368 MEMBERS ADDED TO FRIONA CHAMBER OF COMMERCE IN ONE DAY DURING FESTIVAL WEEK

The Community Festival Week program which was carried out here last week is considered a success by an overwhelming majority of the people of the town and the surrounding territory, all of which was embraced in the program and the membership canvass.

In last week's issue of the Star was given a sketch of the banquet on Monday night and of the starting of the two teams that made the canvass for membership to the Chamber of Commerce which was carried out on Thursday.

The two groups, the Reds and Blues, were each divided into teams of two or three each, and each team was assigned a certain portion of the territory and the entire canvass was completed within the day.

In the evening the captains reported to Capt. Nussbaum at the school building, where a check up of the day's work showed a total of 368 members secured and a cash receipt of $341.50. Following is a list of the teams and the work secured by each:

Reds: Parr and Chiles, 45 members, $41 cash; Short and Williams, 47 members, $45.75 cash; Mickey and Reeve, 57 members, $51.75 cash; Kinsley, Lang and Singleterry, 112 members, $101.50 cash; total, 261 members, $240.00 cash.

Blues: Schlenker and Horton, 34 members, $25.25 cash; Vance and Pemberton, 12 members, $8.25 cash; Conway and Roden, 16 members, $18.75 cash; White and Crawford, 9 members, $14.00 cash; Reeve and Blackwell, 32 members, $38.75 cash.

MOTOR COMPANY CHANGES HANDS

A deal was consummated here the latter part of last week whereby W. F. Bays, of Vaughn, New Mexico, becomes the proprietor of the Friona Motor Company and the Farwell Motor Company, he having purchased the entire interest of J. H. Elder in these two promising business concerns.

Mr. Bays comes highly recommended for his business ability and integrity, he having been identified with the business interests of Fort Sumner for the past ten years, having been in Vaughn about a half year.

Mr. Bays will live in Farwell and have charge of the Ford business of the Farwell Motor Company, while the personnel of the Friona Motor Company will remain unchanged. S. E. Mickey, who has charge of the Friona business since its establishment here, will be retained by the new management in the same position, which arrangement is gratifying to people of Friona who have come to regard Mr. Mickey as a really first class citizen. Other employees of the business here will also be retained, which fact is also gratifying to Friona people.

ASHCRAFT-RILEY WEDDING

J. R. Riley of Bovina and Miss Ollie Ashcraft of Friona were quietly married at Clovis on September 23.

Mr. Riley has a theatre in Bovina, but is leaving in a few weeks for Oklahoma City, where he is the owner of another theatre.

The bride is the charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Ashcraft and has lived here for five years, having a host of friends in Friona.

Mr. Riley has been in Bovina three months and is a young man who makes friends where ever he goes. We are very sorry to lose those two fine young people from our community, but wish them a long life of happiness where ever they may make their home.

Who were present at the meeting Saturday morning but Messrs. Wilkison, Landrum and Alexander, and showed themselves interested in taking up the work of creating an active and energetic Chamber of Commerce.

Capt. Nussbaum preached an interesting and practical sermon at the school house Sunday morning to a large audience in a union church service. He was announced to preach again in the evening but threatening weather and failure to have the building opened caused that meeting to be a failure.

The above is a list of names secured during the drive for members and while there may be a few names omitted or misspelled, it is not done intentionally. It is a tedious task to copy a long list of names without skipping or misspelling any of them, so if there are any omitted or misspelled if the owners will call our attention to the fact we will be glad to insert the name or correct the spelling.

These names were all brought in Thursday evening and before beginning his lecture that evening, Capt. Nussbaum presided at an election at which six more directors were chosen for the Chamber of Commerce, raising the number of directors to nine instead of the three as has been. He then called a meeting of these directors for Saturday morning, when he laid before them a number of plans for the work of the organization which he had found profitable at other places.

The original board of directors consisted of J. C. Wilkison, J. L. Landrum and M. A. Crum. The new directors chosen are Homer Williams, J. W. Ford, George M. Baker, and J. M. W. Alexander, all of

ONE PHONE SYSTEM TO BE USED HERE

The probability of Friona having two rival telephone systems was averted when Roy Bailey last week sold the new system he had about completed here to the State Telephone Company, with local offices at Lubbock.

Mr. Bailey had only recently moved his family here with the intention of making Friona his home, but after disposing of his business interests here removed his family last Saturday to Roswell, New Mexico, where he will enter the feed business. By his genial disposition, honorable bearings, energy and industry Mr. Bailey had made friends of all Friona people who has been fortunate enough to make his acquaintance, all of whom regret his departure.

CITY ENGINEERS HERE LAST SATURDAY

Mr. Duke of the Devlin Engineering Company of Amarillo, spent last Saturday here making preliminary surveys and tests as preparatory work for the installation of Friona's proposed new water system.

Two wells were tested as to capacity of production and the engineer estimates that an abundance of water can be secured here for all the water needs of the city for years to come.

The engineer also did some preliminary surveying of the streets with regard to laying water mains. Mr. Clark of Oklahoma City, estimating engineer for the Sherman Machine and Iron Works of that city was also here in the interest of his company. He also expressed a most favorable opinion as to the probability of a successful water system with an abundant water supply.

MRS. REDFERN HONORED

Mrs. R. L. Redforn of Lazbuddie entertained with a one o'clock luncheon last Wednesday in honor of Mrs. Redforn, who is the mother of Mrs. Loyal Lutz of Lazbuddie, and Mrs. Echols of Clovis, and has been visiting in their home the last few weeks. The guests were served a delicious three-course luncheon. The honor guest was presented a lovely bud vase by the hostess as a remembrance. Vocal and instrumental solos were given by Mrs. Finis Jennings, Mrs. Cleve Mahon and Rev. and Mrs. Lloyd Jones and were enjoyed by all present.

STORES AND MARKET OBSERVE CLOSING HOUR

Merchants of Friona have all agreed to close their places of business each evening at eight o'clock, beginning the first of the present week, and with the exception of the drug store will be closed all day on Sundays.

The two markets also have announced that neither of them will be open on Sunday after the coming Sunday, October 6.

UTILITY MEN HERE

J. B. Scott, of Plainview, general manager of the Texas Utilities Company, and Fred H. Oberthier, Jr., of Hereford, local manager of the company, were business visitors here Wednesday afternoon and paid the Star office an appreciated visit.

Mr. Scott has had a lot of practical experience with various kinds of public utilities and came in to offer his service to the city in regard to the financing and installation of the proposed water system for Friona. He said that he will be pleased to help us in any way he can.

Officials of the Texas Utilities Company have proved themselves broad minded men and anxious and able to serve their patrons in many ways beside the services rendered in the way of furnishing electric current for light and power.

The people of Friona are pleased to have business relation with these people and truly appreciate the many favors they have shown us both in a public and private capacity.

MAY HAVE BUILDING AND LOAN

Mr. Jones, of the Panhandle Building and Loan Company, of Amarillo was a business visitor here Tuesday. Mr. Jones came at the solicitation of some of our business men for the purpose of explaining the working system of his company, these business men hoping to interest enough of our people in the building and loan business to secure the establishing of a branch of the company in Friona, as it is thought that such a move will do more good toward the building of the city than any other one thing that could be proposed at this time.

Quite a number of the business men of the town gathered at the Star office late in the afternoon and listened to Mr. Jones' explanation of the plan, and it is hoped enough interest was aroused to secure the branch office.

OLD FIDDLERS CONTEST

There will be an Old Fiddlers' Contest at the Friona school auditorium on Thursday night, October 17.

Full details of the contest will be given in next week's Star. Watch for them. This information was given out by O. F. Lange, chairman of the Home Entertainment Committee.

COMMITTEES TO HANDLE WORK NAMED

A meeting of the directors of the Chamber of Commerce, which was called by the president, was held in M. A. Crum's office Monday night. Those present were the president and secretary and five members of the board, viz. Crum, Williams, Ford, Baker and Alexander.

The business of the meeting was the appointment of the various committees as suggested by Capt. Nussbaum at the meeting held last Saturday morning.

After some time spent studying and discussing the duties of these committees and the best plans for dividing the work, it was decided that each of the country members of the board should appoint one member from the country, and that M. A. Crum, the only director living in town who was present, should appoint one party from town to act with each country member appointed to form the Group and Sections committee.

Following the above plan the following members were appointed to form the above named committee: R. F. Jones and Carl C. Maurer, Floyd Schlenker and J. J. Horton, A. S. Curry and O. F. Lange, C. M. Jones and A. B. Short.

The next committee selected was the Community Sales Day committee, which, by motions, was appointed by the president and is as follows: John White, F. M. Welch, and H. G. Morris.

The Trade at Home Committee also appointed by the president, is composed of F. W. Reeve, M. A. Crum and J. W. M. Alexander.

The Civic Pride committee, also appointed by the president, is composed of Mrs. R. H. Kinsley, Mrs. L. F. Lillard, Mrs. C. A. Gunn, Mrs. Causler and Mrs. F. T. Schlenker.

For the Music and Home Talent Entertainment committee, one member was appointed by each director present and is composed of Clyde Goodwine, Mrs. D. W. Hanson, Mrs. T. J. Crawford, Mrs. J. L. Sears and O. F. Lange, with O. F. Lange as chairman.

Co-operative Committee: W. W. Hall, Homer Williams, J. M. Osborn, Floyd Reeve and F. N. Welch.

Permanent Membership Committee: R. L. Chiles, R. H. Kinsley, Mrs. Fred White, Mrs. Crawford and Mrs. J. B. Lang.

Merchants Committee: J. A. Blackwell, J. R. Roden, T. J. Crawford, V. B. Rushing and F. L. Spring.

The directors at this meeting also instructed the secretary to secure suitable stationery and sufficient postage to conduct the necessary correspondence for the organization and voted to pay the secretary a salary of $25.00 a month for his services.

Monday night of next week being the regular meeting night of the organization and the membership now being so large, it was decided to hold the meeting in the school building and the entire membership is urged to be present and the duties of the various committees will be explained so that all will be better able to help in the work of each. The meeting is called for eight o'clock and a short program of music and readings will precede the business session. You are urged to be present at this important meeting.

Judge I. R. Keiso, of St. Louis, president of the Texas Utilities Co., and J. B. Scott, of Plainview, general manager of the company, were business visitors here one day last week.

The chief object of the visit was that they might inform the people of Friona who are patrons of the company that another rate cut had been made to users of light for domestic purposes.

Judge Keiso stated that the company had made numerous cuts in the power and public lighting rates, but up to this time no cut had been made in the rates to the small users of current, and that the present cut will effect these users only. The minimum rate will be the same, but the maximum user will get the advantage of a larger amount of current for the minimum price.

The new rates, as the Star understands them, are as follows:

- 25 kw hours at 11c per kw.
  - Next 25 kw hours, 8c per kw.
  - Excess over 50 kw hours, 3c.
- Commercial Rates.
- First 50 kw hours, 11c per kw.
  - Next 200 kw hours, 9c per kw.
  - Next 750 kw hours, 5c per kw.
  - Next 1000 kw hours, 3c per kw.
- Fred Oberthier, Jr., of Hereford local manager of the Texas Utilities Company, was a business visitor in Friona last Saturday and made the Star office a pleasant visit. Mr. Oberthier stated that his company, instead of trying to get all it can from its patrons, seems to be trying to see how much it can give its patrons and yet live. In this statement Mr. Oberthier is evidently correct, since this is the third cut in rates that has been made since the company built into Friona.

THEY LIKE THE PLAINS BETTER NOW

Mr. and Mrs. Selden Warren and children returned to their home west of town Monday afternoon from a three weeks visit with relatives and friends at Wheatland, Iowa, and Trenton, Missouri, the former being Mrs. Warren's old home and the latter where Mr. Warren once lived.

Mr. Warren was in the Star office Tuesday and stated that there is nothing at either place to tempt him from the Plains and Friona. He says farming conditions and finances are much worse there than here. The land is high in price and rough and not so productive. Rent is very high and crop prices no better than here. It is next to impossible for a young man to farm there and live and pay for it from the revenues of the farm.

While there are many more, and more expensive, farm buildings there than here, he found fewer herds of registered stock either swine or cattle, than he finds on the Plains. They had a most enjoyable visit but are glad to be back on the Plains.

WILL MOVE HERE FIRST OF YEAR

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Jordan of Rocky, Oklahoma, were visitors in Friona and vicinity Tuesday. The Jordans have purchased the L. B. Stimms farm four miles west of town and were here looking over their property. They were here a few weeks ago and expect to move here for permanent residence about the first of the coming year, or as soon as they can get their cotton crop in Oklahoma gathered.

They were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. H. I. Camplin of Amarillo, whom they are hoping to interest in this locality to the extent of purchasing land and becoming residents of the Friona territory also. Mrs. Camplin is their daughter.

RALLY DAY PROGRAM

The program of the Congregational Sunday school announces that the Rally Day program will be given Sunday morning at the Sunday school hour.

Everybody is cordially invited to attend and enjoy the program. And especially is each member of the school urged to be present at that time.

STORY FROM THE START

Capt. Lion Fellowes' American ship is sunk by the British off Portugal in the War of 1812. Fellowes' life is saved by Cara Ingelplein, daughter of the owner of the American ship, True Bounty. Capt. Chater, in trade with the enemy because of love for Cara he consents to sail as mate. The True Bounty is stopped by the British frigate, Badger; Capt. Collishaw, despite his American citizenship, Fellowes is taken aboard the Badger a "pressed" man. He secures treachery and "rescue" a hatred for Collishaw. Cara and Chater, Collishaw tells him Cara had nothing to do with his abduction. He refuses to believe. Off New York Fellowes learns a landing party is going ashore. He escapes.

"My teetle ducker," responded Doak. "She's a durned handy craft, if I do say so."
"Get her ready. We must scud for it. Hurry! Every minute counts." He set an example by seizing a roll of blankets; Cuffee helped Eaches collect the provisions; Doak slipped out with an apologetic: "Git the anchor up. Ye'll have to wade to her," and Tom brought up the rear.
The ducker was an almost flat-bottomed craft, an elongated triangle in shape, with a single leg-of-mutton sail capable of astonishing speed before the wind. Just the feel of her stony floorboards under the bare feet stimulated Fellowes' self-respect. She was a boat, and he was captain aboard her; and the realization helped him to wough off the last trace of the subordination the Badger's iron discipline had ground into his soul. His voice crackled with the crisp authority of the quarterdeck. "Get that sail up, Paris! Joe, you take the tiller. Cuffee and Tom, lie up in the bow."
"We'll make a spy run with this wind," Joe Doak announced as the sail filled. "Wouldn't be surprised if I done it in two hours to Sumpawams creek—land ye slick as a whistie at the Manor dock, squire."
"No, we'll have to run into East creek," replied Fellowes. "The Brit Ishers will be at Saul Chater's farm and I don't banker to get near them unarm'd. How are we going to catch Collishaw's party? Have you any suggestions?"
"For sartain," Joe spoke up proudly. "That's the Fencilles."
"Who's in it?"
"All o' us—Nimrod Sopher's cap'n."
Fellowes deliberated for some minutes. "I'll tell you what," he decided finally. "As soon as we land, Paris had better go wake up Sopher. The rest of us—I suppose the Widow Rhodes still has the Pig and Farmer at the crossroads? 'Tis a convenient place to rally at. Joe, you can be waking other lads in the village. I think I'll get some sleep while I can." He had rolled himself in a blanket under the herders' feet when a sudden thought occurred to him. "Have you heard if Chater has visitors at the farm?" he asked, sitting up.
"By heck, I'd plumb forgot," exclaimed Eaches. "Couple o' women, squire, and the feiler to Noo Yaww owns Chater's ship."
Fellowes laughed harshly. "I expected they'd be there. Wake me when you make in for the East creek."
He was asleep almost as soon as his hand touched the floorboards. Every thing was happening as he had intended. Success he no longer doubted.

CHAPTER VI

At the General Armstrong

Doak's hand on his ankle awakened Fellowes with all his senses alert. No light showed against the curtain of the night, no noise came from the shore.
"Seems as though the Britfishers were mortal quiet," whispered Eaches. "They don't want to be seen here," returned Fellowes. "Look sharp, Joe! There's a landing."
"I will do," acknowledged Doak, and slid the ducker ashore beside a rickety wharf.
Their feet clattered on loose boards then pattered soundlessly on the earthen roadway paralleling the creek. "Waal, I turn off here for Sopher's," Eaches announced. "I'll knock at every door I pass. Joe, ye better work west."
"I'll rattle up the bull durned vil lages," promised Doak.
Eaches vanished between the trees, and at the next lane Doak left them with a brief, "See ye at the Wilders."
The others soon emerged upon a wider thoroughfare, sprinkled liberally with houses, the largest of which, directly opposite, was distinguished by a signboard, creaking gently in the breeze as it swung above the street in the stable yard beside it stood a dilapidated stagecoach.
"Jeff Riggle must have been late driving out from Brooklyn," exclaimed Fellowes. "Mrs. Rhodes is still up. This is luck."
The lighted window was open, and a splutter of argument carried clearly to the fugitives. "I never heard such foolishness! Ye be'n drivin', Jeff. That's what ye be'n." "No, I ain't,

THOSE LIBRARY VAGRANTS

(By D. J. Walsh)

HALLIE MARRIOTT'S soft blue gaze wandered from the books on the desk before her to the carnation-checked children romping through the city's most exclusive square, a pleasant retreat of old trees, tinkling fountains and scented shrubs in mild weather, bordered by tall apartment hotels, smart shops and clubs. A spired church and the mellowed brick convent of Notre Dame lent a spiritual atmosphere; the extension library, where she served as an assistant, a cultural note.
"Miss Marriott," the head librarian's voice lowered to meet library requirements, sounded shrill and rasping. "It is your duty to see that men don't sleep in the back of the room, I hope I won't have to remind you of this again," the pale eyes colder than the snowflakes mantling the benches and walks of the square.
"I'm sorry, Miss Giltson." Her prettily curved lips trembled at the deserved rebuke. "I'll go right down." She had neglected her duty, but she hated to disturb the nodding men. They looked so comfortable until she spoke to them; then so unhappy and embarrassed when she told them to go out. Not hurting anyone, just taking little quiet naps. Tired from hard work, she supposed.

That big, bronzed, outdoor looking fellow with the dark, ruffled hair that made her think of characters out of her favorite adventure books was back there—she had seen him coming in a little while ago. Sleeping, perhaps; he couldn't seem to keep awake. She would have to wake him again, tell him to take his hat and go out. That was Miss Giltson's pet phrase—"Take your hat and go out—you aren't allowed to sleep in the library." It sounded silly, Hallie Marriott thought, that part about taking your hat. But Miss Giltson was head librarian and had influence with the committee—this was not a municipal library. If she suggested the dismissal of an assistant, the heads approved.

If Hallie had studied, was really a trained worker, she would not have been so anxious about her position. It was through a former member of the committee—they had romped together in the old square before the Marriott fortunes, never sky high, sunk sadly low—that she managed to obtain this post seven years before. The former playmate no longer was on the committee; she must watch her post vigilantly. From the first one she had a feeling that Miss Giltson did not care for her. At thirty-five, when one had had training in old-fashioned household arts and graces only, positions are not easy to find and hold.

The bent, gnome-like man who pored over books on travel was chuckling gleefully over an account of life in the frozen North; the scarlet-nosed scholar-looking patron with the latest monthly, the tortoise-spectacled young man reading for his thesis, perhaps, all wide awake. No need to speak to anyone at that table. But two aches over! Why did he have to fall asleep every afternoon!

Did he work at night, perhaps? Feel weary during the day? Even sleep, a drastic test, failed to rob him of the attractive romantic quality she had become aware of the first afternoon he entered the library. Just a week ago. Maybe it was the heat—ghostly and bloodless. Miss Giltson insisted on full steam ahead—or reading, that made people drowsy. She dipped into frivolous books some nights when she had difficulty in gaining dreamland or felt too lonely to stay awake in her tiny third-floor room.

She felt Miss Giltson's icy stare directed from the main desk; she must speak. But he looked so comfortable, like a big, tired boy. He wasn't a boy, of course, any more than she was a girl, although she never felt old. He would stay young in mind, too, she felt as she stood looking at him, her blue gaze softly caressing. A shame to wake him, to send him out like a naughty child. Maybe he had nowhere to go, no warm place to spend the evening. So cold and the wind starting to howl. No overcoat either—his suit looked thin.

Suddenly he opened his eyes. Her cheeks burned at the glance of those darkly intense eyes, the eyes of the adventurer, pirate, knight. Her whole being flamed. This was terrible. He had never felt like this before. Frightened, heart beating wildly, scarcely knowing what she did, Hallie Marriott flew back to her desk. The woolly warm children were darting in, in the care of nurses to love—bright homes, their cheeks scarlet and snow-flaked. But she scarcely saw them; her eyes were filled with the bronzed, adventurous face of the man in the rear of the room.

"Miss Marriott," that voice colder than the snow in the twilight hushed square. "I am amazed at your conduct this afternoon. Not five minutes ago I reminded you of our rule about men sleeping in the library. You seemed to understand what I said. I saw you leave your desk and walk down the aisle. Just this moment I glanced down and saw that big fellow still asleep."

"I—there was no one asleep—he wasn't asleep—"
"Very strange. Are you quite sure that your eyes are strong enough for library work, Miss Marriott?"
"Oh . . . I can see perfectly. . . . I'll go down again."
"Send him out. Instantly. He's nothing but a nuisance."
"Yes, Miss Giltson." A delicate pink glow in her cheeks as she started toward the rear of the room. Resolutely, all the elasticity gone from her step, she passed through sections H. and J. lips set in a firm line. She must perform her duty, must satisfy Miss Giltson and retain her position. But why did he have to fall asleep every time he came in!

"Take your hat and go—you aren't allowed to sleep in the library," she stood beside him, her voice lowered for his ears alone. She used Miss Giltson's phrase but into the soft rebuke she poured all her sympathy, all her womanly gentleness, all her heart. The tone of a woman addressing her beloved, although she was unconscious of it. "I hate to disturb you . . . if only you wouldn't go asleep every time!"
"If I didn't," his shaggy head raised from the table, "you wouldn't come and wake me." His deep voice exactly right for a hero out of adventure tales. "The only reason I came in was to see you—I saw you through the window last week. Then I found I had to pretend to be asleep to get you to notice me."

"I hate to tell men to go . . . Miss Giltson insists . . ."
"Miss Marriott!" Thunder as well as ice in her tone. "I am painfully astonished at your conduct today. All week, in fact, I have given you every opportunity to remember your duty. Much as I regret it, I feel obliged to ask you to leave the library at once."
"You too?" Withering scorn in the look she gave the bronzed man who had risen to stand beside Hallie Marriott like a towering protector. "This is no place for vagrants."

"I'll wait for you outside," he ignored Miss Giltson, his dark glance deepening the color in her assistant's oval face. "We'll be vagrants together." His richly amused laugh rang through the high room, fluttered the dry leaves of the volumes on the shelves.
"I only pretended to fall asleep to have you notice me, to hear your voice," he told Hallie as they moved slowly through the violet dusk toward the spired church. "But this afternoon I nearly drifted off in earnest. I've been working like the deuce getting ready for my next trip—the icy lady struck it mighty close," he laughed. "I am sort of vagrant. Ever been to Zanzibar, honey?"

"I've never been anywhere—except in dreams," she murmured.
"With your training in writing so neatly you ought to be no end of a help to a fellow like me. My notes are always in a horrible mess, but the people at the university don't seem to hold my scratching against me. They're chasing me off to dig up more ruins." They had passed the brick walls of the Convent of Notre Dame, were close to the big stone house adjoining the spired church. "I've been staying here with my old friend Doctor Holt since I got back from Egypt," he explained.

"Egypt," she repeated, blue eyes wide. "Egypt . . . why . . . you're . . . Dirk Forrest!" The man she had long ago set up as her heart's hero. But . . . Dirk Forrest! So popular . . . sought after.
"Yes—that fool explorer. We'd better go in right away, I think, and talk to Holt about marrying us. I have to sail—we have to sail—in two days."

Terms of Admiration That Are Overworked

There are words in the English language, says an article in Popular Knowledge, that the average person uses to distract. Poor, defenseless words—they are pampered to the point of exhaustion, while slow-witted humans beings look on.
Like fat, sleek, weary Angora pussies, such words as dainty, exquisite, lovely, charming, dear, drag out dull lives on idly smart, flippant tongues.
After the manner of prisoned panthers, marvelous, wonderful, magnificent, even adorable, are made to parade before the public eye. Refreshed in speeches, they are frittered to the point where nothing matters, where a doughnut is called marvelous and where there is no refreshing common thing. Wonders become as trite as polish, and magnificence is ascribed to the thickest of acts. A box of candy is "simply adorable."

Luckily not all spoil the same words. One person pets innocent "beautiful" to the point where this adjective, once coy, obtrudes itself into every conversation. Like a tabby who does not know her place, she clambers upon the mental chair of every sentence.
Another strokes "lovely" with such sweetness, often repeated staccato notes that the little thing is nauseated.
And so it goes. School girls and socializing women are not the only linguistic sinners. In almost everyone's conversational lexicon there are unfortunate words whose tragedy it is to be petted.

These mascots of speech, these hearth-side word-tablets, unlike their better equipped namesakes, have no last resort of claws that scratch. They are helpless. Only their spoilers can save them. But their spoilers, in an unblissful ignorance of their mental estate, cannot function as savers of words. Sorry is the outlook for the race of linguistic tabbies.

Community Building

City's Wisdom Shown in Looking to the Future

Millions of dollars will be saved to American cities through the planning of city improvements early. This is evidenced by the experience of Akron, Ohio, which, through carefully contemplated and progressive street widening, has already saved nearly $2,000,000 according to E. E. Duffy, head of one of the largest associations dealing in building and road construction materials.
"Ten years ago Akron adopted a street-widening plan calling for the eventual widening of nearly twenty miles of streets," he said. "To have widened these thoroughfares outright would have been impossible, for the total cost would have been some $20,000,000. The plan was adopted of establishing new setback building lines so that as buildings became obsolete and were replaced, the new structures were erected ten feet or more back from the former building line.
"The $2,000,000 saving made by Akron includes money saved through the avoidance of condemnation charges. Having saved this amount in ten years, the city is now going to spend roughly that amount in widening forty and a half miles of an important artery."

Essential Factors in Creating Land Demand

We are in the habit of judging values of real estate by the general activity in the real estate market, building operations, building permits issued, acreage bought and sold, general business conditions and similar indications. But there are other important ways of gauging rising values.
The growth in population, transportation, utilities, industry, public improvements, etc., are some other factors which add to permanent real estate values because they indicate demand, accessibility, comfort, buying power, progress, desirability and the like, to the prospective buyer.
We have only to imagine the sales resistance in marketing a piece of urban real estate without improved streets, without utilities like gas, electricity, water, sewers and telephones; without factories or business nearby to create pay rolls; without rapid transportation to and from regular places of employment or business, and the importance of these factors in creating and increasing values in real estate becomes self-evident.

Fire Prevention

Each year the number of communities actively participating in the observance of "fire prevention week" increases and better results are obtained. Many individuals and organizations are in a position to be of service during the campaign, which should be planned in advance.
Because of the authority vested in their positions, public officials, such as mayors, village presidents and fire marshals, can aid fire prevention campaigns materially by taking part in the program and issuing proclamations calling upon citizens to participate. Usually they realize the danger of fire and gladly cooperate.

Building Cost Lowered

Although industrial building has been at high levels this year, the cost of a new factory structure is 6 per cent below the average for the last ten years, according to a survey of building costs throughout the country just made by a Chicago firm of engineers and builders.
The cost of industrial construction is now 40 per cent under the peak reached in 1920 and it is at the lowest point since late in 1922. The computation is based on a standard building 100 by 200 feet, and it includes prices of material and wages of labor.

Shrubs in Shady Spots

There are many shrubs which will grow well or perhaps better in shady situations than in the sun. Such plants include: Japanese barberry, red bud, red osier, dogwood, hazelnut, deutzia, forsythia, hills-of-snow, various species of privet, Indian currant, Van Houttei spirea, Japanese maple and numerous viburnums. In planting shrubs around the home many situations such as north exposures and tree shaded areas will be found where some shrubs will not grow. If the proper species are selected and cared for a vigorous and healthy growth will result in any situation.

Beauty in Building

Communities built to look like "pens in a pod" have aroused the American Institute of Architects into developing a plan for a union of effort in the arts of designing. C. Herrick Hammond, president of the Institute, announced.
The movement would bring about collaboration among architects, sculptors, mural painters, landscape designers and craftsmen in creating a new mode of architectural expression.

Modernize With Windows

The dark, dismal house with its dismal walls has gone. Bright, healthy rooms and friendly exteriors have come to stay. More and larger windows is the verdict of the architect and owner alike. Thousands of old homes are being modernized in this way.

NEVER wait to see if a headache will "wear off." Why suffer when there's Bayer Aspirin? The millions of men and women who use it in increasing quantities every year prove that it does relieve such pain. The medical profession pronounces it without effect on the heart, so use it as often as it can spare you any pain. Every druggist always has genuine Bayer Aspirin for the prompt relief of a headache, colds, neuralgia, lumbago, etc. Familiarize yourself with the proven directions in every package.

Mystery

Making fun of the present-day modes for women is a favorite indoor and outdoor sport, but it has remained for a clergyman to put out one of the prize boue mots of the season. Rev. W. E. Biedervolf declares: "Nowadays, when you look at women from the back it is often hard to tell whether they are daughters of fourteen or Daughters of the Revolution."

No Use

FAMILY DOCTOR LEARNED THIS ABOUT CONSTIPATION

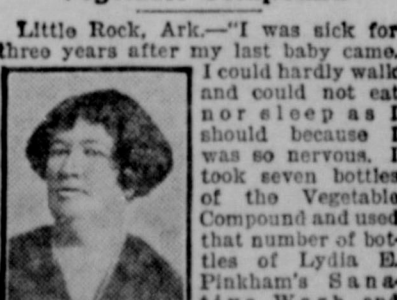

Dr. Caldwell loved people. His years of practice convinced him many were ruining their health by careless selection of laxatives. He determined to write a harmless prescription which would get at the cause of constipation, and correct it.

Today, the prescription he wrote in 1885 is the world's most popular laxative! He prescribed a mixture of herbs and other pure ingredients now known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, in thousands of cases where bad breath, coated tongue, gas, headaches, biliousness and lack of appetite or energy showed the bowels of men, women and children were sluggish. It proved successful in even the most obstinate cases; old folks liked it for it never gripes; children liked its pleasant taste. All druggists today have Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin in bottles.

WOMAN SICK THREE YEARS

Helped By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

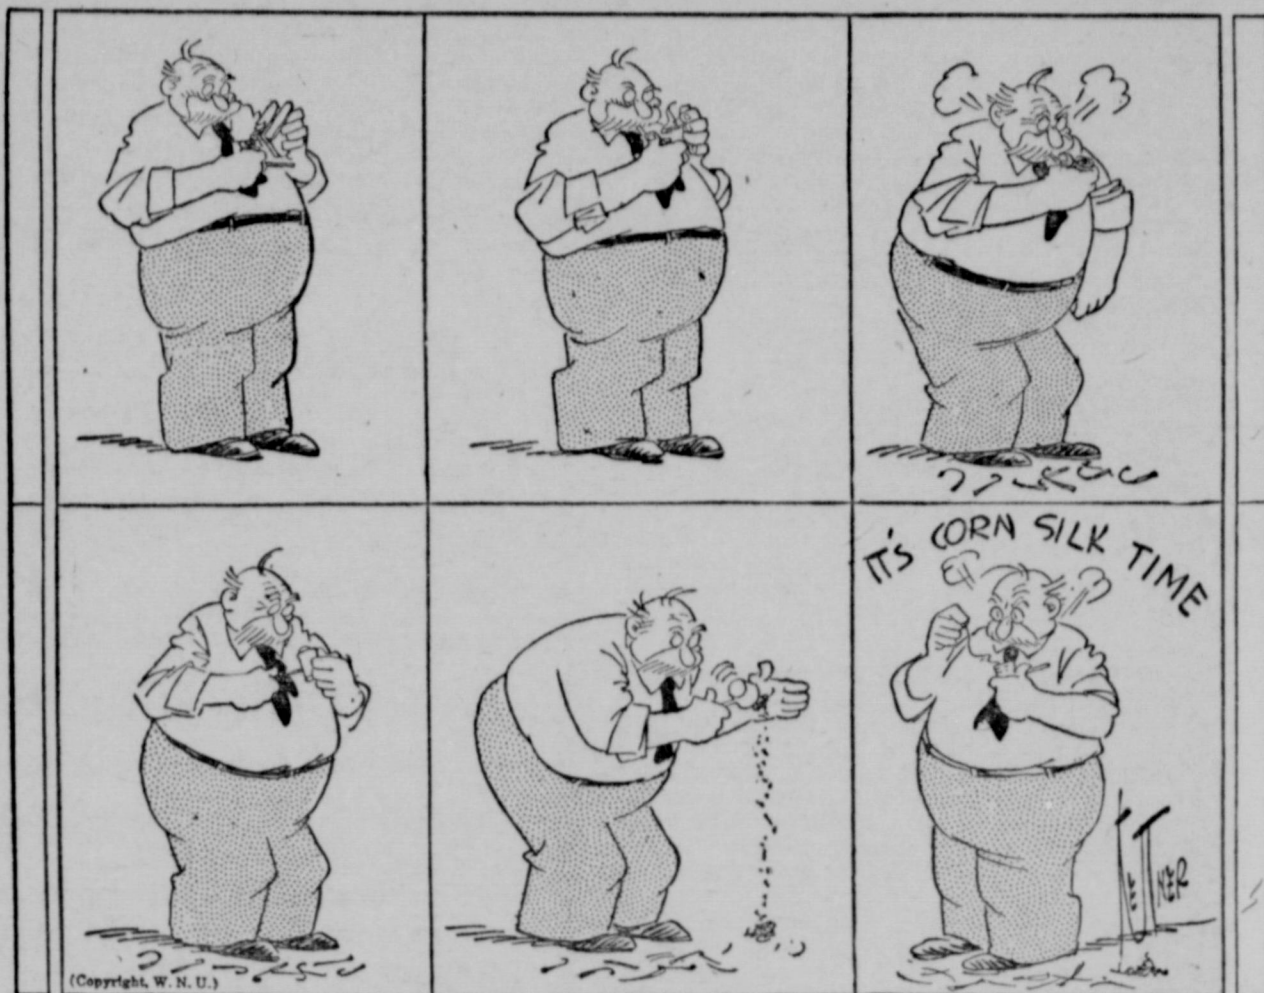

Little Rock, Ark.—"I was sick for three years after my last baby came. I could hardly walk and could not eat nor sleep as I should because I was so nervous. I took seven bottles of the Vegetable Compound and used that number of bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Sensitive Wash and I am feeling just fine. I have a large family and do the work for all. Your Compound made me a well woman, and I have a happy home now. I always try to keep a bottle of the Vegetable Compound in the house and I tell everyone about it for I know it will help them."—Mrs. H. A. Adams, R. F. D. 5, Box 63, Little Rock, Arkansas.

Great Geyser Exhibit
The most comprehensive geyser exhibit in the world has been placed in the new Yellowstone Park museum building at Old Faithful, under the supervision of Dorr C. Yeager, park naturalist. It consists of specimens of the various types of geyser and hot springs deposits and of diagrammatic pointings showing how a geyser works, and of the evolution of a geyser through the geological ages. The museum has been located at Old Faithful because that is the geyser capital of the earth. More active geysers of the first order are to be found within a ten mile radius of this spot than in all the rest of the world put together.

COGITATIONS and APHORISMS of JODOK

I cannot help but think that was a good program which the people of the Friona community put over last week. While it appears that there were a few who did not fall in line with Capt. Nussbaum's line of thought and work, the large majority of us did and there was no question but that his work here will live after him.

Some say, "He never told a thing that we did not already know." Yea, verily, but he told us a lot of things we should be doing, which we are not doing and he started us to doing some of them. Now if we "fall from grace" as it were, whose fault is it but our own?

Not only did he cast the light of correct reasoning along the lines of material and economic progress, but in his sermon on

AMARILLO WOMAN GAINS DAILY BY TAKING ORGATONE

"I've Never Found Anything to Equal It," She Declared, Suffered Five Years.

"If I could speak with everybody personally who has stomach trouble and constipation," said Mrs. J. W. Jones of 202 Florida Ave., Amarillo, Texas, "I would advise them to take Orgatone, for I have tried it myself and have never found anything to equal it. I have suffered from sick headaches and kidney trouble during the past five years until I thought I would go distracted. The pain would extend from the small of my back up my spine till it seemed like to me 'right at the base of my brain. My appetite was very poor and my stomach was so out of order that what little I did eat made me miserable. I suffered terribly from indigestion and would bloat up badly from the gas on my stomach that I could scarcely breathe, and there was also a dull aching pain in the pit of my stomach. My complexion was very bad, sallow and yellow looking and I just felt badly all the time.

"But Orgatone has been a wonderful blessing to me and no one could see the change that has taken place in me during the past few weeks and doubt it being a great medicine. All my stomach pains also kidney is gone now, and you may know I feel like a new person. My appetite is splendid, I am never bothered with indigestion or gas any more, no matter what I eat, and my color is fine. Not only have I been relieved of my kidney and stomach trouble but I have also gained wonderfully in strength, besides now, these are my reasons for thinking so well of Orgatone and I will gladly tell anyone who cares to call on me what I have found out by experience about it."

Genuine Orgatone is manufactured by one of the world's largest laboratories and is not a so-called secret or patent remedy but a new scientific bile treatment and is sold in Friona by the City Drug Store.—Adv.

Sunday he cast the piercing rays of his searching of truth along the avenues of spirituality or spiritual life. Again will we take heed or will we continue to stumble on with this glaring light of reason staring us in the face, yet see nothing?

Well, anyway, we would perhaps never have had that wonderful list of members for our local Chamber of Commerce if the Captain had not put us on the job and saw that we stayed there until the work was done.

Three hundred and sixty-eight members in one day. Of course, several of these were original 35 or 40 who have been considered as members all the time, but many of whom had made no effort to show by their actions that they were members. But even then 368 is a goodly number.

And the number is not all there is to it. These members come from the town and the farm and from all walks of life, trades and professions of the community life.

They are men and women, farmers and towns people, business and professional people—those who own and operate their own business, and those who assist others; thus binding all interests of the community into one grand organization, whose purpose is to work for the common good of all. That is just my ideal of a real Chamber of Commerce.

Now, I wonder if we can not all boost for a county agent for the farmers and a good water system and streets for the town; a home demonstration agent for the housewife, rural telephones and good roads for the country and a good system of sanitation for the town; mutual commercial advantages and good schools for all of us.

For "My town is your town and your town is my town; and your country is my country and my country is your country, and the whole thing belongs to all of us. Now let us get busy."

I think that was a fine thing our people did for that poor woman and her helpless babe Saturday morning. That is real human sympathy put into actual practice, and allowing the Chamber of Commerce to bear the burden of finance gives all of us a small share in it.

While we are all glad to give to the young man and his young wife the credit for the initial act of going out on the highway and bringing her to the hotel, where she could pass the night in comfort, yet it is high time that we all learn the fact that in so doing we are merely doing our duty to our fellow beings. Just another way of "doing unto others."

Do you know I have issued a proclamation to myself to form the acquaintance of each and every teacher employed in the Friona school this term and to accomplish this before the term closes.

I have not been doing this for the past few terms and I have been a little selfishly inclined to blame it on the teachers, but evidently I have been in the wrong—at least half way, so I am going my half and the other half, too, if necessary.

I have made the acquaintance of at least three of the new ones already, and one of those who was here last year and I have found them to be the most willing people.

ple to get acquainted with that one ever meets.

I suppose I was allowing myself to form the opinion that these teachers were a little bit too much self-centered, but they are not—they are too intelligent to allow such as that.

We must remember that they are a group of young people who are away from home and friends and that we are just a big lot of strangers to them—all looking and acting very much alike so far as they can see, and it is up to us to make ourselves known to them as individuals.

One of my friends told me the other day that there was a man on the street taking pictures. I looked out and saw our city engineer in the act of surveying our streets for the location of water mains. He was looking through his theodolite (or what ever he calls it) but the only picture he was making was that of a beautiful and growing city with an adequate water system, which he was imprinting on his mind thru his sense of sight.

The speaker told us Sunday we made a mistake in looking forward to the black river and the dark valley of death, when we should be looking forward for the happy land, the bright and shining shore, the land of pure delight, the land that is fairer than day.

There is an old maxim that says "Man will always find what he is looking for." It occurs to me that this may just as well be true of spiritual matter as in material affairs, and if we look for the dark side we will get it, or if we look for the bright side we may also get that. Seems to me it is worth trying. At any rate it is lots

The chicks cost $50 and the feed bills have been $16. The girls have followed good feeding and housing and management practices throughout the demonstration and for completing it are to be given two cockerels by the local chamber of commerce.

Feeding for Eggs Paid Them Well

Waxahachie, Tex.—After keeping chickens for 18 years without paying much attention to proper feeding, Mrs. R. L. Parr and her husband decided to try Extension Service poultry feeding methods advocated through home demonstration clubs.

In spite of losing 165 of their flock of 354 English White Leg horns by theft, Mrs. Parr recently told Ellis county home demonstration members that an average profit above feed cost of $58.33 per month had been made from January to July inclusive. The total profit above feed was $550.85 for the six months, with January the least profitable month and March the most profitable.

The cost of feed was $234. The first two months the mash was home mixed, but after that a commercial mixture was cheaper. It consisted of corn, maize, oats, wheat bran, and cotton seed meal ground together and fed with charcoal, and oyster shell. The flock had constant access to green pasture consisting of Bermuda grass, wheat and oats.

A FRIENDLY VIEW OF RUSSIA

In a recent press release Oswald Garrison Villard, editor of the Nation, and an alleged ultra-liberal, praises the zeal and industry of the Russian government, which he is now visiting. Then he says: "The soviet rule is, of course, just what it pretends to be. It is a dictatorship with no mercy for dissenters. They are shot or sent to Siberia, no opposition press is tolerated. The men in charge of Russia will certainly not give up the reins of government until they have tried out the communist form of government to their heart's content."

This is not an indictment by a biased capitalist, but a statement of fact by a well known editor who has looked with respect on the Russian experiment, and is said to favor recognition of their government by this country. And aside from the questions of industry, private property rights and individualism, it shows clearly the basic reason why Americans have steadfastly fought all trends toward socialism and communism.

It is an amazing fact that in this relatively enlightened twentieth century a great government can exist which has "no mercy for dissenters" and does away with opposition by the simple expedient of legalized murder or long imprisonment. If conditions of the same sort existed in this country, many independent editors would probably spend the rest of their lives in Leavenworth. A people who value individualism and personal and intellectual freedom must necessarily look on the soviet government with distaste and ever-disguised. The United States is not ready for a dictatorship.

Doubles Fertility Of His Land

Marshall.—Beacher Newman of Harleston community in Harrison county top-dressed three acres of oats with 100 pounds of nitrate of soda and gathered 60 bushels of oats to the acre this year. He then planted cowpeas and harvested two tons of hay per acre. This demonstration was conducted in cooperation with the county agent on the nine acre plot which Mr. Newman and his brother started five years ago in the crop rotation contest. They are still rotating corn and peas, cotton, oats and cowpeas. The productivity of the land is said to have increased 100 per cent in the five years.

Levelland.—Land that T. M. Hester plowed from 10 to 12 inches deep three years ago on his farm near Cobleland, Hockley county, made twice as much corn per acre this year as land plowed shallow at that time. The land has been handled the same and has grown the same crops since that time, W. T. Magee, county agent, states.

Wheat on the deep plowed land was six inches taller and much heavier than that on ordinary land. Mr. Hester follows the practice of listing his land early, from 10 to 12 inches deep the first time, and then plants in the middles after hasting rather shallow. Such fields have withstood the drought very well.

General Topic
RECOGNIZING OUR DEBT TO OTHERS

Mark 12:28-34, James 2:14-17

Introduction.

Recognizing our debt to others is our social obligation. Man is a social being. That "no man liveth unto himself, and no man dieth unto himself" is a well known social axiom. We are dependent on others from birth to death. For the food we eat, the clothes we wear, the books we read, the music we hear, the hundreds of good things we enjoy, we are deeply indebted to others. It follows, then, that selfishness is man's greatest social sin. He who withdraws from society lives within the narrow walls of his own little self, has no interest in the great outside world with its heartaches, its needs, its aspirations—such a one has not the spirit of Christ. Unselfish service is the law of the christian in society, for "Whosoever would become great among you shall be your minister; and whosoever would be first among you, shall be servant of all."

Working Together.

Sir John Lubbock, the great student of ants, noticed one day that all his ants were in their nests except one, which was out hunting alone, about six feet from home. So he took a dead blue-bottle fly and pinned it to a piece of cork, putting it down right in front of her. She tried at once to carry off the fly but found it immovable. She tugged and tugged in vain. Then she went straight home and into her nest, where she remained less than half a minute, coming out with twelve friends who trooped after her to the food she had discovered. All working together they tore up the fly and carried it off in triumph.

Now if these tiny insects learned the advantage of working together, surely we human beings should make the same lesson ours. That is what is taught us by the story of Nehemiah and his wall-building, Neh. 4:15-21. We studied the event fully in the lesson for September 8.

"There Is No Self-Made Man."

"Now there is no self-made man. Every successful life is the product in large part of what others have been and what others have done. Edison works his triumphs thru his ability to set others to investigating for him. Prof. Lowes of Harvard has written a wonderful book, 'The Road to Xanadu,' showing how Coleridge, in the alenbic of his wonderful memory, built up those works of genius, 'Kubla Khan,' and 'The Rise of the Ancient Mariner,' out of his omnivorous reading. Every merchant prince has been able to organize an army or eager toilers. Christ is the best model of success, and he trained his disciples to work with him and carry on his work after him. Paul, the most remarkable of his apostles, had a host of co-workers. We are in debt to those who work with us and for us, and in turn we must co-operate with them. Thus we shall go onward together."

Debt of the Strong to the Weak.

"We then that are strong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak, and not to please ourselves." In one of the tenderest chapters of the Bible, Paul the strong man says that the strong shall bear the infirmities of the weak. We are not under obligation to please ourselves, but to please our neighbors; and not to please them in any way that will weaken them, but to please them "unto edifying." That is, unto their upbuilding. And for this work we have the best of all examples, "For Christ also pleased not himself."

The duty of caring for the weak is at the base of all such laws as the Eighteenth Amendment. Some may be strong enough to avoid the temptation of strong drink, but many, the great majority, are not strong enough and the strong must look out for the weak, and not selfishly seek to please themselves.

The Debt of Lowly Service.

"Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus." Perhaps if Paul could be said to have a favorite among all the churches established, it would be the First Church of Europe, that in Philippi. Among its members were Lydia and the jailer and probably Luke. The Philippi Christians always sympathetic with Paul's purpose and loyal in advancing his plans. The apostle's letter to them is "the epistle of joy."

Our extract from this lovely piece of writing is an exhortation to continuance in the same Christian fellowship which they had enjoyed from the beginning, "being of one accord, of one mind, in lowliness of mind each counting others better than himself, not looking each of you to his own things, but each of you also to the things of others." Paul especially commended this attitude because it was Christ's, who descended from his divine estate into the lowly but of men, who took the form of a servant and suffered for our sake the terrible death of the cross. That is the kind of service which we are to render, in his spirit and with his strength.

The Debt of Justice.

Paul once more, writing to the members of the church which he founded in Coloss now now Christians who were "God's elect, holy and beloved," bade each of them "put on a heart of compassion, kindness, lowliness, meekness, long-suffering." He went on to illustrate this Christian attitude in the cases of wives and husbands, fathers and servants, with relation to their husbands and wives, their children and their masters.

"Slowly the general conscience is coming to recognize our duty to others more and more clearly, and its application is becoming more decisive with each generation. All masters and employers of labor, in their mills and warehouse, are bid to bise their relations to "hands" and servants on the one firm foundation of justice. Paul does not say "give your servants what is kind and patronizing," he wants a great deal more than that. Charly likes to come in and supply the wants which would never have been felt had there been equity. An ounce of justice is sometimes more than a ton of charity."—Alexander MacLaren.

The Debt of Giving.

James the Just—not the first martyr of the apostles, the brother of our Lord, the head of the church in Jerusalem who presided over the first church council—wrote a keen and sagacious epistle which has been well called "The Gospel of Common Sense." Hear him urge the duty of charitable giving.

"What doth it profit, my brethren, if a man say he hath faith, but have not works? It is useless for a man to claim that he has Christian faith if his life does not prove it. Saying that a man has a thing does not give it to him. Can that faith save him? Faith such as that? More theoretical faith apart from life itself?"

"James never questions that faith is the instrument of salvation, but insists that if faith is real it will manifest itself in works. Faith is trust and devotion of obedience and love; a faith which is more assent to a creed is not worthy the name. A faith which does not produce works cannot save, it is dead, it is barren—this is the truth which James seeks to establish in this famous section of his epistle."—Prof. Charles R. Erdman.

"Faith Without Works Is Dead."

"If a brother or sister be naked (poorly clothed) and in lack of daily food," "What was the faith worth which could witness suffering and not be stirred to help?" The Gentile disciples had, we read, done their best to alleviate the distress of the churches of Judaea. St. James' language, addressed to the Jews and Jewish Christians of the dispersion, would seem to imply that they had shown less forwardness and had wrapped themselves up in the self-satisfaction of professing the orthodox faith of the sons of Abraham, while the Gentile converts whom they despised were setting an example of self-denying charity."—Dean E. H. Plumpire. And their leader in this charity, which we must not forget, was Paul, who emphasized the doctrine of justification by faith.

"Even so faith, if it have not works, is dead in itself." "It is as a body without a soul. It is not only dead as regards the effects which it produces on others; it is dead in itself. How can such faith save?"—Principal Wm. Patrick, D. D. Over against this dead faith we have to set the dead works named in Heb. 6:1, 9-14. Either is dead without the other "Archbishop Whately illustrated this by saying that faith and works are like the two oars of a boat—pull either one alone and the boat circles about and makes no progress, pull both together and the haven of eternal rest is sure to be reached."—Charles W. Deems.

RECIPES OF DESTRUCTION

Here are a few good recipes for destroying your home, factory or any other property:

Let your electric wiring go without repairs or inspections over a long period of time; leave piles of oil-soaked rags or other waste lying around in corners of your garage or basement; don't use fire-resisting construction in building, because it costs a little more; drop lighted matches and cigarette butts wherever you may happen to be; light your fires with gasoline.

No one, of course, is going to consciously use these recipes of destruction or any of the many others of the same nature. Yet it is safe to say that millions of

In such self-forgetful way, That even when I kneel to pray, My prayer shall be for others. Others, Lord, yes others. Let this my motto be. Help me to live for others, That I may live like thee.

Americans have equal fire risks in their homes or places of business. Laziness, carelessness, ignorance—these are the best friends of the fire menace.

Every time the fire engines dash out in their race against time it means that someone has done something or failed to do something that a little intelligent thought would have warned him against. We Americans are the most careless of peoples when it comes to fire and the most wasteful.

Fire Prevention Week will shortly be here. It will be a good time to profit by the knowledge and the teachings of experts who are fighting the discouraging war against fire. Almost every great conflagration would be prevented if we spent a few more dollars or a little more time in guarding against risks. Begin now.

SKINS DAD WHEN IT COMES TO RAISING FINE CORN

Madisonville, Texas.—Woodrow Magness, local 4-H club boy, has produced five times as much corn to the acre as his dad. He flat broke the land early, disced it to improve tilth, fertilized with 100 pounds of a 9-6-3 mixture and side dressed with 100 pounds of nitrate of soda. In spite of having to plant a second time and then having half of it drowned out, he gathered 25 bushels of good heavy corn to the acre while his father produced only five bushels per acre on his 10-acre field.

COLUMBUS MEMORIAL, WASHINGTON, D. C.

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

COLUMBUS day this year, 1929, finds the fame of the great explorer perpetuated in a new and perhaps the greatest of all memorials ever erected to him. For many American visitors to Spain, drawn there by the two expositions, one in Seville and the other in Barcelona, during the past summer, also made a pilgrimage to Palos and there saw the colossal figure of the navigator, standing with arms resting on the traverse of a great cross, his eyes directed westward, looking out over the waters of the Atlantic upon which he set sail from Palos in 1492 to discover a new world.

The statue, the work of an American sculptress, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, was unveiled last April with appropriate ceremonies in which representatives of both Spain and the United States took part. The placing of this monument, America's gift in appreciation of Spain's backing of the Columbus expedition, is another example of a memorial which not only honors a great personage in history but which also makes more binding the ties of friendship between two nations. The plan to erect this memorial grew from a suggestion made in 1925 at a dinner given to the Spanish ambassador in Philadelphia. The money necessary for its erection was secured through contributions from American individuals and institutions. The total cost of it was $250,000.

The statue consists of a 70-foot figure of Columbus surmounting a 44-foot base surrounded by a park and garden. The figure as made by Mrs. Whitney follows the authentic reproduction of Columbus made by Paulus Jovius and still in possession of the Credit at Como. On the four corners of the pedestal are carved reliefs representing the hemispheres and within the base is a 20-foot chamber in which figures of Ferdinand and Isabella sit in royal garb. The walls of the chamber are covered with reliefs, including the arms of Castile, Leon and Aragon, and also a map of the world as it was known before Columbus's discovery of America. There is also an appropriate memorial to the crews of the Santa Maria, the Nina, and the Pinta. The statue is of granite from the famous Hliba quarries.

Just as this memorial is the greatest among those erected to his memory in Europe, so is the national monument to Columbus in Washington, D. C., the greatest in America. This memorial, which stands on the plaza in front of the Union station in the National Capital, was designed by Daniel H. Burnham, architect of the Union station and member of the National Commission of Fine Arts, and Lorado Taft, the famous Chicago sculptor. It was erected under the auspices of the Knights of Columbus. It consists of a semicircular fountain 70 feet wide and 65 feet deep, adorned with a great statue of Columbus and other appropriate figures. At the rear of the fountain rises a stone shaft more than forty feet high surmounted by a globe of the world. Against this background appears the statue of Columbus who is represented as standing on the prow of a vessel with arms folded, looking out over the waters through which his little ship is sailing. The figurehead of the ship is a female figure, typifying the spirit of discovery, and immediately below it is the great basin of the fountain.

On either side of the shaft are massive figures portraying the New and Old world—the New, by the figure of an American Indian, reaching over his shoulder for an arrow from his quiver, and the Old, by the figure of a patriarchal Caucasian, heroic in physique and thoughtful in mien. The globe at the top of the shaft represents the influence of Columbus on the growth of man's knowledge of the shape of the earth. Supporting it are four American eagles standing at the corners at the top of the shaft with wings partially extended.

An even greater memorial to Columbus than any which has yet been erected will some day be a landmark in a land intimately connected with the history of the great explorer. For the nations of the two Americas are planning to co-operate in honoring him with the erection of a four-million-dollar lighthouse as a beacon for navigators of both the sea and air, in the capital of Santo Domingo, the land which Columbus called Hispaniola. A tract of 2,500 acres of waterfront land has been set aside for the Dominican republic for a pan-American park in which the lighthouse is to be built and money has been appropriated for this republic's share of the cost of the memorial. Appropriation bills for that purpose have already been introduced in the United States, Cuba and other Latin-American countries. Financing of the project, which is being carried forward under the auspices of the Pan-American Union, is reported to be in an advanced stage with its success assured and the next step will be an architectural contest in which the leading architects of the world will be invited to submit designs.

The Discovery of America

October 12, 1492.

O God that led me to this lonely place
Amidst the hostile murmuring of men,
I am frightened at the immensity of space,
I am sick of Spain and Italy again.

I have in me a fury of desire
To find and conquer worlds;
yet life is brief,
And the mingling voices of my foes conspire
To drive me back and forth like a giddy leaf.

"We are summoned again," they said,
"to hear again
The ravings of the mariner gone mad
Reading the fables from Marco Polo's pen,
Haughty is he for one so meanly clad."

"What if the earth were round and we could sail
Down to the coasts of Mangi and Cathay?
Think you we would return to tell the tale,
Ascending the waters as they swept away?"

O Isabella, be with me tonight,
When the golden lands of Solomon indeed
Seem but a madman's dream, and men recoil
Tales of the poor map-maker's senseless greed.

"Sail ho! To ho! Land! Is it land ahead,
Or a cloud or a fancy of delirium?
Admiral, Admiral, lift your drowsy head!
It is India, we have reached Elysium!"

Down on your knees and pray as I will pray!
O God that led me to this land of gold
That I find and take possession of today,
You have made me great before
You made me old.

You have lifted me and raised me over men,
You have proved me sane, to prove the earth is round,
The glory of the East is found again.
O India, O holy, holy ground!
—Helene Mullins in the New York World.

Trees Get Their Food

After tests by the New York College of Agriculture it appears that trees are not fed with the necessary salts and sugars by the water which is found in the woody part of the trunk. Instead there are tubes extending through the bark tissues through which the food is carried from the ground and from the leaves by millions of microscopic organisms. These tubes are filled with a living substance, which circulates up and down the tree in an endless stream. Moving downward they carry sugars manufactured by the leaves, and on the return trip they bring up from the earth the nourishment absorbed by the roots.

Getting Crepe Effects
One method of producing crepe effects in silk materials is by alternating a right and left hand highly twisted thread in the warp and filling the fabric with a highly twisted tram

When the material is boiled up and dyed, the effect of the alternating twisted threads is a puckering of the fabric.

Indian Nomenclature
"Sioux" as applied to a large group of Indian tribes is a shortened form of "adowessiou," which in turn is a corruption of "Nadowes-i-w," the name given to these Indians by the Chipewas. It signifies snake or adder, and by metaphor, enemy.—Pathfinder Magazine.

SEASONABLE HINTS

Cauliflower, so well liked as a vegetable, ranks more highly used in pickle combinations or pickled alone. The dainty little flowerets should be carefully separated, washed and drained. To avoid insects turn the head upside down in a pan of salted water—a fly insect hidden will come out to the surface of the water.

Pickled Cauliflower.—Break into small flowerets after removing leaves and stalks. Cook in boiling salted water for ten minutes. Rinse in cold water to which a bit of lemon juice has been added. Pack the pieces in sterilized jars, dropping a long chili pepper in each jar for added attractiveness as well as flavor. Fill the jars with hot spiced vinegar and seal while hot. Prepare the vinegar as follows:

To each quart of vinegar add one-half cupful of sugar, one teaspoonful each of whole cloves and broken stick cinnamon blades of mace, whole allspice, celery seed, peppercorns and two small sliced onions; boil 15 minutes, strain and use at once. One large cauliflower for each quart jar and one quart of vinegar will be sufficient for three-quart jars if well packed.

Apple Butter.—This makes a delicious spread which the children will enjoy as long as it lasts. Take good flavored early apples, pare, core, and put through the meat chopper together with a lemon, orange, and two ounces of green ginger root. Measure the fruit pulp and add an equal amount of sugar and a pint of water. Cook gently, stirring frequently until clear and thick. Can in pint jars. Seal while hot.

Wild Grape Jelly Spiced.—This is especially well liked to serve with game in the fall and winter. Wash four quarts of grapes and put into the preserving kettle with one pint of vinegar, a bag of mixed spices, cloves, stick cinnamon, and blades of mace. Bring to a boil, wash and cook until very soft, then pour into a jelly bag. Boil the juice 15 minutes, add three plants of sugar and cook until thick. Seal in glasses.

Wild grape jam is delicious to serve with meats. Use the half ripe grapes (remove seeds) and add three-quarters of their weight in sugar. Place in a kettle with two tablespoonfuls of vinegar and orange or lemon juice to start the steam. Bring slowly to the boiling point and cook a half-hour after boiling commences.

Apple Relish.

Take eight firm tart apples, four medium-sized onions, one cupful of raisins and one sweet red pepper. Peel and chop the apples as well as the raisins and other vegetables, mix thoroughly. Boil one quart of vinegar, two and one-half cupfuls of brown sugar, three teaspoonfuls of salt, four tablespoonfuls of whole mixed spices tied in a muslin bag. When the sirup is formed stir in the other ingredients and cook for one hour slowly. The sauce will be very thick when finished. Seal hot.

Ripe Cucumber Pickles.—Many prefer these to the watermelon pickles which are such favorite sweet pickles. Pare ripe cucumbers and cut into long strips, removing the seeds. Cover with a quart of water in which three tablespoonfuls of salt have been dissolved, adding more water and salt to cover the cucumbers. Let stand several hours then drain and place in cold water. Make a sirup of one and one-half pints of vinegar, one pound of granulated sugar, one-half ounce each of stick cinnamon and whole cloves. Boil five minutes. Drop in the cucumber and cook until it is transparent. Tuck in small pieces of red pepper here and there and place in jars. Boil down the sirup and pour over boiling hot; seal at once.

Horseradish Relish.—Take three large grated roots of horseradish, add one tablespoonful of turmeric, a tablespoonful of celery seed, two tablespoonfuls of mustard, one-half cupful of sugar and enough boiling vinegar to make a pint and a half. Mix well and bottle. Serve after standing two weeks. This is a sauce which goes well with cold meats and chops. It is bitingly appetizing.

Chocolate Malted Milk.—Melt two squares of bitter chocolate, add four tablespoonfuls of malted milk dissolved and mixed with a little cold water then brought to a boil, add a quart of scalding hot milk, a pinch of salt and as much sugar as is needed to sweeten. Serve hot or chilled, with ice.

Those who are at all troubled with rheumatism should keep the blood free from acid by a daily use of oranges.

NEW IDEAS IN COAT STYLES; TWEEDLIKE SILKS POPULAR

A SPIRIT to ring out the old, ring in the new, pervades the entire coat-styling realm. The whole atmosphere is fairly surcharged with a sense of change. Flares instead of straight silhouettes, sleeves which have developed a complex, high waisted lines which compete with Princess fitted effects; these details and more bespeak a revolution in "lines."

Even the all-silk weaves are yielding to tweed persuasion. And what wearable, likable suits for fall there's the two-piece ensemble in the lower picture, per example. From the standpoint of both fabric and styling, likewise in coloring it classes as a suit—ideal for autumn. It is just such as women love to "have and to hold" and to wear on mild pre-winter days. This much-to-be admired costume is made of a new fabric, "just out" this one thrill after another is on the program, both for the all-fur coat and the furled cloth coat.

Especially in the matter of sleeve-design, style creators are stopping at nothing which will achieve the unusual. One of the vagaries of fur cuffs is to travel up the sleeve, to and beyond the elbow. The sleeves in the picture tell a story of this outstanding trend. It suggests but one among the strange and devious tricks modern cuffs are performing.

One of the distinctive features of sleeves, this is that of widened and flowing lines about the wrist. In other words sleeves are taking to themselves flares quite the same as are skirt hemlines. Flat pelts, such as caracul, ermine and broadtail, especially lend themselves to these effects. A wide cuff of the fabric-like fur often starts at the elbow developing into a decided bell at the wrist. Then again godets of the thin fur are sensed into the cloth of the coat so as to secure a conspicuous flare.

And the whimsical collars, how flattering they are. In many instances season and sold in the silk section. Printed in tweed design, it has the appearance of cloth, the touch of chambray, and the softness of silk. It is the successful result of an effort to produce a pure silk fabric, which has all the characteristics of woolen weave designs.

The bows, the designful borderings, the finely-stitched platings of the skirt, all of which details mark the styling of this charming frock and coatee, attest to the adaptability of these tweedlike silks to manipulation.

What an inspiration the new silks and other lovely weaves are going to prove to the home-sewing woman this fall and winter. "They say" that the family dressmaker is about to come into her own again. It's this way: the new fashions demand "dressmaker touches," myriads of perky and soft-tied bows, "oodles" of fine shirtings and buckings, let-in godets and all sorts of "doings" known to the dress-making art. Then, too, lines are expected to be more or less fitted to be individualized to the wearer. It is personality gowns, so to speak, which there is a definite reaction from small tailored types. The inclination toward picturesque lines is especially apparent in collars which set away from the face. There are cleverly designed shawl interpretations which become capes when flattened over the shoulders. Often the shawl is of the cloth bordered with wide fur. Scarf themes are endless, worked out in flat caracul, ermine, sheared panther, or the popular galyak.

There's a lot being done with two kinds of furs, or with two colors of the same fur. Flat furs are frequently enhanced with long-haired borderings.

are the call of the current mode. Wherefore, it is plain to be seen why the re-enthronement of the for-many-years-slighted dressmaker is in prospect.

If one can sew at all the lure of the new materials is sure to "get them" this season. However, dressmaker or no dressmaker, the exclusive salons and ateliers are fairly bubbling over with a super-abundance of beautiful clothes. You can see by this picture of a tweed silk suit what stunning costumes are available.

Plan Safety Program on Far Greater Scale

Pointing out that motor vehicle fatalities throughout the nation had increased 29 per cent in the five-year period between 1924 and 1928, the accident prevention department of the Chicago Motor club announces plans for an intensive safety program on a scale far greater than ever before in the history of the club.

"While the motor club is taking every known means to reduce the number of accidents in which adults are involved, we shall center our efforts to save children from injury or death," the announcement said. "After nearly ten years passed in fostering the school boys' safety patrol, we are convinced that that method is the most effective means yet devised for protecting the youngsters. Our safety staff has recently been doubled and with the added personnel we shall be able to achieve 100 per cent organization of patrols throughout our territory.

"The majority of schools in that region has had patrols for a number of years. The large staff will make regular visits to the schools, not only for the purpose of organizing patrols, but to insure their operation in accordance with regulations and to make effective addresses on the subject of safety to various student bodies. "The distribution to school rooms of monthly safety posters, illustrated in two colors, is another phase of safety education that we shall enlarge. Last year we issued about 25,000 every month. We hope to double that number during the coming nine months of the school year. The posters portray a simple but effective lesson in safety, and most teachers require the children to write compositions based on them. Subjects on which the juvenile mind must give sufficient thought to write are not soon forgotten.

"Ways and means whereby the highway sign service has been perfected have been discovered, thereby permitting the club to co-operate 100 per cent with all communities desiring this service.

"The foregoing activities are but the high spots of the present safety plans of the club. They are not to be considered in the form of a "drive" or "campaign;" instead of being a temporary effort, they are being waged consistently and persistently at all times. The outstanding difference between past and future activities is that the latter will be far more widespread than the former."

THE ANIMALS

"I am so sick of that old story about a giraffe having a sore throat," said the giraffe to himself.

He hadn't any real voice for you never hear any sounds from giraffes.

Maybe that is the reason the story has got around for the giraffe has not been able to say it was not a new story and that he was tired of it.

People always seem to think they are being funny when they speak of a giraffe and a possible sore throat.

"I Am Lame."

"If a giraffe had a sore throat, or ever has one, it is not funny.

And it is foolish to say the same thing so often.

"I have a sore throat today," said the hippopotamus. "I really have.

"And it hurts."

"I have something the matter with me," said the elephant.

"I am so sorry," said the hippopotamus.

"What is the matter with you?"

"I am lame," the elephant said. "My ankles have become a little weak and strained."

"Oh, that's too bad," said the hippopotamus, shaking his big, strange head.

"That's too bad, indeed, it's too bad."

"You're certainly being very polite and sympathetic."

"I don't think I know the meaning of the word 'Sympathetic' and I'd like to know its meaning when you say I am being that way."

"Oh, it's a lovely word, and it means that you have the power of sympathy or the power of being sorry for some one beside yourself," said the elephant.

"I am glad then, that you said that to me, and I am really sorry your ankles hurt."

"Even though ankles are far away from one, in a way, it doesn't matter how far away when they hurt."

"If I have a sore throat I think it is worse than anything because it is right up so close to me, as it were."

"But if a toe hurts it is just as bad, or if ankles hurt."

Quite a few of the animals had little complaints but they were brave about them, and then the keeper came along and he fixed them up so wonderfully.

He looked after each one of them in turn, and how much better they were.

They were so happy feeling better and they kept saying to each other:

"Isn't it so much nicer to talk about aches after they are over?"

And that very next day when the animals were so very much better the keeper gave them a special treat.

Each animal had an extra meal of his favorite food.

It was wonderful to have such a treat, and the animals were very pleased and delighted. They enjoyed it.

No longer did they have to be sympathetic or sad, for all was pleasant in the zoo, and all were well again.

That was waking all the difference!

Had an Extra Meal.

RIDDLES

What is higher without a head than with a head? A pillow.

What most resembles the half of a cheese? The other half.

How can you always have what you please? Be pleased with what you have.

What common thing is very uncommon? Common sense.

What is the difference between an apple and a girl? You have to squeeze the apple to cider, but you have to get side "her" to squeeze her.

Why do blind men often marry blind women? Because love is blind.

What is the difference between a gardener and a Chinaman? One keeps the lawn wet, the other keeps the laundry (lawn) dry.

Spell blind pig with two letters. P. G., a pig without an eye.

What sea would make the best sleeping room? Adriatic (A dry attic.)

What is the difference between a man going upstairs and a man looking upstairs? One steps upstairs and the other stares upstairs.

A Sour Stomach

In the same time it takes a dose of soda to bring a little temporary relief of gas and sour stomach, Phillips Milk of Magnesia has acidity completely checked, and the digestive organs all tranquilized. Once you have tried this form of relief you will cease to worry about your diet and experience a new freedom in eating.

This pleasant preparation is just as good for children, too. Use it whenever coated tongue or field breath signals need of a sweetener. Physicians will tell you that every spoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia neutralizes many times its volume in acid. Get the genuine, the name Phillips is important. Imitations do not act the same!

Winning Teams Need More Stars

Some old sage, as the wise-crackers of the long ago were nicknamed, told the wide world that one swallow did not make a summer. Through the ages, it was generally accepted that the author of this saw had expressed a trunkful of wisdom, and folk, by and large, were satisfied to shape their activities with this bit of advice in view.

Had the sage been interested in football, undoubtedly he would have said:

"One football player does not make a football team."

He, being very wise, probably would have made this even more explicit and pointed out that one backfield star does not make a winning football team.

Football coaches, either from force of circumstances or from pure enviousness, have not put much stock in the bit of wisdom, for a number of them have planned their faith on the one-man backfield with dire results. This has been true in the past several years.

Throughout the early season the cry goes up all over the country from the coaches: "Oh, for a few good linemen."

As the season progresses it becomes painfully evident that what the coaches and the teams really needed was more and better backs. Never in the history of the game has there been such a marked dearth of good backfield men.

Coaches might lay this to force of circumstances if such an excuse could be made plausible. But circumstances that might inhibit the turning out of good backfield men seem to be lacking. Certainly the squads of candidates turning out for football teams this year have been as big and in most cases bigger than ever before. It is equally true that there are as many, if not more, big boys who pack speed with their bulk, entering college as ever before.

Coaches will remark, as they always have, that speed and strength are not all that are needed to make a good back. There must be the spiritus intus, a certain desire to play the backfield and to excel at that style of play.

This answers itself, for the football it would hardly be stretching mathematics or taking a fall out of the old law of averages to say that fully 90 per cent of all boys who seek glory on the gridiron want to play in the backfield. Yet only four-elevenths, a little more than 36 per cent, can make the backfield.

From every possible angle, including the psychological, this is only normal and natural. The competitive spirit which entices a man, woman or child into any field of athletic endeavor holds out as a goal the thrill that comes from scoring points.

In football, secondary only to the scoring of points by way of the touchdown or kicked goal, is the advancing of the ball. This has its analogy in baseball in the base hit compared to the home run.

The boy who chooses football as the means of letting off his athletic steam knows well enough that it is the backfield man who reaps the glory. He knows that it is the back who gets the thrill out of hitting the line or skirting the end. It is the back who hurl the tricky forward pass and as often as not it is a back who receives it.

When there is kicking to be done, whether it is the punt to carry his team out of immediate danger, the place or drop kick to snatch victory from impending defeat, or to score the frequently decisive point after touchdown already achieved, again it is the back. What normal football player does not hanker after such a thrill?

Weather Affects Control

Items for Medicine Kit When on Long Car Trip

When leaving on an extended motor trip it is advisable to take along a few simple remedies to be used in case of an emergency.

Experienced campers recommend that the tourist's medicine kit should contain the following:

Roll of antiseptic bandage, a pair of small scissors, absorbent cotton, healing salve, court plaster, castile soap, vaseline, adhesive plaster, glycerine suppositories, a few flaxseed, to remove cinders from eye; an eye cup, powdered boric acid, for eye wash; castor oil capsules, epsom salts, bicarbonate of soda, quinine capsules, cinchona oil, to ward off the mosquitoes; camphor for chapped lips and hands; anti-cholera tablets, for diarrhea, and iodine applicators for bruises.

Truck Drivers Careful

Truck drivers employed by ten large Cleveland mercantile establishments, competing in a traffic safety contest sponsored jointly by the Cleveland Automobile club and the Cleveland safety council, set a new high mark in safe driving by operating 278,939 miles with but nine accidents, an average of 30,993 miles to an accident. At no time during the preceding six months' contest was the mileage to the accident more than 19,000.

Slotted Nut Assists in Valve Spring Assembly

For removing or replacing the valves in an overhead-valve auto motor, the simple tool shown in the drawing will be found very handy, and any motorist can make it in a few minutes. It consists of a large nut, slotted on one side so that it forms a U-shaped spanner. By placing this over the valve stem, with the legs set firmly against the spring-retaining washer, and applying pressure by means of a wooden lever, as indicated, the spring can be compressed to permit removing or inserting the pin.—G. A. Luers, Washington, D. C., in Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Did You Know

That it is regarded by many that some of the misfiring laid to the carburetor is due to location of the spark plugs in too cool a place? The spark, thus, has too large a gap to jump.

That a considerable amount of pedal play improves the operation of the hydraulic brakes on some makes of car?

That gasoline consumption at high speeds may be twice as great as at the most economical speed—the normal rolling speed of the car?

That brake faults frequently ascribed to linings sometimes are due to warpage and scoring of the brake drums?

Interesting Bits of Sports of Various Kinds

Let us turn now to something else, and argue over pennant possibilities in 1930.

The Blomington club of the Three-I league has sold George Senne, first baseman, to Montreal of the International league.

Sarah Palfrey, sixteen-year-old Boston girl, is one of the best potential prospects for the national women's tennis title.

Whirling around a corner, thereby putting the weight of the whole car on one or two tires, is especially damaging to them.

Johnny Weissmuller, the famous swimmer, is seen regularly on New York's golf courses.

"Wild Bill" Melhorn, the golfer, plays a very good game of bridge, according to several golfers who recently played with him.

Williams, with a great line left over, may again win the Little Three grid title.

"Great open spaces" command admiration. The average citizen asks only for plain parking spaces.

Polo is now played in Paris, France, on mules instead of ponies. The game, while slower than that on ponies, gains in length of play what it loses in speed. The chukkers instead of being a few minutes each last a half hour.

Lella Claude Anet, sixteen-year-old French tennis star, is hailed as a future Suzanne Lenglen.

"Oh, gosh!" muttered the motorist who had just been struck from the rear by the fast freight. "It always makes me ill to ride with my back to the engine."

Bill Lamar, with the A's not long ago, has in two and a half years dropped to Class B baseball via Washington, Newark and Little Rock. He now is with Knoxville.

Inside the great automobile speedway at Indianapolis a golf course has been laid out and is now open to the public.

Twenty-five miles an hour is "reckless driving" if the road is crowded, is the opinion now entered in the state laws of Indiana.

NEW SIX-WHEELED RECONNOISSANCE TRUCK

Joe Benes, infielder, is back in the Eastern league again, this time with Springfield. He was released by Baltimore.

Pop bottle manufacturers, like hat makers, may soon go out of business. Baseball magazines are ruling against pop bottles because of several beheading incidents in the 1929 campaign.

Mrs. Molla Ejurstedt won her first United States national tennis championship in 1915 and repeated on seven other occasions, the last being in 1926.

The Philadelphia Nationals have purchased Tripp Sigman, hard-hitting outfielder of the Canton, Ohio, club.

Automobiles in use outside of the United States now equal the registration in this country in 1919.

Henry Ford may spend $750,000 to build a sloop for international races.

Jimmy Good, Toronto juvenile speed skating champion, pitched a one-hit ball game recently and the very next afternoon finished first in a golf tournament.

The Old Barber Shop

by A. J. Dunkap

*It's gone -- the old barber shop 'only for men'!
It's gone with its stove and its old cuspidor.
Departed -- the sanctum of masculine cheer
Where women looked timidly in at the door.
How often we gathered about the old stove
While Jimmy or Jimmie was taking a shave
Debated the sill or bantered the joke
Appreciated the scunt or berated the knave
Aye, gone! the old shop of the pre-Happer age
A feminine parlor, the place of today.
Where man, dispossessed of his masculine rights,
In silence is shaved and then hurries away*

Delicious refreshments of cake and punch were served.

MRS. BECKNER SENDS APPRECIATION

We are glad to give in full the following letter from our friend and reader, Mrs. L. F. Beckner, and wish to express our appreciation of her good will in return:

As we are sending in our subscription for another year, I want to say a good word for our wonderful little paper. I think it is a fine paper and love to have it in my home, as I cannot get out much. I long for Saturday to come and then I get our dear little paper, and then I read everything in it and I feel so much better and can hear from all the dear friends in Friona.

I spent one week in Hedley. I got homesick and had to come home. I told the people they must come to Friona when they want a home--so many fine people here--so come and see as I did some years ago. Your friend,

M. K. B.
