OLD HOME TOWN

"I wish you would make it clear that the negroes living in my servant house are working for me, and that I did not rent the house out to outside negroes," declared Dr. G. M. Stephenson, regarding report of trouble among negroes at the house as published in Tuesday's Daily News. The article mentioned that considerable trouble had been experienced recently where servant houses had been rented out to negroes not employed by the white residents, but it was not intended to infer that Dr. Stephenson was renting his out house to negroes. Those fined in the affair in which Cain Brown, occupant of the house was attacked paid fines in city court amounting to $75 plus cost which made the grand total $108.

I want to commend the mayor to his stand in regard to renting servant houses to negroes. I think that is the greatest thing he has attempted lately," declared a well known Cisco citizen who, for obvious reasons, did not want his name mentioned. "I have no servant house at my place, but next door, on the premises of one of my good neighbors with whom I do not care to have a falling out over the matter, there is a servant house rented out to negroes who do not work for the family. These negroes have no regard for the peace of the neighborhood and keep a phonograph running far into the night, long after a decent bedtime, disturbing my slumbers nightly. One night I had occasion to go into the negro house to quiet a disturbance and there found 10 negroes trying to sleep on the floor in the one room. These negro rooming houses have no place in the white residence of the city. They not only provide a nuisance for all concerned, but also are potential centers of ill will among neighbors. The mayor will do a great service for Cisco if he succeeds in segregating the negroes into their own section where they belong."

N. C. Ramsey and son, W. F. Ramsey, of three miles from Putnam in Callahan county came to Cisco Wednesday to buy some cans with which to can some beans, peas, beef, corn and sausage. They wanted 500 cans, and after making the rounds of the hardware stores without being able to get any cans at all, they appealed to the chamber of commerce for help. The hardware men told them, they said, that Miss Ruth Ramsey, county home demonstration agent, had been ordering cans for her clubs at a price they could not sell the cans for, and therefore they could not afford to put them in stock. A telephone call was placed for Miss Ramsey, but she was out in the field directing one of her home demonstration clubs and could not be reached. Secretary George W. Briggs of the Eastland chamber of commerce gave the information that there was a supply of cans there, but he could not give them out because he did not know whether they had been ordered special for someone else. The result was that the Putnam men were forced to go elsewhere to make their purchase. It was suggested that Miss Ramsey and the hardware men should get together to supply the demand for cans which Miss Ramsey's work is creating. "We would be glad to put in a supply of cans if we were allowed to make a legitimate profit," said J. J. Collins, one of the hardware men. "But as long as the home demonstration agent continues to sell cans at such a price that we can not have some return on our investment in money, time and effort, then the farmers will have to be inconvenienced as they are being done."

Those workers at Lake Cisco go in for figures and like to calculate such things as how far many units placed end to end reach, have been having some mental gymnastics in determining how long it will take the new bathing beach to fill up when the water is turned on. Roughly, it is estimated that the first section of the beach, 100 feet wide and 40 feet long, will be filled in about 4000 gallons of water.

Ben Turned Water Into Wine, Claim

ST. JOSEPH, Mich., June 22.—King Ben Purnell, chief of the House of David, performed the miracle of turning water into wine, Henry Kirkham, a member of the colony, testified today in the state's suit to dissolve the sect. The "miracle" was brought out on cross-examination by Chief Defense Counsel W. J. Barnard, who sought to discount testimony of previous jury witnesses regarding alleged drinking bouts led by Purnell. Kirkham said Purnell turned the water into wine in front of a group of men and women at the colony. "The wine was sweet but non-intoxicating," Kirkham said.

Posse of 300 With Bloodhounds Wade Swamps in Effort to Trace Men; Three of Number Recaptured

HOUSTON, June 22.—With three of the 35 convicts who escaped from the Ferguson prison farm last night recaptured, a posse of 300 men today were beating through the marshy Trinity river bottoms in an effort to round up the remainder. Bloodhounds were employed, and authorities were confident most if not all the convicts would be recaptured before night. Authorities believed that Ed Crowder, notorious bank bandit from Houston, is the instigator. Crowder was serving a 10 year sentence for bank robbery. The Ferguson farm is located at Midway in Madison county. Officers believe the convicts are hiding in the dense underbrush along the river bottoms, and they are concentrating all their force in an effort to capture them. The three captured convicts are Alex Williams, Wise county, serving four years for burglary; John Reid, Young county, serving 28 years for robbery with firearms; and Jack Allen, serving four years from Titus county for theft.

LET THEM STARVE SAYS PRISON CHIEF

LANING, Kansas, June 22.—Half-hour telephone calls by Peter Russell, guard, to 390 self-imprisoned and mauling convicts 500 feet below the surface of the earth today brings no response from the prisoners who late yesterday overpowered 14 guards and shut themselves off from prison communication. Russell, acting on orders of Acting Warden Huds-peth to grant no concessions rings continually, but the convicts either do not hear or are determined not to answer. No voices have come from the depths. He last cry heard was "Give us cigarettes or we won't dig coal." Then the cage was blocked. Working on the theory that the mine mutiny was only a stall to distract attention from the depths. The last cry factory and effect a wholesale escape, the warden's office is pursuing a policy of watchful waiting and investigating.

Debates Over Merchant Ships-CRUISERS WARM

GENEVA, June 22.—Spirited debates broke out in the experts' committee of the tripartite disarmament conference this afternoon over the question of conversion of merchant ships into auxiliary cruisers. The British delegates ridiculed the idea that this was possible. "A merchant liner equipped with 6-inch guns can be made just as dangerous if not more dangerous, interjected Admiral Jones of the United States navy. "Cruisers below a certain weight have armor plates just as fragile as the shell of a merchant ship," he said. Replying to the proposal made by the British that each nation state its own naval needs, Admiral Jones said naval strength is relative, not absolute, in quantity. Chief of Police G. E. Bedford and Mrs. Bedford leave today for Fort Worth where Chief Bedford will attend the annual convention of Texas police chiefs. Mrs. Bedford will visit her daughter, John Stamey.

FALSE NEWS

Recently the whole world was aroused to new excitement and hope by a report, coming from Quebec, that the lost French flyers, Nungesser and Coli, had been found. On the heels of news that flares had been seen, a French Canadian out in the woods had telephoned to the nearest town that the flyers had appeared alive in his neighborhood. The report could not be verified. Then came the information that it was all a hoax. The man responsible for it, apparently, had not meant it as a joke. He explained that he had done it "just to relieve the monotony." Sympathy goes out to any human being whose life is so monotonous as to demand excitement through such means. The perpetrator of this hoax must be pitied as well as blamed. He probably never realized what a cruel thing he was doing to the relatives and friends of the lost men, and to sympathetic hearts everywhere. It is another good example, too, of the difficulty faced perpetually by newspapers in their effort to gather and distribute news. There are so many million potential sources of news and so many of them undependable! For every mistake made in a newspaper office, there may be a hundred made by persons upon whom the papers are obliged to depend, and over whom they have no control. All editors can do, usually, in doubtful cases, is to weigh the human probabilities and indicate the doubtful character of information which is not convincing to them. This is what every conscientious news handler does.

SOCIAL ADMISSION TICKETS

The Duchess of Sutherland, one of the social leaders of London, caps the social season with the announcement that hereafter her guests must bring their invitations with them, as evidence of their right to enter her house. It is a drastic step, but is justified by the growth of an intolerable evil during the present season. Men and women in large numbers have been "crashing the gates" of elite dances and other functions, walking in calmly among the regular guests and dancing and eating "just as hearty as if they'd been really invited." That makes a terrible problem for the hostess. At big affairs she never knows all of her guests, and doesn't dare to take a chance of offending strangers who may have good social standing and a perfect right to attend her party. Hence the device of treating an invitation as an admission ticket. It might help in the good work if there were a social policeman stationed at the door to countersign the invitations, which could then be presented to the hostess as double-proof credentials. That would still be more fussy; but then, the lot of social leaders is always a hard one, anyway, and they might as well make a thorough job of it.

And now women will soon be flying across the Atlantic "for their children's sake."

OX TEAMS, ETC.

Henry Ford took part the other day in a Detroit pageant portraying transportation progress. First he took a ride in an old wood-burning locomotive of civil war days, brought from Atlanta for Ford's vehicular museum. When the big parade came, he reviewed such a procession as the world never saw before, ranging from ox teams, horse-drawn wagons and buggies, stage coaches, high wheel bicycles, etc., on to the finest production of the modern automotive industry. It must have been an interesting spectacle, and an instructive one. Transportation is the key to present-day civilization. And what a gamut has been run in the life of one man! That Ford museum should interest future generations, as far beyond us, perhaps, in matters of transportation, as we are beyond the ox team age.

It's all right for a president on vacation to stay 30 miles away from the newspaper men, but he might send his spokesman over occasionally.

STUDENTS MORE TEMPERATE

Stories of heavy drinking in the high schools and colleges is bunk, according to a national survey just completed by the Anti-Saloon League. Inasmuch as the league gives a list of its informants along with its data and conclusions, the statement can easily be checked up by any doubter who wants to take the trouble. The information was obtained from 100 high school superintendents and 100 college presidents. Most of the important colleges in this country were covered. A review of the replies indicated that more than 25 per cent of the members of graduating classes are total abstainers and less than one-half of one per cent drink to excess. Only two big institutions, Princeton and the University of Wisconsin, reported any considerable amount of drinking among the students. Harvard says drunkenness has diminished there. Nearly all of the college presidents say there is far less of a liquor problem than there was before the enactment of the dry amendment. Northwestern University at Evanston, Ill., says "the chronic drunkard, such as we had during the pre-Volstead days, has disappeared." Washington, D. C., explains that reports of high school boys and girls drinking are usually found, on investigation, to be entirely without foundation, or based on reports about boys and girls not attending high school. The conclusion seems inescapable that there is more temperance among students generally, and that prohibition has been a good thing for American education. It seems logical to infer, too, that if the great army of American students are more temperate, there is a similar increase of temperance in their homes.

Human Interest Editorials

By WICKES WAMBOLDT

I ME MYSELF

Have you ever observed a man make a purchase, write out a check and say smilingly to the clerk, "I don't know whether this check is any good or not." Or have the goods charged and facetiously add, "I don't know whether you will ever get your money or not," and have you seen the clerk rise to the occasion and reply extravagantly, "I wish we had your check for $100,000." or, "I wish you owed us for a million dollars worth of stuff."

That is all a sort of little play between the customer and the clerk. The customer is catering to his own vanity and the clerk is honoring him in it. The man wants to hear the clerk say those things, or he wants some companion to hear them said, or he wants those in the store to hear them; or perhaps all three.

Egotism makes folks do all sorts of queer things. It is egotism that makes a man maneuver around to get a seat upon the speaker's platform and an outside position near the head of the parade. It is egotism that makes a man peevish if you mispronounce his name or misspell it. He wants to feel that everybody knows his name. One sure way for the salesman to get in bad with some buyers is to fumble the buyer's responses. That important feeling, that feeling that one is some pumpkin and should be so recognized, is in itself a delightful sensation, but it leads to many disappointing moments because it is almost impossible to make the rest of the world play it up as one wants it played up. Successful waiters are onto that game. They know perfectly how to act that part. If a fellow will make him tip large enough, they will give him great feuds of that sort of pabulum.

Man wants to be a hero and to be worshipped as one. While he knows he is not one, he must play at being one. It is immensely gratifying to the idealistic side of his nature to have the butcher, the baker, and the candlestick maker show him particular deference and laugh tremendously at his little jokes, and pretend to be eager to see that he above all persons gets the best service obtainable. It always disgruntles him if the telephone operator answers him as though he were a mere mortal, or repeats his number in an incredulous voice, although she cannot understand how in the world anybody could want such a number.

Most persons haven't any particular reason for being proud of themselves, or for expecting anyone to show them any particular deference. Nevertheless they want it. They like to come in contact with obsequious servants, with knowing clerks with ingratiating salesmen—the salesman is one never ending source of gratification to the man who wants a little fudub rubbed on his egotistic personality.

Probably the desire to be known as it, to be treated as it, is a more or less elemental, crude, barbaric impulse; and probably as one's soul develops, one gets entirely over that and comes to realize that counterfeited greatness is like everything else counterfeit, worth nothing and something that he wants none of. Real greatness is greatness of spirit. If a man has greatness of spirit it makes him so humble that he is embarrassed or annoyed more than anything else when anyone begins to palaver around him.

TALKING ABOUT US

Rising Star Record: What's the matter with Cisco? The News has not had a front page streamer this week on a burglary. Dallas News: No, brother Sellers, that is not necessarily an indication that the industrious burglars has laid away his tools and become a loafer. The chances are that he has merely moved on to pastures new and green and is reserving the delightful city of Cisco for a return visit. The burglar is an artist in his profession and appreciates proper critical notice of his work, but like the successful men in other lines of business, he realizes that the cause of progress is never served by the man who stands still. He must keep moving. Now and then the State of Texas gets hold of a few of these gentry and retires them from circulation, thus materially interfering with progress in the burglar business. But whenever the State is gifted with leadership strongly ingrained with the idea of mercy, even if not tempered by judgment, business picks up at a lively rate. There is no foundation for the belief that the recent suspension of burglary operation in West Texas is due to the fact that the Texas Press Association is meeting in El Paso.

But they was always scrapping and it took all me time lookin' up what they said in the dictionary. A certain country minister posted this notice on the church door: "Brother Smith departed for heaven at four thirty a. m." The next day he found written below: "Heaven, nine a. m.; Smith not in yet. Great anxiety." "Mr. Wood, what's that piece of paper doing behind your radiator?" Wood tiptoed over quietly so as not to disturb the paper, examined it carefully and answers: "It's not doing anything now, sir."

Even when they alighted, they spread filth and germs from one house to another. The world is better off without them." Pressed for further details, the charming slayer continued: "Most of them were dead before they struck. They died quickly after a few whiffs! This was particularly gratifying to me since I had tried to kill them before with powders and about everything else, but these other things only stung them for a few minutes and they were soon up walking or flying around again.

But now, thank goodness, they're all dead—every fly, mosquito, roach, ant, bed bug and filthy, germ-laden insect of any kind. Not a single one remains—and if any more come in through cracks in the walls or screens, I'll quickly kill them with Ni-Late." This powerful liquid spray is quick, sure death to every kind of winged and crawling insect pest. Yet it will not harm human beings; animals or delicate fabrics. Millions have proved it to be the most efficient and economical insecticide known to science. Ni-Late is sold by all leading drug and grocery stores—price 50c for large bottle, or it will be sent direct on receipt of price. Ni-Late Manufacturing Company, Desk 10, Atlanta, Ga.—ADV.

Loan Contracts Some vital points to consider in taking on a loan contract: FIRST: Is it a definite contract, or is it just SUPPOSED to pay out in a certain length of time? SECOND: What rate of interest does it bear for the time you actually use the money? THIRD: If you desire to take up the loan before expiration, how much of what you have paid will be applied to the reduction of the loan, and how much for TRIMMINGS? If you are interested in a loan, come in and let's talk these points over. E. P. Crawford Real Estate, Loans and Insurance Phone 453 Cisco, Texas

Coach Golightly Returns Next Year to Lobo High

SUCCESSFUL ASSISTANT STAYS HERE

W. L. Golightly will return to Cisco high school next fall as assistant football coach in charge of the backfield, and basketball and baseball coach. It was announced today by Athletic Director W. B. Chapman. Golightly and the school board had been negotiating a new contract, and this matter has been satisfactorily arranged.

Golightly, a former Austin college athlete, came here last fall from Victoria where he had been successful as a football coach. He had fair success in football, developing such men as Meadows, Huestis, Yeager and others as stars of the first class, but his greatest forte appeared to be in basketball and baseball. He coached a team that for the first time in history survived the district championship fight, and won the state A. A. U. championship. In baseball, he was equally successful, the Lobos winning the county championship and later playing Waxahachie high for the state title.

With announcement of return of Golightly for another year, Lobo athletic stock took a new bound upward, particularly since the announcement of Coach Chapman that Wilbur Bryan will return here next year, that Ernest Jenkins, a star from Leonard, Texas, would be here for work outs in the fall, and that LeVurie Andrus might remain at Cisco high for another year. Chapman is hoping for some other new material to show up before the training season opens in the fall, to bolster up the veterans who remain from last year's squad.

Long Legged Men Form Organization

TOPEKA, KANSAS, June 22.—Long Fellows in all parts of the world are writing Phil Zimmerman, secretary of the National Society of Long Fellows with headquarters in this city. Branches of the society are being formed in all sections of America, and now the interest is spreading throughout the western hemisphere and Europe. So many have been the calls from distant points in the world that Secretary Zimmerman announced today an international charter for the society would be requested.

Many letters have come to Zimmerman from the United States, Central and South America for blanks for organization. "One would think," Zimmerman said, "that the world is raising up a race of giants, especially in length. There are Long Fellows everywhere."

Minister Denies Bible is Inspired

NACOGDOCHES, June 22.—Rev. J. L. Massey, superannuated minister, declared here in an address to the congregation of the first Methodist church that he did not believe the Bible was

A cigarette if you ask me

WRITE it down that Prince Albert makes the grandest home-rolled cigarette ever. I'll sign my name to that! Why, the instant you get that glorious whiff of the tobacco itself, you know it's going to taste simply great in a cigarette. Then you roll one and prove it.

Cool as a notice that you have overdrawn your account. Sweet as the recollection that a big deposit is on its way. Mild as a summer flirtation—mild, but with that full cigarette body that satisfies to the limit on every puff. That's the kind of a cigarette P. A. makes.

Just try rolling 'em with P. A. Get yourself some of this grand old tobacco today. Put a thimbleful in a makin's paper and take out a barrelful of smoke-joy. Morning till midnight—that's your smoke-program with this better cigarette tobacco. Just put it up to P. A.

Another way to enjoy Prince Albert is in the bowl of a pipe. No matter what your previous experience with a pipe, try P. A. Here's a brand you can tie for life. It won't bite your tongue and it won't parch your throat. But it will give you the best pipe-session you ever had.

P. A. is sold everywhere. And always with every bit of bite and parch removed by the Prince Albert process.

It clears the skin, beautifies it, pimples and eruptions vanish quickly. This Discovery of Dr. Pierce's puts you in fine condition. All dealers have it in liquid or tablet form. WARNING

Those who have dogs should comply with the law and have them vaccinated by registered veterinarians against rabies as is required by law. The city secretary will not issue a license without a certificate showing that the dog is properly vaccinated. Protect your family and your neighbors by having this done.

Everyone should be vaccinated against typhoid, especially if a trip for the summer is contemplated. This will produce immunity for two or three years.

I want again to call the attention of the people to the mosquito. Watch out for anything holding water; either drain or oil.

Also our enemy, the fly. Have adequate garbage cans with tight fitting tops. Do not pour refuse in the alley.

Keep cow and horse lots cleaned and oiled.

Cut the weeds on your premises and in the alleys adjacent.

Help me keep Cisco clean. DR. JNO. H. BRICE, City Health Officer.

OTHER WOMEN LOVE 'EM BUT NOT OWN WIVES

NEW YORK, June 22.—Here's a question to intrigue every feminine heart that ever palpitated its reaction to the screened crosses of a Barrymore or a Jack Gilbert.

Why is it that the films' greatest lovers, who are adored by thousands of women all over the world, are generally deserted by their own wives?

It happened to Valentino, to Ronald Colman, to Barrymore, to Jack Gilbert, Lew Cody and an almost interminable list of others. Why?

Adole Rogers St. Johns, the writer, has been looking for the answer among people who should have it—if there is one. And here's what she has found, as she writes in the July issue of Photoplay Magazine.

"I asked several persons—wise people, who know about these things.

"The first was a director, famous for the way he directs love scenes. His answer was: 'They are spoiled by the flattery of other women.'

"Then I asked a brilliant Russian woman, who has been loved by kings, and people of less importance. 'The answer is in the question,' she said, with a shrug. 'Great lovers fall as husbands because they are great lovers. Domesticity is not in them. They should not marry.'

A Wise Answer

"I went away and asked a great motion picture star, who was born a thousand years old and who knows a great deal that she does not know why she knows. 'They marry the wrong woman,' she said very wisely.

"I asked her to explain more about that. She said: 'The women who could hold them won't put up with them. And the women who would put up with them can't hold them.'

"Which, analyzed, seems a sound reason. A great lover wants a woman as vivid, as thrilling, as endlessly satisfying as his own ideas of romance. He wants a woman who can make him a mother and a mistress, all rolled into one.

"Such women, to begin with, are very rare. And when they do exist, they will not, as a rule, consent to play the rather difficult role of the wife of a great lover.

"Such men as make romantic figures on the screen need to be taken care of, protected, surround-the kind of that kind of the kind of women

ance."
