'Oh, no!" exclaimed the driver brightly. "Then it is up to me to satisfy you as to whom I am.'

Exactly," agreed the officer. "Well," said the driver, producing a bit of pasteboard, "here is a card which says I am Sylvanus T. Smith of Oshkosh, Wisconsin. Here is still another, which declares me to be DeYancev Shanklin, of San Francisco, California. And here is yet another, which acclaims me Jonathan Jillett, Rhode Island, Surely among these addresses you should find one to satisfy you.

"You certainly seem to be all right," said the officer. And he turned to step from the running board; then he hesitated.

"But how does that explain your driving a stolen car?" he inquired.

"Don't get crotchety," protested the driver. "This is a day of liberalism. "I know," said the officer, "but I'm afraid I'll have to take you down to the station."

"Well, if you insist upon this unquestionable interference," said the autoist, "let me drive down to the station myself. I don't want to be seen going through town with a cop in the front seat alongside of me. It might hurt my standing. I'll promise you faithfully to go immediately to headquarters."

The officer pondered; then climbed into the car. "Nope, nothing doing," he said. "I don't take much stock in promises. A woman promised me once to love, honor and obey. Drive me down."

On the way the driver stopped at a street intersection.

What's the matter?" inquired the officer.

"The red light's against me."

"Well what of it? Drive on. Nobody pays any attention to traffic signals in this town.'

'No, I can't do that. But I'll tell you what I will do. I'll have the clerk give him back his two dollars and a half, and open a charge account with him.'

"You are all right now," said the lawyer to his client as they reached the sidewalk. "Your case won't come up for two years, and I can stand it off for two years more. By that time you will have worn out the car, and perhaps everybody interested in prosecuting you will be dead.'

GARDEN INSTITUTES

Arbor Days have always been observed in southern states where spring and tree planting come early in the year. But spring is pretty close now even in the northern part of the country, and people's thoughts are turning eagerly to flowers and outdoor sports and sunshine. The advances that have been made in recent years in gardening for pleasure and recreation are hinted at by such events as the Garden Lovers Institutes held in various parts of the state under the auspices of the Ohio state university. At those institutes garden lovers may hear talks on garden-making, flower-growing and agriculture, and may have the advice of experts on any particular problem that they have come up against in garden work. WRITER THINKS SMITH CAN WIN

ABILENE, March 5.-Governor Al Smith of New York stands a chance to be chosen as the Democratic presidential nominee at the uston convention, is the opinion of R. A. Caples, veteran Washington newspaper man, who is visiting in Abilene and West Texas.
"The party," he said, "through its national committee, was wise in selecting a city in the South in which to hold its convention. The

"I have attended the national conventions of both major parties, in the capacity of newspaper representative, since 1880, when Gar-field and Hancock were chosen as the leading candidates," Caples continued. "I have interviewed uch leaders as Cleveland, Blaine, Conkling, your great Texan, Rea-gan, and others of their day, and which, for lack of better difi-nition, we call personal Governor Smith possesses this and a most pleasing personality, greater than that of any man I have ever met.

"If the Southern voters follow their party and not the leaders of un-American intolerance, the New York governor, in my opinion, be our next president. If the Republicans do not nominate Hoover, which I seriously doubt, California will accord Mr. Smith its electorial vote.

"In Ohio, Indiana and Illinois the Republican party is split wide open, and if the Democrats make no blunders. Smith may carry them all with a united party," the newspaperman said.

"Judson C. Welliver, publicity

"Sincerely. I believe that, if nominated. Mr. Smith will be elected. The tariff-protested manufacturers and Wall street interests control the Republican party. and if Mr. Hoover does not agree follow the program, the party will name some such man as Morrow, now ambassador to Mexico."

DENVER FOLKS RECALL FOY'S EARLY ACTING

DENVER, March .5-An old prospector sat in a theater seat, head bowed and tears running down his heeks. Song filled the air. It was melodious tune that portrayed the romance of Denver as it was then, prosperous mining town. Suddenly the singing stopped and Eddie Foy, famous stage comedian who died in Kansas City recently, still "in harness," made his bow to his enthralled audience.

That is a simple picture from the Palace theater on Blake street here, ometime between 1827 and 1884. Never was the sign "standing room taken down from the door while Eddie and Jimmy Thompson, his partner, were performing.

death in Kansas City. "He always ad a dollar for the down-and-outand was kind to everyone, especand he knew how to laugh."

Foy and Thompson's popularity permeated the entire region in those dull, pioneer days. They were billed for the opening performance of the Grand theater in Leadville, Colo. in 1879. The receipts for the first night were $37,500.

In those days when Denver had a population of only 36,000, a volinteer fire department was maintained. Thompson, because of his the Bates Volunteer Pire, departing the Bates Volunteer Pire, depa fire. At one time he won a foot and fluffiness.

VALUABLE FOR ANEMIA CASES

CLEVELAND, O., March 5.—Perwhich by the loss of red blood cor-purcles causes the patient to loose strength, vitality and becomes more aggravated until death results, can now be stopped by means of a liver extract just developed by scientist in the Harvard medical college. The Lakeside hospital of Cleveland is one of the hospitals chosen by Dr. Karl H. Van Norman, directhe University hospital which Lakeside is one, where the ver treatment of anemia has been introduced. The first indication that liver might prove successful in the treatment of pernicious amenia came as the result of ten years experiments by Dr. George Whipple then at the Hooper Foundation. His experiments, he said, showed that dogs which have suffered a great loss of blood regenerated rapidly on a liver diet.

However, it was not until 1928 that the use of the liver diet was developed by several prominent physicians at the Collis P. Huntington Memorial hospital in Boston.

Large quantities of liver, it was found however must be consumed to obtain any effect. The patient was required to eat almost a half a pound of liver a day.
