FAST TRAIN IS DERAILED WITH SCORE INJURED

IOLA, Kan., June 25.—At least 20 persons were injured, three perhaps fatally, when the Rainbow Special, crack Missouri Pacific train, struck a defective rail near Durand, Kan., today, sending two pullmans and a chair car into a ditch.

BRELSFORD IS BETTER AFTER STIFF ATTACK

The news that Senator H. P. Brelsford had suffered with a paralytic stroke late Saturday was received in Cisco with genuine regret. Judge D. K. Scott, senior member of the firm of Scott, Brelsford, McCarty & Brelsford, of Cisco and Eastland, visited the former senator and professional associate at Eastland this morning, and on his return stated that he found Senator Brelsford considerably improved.

"His condition is still quite serious," Judge Scott said, "but the attending physicians thought he would recover. The physicians stated the probable cause of the stroke was the bursting of a blood vessel, and if so his chances for complete restoration to health would be more favorable."

JOHN BROWN SUFFERING FROM ACUTE APPENDICITIS

John Brown, well known Cisco man and prominent farmer, was admitted to the Graham sanitarium this morning suffering from acute appendicitis, where he was successfully operated upon about noon. Reports from the hospital soon after the operation stated that his symptoms were favorable, and the patient was resting easy.

HOUSTON, June 25.—With the nomination of Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York virtually conceded everywhere except in the radical dry camp, convention talk of the Democrats today centered on the vice presidency. A fast moving and ever growing boom for Senator Joseph T. Robinson, Arkansas, minority leader in the senate, overshadowed everything else. It is rumored freely that Robinson has the personal endorsement of Governor Smith.

In the inner council chambers the name of Senator James A. Reed of Missouri is mentioned prominently and influential leaders have declared that the Missouriian may have the nomination merely by indicating his receptiveness.

VOLUNTEERS IN DAIRY CENSUS CALLED ANEW

J. E. Spencer, chairman of the dairy committee of the chamber of commerce, is again calling for volunteers to complete the cow census in the 15 mile radius of Cisco. These volunteers are requested to report for breakfast at the Savoy cafe Tuesday morning at 7:30 o'clock, after which it is planned the remaining districts will be canvassed. This will be the completion of the cow census, Spencer said, until the outlying districts are canvassed.

As soon as the work is completed Tuesday the reports of the enumerators will be tabulated and the final results published. Eight or ten enumerators will be needed Tuesday, and it is hoped that sufficient number of volunteers will report so that it will not be necessary to ask those who have already been at work to report again, Spencer said.

DABNEY BUILDS EIGHTH HOME IN BLOCK ON FIFTH

The new seven room modern residence of A. G. Dabney, in the 1000 block on West Fifth street, has been completed and ready for occupancy, according to Joe Clements, contractor. This is the eighth new residence that Mr. Dabney has been interested in building on that block. It is not certain at this time who will move into the new building.

"I have contracted the sale of either this house or my present home at 507 West Eighth street, but it has not been definitely settled which of the two houses will be sold. Should the buyer take my home place I shall move my family to the new house. No, I would rather not give the buyer's name at this time," Dabney said.

Joe Clements stated that he was now engaged in building an additional room to the garage at the Virgil Owens place, I avenue and West Fourth street. Several have had composition roofing placed on their residences. The home of D. D. Lewis in the 1500 block on D avenue, the residence recently purchased by R. A. Richardson, on the Eastland highway, and two houses owned by J. E. Chesney have recently been covered with this special roofing. Clements reported.

This intimate picture of Governor and Mrs. Alfred E. Smith, made recently in the executive mansion in Albany, would indicate that the Democratic leader is well pleased with the political outlook at the Houston convention.

DEMO KEYNOTE TO BE SOUNDED TUESDAY NIGHT

HOUSTON, June 25.—The Democratic national committee today decided to recommend that Claude G. Bowers keynote speech to the national convention be postponed until 7 o'clock Tuesday night in order to assure a greater audience of radio listeners. The convention will meet at noon and after appointing committee recess until Tuesday night, according to the committee's decision.

GILBERT WHITE IS RECOVERING FROM EYE HURT

L. A. White has returned from Dallas where he went to visit his son, Gilbert, who is a patient in the Baylor sanitarium, being treated for an injury to his eye, caused by being struck with missiles from a stake he was driving at a well near Dothan ten days ago. White reported that the condition of the patient was much improved when he left Dallas Sunday afternoon, and that the attending physicians said he would not lose the eye. It was thought that he would be able to be brought home within another week.

TEMPORARY OFFICERS ARE GIVEN O. K.'S

HOUSTON, June 25.—The Democratic national committee today ratified with a whoop the selection of Claude G. Bowers as temporary chairman and keynote speaker and quickly approved all other temporary officers. The election of the following national committeewomen was ratified: Mrs. Robert C. Watts, Virginia; Mrs. Inez K. Allen, Utah; Mrs. Elizabeth Conkey, Illinois; and Mrs. L. H. Jennings, South Carolina.

HOUSTON, June 25.—Friends of Governor Dan Moody are grooming him as a successor to the late William Jennings Bryan, offering him under the sobriquet of "the boy orator of the Brazos." Moody today seemed assured of the Texas berth on the resolution committee.

DRY PLANK TO PLEASE SMITH FORCES FOUND

HOUSTON, June 25.—The Smith forces have agreed to a tentative prohibition plank which seeks to harmonize the differences between the militant dries and wets, it was learned today. The plank denounces the Republican party for failure to properly enforce the 18th amendment, blames the Republicans for the virtual reign of terror in enforcement methods and pledges the Democratic party audits nominees to enforce rigidly all provisions of the constitution.

STANDARD OIL BOARD CHIEF IS INDICTED AGAIN

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the board of directors of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, was indicted by the District of Columbia federal grand jury today on a charge of perjury. The action grew out of Stewart's appearance before the senate investigation committee, his refusal to answer questions pertaining to the mysterious Continental Trading Co., and his subsequent trial for contempt before the District of Columbia supreme court which acquitted him.

UTILITY EDUCATORS.—Since the public utility companies have turned educators, employers of instructors, promoters of educational conventions and providers of public school texts, their working methods have become of much interest to every one. Their publicity directors do not all appear to be proud as they might be of the instructions they have to follow in creating sentiment for the companies, according to the testimony of some of them before the trade commission investigating committee. One of them, John W. Colton of New York, editor of a magazine published by the American Electric Railway association in a letter to J. B. Sheridan, director of the Missouri public utility information bureau, in 1927, said: "The thing about the utility industry that disgusts me is the lying, trimming, flaking and downright evasion of trust or violation of trust that mark the progress toward enormous wealth of the so-called big men in industry." Pretty strong language that, but of course all are not like that, for there are some splendid fellows in Texas interested in public utilities in various capacities, but enough has been made known through this investigation to suggest that there is at least good reason why the public utilities should keep their hands off the schools and out of the press agencies.

STUDYING FARM METHODS.

A party of 10 agricultural agents of the Mississippi Delta county are in Texas studying farm conditions and the work being done at some of the Texas experiment stations and by county farm agents. The visitors are favorably impressed with the agricultural possibilities of the sections they have seen and particularly with the extensive scale on which cotton production is carried on in parts of West Texas. Agricultural production has made wonderful strides in Texas in the past few years and much of it has been due to federal co-operation with the counties in the employment and direction of county farm agents, who are especially well trained for and adapted to their work. If the government can only work out some agency that will be as effective in marketing farm products, farming will soon become our most popular industry.

DISTINCTIVE FARM PRODUCTS.

Not all co-operative marketing associations succeed. Not all of them deserve success. An organization can be as ineffective in its system and methods as an individual, though the combined experience of many is likely to be more valuable than that of the person. The federal trade commission in a recent report says: "Unless there is something to distinguish its products, there is no reason to expect that a co-operative association can obtain higher prices than its competitors. Customers will not come begging to the co-operative to sell them produce at its own prices, but must be discovered and detached from competing sources of supply on which they have long relied." Co-operative marketing associations require the best of business acumen and management. They must have something to market that is distinctive. They must establish and maintain a reputation for their products. Their name or trademark must stand for something.

HOT WEATHER STYLE.

One of the most pleasing preliminary announcements made by Clem Shaver, Democratic chairman, in regard to the Houston convention was that because of heat shirt sleeves would be the prevailing convention style for men. The women, doubtless, will not wear sleeves. Even those who wear suspenders, singly or in pairs, may appear on the streets, in the convention halls, or in hotel lobbies or cafes without coats and they are assured that they will not give offense to the ultra stylish.

THE MANLY SPORT.

This is from a newspaper report of a so-called "boxing bout" recently held in civilized Texas, in Christian America, and it makes one wonder which way we are drifting: "E. staggered D. in one of the early rounds with a terrific punch to the chin, but D shook his head and bored in. E was beaten to a pulp in the closing rounds and was bleeding freely from the effects of the continued barrage of hooks, punches and jabs that D kept sending all parts of his opponent's body." Four thousand "fight fans" witnessed this sport in "Panther Park," Fort Worth.

"TENDERLOIN," starring Dolores Costello, in a Warner Bros. production of this novel.

SYNOPSIS
A satchel containing $200,000 has been stolen from the Mercer National Bank. Rose Shannon, escaping from the unbecoming attentions of Chuck White, finds the satchel in the street. The professor, leader of the gang of crooks to which Chuck belongs, is furious that his scheme for stealing the money has been foiled. Meanwhile, on her way to return the satchel, Rose is met by a policeman who marches her off to the station house. The satchel is opened and it is found that the contents have been stolen and iron washers substituted. After a week in jail Rose is released, but detectives follow her.

CHAPTER VII—Continued

They stepped up before the door of an old, red-brick building. From the outside it looked as though no sign of life existed. Blinds were drawn; shutters closed. Simpson reached up and pushed a button. In a few moments the door opened emitting a narrow crack of light. Then it swung wide, revealing a long flight of steps, at the bottom of which stood a heavy, red-faced man with a deep scar across his chin, a derby hat resting on the back of his plump neck.

"Rose, please! Wait a minute, sweetheart!"

"Nothin' much. Come on in," the man addressed as Bill threw open a door to one side of the stairs and led the two detectives into a long, narrow room. On one side was a bar, stretching almost the entire length of the room, while behind it three bar-keepers rustled drinks for the line of customers leaning against the mahogany top. Towards the rear stood a group of well-filled tables. Cowles glanced quickly around the room, and then, signaling Simpson, dropped into a vacant spot along the bar.

"Well, what'll it be, boys?" Bill invited. "Loulie!" he called one of the white-aproned men behind the counter. "Two ryes with ginger-ale on the side," he repeated the order of the detectives. "Gimme a little Scotch. What's da'in' down to 'n' front office?" he asked as the bar-keep set up the glasses and bottles. "Naw," he gestured, as Cowles reached into his pocket. "This's on 'n' house. Say, got any line on that Mercer Bank racket?"

"Well, I'll tell you, Bill," Cowles began, speaking more loudly than necessary. "The chief thinks we got a pretty good tip-off on it. Glancing sideways, he could see Maurey hunching up his shoulders leaning his elbows on the bar and resting his head on his hand. "You haven't had any customers for straw bad for that Shannon girl, have you?"

"Nope! Say, she's a funny one. Well, here's bow!" He picked up his glass and drained it.

"She sure is," Cowles took up the conversation again, turning it into the desired channels. "But I guess the kid's story's straight enough. The chief's letting her go tomorrow morning."

"Yeah! Is that right?"

"Sure. No use holding her. He's got the goods on the right gang, now. We was just talking to him tonight."

And from where he stood he could see Maurey edging towards the door.

CHAPTER VIII.

The prison door clanged. A slight figure in a tight black coat and hat stood gazing up and down the street, a worn, imitation-leather satchel and a shabby pocketbook in her hand. The bright morning sun of the clear March day seemed to dazzle her eyes, for she blinked and turned her head away from the strong light. She shivered in the sharp wind that

Very attractive refreshments were served which consisted of pink ice cream frozen in the shape of a rose with white angel food cake and pink and white mints with ice tea. Daisies were given as favors.

"There, now, don't cry no more, kid," Chuck set down the satchel and took out his handkerchief, wiping away Rose's tears. "I'm gonna take you to my uncle's house right away. He's gonna give you a gas-sing taxi, picked up the bag, and helped the girl into the cab. A backward glance over his shoulder told him that he had seen aright. It was Simpson and Cowles, across the street, and they were already stepping into an old, black machine, preparing to follow the pair.

"Oh, Chuck, how did you know where I was?" Rose began, as soon as her companion had called out a street address to the driver of the cab.

"It was all in the papers—about you getting away in that bank robbery," Chuck began, drawing Rose close to him and pressing her head down on his shoulder. "There was a story in this morning about your release. I tried to see you while you was in the jug, but they wouldn't let me in," he lied.

"You're awful kind to me, Chuck," Rose smiled through her tears. "Just to think—you were the only person who was there to meet me when I got out. I didn't know where I was going or what I was going to do. And I was so frightened when I saw you—I thought you were only trying to get even with me for that—that night."

"Aw, forget that night," Chuck patted Rose's hand as he glanced out of the rear window of the cab. He could see the two detectives in their car about far behind. He smiled grimly.

"But I can't forget about it. You know, I thought I'd killed you, at first," Rose confessed. "And then I saw you more. And all I could think of doing was to get away."

"I don't blame you, kid," Chuck agreed. "Honestly, I didn't know what I was doing. I'm so crazy about you, and—well, I guess I had a little too much down to Kelly's. But if you'll only say you forgive me."

"O, Chuck, please—I forgive you."

In another moment Rose was in the boy's arms, her hands clasped about his neck. Through the crowded streets they crawled, winding and dodging the heavy morning traffic. Some distance behind rose the two detectives, certain, now, as to where their trail was leading.

one that few women can resist, in black taffeta in facing of soft pink satin and trimmed with rosettes at the neck and waistline.

On the other hand, there are lovely, thin, light costumes which have an exact parallel in the slim frocks worn from 1793 to 1815, slender Grecian gowns with which corsets, petticoats and elaborate collures were discarded just as in these modern days.

One in this fashion recently seen at the fashionable "Florida" was in black chiffon and lace, typical of the slender silhouette which has been worn for a number of years although new in proportion and detail. A peach-colored frock, seen the same evening, revealed a most graceful figure beneath it and a very striking evening-gown had a bodice of fine silver beads and skirt of white paillettes embroidered in the same silver beads.

QUIET SUNDAY IS PERMITTED G.O.P. LEADER

WASHINGTON, June 25.—A quiet Sunday, almost completely free from political discussion, was allowed Secretary Hoover.

He attended the Quaker church in the morning with Mrs. Hoover and his son, Allan, and spent the afternoon and evening at his Washington residence.

A prolonged consultation on Saturday among his Republican party leaders had failed to settle some of the more important details of campaign management and personnel.

Chairman Work of the national committee announced that he may be unable to designate for several days the managers of the Eastern and Western campaign divisions, through it had been hoped to make these selections today or tomorrow.

The committee leaders were known to have sought to obtain Senator Moses, Republican, New Hampshire, for the Eastern place, and James W. Good, pre-convention Hoover campaign manager, for the Western post, but there was a question as to whether either man would accept.

With several questions of this nature unsettled, and with some department business still to transact, Secretary Hoover is evincing a disposition to delay very considerably his trip to California for his summer vacation. It was suggested that he might be unable to leave Washington before July 10, and that he might return from there very soon after accepting his formal notification of the presidential nomination, which will be extended between July 25 and August 1.

Though the arrangement would be somewhat unusual, some of the Secretary's advisers have counseled him to center his campaign around Washington, retaining his cabinet post for an indefinite period, and attending to his official duties well up to election day.

FEW SUBSCRIPTIONS TO WIN CIRCULATION PRIZE BALLOTS

Best Chance to Gain Big Lead by Doubling of Points Will End This Week; Workers Closely Grouped

Who will win the prize ballots? The thirty workers in the Cisco Daily News and the Weekly American and Roundup subscription drive who secure to their credit the most subscriptions this week and week will be awarded the thirty prize ballots extra of all other points secured for subscriptions. The amount secured for last week comparatively small from the individual workers and there is every indication that the entire lot of prize ballots will be won for all amounts.

Other points that are to be secured for subscriptions will be the regular points given for each subscription and these points will be doubled. For every one year subscription to the Daily News or the Weekly American secured for both there will be 500,000 points. And these will be doubled for monthly subscriptions or for weekly subscriptions to the Daily News will equal one year and when the extra points offered for one year subscription. Because points the prize ballots issued to the thirty hard workers who secure to their credit subscriptions for the two remaining weeks of the drive will be no prize ballots of the amount of points will be much less after this week subscriptions and coupons week ending June 30 is the most important week to the workers who wish to build up the number of points and secure better prizes. There was never opportunity offered to get the cars or one of the other prizes for so few subscriptions.

MURDERER OF SHERIFF TO DIE EARLY FRIDAY

AUSTIN, June 25.—Bill Smith, convicted slayer of Sheriff Bob Smith of Fisher county, has been refused further clemency by Governor Dan Moody and will be electrocuted in Huntsville early next Friday.

Smith, originally sentenced to die June 1, was granted four weeks' respite to allow an examination of his mentality. He claims to have become insane since his conviction. Physicians that conducted the examination reported to the governor that in their opinion he is sane.

Smith had been arrested on a theft charge at his farm last summer. As he and a companion were being taken to jail he drew a gun, which he had hidden on his person, and shot the sheriff in the back. The two eluded posses that scoured all West Texas but they were finally captured several weeks later, Smith in Kentucky and his companion in Mississippi.

NEAR SCORE MENTIONED FOR VICE PRESIDENCY AT HOUSTON

Southerners Predominate for Second Place Choice to Salve Feelings of Smith's Opponents

HOUSTON, June 25. — Smoke from the fires of almost a year of vice presidential campaigns to a running mate for their presidential nominee. Although the lights still gleamed on the headquarters of several aspirants for the standard bearer's place, pre-convention discussion centered largely around the question of whose name would fill the blank behind that of Smith if his name should come first on the ticket.

Some of those whose names have been projected into the din of conversation on streets and in hotel parlors have yet entered directly into the campaign for the nomination as second place men, but their admirers have busied themselves in laying down a conversational barrage and which they might expect to be the final choice.

Those predicting the nomination of Governor Smith expressed the opinion that the Democrats need not necessarily follow the precedent set down by the Republicans at St. Louis in selecting a veteran, fighting campaigner as a running mate for the nominee.

While Senator Curtis was described as an active speaker selected by the possibility that Secretary Hoover might conduct his campaign in a front porch in California, it is predicted that the veteran New York gubernatorial contender if nominated would carry his own fight in the country instead of delegating as part of the struggle to his name on the ticket.

Three Are Mentioned

Three of the names figuring in a stream of conversation that pervaded the Rice Hotel and gurgled boomed by members of the delegation from that state. Another is former Senator James D. Phelan of California, who nominated McAdoo at the Madison Square Garden convention.

Governor W. J. Bulow of South Dakota, although announcing that he was not a candidate for the place, has explained that he was in a receptive mood and would accept the nomination if it were tendered. He is a candidate for re-election as governor and since he was the first Democrat to be elected to the position there in more than 20 years, considerable pressure is being brought by his friends to hold him on the state ticket.

Former Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock of Nebraska arrived Sunday with a group of friends who let it be known that although they intended to present him for the presidential nomination, they believed that it would go to Smith and planned to bring out Hitchcock for second place. They declared that he would add great strength to the ticket in the Middle West since he had a great following among the farmers and had worked out a new farm plan which they asserted would affect all of the good attributes of the McNary-Haugen bill and was devoid of its evils.

Bennett Clark of Missouri, a son of the late Speaker Champ Clark of the house of representatives and one of those who have been pushing forward the campaign of Senator Reed of his home state for the presidency, also has been mentioned as a possible second place man.

SEN. GOODING, FOE OF "BILL" HAYWOOD, DIES

GOODING, Idaho, June 25.—Senator Frank R. Gooding, Idaho's junior senator and one of the state's leading political figures, died at his daughter's home here Sunday afternoon. Senator Gooding had been in ill health for several months and recently underwent an operation in the Mayo hospital at Rochester, Minn.

His death brought to a close one of the most dramatic careers in Idaho history. He first came into national prominence as governor of Idaho during the turbulent days when the late "Big Bill" Haywood was on trial charged with implication in the murder of Governor Frank Steunberger, in the early days of the century.

His unflinching demands that Haywood and his alleged accomplices be brought to trial despite almost daily threats against his life, won him a firm place in the esteem of the people of the state. Following two terms as governor, Gooding returned to direction of his sheep business but in 1918 returned once more to political activity as candidate for the senate.

He was defeated by John F. Nugent, but as a candidate in 1926 was swept into office with the Harding administration. As senator he was especially interested in freight rates, and was prominently connected with several rate bills. He was chairman of the special senate committee that investigated living conditions in the eastern coal fields last winter.

HENNING WELL FOLLOWED BY ACTIVITY WAVE

RANGER, June 25.—A tidal wave of activity has struck the region where a week ago the Henning gusher was pouring forth a 7,000-barrel a day flood of oil.

In the region surrounding the well—which marked the discovery of the Ranger sand in the Sibley pool, south of Rathgar, 14 wells are drilling or will soon be started on the race for the oil sands.

A. H. Rhodes, owner of the well that caused the rush, is putting down two more, the Henning Nos. 2 and 3.

Moock-Texas is drilling one on the Williamson and another on the Casey, and has made location for still another on the Casey.

Goodwin & White, J. E. Levi and J. M. Swager will drill a well on the Len Boardland, Goodwin & White will also put down two wells on the George Hamad estate and are preparing to drill on the J. V. Parker.

Operators Oil & Gas Co., who brought in the No. 1 Williamson some time ago for 500 barrels in the sand above the Ranger, are drilling Nos. 2 and 3.
