One of the most accepted ways of cooling off has always been to flop into a chair from time to time, accompanied by lots of iced coffee in a cool, tall glass. You'll be happy to know that this pleasant method has now been proven scientifically

An industrial scientist, Lucien Brouha, M.D., recently told, in a prominent farm publication, of his findings after seven years of re-search among men who worked in high temperatures. He discovered that the more times these men stopped for a long, cold drink, the topped for a long, cold mink. He lower their temperature stayed. He toppies the widely held belief that it is harmful to take very cold drinks if you feel very warm. The amount of liquid you drink is what glasses filled with coffee ice cubes.

James A. Tune and family of Richmond, California, swam with us Monday. Mr. Tune was in the market for a bottle of olive oil as a suntan aid and we located a bottle of ordinary tan oil for him that saved him a trip to town. He told us that olive oil is the big suntan item on the Pacific coast. We complimented him on the health and stamina of his father-in-law, veteran Cisco blacksmith, W. C. Clements, who toils at his trade daily, despite hi 81 years of age.

Every community of any size has its show place where visitors are always taken first. When we came here first in 1934, the Lake Cisco area was the first spot we were shown. Of course, it had its various zoo attractions then but despite the loss of this feature, the lake area still is the first place guests of Ciscoans are taken. So it was only natural that the S. H. McCanlies took their son, Ralph, home from Dallas, and his family, out to the lake pool for swims twice last Sunday.
