TEXAS

By WILL H. MAYES, Austin.

ANNUAL COTTON RACE

One of the most exciting races held in Texas every year is that of the cotton bales to be first in getting into the Houston market. The Rio Grande Valley is the starting point—just anywhere in the Valley. Hundreds of grooms, serving in various capacities, rush over the cotton fields to get the bales ready, and gins and ginners are on the alert to do their part. This year the first bale to reach the Houston market was ruled out of the contest as having made a foul start—a volunteer start from last year. The two bales to get the track first were from Edinburg and Mission. The Edinburg bale made a get away by automobile somewhat ahead of that from Mission. It was decided to have the Mission bale take the air and thus arrive first at the goal, but the airplane failed to raise with the heavy load. The Edinburg bale reached Houston two hours ahead of the Mission bale, so the Mission product rushed on to Calveston and everybody is satisfied. These are merely the pace-setters for the millions of cotton bales that will hurry to the sea coast and then on to Eastern and European markets in the next few months from Texas. The only thing that so few will stay behind to be manufactured into cotton fabrics in Texas mills.

MILLION ACRES MORE

So far as Texas is concerned the cotton acreage reduction movement, from which many expect to get better prices for both the old crop and that which is now growing, was a failure. Instead of reducing the acreage, Texas cotton farmers have increased it to 1,094,000 according to Agricultural Commissioner Terrell. The crop in many sections started off poorly and in some places has been replanted as many as three times. A fairly good growth that is expected, the yield of bolls and bolls increased much damage to the crop in Nueces county. In other sections boll weevils are doing damage. Despite the increased Texas acreage, as yet there is much uncertainty as to whether the crop will exceed or fall short of that of 1927.

WHEAT CROP GOOD

First leads of wheat have been reported as far North in Texas as Florida and Hereford. The yield is good and the quality is reported as excellent. With a large acreage and a yield above the average, the movement of the crop is quite a problem. To render all possible assistance in the movement of the West Texas chamber of commerce has sent a field representative into the Upper Plains section to ascertain where and when shipping facilities will be most needed. He states that about 25 per cent of the wheat in that section will come from land that a year ago was in grass.

PRaising RIO GRANDE VALLEY

The Pennsylvania railroad is doing a laudable thing in carrying on its dining car menu cards descriptive matter of the Lower Rio Grande Valley. The first paragraph of the matter now being carried reads: "One of the Nation's most promising orchard sections, as well as the most fertile, is the Rio Grande Valley—that triangular area of about one million acres in the extreme southeastern part of Texas, which has its apex where the Rio Grande empties into the Gulf of Mexico. Twenty years ago this vast tract was a waste of mesquite and cactus; today it is being rapidly transformed into an American Valley of the Nile through irrigation and intensive development."

IRRIGATION PROJECTS

According to a speaker who addressed the San Antonio Rotary club last week, there are 59,000 acres comprised in irrigation projects either under way or on which filings have been made in Southwest Texas. In the Rio Grande Valley there are 686,000 acres with water rights, of which 330,000 acres are under irrigation, the speaker said. Millions of acres are included in irrigation projects under way or in early contemplation throughout Texas. Texas is just beginning to realize something of the enormous loss in allowing its ample rainfall to go to waste through lack of proper storage.

POLICE STILL HOLD CAR FOUND ON RIGHT-OF-WAY

Police are still holding the automobile found several days ago on the right-of-way of the Katy road, south of the Frick-Reid oil well supply house. So far no one has claimed the car. L. A. White, acting police said, this morning. The police were notified by Ranger officers that a Chevrolet coupe was stolen in that place last night, but it was not stated from whom the car was taken.

JOHN BROWN'S CONDITION IS REPORTED FAVORABLE

The condition of John Brown was reported favorable today, according to information from the Graham sanitarium, where he was operated upon Monday for appendicitis.

ROUTE BETTER THAN FAMOUS LINCOLN ROAD

Harry Chandler, of the Los Angeles Times-Mirror, who was a member of the motorcade to Memphis on the occasion of the Broadway of America convention in that city April 21, lauds the Broadway of America as the best all year transcontinental highway. The letter from Chandler was addressed to Col. Ed Fletcher, of San Diego, in charge of the motorcade, in which Chandler complimented Fletcher on the splendid manner in which the motorcade was conducted. Quoting another in speaking of the Broadway of America in comparison with the Lincoln highway, Chandler said:

"Superior to Lincoln Highway
"The Lincoln highway is probably not as favorable for comfortable and safe travel across the continent as the Broadway of America route. This is certainly an astonishing fact, considering the years of effort and millions in money that have been expended on the Lincoln highway. It all goes to show that the all year Broadway of America transcontinental highway is immeasurably more practical from the standpoint of service to the motoring public of all America."
A copy of Chandler's letter was sent to the Cisco chamber of commerce.

"Now that you have the enterprise launched," Chandler said, "it is up to the men with vision in the country who are beginning to realize its tremendous possibilities to get busy in practical ways, to persistently and consistently push forward the construction of this enterprise that has so much inherent merit, and which will accomplish so much for the people of the country at large."
"Flying Highway Possibility
Chandler's vision of the possibility of the Broadway of America becoming a transcontinental flying route, for he said:
"If the Broadway of America can be lighted all the way across the country it will be a Flying Broadway as well as an Automobile Broadway because the lights will be more helpful than any other single thing in making transcontinental flying safe, and therefore, practical, at night. Our Western Air Express is anxious to establish a transcontinental passenger and express service along the line of the Broadway of America—at least as far as the Mississippi river—before the route turns northward."

FOUR KILLED IN EXPLOSION OF FIREWORKS

THOMPSONVILLE, Conn., June 26.—Rosario Farno, William Dorecki and Joseph and John Anzolitto, the last three boys, were killed when an explosion wrecked the storage shed at the plant of the New England Fireworks Co. on the outskirts of the city here today. The superintendent of the plant had given the quartet permission to visit the shed where chemicals were stored in order to fill some home-made bombs for the Fourth of July celebration. Their bodies were mangled horribly.

MRS. LETA MCCARTHY RETURNS FROM TULSA

Mrs. Leta McCarthy, stenographer at the political headquarters of R. Q. Lee, candidate for congress, has returned from Tulsa where she was called last week by the serious illness of her father, who had sufficiently recovered for her to return to her duties. She was accompanied home by Mr. and Mrs. Bob Parks and daughter, Miss Marian. Mrs. Parks is a sister of Mrs. McCarthy.

ONE VOLUNTEER SHOWS UP FOR DAIRY CENSUS

Volunteers failed to show up this morning to go out and complete the dairy census, according to J. E. Spencer, chairman of the dairy committee of the chamber of commerce. Only one volunteer reported for work, so it was decided to postpone the completion of the census until a later date.

With its turret, tower and clinging vines, the gubernatorial mansion at Albany is one of the beauties of the state capital, yet Gov. Alfred E. Smith (right) is quite prepared to leave it for the White House in Washington in event he receives the Democratic nomination at Houston and goes on to defeat Herbert Hoover, the Republican nominee, at the polls in November. Above at left is Mrs. Katherine Smith, the governor's mother; below, Mrs. Smith, his wife.

NEW PARKING RULES PROVE SATISFACTORY

The new parking regulations are proving satisfactory and excellent results are being obtained. It is stated at the city hall. This public generally is learning the regulations and giving good cooperation. The regulations are being enforced impartially. Secretary J. E. T. Peters of the chamber of commerce had his car tagged Saturday, and was compelled to pay off to the city secretary. Peters said the officers were not playing any favorites, and the best way to avoid paying the penalty is to obey the regulations. Peters had to pay for parking his car on D avenue for a longer period than the limit of 60 minutes.

Seek Governorship

Here is Attorney-General Albert Ottinger, who is likely to be the Republican nominee for governor of New York. Opposing him probably will be Franklin D. Roosevelt, lifelong friend of Governor Smith, a nationally-known Democratic leader, and vice presidential nominee in 1920.

Officers of Blue Lodge No. 556 and Royal Arch Chapter No. 190 for Year of 1928-29 Are Installed

New officers of the Cisco Lodge No. 556, A. F. & A. M., and the Cisco Chapter No. 190, R. A. M., were installed Monday at Masonic temple, with W. L. Poy, past master of the blue lodge, and John W. Patterson, Masonic secretary and also past master of the blue lodge and past high priest of the chapter, inducting the officers-elect into their respective stations. Instead of commencing the installation at the usual hour of lodge meeting, the ceremonies were moved up that the members might attend the evening performance at the chautauqua, the blue lodge ceremonies starting at 5 o'clock. Following are the officers installed in both lodges:
Cisco lodge R. A. M.—K. H. Pittard, high priest; E. O. Elliott, king; John Ridgeway, scribe; Fleet Sheppard, captain of the hosts; Clyde Karkalis, principal squire; W. L. Poy, Royal Arch captain; B. W. Patterson, treasurer; John F. Patterson, recorder; C. E. Mayhew, guard; J. T. Elliott, master of third veil; W. J. Key, master of second veil; Frank Walker, master of first veil.

SAM HOUSE, FORMER CISCOAN, VISITS HERE

Sam House, formerly a well known Cisco citizen, but now living in St. Louis, is a visitor to Cisco, a guest in the home of Mr. and Mrs. N. W. Noel, 501 West Ninth street. He is a brother of Mrs. Noel. He is renewing many acquaintances here, but stated that he hardly recognized the town, as there were so many changes and improvements since his residence here. He will return to St. Louis Wednesday.

There is a "maiden's blush" applicable, but we seem to have forgotten how it got its name.—Cincinnati Times-Star.

$7,000 PAYROLL OF SAN ANTONIO LIGHT HELD UP

SAN ANTONIO, June 26.—Two men with guns entered the office of the San Antonio Light at 9 o'clock this morning, held up the cashier and escaped with a $7,000 payroll. A $200 reward has been offered. The police have strong clues and arrests are believed imminent.

BATHING REVUE AT BROWNWOOD JULY 2 TO 4

The Hot Wells corporation, of Brownwood, will stage its first annual bathing revue July 2, 3 and 4, according to a special invitation to Cisco received through the chamber of commerce. The revue will be held in conjunction with the Brownwood chamber of commerce and the Brownwood fair association. The winner of the revue will be designated "Miss West Texas." Big cash prizes and a loving cup will be distributed to the entrants, awarded by the Hot Wells corporation at the close of the revue.
It is probable that a large number of Cisco people will attend Brownwood's water festival, as many still remember the splendid cooperation of that city when Cisco staged her water carnival here last July. Then Brownwood sent the Old Gray Mare band and entered one of that city's popular young ladies in the revue.

BOY "SOLD" ON CISCO CALLS IT "NICEST TOWN"

Mrs. F. J. Brown and children, of Dallas, arrived Monday and are now comfortably domiciled at 1004 West Fifth street. This is the family of F. J. Brown, building supervisor on the construction of the new hotel. The children consist of a daughter, who will enter the high school, and a young son, who will enter the grade school. Brown stated that the little son was completely sold on Cisco all ready, as he stated Cisco was the nicest town he had lived in.

FARMERS SEEK ALLIANCE WITH SMITH FORCES

HOUSTON, June 26.—Formal offer of an alliance between the leaders of the farm revolt and Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York was taken under consideration today by the governor's convention managers. The proposal, carefully framed by a score of farm organization chiefs, was presented by Ed A. O'Neal, Alabama, and Chester H. Gray, Washington. Both are legislative representatives of the American Farm Bureau Federation and they were received by Joseph F. Van Namee and Judge Joseph F. Proskauer, Smith leaders.
Nothing definite emerged from the conference but further efforts will be made to bring the forces together, it was said by farm leaders.

NOT GUILTY OF PERJURY, PLEA FROM STEWART

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Col. Robert W. Stewart, of magnate indicted for perjury in connection with his testimony before the Teapot Dome senate committee, pleaded not guilty when arraigned before the District of Columbia supreme court today. His trial is set for October 8.

FARM RELIEF BUGABOO TOO AT HOUSTON

HOUSTON, June 26.—The making of the farm relief plank is looming as the most troublesome matter confronting the Democratic National convention. With the actual opening of convention sessions still some hours away, it now appears that, besides the McNary-Laugaen idea and the export debentures plan, half a dozen proposals embodying the ideas of various Democratic leaders, principally from the Middle West, will be submitted to the platform committee, which is scheduled to begin its deliberations Wednesday, probably under the chairmanship of Senator Key Pittman of Nevada, who himself has an agricultural plank to offer.
The appearance of proposals avoid any suggestion of the McNary-Haugen idea. The plank which the Republican convention at Kansas City rejected does not seem likely to obtain more than formal consideration at the hands of the resolutions committee. The nearest approach to the McNary-Haugen plank is probably that announced by former Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, who arrived here with his state's delegation carrying the draft of a plank which would recommend legislation for maintaining exports of agricultural commodities up to the highest point of any year in the last ten.

Senators Claude Swanson (top) and Walter F. George (bottom) are prominent in the Democratic convention at Houston. Report has it they will lead the opposition to Governor Al Smith of New York.

Lead Fight on Smith

The appearance of proposals avoid any suggestion of the McNary-Haugen idea. The plank which the Republican convention at Kansas City rejected does not seem likely to obtain more than formal consideration at the hands of the resolutions committee. The nearest approach to the McNary-Haugen plank is probably that announced by former Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, who arrived here with his state's delegation carrying the draft of a plank which would recommend legislation for maintaining exports of agricultural commodities up to the highest point of any year in the last ten.
In addition to former Senator Hitchcock and Senator Pittman, Senator Bayard of Delaware, Coraway of Arkansas and Tyson of Tennessee, also have proposals for an agricultural plank. Senator Coraway's is a flat declaration against any form of federal subsidies in attempting to solve the problem of surplus production, leaving room, however, for such plans as that urged by Congressman Connally of Texas. This is accomplished in the Caraway plank by a declaration in favor of the use of necessary federal power for dealing with surpluses and distributing the cost of such dealing over each marketed unit of the crop whose producers are to be benefited.
The farm relief plan of Congressman Connally, known as the export debentures plan, also received a measure of endorsement from former Senator Hitchcock, who, by virtue of his representation of Nebraska, one of the corn belt states, will exercise a good deal of influence with the resolutions committee.

He'll Join Indians

Bruce Caldwell, Yale's greatest football player since Ted Coy and a baseball star of first brilliance, will, it is announced, cast his lot with the Cleveland Americans beginning the first of July. Caldwell was in the Blue colors for the last time at the annual Yale-Harvard contest.

SNAKE BITTEN.

How does it feel to be bitten by a rattlesnake? I asked a young man who I knew had had the experience.

"The biting doesn't hurt much," he said. "The pricks made by the fangs feel about like a pinprick. But the after effects aren't so trivial, I can tell you."

"I was out hunting with an acquaintance in California. We were walking through heavy underbrush, my companion ahead. He must have stirred up the rattler, and the thing took it out on me, for suddenly I felt a sharp pain in my foot, then I heard the rattles buzzing away at a great rate; then I saw him. He looked about ten feet long. Coiled up he made a pile that seemed to me as big as a bushel basket; probably he wasn't over four or five feet. I shot him. Then I took off my shoe and sock to see what damage had been done. There were two punctures in my instep, from which the blood was oozing. Right there my companion showed his mettle.

"I'd like to suck that wound for you," he said "but I've got bad teeth." He was as white as a hall-tenant's belly and shaking like the ague.

"That's all right," I replied, "I wouldn't ask you to do it." I took my handkerchief, tied it below my knee, then twisted it tight with a stick, to cut off the circulation so the poison couldn't get into the rest of my body. Then we made for a ranch house we could see in the distance. By the time we got there I could hardly walk; my leg was paining frightfully and swelling rapidly.

"We met a man coming out of the gate. I told him I had been snake bit, and asked him where I could find a doctor.

"I'm a doctor," he said, jumping out of his car. "Where are you bit?"

"He worked fast. In a moment he had my shoe off, gashed my foot right and left like a Scotch plaid and applied permanganate of potash. Later I learned that he was the only doctor within 25 miles. That he happened to be at that ranch house at that time where he had been called to treat a sick baby, and that he had a supply of permanganate of potash with him was probably what saved my life.

"After he had treated me he took me to a hospital. I stayed there six weeks. My ankle swelled up as large as my thigh, and Caesar's ghost, how my leg hurt! They tried light rays and all the new fangled methods they could think of but they couldn't get the swelling down. Finally one of the nurses remembered that she had heard that hot salt water compresses were good for snakebite. When those were applied the swelling went down.

"That was three years ago. I'm entirely recovered, but not. If I walk a mile, that I feel as it did right after the bite."

"When that snake bit me, I was always rattles before he struck. I know why a snake's fangs cannot cut through leather. That rattler did not make a sound until after he fanged me; and he bit right through my shoe."

PROFITABLE TUNNELS.

The New York-New Jersey Tunnel commission was accused of wild extravagance when it built a vehicular tunnel under the Hudson at a cost of $48,000,000. It defended its action by the estimate that the tunnel would be used by about 5,000,000 vehicles a year and bring in toll receipts of $10,500 a day. Actual results have bettered that estimate. In the first seven months 4,334,000 vehicles have passed through, paying $11,300 a day. The total for the first year may reach 10,000,000, and the project may be paid for in ten years. This is a prominent example of what is happening on a smaller scale almost everywhere. Traffic demands outlets, and expensive projects to relieve traffic surpass expectations in the use made of them and the revenue they produce, directly or indirectly. If the revenue comes only from larger tax receipts resulting from increase of property values in the vicinity, it is no less justification of such projects, when wisely planned. Tunnels and bridges and key thoroughfares are the great need of American transportation today, and they nearly always pay good dividends.

DECISIVE BOOKS.

We used to talk and debate about the "decisive battles of the world." Fifteen of them was a popular number, thanks to a book that had considerable vogue. The head of a big state library wants to know who can recall those 15 battles now. Books, he argues, are of more importance. So he selects a list of "fifteen decisive books of the world," which live on and operate continuously for good, whereas battles serve their purpose for good or ill and are forgotten. What are those books? If you want to know, here's the list: Homer's Iliad, Euclid's Elements (geometry), Aristotle, Plato, the Hebrew Scriptures, St. Augustine's Confessions, Justinian, Chanson de Roland, the Divine Comedy, Shakespeare, Pilgrim's Progress, Adam Smith's Wealth of Nations, Comte's Philosophy and Darwin's Origin of Species. How many know, for themselves, more than three or four of these? Those who are widely read may quarrel over the list, and some may want to know particularly why certain Asiatic books, which have affected the lives of countless millions, are omitted. But the general idea is sound. The pen is mightier than the sword. The written word lasts longer than the battle-stroke, lighting up anew the chosen minds of generation after generation. Books are greater than battleships, printer's ink is superior to gunpowder.

ONE GRANDPARENT PROBLEM.

Something should be done about the grandparent situation. Not so many years ago all proper grandparents lived in the country where their city-bred grandchildren could visit them during summer vacations. They had attics for play on rainy days and they owned fields and meadows for play in fine weather. Pigs, cows, sheep, chickens and gentle farm horses added to the summer's joys as well as to its educational features. Now, it is said, the old-fashioned grandparents on an old-fashioned farm are becoming very scarce. They have sold the old place and retired to a city flat or a modern suburban dwelling, with a radio set in the living room and a little car in the garage. This situation is very hard on the younger generation. Summer camps help to meet the needs of an outing in the country and are reaching more children every year. But it isn't the same thing. However, let's think twice before we start a back-to-the-farm movement for grandparents. They deserve the ease and luxury of gas heaters and running hot and cold water. Perhaps its is up to parents to provide the country outings somehow and let the grandparents do the visiting instead of being visited.

SYNOPSIS

A satchel containing $200,000 has been stolen from the Mercer National Bank. The thief, Shannon, escaping from the bank, is followed by Chuck White, who finds the satchel in the street. The Professor, leader of the gang of crooks to which Chuck belongs, is furious that his scheme for stealing the money has been foiled. Meanwhile, on her way to return the satchel, Rose is met by a policeman, who marches her off to the police station. The satchel is opened, and it is found that the contents have been stolen and iron washers substituted. Detectives follow Rose when she is released. They watch her drive off with Chuck.

CHAPTER VIII—Continued

"I figured they'd light out for Hemingway's," Simpson, his long legs sprawling out before him, mumbled, as the car bounced jerkily over the cobblestones. "Sure! I know Chuck White was mixed up in this some way," Cowles answered, turning out for a huge motor truck that was bearing down upon them. "Imagine that Jane giving him the satchel," Simpson ruminated, chewing on an unlighted cigar. "I bet he was sore as a pup. I wish the Chief'd let us make a pinch, though."

"I'm just crazy about you—let's get married!"

the cheap, thin coat and the worn shoes of the girl beside him. "Oh, but I haven't any money, Chuck—only four dollars, and I couldn't buy very much for that. It don't matter, I'll get a job right away and—"

"No! What?" Rose looked up happily, her eyes bright with delight. "We're going down to my Aunt's in the country!"

"The country! Oh, Chuck! Do you really mean it? Honest?" Rose could scarcely contain her joy. "Sure, I mean it, sweetheart. (Chuck pressed the girl's hand tenderly. "An' then, Rose, if you—if you can forget all that stuff I pulled that night, why—why— Oh, geez, kid, I'm just crazy about you, I can't say it so good, but—but—let's get married! What'd'ya say?" He leaned closer and kissed the fair, pale cheek. "You need a good rest, an' then we can come back to New York an' get married.")

"Chuck, dear—Oh, I'm so happy!" Rose raised her head and looked deep into the boy's eyes. "Honest, you don't know how worried I was when I read about all that stuff in the papers," Chuck began. "I didn't know what to do. I was scared stiff." He glanced out the window in the back of the car again. Yes, the dicks were still camping on the trail.

"It was awful," Rose admitted. "The first couple of days the reporters all come to see me, and all the time the detectives and the policemen were trying to get me to confess to something. But Sergeant Cassidy was awful nice to me last night."

"Sure, he's a good guy," Chuck agreed. "What did he tell you?"

HALF INTEREST IN JONES LEASE BOUGHT BY COSDEN

Cosden & Co. has purchased a half interest in the 108 acre lease of the Robert Oil company of Breckenridge offsetting the new well of the Hucony Gasoline company et al. in Jones county. The latter well was the sensation of a couple of weeks ago, opening up new production midway between the Noodle Creek pool and the Smith No. 1 of Hutson and Weaver to the northwest of it. The property has two tests now drilling which are offsets on the north to

"Oh, he said something about having an idea as to who had the money."

"He did? Who's he think has it?" Chuck asked quickly. "I don't know. He didn't say. He just had some ideas about it, I guess. Why?"

"Oh—Oh, nothing. I was just wondering. If he found it, that'd clear you up, that's all."

A cloud passed swiftly over the girl's face. "Isn't it awful," she breathed. "But I'm not afraid—now that I'm with you, Chuck. All I want to do is to forget about it. Let's not talk about it any more," she pleaded. "Tell me something about your Uncle. What's he like?"

"His name's Hemingway—Professor Hemingway," Chuck informed her. "He's got an antique store—he's bugs on that stuff. You oughta hear him talk. He sure can sling words around. You know that bird you met up to Kelly's with me—the little one—Sparrow?"

"Oh, yes, I remember him."

"Well, he does some work for my Uncle—goes around getting dope on all sorts of stuff for him." He smiled grimly and turned to look out the window again. Yes, the dicks were still there.

Weaving in and out of the pillars of the elevated the two cars sped along. Only a few more blocks and they would be at their destination. And then what? Simpson was speculating as to the outcome of the morning's work. His face took on a slightly worried air that meant that he was puzzled about something. Indeed, he was much less sure of his ground than the Chief seemed to be.

"Say," he began, spitting out some of the tobacco leaves that clung to his lips. "Mebbe this Hemingway gang don't know nothin' about this dough."

"For the love of mud! What do you suppose they're out after this mool for?" Cowles exploded. "You know Chuck White—he don't fall for the dames—they fall for him."

"You never can tell," Simpson retorted. "Anyhow, if the jame's playin' her gang for a face-you-well, there's goin' to be hell poppin' around here."

"Sure there is. But now get this straight. That mool didn't bean Chuck White for nothin'. She even admitted doing it. So why did she bean him? Because Chuck's cast for the lead in this job and she wants to get him out of the way. I think Hemingway's gang's wise, and they're playing the jame. Anyhow, we're going to see something pretty soon. He stopped the car with a sudden jerk.

"Get to park around here?" Simpson asked.

"Yep, we can pick up anything easy enough." He got out, followed by Simpson, and the two eased around the corner where the taxicab had preceded them.

Rose and Chuck had already stepped out onto the sidewalk, and Chuck was instructing the driver to wait. Rose looked about her curiously. She knew that she was in the Tenderloin district once more, but she didn't know on what street, or just where. She looked up at the antique shop, gazing into its dusty windows, fascinated by the sight of the old curios. But Chuck was already beside her and taking her arm, leading her to the door, fingering it open. In another moment it had closed behind them, swallowing them up from sight.

CHAPTER IX.

From early morning on an air of tense, suppressed excitement had hung over the antique shop. Curtains were drawn; no sunlight peeped into the mummy room; only a soft glow from the shaded electric lights illuminated faces and figures. A great stillness reigned, broken now and then by snatches of conversation and the uneven steps of the Professor as he paced about, his head bowed, deep in thought, his long coat flapping around his legs.

Lounging back in a deep chair, Maurey gazed dreamily over the room, pulling now and again on a limp cigarette. His dark hair, graying at the temples, framed a lean, haggard face. He was, perhaps, forty-five, but he looked sixty—and an unkept sixty, at that. His well-knit frame still lent him some distinction, but the flesh had shrunk and aged, hanging, like old, creased paper, thinly, almost transparently. His long, nervous fingers seemed built only of bones that protruded gruesomely as he moved his hands.

On the incongruous leather couch lounged Sparrow. His checked suit had been replaced by one of dark blue that lent to his emaciated body an even greater thinness. He watched idly the Mug, who stood leaning against the tapestry that covered the window, thrusting it slightly aside every few moments to scan the street, and dropping it again almost immediately. He, too, was dressed in a quiet suit of dark blue, with a stiff collar that ill-suited his scarred, pugnacious face.

SHOES AND HANDBAGS ARE MADE TO MATCH

PARIS, June 26.—To be really smart these days, one's handbag must match one's shoes. One of the French shops is making a special feature of the idea and there is not a pair of shoes on the shelves without its particular bag. They are as original in design as the shoes themselves. A very useful type of bag is in envelope shape of snakeskin which folds over in the center and inside the crease, so to speak. It has all the normal fittings and commodious pockets and is large enough to keep a little short umbrella in its sheaths of the lining silk. Dyed lizard makes many shoe and bag ensembles. Some are in cadet-blue with the mottled gray and black scales standing out effectively. Red lizard with zipper fastenings is very smart. A new bag at Worth's has two deep pockets capable of expansion on one side of the flat envelope fastening by crystal buttons which match the larger button on the other side which fastens the flap. It comes in pigskin. Charming suede bags are being shown at one of the Russian shops. There is one in black which has a wedgewood design in blue and white and another in soft green with a Russian ensemble in delicate pastel coloring. A beige one has a copy of an etching in sepia which is quite unique. A novelty in sandals comes in bright colored crepe de chine with flat heels. The colors are designed to match the strippings shown on sports costumes. The weight is particularly nothing at all and the shape makes the foot appear tiny. TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY. ## HARPERSVILLE

Henry Woods and A. C. Cook of Ranger bought several truck loads of beef cattle in this community the past two weeks.

Mrs. Elze Scarlett and son, J. T., were visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Lyles, last Thursday.

A good rain fell Friday night. Rev. W. A. Clark preached for us last Sunday.

Albert Gentry and family made a business trip to Roscoe last week. Miss Maurine Scarlett was the guest of Miss Maudie Wright last Friday.

The pie supper that was to have been given Friday night, was rained out. It was postponed to Wednesday night. The funds are to be used for paying the expenses of the winners in the Harpersville agriculture club to the A. & M. short course.

B. D. Clark and family were the guests of L. D. Wright and family last Sunday.

Master Billy Adams is sick. We hope to report him well next week. Mr. and Mrs. Will Compton and family of Nimrod were the guests of relatives and friends of this community Saturday and Sunday.

What little grain that survived the winter and spring drought is being harvested this week.

A crowd of Harpersville people visited the play grounds of Cisco Sunday. All enjoyed the swim.

Hugh Curry and family were the guests of Walter Beene and family Saturday night and enjoyed eating ice cream.

The Sunday school treat given by Mrs. J. D. Cochran last Wednesday to the intermediate class for the best records for three consecutive Sundays was enjoyed by the entire class. This class won the banner again last Sunday.

HYSTERICAL
 South Carolina Lady Then Tried Cardui and Says She Noticed Remarkable Improvement.

Anderson, S. C.—"I suffered a long long time, before I tried Cardui, and my only regret is that I did not know about it sooner," says Mrs. Lillie Fruit, 130 "K" Street, this city.

"I was badly run down in health. My nerves 'went to pieces', and I had to go to bed. I was not able to do my house work for many months. 'I got so bad off, I could not bear to have anybody walk across the floor of my room. The least little thing upset me. Sometimes I became hysterical. I had bad pains in my back and sides, and my head and limbs would take spells of aching, which almost set me wild.

"One day I was reading and I saw where a woman, who had a trouble like my own, had been relieved by Cardui. I decided at once to try it; so I began on a course of the 'Home Treatment'.

"It began to help me from the very first. I took Cardui regularly, for several months, and my improvement was so remarkable, that my family and friends were delighted.

"Cardui has no equal, in my opinion. I gladly recommend it to others."

"TENDERLOIN," starring Dolores Costello, is a Warner Bros. picture.

SYNOPSIS

A satchel containing $200,000 has been stolen from the Mercer National Bank. Rose Shannon, escaping from the unbecoming attentions of Chuck White, finds the satchel in the street. A policeman arrests her on her way to return it. He takes her to the station. She is held as an accomplice when it is found that the satchel is empty. She is released a week later, but detects a trail her. Rose is met by Chuck, who on the pretext of befriending her takes her to the house of the Professor, leader of the gang of crooks involved in the robbery.

Perched on the long, carved table near the door leading into the Professor's private office, sat a girl, swinging her long, slender legs encased in sheer silk of the latest nude shoda. Black patent leather shoes with thin spike heels gleamed in the soft illumination of the room. A squirrel coat, thrown back across the table, revealed a tight fitting dress of jade green, enhanced by numerous silver buttons down the front and along the sleeves. Heavy pendant earrings of emerald shone lustily against the yellowness of her heavy, bobbed hair.

He pushed her through the door, closing it quietly behind her.

"See anything yet?" Hemingway motioned for the Mug to draw back the curtain. "None." The Mug peeped through the slit at the side of the window, and allowed the tapestry to fall back into place. "So you think this dope about Sergeant Cassidy having a line on the right gang is all a frame?" The Professor turned to Maurey. "I think so." Maurey nodded his head. "There have been no tips off; no one's come near the girl to do anything for her; the sergeant's working only on spec, but personally I think he's got the right idea. He's only letting the mug go so that he can talk her. The dicks won't lose a moment's time after she's out." He spoke in a cultured voice that seemed in strange keeping with the vernacular of the underworld.

"Well, we've got to beat them to it." The Professor began striding up and down the room again. "You think there's no doubt but that this girl knows where that money is?" He stopped his pacing and stood in front of Maurey. "The stool-pigeon shook his head. "There are only two answers to that question," he replied. "Either the girl knows, or the person who planned the stick-up." He looked at the Professor from beneath his half-closed eyes. There was something speculative about his glance, and the Professor turned uneasily. How much did Maurey know? The underworld's underground railway carried even unspoken thoughts at times. "How long 've I gotta park around this joint?" The girl on the table yawned, stretching her legs. "You'll be through soon enough," the Professor answered briefly, resuming his pacing. The girl yawned again, opened a large, square vanity case of green leather and held it up before her, scrutinizing herself in the mirror on the inside of the bag. She pulled out a large powderpuff, stained with rouge, shook it, filling the air with white dust, and applied it lavishly to her nose and chin. She wet her finger with her tongue and ran it over her eyebrows, and then moistened her carmine lips. Finally, she extracted a cigarette from a pack, lit it, and exhaled a white cloud of smoke. "Hey! De're comin'!" The Mug, his eyes glued to a crack in the curtain, signalled to the others with a wave of the hand. Suddenly the entire room seemed to come to life—an unusual life for the shop that was known throughout the Tenderloin as a fence for only the highest grades of stolen property. The Professor donned a pair of horn-rimmed spectacles and picked up an old piece of carved ivory. With a quick gesture he slipped across the floor and threw open a door in the rear which led into a long hallway. "Quick! The back way, Maurey!" He pointed down the corridor as the stool-pigeon slowly rose and made for the door. "Here you—Bobbie!" He beckoned to the girl, who jumped down from her perch, grabbing her hat, coat and bag. "Upstairs—you know the room." He pushed her through the door, closing it quietly behind her. "Sparrow—snap into it!" he ordered.

The Sparrow rose and began examining an old oil painting on the wall with most evident interest. He took it down, turned it over, looked for a signature. "De're comin' in." Mug warned, as the click of the lock sounded. "Dick's across de street!" He turned quickly and stood beside the Sparrow. Together the two began playing their little game of art connoisseurs, while the Professor fondled the piece of ivory with loving care.

Rose and Chuck halted in the doorway, surveying the peaceful scene of collectors of the beautiful at work. It was all that Rose had expected. There was an air of peace and quiet about the place, and it had a sort of mousy, dusty odor that rightfully belonged to such a shop. There, too, pattering around his collection was a gentle-looking elderly man with glasses. For a moment this elderly man stared, then he set down the piece of ivory and hurried forward, lifting his glasses up and allowing them to rest on his forehead. "Why, my dear boy!" The Professor greeted Chuck affectionately. "I didn't expect you back so soon. And this is the little girl, eh?" He turned a fatherly gaze on Rose, smiling kindly. "Yes, this is Rose Shannon, Uncle—the girl I told you about. This is my Uncle Robert, honey." Chuck introduced the two. "I'm glad to meet you," Rose held out her hand, smiling up at the tall man shyly. "And I'm glad to meet you, my dear," Hemingway answered, taking Rose's hand in both his own, and patting it gently. "Chuck's already told me so much about you, that I see that he didn't half begin to do you justice."

"Oh, Professor," Rose laughed, looking up at Chuck diffidently. "My, but this is a lovely place." Her gaze wandered about the room, taking in the old tapestries, the fine pieces of carving, the delicately cut vases. "Why, there's Mr. Sparrow," she exclaimed. At the sound of his name Sparrow turned and, at a sign from the Professor, came forward and shook hands with the girl. "Lo, kid," he said, "I'm glad to see you ag'in. How are ya?" "I'm all right, Mr. Sparrow, thank you," Rose nodded. "And this, my dear," the Professor motioned for the Mug to join the group, "is my old friend, Dr. Mukowski—another collector, like myself."

"Please t' meetcha." The Mug, following the lead of his companions, held out a thick, heavy paw and shook hands with the girl. "How do you do, Dr. Mu—Mu—I'm afraid I can't say it," Rose laughed, embarrassed. "Aw, dat's all right," Mug assured Rose heartily, backing away at a sign from the Professor, and taking up his study of the painting again. "I guess we'll try to make that twelve-thirty train, Uncle," Chuck turned to Hemingway. "That's about the best."

"It's five minutes past eleven, now," the Professor announced, drawing a large, gold watch from his pocket and holding it closer to his eyes to see the time. "Do you like the country, my dear?" he asked Rose. "I just love it, Professor," Rose assented joyously. "I used to live in the country—before I came to New York. We had a farm, out in Iowa. It's been almost a year since I've been away. But we had to sell out, after my father died—there was no one but my mother and me. And then she died, and I've been all alone ever since. Oh, it'll be just like heaven to get back to green grass and trees and things again."

"Well, then, I'm sure you'll love my sister's place," the Professor responded heartily. "When Chuck told me about you, I decided right away that after this—little trouble of yours that a bit of farm life would do you a world of good. I suggested it to Chuck, and then we wrote my sister, and she'll be more than glad to have you both. She's alone a great deal of the time—she's been a widow for some years now."

"It sounds just wonderful," Rose breathed. "I can hardly believe it." (To be continued)

OF A SOCIAL NATURE

Cisco Man Weds Eastland Girl

The following account of the marriage of Arvil Pass and Miss Norma E. Brimberry was taken from the Eastland Telegram: "Durad Arvil Pass of Cisco, and Miss Norma E. Brimberry, of Eastland, were married by Justice of the Peace Jim Steele at 11 o'clock Monday night at the county court house, in the presence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Brimberry of 705 South Seaman street, and her uncle, William Brimberry of the Peace Plains. Miss Ruth Morris was the bride's attendant. The young people had been together all evening, attending the Connellie show, and motoring, when they suddenly decided that if Miss Brimberry could secure her parents consent, the two most concerned would be named. The groom is 24 years old and the bride 18 years old. The wedding was set for some weeks ago, but postponed on account of young Pass having had his leg broken.

"It was a merry laughing wedding party, a real 'gingham wedding,' as both bride and attendant were in their 'every day' light dresses. After the ceremony, an impromptu supper was enjoyed at the home of the bride's parents. Mr. and Mrs. Pass left for Cisco at a late hour, or rather an early hour, amid a good luck shower of rice and old shoes. They will reside in Cisco."

Cisco Couple Celebrate 25th Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Wippen celebrated their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary Monday evening when they entertained a number of their friends at the Green Lantern tea room. Mrs. J. H. Moyer in her charming way entertained with several readings and Miss Frances McGinnis gave several vocal numbers which were greatly enjoyed. Punch was served throughout the evening. After indulging in delicious refreshments all went home pronouncing it a most enjoyable entertainment.

CAPEAS MAY SURVIVE THROUGH THE WINTER

PARIS, June 27.—The cape costume which was a feature of many of the last collections shown by the leading houses, is appearing again in the demi-season models and is likely to survive over to autumn and perhaps through the winter.

It may be full-length or reaching only to the hips or halfway between the hips and the knees. It may be a separate garment or attached to a coat or street frock. The length and cut depends upon the size of the wearer, for capes are dangerous garments and can be very, very becoming or quite the contrary.

A charming ensemble consists of a high-length cape of a black broadcloth trimmed with a wide band of white ermine worn over a separate coat of the same material and a frock of crepe satin with black plisse skirt edged with a band of white and a white bodice with horizontal bands of the black. Another smart autumn costume is of soft black woolen material, the cape a bit longer than that of the usual trotteur, trimmed all

STATE WINNER IN OIL BATTLE FOR MILLIONS

AUSTIN, June 27.—A verdict carrying a judgment worth unestimated millions was returned Tuesday for the state in its suit for more than five hundred acres of Hutchinson county oil land by a jury in district court. The action was brought on the theory that the tract is vacant of valid title and therefore should revert to the state. The exact extent of recovery will be determined later. Some sixty oil companies and individuals, present holders of the area, were defendants. Motions for

CIRCULATION CONTEST IS TIGHTEST NOW OF ANY STAGE

Best Workers Who Exert Themselves This Week May Gain Points That Will Land Them Among Winners

The race the closest in number of points at any stage known to the newspaper subscription drive, which is in the Daily News and the weekly American big drive have at this time reached a stage where the opportunity to gain a lead is offered for this week. The contest is a double prize contest, with regular points for each week and the extra million offered for each one week. The opportunity to the Daily of the newspaper gives the workers the best chance for the most points to win Chevrolet cars and all of the other valuable awards that are to be made at the end of the drive.

The last prize ballot offer and all other prizes given for a subscription closes Saturday night at 11 o'clock. Subscriptions can be obtained at any place up to the closing Saturday night and sent in by mail with a statement that the subscriptions were secured before 11 o'clock at night at 11 o'clock and the subscriptions will count for this week.

The majority of the workers do not have the idea that a small number of subscriptions will not be high points offered for this week. Their imagination is not based on rumors that are going around that someone will win money to win the better which will no doubt keep them making the effort that they would if they could know they had the opportunity that is presented to them to win so few prizes. The workers who can put forth every effort will not be the successful ones who own the cars, the Viva-Tonal and the Atwater Kent radio as well as the other prizes. The worker who takes an active part in this drive will be given a cash award.

BROWNWOOD MAYOR KILLED INSTANTLY

C. McCulley Hurlled from Step of Fire Truck against Curb When It Hits Auto at Street Crossing

BROWNWOOD, June 26. — C. McCulley, 53, mayor and city manager of Brownwood, was killed early Monday night when he was hurled from the rear of a fire truck as it was riding on a street.

The fire truck was driven by M. R. Brownwood mechanic, the driver hurled McCulley from the step, his head striking the curb. He was rushed to a hospital, but he was before reaching there. Two men, Tom Taylor and Jimmie were injured but not seriously. The accident happened at the corner of Main avenue and West Avenue. The fire truck, driven by M. R. Brownwood, ran past a red traffic signal at the intersection of the two streets and Wiley was driving under a green signal. Police officers placed any blame for the accident and it was indicated that would not be prosecuted inasmuch as he was passing a green light. Traffic lights are arranged on all streets and are turned on red when a fire or emergency.

McCulley had served as city manager for the past a half year, he having been elected this spring to serve his term. McCulley was fire chief of Brownwood for many years, and his position to run for and city manager. Since being mayor, McCulley had made runs with the local firemen and continued to be active in work. He had tendered the banquet each year and announced plans for a big banquet at Lake Wood swimming pool owned by him, for next night. In addition to owning Wood swimming pool, Mayor McCulley owned extensive land and real estate in and near Brownwood. He is survived by his wife and children, Mrs. Conley McLean.

7.8 MILES ON NORTH LOOP TO BE PAVED SOON

The north loop of the Bankhead highway from Abilene to Shackelford county, a distance of 7.8 miles, will be paved with concrete under terms of a contract awarded last week at Austin by the state highway commission to the Thurston Construction company of Fort Worth on a bid of $1,282,573. Completion of this project will close all unpaved gaps in highway No. 1-A, the north loop, from Fort Worth to Abilene via Metcalf Gap, Breckenridge and Albany with the exception of a stretch between Albany and the western Shackelford county line. The commission also let the contract for a bridge over Jim Ned creek in Coleman county on highway No. 7 between Novice and Goldsboro. This structure will cost $22,251 and will be built by Crouch and Noland of Strawn, the successful bidder.

sign a note at the bank without reading it? Then, why not read the loan note you sign and see WHEN IT IS DUE, THE RATE OF INTEREST IT BEARS and HOW MANY PAYMENTS ARE REQUIRED TO LIQUIDATE IT. A note means just what it says, and these features are very important.

The "Standard" plan note is very CLEAR and DEFINITE. If you have made a study of loan contracts, and want to save money, you will like the "Standard."
