DOESN'T IT MAKE you feel good to know that our town's red Cross quota has already been raised and paid. You've probably seen the announcement that the county roll call drive is due to begin March 1. Cisco's quota was subscribed last fall in the annual community Chest budget campaign.

Treasurer Robert White tells us that the Chest drive brought in $1000 — about $200 short of the goal. The Chest had a little surplus from the year before to fill out the full budget.

The Community Chest is the best way. Your money raising for public matters is over for a whole year.

MISS WHAM of SMU. That's what a Dallas newspaper calls Miss Zelda Sandler, daughter of Charles S. Sandelers of Cisco. The paper was commenting on a concert she is to play there Friday night. We quote from the paper as follows:

"A left-handed drummer with four years in a man's profession and a well-dented family breakfast table to her credit will rack up a thumping first for the SMU school of music when she graduates in June.

"Zelda Sandler, a pretty, 20-year-old brunette from Cisco, will be the university's first graduate with a major in percussion instruments. In her years at SMU, she has been a snare-drummer in the Mustang Band and has played tympani, mrimba and vibraphone for the University Symphony.

"And when Feb. 27 arrives, she will add two more firsts to her record. She will give the music school's first senior recital in percussion instruments and will premier a Tocatta for Tympani by M. U. S. composer-in-residence, Jack Kilpatrick, who wrote the work one night 'when I had a pounding in my head.'

"Zelda started her music career at the age of 6, but by the time she got to Cisco Junior High, 'I got tired of using my fingers and wanted to work my arms for a while.'

"She changed to snare drum and gave her parents' breakfast table a sound thrashing when she practiced. Did they mind? They never said anything, but they never saw a lot of movies in those days.

"When she was a sophomore in Cisco, she took up tympani, which she played in the All-State Orchestra for two consecutive years. She thought she was a drummer for good until she came to SMU and found that it had no percussion department. And she began her freshman year as a music education major with a concentration in piano.

"During her freshman year, the music school began its first instruction in percussion, and she accordingly changed her major. Why?

"My brother is a professional pianist, and I decided that one was enough for a family. Besides, I don't know how to do anything else," she laughed."

The paper reports that Zelda plans to go to Columbia University after graduation from SMU to do graduate work in music therapy, the science which employs music in treatment of certain mental diseases.

MR. BILL HOGUE, the district superintendent out at the Humble Pipe Line Company, tells us about an interesting sign he saw on a bridge up near Possum Kingdom lake. The bridge crosses a creek near the lake, and the sign says: "No Fishing from Bridge."

And, Bill reports, there's not one drop of water in the creek. As far as he knows, nobody fishes from the bridge either.

DISTRICT JUDGE Turner Collier of the 91st Court reports that Cisco people do their duty as good citizens when it comes to serving on juries. Recently, 30 people were summoned to report to his court for jury duty. And 21 of them were from Cisco.

MR. W. P. Knight, adjutant of the Legion Post, reports that the Legion boys will be served coffee and cake at their meeting tonight at the Legion Hall. A motion picture made by the Army of the fighting in Korea will be the program feature.

THE END—Firemen survey the wreckage of a Navy Yard warehouse destroyed in a five-alarm fire in Brooklyn. A fire department spokesman said one or two walls of the structure had collapsed as 200 city firefighters joined three shipyard fire companies in battling flames. Cause of the fire was not immediately determined, but no injuries were reported.

ABC Club Plans Officer Election At Meet Tonight

Everyone in Cisco is a member of the ABC Club, it was announced Thursday by club officials who have called a special meeting for 7:30 p. m. Thursday (today) at the First National Bank.

Since the ABC Club became a member of the Community Chest organization, officers said, everyone in Cisco has the right to membership, and everyone was invited to attend the meeting tonight.

At the meeting new officers will be elected, and the summer play program will be planned. The directors have mapped out an ambitious program for the summer, and they have called upon all adults to have a part in the planning and carrying out of the projects.

Included in the plans are a Little League baseball program, a baseball program for older boys, softball, tennis, swimming, supervised play for the small children, and many other projects.

Officers were particularly anxious to complete plans for the Little League baseball at the meeting tonight. Those interested in sponsoring a team or managing a team were asked to attend.

GOOD CROWD IS FORECAST FOR MINSTREL SHOW FRIDAY NIGHT

Advance ticket sales by the local Boy Scout organization indicated another big crowd for the Cisco Boosters Club minstrel, "Convention Blues," which will be presented for the second time at the high school auditorium Friday night.

The minstrel will be presented as a benefit for local boy scouts who plan to go to the National Jamboree to be held in California in July. Scouts will have charge of all ticket sales and the sale of drinks and other items during the performance and at the intermission.

Officials of the Boosters Club promised a good show. It was announced that the show would be much the same as the one presented last year.

Ace Lucus Files As Candidate For City Commission

Ace Lucus, Cisco painting and decorating contractor, today authorized The Press to announce that he will be a candidate for the office of City Commissioner in the annual city election on Tuesday, April 7.

Voters of Cisco will elect a Mayor and two commissioners in the April election.

A native of Eastland County, Mr. Lucus has lived in the Cisco area most of his life. He is a graduate of the old Randolph College, which now is Cisco Jr. College. Mr. Lucus has been a painting and decorating contractor here since 1936.

Active in the First Christian Church and other civic affairs, Mr. Lucus is a member of all Masonic bodies here and of Moslem Temple, Fort Worth. Mr. and Mrs. Lucus have three children.

"I am offering myself as a candidate for the city commission because I feel that all citizens should be willing to do their part in the management of public affairs," Mr. Lucus said. "You can be sure that I have no axes to grind and that if I am elected I will do my best."

'Share The Fun' Festival Planned At 4-H Rally Day

Bob Williams, assistant county agent, and Miss Roselle Winston, assistant county home demonstration agent, announced today that a 4-H Share-the-Fun Festival, a variety show with all acts staged by local 4-H youngsters, will be held in Eastland at the annual Rally Day on April 4.

At a meeting on February 21 called by Mr. Williams and Miss Winston, and attended by Eastland County 4-H Club presidents, it was pointed out that the United States Rubber Company is looking for new talent to perform at their annual Share-the-Fun Breakfast. A committee to plan the Rally Day and Festival was formed, consisting of all club presidents with Miss Rhea Erwin of Rising Star as chairman.

The act judged to be the best at the show goes on to a District Festival competition to be held later on at Stephenville. District winners are to compete in a state-wide Fun Festival Final. The ultimate winner may be nominated for selection to participate in the United States Rubber Company Share-the-Fun Breakfast to be held in Chicago in connection with the 1953 National 4-H Congress.

All 4-H Club youngsters in the county are being encouraged to present their talent at the Festival.

Miss Gayle Whitmore, teacher in the Breckenridge schools, is expected Friday for a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Whitmore.

The big game of the year will be played by the girls basketball team of Cisco Junior High School at the local junior high gym at 7:30 p. m. tonight when they meet the girls team from Elmdale for the championship of this area.

The Elmdale team won its own tournament, defeating the best teams in their area, and the Cisco girls won their district and their own tournament, defeating the best teams in this area. The game tonight will decide the championship of the region.

The boys teams of the two schools will also play tonight. Each team won the runner-up slot in its own tournament. In games Tuesday night the Elmdale girls beat the Cisco girls by one point and the Cisco boys defeated the Elmdale boys by one point.

Coaches Roy Killingsworth and Mrs. Bill Bledsoe of the girls team and Coach O. B. Graham of the boys team assured basketball fans of two of the best games of the season when the teams meet tonight.

Mr. Killingsworth announced that the trophy won by the girls in taking the district championship would be presented at the half of the girls game tonight. The trophy will be presented by Bob Latson, president of the Cisco Boosters Club.

The state has 141 district courts, of which the 91st is one. Judge Collie noted that Representative Omar Burkett has introduced a bill in the Texas Legislature to abolish the 91st District Court. The measure is being opposed, he added, on the grounds that consolidation of the Eastland County court with the 90th District Court at Breckenridge would cause inconveniences to attorneys and those having business with the court.

Judges of courts who occasionally have light dockets are frequently assigned duties in courts where heavy dockets prevail, Judge Collie pointed out. He noted that since taking office last January 1 he has had assignments to other area courts where dockets were crowded or a judge had disqualified himself.

Lion Fleming Waters was in charge of the program.

Jimmy Webb, president of the student council at Cisco High School, and Bob Lloyd, president of the senior class, were luncheon guests. They invited the Lions to visit the high school Monday during an open house program.

Lion Les Clark of Abilene was a visitor.

FARWELL TO CONTROLS

One of the oldest maxims of economics says: "Supply and demand determine prices." The rule is just as applicable today as it was when it was originated. It's the big reason why the informed business community hailed President Eisenhower's first moves to de-regiment wages and prices.

Many business organizations have contended that the government should steer clear of direct controls in its efforts to combat inflation, particularly in periods of comparatively normal business relations.

They claim it has been shown conclusively that the natural law of supply and demand can work efficiently in the present period because the nation has been able to meet the needs for increased defense production while raising the consumption of civilian goods.

Business economists argue that government price decrees — except in situations where there are drastic shortages — are bound to upset the normal interrelation of supply and demand in the open market. They claim the result brings into play unnatural economic forces which could end in rationing and blackmarkets.

The problem has been illustrated for the Chamber of Commerce of the United States' new economic study program in a pamphlet entitled, "Demand, Supply and Prices."

The example supposes a free market equilibrium price of 75 cents for a dozen eggs and assumes that 1,000 dozens are sold each day. It then suggests that by law a ceiling of 65 cents a dozen is placed on the eggs. At that price, the owners of only 300 dozens want to sell. Some farmers reduce their egg production. High cost producers — farmers who need 75 cents to make any kind of a profit on their eggs — drop out of the market.

At the same time, there is an upsurge in demand because of the 65-cent price. People who do not feel they can afford as many eggs at 75 cents a dozen, are willing to buy at 65 cents. Now 1,100 dozens are wanted. The supply is dropping as the demand climbs. So what happens? Before long, there is a shortage of eggs, a blackmarket and perhaps an elaborate system of egg rationing by the government.

By the same token, if the government places a price of 85 cents on the eggs, the demand falls off to 900 dozens while the supply increases to 1,100 dozens.

At the higher price, production becomes more profitable and more and more farmers go into the egg business. The result of this is a surplus. So the government is forced to move in and artificially stimulate demand through school lunch programs, foreign aid buying and storage measures.

The President's action, which some controls of this type, was taken under his own executive powers. Congressional authority for price and wage restrictions expires on April 30 and the administration has not asked for their extension even on a stand-by basis.

Most business men are opposed to a stand-by control program under which a temporary agency would be established. They point out that any stand-by organization would, of necessity, have to be staffed with less efficient personnel because competent workers would not seek employment in a limited, emergency bureau.

In such a situation, the stand-by personnel would advance to positions of authority and complicate the efficient operation of the contingent organization if it school system that has been developed in our state. We like to believe that the opportunities afforded our children for sound basic education are not equalled anywhere. If we are justified in this conclusion it is only because the people of our state have shown a personal interest in education and because public spirited men and women have been willing to devote their lives to the teaching of youth.

Our school system can meet the objectives expected of it only when there is widespread public understanding of our schools and the type of education they provide. This kind of understanding can best be developed by the intimate knowledge that comes from inspecting the schoolhouses, knowing the teachers and seeing the work of the pupils.

Therefore, I, as Governor of the State of Texas, do hereby designate the week of March 1-7, 1953, as PUBLIC SCHOOL WEEK in Texas, and I urge every citizen to visit in at least one public school during this period and to become personally acquainted with the programs and accomplishments of our educational system.

HEALTH TALKS

Prepared by the Texas Medical Association

Temperature has a definite bearing on sickness, including the temperature at which the sick-room is kept, the addition of heat or cold to the patient's body, and medicine or treatment ordered by the doctor aimed at causing or reducing a fever.

Gas or oil stoves in the sick-room use up oxygen. With artificial heat, a temperature of about 70 degrees Fahrenheit has been recommended during waking hours; for sleep it can be even lower. A container of water somewhere in the room will overcome a lack of moisture in the air. The patient should be protected from becoming chilled when he is exposed for treatment or while he is up and about.

Perhaps the simplest use for heat near the patient is to relieve cold feet. A hot water bottle or some substitute (a hot brick or a hot plate) or a heat pad, covered to keep from burning the patient, is fine. Blankets may be heated and placed next to the patient to relieve a hard chill. Heat also may be applied in moist form, for example, as a hot bath or hot compresses.

Medical studies have shown that sick persons in a comfortably cool atmosphere tend to recover more rapidly than those in hot surroundings. Keeping a patient cool during a Texas summer is really a problem. If an electric fan is used, it should not blow directly on him.

Cold may be applied directly to the patient in a number of ways: an ice cap or collar (or a substitute, such as a rubber glove or plastic refrigerator bag filled with crushed ice and tied securely), a cold bath, a cold cloth applied to the forehead or throat, or a cloth or piece of cotton saturated with a lotion kept in the refrigerator used to wipe the face or to place over the eyes. An ice bag should be covered and the cover kept dry.

What are babies made of? Not sticks and straws, as first-time parents may feel, but bricks and stone.

A basic fear with which a baby is born is the fear of falling. If he isn't held securely, this fear is made worse, although he sometimes lacks adequate means to let you know about it. It's better to handle him a bit on the rough side, but firmly, than gingerly, with your fear perhaps being passed on to him.

Setting aside the half nelson, which is a little drastic, the American Red Cross in its home nursing classes teaches the three following holds for the new baby:

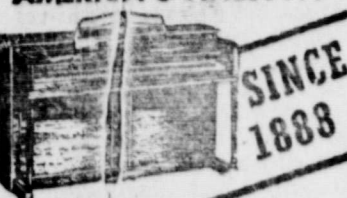

To lift him, the feet are grasped at the ankles with one hand, one finger being placed between the ankles, and the baby's buttocks are lifted slightly. The other hand is slipped along the back to support the back and head with the fingers spread; then the baby is gently lifted and shifted into the arms, with the head and back still being supported.

A father who remembers his football days can benefit from his experience; one of the favorite holds for the newest arrival, appropriately enough, is called the "football hold." The baby is lifted and swung into the crook of his arm, facing him, so that their hips meet. The infant's head and shoulders are supported securely by one of the father's arms and outspread hand, leaving the other arm free.

Another hold is helpful in giving a tub bath. With one arm support the back of the head and shoulders and grasp the baby's far arm at the shoulder. With the other arm support the buttocks and grasp the baby's far leg at the thigh. Gently lower him into the water, feet first. Keep a grasp on the arm during the bath. To wash and rinse the back, shift the hold by reaching across the baby's chest with your other hand and grasping his far arm at the shoulder, letting him rest forward on your arm.

To Save Seed and Labor Enrich Home Garden Soil

For row crops, apply plant food in shallow trenches on each side of the drill in which seed are sown.

The home gardener's soil problems are more like those of a florist than like a farmer's. The area he cultivates is so small, he can afford corrective measures that would be unprofitable in the cultivation of large acreage.

On a garden of 1,000 square feet a balanced commercial plant food application of six pounds per 100 square feet takes only 60 pounds. It would require 2,612 pounds to fertilize an acre at this rate and there might be few farm crops on which such heavy feeding would pay.

But this feeding would raise even poor soil in a home vegetable or flower garden to good fertility, and increase the yield and quality of the crop. The heavier the yield, the smaller the area needed to produce the required food, and this saves work, seed and other expense. Well fed crops mature faster and excel in tenderness and flavor. They also resist insects and disease.

In most cases 4 pounds of plant food per 100 square feet should be applied to the garden soil at planting time. The method used depends on the acidity of the soil. A test of acidity should be made when there is reason to believe your soil is acid.

In neutral soils plant food may be spread evenly over the garden area and spaded in. This method should be followed in preparing flower borders and beds, including flowering bulbs. In the vegetable garden this method can be followed, but for row crops many prefer to apply plant food in bands on either side of the row.

First stretch a line to mark the drill in which the seed will be sown. On either side a trench 2 inches deep or so, and in each trench pour half a pint of plant food for each 25 feet of row. Cover this with soil and proceed with soil sowing.

This trench method should be used in acid soils where there is reason to suspect acidity. By concentrating plant food it reduces the risk much of it being made unavailable to the plants by reason of soil acidity. Acidity is corrected by applying limestone. Potatoes and watermelons prefer slightly acid soil, but most vegetables grow well in neutral soil. Beets, asparagus, cauliflower, muskmelon, parsnips, spinach all demand a neutral soil for best results.

It is possible to prevent germination of garden seeds by applying materials rich in nitrogen, such as poultry and manure, to the garden before sowing. These materials should be used with caution in small amounts and spaded under.

Having applied four pounds of plant food to each 100 square feet before planting the garden, the remaining two pounds should be reserved for use as the crop matures. It can be applied dry as a side dressing, or in liquid form. Soluble plant foods are useful for feeding growing crops, because of the ease with which they can be applied. By using a siphoning device they can be mixed with the hose water, diluted sufficiently as to avoid burning green leaves. It has been proved that plant leaves will absorb plant food and will not fall on the leaves where the ground and sink in which the roots can get it.

Gay Dooryard Gardens From Seed of Low Annuals

Differing from parterre planting of the nineties, modern dooryard gardens emphasize beauty of the flowers, and not a pattern.

Low growing flowers which produce sheets of color can be used effectively in dooryard gardens, especially in the front yards of modern one-story homes. The simple lines and absence of ornamentation in the house design find a pleasing echo in simple floral plantings which depend for their effect on color masses rather than intricate designs.

When front yard flowers were formerly in fashion, in the nineties, flowers were used to work out elaborate designs of geometric shapes. This was an ancient fashion, dating back to the middle ages, known as parterre was in its pattern, with the flowers used only to supply the color which developed it. Few examples of this method are now seen in this country.

Modern dooryard gardens are as simple as possible in design, in order to center attention upon the beauty of the flowers. These are grouped in masses of one color, so arranged that each mass harmonizes with and sets off the others. Annual flowers of low, compact growth will flower without ceasing until freezing weather, even in the northern states, and are easily grown from seed, when started early under protection, or in the garden itself, as soon as the weather permits.

The garden illustrated is a simple arrangement of border plantings for a small house where the walk leads from the private driveway to the front door. Both house and lot will be made to seem larger by this arrangement. Bright red, or pink salvias, and clear, vivid red, pink, blue and buff verbenas will provide a brilliant decoration for the house.

Both salvia and verbenas are slow growing, and seed should be started early in a hot-bed or greenhouse, so that plants of good size can be set out as soon as danger of frost is over. If seed is sown directly in the garden, flowers may be delayed two or three weeks. Sweet alyssum, however, will grow quickly from seed and either a dwarf white variety, or the dark purple Violet Queen Alyssum may be used. If the plants are sheared when they grow too tall, flowers will be increased, and a low growing border constantly maintained.

OMAR BURLESON
Congressman
17th District

By OMAR BURLESON
In a number of letters during my service in the Congress, people have quoted the 14th Verse of the 7th Chapter of II Chronicles.

A few days ago I had a letter from a friend in Cross Plains who is devoted to her church and to all good causes, who sent me the admonition contained in this Scripture. Her letter was written with deep insights as to the direst need of this anxious day in the life of America. She likely senses that the problems which cry to Heaven for solution are so central and crucial that they must be resolved or catastrophe awaits.

In these desperate days, from newspaper, magazine, radio and pulpit we are being admonished that the fundamental questions are what might be called moral, spiritual, religious. We have come to such a plight that the choice which must be made involves the blessing or the curse, life or death, for our Nation and our boasted Way of Life.

In this letter referred to was quoted this most monumental sentence. It was quoted in a prayer during the last Congress and is as overarching in hope as a glorious rainbow. But sounding in it is also a doleful solemnity suggesting those for whom the bells toll. "If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from Heaven, and will forgive their sins and will heal their land."

In this awe-inspiring covenant,

F1 Hybrid Flowers Give Bountiful Yield of Beauty

Every seed bearing flower must be pollinated by hand to produce F1 hybrid seed.

Petunia Comanche, a bright red flower which won a bronze medal in the All America trials for 1953, is an F1 hybrid. So are several other petunias which have been introduced in recent years, as well as tomatoes, cucubers, cabbage and sweet corn varieties of recent introduction.

Of all new scientific methods of improving the quality and yield of plants, the breeding of F1 hybrid varieties has given best results. It is tedious and costly method in many cases, but the results have usually justified the expense.

The first spectacular success with this method was in the case of hybrid corn which has increased enormously the average yield per acre of the corn crop. While the principle used in the case of flowers and most other vegetables are the same, the methods are not.

To produce an F1 hybrid you take two parents, each having merits which you wish to combine. The parents must belong to well-fixed strains, pure bred, and in the case of plants, in-bred. When two such parents are crossed, the first generation seed will produce a crop which is uniform, combining the qualities of both parents, and endowed with a mystic quality called "hybrid vigor," which makes it grow faster, stronger, larger and yield more vigorously than others.

But beware of sowing the seed borne by an F1 hybrid plant, that is unless you are an experimenter, seeking something

The second generation will be as badly mixed as the first was uniform in size, shape and color. Breeders look for new varieties in the F2 hybrids, but they will usually be a disappointment to others.

The originator of an F1 hybrid which proves to be popular, has a monopoly of the seed production, since it requires the imbred parent strains which he developed, and which others cannot duplicate. But there is nothing to prevent other breeders from developing their own parents, and breeding their own F1 hybrids, which may win popular favor.

write in letters of fire across the sky are "if" and "then" for they are rooted in the inexorable law of cause and effect.

"If" is one of the shortest and biggest words in the Bible. It is written across every promise of spiritual guidance and enrichment.

From Genesis to Revelations we are constantly assured that certain things will happen sure as the rising sun if — if — the conditions are fulfilled. "If with all your hearts ye truly seek Me, then ye shall surely find Me." That is not just a nice motto. It is a law of the unseen.

President Eisenhower in his recent address to the Congress said that we must be strong in arms and strong in productivity but above all, strong in our spiritual resources. These are the needs of this Nation, and of we, the people who inhabit it. I am glad that President Eisenhower is opening his Cabinet meetings with prayer. In the Cabinet Room where these meetings are held, the likenesses of George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, James Madison, Andrew Jackson, and Woodrow Wilson look down upon the group. The first three did much to give us a Republic; the latter two did much to preserve it. The problems facing

President Eisenhower today are no less grave.

It would be encouraging to people all over these United States to know that on each Thursday morning at 8 o'clock, a group of Members of Congress come together in a Devotional to admit that the wisdom of man alone is wholly inadequate to meet the responsibilities of running this Government and pray for Divine Guidance. Christ's rule was that "If you do His will, you shall know."

Long before Eisenhower was President he said to a great company of religious leaders that "without a spiritual renaissance, America is doomed." The sharpest sword America has is the sword of the spirit. That is the implement which totalitarianism has thrown away and the weapon it fears most. It seems necessary that we be militarily strong but the final hope of America and all the world is not alone in the Pentagon but in Pentecost.

We call ourselves a Christian Nation. Are we really?

"If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from Heaven, and will forgive their sins and will heal their land."
