Letters

Dear Editor: Lots of our friends around Cisco who are growing peanuts would be interested in the area we are flying over today because it is a new district where vast landholdings are cheap and peanuts have been proven commercially successful. We have chartered a special plane to take us to a 240,000 acre cattle ranch bordering on the Daly River west of Katherine. With us is our experienced cattle man who is on our payroll and expense account to keep us advised on land, cattle, and everything but peanuts, which he claims to know nothing about. The price of the cattle station is approximately 25 cents an acre including around 1200 head of cattle and no improvements. Our small plane rolls down the runway and climbs up over the tree covered hills and heads away from the early morning sun towards the ranch. The country we are passing over looks like poor sandy open forest country, and out about 35 miles we see smoke from a grass fire burning on a 3 mile wide front and sending white smoke clouds high into the sky where it has burned up to green grass and will soon be out. On a few miles the deep blue Daly River becomes visible meandering through the tree and grass covered valley. The Daly River forms 28 miles of the boundary of the ranch we have come to look at. We are told that the Daly river flows continuously throughout the year. We are passing over the green cultivated fields around an adjoining homestead just now and turning to fly the 100 miles around the perimeter of the 240,000 acre ranch. The plane is flying low along the Daly River and the flats along the river look like good land, but sandy, which could be irrigated by pumping water up around 40 feet from the river level. Leaving the river and heading west along the boundary we are passing over miles of grass land scattered with enough small gum trees to pass as open forest country. Our advisor tells us that the grass is Spinifex and spear grass at this particular point. Still headed west we come to great flat topped mesas and then the Bradshaw River valley with its green Mitchell, Finders, and spear grasses and white short-horn cattle grazing below, and also a mustering yard. Flying to the west boundary line we headed again over great red mesas several hundred feet high, and turning north the plane glides a few feet above the tops of the high flat topped hills. On to the north we see ahead poor sandy open forest country until reaching the well grassed alluvial river valley of the Daly River. The geological map shows Cambrian limestone for the general area and white limestone can be interbedded with other formations in the hill sides and river bottom. Following the Daly River along the boundary, both sides of the river appeared suitable for cultivation and on the other side we see a successful peanut farm. There appears to be plenty more room for lots of other farms.

Sincerely, Robert Kamon

Miss Johanna Chapman and Carlton Boren, both students at the University of Oklahoma, were expected late today for a weekend visit with Miss Chapman's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ray G. Chapman.

CONCERNING THE INNER VIEW

Forage Crop Diseases Lower Yield and Quality

Damage to grasses and clovers by disease can be serious in decreased yields, loss of protein and vitamins, and reduced digestibility. G. W. Burton of Georgia found that anthracnose on Sudan grass destroyed 9 per cent of the protein and fat in susceptible plants and increased their woody plant tissue content by nearly 20 per cent. In general, digestibility decreases as woody plant tissue increases. Burton believes anthracnose lowers digestibility of all nutrients in susceptible Sudan grass. In addition the quality of the herbage, which is most important, is likely to be seriously affected. At Cornell University, J. G. Horsfall estimated that diseases attacking the leaves of forage plants caused yield losses averaging 6.5 per cent for red clover, 3.2 per cent for alfalfa, 8 per cent for white clover. Later work at Cornell has shown that leafspot damage to timothy, orchardgrass and bromegrass can cut yields 4 to 6 per cent. Investigations of white clover at the Regional Pasture Research Laboratory, State College, Pa., showed that rust markedly reduces both the yield and carotene (provitamin A) content of this crop. Measuring disease damage in forage crops is still in a preliminary stage. Accurate comparisons are hard to make, K. W. Kretlow of USDA points out, because so many factors influence the results. Perennial growth, number of crops harvested or grazed, vitamin content, the succession of diseases that may attack plants throughout the growing season, and other factors must all be considered. Effects on palatability, so far unmeasurable, may result from premature shriveling of leaves by disease. Such factors may affect both the animal's appetite and the nutritional value of forage crops. Also disease attacks such as root rot and crown rot on legumes or viruses on clovers, can drastically upset the balance in a good grass-legume mixture. The disappearance of legumes from a mixture can often be attributed to attack by a disease. Marked progress has been made in the breeding of alfalfa for resistance to wilt, leafspot and mildew, and red clover for resistance to anthracnose, and progress has been made with some other forages in breeding for disease resistance.

A short business session followed. Mrs. C. E. Hailey read the minutes of the previous meeting and Mrs. B. E. Morehart gave the treasurer's report. The penny fund was collected and a card signed by all attending to be sent to Mrs. V. E. Plumlee, a patient in the hospital. Other routine business matters were transacted and the meeting was dismissed with prayer.

A refreshment plate, consisting of angel food cake, ice cream, and iced fruit juice with a miniature basket of small eggs, was served to Mesdames W. Z. Latch, Carrel Smith, B. J. Osborn, D. P. King, W. L. Boyd, C. E. Hailey, W. M. Joyner, J. J. Porter, G. P. Rainbolt, B. E. Morehart, J. T. MARILYN INTO KIM—Kim Novak, 20-year-old former model from Chicago, recently completed her first movie role in Hollywood. The green-eyed blonde's name was Marilyn Novak, but her studio decided there were just about enough starlets by the name of Marilyn in the film colony. So she's now shown as Kim, and hopes she's on the way to fame and fortune.

High School News Notes

By RHELDA REED

The Senior Class was very well pleased with the results of the senior play. A capacity crowd filled the auditorium and the class made a nice sum of money which will be left to the school as a parting gift. The cast appreciated the audience very much. They, as well as their director, Mrs. Moore, were very thankful for such a kind audience.

F.H.A. Style Show

The annual Style Show was presented in assembly Thursday morning. The newest spring creations were modeled by the girls and boys of the classes. The eighth grade girls were special guests of the program.

The show showed much hard work on the part of the students and their teacher, Mrs. Odom, who unfortunately became ill a short time before the tea Wednesday afternoon. The tea and open house Wednesday was a very nice affair. Special guests of the tea included parents of the F.H.A. members and the faculty of CHS.

Seed Tested and Tagged is Best Crop Insurance

The value and quality of a crop depend on the kind and quality of seed planted. True, good seed without adequate fertilization and proper cultural practices may not produce maximum crops. The greatest economy results from the right combination, of which good seed is most important.

Buying uncleaned or superficially cleaned and untested untagged seed from a neighboring farmer without accurate knowledge of purity or germination, or at most only verbal assurances, instead of documented tests, or cheap seed from an unknown truck peddler, are poor policies. Buyers are coming to realize that such "cheap seed" is not cheap in the long run but is really the most costly.

Much of the seed grain used for sowing is grown on the farm where sown and farm cleaned. Where the farmer's fields have been kept relatively free from weeds by good farm practices and he maintains a seed increase plot for each variety grown, this practice is not to be discouraged. But this advice does not apply to small-seeded legumes and grass seeds.

The farmer who wishes to sow alfalfa, red clover, Ladino clover, hairy vetch, bromegrass, orchardgrass or any one of many other legumes and grasses, does not ordinarily produce the seed he sows. He recognizes the necessity of looking to the field seedman to obtain the high-quality, disease-free and weed-free seed he desires for sowing.

Considered on price alone, the difference between high-quality cleaned seed and farm-cleaned seed is very little. The seed cost,

Meet The Seniors

SUE STEVENSON — Sue was born on January 5, 1936, in Cisco. Her favorite subject is Civics. She enjoys listening to good records. She has not definitely made up her mind on what she wants to do after graduation from high school. She is employed at this time at Dean's Drug Store where she enjoys her work and can mix up a most delicious split! Sue was a member of the annual staff this year. She is a good student and makes excellent grades.

BOB MILLER — Bob was born on November 2, 1935. His favorite subjects are shorthand and homemaking. His favorite sport is football. He has no hobby except trying to keep Lundy Ann happy. When he graduates from high school he wants to go to Texas Tech and prepare for a career in petroleum engineering. This year, Bob is president of the student council, vice-president of the senior class, a member of the Spanish Club and was a member of the Lobo football squad.

GOSSIP — Some of the F.H.A. BOYS really had to rush to finish their shirts in time for the style show. . . . The senior class sponsors report that the 1954 senior play made more money than did the play of last year. They believe it was caused by the advanced ticket sale. . . . We are happy indeed to welcome Mr. Wagner, the new high school band and choir director. . . . It was noticed Wednesday that Flora Jean Fletcher finally got up enough courage to clean out her locker. You'd be surprised at what all she found. . . . The senior class has been making plans for a class reunion in about five or ten years. They all think it would be very interesting to see each other then. They have not set the definite date yet but hope to do so soon. . . . The Juniors are supposed to order their class rings sometime next week.

Roy Thetford underwent an emergency appendectomy in a Ranger hospital Sunday. He is reported to be doing nicely.

Mr. and Mrs. M. O. Smith and daughter, Sue, have returned from a visit in Corpus Christi.

Ever Think of Blue Monday —

. . . as a day when there's chores to be done which are not quite inspiring, but positively boring? Some do. But in our business we never have a blue moment, altho pouring over ancient, dingy records sounds all but refreshing. To us it's all in the day's wash and we know what you mean when you say "build me a dependable abstract." Yes, it's hard work, tedious, exacting, responsible, but interesting. "As It Looks From Here"

CHAR BURLESON
Congressman
17th District

From time to time it has been suggested in this column that the editors give me their opinions on matters of legislation in the Congress. Each year I have submitted a questionnaire for the selected views of the people; but keep current, your reaction to measures to be acted on in the future will be welcomed. A great many people have already written me on proposals for a new Farm Bill. As everyone knows, the Administration is recommending a system of flexible price supports, as opposed to the 90% of parity now in effect. In my opinion, the Congress is likely to re-enact the present law, but should the President veto the bill when it reaches his desk, and should the Congress fail to override his veto, the flexible price supports would automatically become effective. The law is so written that this is made the case.

In connection with the Farm Program, your views on supporting commodities not considered basic and storable will also be appreciated. In other words, should we place a price support on perishable commodities and on those things on which it is difficult to control production?

There is a bill pending recommended by the Administration which proposes that the Federal Government re-insure prepaid health insurance. This will be a highly controversial issue. The Administration says it will be a good thing for many people, and others say it is the opening wedge to socialized medicine. The measure calls for a revolving fund, starting with 25 million dollars from the Federal Treasury, to encourage voluntary health organizations to extend coverage to a large number of people.

Statehood for Alaska and Hawaii is another measure on which the House of Representatives will be called upon to act. It has been passed already by the Senate.

The pros and cons of this legislation are many. For instance, the question is asked, "Why should Alaska, with comparatively few people, have the same representation in the United States Senate as do the large, populous States of the Union?"

Probably the greatest objection to admitting Hawaii is its conglomeration of nationalities. The longshoremen's union is exceedingly strong in Hawaii, and it is dominated by Harry Bridges, the boss of that union. Many have doubts as to the loyalty of many people of the Islands.

The Taft-Hartley Law is under consideration for amendments. The Courts have held that State labor laws, except as applying to the union shop, are subject to Federal laws. In other words, if a State labor law dealing with picketing or some other aspect of regulation should con-

Vets Questions And Answers

Q - I've just been released from active duty and I plan to apply within the 120 days allowed me for the kind of GI term insurance available to Korean veterans. Will I have to take a physical examination to get it?

A - No. A physical examination is not required for veterans who apply for Korean GI term insurance within the specified time.

Q - I am a World War II veteran. For the past several years I've been holding permanent GI insurance in an endowment plan. I'd like to exchange it for a permanent policy with lower premiums and, of course, a lower reserve value. If I do this, will I have to lose the extra reserve I've paid into the old policy?

A - No. The difference between the reserve on the old and new policies, less any indebtedness, may be used to cover future premiums on your new policy. Or it may be withdrawn in cash, if you wish.

Q - Are there any circumstances under which a Korean veteran would not be entitled to make his one-and-only change of course under the Korean GI Bill training program?

A - Yes. If the veteran drops out of training because of his own misconduct, neglect or failure to apply himself to his studies, he would not be permitted to change to another course. In fact, he could be denied any further training.

Q - I'm taking on-the-job training under the Korean GI Bill. In addition, I would like to take a correspondence course in the same field. Could I receive a GI allowance for the correspondence course, as well as my monthly allowance as an on-the-job trainee?

A - No. The GI allowance for a correspondence course could not be paid, so long as you're receiving an allowance for on-the-job training.

liet with Federal law, the State law is ineffective.

Also there is the proposition of requiring a secret ballot on the part of union members before or after a strike, as to whether or not the strike should be called or continued.

Social Security is a big question in the Congress, and legislation to bring approximately ten million additional people under Social Security has been recommended by the President. The proposal, if approved, would bring farmers, doctors, lawyers, and other groups in which are not now covered under its provisions.

Of course, there are many other measures pending in the Congress. These include foreign aid and foreign policy; postal rates increase; increase in postal employees' and other Federal employees' salaries; changes in the Anti-Trust Law, particularly as it applies to the Fair Trades Law; national defense in all its many ramifications; the development of the St. Lawrence Seaway; taxes; changes in the veterans' laws affecting certain benefits; measures dealing with subversive activities, etc.

Again let me not only invite, but urge, that you give me the benefit of your feelings on any of these matters mentioned or other issues in which you may have an interest.

WTUC Accepts Bid In Issue Of Stock By New York Firm

ABILENE, April 14.—West Texas Utilities Co. has accepted the bid from Harriman, Ripley & Co. and associates of New York for the underwriting of its 60,000-share $10 million issue of new preferred stock, $100 par. Price Campbell, WTU president, said Friday night.

Campbell said the Harriman, Ripley group, lowest of five bidders, stated an offering price of $105 a share for stock with a $4.80 dividend, less an underwriting commission of $2.25 a share.

A total of 47,270 shares of the new senior equity issue will be offered on an exchange basis to holders of the utility's 64 per cent preferred stock. The other 12,630 shares will be put on the public market by the underwriters, also at $105 a share.

WTU will call for retirement on May 24 of any shares of the present 64 per cent stock at the close of the offering period on April 19. The redemption price for this stock is $133 a share and the holders making the exchange

Good Rains --

From Page One needed soon, however, to keep the new grass coming along, particularly in the Panhandle country north of Amarillo, the Trans-Pecos, southern and eastern plateau, most central and some east Texas counties where only very light showers were received. Heavy supplemental feeding must continue until new grass develops. Over the eastern third of the state these showers should revive some grass and clover which had started to mature unusually early. Sheep were moved in heavy volume out of the plateau with a considerable number being marketed which had been marked for re-placements earlier.

Vets Who Move Asked To Notify VA Of Address

Men, 18 to 40 years of age, move more than any other age group in the population. Since almost 70% of the over 20 million male living veterans are under 40, a large group of veterans will be on the move again this year.

For that reason, Mr. Scott B. Harrington, Manager of the VA Regional Office at Dallas, urged veterans who receive benefit checks, have claims pending, or hold GI insurance to keep the VA posted on their new addresses as soon as possible.

"Under the law, checks for benefits may not be forwarded by the Post Office," said Mr. Harrington. "They must be delivered directly to the addressee."

In order to keep receiving benefit checks due them veterans must inform VA of any change of address as soon as it is made. Any VA office can furnish a form for this purpose.

For reporting change of address for insurance purposes, VA provides a convenient form on the flap of the premium notice envelope.
