Oil Activity May Be

Revived in This Section

There is nothing definite to report this week in the way of oil activity in the Grapeland territory.

However, interest in this section seems to be growing among the oil scouts, for there were a large number of them here Sunday and Monday going over this territory. Two geologists were among the number, and it is our understanding that they were very favorably impressed with the structure they found.

No drilling contracts were signed, but several companies are thinking seriously of sinking two or three test wells in this vicinity, and ere long we hope to be able to report that wells are drilling. It seems certain that Houston county is going to be given a through test for oil and we should know what lies underneath within the next twelve months.

The company taking over the O'Hara well is due to start drilling this week, but as this is written all is quiet out there.

To prevent a cold take 6 6 6.

NEW HOPE NEWS

New Hope, Dec. 12.—There was not any church at New Hope Saturday night and Sunday on account of the preacher, Rev. Durnell, getting kicked by a mule and was unable to come, but we had Sunday school in the afternoon and singing at night.

Misses Oveta and Ida Barnes spent Sunday with Misses Fannie and Dollie Jones.

Negro Given Trouncing

John Pierson, colored, was given a severe trouncing by a body of masked men one night last week.

The Messenger's information concerning the affair is very meagre, but it is our understanding that officers went to the negro's house to make an investigation of a rumor that he was making whiskey. They found upon his premises two gallons of moonshine.

Later in the night masked men took him out and gave him a whipping.

Sheriff Hale came up Monday to make an investigation, but could not get any information, as Pierson told him he did not recognize any of the men.

When your digestion is poor, when your bowels are costive, when your breath is bad, when your stomach is sick or disordered, and you feel languid and low-spirited, Prickly Ash Bitters is decidedly the remedy you need. It cleanses the vital organs, purifies the bowels, and imparts a fine cheerfulness. Price $1.25 per bottle. Smith & Ryan Special Agents.

C. C. Smith is building a neat bungalow house on his place up on the river and hopes to get moved before the holidays.

Some are anxious for real hog killing weather; most all have killed a shote and can eat hog and hominy.

T. S. Kent is still rushing pecans and says he is afraid he is going to get more orders than he can fill. So much for advertising.

Mrs. J. H. Beazley and Miss Maude Fulgham spent Saturday and Sunday nights in the sandy city.

There was talk of having a Christmas tree, but some were opposed to it and consequently there will be no tree. Indications point to a dull Christmas in this section.

Moving seems to be in order at this time. R. A. Parker and family moved from Galveston to their farm here last week. Terrel Smith and wife moved to Charlie Brooks' farm. Cecil Rose and family from the Union Chapel community moved here Saturday. We are always glad to welcome others among us.

LIVELYVILLE LOCALS

Livelyville, Dec. 12.—Only two more weeks and Christmas is with us once more. We hope everybody will have a joyous Christmas, especially the little ones, for Santa Claus seems very close to the children, and of course, they believe he will bring his gifts to rich and poor alike, and indeed, he should and we know he does—measuring his gifts by love—and after all, love is the real Christmas spirit to have for old and young alike, for He came to earth to give us the greatest gift possible if we will only accept it, namely, salvation, peace on earth, good will to men and everlasting life.

The Livelyville team played basket ball with Union team Friday afternoon and were defeated, score being 11 to 24 for Union. We are very glad of the showing our team made, considering it was Livelyville's very first game. The basket ball game was introduced here about three weeks ago, and then there wasn't a soul to yell for them, but look out for a better score next time.

Effort Required in Making Honey

A single pound of honey contains the concentrated essence of 60,000 flowers. To make a pound of clover honey the bees must take nectar from 62,000 blossoms and make 2,700,000 visits to accumulate it. The journey from the hive to the flower and back is often as much as two miles, so that the making of a pound of honey requires journeys that aggregate more than 5,000,000 miles.

Old faded clothes can be made to look like new by dyeing. We represent the best dye works in the state. M. L. Clewis.

THE MESSENGER'S AMERICANIZATION SERIES

Washington and Americanism

(Our Americanization series for the next few weeks will deal with great names in American history, the first of which follows on Washington—Ed.)

Throughout the course of our history in this country teachers and statesmen have been inclined to ask, when confronted by some difficult question: "What did Washington say about this?" And it is seldom that they have not found some satisfactory answer to their query.

At the present time, we are confronted with many problems which are summed up in the words True Americanism, and here again we are inclined to turn to the writings and sayings of Washington to see if we cannot get from him some suggestive solutions for our problem. In this we are not disappointed, for in his day, as in our own, the people of the United States were confronted with the condition of having within the borders of their country members of various European races whom fate had thrown together on these shores, but who were, as Washington termed them, in his Farewell Address: "Citizens by birth, or by choice of a common country."

In speaking further to all of his people he said: "The country has a right to your affections." To those who were born here, as well as to those who came here of their own volition, he said: "The name of American, which belongs to you in your national capacity, must always exalt the just pride of Patriotism, more than any appellation derived from local discriminations." "You have in a common cause fought and triumphed together; the Independence and Liberty you possess are the work of joint councils, and joint efforts, of common dangers, sufferings and successes."

Again because of the great victory won over a monarchical power, and because of the great experiment which was launched by a people to determine whether a great nation could be conducted and properly governed without kings, without nobility, and without privilege, he held it before the world with the words: "Nations yet strangers to liberty will be led to love it." He evidently, in his day, could not conceive that people would come to these shores and seek to destroy the institutions of the land which he had fought so hard to put in its position of independence.

Above all he had faith in the children as the true Americans. They tell an anecdote of him in the early days of the Revolution when he was passing through a New England village. The children all pressed close to him and called him "Father." Deeply touched he turned to one of his generals and said: "The English may beat us. It is the chance of war. But behold an army which they never can conquer."

Were he to return to this country on the anniversary of his birth, he would find these problems of assimilation of foreign people much the same as they were in his own day, and he would probably address us as he addressed his contemporaries when he wrote in 1776: "I have labored ever since I have been in the service to discourage all kinds of local attachments and distinction of country, denominating the whole by the greater name of American"; or again, when he took up the problem presented by emigrants from Europe coming to this country and settling in groups of large bodies: "The policy of emigration taking place in a body may be much questioned; for by so doing they retain the language, habits and principles (good or bad) which they bring with them. Never forget that we are Americans, the remembrance of which will convince us that we ought not to be French or English."

If Washington were to come back to this country to-day, he would not stand back amazed at the problems of Americanization, for he had them in his own time. The words quoted from his speeches and his writings show how earnestly he strove to meet and solve these questions which were raised by the presence of emigrants from foreign lands to the United States. His spirit in the words of one of his biographers still seems to speak and say: "I am still here, my countrymen, to do you what good I can."—James Sullivan.

Trouble is easier to borrow than money, but both are hard to pay back.

People flock to Reno for divorces just like they go to a dentist to get a tooth pulled.

Despite his frequent utterances that seem wholly out of joint, Ambassador Harvey said a great truth a few days ago in a speech delivered in London: "The strength of a country is not measured by armies and navies. A school house at a crossroads is more potent than a dreadnaught on the seas. One little church on a hill is worth a score of regiments."

France claims she must keep armed because Germany is secretly planning and working toward another war upon her in the future; that in secret the German army organization is kept up and that in Switzerland and Holland munitions and airplane factories, belonging to Germany are already hard at work. Germany has never made the assertion that she was sorry for bringing on the war, but only sorry that she was beaten. France has the thing doped out about right.

Not only are the people alive today overwhelmingly in favor of peace instead of war, but just think of the countless millions who have been slaughtered in the past wars of the world. How would they vote if they could be brought back? Hundreds of millions have had war's experience and paid for it with their lives, and if here they would all make an overwhelming plea for peace. In comparison to that vast host who lust for war's so-called glory are but small minority. We who are yet alive should heed the wishes of the millions of our fellow men whom war cast into untimely graves.

Catarrrhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrrhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrrh Medicine acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system.

What Christmas Means

Christmas is far other than a vision, a poetic rendition of the facts of life; it is an event set deep not only in the history of men but in their faith, their worship, and their way of life. They have never risen to its level, they have never, by united effort, given its spirit the tremendous effectiveness of concerted action; but, even in their infirmity of intention and their feebleness of practice, Christmas has given their life on earth a diviner meaning and a kindlier habit. It has enormously increased the value of that life; it is increasing the spiritual content of the thought of life in the minds of men; it is giving it a sweeter savor, a softer grace, a warmer atmosphere as men more and more interpret life in the light which streams from Bethlehem.—Hamilton Wright Mabie.

Battleships for Sale

If anyone wants to buy an old warship to use on fishing trips or to set up in his front yard he need not wait until the world has disarmed, for the American navy has seven or eight battleships which it is ready to sell for junk right now. If the powers agree to scrap large parts of their navies, serious offers to purchase ships to be junked will be considered, naval officials say. Experts declare it would be impossible to convert warships to any other use. Attempts to remodel the surrendered German ships failed.

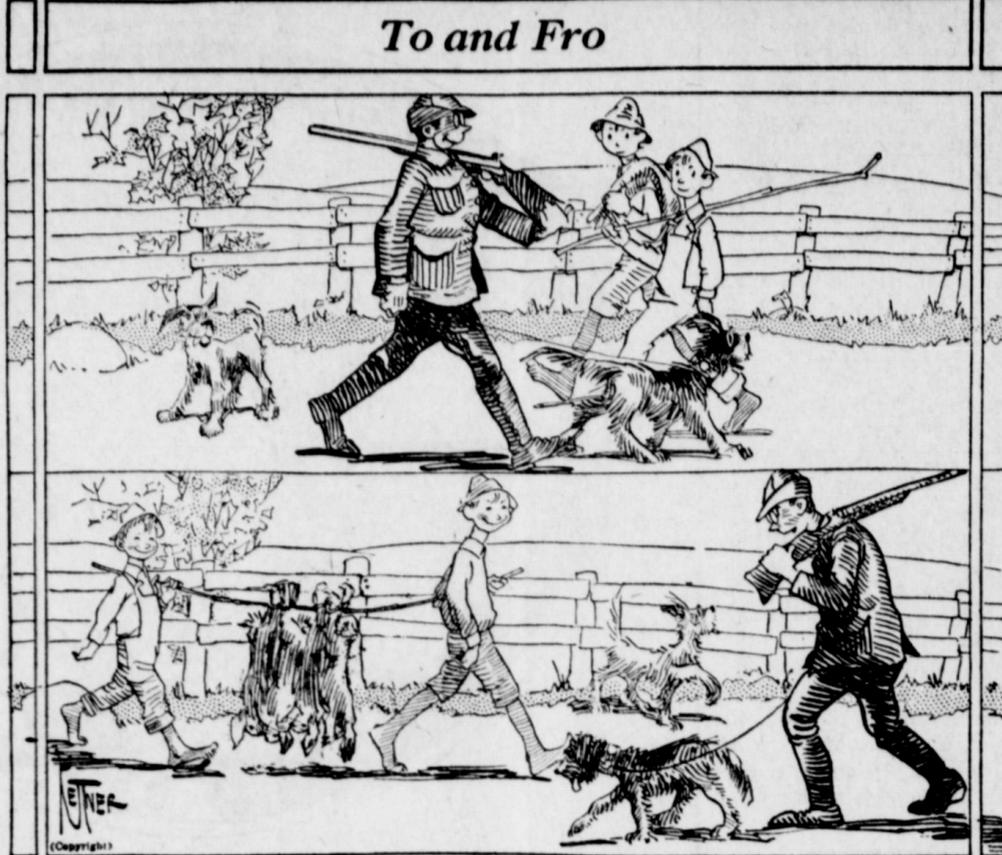

Distress after eating is due to bad digestion. Herbine helps the digestive process, clears the system of impurities and restores a feeling of vigor and buoyancy of spirits. Price, 60c. Sold by Smith & Ryan.

New Railroad Rules

The principle of the "open shop" for railroads is upheld in a new set of 148 working rules issued by the U. S. Railroad Labor Board. That means that the railroad companies will not be obliged to treat with union officials in matters which affect the men but will treat all employees alike whether or not they belong to unions.

Newest "Subs" Can Go Far

The latest thing in submarines is being built at the Portsmouth, N. H., Navy Yard. They will be capable of cruising 10,000 miles before returning to port. These undersea boats are 300 feet long and will use both gasoline and electric power. On the surface, with powerful gasoline engines, they will equal the speed of the great ocean liners. When under the water, electric engines of 6500 horse power, taking their current from storage batteries, will drive the boats at a speed of ten miles an hour. The engines for one submarine cost a million dollars.

The Real Spirit

Has the real Christmas spirit been laid upon its bier by a lot of old fogies who have lived too long to sense the thrill of the holly and mistletoe; whose spectacles and whiskers have debarred them from entering the kingdom of pure delight where the children wander; and whose dyspeptic spirits have been warped with acid bitterness until they can no longer flow with the sweet joy of Christmas cheer? No! The real happiness and the cheer that go with red-ribboned wreaths and twinkling candles peeping and winking from between the green of fairy Christmas trees; the thrill of myriad toys stacked in chaotic heaps; the mystery of tissue paper bundles; the secrets that fly back and forth under the grave cover of serenity; the smell of spicy fruitcake and the mellow aroma of holiday baking are here. They are here as they are always here when the holidays are just before us.—Evansville Courier.

Christ Comming in 1925?

The daily papers contain sensational predictions alleged to have been made by J. F. Rutherford, president of the International Bible Students' Association. Year 1925 will mark the end of the existing order of things in the world, that after that Christ will be present as ruler, that an era of peace and good-will will then begin and that "millions now living will never die."

However, Mr. Rutherford has explained that his words are not to be construed too literally and that he does not mean that the world will come to a physical end in 1925, or that Christ will be present in the flesh, or that human beings will not have to suffer physical death. The new era spoken of is spiritual, not physical.

Be saving. If you don't watch out for your dollars nobody else will. A good way is to have your old hat "fixed up"—cleaned, re-blocked or repaired. You'll be surprised how nice it will look. The people we represent know how.

Merry Christmas

Whether we shout it or sing it, we must be sure to mean it; for if we really mean it when we say, "Merry Christmas, everybody," we will do all in our power to make Christmas a day of unsullied joy for all those within reach of our influence.

Christ came into the world to bring light which brings joy. He came to bring deliverance to men; to solve their difficult problems; to inspire a higher hope in the spirit of men. That is the cause of the deepest joy to mankind. Yes, Christmas is a joyful day as well as a sacred day.

It is a day for doing good deeds as well as thinking good thoughts. It is not a day for receiving gifts only. There are so many opportunities for doing good, that we may receive joy a hundredfold, with the expenditure of just a little time and thought. There are many who do not know the meaning of this day as you know it; many whose spirits are crushed by disaster. Remember them!—Boys' World.

Our Huge National Business

The U. S. Treasury Department collected taxes amounting to more than four and a half billion dollars in the year ending June 30, 1921. This has just been announced by the Department. Huge as that amount is, it is 812 million dollars less than the amount collected the previous year.

The cost of collecting the tax was, on the average, 87 cents for every $100 collected. That is 32 cents more than it cost to collect each $100 the year before.

One interesting fact shown by the report is that the tax collected on articles made by child labor amounted to $24,223, while the cost of collecting that tax was $130,000.

Fixes Name of Capital.

In an executive order issued recently, President Harding directed that hereafter the official designation of the capital will be "the city of Washington" and that these words shall be used on every document executed requiring any reference to Washington. Heretofore, proclamations and other legal papers have referred variously to the "District of Columbia," "the city of Washington" or simply "Washington." The president's recent Thanksgiving proclamation was "done in the capital of the United States," and this peculiar phrase raised the question as to what the official term should be.

Mr Rosser Writes of Community Fair at Augusta

The Federal Government offers aid to schools doing vocational work under the Smith-Hughes Law. The state contributes a small amount to that end. Any school sufficiently interested to equip for this work and to hire teachers who are qualified to teach the vocational subjects may receive reimbursements from the state and national funds to aid in making it go. The instructors are men who demand salaries in proportion to their high qualifications and training and therefore place this course beyond the reach of the poorer rural schools where it is really needed.

The law did not contemplate the scheme which is being carried out in this county, but it is meeting with the hearty approval of the state and federal authorities. Since any one school was not financially able to bring this sort of training to its pupils the plan of grouping schools for the purpose was conceived, and the experiment is succeeding in a measure far beyond our most sanguine expectations.

A group of five schools did the work last year with as much success as could reasonably be expected, but there were so many new details to be worked out and, in some instances, the people were so averse to expert instructions on vocational lines that the process was slow and difficult, as is always the case in any kind of pioneering.

This year we entered the work with a better outlook and with a good fund of experience, observation and information. We hoped to have put on three of each group, but have been able to secure the services of only two instructors whose qualifications meet the requirements of the state and federal governments.

Doubtless those persons who are interested in the country people and in better rural schools and rural conditions would be interested in information as to the details of the work and as to what it is coming to. We will not consume space for that purpose now, but should be glad to have you discuss it with Mr. A. C. Casey at Augusta, Mr. W. E. Worsham at Weldon or with your county superintendent, either of whom would be glad to answer your questions and tell you all about it.

But the purpose of this article is to tell you of a community fair held at the Augusta school house a few days ago under the auspices of the schools at Liberty Hill, Waneta, Percilla and Augusta, which schools constitute the vocational group under the supervision of Mr. Casey.

At early morning the people began to gather and arrange the exhibits. Corn, sugar cane and the various East Texas products, the finest to be found anywhere, were in prominent evidence. Poland Chinas, Durocs, Holsteins, Jerseys, Chickens, good horses and mules, were there galore to produce sensations strongly reminiscent of good country eats and rural prosperity and progress. Incidentally I wish to observe that if you are in the market for good livestock you can find them in that section of the county. The housewives not only provided the best dinner on earth for the good cheer of the crowd, but also entered the contest with specimens of their art. No one but the "official taster" dared sniff at those cookies. And O, how we coveted the function while it was being conferred upon one of more refined but no more epicurean tastes and inclinations. Those same ladies exhibited their products of hand and needle, dainty work with cloth and thread. They would have put to shame the contestants which we read of in Grecian mythology where the hand of the princess was bestowed instead of a blue ribbon. The names, much less the descriptions, of those dainty items are far beyond our poor ability as a connoisseur of the finer arts. We are a mere man. There were canned fruits and vegetables the sight of which were reminiscent of the time when Moses' spies returned from the Valley of Eshcol in Canaan with a bunch of fruit so big and so luscious that the strength of two men and a pole was required to carry it. The work of pupils from the schools was neatly arranged in the respective community exhibits so that any person scholastically observant must have read the story of skillful teaching and such efficient and thorough instructions as always produce accurate and satisfactory results. We can not indulge the pleasure of a more lengthy description of the affair, but do want to make this further observation: When we were in the midst of those attractions, surrounded also by the stalwart manhood, glorious womanhood and sunny childhood of that meeting, we were very near indeed to the very back-bone of our civilization. We were amidst the element which makes our country a fact and which will hold it, if it shall be held, upon a high and useful pedestal before the nations of the earth. A set of teachers who can put over an occasion of this kind as those teachers have; a set of trustees who can support them as those trustees have done; and a set of people who can co-operate as those people have done are just such teachers, such trustees and such people as were possibly in the mind of David of old when his inspired pen wrote Psalms 37: 25.

J. H. Rosser,
County Superintendent.

Messrs. Dan and Jim McLean of Augusta returned the latter part of last week from southwest Texas from their annual deer hunt. They report good success, and brought two large bucks home with them.

Body of Private Britton Returned From Overseas

Private Sylvester Silas Britton, late of Company A, Twenty Third Infantry, Second Division, was born July 31, 1897, at New Hope, Madison County, Alabama, and was the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Britton. In December, 1897, the family moved to Commerce, Texas, where they resided until October, 1912, when they moved to Houston County.

Private Britton enlisted in the Army July 4th, 1917, at Mexia with Company E, 144th Infantry, with whom he served at Camp Bowie, Texas, and with whom he sailed for France, arriving at La Harve on July 30th, 1918. He was transferred shortly after his arrival in France to Company A, Twenty Third Infantry, Second Division. He went into Action with his division on the St. Mihiel offensive and experienced some of the hottest of fighting, but came out without a wound. He next went into action in the Meuse Argonne offensive when he received severe wounds on October 8 and died in a field hospital, October 12, 1918, from the wounds he received four days previous.

Private Britton was known as a young man of sterling character and of firm religious belief. He was converted and joined the Methodist Protestant Church at New Hope, Houston County, Texas, during a revival conducted during the summer of 1913, and is known to have lived true to his faith until he gave up his life for his country on October 12, 1918.

The body arrived in Brooklyn, New York, December 10 and is expected to arrive at Grapeland under a personal guard of honor this week, and upon arrival here will be taken charge of by Jas. O. Ritchey Post 215, American Legion, who will form a military funeral cortege and proceed to Evergreen Cemetery, Percilla, where the body will be given burial with full military honors. The Local Post of the Legion will be assisted by Howard Gardner Post 85 of Palestine, who will furnish a firing squad for the occasion.

Sees Germany Unrepentant

It appears that the old spirit of military conquest still lives in Germany—at least if we can judge from a new book written by Marshal Ludendorff. Calling upon the German people to build up once more the old Prussian military machine and to look for glory in new wars, Ludendorff says:

"It is necessary that we renounce now and forever those vain words of the Allies and our own democrats: Universal peace, disarmament and pacification of people. War is a part of the natural order established by God. It is necessary all the time. Whatever the Entente may do, Germany will never tear from her heart the virile purpose of war. She must reform the old Prussian and German armies. Then, conscious of her right and with firm will, no matter what may happen, she will re-conquer her place in the world."

Fortunately for the German people and for the rest of the world, Ludendorff is not running the German government. Probably he speaks only for the military party, the few who hope to gain fame and wealth from war. They are the same who deceived the people in 1914 and led Germany into such a terrible disaster.

France points to this new German book as justifying Premier Briand's stand at the Washington Conference. How can France disband her armies, they ask, when such a spirit exists just across her borders?

And so it goes. If France cannot disarm, Italy must keep her armies. If Italy cannot disarm, neither can Jugoslavia; and so all the rest of the Balkans, Turkey, Russia and Poland must keep great armies. There is no end to it.

The Conference is finding the problem of military disarmament a much harder one than that of naval disarmament. It is impossible to hide battleships. All the world knows when one is being built. On the other hand, a nation may train millions of men while keeping only a small standing army. This is done by means of the short enlistment. An army of only 100,000 men on three months' enlistment would mean the training of two million men in five years. Apparently peaceful dye works can be changed
