Will Your Youngster Land That Job?

Executives and personnel experts of leading United States corporations say they are looking for character as much as skill in young people seeking jobs. And these same business leaders are convinced that the most important influence on character is still home training.

One personnel executive of a prominent automobile company describes a favorable home environment as, "Not necessarily one where there is financial well-being, but one with little bickering, no going in opposite directions, no getting on each other's nerves. A home whose members pull together to develop their standard of living, where each member has and is given responsibility to contribute rather than always getting something for nothing."

Reporting in a Better Homes & Gardens magazine survey in the November issue, employers warn parents to assume their responsibilities. "Children must have a sense of belonging," one says. "Schools, churches, and youth organizations ought to be used, but they ought to help the parents. They ought not to substitute for them."

United States business is looking for young people with self-confidence. How can parents help develop that self-confidence in their sons and daughters?

A few suggestions offered are these: "Guard against overprotectiveness; take him hunting or fishing; teach him skills; teach him the use of power tools, if that's what he wants; teach him (by example) civic-mindedness, community loyalty; above all, teach him to give more than he receives."

Young people landing good jobs are the people employers think will be able to get along with co-workers. It stands to reason that sons or daughters from homes where cooperation is unknown, will not as likely learn the techniques of working smoothly with other people as those from sound, happy homes.

Vets Questions And Answers

Q — After World War II, I went to college under the GI Bill where I used my 48 months of entitlement to get my BS degree. After graduation, I went back on active duty. Now I hear there's a new GI Bill for Korean veterans. When I am discharged again, will I be able to use this new GI Bill to go ahead with graduate studies?

A — No. The law states that veterans like yourself, who have trained under earlier veterans' training programs, may be entitled to a total of 48 months of training under the old programs and the new GI Bill combined. Since you've already used that maximum under the World War II GI Bill, you are not entitled to any further GI training under the new law.

Q — I was divorced by my wife, and naturally I want to change the beneficiary on my National Service Life Insurance policy. My former wife however, won't give me the policy so that I can make the change. What can I do?

A — You don't have to have the policy in your possession to change the beneficiary. Either go to your nearest VA office and fill out a change of beneficiary form, or write to the VA district office where you pay your premiums and state how you want the insurance paid in the event of your death.

Q — I understand that down payment requirements have been lowered for GI home loans. But even so, I still don't have enough money to make the down payment on the house I'd like to buy. May I borrow money for the down payment?

A — You may borrow on your life insurance policy for this purpose, but that is all. Other than this, you must certify that you have not borrowed to make the required down payment.

Q — I have been authorized orthopedic braces for leg wounds I received in World War II. If I ever need emergency repairs, must I get VA's approval before I have them made?

A — Not necessarily. You may get emergency repairs costing up to $15 from any commercial brace or repair shop without prior VA approval, provided you have the newly-issued "Prosthetic Service Card — Orthopedic Braces." These cards are issued by VA regional offices.

AND NEWS OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

Miss Ziehr Becomes Bride Of Mr. Cockrell In Ceremonies Oct. 22nd.

Miss Juanita Lynda Ziehr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Ziehr of Cisco, became the bride of John George Cockrell of Moran, in a single ring ceremony performed October 22 at the First Lutheran Church with the Rev. M. J. Seacer officiating.

The couple stood before an altar decorated with baskets of white flowers in Swedish steel baskets flanked by white candles in Swedish steel candelabra. An arrangement of pink carnations and white pompons was in the organ. The pews were decorated with white mums.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a ballerina gown of white chantilly lace and net fashioned with lace and net buttons below the waist back with lace covered buttons and an illusion yoke filling in pointed neckline. Her full skirt was of net with lace pointed over-lay, over satin. She wore white satin pumps.

Her finger tip veil of illusion was attached to a Victorian hat decorated with pearls. She wore a single strand of pearls and pearl earrings, a gift of the groom, and carried a white Bible topped with a nosegay of feathered white carnations, showered with satin ribbon streamers.

For something old, the bride carried a handkerchief belonging to her grandfather; for something borrowed, a white Bible belonging to Geneva Bernstein; something blue, a garter, and a penny in each shoe.

Miss Edna Ziehr, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and wore a ballerina length dress of blue Chantilly lace fashioned with a strapless bodice with lace bolero and a full gathered skirt of net over taffeta. She wore pearl earrings and carried a nosegay of white pompons showered with white satin ribbons.

Mrs. Ross Rogers of Abilene, sister of the groom, was matron of honor and wore a blue net strapless dress with a net stole forming a portrait neckline and a full gathered ballerina length skirt of net over taffeta with net ruffles. She wore rhinestone jewelry and carried a nosegay of white pompons showered with white satin streamers.

Harold Cockrell of Moran, brother of the groom, was best man, and Alvin Ziehr, brother of the bride, was groomsman. Ushers were Carl and Eugene Ziehr, also brothers of the bride.

Ruby Wende of Cisco was flower girl and wore a yellow organza ballerina length dress trimmed in white lace. She carried a nosegay of white pompons, flanked by white candles in silver holders and an arrangement of pink and white flowers. Also on the table was the four tiered wedding cake topped by a miniature bride and groom with all white decorations of roses, stars, and leaves.

The cake was served by Mrs. R. W. Ziehr, assisted by Miss Marie Ziehr, and Mrs. Robert Cockrell served the punch. Mrs. Harold Cockrell registered the guests and Misses Violet Schkade and Edna Ziehr were in the gift room.

The bride's table was laid with a white damask cloth and centered with the bride's bouquet and the attendants bouquets, flanked by white candles in silver holders and an arrangement of pink and white flowers. Also on the table was the four tiered wedding cake topped by a miniature bride and groom with all white decorations of roses, stars, and leaves.

The groom attended Albany High School and served six years in the Navy during and after World War II. He is now employed as an oil field worker.

Guests attended from Albany, Abilene, San Angelo, Giddings, Bandera, Moran, and Cisco. Mr. and Mrs. Cockrell are at home at 1709 Fannin in Abilene.

white satin blouse, black velvet hat and pumps, and a corsage from her bouquet.

The bride is a graduate of Cisco High School and Cisco Junior College and has been employed by Weaver-Oats Drug Store in Albany as a clerk for the past three years.

For traveling the bride chose a gray gaberdine suit with a

What's the Use of an Abstract —
... if it doesn't cure the title? is another puzzling question to some abstractors, but we have never worried much about this one. Neither does the doctor's prescription cure human ills in all cases, but it may help. The abstract never was designed to cure anybody's title, but the better type of abstract will reveal the condition of the title and place it in position where it may be perfected, if necessary, by the examining attorney.

Girls Basketball Is Fast Growing Sport In Schools

AUSTIN, Nov. 3. — Girls' basketball continues to be the fastest growing sport sponsored by the University Interscholastic League. This was apparent when the League released today official lists of three girls' basketball conferences to compete under League auspices this coming season.

A total of 859 teams are assigned to Conferences AA, A and B in the third year of Interscholastic League girls' basketball. This is a whopping jump of 78 teams over last year's total of 781, continuing the rapid growth which saw the League program pick up 85 new teams in its second year.

Breakdown, conference-wise, of the 859 total for the coming season, puts 117 teams in Conference AA, 170 in A, and 572 in B. It is interesting to note that the Conference B total for girls' teams is but 57 teams fewer than the 629 teams competing in boys' B basketball. Boys basketball is in its thirty-second year of League sponsorship. In this small-school conference, the major portion of the increase in participation appears, with a gain of 61 schools over last year. Conference A picked up 16 teams, and Conference AA only one.

Magnitude of the girls' basketball program under League sponsorship can be better understood from actual participation figures. Last year, a total of 11,820 girls were listed on eligibility sheets for the 781 teams. Actual eligibility figures are not yet, of course, available for this season's teams, but if team size averages do not change, the total participation will be approximately 13,000 girls.

THE DAY'S EARNINGS—After selling local-made fatigue caps and souvenirs to passing United Nations troops, two Korean women in a small village between Suwan and Seoul are counting their earnings. Life is peaceful here for the moment, while desperate fighting goes on at the front lines, but these women know they may have to flee their homes at any moment.
