

The Gay Philosopher

By J. W. S.

"THOSE WHO Have Courage" is the title of a clipping that somebody sent us in the mail. And the clipping follows:

"When the Northern Pacific railway was built west from Minneapolis, the investors went out on the first trip over the road. They were horrified. Why, it would fail because there were no people to patronize the road. They came home and sold their stock. But the railroad is still running.

"When Marshall Field built his great store in Chicago, people said the store was too big for the town. Chicago would never support such a store. It is now one of the world's wonder stores.

"When James Eads built the bridge across the Mississippi at St. Louis, there were people who said it would never 'pay.' The Eads bridge is one of the outstanding successful accomplishments in the United States.

"It has always been true that men with little ideas never catch up with the leaders, never understand that the future always seems dire, forbidding."

We appreciate receiving the clipping. It's good for all of us to be reminded, from time to time, that a community or an individual won't accomplish anything if the community or individual doesn't try.

SOMEBODY ASKED the other day if we knew what were the seven wonders of the world. We couldn't call them off hand, but we've now found out. Here are the Seven Wonders of the World:

1. Hanging Gardens of Babylon — Constructed about 600 B. C. and consisted of a garden of trees and flowers built on a series of arches about 75 feet high. They were in the form of a square and covered about four acres.

2. Temple of Diana — Built at Ephesus about 400 B. C. of marble with over a hundred great columns 60 feet high. Destroyed by fire 50 years later.

3. The Colossus of Rhodes — A huge statue, 110 feet high, of the sun god Helios, supposed to have straddled the entrance to the harbor, ships passing between its legs. Destroyed by an earthquake.

4. The Pyramids — Built of rough stone blocks before 3000 B. C. to serve as tombs in Egypt.
5. Statue of Jupiter — a colossal figure inlaid with ivory and beaten gold. Built in 430 B. C. Destroyed by fire.

6. The Pharos at Alexandria — A great lighthouse and observation tower built in 250 B. C. Destroyed by fire in the 14th century.

7. The Mausoleum at Halicarnassus — Tomb of Mausolus erected in 350 B. C. Destroyed by earthquake.

SPRING SIGNS—In order to attract attention to the warning signs in city parks in Berlin, an artist created a new type that warns folks to keep off the grass, among other things. The colorful, wood-carved figures also advised strollers to keep their dogs on a leash.

Former Student Donates Books To Library At TCU

FORT WORTH, June 2.—Samuel Guy Inman of New York, nationally known expert on Latin America, has donated a portion of his library to Texas Christian University where he was a student in 1900.

Thirty-six boxes, containing some 1500 items, arrived recently. Included are books, pamphlets, studies of special problems and other items, many in Spanish.

The collection includes a special Mexican section, one on Spanish literature and others on general Latin American relations. They are being catalogued by TCU librarian Glenn Sparks.

A native Texan, Inman attended TCU when it was located in Waco and was a close friend and roommate of Dr. Colby D. Hall, dean emeritus of the university. He took B. A. and M. A. degrees from Columbia and became associated with the Pan-American movement soon after.

In half a century, he has traveled more than 500,000 miles, "attended more Pan American Conferences, lectured at more North and South American institutions and published more books and articles on inter-American relations than anyone working in the field."

Working closely with the State Department, he was associated with Cordell Hull on three trips around South America. He was advisor to the U. S. delegation at the Buenos Aires Conference in 1926 and secretary of the committee which prepared the counter attack on Hitler's drive to influence South American culture before World War II.

He drew up an eight-point program for Latin American relations most of which was put into effect by President Franklin D. Roosevelt. He was a consultant to the State Department during the U. N. Conference in San Francisco. He was a special guest at the inauguration of President Cortines of Mexico in 1952.

In his long travels, Inman gathered a huge library of items in his chosen field. He recently gave many important documents to the Library of Congress.

When catalogued, all items in the Inman collection will be available to scholars in the TCU library, Sparks said.

RANGE SPECIALIST WILL BE ON PROGRAM AT COUNTY FIELD DAY

Fred Walker, range specialist of the Texas A&M College Extension Service, will conduct a range judging contest during the annual field day of the Eastland County Livestock Raisers Association on the Ed Harrison ranch June 18th, according to Boyd Hilley, president of the organization.

The Harrison B&B Hereford ranch is five miles east of Gorman on the Desdemona highway, Hilley said.

Besides Walker others from the A&M College Extension Service scheduled to be on the program include John G. McHaney, agricultural economist, and James A. Gray, animal husbandman. Two Fort Worth men, Walter Rice, field representative of the stockyards company, and E. R. Eudaly, animal nutritionist of Universal

DRINKING BY JUVENILES SEEN AS AGENCY'S 'NO. 1 PROBLEM'

AUSTIN, June 2.—Consumption of alcoholic beverages by juveniles was described today by Coke R. Stevenson, Jr., Texas Liquor Control Board administrator, as "our No. 1 problem."

"We are doing all we can, with the cooperation of other law enforcement agencies and the industry to stop sales to minors," Stevenson said, "but enforcement is not the complete answer to the problem.

"Some parents do not always know where their children are or what they are doing," the administrator said, adding:

"It is easy for a boy or girl, left alone for an evening, to fall into bad companionship. You and I know what the result can be — and sometimes is.

"We must use education along with enforcement if we expect to achieve the results we seek. This education is the business of the home, the church, and the school.

"A boy or girl can ruin his whole life by one drunken act, or he can end that life prematurely in a thousand different ways if he behaves hazardingly while under the influence of alcohol.

"Herein lies a responsibility that is ours, as adults. If we fail to discharge that responsibility, then we, as parents, are guilty when tragedy occurs."

One particular difficulty arises, Stevenson said, from the fact that armed forces personnel 18 years old may purchase alcoholic beverages on military posts.

When off the military establishments, the administrator said, under-age service people sometimes use fictitious credentials and other unlawful devices to attempt to buy alcoholic beverages.

Stevenson's remarks were made along with issuance of the Liquor Board's monthly review for April.

The review showed April revenues collected by the Board at $1,367,347.79.

During the month, Liquor Board agents filed 376 cases for violations of the state liquor laws. Liquor cases tried resulted in 321 convictions and 28 jail terms, 59 dismissals and 7 acquittals, and $53,287.95 collected in fines and costs.

The board's auditors checked over 58 accounts of 8 types, involving $1,742,443.22 in tax-paid and tax-due revenues.

Five illicit stills were seized, one each in the counties of Red River, Bowie, Nacogdoches, Smith and Tarrant.

Insurance Firms Report Big Drop Deaths From TB

During the half century since the organized anti-tuberculosis campaign in the United States was launched, the death rate from this disease has dropped sharply, from 183.9 per 100,000 of population in 1900-1903 to 12.6 in 1953, and the mortality will probably fall to about 10 per 100,000 in 1954, statisticians of a life insurance company report.

The campaign against tuberculosis has been particularly successful among urban wage-earning families. Among the industrial policy-holders of the company, the death rate from the disease has fallen even more rapidly than in the general population. This reduction has been fairly continuous since 1911, with the rate of decline accelerating in recent years. In the period between 1946 and 1953 alone, the tuberculosis death rate among the industrial policyholders was reduced by nearly three fourths.

Both the white and nonwhite policyholders have benefited greatly from the improvement in tuberculosis mortality. The record of improvement is best for white females, and in general, much greater at the younger than at the older ages. As a result, the peak of mortality has shifted from early adult life to the later ages.

Despite the splendid record of achievement in reducing the death toll, the disease still remains an important public health problem in the country because the decline in the number of existing cases has not kept pace with the decline in mortality. With improvements in detection and treatment of tuberculosis, many more new cases are being found and the number surviving from onset of the disease has increased. These trends have been accelerated by recent advances in chemotherapy and surgery.

Because of the chronic nature of the disease and its tendency to recur, some of these patients continue to be a focus of infection.

"In the circumstances, there can be no letup in the campaign against the disease," the statisticians declare. "With a rising proportion of cases being treated with drugs outside hospitals and sanatoriums, adequate provision for medical supervision of those cases treated at home has become increasingly important. Such a program must be on a long range basis. Both physicians and public should be kept aware of the continued need for giving ample support to anti-tuberculosis efforts."

Paving Plans To Be Discussed At Meeting Tonight

Anybody who wishes to ask questions or discuss the city paving program will be welcome at a special meeting of the City Commission at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday (tonight) at the City Hall, Mayor G. C. Rosenthal reported.

The public meeting will be held to give anyone interested an opportunity to appear before the commission.

The meeting was ordered in connection with plans of the city to run special assessments against non-homestead property where necessary to complete streets or blocks of paving.

Street paving is underway here on a cooperative basis with the property owners paying the cost.

Phosphorite Deposits Are Believed Located

AUSTIN, June 2.—Commercial deposits of phosphorite — an important fertilizer source — may exist in areas near Marble Falls and Johnson City, Dr. Virgil E. Barnes of the University of Texas reports.

Dr. Barnes urges a Geiger Counter check of the areas. A new bulletin by the University Bureau of Economic Geology giving scientific data on possible deposits may be obtained on request.

Area Ranchers To Exhibit Animals

Ribbons for the winners at the one-day creep fed registered beef calf show to be held at the show grounds on the Albany Highway in Cisco on Friday, June 25, will be awarded through the courtesy of the Cisco Chamber of Commerce, according to members of the Cisco Livestock Show Association sponsors of the affair.

The show will be unusual in that the calves to be shown will be exhibited direct from the pasture and will not be broken to lead or to a halter, it was explained, making as practical as possible.

All ranchers who expect to show stock in the creep fed registered beef calf show on June 25 have been asked to meet at the Cisco Livestock Show barn on the Moran Highway at 8 a. m. Wednesday, June 9, to help cleanup the property and make preparations for the event.

Ed Huestis of Cisco is in charge of the show building and grounds and he has asked for the cooperation of the ranchers in making the preparations.

There will be no sale or auction of the one-day show but breeders who exhibit may sell animals by private treaty at any time during the one-day affair.

Breeders not only from Eastland but also from adjoining counties are eligible to show their calves. The animals to be entered for competition must have been dropped after September 23, 1953, and must be of the same sex. However, it was explained that calves of opposite sex or even individual animals may be exhibited simply for show but not in competition. Breeders are expected to furnish panels for penning the calves. The panels are to be eight feet by ten feet and four foot high made out of six inch rough boards.

There are no entry fees and animals are not required to be entered prior to the show date. Show officials would like to have the panels put up the day before however.

Data were supplied by 537 cities and towns in addition to the 15 which neither levied taxes nor had any indebtedness last year.

THE LEGISLATIVE PROGRAM

Big news comes hot and heavy these days. So, inevitably, many important developments that would make the headlines in quieter eras are obscured. This isn't the fault of the newspaper and news magazine editors and the radio and TV reporters. There simply isn't enough space and time to go around adequately.

To take one example, it's probable that relatively few people know how well, or how badly, the President's "Umbrella" legislative program has been faring. It has been overshadowed to the point of disappearance by such attention-demanding events as the Indo-China tragedy, the bitter McCarthy-Army fight, the imbroglio at Geneva, and the Supreme Court's historic decision in the school segregation case.

Yet that program — negatively or positively, directly or indirectly — will affect every farm, family and business in the country.

To begin with, there is no chance and never was that Congress will approve all of the program. For one thing, it is too extensive to be debated and digested in one year, and for another it envisions great new departures in policy which inevitably stir up strong opposition. Two prime examples of this can be cited. One is the proposal for Taft-Hartley changes, including the plan for having the rank and file of union membership vote on proposed strikes. This has been buried in the Congressional deep freeze. The other is Secretary Benson's effort to do something definitive about farm policy and surpluses, of which the key reform would be to replace the present rigidity formula with a subsidy based on a sliding scale. Some farm leaders and organizations have agreed with Mr. Benson that an overhaul of the law certainly is in order. But it is very doubtful if anything really effective will be done in this election year.

By and large, the new tax bill is a real Administration victory. There will be many changes and compromises, as everyone expected. But some tax relief has been given to individuals and to enterprise, and more is promised. One important qualification, which isn't the Administration's fault or anyone else's, must be added, however. The Asia situation could lead to upping military and allied appropriations to a far higher level, and that would directly influence tax rates and policy.

Approval of the St. Lawrence Seaway, though many question its wisdom, was a demonstration of White strength. And there is a good chance that the President's foreign trade program has a good chance of enactment, though there probably will be many modifications which various lawmakers and industrial leaders think necessary in the interest of American enterprise and labor.

A notable feature of all this has been the President's refusal, with very few exceptions, to attach the "must" label to his proposals. He clearly believes that it is his duty and prerogative to suggest and to lead, but not to flatly demand. And that in itself will be a campaign issue next November, with the Republicans saying it is the proper attitude under our Constitutional system and the Democrats saying it is a sign of weakness.

THEIR OWN LIVES TO LIVE

IN DIFFERENT WAYS—A pooch in Berlin, Germany, upper left, got shot at by a Communist policeman who may have thought the dog was a "spy." About the same time, a tiny prairie dog sniffed some Texas air for man-scent, right, then went about the task of consuming a tasty morsel in peace. A new addition to the zoo in Frankfurt, Germany, is an Okapi, lower left, closely related to the giraffe, brought from the Belgian Congo. This animal was unknown before 1900. If you've ever wondered how pelicans kiss, take a look at the two in a London zoo, right. A third bill shows so there must have been three in the act.

Use Special Techniques To Sow Seeds in Summer

Sowing seed for a fall harvest in the vegetable garden should not be neglected. All the early crops can be grown for fall use, many with much improved quality, owing to cooler weather.

In some ways the fall growing season is more favorable than spring. It is more difficult to start the seed in the hot, dry weather of midsummer, but as the season progresses with cooler nights and more moisture, the plants develop better than when temperatures are rising as they mature.

Few vegetables go to seed in the fall. Cauliflower, Chinese cabbage, spinach and peas, which are matured in the spring only by experts who take long chances to give these crops an early start, are easier to grow in the fall. Head lettuce will make heads instead of going to seed. All crops have a much longer season of harvest than in the spring, thanks to cooler weather and more moisture.

Seeds cannot be started in hot, dry weather by the simple methods which are effective in the spring. Heat alone would speed germination in most cases, but it dries out the soil in which the seeds lie, and may form a crust over them so that even if they sprout, they cannot make their way to the surface.

Wherever there is clay in the soil this crusting is probable; but it can be overcome, and moisture sufficient for the needs of seeds and seedling plants can be supplied.

The first step is to prepare a special soil with which to cover the seeds. This should contain no clay, but sand and organic matter, such as peat moss, or compost. The drill in which seeds are sown should be much deeper than in the spring, to bring the seeds closer to the deep soil moisture.

PROPERTY RIGHTS OF JUNE BRIDES EXPLAINED

June is traditionally the month for weddings, and many couples will be taking marriage vows within the next few weeks. But at act of marrying another person does not give you the authorization to take control of his property.

Generally speaking, each spouse has the right to control and dispose of his or her own separate property. The separate property of a husband or wife includes property owned by either before marriage, and that which is acquired by gift or inheritance. Any other property acquired after marriage is presumed by law to be community property until the contrary is cleared proved.

Aside from the ordinary community estate, there is a class of property known as the wife's "special community," which includes all the income from her separate real property, and probably the interest on bonds or notes, and dividends on stocks owned in her separate right. While the husband may have similar assets, the law accords them no particular distinction from ordinary community property.

Although the history of the matter is somewhat confusing, it appears that under present day law the husband has control of ordinary community property; but control of the wife's special community property is reserved to her.

Certain restrictions are imposed upon both husband and wife in exercising such control. For instance, the husband cannot legally dispose of community property in such a way as to defraud the wife, nor can he sell the homestead without her signature and acknowledgment. And the wife's sale or mortgage of her separate real estate, stocks or bonds is not valid unless her husband joins with her in the transaction — he must sign and execute the necessary legal papers along with her.

There are laws exempting the wife's separate and special community property from liability for debts incurred by the husband. Such liability is restricted to his separate property and the ordinary community property.

On the other hand, debts incurred by the wife in obtaining necessities for herself or the children bind all property belonging to either party, including the husband's separate and special community property are liable.

All of these distinctions emphasize the advisability of keeping proper records. By doing so the various classes of community and separate property owned by a married couple will always be easily distinguishable. Each cate-

To Promote Industry
June is dairy month. Dairymen of Texas will contribute two cents per hundred weight of the milk and one-half a cent per pound butterfat in cream they sell this month to the state ADA headquarters in Austin.

Sam Von Rosenberg, state manager of the American Dairy Association of Texas says that it is a voluntary plan proposed to the 30,000 milk producers in the state, to provide $150,000 annually to promote an increase in the sale of milk, butter, ice cream, cheese and other dairy products through advertising.

More Wild Life
Wild animals seem to take a liking to the rugged area west of Austin. There has been a panther scare for several months. Latest report is the appearance of a 33-inch long alligator — which walked out of Shoal Creek almost in the heart of this capitol city.

Gas Appliances Are Short
Cuts For Homemaking Chores

"Young-people-in-a-hurry" describes our Young Moderns and at the same time explains the many short cuts they take in homemaking. But it's precisely because they're impatient and rush through their chores that today's young homemakers are responsible for new developments in practically every industry which caters to the American home.

They're the first to try out new frozen, packaged or canned "ready-mades," which cut down the time spent in meal preparation. This naturally acts as a spur to food processors to develop additional "quickie" items for their convenience.

They lean heavily toward the "short order" school of cooking, which features half-hour broiler meals or "self-cooking" oven meals that do not require watching or fussing. This is reflected in the many improvements in broiler design and automatic controls found in MODERN GAS RANGES.

They buy clothes for the family which can be tossed into a washing machine and require little or no ironing after they come out of the GAS CLOTHES DRYER.

Their housecleaning standards and methods are radically different from those of the past generation. They prefer a "lick-and-a-promise" daily, to a thorough room-by-room housecleaning, weekly. This keeps their homes looking presentable at all times. However, when it's important to them to have everything spotless, they attack the job with the fury of an army squad preparing for inspection of quarters. And in the process they make use of plenty of hot water from the AUTOMATIC GAS WATER HEATER.

Why not see you Gas Appliance dealer,
He will show you how to save time and money.
