By J. W. S.

BILOXI, Miss. — This is the land of the southern drawl, the federate flag and relics of the nation's early history. If you don't go too far inland, it is a beautiful country and it's reasonably comfortable.

A boat trip some 10 miles out to the famous old Ship Island is a highlight for those who like to live the nation's early days. Ship Island is one of the most interesting of all the thousands of islands that extend from the Florida to South Texas. It is called Ship Island because of sailing ships of years gone by found shelter behind its protective reefs. It has been closely tied with the history of our country since the first landing of French under Pierre le Moyne d'Iberville in 1699, through the war of 1812, the Civil War and the World Wars.

Old Fort Massachusetts is an interesting feature of the island. It was built in the 1830's. Jefferson Davis, then secretary of the Confederacy, was in Washington and later president of the Confederacy, approved the plans for the fort. Seven days after the Mississippi fell to the Union, the fort was captured and the south and north Fort Twigg. Later, it was recaptured and got its present name. It became a Union prison and at one time more than 30 Confederate prisoners were confined within its walls.

This island was the haven and rendezvous of the British fleet in the army as the Red Coats prepared their ill-fated attack on New Orleans in 1815. It was in these waters about Ship Island that the British went forth to meet General Jackson and the sites of Jean Lafitte on that day at Chalmette — and it is from these waters that the British invaders sailed home. The last attempt at violation of the continental United States by a foreign foe.

THIS MISSISSIPPI gulf country is advertised in these parts as "the Riviera of America." Most of its business activity seems to be dedicated to the tourist. The winter is the rush season here. This time of year, however, isn't too bad because everything is air conditioned and a gulf breeze blows.

It seems to us that expenses are little less in this country than in the north in New Mexico and Colorado. Summer prices here probably compare favorably with winter prices in the mountainous sections.

This is a dandy place to bring your school children. They recognize the historical things and appreciate seeing them. A couple of miles south of the place we're staying is the Beauvoir — the beautiful home of Jefferson Davis, which is maintained as a shrine and home for Confederate veterans. On the grounds is the famous cemetery where 1,000 Jefferson Davis' men were buried.

ALSO DOWN THE highway a few miles is the Seashore Methodist Assembly Camp Grounds. Established in 1871, it was the center of social life of Biloxi from the 1870's to the 1890's. They have housing for the hundreds of young people with a fishing pier into the gulf. It's kind of like Cisco's Presbyterian Camp, only about 25 times as big.

Tourists like to see the Murphy Magnolia, believed to be the oldest Magnolia Tree in Mississippi. Its trunk measures 13 feet in circumference and it is about 65 feet high. The big oaks hereabouts also draw a lot of attention, and so do the huge pecan trees.

Another interesting sight is the old Biloxi Lighthouse. Built in 1848, legend says it was painted black after Lincoln's assassination. It stands near the site of old Biloxi, the third and last Biloxi capital of the French Province of Louisiana. The old lighthouse keeper's house now the offices of the Biloxi Chamber of Commerce.

WE THOUGHT of visiting the area of the shrimp and oyster factories, as an area of the port is called, but the smell made it prohibitive. Boy, it was rank.

Fishing is something a lot of people do here. Our children enjoyed a couple of fishing trips out on a pier. Using nets, they caught crabs. And a big salt-water trout grabbed our boy's hook. It was a big deal, and it took a good argument to convince him that he couldn't keep it and take it home.

In the foreground is another C-124 of the U. S. Air Force 374th Troop Carrier Wing, which played a vital role in day and night airlift of personnel, supplies and mail during the war in Korea.

Robert Lee Beeks Killed As Car Plunges In Creek

A 34 year old Cisco dirt moving contractor was instantly killed at 8:15 p. m. Monday in an automobile accident some seven miles northeast of Cisco on the Breckenridge highway.

Dead was Robert Lee Beeks, 506 West Second Street, who was alone in his 1951 Ford. According to witnesses and State Highway Patrol members who investigated the accident, Beeks was headed toward Cisco when his car left the road and plunged into a creek. The car grazed the post at the east approach to the bridge, and headed into the creek which was some 18 feet wide at that spot. The momentum of the car carried it completely across the creek, and plunged head first into the west bank. The car was demolished. Beeks was dead upon arrival of a Thomas Funeral Home ambulance.

He had been a resident of Cisco for the past four years, coming here from Breckenridge. He was born October 9, 1919, in Kansas. On November 10, 1947, he was married to Miss Patsy Ruth Ralston in Iowa Park.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. Wednesday at the Wesley Methodist Church with the Rev. Lawrence Bryan officiating. Burial will be in Oakwood Cemetery under the direction of Thomas Funeral Home. Graveside rites will be in charge of the Breckenridge Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 356, of which he was a member. The Cisco VFW will assist.

Survivors are his wife of Cisco; two sons, Dallas Lee Beeks and Robert Douglas Beeks, both at home; a brother, Orville Beeks of Perrygrove, Arkansas; and three sisters, Mrs. J. V. Kinsey of Austin, Mrs. Lucille Bonnett of Oklahoma City and Mrs. J. B. Koger of Bowie.

TENTH ANNIVERSARY OF THE GI BILL

Ten years ago, in the year 1934, on the 22nd day of June, Public Law 346 — the Servicemen's Readjustment Act — now known universally as the GI Bill, became the law of the land.

The keynote of this new concept was opportunity. A global war had suddenly stripped millions of young Americans of their normal opportunities for advancement.

The new concept said this: As far as possible, those lost opportunities must be restored, for the sake of the men; for the sake of their families and their communities; for the sake of our nation itself.

How different was the old system. If you hadn't very much schooling, or had been called into uniform before you'd had a chance to build up a little job experience — well some World War I veterans, lacking a helping hand when they needed it most were never able to regain lost opportunities for advancement.

But now America was face to face with a tremendously expanded problem. World War II had put into uniform almost a whole generation of our carefully selected young men.

Putting them back into civilian life was a tremendous problem. The American people solved that problem in magnificent fashion.

While the war still raged, while the invasion of Normandy trembled in the balance, the American people, through their representatives, created the GI Bill.

We've all heard of the Three R's — Readin', 'Ritin' and 'Rithmetic.' Well, the G. I. Bill introduced an equally important set of Three R's:

Readjustment — Regenerate — Repair.

Readjust. That was the quick transition from uniform back to civilian clothes, to face a whole carload of challenging circumstances.

Regenerate. That covered the recapture of lost opportunities, through schooling, through training on jobs and on farms. It covered the power a man gains by owning his own home.

Repair. What have veterans, as civilians done for their country to balance what their country has done for them? I'm going to tell you more about that in a moment or two.

But let's remember, the first thing in any program that's aimed at helping a human being is to help him get his feet solidly on the ground, so he can make a good start.

And that's exactly what Readjust did.

Readjustment allowances — one of the benefits of the G. I. Bill — were weekly payments to veterans while they looked for work.

They tided a man over those first fateful weeks when he was studying want ads, pounding the streets, going in and out of shops and offices. Trying to figure how he could get started, where he could get started, what he could find to do, how well he could match up with the opportunity, once he came face-to-face with it.

It was to meet this crisis that readjustment payments were made part of the G. I. Bill.

Nearly nine million World War II veterans drew these payments. The whole program amounted to more than three-and-a-half billion dollars.

Was it a waste? Or was it a wise investment?

We've got a perspective now of ten years. Out of these nine million veterans, only one — just one — out of every ten — used up all of his payments.

The average veteran was on and off the readjustment rolls in six weeks.

The program came to an end in 1949, after amply fulfilling the use for which it had been created.

WORLD PEACE APPROPRIATIONS

BLESSED ARE THE PEACEMAKERS — MATT 5:9

Now, for the second of our all-important Three R's.

Regeneration. A program well-suited to a land like America, where a trained man is more valuable to himself and his country, and better rewarded, than one who is untrained.

Nearly eight million veterans have taken some G. I. Bill training. That's one out of every two.

More than two million of them went to college. More than three and a half million went to trade and vocational schools. A million and a half took training on the job. Another 700 thousand took farm training.

The Census Bureau tells us that by 1952, veterans had completed an average of more than 12 years of schooling. For non-veterans, it was less than nine years.

Why such a difference? The opinion of the Census Bureau can be summed up in one sentence. Veterans had the advantage of educational help under the provisions of the G. I. Bill. There were other factors, of course, but that's the nub of the whole thing. G. I. training opportunity made the difference.

And let no one forget this. Many veterans would not have been able to go to college, if they had to depend on their personal resources. By widening school opportunities for veterans, the G. I. Bill widened knowledge throughout the whole of America.

Of course, not all veterans were college material. The G. I. Bill was flexible enough to meet their needs also. Job-training and trade school training produced skilled workers in every occupation and trade imaginable. Farm-training added to the ranks of those indispensable Americans, our farmers.

But — We're still on that miraculous second of our Three R's. Our veterans regenerated themselves with the solid confidence a man achieves when he owns his own home.

Some three-and-a-half-million G. I. Loans have been guaranteed or insured by the Veterans Administration up to the present time. More than 90 percent of them were for home loans.

That brings us to the last of our Three R's of the G. I. Bill, Repair.

Veterans who went to colleges and universities because of the aid afforded them by the G. I. Bill have fully repaid our nation with the skills and talents they developed. They are our doctors and lawyers, our chemists and engineers and teachers, our public servants, our businessmen. They are carpenters and plumbers, tinsmiths and machinists, every trade and occupation you can think of — their energy and ability pouring into the life blood of America.

Farm-training has brought thousands of fine young Americans to the service of the land they love.

Every veteran-owned home is a symbol of repayment. It stands for a family with roots, for added strength to the community, for added power to our nation.

Has the G. I. Bill helped veterans to earn more money than they would have, had they not received G. I. training?

The answer is an emphatic... Yes. The Census Bureau says that back in 1947, the middle income of veterans between the ages of 25 and 35 was around 24 hundred dollars. For non-veterans in the same bracket, it was higher, nearly 36 hundred.

Five years later — that's 1952 — the figure for the veterans had shot up by an amazing 40 percent, to more than 33 hundred dollars. But the non-veterans income had increased only 10 percent, to less than three-thousand.

The reason? Well, according to the Census Bureau, it may reflect better work experience, higher educational level — and of course back we go to those G. I. Bill training opportunities, both at school and on-the-job.

And keep this next fact in mind: The nearly eight million veterans who have had GI training opportunities will be paying to Uncle Sam more than an extra billion dollars in Federal income tax, as a result of their better earning power, brought about by better training.

We have been told veterans will pay off the entire cost of the GI Bill training program within the next 14 years — if not sooner.

That's a pretty conclusive climax to our little study of the Three R's of the G. I. Bill.

Readjust — Regenerate — Repair.

They have repaid, these millions of American veterans, with their talents and abilities.

They have repaid with superior qualities of citizenship.

They have repaid in cold cash, as taxpayers.

As civilians, they have more than matched their victorious achievements as soldiers.

They have brought to this Tenth Anniversary of the G. I. Bill unmistakable proofs of the eternal rightness of our American decision to restore to our fighting men opportunities lost to them by reasons of their service in the armed forces.

Veterans have accepted much. They have returned much.

The Three R's of the G. I. Bill have strengthened their lives.

The Three R's have made America stronger — safer — better.

Gone Are the Good Old Days —

... when grandfather boasted that he bought bananas at a dime a dozen and his farm from the State with only one deed in the chain of title. Today the chain may contain hundreds of transactions and as it lengthens defects multiply and enlarge. The abstract is the only means yet devised which may reveal these defects and place them in position for correction. That's why more and more people are demanding an abstract when they buy real estate.

this ONE antenna

improves today's reception... and will receive tomorrow's new VHF channels

CHANNEL MASTER'S f.u.t.u.r.a.m.i.c

The antenna designed for today and tomorrow

- Extra Performance
- Extra Economy
- Extra Versatility
- Extra Simplicity — single installation, no antenna switching.

Now! Improve your present reception and be ready to receive the new VHF channels of the future.

No longer must you hesitate because present stations will be changing channels, or because new stations are coming on the air. The Futuramic gives you complete coverage of TODAY'S channels — and TOMORROW'S too. And if you live in an area where two or more channels can be received, enjoy them all perfectly — with the Futuramic.

There's a Futuramic model "made to order" for this area. See your dealer or installation man.

OUTSTANDING PERFORMANCE! OUTSTANDING VALUE!

The Futuramic gives you the

- Extraordinary sensitivity of a Yagi
- Razor-sharp directivity of a Yagi

... NOT on just one channel, but clear across the band!

The Futuramic improves reception in each of these areas:

1. Areas in which present stations are changing channels. The Futuramic will out-perform the antenna you are now using on the present channel. And when the change is made, this superior reception will continue on the new channel without interruption. Don't be caught without reception. All antennas cannot be changed overnight. Be prepared by installing the Futuramic NOW.
2. Areas in which new VHF stations are being added. The thousands of single channel antennas now in use will be unable to receive these NEW channels. Have the Channel Master Futuramic installed today to improve your present picture, and to provide reception on the future channels at no additional expense.
3. Areas served at present by 2 or more VHF stations. Don't struggle along with poor pictures just for the sake of getting two stations. The Futuramic provides brilliant, multi-channel reception while avoiding the expense of separate antennas for each channel. Change now to a Futuramic, the most effective multi-channel antenna yet developed by modern science.
