We motor to the neighbors in the next street, and to church and Sunday school. LIVELYVILLE NEWS

Livelyville, Oct. 21.—The Fair is here and we hope everybody will have a glorious time—from all reports there will be thousands of people in Grapeland during the week.

P. C. MacDonald spent Saturday and Sunday with home folks.

Some of our young people went over to Union to see the ball game between Union and Grapeland. The score was 39-23 in favor of Union.

Pecan hunting is the favorite sport now. Several from here went to the river Sunday.

Ruth MacDonald and two brothers spent Sunday morning with Erma Lou Elliott at Percilla.

Dan Shipper spent Sunday in Grapeland visiting friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Howard spent part of last week with the latter's mother, Mrs. Jo Keen.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

The life of a table oilcloth can be prolonged indefinitely by pasting strong pieces of muslin to the under side where it will bend over edges and corners.

After sprinkling clothes place them in a basket and cover with a heavy blanket. It will then be safe to leave them over night even in warm weather.

To detect the presence of foreign matter in flour squeeze a handful tightly. If it clings together it is quite pure; if it crumbles away it may be adulterated with chalk or whitening.

Save your corks! When handles or rings come off tins or lids replace with a cork. Fasten on by putting a small screw through the upper side of the lid. Screw the cork down on its point. Such a handle stays on tight, does not slip in the fingers and does not heat.

Sprinkle salt generously over soot that has been spilled on a carpet and then carefully sweep salt and soot up together. This method works well even with soot that has absorbed moisture from the atmosphere in damp weather.

GRAPELAND'S SECOND ANNUAL FAIR IS ON

On the morning you receive this issue of the Grapeland Messenger—you will be on your way to Grapeland's Second Annual Community Fair. Everyone anticipates a good time and it will be through no fault of the Fair Committees if the good time is not here for you.

Grapeland has waited anxiously for the dates of the Fair to arrive. Grapeland people have anxiously hoped that thousands would attend every one of the three days. With the prospects bright for fair weather it seems they will not be disappointed. If you are as anxious to come as we are to have you—we know that joy will be the measure of everyone's cup. Enter into the Fair Spirit and consider yourselves at home in Grapeland. If you want information or a favor, ask some Grapelandite and if he doesn't help you, report him and he will be punished accordingly.

The "keys" to everything are hereby tendered to Fair visitors.

Protecting the Gullible

The government makes every effort to bar its mail to swindlers. There was a time when unscrupulous persons advertised: "Send 10 cents for a fine steel engraving," and "Mail us a dime for a sure big-killer," when a canceled two-cent stamp was the "steel engraving" and the "sure bug-killer" was nothing more than two blocks of wood. However, such bare-faced frauds are no longer tolerated. Few people realize what the postoffice department has done and is doing to protect the gullible of this country from being "hooked in" by get-rich quick schemes and other frauds carried on through the mails. When the department finds out that a company is swindling the people a "fraud order" is issued barring the firm's circulars from the postoffice. Usually these schemers deal in fake stocks, but sometimes a unique game is discovered. Recently the department had occasion to investigate the business of a man advertising blooded hunting dogs at a very low price. It turned out that he was selling ordinary mongrel curs picked up at random. The pedigrees furnished were fakes pure and simple. Another advertiser boasted of having found a sure cure for tuberculosis. Government chemists found that his brown sirupy liquid was nothing but cresote and maltose. Both fakers were put out of business by the department. The sad part of this work, says one postoffice official, is the fact that the very persons who would take this bait are the last ones in the world to appreciate the good work that the department is doing. Join the war on the swindler and help your country.—The Pathfinder.

Gov. Al Smith of New York has repealed the law in his State providing for the enforcement of the prohibition act, thus leaving entirely to the Federal authorities. This act of the governor raises and issue which will figure in the next Presidential campaign, the wets taking up Smith as the leader, and the dries standing by Harding or some other 100 per cent prohibitionist. In the event the wets center on Smith there will be new party lines drawn, since he is a Catholic and will draw the solid support of that church as well as those who contend for beer and wine. There are no well defined issues between the two old parties, and the way matters are shaping up the next campaign will be fought out on religious and prohibition grounds. The South will not support a Catholic for President. Where will the South go in case Smith should be the nominee of the Democratic party?—One of the last editorials written by the late R. T. Milner, in Henderson News.

Trouble is not a self-starter. It is usually cranked by some fool.—Asheville Times.

WALLING SELLS OUT

Eugene Walling has sold his place in south Grapeland to C. L. Haltom and will leave for Lubbock where he will follow his trade as carpenter. He and his family expect to leave this week for their new home. The best wishes of their many Grapeland friends go with them.

WHY ADVERTISING IS ECONOMICAL

Some firms have maintained that advertising is an expense added to cost of distributing goods.

Let us see how that works. There seems no reason to doubt that any concern that distributes reliable merchandise can secure and hold a greatly increased trade by advertising. Watch the crowd flock into a store after a sale is announced, and your own eyes will prove it.

Over and over again, small and obscure firms have gone ahead in a short time, as the result of judicious publicity. When a store tells about its goods and solicits patronage, people feel a desire to see the merchandise thus offered, and they also think that such a place is a live one that will give good service.

Many stores double their sales in a short time through using regular publicity. But the expense of such a store did not double from the increase of trade. Its overhead costs for interest, taxes, rent, salaries, etc, would have increased but very little. And its operating expenses would not come anywhere near doubling. Its total costs might not be more than 25 per cent above the figures on the old basis.

Consequently the charge to be made against each article for overhead and running expenses would be much less than previously. The store could sell stuff for less money than before.

Advertising enables the enterprising merchant to do business on a bigger scale and take advantage of special opportunities. If the nonadvertiser is offered a large lot of goods at a special price, he might feel that the deal was too big for him to swing with his regular trade.

But the advertiser would know that by announcing a special sale, he could get the public coming to his place, and could work off those goods in a short time. He could afford to sell them at a low price, and the deal would pay through the big volume of sales in a brief period.

Thus the advertising store can handle large deals at a profit both to itself and the public, and newspaper publicity is one of the biggest forces tending to reduce the cost of distributing merchandise.

THE FIGHT TO SAVE LIFE

The raidroads of the country have been carrying on active campaigns against carelessness by pedestrians and automobiles in crossing railroad tracks.

A California law went into effect August 31 requiring motor vehicles carrying passengers for hire, school busses or trucks, carrying explosives or inflammables to come to a full stop before crossing steam railroad or interurban or suburban electric railroads.

The necessity for such a law in all states has been emphasized recently in Oregon where three different automobiles were driven on to the Southern Pacific Co.'s tracks in front of oncoming trains. The result has been two deaths and several injuries. In each instance the track was in clear view a mile or more in each direction. Not only should the California law be adopted in other states but it should be made more stringent and require that all automobiles, either commercial or private, must come to a stop before crossing railroad tracks.

The California law provides a fine of $500 or imprisonment not exceeding six months, or both, for non-compliance with the law by commercial vehicles. A fine or suspension of driver's license or both could be applied to private vehicles.—The Manufacturer.

Speaking of waste, there is that ever-recurring line to the effect that the condemned man ate a hearty breakfast.—Robert Quillen.

STILL ONE MORE

A chaste volume of 108 pages, with paper covers in two colors, has come to hand and reposes modestly on the desk of State Press. Its title is alluring and its author, who has published several works of similar tenor, is justly entitled to laudatory criticism. "Proceedings of the Forty-Fourth Annual Session Texas Press Association" is the name of the book, and it is by Sam P. Harben, C. S., which two letters stand for Continuous Secretary. The first few pages are adorned with advertising, after which a half-tone likeness of President Sam M. Braswell appears, all dressed up. The succeeding chapters are devoted to solid reading, with occasional interruptions in the way of pictures illustrating the types of beauty which compose the Press Association. There is Mr. Luker of Grapeland and Mr. Lehmann of San Antonio, one a neutral brunet and the other a neutral blond, and both of them with recently brushed hair. The middle of the book is the best part, it being a first-hand account of experiences entitled "Doin' Time in the Penitentiary," by H. Crit Conally, who was formerly a newspaper man. Mr. Conally is at present secretary of the Board of Prison Commissioners, Huntsville, Texas, and it was from the vantage point of his office, rather than from the disadvantage point of a second-story cell, that he obtained inside information. There are a good many things in Mr. Harben's book, and nonmembers of the press who desire a copy of it may obtain same by addressing the Harben Job Printing Office, Richardson, Texas, and sending a certified check for $25.—State Press, in Dallas News.

CHEERFULNESS

There is enough good, enough joy, enough brightness, enough soul sunshine in the world, without giving space to other things.

Cheerfulness has a marked value, but the face will not shine if the spirit within is clouded. A cheerful spirit illuminates the face until it radiates blessing and hope to all around us. A smiling face pays dividends every day. One cheerful spirit and glad countenance clears up the atmosphere in the house, in business, in the social circle, and does good like a medicine.

Cheerfulness is a tonic for the mind and body; it is one of the greatest forces in winning and keeping friends; it is the antidote to worry, fear, discouragement, perplexity and discord: it is the builder of life and vigor.—(Yeomen Battle Ax.

INSECTS TO BE NUMEROUS NEXT SPRING

(By R. R. Reppert, Extension Service Entomologist.)

In general, we believe Texas farmers have come to realize the effectiveness of the fall clean-up to control various cotton pests, including the boll weevil. Excessive rains have thus far prevented carrying into effect the measures recommended however, both because picking has been delayed and because the soil has been too wet for stalk cutting or plowing in those communities where picking has been completed. It is a case where the intentions are good but natural conditions are against the farmer.

These very conditions however, are favoring heavy infestation next spring by breeding large numbers of insects this fall. While weevil infestation was low the past summer, due to the drouth and hot weather, the moist conditions of the past few weeks have been favorable to the insects' multiplication. Wherever the writer has examined fields, practically all green squares were found to be harboring weevil larvae. This is going to insure large numbers of young and well-fed larvae, going into winter quarters, if the cotton so continues to grow.

The same conditions of moisture are inducing a heavy growth of weeds both in the field and along fences. This growth is encouraging a multiplication of both web worm and cut worms. We have personally observed cut worms at work in the gardens and the web worm is also doing a great amount of damage. If conditions continue favorable to these two insects, and next season's cotton fields are weedy and grassy during the winter and up to near the time of planting, the damage that resulted last spring from the web worm and cut worm, especially the latter, in parts of the cotton belt, will appear insignificant as compared with what will occur next spring.

Our work consists as much in foretelling insect outbreaks and suggestive preventive measures as in giving remedies after the insects are present. Preventive measures are by far the better, where such can be applied. As before mentioned, winter conditions may be such as to make our fears groundless. But don't count on them. Present indications favor heavy insect infestation of cotton next year.

Do what you can now to prevent damage next year. As soon as the weather is favorable—

1. Kill the cotton plant at once.

2. Prepare the soil this fall, preferably by plowing to a depth of six inches.

3. Keep weed growth entirely eradicated during winter and spring by occasional harrowing.

4. Burn trash along fences, ditches and other waste places in mid-winter. "Fight 'em in '23; Miss 'em in '24."

FORDSON TRACTOR FAIR ATTRACTION

To show advantage of adopting it to agricultural and industrial power requirements

Because of the constantly increasing number of uses to which Fordson Tractors are being applied, the display of these power plants at the Grapeland fair will interest not only the farmer, but the contractor, manufacturer and road builder as well, said W. E. Carlton, local Ford dealer.

The exhibit has been arranged by Grapeland Motor Co. and will afford visitors an opportunity of becoming intimately acquainted with the economic value of the Fordson.

More general recognition of the advantages of power farming has brought the Fordson into greater popularity in the agricultural sections of the country this year than ever before. On the farms it does duty in a variety of ways—in the fields operating plows, discs, harrows, and other implements; in the farm yard, operating pumps, saw mills, feed mills, thresher, silo fillers and other equipment devised to lighten the burdens of the farmer.

More remarkable, however, has been the recent growth of the Fordson as an industrial power plant. At the fair it is being used to run the generator and furnish electric lights.

Development of equipment to fit Fordson power capabilities has been marked during the last year until at present there is almost no job in which power is needed but what the Fordson is filling the bill.

In road construction and maintenance Fordson equipment is proving most efficient and highway engineers everywhere are utilizing it.

Contractors, construction men and buliders are adopting Fordsons to meet their needs in operating as locomotives on narrow gauge tracks, hauling heavy trailers, running saw mills, pumps, electric generators, rock crushers and other belt and gear driven pieces of stationary equipment.

Mrs. O. A. Harris Injured

Thursday afternoon Mrs. O. A. Harris was injured when a tree in the cotton field where she was working, blew down and the end of the tree struck her across the shoulder and inflicted a scalp wound in her head. Her husband had warned her that it was dangerous for her to work in the field where so many dead trees were, but she insisted on helping finish the work.

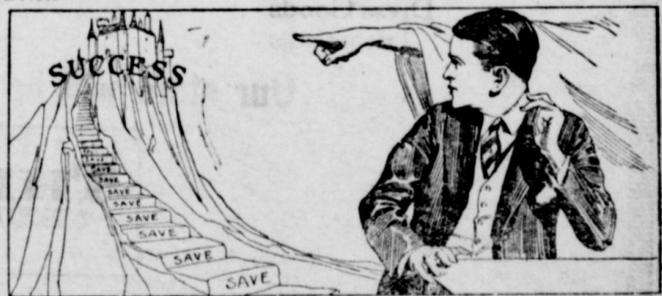

Her condition Friday was not considered dangerous, and examination proved that no internal injury was inflicted.

Edward Allen and Miss Eva Lee Walling were recently married in Grapeland by Elder. A. A. Allen.

LET'S STOP DRIFTING

Calling to the attention of the public the rapid increase of crime in the United States and the infrequency with which criminals are brought to justice, the American Bar Association, in session in Minneapolis, Minn., urges that the whole code of criminal practice in the 48 states be rewritten so that the "long arm of the law might come swift, sure, constant and on occasion merciful." Going further the committee making the report says "the trial of the criminal seems like a game of chance with all the chances in favor of the criminal and, if he escapes, he seems to have the sympathy of the public." This is a terrible arraignment, but there is so much truth in it that we cannot afford to lightly dismiss the charge. Respect for law and reverence for religion seem to be rapidly waning and it behooves those of us who have not lost our mental balance to add our vote and our personal influence on every possible occasion to stabilize the conditions of society to the end that crime will become uncommon and escape from just punishment a rarity.—Bryan Eagle.

Lloyd George, who is touring this country and Canada, says Europe owes this country a debt of gratitude. Yes, and Europe owes us something besides gratitude—and that is what we are worrying about.

It's true we have too many laws and no one knows all the laws and violates some of them some times, but there is no excuse for local sportsmen to flagrantly violate the game laws. You fellows who have been slipping off to shoot ducks and quail had better cut it out.

Texas has the natural attractions to draw visitors from all parts of the United States, but unless we have good roads a large share of them will never see the state and its magnificent scenery.

And again we remind you that Grapeland is a good town to live in, a good place to trade, and a good one to keep your money in, but in time it will cease to be either unless you are loyal to it. See which merchants are advertising in The Messenger and tell them what you want.

Opportunity Keeps Knocking

The old saying about opportunity knocking but once gets our goat. Opportunity is the busiest little puss we ever saw and if the average person would just give it a chance to show what it could do, we all would be making a good living.

Opportunity is the best little knocker in the world. It's knocking all the time. Even when you are about half asleep, something comes to your mind which, if carried out it would mean success. That was opportunity knocking.

If you'd stop to think, opportunity is taking a crack at you right now—trying to convince you that this paper is the best advertising medium in the world so far as you are concerned, and if you don't grab that opportunity by the hind legs and choke it into submission, don't blame us if your bank balance begins to wear a sort of pink complexion.

Any human being can take advantage of opportunity. The only thing that can not take that advantage is something without life. As an illustration: if the statue of Liberty had been a real woman she would have had more lovers than a French soldier had cooties. She had the opportunity but she couldn't take the advantage.

We love the statue of Liberty, but don't fail to remember that we'd rather be our own sweet self than to be the statue of Liberty—and we don't want to feel that you are on that order and cannot take advantage of the opportunity which is being given you right now.—Panola County Watchman.

DE YOUNG'S MEMORIAL MUSEUM

A habit of collecting antiquities led Mr. M. H. DeYoung, a public-spirited citizen of San Francisco, to build a museum in which to house his own and other collections and present it to the city.

Two appropriate buildings of Egyptian style, each 140 feet wide and 510 feet long, joined by a broad corridor supporting a beautiful tower, compose this museum. Salmon-tinted, and set down amid pleasingly landscaped gardens in Golden Gate park, this ensemble presents an imposing appearance.

The forty-five galleries contain more than one million objects. Their value is fabulous. The extent, oddity, variety, and completeness of the displays is amazing.

There are priceless oil paintings from the brushes of the masters; engravings of great value from many countries and of many periods; the celebrated Kunz collection containing specimens of every type of precious and semi-precious stone; coins from practically every country on the globe; a collection of reproductions of the crown jewels of the world; a collection of drums, some of which may have called warriors to battle in far-off lands; samples of precious needlework and laces dating back to the Eleventh century; the great Dore vase of bronze, 10 feet tall, weighing about 6,000 pounds and valued at $250,000; tapestries, rich, rare, and beautiful; a pair of enormous lions in cloisonne, made for the Imperial palace at Peking, China; two giant bronze lanterns some ten feet tall, from the Temple of Nau-ko-San, Kobe.

The history of warfare of many nations is silently told by implements of destruction used from the time of the World war back to the days when men fought clad in armor. Here is a chair used by George Washington in 1789; there a Japanese teakwood cabinet 200 years old; yonder the bell (from the steamship Oregon) that clamored forth the news that California had been admitted to the Union, and a battered piece of wood from the vessel on which Napoleon sailed from Elba to France. Mirroring the civilization of past centuries is a mummy which probably lived about 200 years B. C.; another is a tear bottle, it having been an ancient custom for mourners to preserve their tears as visible evidence of their grief. There is a collection of pipes from far-off lands that would make the mouth of any smoker run water, and other objects of a surprising nature too numerous to mention.

NEW FORD TYPES IN FAIR EXHIBIT

Cars will be shown in display of Grapeland Motor Co., local dealer

Higher radiator brings increased cooling efficiency and better appearance to whole line.

The new Ford cars will be on display at the Grapeland fair.

They will be featured in the exhibit of the Grapeland Motor Co., local dealer of the Ford Motor Company, and are sure to attract the attention of everyone. The large radiator, hood and cowl which has been introduced throughout the whole Ford line has brought a marked improvement in all types. The front of the cars also is given a much more finished appearance by the radiator apron connecting with similar apron effect of the fender on either side.

The Ford Coupe, which is of new design and construction and conspicuous by many refinements, is drawing enthusiastic comments from everyone who has seen it. The body lines are graceful and the windshield visor and cowl ventilator give added touches of completeness to the car.

Greater luggage carrying capacity is provided in the rear compartment. Seating arrangement is improved and a divided cushion permits the filling of the gas-line tank under the seat without the necessity of the driver leaving his place.

The higher radiator also has brought much better appearance to the four-door Sedan an enclosed type which has been highly popular since its introduction. Lines of both the Touring Car and Runabout have been given more stream-line effect and greater attractiveness by the changes.

The new radiator also is extended to the Ford Truck chassis affording improved appearance and better cooling.

Walter Killion, Ben Moseley, Oscar Garrison, Wylie Moseley and Tucker Campbell of Salmon returned home Saturday from an automobile trip to Lamesa, where they visited their Houston county friends who are now living there. Mr. Killion bought a place and will remove to Lamesa in the near future.

GOOD GRAVEL ROADS

Since this is the day of automobiles and trucks on the farm, the question of a good road around the home place is of vital importance. The county or State funds cannot build a gravel road to every farm house. That would be impracticable. Therefore, the farmer must look around for an economical way to do it himself. When we think of the many creeks, with beds of gravel waiting to be utilized into a good road, we wonder why there are no more good gravel roads around every farm.

The work can be done entirely during wet and muddy weather if necessary, and in this way by putting in work on it at times when he could not be doing work in the field. Of course, it could not be expected to build any great length of road in one or two days unless the farmer has considerable help. But by first grading up the road, or a part of it, during one wet spell, finishing it the next one, and then start putting the gravel from the creek bed on it each succeeding rain thereafter, until the road is up in first-class condition, a lot may be accomplished.

Even though the gravel supply might not be enough to build the required length of road, one needs only to wait until the next rain and when the water has receded, he will find a new gravel bed waiting for him.

To figure the saving a good gravel road would be to each farm would be an impossibility, for its good will go on so long as the farm is operated, and the road is kept up, which can be done very easily by filling in each weak place with more gravel from the creek, as it is needed.

So economical is this kind of road, that wherever there is a creek with gravel beds, there is no excuse for the live, progressive farmer not having a gravel road all around the farm. By co-operation among farmers, a gravel road can be extended to the county or State highways, or to the next closest town. However, that is a question that would bring in other points, and this is an article to apply to the individual farmer who would like to have a good gravel road for his own use on and around his farm.

It will be the means of his being able to do hauling in muddy weather, when it would be impossible to do it, did he not have a gravel road, and this alone will be worth much in dollars and cents in the course of a year in getting products or machinery under shelter when the weather requires it.

As this is an opportunity to have a good road with no investment except work, every farmer should give it serious consideration, and make arrangements to work on the suggestion.—G. R. Farmer, in Farm & Ranch.

THAT BOY OF OURS

State Press begs to acknowledge receipt of a birth card, tied with a delicate ribbon and edged with the dearest kind of a pink border, from Henry Edwards Luker, associate editor of the Grapeland Messenger, who was born Sept. 27, last. The postage stamp was supplied by his papa, A. H. Luker, and the soft little knot in the delicate little ribbon was tied by his mama, Mrs. Luker. In sending his card to State Press the little Luker disclosed sounder judgment than his parents did when they named him Henry Edwards. That designation doubtless comes from some family appellation, maybe a grandpa or an avuncular relative, but the people generally are liable to suppose the name was given in honor of the editor of the Troup Banner, whose entire name is Henry Edwards. Whether his supposition will be a handicap to little Luker, or whether he will wear his otherwise bright boyhood away with explanations is a matter that can be determined only by the grist from the millstones of time. But the little Luker will be entitled to change the first parts of his name when he reaches the age of discretion if he shall so elect. And if he doesn't so elect, folks may think he hasn't reached the age of discretion. Anyhow, here is one who hopes for you all manner of good luck and no manner of bad luck, Henry Edwards Luker.—State Press, in Dallas News.

NAMED FOR THE EDITOR

"Another boy" was the message the old stork delivered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Luker last Thursday afternoon, September 27, 1923.

The young man will bear the name of Henry Edwards, being named after his daddy, his uncle, Rev. Frank Edward Luker of Henderson, and Henry Edwards of Troup, the illustrious and versatile editor of the Troup Banner.—Grapeland Messenger.

Now isn't that fine luck for Editor and Mrs. Luker. We just know that they have much joy in the aforementioned message of the stork, for Editor Luker chronicled the receipt of the "message" on his front page top of the first column. That the youngster is named for his father, and his uncle, and an admiring friend of his parents is a distinct honor to dad, uncle and friend. It is customary for people thus honored to give to their namesake a present of some kind. We do not know what the others plan to give the youngster, but as for this writer, he's a good mind to deed little Henry Edwards a beautiful acre lot in the residential district of this town of Troup, blessed above every other spot on the entire face of the earth. And if there be any consideration which may restrain this Editor from his present intentions, it is a fear that, once little Henry Edwards Luker should see his property in this blessed town, his affections would be alienated from his proud Pa and Ma.—Henry Edwards, in Troup Banner.

Well, the big show is on. Don't you think it is a pretty good one?
