NEW HEAT RECORD FOR MAY SET

Last of Concrete Poured on Floor of Bridge

OLD HOME TOWN

Frank Holmes, who is a student at the University of Oklahoma, writes his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Holmes of Cisco, that he is returning home June 5. His parents have received a splendid report of his work during the year. He has carried a very heavy course, and besides his activities in music and official duties in school organizations, he has been made a member of Kappa Kappa Sigma and Kappa Epsilon fraternities. He wrote his parents another year in Oklahoma university he expects to go to Pittsburg or Berkeley university.

OTHER LAKE PROJECTS GO FORWARD NOW

The final span of concrete for the floor of the bridge over Williamson dam was poured late Friday afternoon by Crouch and Noland, contractors, completing this part of the huge project in less than five months after beginning the work right after the first of the year. The crew Saturday began building forms for constructing the bannisters on each side of the bridge, and this work is expected to require at least three weeks to complete.

Sea Horses Here for Use in Lake Cisco Swim Pool

Horses! Horses! Horses! Whiskery and Spark Plug have arrived. Two rubber horses for use as floats in the Lake Cisco Bathing beach have arrived and are "rearing to go" as soon as the beach is completed. The two water steeds were exhibited in the window of the Cisco Daily News for several hours Saturday and attracted many curious onlookers. However, the sun became so hot that, when one of a number of large inflated balls, also purchased for use on the bathing beach, burst into pieces, the horses were removed to the inside of the building.

$3,650,000 a Year or $10,000 a Day Offered Captain Lindbergh to Go on Stage; Belgian Heaps Honors on Ace

LOS ANGELES, May 28.—Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh's potential earnings today were boosted to $10,000 a day. Alexander A. Pantazes, vaudeville impresario, disclosed that he called the air hero an offer of $3,650,000 on a year's contract to appear over his theater circuit.

Ship Cook's Body Given Up After Big Battle With Octopus

FORT TOWNSEND, Wash., May 28.—Efforts were being made today to communicate with relatives of H. Ely, cook on the ill-fated tug Warren, whose body was recovered last night after a terrific hand-to-hand encounter with a giant octopus. The sea monster, with Ely's body clutched in its tentacles, was sighted by H. E. Hook, a diver, while repairing a fish trap 50 feet below the surface of Puget Sound. He attacked the devil fish and for an hour they fought a desperate submarine battle. After Hook had ripped the fish open with his improvised lance, the fish gave up his victim and disappeared.

A letter received from George Huter, of the Dallas Times-Herald has been received by the Daily News, inquiring as to the fishing privileges and camping conveniences at Lake Cisco. He wrote that he had heard that Lake Cisco had just opened to the public after being closed for several years while being stocked, and indicated he wanted to come here and spend a week or ten days camping with his family, provided camp facilities are available. Mr. Huter's inquiry has brought up the subject of building summer camp houses at the lake for use of vacationists and tourists. It is understood that the Lake Cisco Amusement company is considering building such summer houses, but should it not be in position at this time to construct them, it is pointed out that private capital may be employed to provide them. In Colorado and along the Texas coast summer lodges, cheaply built but comfortable, rent at fancy prices by the week to vacationists, proving both a convenience to the visitors and a source of revenue to the investors.

Work on the swimming pool is going forward at a rapid rate. Most of the excavation for the first 400 feet has now been completed, and pouring of concrete alone remains. Total of 125 feet of floor had been poured Saturday, with part of the retaining walls also poured. Delay in receiving a carload of reinforcing steel held up work on the floor considerably, but this has now arrived and work should go forward rapidly. The 120 foot "safe-T-Rail" slide and two smaller slides for the smaller children have arrived and are ready for installation. Other amusement devices are also to be installed.

TUCKER WELL PLEASED WITH PLANT HERE

State Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner William J. Tucker expressed great satisfaction at the success of the state fish hatchery here in hatching young fish this spring in spite of the late opening of the hatchery. The commissioner, together with Mrs. Tucker and their small son, were in Cisco Saturday and inspected the hatchery. Mr. Tucker said he had expected to see only a few fish out, but instead he found thousands of them in the hatchery pool.

S. A. Brooks, former Ciscoan now living in Henryetta, Okla., back in Cisco for a visit with relatives and friends, has found many things have changed since he was a boy here. He recalls one visit he made here when he was but 11 years of age. He came here to have some grinding done for his father, who gave him a hide to sell and get spending money. He sold the hide for 75 cents, spent 10 cents for a night's lodging, and had a "hic time" with the remaining 65 cents. "I think I had the biggest time of my life from the proceeds of that old hide," he declared.

I have not got any springs under my heels or slide runners, and am at peace with God and all mankind and have a 110,000 steel car load of love for little children."

Thermometer Soars to 107 in North Texas While Cisco Escapes With 100; Hot Winds Will Prove Aid to Cotton

FORT WORTH, May 28.—With the mercury standing at 107 degrees at 4 o'clock this afternoon, all existing records for May heat in Fort Worth were shattered today, according to Director Landis of the local weather bureau. Two prostrations resulted over Texas in the record May heat wave. C. A. Tucker collapsed after making a motor trip from Longview to Dallas, and is in a Dallas hospital in a critical condition. A negro in Dallas was also overcome.

FORT WORTH SATURDAY. The temperature soared to a new high record in Cisco, along with the rest of Texas, Saturday when the thermometer registered 100 degrees in the shade. This was lower than the figure in Fort Worth where the hottest May 28 in history was experienced. The previous record for the day was 97, and the previous hottest May day on record there was 103 in 1911. Hot winds accompanied the heat, but according to E. H. Varnell, agricultural expert of the Cisco chamber of commerce, the winds will have no ill effect on crops with the possible exception of corn. In fact, the heat will prove beneficial to cotton in that it will help control the insects, he said.

Much of the grain crop has already been cut, Mr. Varnell said. While the crop as a whole was short this year, due to the fact that much of it proved too short to cut, that which was able to be cut gives promise of an excellent yield. Threshing has not yet commenced, and so the yield can not be estimated accurately, but heads of grain examined so far have shown to be well filled out and heavy. The last rain fall over this section came too late to develop which Cisco is famous, brought much stalk, but made the heads fill from the heat.

But crops or no crops, Ciscoans flocked to the cool places Saturday. Soda fountains did a rushing business from early morning until late at night. The ice plant was kept busy the whole day in supplying an abnormal demand for ice. Small swimming pools in this section were crowded, and many were heard to lament the fact that the Lake Cisco swimming pool has another week to go before being opened. Business men in general discarded coats, going in their shirt-sleeves, and those who did wear a coat, which number included the mayor, proved somewhat of a curiosity. However, regardless of the heat, a large crowd gathered in Cisco Saturday. Merchants reported good business, and streets were crowded with the growing Saturday and Saturday night automobile processions. Cool breezes at night, for which Cisco is famous, brought much stalk, but made the heads fill from the heat.

WEAR A POPPY FOR OUR HERO DEAD

"In Flanders fields where poppies blow, between the crosses, row on row . . ." That should be the central thought today and tomorrow, "poppy days" set aside in remembrance of those brave American boys who sleep the sleep of heroes in Flanders fields and nearer home. It is appropriate that these days be set aside each year for remembrance of our heroes of the past. It is well that we keep fresh in mind their deeds of valor and self-sacrifice. It is good for us all to spend at least one day in the year in reverent thoughts of our hero dead, for the loving memory of future generations is the only reward possible for a soldier who gives his life for his country. No sweeter symbol of our admiration and gratitude for our heroes has yet been devised than the little red poppy, made within a stone's throw of the spot where thousands of American lads sleep. It is to be hoped that the surviving comrades of our soldier dead meet with great success in their sale of poppies, that we all do this little bit in buying and wearing poppies to show our appreciation for those who gave their lives for us all.

TWO MIGHTY TASKS OUTDONE BY CISCO

"Building of the Panama canal was a mighty task for the United States, but Cisco's task of building Williamson dam was far more herculean, in proportion to wealth and ability." This statement has often been made in the past, and is, of course, obviously true. The Panama canal was a huge project to build, and it had the wealth of the United States of America back of it. Williamson dam, a million and a half dollar proposition, had only the population of Cisco, at that time less than 10,000, back of it. Yet, as heroic as was the accomplishment of Cisco in building the mammoth dam of which we are all so proud, it is likewise swept aside in comparison with the task of that little group of stockholders in the Lake Cisco Amusement company, now engaged in building a huge swimming pool and other projects at the lake at a cost which will exceed $100,000. Judged from the standpoint of numbers, the amusement company's feat is far more gigantic than that of either Cisco, which built the dam, or the United States, which built the Panama canal. In fact, the officers and stockholders of the amusement company deserve the admiration and commendation of every citizen of Cisco for undertaking this task. The Daily News has long advocated a "big" resort at the lake; yet the plans of the amusement company as being enfolded at the present, far surpass even the fondest dreams of this publication. The magnitude of the swimming pool now under construction is staggering, and if the remainder of the resort is developed on a scale in keeping with the size of the pool, Cisco will become famed all over the country as a pleasure resort. Every business man in Cisco will benefit to a large extent from construction of the Lake Cisco resort, and all of us should give our utmost cooperation and patronage in making it the success it deserves to be.

SELF-DECISION

Says the mother of Charles Lindbergh: "I always trained him in childhood to make his own decisions. I would point out both sides of a question to him, then I would let him decide. If he made a mistake, he would pay the penalty bravely without whimpering, because he knew he had decided for himself. That was the way it was when he decided to fly to Paris." "Lucky Lindbergh" they call him. It's a lucky lad, indeed, who has so wise a mother to shape his mind and character. Let the child decide for himself as much as possible. That makes him thoughtful and responsible. That makes him, too, a good sport. No wonder a lot of boys and girls never amount to anything, when they have all their decisions made for them, and possibly imposed on them by force, by well meaning but unwise parents.

Future explorers may cross the Atlantic on a hot dog sandwich and a package of chewing gum.

SAFETY IN THE ARCTIC

Many people, with little experience of ocean travel and none of arctic exploration and aviation, would regard crossing the Atlantic in an airplane as safer than flying across the North Pole. Vilhjalmur Stefansson holds a different viewpoint and expresses it as follows: "I'd rather fly over the Arctic than the Atlantic Ocean any time; it's far safer. Had the two missing flyers been aiming at the North Pole, their chances of getting back, if forced to land, would have been much better. The experience of Captain George Wilkins, who flew north from Point Barrow recently, is an excellent illustration." Wilkins was overcome once by engine trouble. He was 550 miles from land, but he came down safely on an ice floe, took soundings, cooked a meal, repaired his engine and took off again. When 100 miles from shore he ran into such strong head winds that he could make no progress. Then he ran out of gasoline. Once more he made camp over the ocean on an ice floe. There he broke up his plane, made a sledge of the wood and wings, and then trudged to shore, a ten-day trip. The only casualty was his companion's frozen finger. Forced down on the Atlantic by engine trouble, strong head winds or empty gasoline tank, flyers, however ingenious and courageous, must be at the mercy of fortune. If seen and picked up by a boat, their lives may be saved. Otherwise, they are lost.

You can tour Europe on $2 a day, says a traveler. But you can't expect to be popular there for that.

RECRUITING SKILLED LABOR

It is pointed out by a university professor that the lamentable lack of apprentices to replenish the ranks of the skilled trades as their older members step out is not due so much to severe union regulations governing apprenticeship as to the lack of interest in those trades on the part of young men. In one state, he finds, while electricians' rules permit 30,000 apprentices, there are actually only 9,500 learning that trade; and while the plumbers' rules permit 29,000 apprentices, there are only 7,300. In neither of these cases, he says, is there any apparent effort to discourage boys from entering. The boys simply don't want to be electricians or plumbers. They want "white collar jobs." But perhaps that will change. There are really indications of a change already. There have been many instances of white-collar men forsaking their clerical or professional callings and taking up manual labor to better their economic conditions. More boys may choose manual work hereafter, especially if the teaching of trades in the schools continues to spread. What they need more than anything else is the prestige given to manual labor by such honorable recognition for it in the schools. When a boy can get a diploma for carpenter's work or plumbing or stone cutting, he respects mechanical work more, and so do his bookish associates.

There's such a thing as being too lucky. A New York man drew eight aces in a pinocle game, and dropped dead.

JUNK 100,000 CHURCHES

Mr. Frederick L. Collins in the Woman's Home Companion suggests—yes, even urges—the advisability of scrapping, wrecking, or otherwise disposing of one-half of the churches in the United States. Mr. Collins forcibly brings out the fact that the 200,000 existing churches, costing approximately $3,000,000,000 and requiring about $300,000,000 a year to maintain them, could have all their work better done by 100,000 churches.

Isn't there merit in Mr. Collins' suggestion? I have in mind a little town in which there are three churches. Each church is able to have services but twice a month. Each church pays its minister less than enough to keep his nose above water, even though he stands on his toes and sticks his nose straight up. Each church sometimes has a congregation of a baker's dozen, sometimes more, sometimes less. Physically the needs of that community could be amply served by one church. Theoretically that would mean a better church building, a better paid minister, a better choir, a bigger congregation, to say nothing of the larger enthusiasm that accompanies a larger undertaking.

What about doubling up in other directions, too? Look at the automobiles running around empty save for a lone person bouncing about in the front seat, while on every side folks are pounding shoeleather. Why not adjust that matter some way and fill up the seats with weary pedestrians? There are many dwellings with vacant bedrooms, while there are many persons with no place to sleep. Why not work out some scheme to get those homeless folk into those unoccupied rooms?

"Nothing doing," declares the man with the automobile. "I want my own machine because I want to be free to go my own way and choose my own company." "Yes," declares the man with vacant rooms in his house, "and I want to keep my home because I want to live my own life as I see it, and be with those congenial to me."

Certainly, and that is why there are so many half-filled, half-time churches. Various groups of persons want to go their various spiritual way and live their various spiritual lives as they see fit. For those reasons the nation will keep right on being over-churchered. Once upon a time the mice decided that it would be a good thing for them to have every cat wear a bell which would give notice of her approach. The idea undoubtedly is excellent, but so far the mice have not been able to put it over. There are a lot of great ideas—such for instance as the theory of the brotherhood of man—which nobody has been able to get to working.

SAVINGS.

The Toronto Penny bank, which accepts deposits in the form of pennies in any quantity from one up, seems to be getting along nicely. Announcement has just been made that its deposits now total $1,000,000. Here's new evidence that if you save the pennies, the dollars will pile up in sufficient numbers to take care of themselves. Still there are people—though fewer in Canada than the States—who seem to think pennies are not good for anything except to buy newspapers or drop into slot machines.—Cisco Daily News.

Giant hickories from little acorns grow. A penny is not a big start toward fortune, but it's a start; all the same. One penny and another penny make two pennies, and with that many in hand only three more are needed to make crane for a nickel. When one has a nickel that he doesn't need it is surplus. It is surplus to him just the same as a million dollars is surplus to a Wall Street bank. If he can save until he gets a nickel surplus he can save until he gets a dime. By the same token, he can save until he gets a dollar. After that it is easy. Saving a dollar penny by penny teaches one, through experience, that saving is dependent on self-will. It teaches one that there are many things costing less than a dollar that one can do without. That is the saver's best lesson—that he can do without so many things he is astonished by the number of things he can do without. Certainly it is not desirable that everybody be a penny pincher. Certainly it is not desirable that in order to save a dollar something more valuable than a dollar is missed. But the experienced saver learns to weigh values, to know by practice what is and what is not worth more than a dollar to himself. Something that may be worth $2 to one man may not be worth 50c to another. The good saver knows how to evaluate, to compare, appraise. That is the heart of his problem—to know what is and what is not worth, to him, the price its owner puts upon it. Those who own the dollars in the Toronto Penny bank have been

THREE TESTS TO GO DOWN NEAR MASSMAN

A deal of considerable importance in local oil development this week was made when Chestnut & Smith leased from L. J. Griggs 150 acres of land just north of and adjoining the H. F. Massman place, and contracted to drill three wells, and to begin drilling within 60 days. The lease terms in all the Griggs place with the exception of 50 acres which he placed in the Massman well pool and was divided into three drilling blocks assuring that each of the three tests will be made. The contract for these wells is taken as an indication that Chestnut & Smith believe that the Massman will be a paying well, this well also being their property. In addition to the three wells Mr. Griggs was paid a very satisfactory fee for the lease on the land.

The Chestnut & Smith well on the Romney townsite was running at 2900 feet yesterday afternoon and was apparently in the "break" and the next few days should tell whether or not it is to be a well.

NUMBER 74

CISCO CLAIMS CHAMPION OF BUFFALO SLAYERS

R. F. Weddington Came Here When Country Was Wild and the Indians Were Wilder; He Recalls Many Battles

Cisco boasts a man who probably killed more buffaloes than any living man in this section. He is R. F. Weddington, prominent ranchman and landowner, who has lived in Cisco and adjacent territory for 61 years, and has seen this city grow from a mesquite-covered wasteland into a beautiful, enterprising place. He recalls the days when buffalo grazed in great herds throughout this part of Texas, and when the great gray animals were slaughtered by the thousands to obtain their valuable skins.

"I served as a shooter in those days," Mr. Weddington said. "I was a pretty good shot, and it was my duty to kill the animals and let the others in my party skin them. I would go out and hide in the brush. After a while the herd would come along, and I would pick them off one by one. There was a trick in shooting them dead at the first shot so as not to disturb the remainder of the herd. You had to shoot them right behind the shoulder so as to hit the heart. The big beasts would then topple over on their heads and expire. One hunter could usually kill 30 or 40 of the animals before the rest of the animals would stampede and run away. I have killed hundreds of the animals in one day, and then let the skinners follow me up and get the hides. Our wagons were drawn by oxen and were piled high with the valuable hides, which were taken to Dallas and sold at fancy prices."

Almost all of our crops have one or more important insect enemies. In the case of melons, this enemy happens to be the lice family which has ruined many melon crops as well as other crops, including garden vegetables, fruits, etc. In fact, lice of one kind or another damage practically all of our common plants. Most of these lice have mouths of such nature that they suck the plants. This makes them particularly hard to control. Since they take their food by sucking, our common stomach poisons will not control lice, and it becomes necessary to use what is known as "contact poisons" in controlling them. These are poisons that kill by gassing or coming in contact with the insect's body. Some of the most common of these poisons are nicotine sprays or dust and oil emulsions.

Of the various contact poisons, the one that is coming into most general use is what is known as "nicodust." It is made by mixing common lime and "Black Leaf 40," a nicotine product of tobacco, at the rate of one to two parts to a sack of lime. The mixture can be done on any farm by rotating the materials in a barrel or other container in which rocks have been placed to beat the lime and liquid and cause them to mix well. The dust is then applied by a small hand gun according to directions given below:

Nicotine dust should be applied on warm days. The dust should be applied so as to hit the insects, if possible. Nicotine by direct contact, either of the material itself or its vapors or both.

Always try to dust on calm days. Wind dilutes the vapor with air and blows the dust away. Watch your crops and dust before they become severely infested.

The Junior Choral club will be presented in a Flower Revue and Betsy Ross operetta, Wednesday evening at 8:15 o'clock at the high school auditorium. Two hundred and six costumes. Admission ten and twenty cents.

See Betsy Ross and freshen your minds with the origin of the first flag.

Mr. Weddington also took part in many fights with the Indians, especially right after the Civil War when he first came to Cisco. He was born in Tennessee Aug. 3, 1835 years ago, and came to Texas and settled at Fort Worth in 1858. He spent four years in the Southern army and came to Cisco in 1860, following the war. When the war broke out, Van Dorn, in command of the Indian reservation in what is now Stephens county took his federal troops and joined the Confederate army. The Indians then left their reservation and marauded this entire section. Mr. Weddington said the high hill on which the city stands now stands furnished a refuge for settlers in this section, and that several bloody fights took place in this area. He recalled particularly a battle near what is now Putnam, in which much blood was spilt and great damage was done to the settlers' crops.

Mr. Weddington also has the honor of being an old trail driver, as well as pioneer settler. He helped drive a herd of cattle from Cisco to California overland after the war. Two years were spent on the trip, the cattle being driven up through Denver, Col., through Utah and then to California. Mr. Weddington is still a gentleman, owning a large ranch northwest of Cisco he acquired in the early days. He still does a full day's work practically every day, and claims to be the heartiest man of his age in this section. He is preparing for a big celebration of his eighty-third birthday on next August 3.

450 Out of 540 Cross Cut Tests Producing Oil

CHANCE 6 TO 1 OF NOTED POOL FOR PAY, CLAIM

By F. M. GWIN
Cisco Daily News Correspondent

CROSS PLAINS, May 28.—The completion early in the week of two new producers in the Cross Cut field not only continued to hold interest in that locality, but rounded out a record of field production that brought the number of actual oil producers to a grand total of 450 wells now making oil in that field.

The new completions are both near the west edge of the field and about two miles southeast of the little town of Cross Cut.

The first completion was by H. H. Ramsey et al. on the Henson tract, and topped the sand at 1280 feet late last week with an immediate heavy showing of oil, but deeper drilling found the bottom of the sand at 1285 feet and the well is now showing for about 75 barrels after a twenty quart shut-off.

Offsetting to the northeast E. M. Curry later completed another well on the Pickett lease for a probable thirty barrel pumper. The Curry well also entered the sand at 1280 feet and drilled through at exactly the same depth as the Ramsey well, but surface elevation varies ten feet, offering the rather unusual phenomena of the sand conforming exactly with the surface profile.

The sand depth in a general way, however, is regular for that part of the territory.

Of the 450 producers that now yield oil in that section all except one have found the pay at from 1180 to 1320 feet.

The territory embraced by this vast amount of drilling almost a triangle with the base line approximately seven miles long bordering the edge of the field, with a maximum of about four miles at the north edge of the field and dropping off to less than one mile in width at the south point of the triangle.

Wells near the south line of this development find the pay at about 1180 feet and the dip to the northwest has proven very uniform with the pay at 1320 feet at the extreme northwest point of the field.

A total of 540 wells marking a succession of pools that dot the gross area have been drilled. Of this number 75 have been dry holes. This has shown the operator to have a 6 to 1 chance for an oil well on drilling in this area.

The field was discovered in 1922 and five years have been required to bring about the present stage of development and complete the 540 drilling operations.

Only 17 producers have so far been abandoned in the entire field and of those most of negligible output at time of completion. The discovery well of 1922 was only a thirty barrel well at the time of completion and is still pumping about 10 barrels daily.

The average daily production for the entire field over the total period of development has been 21 barrels per well, based on the number of producing wells at the close of each month.

Six wells have produced 1000 barrels or more on initial test, but the general average initial output has been from 50 to 250 barrels per well. The sand varies in thickness from 15 to 44 feet, but the oil is of uniform high gravity, testing an average of 42 Baume gravity at the mouth of the flow lines.

But little more than half of the possible locations within the territory have been drilled and five major extensions of territory amounting in each instance to almost new fields were opened in 1926 and the early months of 1927.

The single instance of pay at a different depth is a recent discovery, and is outside the main outlined Cross Cut area, to the southeast of the main field and is from the Caddo lime, locally called the Pioneer pay, and is at 1900 feet.

This well is considered to have edged a new structure at that depth. Its daily production is about 90 barrels.

Another interesting angle to the history of the Cross Cut sand has been the development of the Blake field, about four miles to the east of the heart of the Cross Cut development with 150 producing wells from the same sand.

The first sand or so-called gas pay discovered at Cross Cut has also since that discovery yielded the Cross Plains townsite field with 176 producing wells and the new Cross Plains field, five miles west of Cross Plains is now being opened from the same stratum.

More than $5,000,000 of production and leases within the triangle mentioned has been sold by the smaller operators, mostly to major companies since 1924, and the most accurate records available indicate that the gross recovery of oil from this sand has exceeded 10,000,000 barrels over the period since discovery.

Raid Near Carbon Lands One in Jail

Two men were being held by the officers swooped down on them last night, according to the authorities. One of the men was arrested but the other man dashed into the dense brush and escaped in the darkness. Approximately 40 gallons of beer was seized, the officers said. Deputies Bradford, Payne and Reid of the sheriff's department and Constable Ross made the raid. The scene was north of Carbon.

MANY THRILLS IN CHANEY'S 'MR. WU' TODAY

Thrills of a new kind; the haunting mystery of the mysterious Orient, with codes and philosophies that almost pass Occidental belief; these, garnishing a romance delicate as the lotus flower, mark Lon Chaney's new triumph on the screen. As is usually the case in his outstanding plays, Chaney uses intricate makeups for an intricate character; but this time he goes beyond his usual portrayal. Try a want ad in the Daily News

The 14,000 elevators on Manhattan Island are estimated to carry more than 9,000,000 passengers daily. Total fatalities last year numbered 35, of whom eleven were operators.

In New York City the old elevated railways will become a thing of the past in a few more years, their functions being taken over by new subways. It is expected that the Sixth Avenue line will be the first to go, it having become a serious menace to traffic and pedestrians.

A Daily News want ad will run that room for you.

There Are More Miles Per Dollar in a Used Car than in a New Car

When you purchase an automobile, whether high, medium or low in price, you invest in the mileage that car was built to stand. The mileage you secure expressed in terms of dollars and cents is the return on your investment. Necessarily the lower the first cost in comparison to the mileage your car contains, the greater your return.

The Ford car has always been recognized as a standard of comparison for economical transportation. It is also an added advantage to buy your Used Car from an authorized Ford Dealer, as we give you 30 days' service guarantee, which you do not get except from Ford Dealers.

GET READY FOR YOUR VACATION

We have a number of good Used Cars, many of which are as good as new, but far lower in price. Miles and miles of satisfactory service still remains in them.

Investigate for your self. Price them, drive them, and remember that our personal guarantee is behind it all. Live while you are living. Enjoy yourself.

NEW CARS SHOW COUNTY PROSPERITY

A summary of the new cars registered in Eastland county during the week ending May 21, show 41 cars and trucks registered.

Fords led the list with Chevrolet a close second, there being 16 Fords sold and 15 Chevrolets.

This record indicates that business in the automobile industry is brisk and that dealers all over the county had a share in the number of cars sold.

Eastland County to Have Better Exhibit

EASTLAND, May 28.—George W. Briggs, secretary of the Eastland chamber of commerce, stated this morning that he was in receipt of a letter from the management of the state fair at Dallas, stating that arrangements were being made to give Eastland county a much more desirable location for the county exhibit this year than heretofore. "Eastland county always has a splendid exhibit, well arranged and in charge of a man who knows how to handle it, therefore we desire to give all of the cooperation possible," the letter states.

Loveless Wife

Years after she had married him, the former Mary Theresa Chenoweth-West confessed to James Henry von Pless that she had been forced into the ceremony, though she was in love with Lord Kenyon. That is the story of the wealthy German peer in an application to the Rota tribunal for annulment of the marriage.

Flies

Cisco has too many flies, this should not be and to eradicate them it will take the individual effort of everyone in Cisco. I have pointed out time and again that the fly hatches its eggs in filth.

Please look to your cow lots, your garbage cans etc. Do not have any thing for the fly to feed upon, do not have any thing around your premises in which it can lay its eggs. Remember the fly will lay hundreds of eggs and develop into the grown fly within a few hours. If you have flies in your home, you have something there that attracts them, something they can feed upon, the fly will travel only a few hundred yards from where it is hatched, so if you are disturbed with this dangerous pest, you or your neighbors are at fault.

Use lime around your premises where you see flies, sweep them in your home, kill them every time you see one.

Do not have any decaying vegetables or animal matter upon your premises. Be sure to have tight fitting tops on your garbage cans. I want to impress upon you the importance of starving the fly as well as stopping her hatching place.
