Association members. The committee was headed by Standlee McCracken, local grocer.

Plans were also near completion for the drive which is scheduled to begin April 1 for the purpose of raising $1,500 as a contribution toward making the opening of the sale possible. The $1,500 is the amount agreed upon at the first meeting to go toward the purchase price of the plant by Mr. Cravey. A. Z. Myrick was named to head the group of business men who will canvass the business district to raise the funds. Plans for the drive will be worked out at a meeting Monday night. It was pointed out that making the contribution to the opening of the sale was nothing new and that neighboring towns had even made much larger donations in order to get livestock sales going.

Mr. Cravey announced that Joe Coats, veteran Cisco auctioneer, would handle the sales and that experienced clerks and stock handlers would be on hand at each sale. He also reported that the scales had been completely overhauled and government inspected for accuracy.

Interest on the part of area farmers and stockmen indicated that the opening sale would be large and successful. It was in the interest of these farmers and stockmen that the business men of the community began work on securing an operator for the sale.

SUCCESS OF TURKEY FARM IN CISCO AREA TOLD BY PAPER

The Fort Worth Star-Telegram recently devoted a page of its daily Farm and Ranch section to a story with pictures about Alvin Kincaid and Sons Turkey Ranch northeast of Cisco. Pictures were obtained by the Star-Telegram.

The story follows: "On-the-family" farming is a part of the state's agricultural life.

While many fathers find satisfaction in combining operations with only one son, occasional farms and ranches are providing livelihood for two or more families.

In such a situation where the father has brought all his sons to the farm operation is the Alvin Kincaid ranch 6 miles west of Cisco.

When Kincaid moved to Eastland County in the spring of 1950, he was looking for something of a more stable income than New Mexico ranch.

With hard work and the combined efforts of his three "partners" he has established one of the largest turkey farms in this area. The Kincaids are also lamb raisers.

The story of their success is a tale of close co-operation among the entire family.

Mr. Kincaid, diversification is a means against dry seasons, markets, disease, and other hazards that make farming a gamble.

Sheep and turkeys provide the main return. As a sideline they have 50 Aberdeen Angus that add a spring calf crop to annual profits.

Robert, 22, older of the three sons, shares 30 per cent interest. Don, 19, a student at Cisco State College, has 10 per cent. The other son, Aubrey, who also shares 10 per cent, is in the Navy.

The 1,300 Kincaid turkey hens, Beltsville Whites, are up at flood lights, operated by a timer, bringing an early day.

These layers consume tons of feed and maintain a 65 to 70 per cent production record. Eastland County Agent, J. M. Cooper, expressed by this.

Special roosting pens, laying pens and broody pens provide the just about every convenience that makes for high production.

"If you can't maintain a high output, or put fat on a lamb early, your expensive feed isn't being utilized to its full advantage," the soft-spoken Kincaid advised.

When a hen becomes broody and goes off in production, she is placed in a special pen made of wire mesh, breaking up the setters.

Stock building under a water tank provides cool storage space for eggs gathered three times

Each day eggs gathered the day before are shipped to hatcheries in Oklahoma and Pennsylvania.

These hatcheries report a 90 per cent hatchability on eggs from the Kincaid flock.

To the Kincaids, high production is simply a matter of feeding good blooded birds a well balanced ration under near ideal sanitation conditions.

And the return from this production?

"Usually," says Kincaid, "our eggs bring over the 20 cent mark. That's 20 cents per egg."

On-the-ground trap nests have an important bearing on output, Kincaid said.

This device permits but one hen into a nest. As she leaves the nest a spring-operated gate is tripped, making the nest available for the next layer.

Nests are constructed in sections with six units to a section and are placed in a circle around the laying yard.

Young birds are raised in a special house where breezeways provide ample sunshine and fresh air. Water and feed are kept in well-covered feeders.

The other major portion of the Kincaid setup is their lamb feeding program.

Each fall all the partners become lamb buyers. And when feeding pens are stocked to a limit, they immediately begin "easing them onto feed."

Feed draws special attention from each member of the organization. They feel that in order to show a comfortable margin of profit on any type of fowl or livestock, an economical quantity of good feed must be made available at all times.

A shipment of Kincaid lambs recently to the Fort Worth market numbered 1,000 head.

These lambs were fed a ration of 50 per cent ground milo, 10 per cent molasses, 10 per cent cottonseed meal, with a balance of ground roughage.

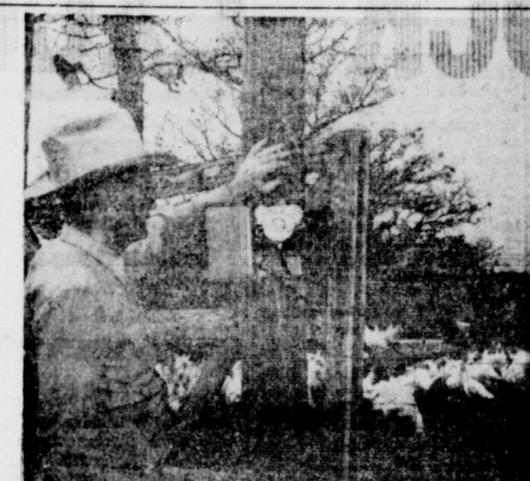

Added to this they were given one bale of alfalfa hay per each 100 lambs each day.

"This," says Kincaid, "puts weight on lambs fast since they will keep their heads in the feeders most of the time."

Of concern to Kincaid recently has been increased activity among predatory animals.

However, a hired trapper is working on this situation by taking a heavy toll of fox, coyotes and bobcats — the more harmful predators in this area.

The senior Kincaid feels that his operation shouldn't be judged in terms of dollars, but rather by the fact that father and son partnerships, well organized, can be ideal.

Day comes early for the laying hens in the Kincaid turkey flock. Alvin Kincaid checks the clock that turns on lights in the laying area at around 4 a. m.

Robert, the oldest son of Alvin Kincaid, Eastland County farmer, stores a gathering of No. 1 hatching eggs produced by their good white turkeys.

A special "brig" has been constructed where broody, non-laying hens are confined for about four days before they are back to normal production.

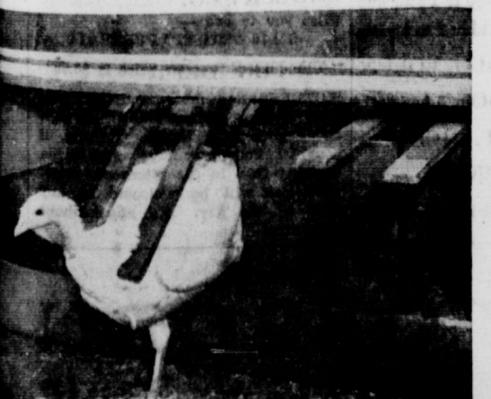

A part of the 1,400 laying hens in the Alvin Kincaid and Sons white turkey flock in Eastland County.

An important phase of the Kincaid farm program is lamb feeding. These were brought to good condition on a careful ration that included milo, molasses, cottonseed and ground roughage.

The Kincaid turkeys have special roosting pens. They are driven in pens like this one late in the afternoon and stay until the floodlights on the trees come on in the wee small hours.

A trap nest permits only one hen in a nest at a time. The entry is automatically barred until a hen leaves, unlatching the entry.
