Peters, he went to Lake Cisco Saturday morning to view the progress being made on numerous projects there, some of which he helped bring about as secretary of the local chamber of commerce.

A remittance of $6.25 has been received from the Texas State bank at Eastland for the Red Cross relief fund.

SHAKE UP IN PRO FORCES IN EFFECT

WASHINGTON, May 21.—The long expected resignation of Lincoln C. Andrews has come to pass and on August 1, by his own request, he will end a two and a half years' term which marks another milestone in the government's effort to enforce prohibition.

With the assistant secretary of the treasury, who since April 1, 1925, has guided government enforcement of laws enacted under the eighteenth amendment, Roy A. Haynes of Ohio, is to go and while the date of his departure is not clear, he is expected to leave soon.

Thus, at one stroke, two outstanding figures in federal prohibition enforcement are to pass from the picture, to be succeeded by two pronounced dyes whose opinions on the work they are to perform long have been established. General Andrews will be succeeded by Seymour Lohman, former lieutenant governor of New York and Haynes will be replaced by Dr. James A. Doran, a native of North Dakota, who becomes commissioner of prohibition.

New Chief Well Known Dry Lohman's position carried the title of assistant secretary of the treasury in charge of customs, the post guard and prohibition. His home is in Elmira, N. Y., and during his term as lieutenant governor of his state his position on prohibition became well known. Dr. Doran, the son of a Methodist minister, gave emphatic expression to his views during last year's senate wet and dry inquiry. He is now chief chemist of the prohibition bureau.

Separation of Andrews and Haynes from prohibition work added still more color to their already striking careers, chiefly because of the difference in which their departure was announced. Andrews' resignation was made public along with grateful words from Secretary Mellon, his chief, but aside from the oral declaration, that Haynes would be expected to resign, no mention was made of the Ohioan. His name did not appear in a page and a half formal statement on the subject.

BEAUTIES OF MANY LANDS AT GALVESTON

GALVESTON, May 21.—The Treasure City Island was gay with flags and bunting Saturday for the first of the three brilliantly colorful events of the International Pageant of Pulchritude, in which 30 beautiful girls, representing four countries of Europe, Cuba, Mexico, Canada and many American states, will compete for honors.

Every train arriving Saturday was disgorging hundreds of people to join the thousands already here. This afternoon at 5 o'clock the beauties passed in revue before the throngs on the sea wall boulevard in sports costumes.

Galveston will be the Mecca of the Southwest Sunday and it is expected that 250,000 people will be here to see the major event of the pageant—the revue in fancy bathing costumes which starts at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Seven judges of international route have been named to select the most beautiful girl of all those in the pageant for the title "Beauty Queen of the Universe." This will be done Monday night at this city auditorium, which is expected to be filled to its capacity of 5,000.

CARNIVAL GIRL PICKS UP WRONG SNAKE BITTEN

RANGER, May 21.—Rose Nicholson, with a carnival company showing in Ranger, was bitten on the hand by a rattlesnake the other night, but has recovered. The girl picked up the snake to show some children, not knowing it was a new snake that had been put in with some old snakes, and it bit her in the hand. The wound was slashed open and the girl sucked the poison out, until medicinal relief was obtained at a hospital.

Red Cross Fund Is Over 13 Millions

TULSA LAWYER FINED $1,000 FOR CONTEMPT

OKLAHOMA CITY, May 21.—Bart Martin of Tulsa, attorney, was fined $1,000 today for contempt of supreme court by a special bench of nine justices appointed by Governor Johnson. Martin is counsel for O. O. Owens of Tulsa, millionaire oil man, now serving a year jail term for contempt growing out of the same matter. Supreme court cited both in January following charges of improper conduct. Justices in Martin's case disqualified, necessitating a special court. Litigation involving the Riverside Oil and Refining company of which Owens is president and general manager gave rise to contempt proceedings.

One proposed line will be from Galveston and Houston to San Antonio. These lines will be asked in the next 60 or 90 days, Glover said.

Mysterious Mr. Daniels Keeps Cisco Chamber of Commerce Officials Busy Guessing as to Who and What He Is

Cisco Magnet for Saturday Shoppers

"No lull in business in Cisco" was again proven by the great crowds of Saturday and Saturday night. Every store seemed to be getting its share of the business, too.

Especially was the rush of business noticeable in the grocery, dry goods and drug stores. All the afternoon and until closing time clerks were literally on the run in waiting on out-of-town customers.

One grocer said: "People of Cisco and Eastland county sure are living well these days and they are paying cash for most of what they buy. There seems to be lots of money here."

And then the traffic was one continual congestion. There were more cars on Main street trying to circle from Eighth to Fifth than could really get in line, hence cars were able to go only a few paces at a time.

Traveling men who make other territory are continually telling Cisco merchants they should congratulate themselves on the steady prosperity here.

$10,000 Offered for Beggs Bandits

The negro had been the object of several days search and was finally located near the railroad shops here.

HUERTA RELEASED WHEN BAIL POSTED

LOS ANGELES, May 21.—Adolfo De La Huerta, former presidential candidate of Mexico, Friday appeared before United States Commissioner Head on a charge of conspiracy to violate the neutrality laws of the United States, and was released when word was received by the federal officers here that bond had been posted for him in El Paso.

Alfonso Gomez Morentin, named as co-conspirator with De La Huerta in the complaint issued by department of justice agents at Tucson, Ariz., last Wednesday, likewise was released as bond had been made for him in El Paso.

Commissioner Head set Tuesday for the hearing as to why the two should not be removed to Tucson. De La Huerta, until his appearance Friday, had been at liberty without bond, but with the understanding that he was to have posted his bail Friday afternoon. The former president and Morentin voluntarily surrendered to department of justice officials.

PREVIOUS FLIGHTS ACROSS ATLANTIC

NEW YORK, May 21.—The list of previous trans-Atlantic flights is:

May, 1919, the American navy seaplane NC-4 flew from New Foundland to Lisbon, Portugal, stopping at the Azores. June 14 and 15, 1919, Capt. John Alcock and Lieut. Arthur W. Brown, British aviators, flew without stop from St. Johns, Newfoundland, to Clifden, Ireland, 1,900 miles. June, 1919, the British airship R-34 flew from Scotland to New York and from New York to Pulham, England.

August, 1924, the United States army round-the-world fliers crossed from Scotland to Iceland to Greenland. October 12-15, 1925, the Zepplin ZR-3, now the Los Angeles, was flown from Friedrichshafen, Germany, to Lakehurst, N. J.

Youthful "Lucky Lindbergh" Talks of Next Adventure Just After Setting Record in Crossing Atlantic Alone

LE BOURGLET FLYING FIELD, PARIS, France, May 21.—Captain Charles Lindbergh, during trans-Atlantic flyer arrived here safely Saturday night completing his non-stop flight ahead of schedule. "The Spirit of St. Louis" arrived on the field at 10:21 p. m. Paris time, or 5:21 p. m. New York time, or nearly three hours ahead of the time scheduled. He made a perfect landing, and was immediately surrounded by multitudes of people who had been waiting hours for the "Flying Fool" from America. He was rushed to a suite of rooms which had been reserved for him, to get some rest after the grueling flight.

Captain Lindbergh's official time was 33 1-2 hours. Lindbergh, who piloted a blind plane, with a periscope navigated across the Atlantic with the precision of a veteran pilot of an ocean liner. He landed in the midst of a mighty crowd.

"Well, here we are," was all he had to say. "I am very happy." Hundreds tried to get the boy on their shoulders. Police carried him high in the air to the administration building where Myron F. Herick, ambassador of the airman's own country, and high officials of France, with tears in their eyes, stammered their congratulations.

Lindbergh waved his arm in acknowledgement of the tribute from the crowd. They bore him into the building where an unofficial reception committee awaited. The crowds cheered wildly outside until Ambassador Myrick brought Lindbergh's helmet to the window and showed them a large bunch of flowers sent to the aviator. The reception was hasty and within a few minutes after landing, Lindbergh in the ambassador's car was wending his way to a hotel for sleep.

On his way to the hotel, the aviator, despite his long, weary hours at the "Joy stick" of his monoplane, talked enthusiastically of his future flights. He revealed that the New York to Paris flight was not the apex of his ambition. In fact, he admitted he had planned it only as a test trip before attempting a much longer and more dangerous flight, nearly twice as far, in fact. He imparted to the ambassador his desire to fly from the United States direct to Australia in a non-stop flight. Such a trip would be approximately 6,500 miles long and he would encounter many changes in climate, crossing the equator and passing over many groups of the South Sea Islands.

"Others have crossed the Atlantic before, but none has ever dared the Pacific at such a point," he is said to have declared.

He also said he would attempt to break the endurance record for an airplane shortly after his return to the United States.

Captain Lindbergh arrived at Le Bourget field several hours after a great crowd of Frenchmen had gathered, drawn there by early but erroneous reports that he was scheduled to arrive earlier than he did. Suspense weighed heavily on the crowds, but they waited away their time drinking beer and munching sandwiches. Cameramen from all parts of the world installed enormous flares at the field and were ready long before the "Spirit of St. Louis" hovered over the field and settled down with its load of American courage and nerve.

Experts tonight, in discussing the feat of the slender, blue-eyed American lad of only 25 years of age, declared that the newspapers have called him "Lucky Lindbergh" but that his feat today could not have been accomplished on luck alone. They declared Lindbergh accomplished a feat unheard of in aviation history by setting him self a course of 3,500 miles and following it with the aid of only a compass. They declared his name should be written with those of Guydenard, Bishop, De Pinedo, Immanuel, D'Obry, Nungesser, Rickenbacker and all the avces.

All Europe, and particularly France and England, today kept in touch with the progress of Lindbergh. Various reports circulated rapidly through the continent, and newspapers gave most of their front pages over to the "story." Pictures of the "Flying Fool," who seemed to have fired the imagination of all continents, occupied first page position, while prominent men both within and without aviation circles were interviewed as to their views on the flight. Most of them agreed that the flight was "foolhardy but splendid." Some fears had been expressed over how the French populace would take the success of the American's flight, since the failure of Nungesser had stirred up considerable anti-American feeling, but the cheers which greeted the youthful flyer tonight showed beyond a doubt that all France was as one in admiring his pluck and skill.

Lindbergh made the flight in a Ryan D-4 monoplane, built by the Wright aeronautical works. It was a single-seater affair, and the pilot could see in only two directions—out each side. He was able to look ahead only through a periscope and steered his way by means of a compass and other instruments. The plane carried only one motor, that of rotary type, a fact that made his flight all the more remarkable.

MOTHER CRIES WITH JOY AS SHE HEARS OF FEAT

DETROIT, Mich., May 21.—Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh, mother of Captain Charles Lindbergh, expressed her relief late today when informed that her intrepid son had arrived safely in France after an arduous flight from New York. Mrs. Lindbergh, who had been silently waiting alone in her home while her son also flew alone on the long, adventurous journey after taking off from New York at 7:50 Friday morning, allowed herself a few tears of joy.

"I am most thankful that he arrived safely in France and I had every confidence that he would do so," Mrs. Lindbergh said. "I am most appreciative of the true sympathy expressed by so many people since the flight began," she added.

CHAMBERLAIN'S FLIGHT INDEFINITELY POSTPONED

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., May 21.—The Paris flight of Clarence Chamberlain was indefinitely postponed today when friends persuaded him to drop the plan of flying to Paris despite Captain Lindbergh's successful flight.

PINEDO PREPARING FOR TRANS-ATLANTIC HOP

ST. JOHN'S, Newfoundland, May 21.—Commander de Pinedo has refueled his seaplane and overhauled the engine and now only awaits final weather reports before hopping off to the Azores on his return to Italy.

FORD TO BUILD PLANES TO CARRY 100 ACROSS.

SOUTH SUDBURY, Mass., May 21.—Captain Lindbergh has blazed the way for Trans-Atlantic planes carrying 100 or more passengers. Henry Ford said today. Here on his first vacation since his recent accident, the automobile magnate said: "Lindbergh is paving the way for safe flights across the Atlantic. I am very interested in his flight, and hope soon to have plans for an airplane capable of developing 800 or more horsepower and capable of landing on land or sea, and having capacity of 100 or more passengers."

LINDBERGH'S SUCCESS BOOSTS WRIGHT STOCK

NEW YORK, May 21.—Bulletins on Capt. Charles Lindbergh's New York to Paris flight caused operators on the New York Stock Exchange today to allow their hearts to rule their heads. When it was announced Lindbergh had successfully spanned the ocean, they gave vent to their exuberance by buying Wright Aeronautical stock, makers of the plane in which Lindbergh made his flight. Buying forced the stock up 5 points.

MASTER OF WIND, AND WAVE AND FEAR— THAT'S CAPTAIN LINDBERGH

Again an American has conquered the air when others failed. American pluck and skill have driven a flying machine across the ocean in a single hop. To Captain Lindbergh, whose plane landed in France after a gruelling trip alone which two Frenchmen were unable to stand, goes the admiration of an entire nation, if not of the entire world. This young aviator, whose dare-devil spirit is typical of America, defied the wind, the rain and the deadly fog. He refused to think of fatigue. In the full bloom of young manhood at 25, he was confident that he could conquer them all. And he did. Today the world is figuratively at the feet of this mere strippling, and even those other flyers whom he beat in the race for a $25,000 prize join in singing his praise. This young man, two weeks ago unknown except among his fellow airmen who knew his ability and pluck, today stands foremost in the world as an airman and adventurer. Others perhaps had equal skill; but Lindbergh had that added quality we Americans call "nerve," and his confidence has driven him into the lap of fortune and fame. It is refreshing to think that we live in this country of ours where all have an equal chance at riches and fame. It is good to know that ours is still a race of men of courage and daring, and that we still lead the world in these important qualities. It is good to know that ours is still the "land of the free and the home of the brave," and we hail Lindbergh as a typical example of America. All honor to this intrepid young adventurer whose exploits have fired the admiration of the earth. May his example serve to refute any statements that ours is a decadent race.

VACATION DAYS ARE HERE

School days are over. Vacation days are here. Closing of Cisco schools and Randolph college mark the beginning of summer time in Cisco. And unless we are careful, it may mark the beginning of the usual season of letting things just rock along until next September and the beginning of school days again. Many of us will be going on vacation trips or going fishin' near home, and unless we make an effort, we may drift into the usual summer attitude of waiting till cooler weather comes. But when cooler weather does come, football and its usual disturbing elements will again get our minds off general progress, and we'll then be waiting until "after Christmas and the first of the year" to do real things for Cisco. But Cisco has too many things to be done at once to sit down and wait for next Christmas to roll by. We've got to keep on the job this summer and carry out some of the major projects facing us now, or when this time next summer comes around, we'll still be putting them off till cooler weather. The Daily News is anxious to see a campaign for a modern hotel begin. Unless the campaign is begun at once, hot weather of late summer will wilt it away, if delayed till then. The fact that Cisco needs a modern hotel cannot be evaded; the only question is, can Cisco build it? There is only one way to find out. Try and see. The Daily News hopes the chamber of commerce will not delay the matter longer, but that it will put its entire, whole-hearted efforts into a campaign that will result in Cisco getting a hotel able to take care of Cisco visitors adequately and comfortably. We'll never get a hotel unless we try to build it; and it seems to The Daily News that now is the time to try.

Canada is trying to select a national bird. Better look out for our American eagle—our gunners have driven him to Canada.

WEDDINGS AND FUNERALS

Weddings and funerals have been likened to each other, usually with humorous intent by scurrilous males. John W. Love, a newspaper writer, takes the similitude seriously. He proposes that undertakers—or morticians, as they now prefer to be called—should add to their activities by undertaking to conduct public weddings as they do funerals. The idea may jar one at first, but may seem reasonable enough when you think it over. The undertaker has the equipment for such service, and his experience should serve him in good stead. Many people, perhaps most people, don't know any more about planning weddings than they do funerals. Many might welcome the opportunity to have the job taken off their hands by some competent person. The rash journalist making this suggestion says he has already had a flattering response from the public. What undertaker hereabouts will have the nerve to go into the wedding business?

JAZZ AND TRACK MEETS

One sort of news appears at this time of the year which couldn't have been found in the papers a generation or two ago. It is the news of girls' track meets in high schools and colleges. Healthy, hearty, happy girls may be seen in almost any community and almost any institution of learning these May days, running 75-yard dashes and relay races, jumping hurdles, hurling javelins and baseballs. Archery and other interesting outdoor sports form the basis of numerous class and school contests. There may be a few elders who still regard this sort of thing as shocking. Wise persons, however, will see in the feminine athletes a wholesome cause for optimism. Jazz and cigarettes and pocket flasks don't play much part in the lives and interests of the hundreds of girls and young women in the track meets.

HISTORY REVEALS ITSELF.

It was an astonishment to me to learn that 75,000 Jews are engaged in agriculture in the United States today, as against 1,000 a quarter of a century ago.

We are so accustomed to thinking of the Jew as a merchant that it is not easy to visualize him as working with the soil and animals. Yet that in ancient days was the Hebrew's usual employment. In Biblical times he was an agriculturist and stock raiser.

The Jew has acquired the place he now occupies in the business world through circumstances which forced him into that character of activity. Harassed and driven from country to country, he was compelled by the law of self-preservation into the business of buying and selling commodities.

In this move of the Jews toward farm life there is smiling promise. It may mean the solution of the farm problem in the United States for the Jew is a success in whatever he undertakes. He does not go into a thing which has not in it the elements of success.

The fact that already practically two per cent of the Jews of this country are in agriculture and kindred lines is significant. The Jew senses that there is something doing in raising crops and animals, and that the time is at hand when the farmer is going to be well rewarded for intelligent and conscientious effort. The Jew has an uncanny gift for sensing profitable ventures.

The 75,000 Jews now engaged in agriculture in this country are succeeding well. They are running their farms with that shrewdness and economy which the Jew applies to his mercantile endeavors. The Gentile may fall down on the farm, but the Jew will not. He will make money. He will employ and devise methods that will make the farm pay good dividends, and he will not work himself to death either; the Jew is not inclined to overdo physically; he has the faculty of making his money without going to that length.

The Jew is turning from the city to the farm with his eyes wide open. He sees where he can employ scientific methods to make farm life both profitable and pleasant.

There is something wholesome, something gripping, something appealing about this forward movement of the sons of Jacob.

53 Receive Diplomas From Cisco High School

Candidates for Diplomas Given Advice on Choosing a Vocation; Large Crowd Attends Exercises

Fifty-three graduates of Cisco high school received diplomas Friday night, thus concluding their careers at the high school. Of this number, 25 were boys, an unusually large number of boys for a high school graduating class. Diplomas were awarded by J. H. Morgan, superintendent of schools, following the commencement address which was delivered by J. Adams Puffer, noted authority and author on the psychology of youth. The address was heard by a large crowd, and was filled with ideas of value to young men and young women just beginning their mature life in college or business. The speaker made suggestions on how the youths should go about choosing a life work, and stressed the importance of an early decision as to one's vocation to be followed. With a blackboard, he illustrated the points in the address.

Rev. A. C. Miller, pastor of the First Baptist church, delivered the invocation. Miss Edith Toombs, salutatorian, made a brief talk, followed by a violin selection by Miss Jewel Ely. "When Irish Eyes are Smiling" was the title of the solo sung by Miss Frances McGinnis. The valedictory was delivered by Miss Bessie Olson, girls' honor student, who made the highest average of the class. H. V. Nigro presented the class and Sup. J. H. Morgan gave out the diplomas. Rev. Thomas Leno, pastor of the First Christian church, gave the benediction.

A junior-senior banquet Saturday night closed the commencement week observance. At the graduation exercises, the girls were dressed in white and the boys wore dark suits. The candidates for diplomas marched in from each side of the high school auditorium and took seats on the platform. Following are the graduates: Frances Irene Lisenbee, Clara Mae Munn, Joe Edith Northcutt, Ruby Jo Rogers, Edith Edith Toombs, Flossie Faye Coghlan, Eileen Elizabeth Wilson, Bessie Olson, Ethel Flourman, Muri Spradley, Ruby Latson, Idellah Lynch Tomlinson, Christine Douglas, Lucille Pierce, Beatrice Garrett, Opal Ramsey, Beulah Williams, Oona Frances Brown, Bertha Helen Tripitt, Melba Lucille Weathers, Velma Fenley, Marian Ruth Nixon, Ora Elizabeth Moore, Mary Lucille McCull, James H. Medal Presented Negro Boy Writer

Two others were submitted by Sadie May Griffin and Early Tripp. The medal was given by Mrs. C. H. Pe-

Pythians to Hold Meeting at Hall Today and Arrange for Mandolin Program on Tuesday

Cisco Knights of Pythias will hold a called meeting Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at their hall when they will make arrangements for entertainment of the 24 members of the Mandolin club from the Pythian home at Weatherford, who will appear in concert here Tuesday night. Efforts will be made to accommodate the girls in the homes of Pythians.

The concert will be held in the auditorium of the First Methodist church, with no admission charged. An effort is being made to fill the large auditorium for this event. The club appeared last week in Abilene, and the following "write-up" of the program appeared in the Abilene Reporter.

The girls Mandolin club of the Pythian home, Weatherford, and four "French Harp" players from the same institution, delighted an audience that packed the city hall Tuesday evening, with the presentation of a program of old favorites and airs.

"Echoes of 61," a medley of Southern songs and tunes, concluded the program drawing the heaviest applause of the evening. The tramp, tramp of soldiers, the bugle call and the galvanic strains of Dixie were depicted with remarkable realism.

ing instant appreciation from her auditors. Dressed in patched overalls and shirt, she presented a pleasing picture, as she sang the "Little Red School House." One of the French harp players vied with her in favor when he played "Let Me Call You Sweetheart."

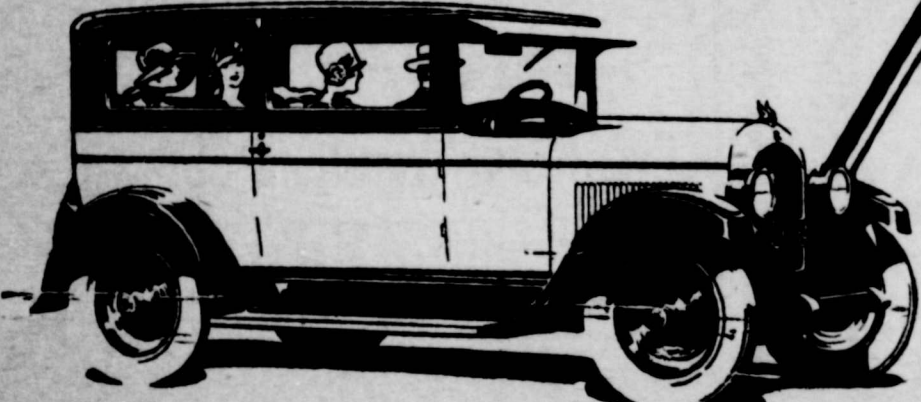

The party is making a tour of West Texas. They are accompanied by Miss Julius Strube, orchestra director, and Judge Heffer and C. M. Shears, well known Fort Worth Dockey. Shears called the numbers for the program, Cameron Benn, local Pythian, served as master of ceremonies.

Judge Heffer made a brief talk, telling of the work of the Pythian home. He said that when the mandolin club played "Echoes of 61" over the radio, that the home received 1400 complimentary letters and telegrams from 45 different states.

Chevrolet is the only car in its price class offering bodies by Fisher—built as only Fisher can build, and styled as low-priced cars were never styled before!

Bodies by Fisher are everywhere acknowledged to represent the highest order of beauty, luxury, and safety—and never was the superiority of Fisher craftsmanship more evident than in the Most Beautiful Chevrolet.

Despite the lowness of Chevrolet prices, there is not the slightest compromise in design, construction or finish. All embody exactly the principles employed on the highest priced cars—a composite construction of selected hardwood and steel. All are finished in beautiful colors of lustrous, lasting Duco. All are completely appointed—from coincidental steering and ignition lock to gasoline gauge.

Enhancing the inherent beauty of the bodies themselves are numerous features of distinction previously considered exclusive to the costliest cars—features typified by heavy full-crown, one-piece fenders and bullet-type headlamps.

Only the economies of Chevrolet's great volume production make possible such quality at Chevrolet prices—value so outstanding that comparisons cease to exist. Come in for a demonstration!

400-BARREL SHAW-RATHKE WELL STIRS ACTIVITY

Heavy Production in New Area Now Expected to Be Developed; Sand Is 45 Feet Deep, Drill Has Indicated

By F. M. GWIN
Cisco Daily News Correspondent

CROSS PLAINS, May 21.—The recent completion of a 400 barrel well in the new Cross Plains field has not only offered the largest well so far drilled in that territory but has ushered in heavy production at an entirely new spot in the wide area being slowly explored. The new well, property of Shaw & Rathke, is at location No. 4 on the Miller tract about 1200 feet northeast of the Brown & Co. Edwards discovery that opened drilling in the south end of the field, and opens outside territory leading to the north from the string of wells that has been drilled by these owners from south to north across this property.

Its chief importance to the territory rests in the fact that of this string of wells, No. 3 at the south edge found barely a trace of oil, the next location to the north is a well of 100 barrels, and the next well in the line, and now being completed, shows about 150 barrels, with the big well marking the outpost of development.

A total of 45 feet of sand, topped at 1004 feet has been drilled with no trace of the usual break that has characterized the sand in practically all other wells. The total depth is 1049 feet with no estimate of the total thickness of the sand or test of the possible third sand that has been developed in other operations drilling having been suspended with the bit still in the first sand encountered.

Present production figures are based on a 19 hour test with the swab that yielded 350 barrels actual tank gauge.

This log shows a rise of 35 feet in the sand over the abandoned well four locations to the south, and ten feet higher than the companion offsetting in the same direction.

The later well topped the sand at 1014 feet, and like the big well, found no break in the pay to 1050 feet where drilling was suspended.

after a test had indicated that this well would produce at least 150 barrels.

These wells are more than a half mile southwest of the heavy producers of the Prairie Oil & Gas Co. and M. E. Wakefield and the Mook Texas Co., that are yielding the main pay from the prolific third sand about 50 feet deeper than present drilling in the new wells.

Two new locations leading still farther to the north have been made by Shaw & Rathke on the same Miller tract, and a rig is on the ground on the Navarro Oil Co. lease on the Bennett and Booth land to offset the big well to the west, and at the northwest corner of the Navarro lease this owner is at 1200 feet on No. 2 location, that is an outside test in that direction.

The important wildcat test of Harry Parker et al on the McDermitt ranch about two miles southwest of the new field has found a sand at 1590 feet to 1598 feet that is believed to be the Cross Plains sand. This sand carried neither oil nor water, but its discovery comes at several feet less depth than expected and may indicate a new structure in that vicinity, though the small amount of sand leads to the belief that the structure has been edged by this test.

Drilling is now at 1029 feet and will be continued on to the Cross Cut sand that is found regular at from 350 to 400 feet below the Cross Plains sand.

An interesting new test being drilled by May and Cooks, is now spudding on the Strackein land about two miles directly south of Cross Plains and a short distance west of a gasser drilled during the development of the townsite field.

This well is in virgin territory and will seek a new fold of the townsite pay that may have been edged by the gasser, that has been a consistent producer of gas over a period of more than a year.

Development in the Cross Cut territory continues at a very slow pace though two new wells that promise heavy production were in process of completion in territory near the west edge of the field at the close of the week.

One of the wells on the Hensen tract is being drilled by E. H. Ramsey et al, and has found the top of the sand at 1250 feet and at three feet in the sand is standing 800 feet in oil with a nice volume of wet gas. This is an unusual showing to come from the top of the pay as most wells in that section show but little oil in the top six to eight feet of sand. This is in the vicinity of a completion by the same owners that had an initial flow of 500 barrels at time of completion a few months ago.

Offsetting this well on the east,

E. M. Curry is also on the sand on the Pickett tract, though not sufficiently drilled in to allow an estimate of the probable outcome.

These will be the only completions over a two weeks period for that section, and reflects the effect of market conditions on drilling in the more proven areas, the Cross Cut district having supplied an average of a completion each day prior to the slump in the price of crude that deferred drilling on an immense number of locations that are semi-proven in character and an equal number that are so situated to deserve being classified as proven territory.

Jack Holt fans are probably the best traveled of all motion picture spectators as regards their own country. "See America First," is an old story with them. In his new picture, "The Mysterious Rider," Zane Gray picture at the Palace Tuesday and Wednesday hitherto unphotographed stretches of the great Colorado desert are shown. To acquire these scenes a company of 150 people traveled hundreds of miles from Hollywood into the heart of the wastelands.

The wild rugged heights of the lofty Sierras of California, with sparkling mirror lakes, snow-capped peaks and giant trees formed the impressive background of "The Man of the Forest." Holt's last Zane Gray picture for Paramount in which he also had the title role. Scenic grandeur such as could not be witnessed without the most rigorous hardships is unfolded for the man who prefers to do his traveling in a comfortable theater seat.

The alluring wonders of Zion National Park and Bryce Canyon, Utah, to view which thousands of tourists each year make stopovers on transcontinental tours, were photographed for "Forsyth River" and the famous Apache Trail, Fish Creek and Superstition Mountain of Arizona were seen in "Light of the West." The stunningly beautiful Red Rock canyon of California led their impressiveness to "Born to the West," and the famous Painted Desert of Arizona appeared in "Wild Horse Mesa." "To the Last Man" was made in the actual locale of the story, the Tonto basin of Arizona, 200 miles from a railroad.

These are settings by the Great Stage Director. Their beauty was carried to the farthest corners of the world by the films, and the authenticity of the locale had much to do with the success of the pictures.

The theme of "The Mysterious Rider" is mankind's battle with the desert. It shows the fight of government homesteaders in the west to wrest a living from the arid wastes.

on Nov. 9, 1924, the fire being preceded by an explosion which was believed at the time to have been gasoline. The hall later was rebuilt, but was reported several months ago to have been sold, since which time meetings of the organization have been held in the Commerce street hall. Klan members believe the missile was hurled from a passing automobile. Officials of the order stated that they intended to go to the bottom of the affair, and city detectives were put to work on the case immediately. The piece of metal a piece of the fan mechanism of a large automobile, apparently had been freshly painted red, and bore a number of black crosses. The metal, detectives said, weighed between two and three pounds.

FORT WORTH, May 21.—Destruction of the Ku Klux Klan meeting hall at 209 1-2 Commerce street if the organization didn't "get out in 30 days" was threatened in an anonymous note attached to a heavy piece of iron hurled through an open window during a Klan session Friday night, according to officials of the Klan. The piece of metal to which the warning note was attached traversed nearly the entire length of the hall, officials said, before it struck D. E. Brown of Birville on the leg, inflicting a slight flesh wound. A reward of $500 for information leading to the identity of the person or persons who hurled the metal was voted by the Klan, officials also said. State and national officers of the organization were advised by wire of the incident. Roughly written on a shipping tag tied to the metal with a heavy cord and signed "The Blacks," the note read: "We will give you 30 days to get out or we will use twice as much dynamite on this building as we did on the Klan hall. We are getting tired of you getting into other people's business." The Klan hall on North Main street was destroyed by fire

More Glory for Studebaker Commander

Tests show 17 1/4 miles per gallon

Matchless endurance under sustained speed enabled Big Six to establish ten world records. And here is proof of thrifty gas mileage.

First—5000 miles in 4909 minutes—the fastest going for the greatest distance of any enclosed car in the world or any strictly stock car, open or closed.

Next, in 33 nation-wide hill-climbing contests, The Commander demonstrated its thrilling power over some of the steepest hills in the country.

17 1/4 miles per gallon!

And now—in 61 tests held all over the United States, The Commander delivered an average of 17 1/4 miles per gallon of gasoline! In every instance the carburetor was drained and connected to an accurately measured one-gallon container. Each test was carefully checked by motor club officials or newspaper representatives.

And remember, this average of 17 1/4 miles per gallon was made by a Big Six equipped in rated horsepower by only seven other American cars—and they cost from $4,000 to $10,000! No wonder the Studebaker Big Six outsells the combined total of all other cars in the world of equal or greater rated horsepower.

There is a sound basis for the statement that The Commander is "the greatest post-war achievement in automotive engineering."

The feat of covering 5000 continuous miles in less than 5000 consecutive minutes merely dramatized the thrilling performance, the freedom from repair expense, the peace of mind and economy which all owners of this plus-powered car enjoy.

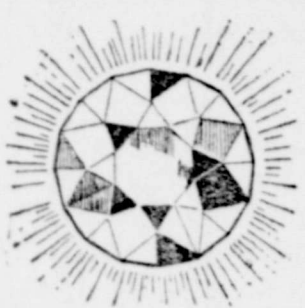

Drive The Commander yourself!

Get behind the wheel, step on the throttle and step out in front—try it in traffic for flexible handling—or level out the steepest hills. Any gait of travel suits The Commander—it answers instantly to the spur of its accelerator or the curb of its positive-acting 4-wheel brakes.

An exact duplicate of the champion Commander is ready and waiting for you. Come in today!

LOBOES LOST PAIR GAMES TO WAXAHACHIE

Waxahachie trimmed the Cisco high school Big Dam Loboes in a pair of baseball games here Friday and Saturday, winning the first game Friday, 3 to 1, and the second Saturday, 8 to 0, thereby winning the state baseball championship. The Loboes were unable to hit the Waxahachie pitchers' offerings, while their own pitchers wavered at times. Large crowds saw both games.

In the eighth inning Saturday the Loboes appeared to rally after Blanton had hit a double. H. Phippen sacrificed him to third, and Westerfeldt, hitting to third, got on first when Ferguson threw wild. Van Horn then hit to Ferguson who doubled Blanton, thus nipping the rally.

The box score of Saturday's game follows:

Waxy Wins Friday Game.

Waxahachie won Friday's game 3 to 1 after a pitchers' duel. Waxahachie scored in the first inning by a walk a sacrifice and an error by Proctor. Cisco scored in the first inning as a result of a walk to Van Horn, a sacrifice by Purvis and a double by Proctor after Phippen had fouled out. Waxahachie scored again in the sixth inning when O. Watson walked, Rabe walked and Hughes singled. They scored again in the seventh. Campbell got a scratch hit, Farley singled and Campbell came home on an error by H. Phippen. Cisco threatened to score in the fifth and seventh innings but lacked the punch to put over a run. It was a pitchers' duel the whole way through with Farley allowing two real hits and one infield hit while B. Phippen allowed four scattered hits and two scratch hits, but Farley had the better support and Waxahachie was able to take advantage of the breaks.

Pure Ice
From Cisco Ice Co.
Phone 301

This is Lester, Carl, Elmer or Jim, according to which route you are on, and he is our representative to you. He is courteous, careful, clean and tidy, and most of the time in a good humor, but after all, only human. While you have only one man a day with which to deal, he has many homes in which to go. The ice chambers in your boxes are not always empty, having milk, meat and vegetables in them (instead of the place they belong.) He has these to move, and maybe spills some milk and then he gets the blame for being careless, when likely he was only in a hurry. A few minutes lost in each home makes his loss amount to hours in a day's time, and Mrs. Doe on down the street is waiting for her ice. This, to you, is a small thing, but to him it amounts to a great deal. If he seems grouchy (as you sometimes are,) just remember that he is not naturally that way, and may have had a good reason for seeming so. These days are hot, and sometimes it rains but he must keep right on the job, whether he is tired, wet or half sick.

If you will take this into consideration, we are sure you can get along with any of these men, for you will find them very willing to do their part, and more. If something should happen that you cannot straighten out, do not hesitate to use your phone, and maybe the manager at the plant can help, for it is only by co-operation on the part of both the customer and ourselves that we are able to give you the service we are striving to give.
