Trinity River Ripples.

Reynard Tex., July 20.—A local shower fell yesterday. The moisture barely met, and the nature of the weather for the next few days will determine whether or not it will be of much benefit.

A great deal of cotton has about spent its force. There will be some more plowing done if we can get a good rain.

T. S. Kent has contracted to put up seventy-five cords of wood, which will give employment for awhile to those who can use an axe and saw.

Mrs. T. S. Kent anticipates going to the log rolling at Crockett.

We have been informed that the boat captain with a crew of thirty men will be at the shoals in a few days to begin work on the lock.

Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Kent visited the Meriwether family yesterday.

P. L. Fulgum will begin work in a few days on the phone line.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Moore and children of Crockett visited the family of J. L. Chiles a few days last week. Miss Oryx remained until Saturday.

Miss Myrtle Gossette of Crockett spent last week with Miss Leoti Kent.

Mrs. J. L. Chiles and Master Lealand are on a visit to friends and relatives at Crockett.

Jack, Douglas and Homer Beazley, Oran and Summer Rials, Mrs. C. H. Beazley and children, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. West, Pledger Chiles and sister all took in the picnic at Grapeland Saturday.

Miss Mary Kate Chiles entertained the young people last Wednesday night in honor of Miss Moore.

Hays Spring Items.

July 20.—There has been some sickness in our community the past week. Woodie Eaves had the fever a few days and little Wilburn Warner was right sick with fever, but we are glad to note they are up again.

Mrs. Texie Eaves of Groveton is now in our community visiting her brother H. Frazer.

Mrs. R. L. Brooks of Palestine and Mrs. Ethredge Payne of Crockett are visiting their parents Mr. and Mrs. B. R. Eaves today.

Quite a number of our people attended the candidate speaking at Grapeland Saturday. Your correspondent was there and listened with great interest to the speeches and announcements of the different candidates. The speaking opened with quite a wrangle between S. H. Lively and J. A. Morris. As to our part we do not appreciate such wrangles and think such things should be left off, but among other speeches we consider the prohibition speech delivered by Judge Aldrich of Crockett one of the most interesting and important speeches made by any one and if all the candidates are defeated we hope the prohibition measure will be carried. What a good and grand old country we would have if all the dirt, filth and unlawful deeds that has its origin from the use of strong drink, could be wiped from the face of this grand country.

JULIUS.

Latexo Happenings.

Latexo Tex., July 20.—The farmers are about through laying by their cotton, which is looking well. The long drouth has at last given away. A most delightful rain fell here Sunday evening, and was much appreciated by all.

Mr. W. Patton is suffering with fever but we trust he will soon recover.

We had our picnic and everybody enjoyed themselves to the fullest extent. There was plenty of dinner for all.

Glen Sullivan of Percilla has been spending a few days here.

Our singing school will start August 10th. We think it will be a good school, as there are fifty enrolled.

Misses Lovie Spence and Maud McCarty of Grapeland were pleasant guests of Miss Leila Poe Wednesday night.

Mr. Wm. Dickson has purchased the Baker gin.

Misses Ethyl and Hattie Sims are visiting relatives at Hays Springs this week.

Jim Sims has returned from Yellow Creek and reports a good time.

Hurrah for Tom Campbell, J. A. Strozzi and Toose Lively, the three most noted men in Texas.

Red Kid.

Best of All.

R. J. Mayher, No. 406 South Clark St., Chicago, writes as follows:

"I have kept and used your Hunt's Lightning Oil for the last ten years in my family. It is the only kind to have and the best of all."

It cures cuts, burns, bruises, sprains, aches, pains, stings and bites. It kills chiggers, too.

Is Shot and Killed.

Groveton, Texas, July 18.—This evening at 6 o'clock L. F. Smith shot and instantly killed Mitt Dorman, a 32 caliber automatic pistol being used. Several bullets took effect. The cause of the trouble has not been learned. Smith surrendered immediately to the officers. The men worked at the mill.

The Candidate Picnic.

The basket picnic and barbecue Saturday for the candidates was a great success in every particular. Speaking began in the morning by the precinct candidates, who were followed in the afternoon by the county and district candidates. The main speakers were Judge B. H. Gardner and Hon. W. R. Bishop, aspirants for District Judge. About 2000 people were in attendance.

Woe unto the man that putteth the bottle to his brothers' lips. Can we advocate liquor by voting against submission?

BONDS IN RAPE CASES

IN ANDERSON COUNTY, FIXED BY JOHN J. WORD, SPECIAL JUDGE.

Judge Gardner Absent.

On application for Writ of Habeas Corpus by Conner, Allen and Johnson, charged with rape, alleged to have been committed in Palestine, about two weeks ago I, John J. Word, as Special Judge at the request and instance of the Hon. T. J. Harris, District Attorney, and the Hon. P. N. Stringer, Acting County Attorney, reduced the bonds of the defendants Allen and Conner at $2000 each, and of Johnson to $1000.

Judge B. H. Gardner being absent out of the county when the cases came up, I was elected by the bar, as Special Judge to pass on application for reduction of bail in these cases, as well as other matters. When the cases came up for hearing, I, upon the suggestion of the District Attorney and the Acting County Attorney, fixed the bonds in the above sums.

Judge Gardner was not present when the bonds were reduced, but was in Houston County, and is in no way accountable therefor. However, the suggestion as to the amount of the bonds having been made and agreed to by the State's Attorneys, there is no just reason for criticism of anyone in connection therewith, and especially Judge Gardner, who knew nothing about the application having been made.

This statement is made in justice to all concerned.

(Signed) John J. Word,
Special District Judge.

Gov. Johnson Sanguine.

Tulsa, Ok., July 19.—"I am confident Bryan will be elected this fall," said Gov. John A. Johnson of Minnesota yesterday. "I will work as hard as any one to make his election certain. I was urged to make the race against him for the presidential nomination rather against my will. My telegram of congratulations was the first to reach him. Our national committeemen in Minnesota will spend more money and work harder for Bryan's election than any other committeemen in the country, and we are going to try and swing Minnesota into the Bryan column."

Gov. Johnson lectured at the Tulsa Chautauqua tonight. While here he was the guest of the Democratic National Committeeman W. T. Brady. He was tendered an informal reception at the Brady Hotel, given by many prominent Democrats, after the lecture.

A Revelation.

It is a revelation to people, the severe cases of lung trouble that have been cured by Foley's Honey and Tar. It not only stops the cough but heals and strengthens the lungs. L. M. Ruggles, Reasnor, Iowa, writes: "The doctors said I had consumption, and I got no better until I took Foley's Honey and Tar. It stopped the hemorrhages and pain in my lungs and they are now as sound as a bullet."

Judge B. H. Gardner's Record on the Bench.

In view of the fact that Mr. W. R. Bishop, in his canvass for the nomination for the office of District Judge of the Third Judicial District, has seen fit to criticize Judge Gardner's official record, and in doing so has attempted a comparison of Judge Gardner's record with that of Judges Williams and Watkins, former District Judges of this district, and has tried to make such comparison appear unfavorable to Judge Gardner, we, a committee of the bar of Palestine, desire to submit to the voters a comparison of Judge Gardner's record with that of the Hon. F. A. Williams and Hon. A. B. Watkins taken from the official reports of the higher courts of this state, as shown by the books in which the decisions of the Court of Appeals and the Supreme Court are officially reported.

During Judge Watkins' term of office (which was about two years) there were appealed from his court 7 criminal cases; out of this number 4 were reversed and sent back for new trials, and 3 were affirmed. Mr. Bishop having stated, we understand, in his speeches in Houston county, that during Judge Watkins' term of office, he was reversed in only two criminal cases, and as the reports show him to be mistaken in this, we deem it proper to name the four cases in which Judge Watkins was reversed, and cite the books and pages where the opinion of the higher court reversing and remanding same can be found, and the same are as follows:

King vs State, 28 S. W. Rep., page 947.

Warren vs State, 38 Cr. Rep., page 152.

Out of 21 civil cases tried before Judge Watkins 10 were affirmed and 11 were sent back for new trial.

Of 11 criminal cases appealed from the district court during Judge Williams' term of 8 years, 6 were affirmed and 5 were reversed and sent back for new trial. Of the 47 civil cases appealed from the district court while Judge Williams was on the bench, 19 were reversed and sent back for new trial, and 28 were affirmed.

The records made by both Judge Watkins and Judge Williams are a credit to them, and the fact that they were reversed in a number of cases is no reflection whatever upon their well recognized ability as judges of law, and especially is this true as to reversals in criminal cases.

Reference to the records of Judges Watkins and Williams is made only for the purpose of demonstrating that Judge Gardner's record, as compared with these two distinguished and well qualified judges, entitles him to the endorsement by the democracy of this district by re-electing him to a second term.

Judge Gardner's record, as shown by the reports of the court of appeals, including the Supreme Court, shows that during his term of office, there has been appealed from his court in the district 37 civil cases, all of which have been affirmed except seven. Of the 26 criminal cases cases appealed to the court of Criminal Appeals, 13 have been affirmed and 13 reversed. Further, Judge Gardner has never been reversed in any case, neither civil nor criminal, appealed from Anderson County. Therefore the casual observer must conclude that Mr. Bishop's criticism of Judge Gardner's record, as a trial judge is without just foundation and does not stand the test when the records are reviewed.

It is, too, a significant fact that the criminal dockets in all three of the counties of the district have been cleaned up, and the old cases that have been long standing on the docket, have been disposed of, and there is now nothing in the way in this district of a strict adherence to the law of this State, requiring a speedy trial in all criminal cases.

We respectfully submit Judge Gardner's claims for a second term upon his individual merit, and his impartial conduct as a judge while on the bench, and the record made by him while sitting as judge, and feel sure that the democracy of the third Judicial District will accord him the well deserved honor of a re-election.

Very respectfully,

Thos. B. Greenwood.

A Good Ball Game.

The best game of ball ever pulled off on the local diamond was played Saturday afternoon between the second team and Crockett Sluggers. From the time the umpire called play ball to the last ball that was pitched the game was full of thrilling plays by each team, but when the smoke cleared away the scoreboard told a tale that made every fan in Grapeland yell for joy—for it stood 4 to 3 for the locals. The feature of the game was the infield work of the locals, not an error was marked against them; in fact there were only two errors throughout the game, with about the same number for Crockett.

Sagebrush Philosophy.

Love life, that you may live. There is nothing ne win it all, anything more than there is anything new in nature. And nature is optimism, plus voicing—always profligate avowal of vigorous, bountiful and dominant life. We find the very essence of the philosophy of sunshine in creation—the making of a world out of infinite waste—eternal death, on which dawned a first glad day. What matters if it was the evolution of aeons or the work of a week—suffice it to know that there was always ever-increasing, lavish vitality. And whether leafy dell, sunlit landscape or dancing sand whirls of the desert, there is no hint of death, of failure or of fear. Always beauty—always fulfillment of today and the promise of tomorrow—always laughing, loving life.

That the soul is divinity itself and minded the Master—that God reigns where reason rules and that life comprises far more than the mere animation aoiifyi than the mere animalism of birth, strife and death—is not new thought, nor yet a sacred science. It is in truth the oldest religion extant—added to and developed with the centuries as all other gospels, but growing out of a creed taking definite form, possibly under Epicurus first of all—more sanely expounded by socrates and later by Plato, his pupil, after the Tthenian dicastery had handed his mentor the hemlock—centuries before those who ever since have damned it as arrant infidelity, bribed Ascotiot and crucified for the aim and end of rational Christ. Originating with the early cry of a hopeful humanity action, it has broadened and blossomed from a fantastic cult into the religion of the multitude. Its ebb and flow has marked days of much doing—surviving persecution and obloquy and singing on the way to immortal martyrdom—losing only to regain in greater store of experience and accomplishment, and knowledge that strength is given us to definitely throw down the gage to destiny and do the work of demigods. 'Tis an ancient, wholly believable and withal familiar and appealing faith, this belief in self. It is wholly without mysticism—is neither senseless denial nor irrational adoration. It deals in actualities—gives wisdom without weakness and culture without cowardice—does this philosophy of sunshine whose text books contain but the one rule of love of life.

Since humanity was young Cleopatra has smiled on Caesar—whereby far more than the weal or wie of Egypt has been determined. Writers and painters and poets have smiled on the world, in sentiment and color and song—and saving grace. It's a good and a healthful creed. Medical science has made many startling admissions of late, and none more so than that bad temper, accusing conscience, irritable nerves and sullen discontent breed actual physical disorder and disease. Moral and mental balance make for a sound and normal body, so the doctors say. Certain it is—and this you know if not wanting to hire a hearse—that the most pitiful fate that can befall is to lose faith and hope and enthusiasm and capacity for enjoyment. The vanities of life—'tis a favorite text with others than the preachers. Existence is dreary grind—life a lament. Tied to the cart's tail of money-getting—throttled by tradition and bound in chains of stilted and prudish conventionality, they are senseless—useless—atoms all. In a dim sort of a way they realize, perhaps, that there are such things as regal roses, sublime sunsets, verdueclad valleys and mountain sides, music and song and honest men and sweet women—but to the glories of which they are immune and in whom long since atrophied if it ever lived all sense of human participation. Beware the slow poison of pessimism—'tis hell while here. Of what worth is glut of gold when shrouded for the grave—remember the mummy! Live every moment, as deit meant. Cherish every tiny feather that falls to earth from the wing of the angel Joy—belike yiu'll never find another—or a fairer—or a better. It is only a little while, and we pass this way but once. To refuse the bright and beautiful and lovable things of life is to discredit creation and become a fugitive from fate. And enjoy not only the minute, but to remember—'twill be sweet solace some time.

I give you the phychic secret: Love life that you may live. Superstition and smug caution, including the proprieies, have laid down certain rules for longevity. Naturally, most of the commands are don't. We are told that we must shun, check, avoid, deny and abstain in everything, including diet, democracy, defalcation, debt, doubt, distemper, divorce and the flesh and the devil. These rules are simple enough, only they fetch a noise like a funeral. We can all score our century and over with ease, but with old-age achievement goes this lobsterian life not worth living. No roses and raptures—no cakes and ale—no sorrow and sin and mighty little salvation—no warming of both hands before the fire of Bohemia, where red lips are ripe with wine and desire and laughing eyes tell the story old—no transcendant joys or sacred griefs—to theaspiring centenarian who would follow the mossbackian ritual only a mild an duniform atmosphere is permitted. To eat and drink as though it were fearsome penitential function—to wear khaki and wooden clouts and exist in the abstract—to make formal written request and then, if informed that she were willing to do a thirty days' bread and water sanctification stunt before one could hold hands with his own life—truly a riotously alluring scheme of existence. The contention that it is not always he who lives longest but most—that one can, if permitted, know a million years in a minute—sure appeals in the face of so chilling and inhuman a prospect of hyperodermic happiness. And yet always hid away somewhere in these mental and physical catacombs said to house five score years and more is invariably the phychic secret—that to enjoy long life one must keep every vital organ in constant working order and cultivate a hopeful, cheerful and busy mentality. And herein we have the real and only requisite rule. If you would quaff the nectar of eternal youth, remain young in heart and hope. Enjoy your work and pleasure both. That Spanish wanderer sought a fountain whose waters are everywhere. Acitivity of body and brain comprise all life essentials, and out of which must come right and fruitful living. Use comprise their first purpose, and thereafter all details of diet and dress—aye, and deportment, dyemoind—will settle themselves, regardless of Pharisical prohibition, sacredotal ethics on fine theories. Plan to live, work to live and love your life—herein the ideal fellowship and hygiene of heaven.

Emerson, when he said that every sick man is a villain, probably meant that the villain is always a man who is ill—voicing Huzley's more drastic declaration that in the light of modern knowledge and advancement physical and mental it can't be long before a sick man must be one of two erotic extremes—either a fool or a criminal. And from practical, if no other standpoint, it is well to remember that the mental conditions which govern success are precisely those which control health and happiness—that success i sas much a creation of teetaoiealthlthrdlu creation of the mind; more than often it is the result of effort. We anticipate failure by admitting its reality—dwell upon it, and it is like to be and endure. To succeed, the mind must know and already enjoy only success— if free of discouragement and doubting depression we are fit to think and plan and do—indeed, the possession of such a spirit is success itself, for with it go hand in hand purpose and accomplishment.

What this old world needs more than all else is more confidence and less fear, more hope and less despair, more happiness and less hell while here. Troubles will come enough unbidden—meet them with a smile. And what matters if at times we must make believe?—better a dream that might prove true than admitted disaster. And give joy, wherever met, glad greeting. The psychic secret: Love life, that you may live.

Safe.

Along the ridge of grass the fugitive tore. Urged on by the cries and clamor of the mob behind he rushed on, on with the speed of a frightened deer. His eyes bulged and his breath gasped as he fled, his sight always fixed on a little object some distance ahead; an object which, like a life-buoy, danced before his eager eyes and bobbed uneasily on the shining surface at the edge of the grassy ridge. Once having gained this the pursued man knew he was safe!

So, steadily on toward this he tore. Glancing neither to the right nor to the left, but always straight ahead, he at last gained the edge of the grassy ridge, sprang off into the air, and, with a gasp, plunged downward.

For a moment there was a terrible stillness behind. Then, as his unkempt head rose above the little white object out beyond, the cries again burst forth. In this howling mob the poor devil had friends as well as enemies; for, as he reached out and clutched the life-saving object, many seemed transported with joy, the others, with chagrin. But horrors! A pursuer plunged down after him and dealt him a savage blow with a blunt object. Again the mixed cries rent the air.

Scores of importuning arms were thrust out from those above "Tell us," their owners temanded of an officious man, who had rushed up closer than they, and stood peering down at the two men struggling below him. "Tell us; is he safe?"

There was a moment of silence. Then the official quickly raised his head and lifted a hand high up.

"Safe at second!" yelled the umpire; and that settled it.

Important Discovery of Valuable Minerals.

The discovery of rare and valuable minerals in the Llano region, to the northwest of San Antonio, has just been made public in a bulletin by F. L. Hess, issued by the United States geological survey. The report shows an island of pre-Cambrian rocks, in which is found minerals. Among these the report mentions fergusonite, gadolinite, polycrase, yttrilite and cyrtolite. Among the minerals found there are a number of the radioactive, which have a great and increasing practical value.

The economic value of these minerals is due to the incandescence of their oxides on being heated. This property makes them valuable for use as flowers for gas and electric light lamps. Thoria, beryllia, yttria and zirconia are the most useful minerals employed for this purpose. Until the discovery of these metals in the Llano district it was very difficult to get enough of them to manufacture mantles for electric glow lamps. The discovery of the deposit here, near the geographical center of Texas, now furnishes enough of these metals to meet the demand.

A large corporation manufacturing an electric lamp has lately acquired this valuable deposit, which is so large that the corporation supplies its wants by working the mine a few months at a time. It is supposed that other rare minerals of a similar character will be found in the mounds near Barringer Hill, but so far they have been only partially prospected. The men who are working these mines have

Poverty is Slavery; Independence is essential to success

This advice is for old and young, male and female, and those who neglect it will regret it more and more as they grow older. There is nothing so pitiful as a poor OLD man or woman, dependent possibly on friends only for support.

NOW, you spend easily and carelessly what it requires hard work to make. You work month after month, year after year and continue to spend all you earn.

The time will come when you will have forgotten the foolish pleasures for which you spend your money now—and the time will come when WANT and WORRY and DEPENDENCE ON OTHERS will weigh heavily on you.

If you do nothing else from now on, MAKE UP YOUR MIND TO SAVE A LITTLE MONEY. No matter how little it may be, make a start. Begin to live on less than you make. Begin to put a little capital in real estate which will one day mean FREEDOM and INDEPENDENCE. There is not a young man anywhere who could not save from $5 to $10 every month if he wished to do so.

There is a great project on foot for the development of South Houston which will advance the prices of all South Houston lots at least $50 each as soon as it is announced.

We will spend about $300,000 in the development of South Houston—in making YOUR investment profitable. If we make you money, we make just as much for ourselves, because we have more land close by than the entire amount we have platted.

GROVER CLEVELAND-- Living and Dead.

Some years ago, when Mark Hanna died, The Chronicle made the lesson of his life the subject of editorial discussion, pointing out how those who knew him best had proved that he whom men called a conscienceless, scheming, unscrupulous politician was a kindly, generous man, with many splendid qualities as a citizen. It took death to reveal the real Mark Hanna, or, rather, when passion and prejudice were still in the presence of death, men for the first time saw him as he was, and spoke of him in moments of calmness with the words of fairness and truth.

Much of what was said of Mark Hanna might well be said with reference to Grover Cleveland, albeit the two men were, in their leading characteristics and methods of thought and ideas of public duty as far asunder as the Grover Cleveland, in his sphere, was a big man, as in his field and range of action--lower as it was--Mark Hanna was also a big man.

Grover Cleveland, in his rise to eminence, became very near being a phenomenon. Not even the careers of Lincoln and Grant were more remarkable.

General Grant had received the benefit of military training, while Lincoln had been a member of congress and gained a national fame by his debates with Douglass; but Grover Cleveland rose from almost absolute obscurity, like a rocket, to the most exalted office on earth. He had no war record, because he was teaching school during the war, and twenty-five years ago a war record meant much. Yet, unknown beyond the mayor's chair to the presidency of the earth's greatest republic. There is no parallel for rise to fame and fortune in all the annals of history, and it was a commentary upon then existing political conditions and public sentiment to say, though it is true, that Grover Cleveland won because he was honest and would not share in or permit boodling or grafting in municipal government, which was so common then as to be looked upon as a matter of course.

He was the most stalwart of Democrats, and he was honest, yet no president for half a century has been more cursed and denounced. Why? Simply because he held to his convictions, and never sought or even desired compromise.

He did not believe all the offices of the government should be held at the behest of political leaders and spoilsmen and he said so, and a system of civil service, based on merit, which had been a theory, became a reality and politicians became his enemies.

He did not believe in free silver at any ratio, and he said so, and when he said anything no interpreter was needed to tell what he meant.

He did not believe in a tariff for protection, but only for revenue, with protection but an unavoidable incident; and, believing the people were being robbed to enrich manufacturers, he sounded a call to battle against the tariff, and did so though his own partisans cursed and abused him as a fool, if not a traitor; and he in turn denounced their action, in passing a compromise bill, as political perfidy.

To save the national credit he sold bonds and was charged with profiting personally to a large extent by the deal--an absolutely baseless charge, but such a charge was in line with many equally as unjustifiable.

However, nothing daunted him. He followed his convictions, and in 1892 won the presidency again without recantation or apology.

The vocabulary of denunciation was poured upon him while he lived; the lexicography of praise has been exhausted to pay him tribute since he died.

How foolish, how unjust, how unjustifiable was the abuse heaped upon him when the passions of men ran high!

A little calm reflection would have shown that the charges were not true, and that the American people never elected a dishonest man or party traitor president.

BRAG IS A GOOD DOG.

By Emma Jane (Goodridge) Diety.

Though clothes are much finer,
And your "grub" is more rare;
Your prospects are brighter,
And plans appear fair,
Remember the words, that are true to a letter,

"Brag is a good dog, but Hold-fast is better."

Don't let a long tongue,
Your own praises boast;
Nor sound your loud trumpet,
Lest your honor be lost--

Remember the words, that are true to a letter:
"Brag is a good dog, but Hold-fast is better."

Though the path may seem smooth,
There is hidden a snag,
That will flip up the heels
Of a chap that will brag;

Remember the words that are true to a letter:
"Brag was a good dog, but Hold-fast is better."

But rather help wretches
To climb to your side;
Then they'll sing your praises
Around, far and wide;

And ever remember this line to a letter:
"Brag is a good dog, but Hold-fast is better."

On the Altar of Charity

To poverty's children

You may be ashamed of their colorless rags,
They are equal, I think, to the person who brags.

MY FRIEND.

He claimed to be my friend;
that's why he would
Desire to stab me deep--just for my good.

With pleasure ill concealed he held his dart,
Felt its keen edge, and aimed it at my heart.

Keen was the thrust; and then with rapid stride

He hastened toward me and, when at my side,

The weapon grasped within his hand. Around

He turned the sharpened edge and larger wound

Was made; and then, as if to make amend,

He smiling said--"Consider me your friend!"

Hunt's Cure

Will stop and permanently cure that terrible itching. It is compounded for that purpose and is absolutely guaranteed.

It is a never failing cure for eczematous affections of all kinds, including:

Humid Tetter Herpes
Salt Rheum Prurigo
Heat Eruption Fluvus
Ring Worm and Scabies

This last named disease is characterized by scaliness of the skin, eruption of pimples, vesicles or sometimes pustules. It is not due to inflammation like other skin disease but to the presence of little parasites which burrow under the skin. These minute insects multiply with astonishing rapidity, and within a short time after their first appearance will be found in nearly every part of the body. The itching they produce is so intense it is often with difficulty the sufferer can refrain from tearing the skin with his nails. Hunt's Cure is an infallible remedy for this aggravating trouble. Applied locally.

Sold by all first-class druggists. Price, 50 cents per box, and the money will be refunded in every case where one box only fails to cure.

BRYAN'S CONCEPTION OF THE PRESIDENCY.

Wm. J. Bryan, democratic nominee for the presidency, has written the following article for Collier's Weekly:

"The president's power for good or harm is often overestimated. Our government is a government of checks and balances; power is distributed among different departments and each official works in co-operation with others. In the making of laws, for instance, the president joins with the senate and the house. He may recommend but he is powerless to legislate, except as a majority of the senate and house concur with him. The senate and house are also independent of each other; each having a veto over the other, and the president having a veto over both, except that the senate and house can by a two-third's vote override the president's veto. The influence of the president, therefore, is limited; he shares responsibility with a large number of the people's representatives.

"Even in the enforcement of the law he is hedged about with restrictions. He acts through an attorney general (whose appointment must be approved by the Senate), and offenders against the law must be prosecuted in the courts so that here again the responsibility is divided. In the making of important appointments, too, he must consult the Senate, and is, of necessity, compelled to exercise care and discretion. The most important requisite in the president, as in other officials, is that his sympathy shall be with the whole people, rather than with any fraction of the population. He is constantly called upon to act in the capacity of a judge, deciding between the importunities of those who seek favors and the rights and the interests of the public. Unless his sympathies are right, the few are sure to have advantage over the many, for the masses have no one to present their claims. They act only at elections, and must trust to their representatives to protect them from all their foes.

"Second the president must have a knowledge of and the ability to discern between the true and the false; he must be able to analyze the conditions and to detect the sophistries that are always employed by those who seek unfair advantages.

"He must possess moral courage to stand against the influences that are brought to bear in favor of special interests. In fact the quality of moral courage is as essential in a public official as either right sympathies or a trained mind.

"The president must have counselors, and to make use of counselors he must be open to conviction. The president is committed by his platform to certain policies, and the platform is binding; he is also committed to certain principles of government and the principle of duty bound to apply in all matters that come before him. But there is a wide zone in which he must act upon his own judgment, and here he ought to have aid of intelligent, conscientious and faithful advisors.

"The law provides this to a certain extent in giving him a cabinet, and the vice-president ought to be made a member of the cabinet, that the president may have the benefit of his wisdom and knowledge of affairs and the vice president may be better prepared to take up the work of president in case of a vacancy in the presidential office. There ought to be cordial relations also between the president and those who occupy positions of influence in the co-ordinate branches of the government, for our government is not a one-man government, but a government in which the chosen representatives of the people labor to give to each the will of the voters.

"But the presidency is the greatest position in the world, and its occupant is an important factor in all national matters. If he is a devout believer in our theory of government, recognizes its extent and distribution, trusts thoroughly in the people and sympathizes with them in their aspirations and hopes, he has an opportunity to do splendid work; he occupies a vantage ground from which he can exert a wholesome influence in favor of each forward movement.

"The responsibilities of the office are so great that the occupant ought to be relieved of every personal ambition save the ambition to prove worthy of the confidence of his countrymen; for this reason he ought to enter the position without thought or prospect of a second term.

"While the burden of such an office is heavy, and while the labors of the office are exacting and exhausting, the field of service is so large, and, measuring its greatness by service, a president, by consecrated effort to the public weal, can make himself secure in the affections of his fellow citizens while he lives and create for himself a permanent place in the nation's history."

Hon. C. C. Stokes is the only candidate Houston county has for an office other than her county candidates. Our candidates are as good as those offered by other counties; this being true let us give Stokes a majority that will cause our neighboring counties to know that we stand by our home men.

The people who are inclined to treat the candidacy of Bob Williams for governor as a joke had better get busy for Campbell. Williams candidacy is growing serious, and we remind you of the result in Georgia a few weeks ago, when Hoke Smith was defeated for a second term, by a man who had never delivered a single address. There is a strong opposition to Campbell and it behooves his friends to go to work.

Don't grumble. The most unfortunate class of people living upon this green earth are the grumblers. They rob home of its joys, society of its dues, and themselves of the best things of life. From the days the children of Israel "grumbled" and were sent on their tedious wanderings "for forty years in the wilderness," up to the present hour the world has been full of grumblers. It is "too hot" or "too cold," "too wet" or "too dry." People in reasonable circumstances have visions of the poor house, while the rich grumble that they can't get rich faster.

If people want to settle in a wide-awake community, all they have to do is to look at the local newspapers. A wide-awake, well-supported home newspaper is always associated with good schools, churches, active business, and intelligent people. It never fails. No business man or pioneer in any community makes any better investment than in the support of a home newspaper.

Eels and the Searchlight.

Danish investigators have found a means of checking the downward migration of breeding eels to the sea, whereby it is hoped that a valuable food supply may be saved for the country, for these migrating eels, when they have once reached the sea never return to their native rivers. The method is simplicity itself. A large acetylene searchlight is placed by the river bank in such a position that its rays can be made to illuminate the comparatively shallow water and it is found that by this means the downward movement of the fish can be effectively checked.

STATE.

Georgetown.—During the past week, thirteen suits for divorce have been dismissed and two are continued. There are yet fifty suits for divorce on the civil docket.

Galveston.—According to lately published rate sheet, the boat lines have agreed to co-operate with the railroads in the raising of freight rates on August 10. All freight rates to Texas points will take on a ten and five per cent increase.

West.—James Sulak, Precinct Constable, is struck by south-bound train and instantly killed.

Victoria.—New York and Chicago capitalists have purchased an eighty-acre tract one mile north of Victoria and will have it surveyed into town lots. The price paid was $10,000. The property was formerly owned by S. G. Reed of Dallas.

El Paso.—Reports brought from La Cinto by T. C. Harris to the effect that gold ore has been discovered in that section, which runs as high as $60,000 to the ton.

Austin.—The following industries have been started during the past week: Laredo, $15,000 brick works; Graham, $10,000 ice factory; Markham, oil company; Gainesville, canning factory; Alvarado, $5000 cotton gin, $5000 oil company; San Antonio, $20,000 oil company; Giddings, $20,000 lumber company.

Eagle Pass.—J. A. Bonnet, United States Consul for many years at C. P. Diaz, tenders his resignation. J. A. Bonnet, Jr., his son, gets the appointment in his place.

Abilene.—Ira Montgomery, aged 22 years, is shot by his brother, John Montgomery. The injury to Montgomery, while serious, is not necessarily fatal.

Coleman.—The Republicans have organized in every section of the county. This is the first time in the history of this section that a party organization of that nature has been effected.

Greenville.—Ollie Taylor, 16 years old, accidentally shoots himself while hunting. His injuries proved fatal in the course of a few hours.

Georgetown.—The County Commissioners set the valuation of property for assessment at 80 per cent of its market valuation. The assessment on railroad property was slightly reduced.

Gonzales.—J. F. Neuman is awarded judgments for $1,500 and $2,000, respectively, against the Phoenix Fire Assurance Company and the Milwaukee Mechanics' Insurance Company. Suits were brought on claims amounting to $7,000, which were disputed owing to some alleged irregularities in the keeping of Mr. Neuman's books while he was engaged in the business on which the insurance was written.

Temple.—Will T. Roach is shot and killed. The arrest of Ray G. Wilcox followed the shooting. The quarrel resulted over family difficulties.

Beaumont.—The mosquitoes have so increased in the coast country during the wet weather this summer that many cattle have been killed by the heavy swarms of this insect.

St. Louis, Mo.—Max Martini, a Hungarian mechanic, kills his wife and commits suicide owing to an altercation with his better half on the purchase of a 75-cent dress. Martini had lately impressed upon his wife the stern necessity of economy owing to the purchase of a new home on the installment plan. The heavy outlay of 75 cents was too much for his stringent sense of economics and he pulled a six-shooter and blew out the woman's brains after a short argument. The only redeeming feature of the affair is that he had the grace to put an end to his own life immediately afterward.

Columbus, Ohio.—The National Prohibition Convention adopts the water wagon as their emblem, and arriving delegates are met at the depots by a profusely decorated water wagon drawn by four milk white horses. Charles E. Jones of Chicago, National Chairman, calls the convention to order. There are seventeen names on the list of aspirants for the Presidential nomination, and the convention is a lively one. It is stated that woman suffrage will be endorsed by the convention.

St. Louis, Mo.—In a head-on collision on the St. Louis, Iron Mountain and Southern Railway the Memphis express it wrecked. Engineer Donohue was killed and Fireman Bruske sustained a broken leg. Many passengers were bruised and injured.

Liquor and Labor.

One of the most marked changes of public sentiment revealed in the past half century—indeed, in less time—is that concerning the use of liquor by business, professional and laboring men.

Men much less than 50 years old can recall when a laboring man might get drunk every night after working hours without danger of discharge, provided he turned up ready for work next morning, but such conduct now would, in nine out of ten well-regulated business establishments, result in his immediate and irrevocable discharge.

The time has been in the memory of thousands who will read this when doctors of distinction could drink to excess every day and even attend upon the most desperate cases when drunk, but the most skillful physician and surgeon in Houston could not sustain himself in his profession ninety days if seen drunk twice or even once.

Some of the most distinguished lawyers ever in the United States have been notorious users of liquor to excess, or, in plain words, they got drunk in public and appeared in that state before large audiences, and yet maintained their professional and social standing.

This was true of a lawyer of pre-eminent ability, who died in the very prime of a brilliant life, and who, many believe, was the most eloquent man that ever stood before an audience in any age, in the old world or the new.

Comparatively few years ago for a politician to get drunk or to use liquor to excess did not seriously affect his chances of success. It has been stated as a part of the history of a man who is thought by many to have been the ablest orator and lawyer ever in the Senate of the United States from New England that in the morning, before beginning at noon the greatest speech of his life, and one of the greatest ever delivered in the Senate of the United States, he drank a quart of French brandy, and such indulgence was by no means unusual with him.

Sentiment in this regard has wholly changed, and no man, however great, could sustain himself and so use intoxicants today.

In many of the largest business establishments of Texas and the United States excessive use of liquor is sure to bring loss of position, and there are establishments which buy up property for a considerable distance around their plants so as to prevent the establishing of saloons near them.

The vast majority of manufacturing companies will not allow liquor to be sold anywhere on their property.

There are railroads which will not permit an employe to enter a saloon, and there are others which have a rule to the effect that if the engineer of a passenger train goes into a saloon before taking his engine he cannot stay on it, but another man must take his place.

A Logical Suicide.

Another unfortunate, weary of breath, rashly importunate, gone to his death. This time it was a Memphis man. He surreptitiously pocketed a razor in a barber shop, slipped out of the place and slit his throat. It is believed, locally, that he was temporarily insane and that his aberration resulted from intense heat and nervous prostration. As a matter of fact, the man was plainly the victim of whisks, high temperature and the popularity of a tonsorial parlor. The tragedy was logical and the suicide was, from a human point of view at least, forgivable.

It is impossible to believe that Adam was made with a beard. We read in the Bible that he was happy and at peace. This statement denotes either an unshaven or a beardless condition. Since Adam sinned and blamed the woman the male human being has suffered the penalty of beard and must either spend most of his leisure moments in the barber shop or standing before a mirror cutting gashes in his face with a broad, keen blade, or running a miniature lawn mower over it.

The following lines appear in the book of a recent comic opera:

Ethel (nestling her head upon his shoulder)—"Do you shave yourself always?"

Jack (running his fingers apprehensively across his cheek)—"No; I usually stop for meals."

In comic opera this was mirth-provoking. It is quite natural to laugh at the sufferings of a hero in comic opera, even when he is about to be decapitated by order of the bandit chieftain. But in real life the marvelous energy of the beard and the resultant unceasing labor of the man who could be always clean-shaven constitutes one of the major sorrows of existence.

The Memphian, entering a barber shop in the early afternoon, when the mercury registered 100 in the shade and the barber was six customers behind his rush of business, lost his patience while reading the comic weeklies and waiting until he should be "next." Finally, since all things come to those who wait, even in a crowded barber shop, he was allowed to get into a chair and be shaved and learn about the iniquity of the empire and the failings of the third baseman on the home team.

After what seemed an eternity had passed he was patted on the face and anointed with a mysterious and sickly mixture of scented oils and syrups, batted lightly over the face with something resembling his wife's powder puff and let out of the chair. He reflected that his beard was still growing and that he was no better circumstanced than a mule in a treadmill. He said:

"Who would fardels bear,
To grunt and sweat under a weary life;
But that the dread of something
after death,
The undiscovered country from whose bourne
No traveler returns, puzzles the will
And makes us rather bear those ills we have
Than fly to those we know not of."

As he meditated upon the probable tortures of the infernal regions as pictured by the ancients during the reign of Pluto and as imagined by the moderns under Satan, he decided, quite naturally, that the chances were about even that the ills he knew not of were no worse than those he knew. He cunningly stole a razor, released a weary spirit from the imprisoning clay and allowed it to flutter into the windowless palace of rest, to sleep, to dream—aye, there's the rub! Perhaps those who make a dash for the palace unshaven neither sleep nor dream, but are punished by being shaven with a dull razor by devils who eat onions and discuss sports and demand opinions from the victim when his mouth is full of lather.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Co-operative House-keeping.

Co-operative housekeeping on a large scale is the latest plan on smoothing out the work and worry of life to be inaugurated in San Antonio. The originators of the scheme are W. H. Dee and James N. Tilton, both eastern men, who intend to build a gungalow city on South Heights, a hilltop suburb of San Antonio.

A plot of ground about thirty acres in size is being laid out as a park, with winding streets, fringed with shrubbery, flowers and semi-tropical plants. Between forty and fifty bungaloes of four, five and six rooms will be built and furnished. At a convenient point in the center of the gungalow village will be constructed a community kitchen and dining rooms. Each family will order what it wants for the day and the company market man will make the purchases and the company cook will prepare the meals. The residents will then have the choice of dining in one of the community dining rooms or having their meals delivered at their homes in vehicles especially constructed, with heaters to keep the viands hot. Community laundries will do the washing, and community gardeners will attend to the grounds and plants; in fact, all the drudgery of housekeeping will be provided for by the community.

As every winter from 15,000 to $20,000 northern and eastern tourists winter in this city, such a plan will especially commend itself to those who do not wish to go to the worry and expense of putting up their own establishments. It is also claimed that this manner of housekeeping can be made as reasonable or as expensive as the individuals desire.

"Pants" For Taft

When He Visits Texas.

San Antonio, July — (Special.)—Announcement has been made by Col. Cecil Lyon, the head of the Republican party in Texas, that Secretary Taft had promised to make a number of speeches in Texas between now and election time in the interest of the Texas Republican ticket. It is also generally admitted that Chas. W. Ogden of San Antonio, one of the leading attorneys of the State, will be the Texas nominee for Governor. There is widespread displeasure in the State towards the Campbell administration, and already a Democrat known as honest Bob Williams, the village blacksmith, is contesting with Governor Campbell the Democratic nomination for re-election. The Republicans believe that this will breed enough faction to make possible the election of a strong man like Mr. Ogden.

The gift of the pair of "pants" made from mohair arranged for Secretary Taft has aroused a lively feeling of interest in that candidate in Texas, and plans are being made for a presentation of the "pants" when he visits San Antonio. At the same time N. R. Powell, a cattle raiser of Tettus, Tex., will have ready for presentation to the Republican candidate an enormous chair made of horns from the longhorn cattle the used to be so common in Texas. This chair will be eight and a half feet tall by about five feet wide, and will certainly be large enough to hold the big candidate arrayed in that pair of "pants" made from a billy goat, which are unquestionably man's size.

In a young woman vanity is apt to prove dangerous; in an old one it's merely ridiculous.

That girl is essentially mean-spirited who at a wedding, makes it a point to look happier than the bride.

When a woman thinks more of a man's intentions than of his attentions she is either very young or "approximating maturity."

A spinster, asked what she would do had she her life to lead over, replied: "I would hurry to marry before I had learned enough to remain single."

There is no doubt but this remedy saves the lives of many children each year. Give it with castor oil according to the plain printed directions and a cure is certain. For sale by Carleton & Porter.

From a small beginning its sale and use has extended to every part of the United States and to many foreign countries. Nine druggists out of ten will recommend it when their opinion is asked, although they have other medicines that pay them a greater profit. It can always be depended upon, even in the most severe and dangerous cases. For sale by Carleton & Porter.
