ONE KILLED IN CRASH, 6 MAY HAVE BURNED

ROME, June 27.—In an official communique to the Italian government General Umberto Nobile, commander of the ill-fated dirigible Italia, today revealed for the first time that Vincent Pomella, chief motor mechanic of the airship, was instantly killed when the craft crashed to the ice on the morning of May 25. The body was later recovered and buried with appropriate honors.

ICE DELIVERY TO FARMS IS SATISFACTORY

Evidently Cisco is leading the state in another forward step, that of delivery of ice to rural folk, as the Lufkin News now claims the honor of its ice plant being the first in the state to operate rural ice trucks. But Cisco beat them to it, as this service was started last week, and the Cisco Ice Co. seems to be well pleased with the service so far, as it was stated by Manager O. J. Russell that the rural folk appear to be appreciative of this service, and are giving the ice truck a good patronage. Practically all of the ice taken out was sold, Russell said.

SPEECHES FOR NOMINATION TO COME TONIGHT

HOUSTON, June 27.—If Governor Al Smith's leaders have their way, and there is every indication that they are in almost complete control of the Democratic national convention, speeches placing presidential candidates in nomination will be made at tonight's session, according to George Van Namee, Smith's pre-convention manager.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE MEETING IS POSTPONED

There was no session of the directors of the Cisco chamber of commerce at the regular date Tuesday night, as no quorum was present. The meeting was postponed till Thursday night when the regular program will be taken up and disposed of. There are several matters of importance to be considered at the meeting, among which are the hotel, the dairy cow census and the aviation landing field.

Mrs. W. W. Donohoe, 404 West Sixth street, is under the care of a physician, suffering from a badly injured arm, caused by getting her hand caught in an electric wringer while doing the family laundry Tuesday. Her hand and arm were drawn into the wringer, tearing the ligaments loose up to the elbow. The hand and arm were mashed flat when released from the wringer, but the member began to swell soon and a physician was summoned. The injury will take some time to perfectly heal, the physician stated, necessitating her remaining in bed for a few days. It will probably be several weeks before she will regain the full use of her injured hand and arm.

INTANGIBLE ASSETS. — The "intangible assets" taxes assessed against the railroads furnish a pretty fair idea of the condition of Texas railroads. State Tax Commissioner Weinert announces the total of such assets for 1928 as being $22,138,287, an increase of $2,675,000 over last year. This includes the comparatively small assets of the ferry and toll bridge companies. The large part of the assets were assessed without change from last year, the bulk of the increase being from two roads; the Gulf, Colorado & Santa Fe with an increase of $1,142,000 and the Texas-Pacific with an increase of $1,033,000. The assets of a few of the smaller railroad companies were decreased.

ICE-DAIRY MERGER. — The Southwest Dairy Products company, with capitalization of $10,000,000 and operating in Texas, Arkansas and Louisiana, has been formed by the merger of 48 ice cream and dairy products plants in the three states. General headquarters will be maintained at Shreveport with district offices at Little Rock, Dallas, Houston and Texarkana. Included in the combine are the Dixie Creameries company of Shreveport, with 20 dairy products plants extending from Pine Bluff, Ark., to Center, Texas; the Southwest Ice and Cold Storage company of Dallas, with plants at Dallas, Texarkana, Fort Worth, San Antonio, Frost and Hillsboro; the Martin Ice company and Twin City Ice company of Texarkana; the Polar Ice company of Dallas; the Dixie Ice company of San Antonio, which has ice cream and dairy plants at Fort Worth, Houston, Dallas, Beaumont, Port Arthur and New Orleans; the Nacogoches Ice Cream company; the Southland Dairies of Taylor; the Home Ice company of Eldorado, Ark., and a few other smaller companies. Just what effect such huge mergers of the ice and dairy products business is going to have upon the competitive purchase of milk and cream from dairy farmers remains to be seen.

LONGEST CONCRETE HIGHWAY.—Webb county is completing a 12 mile section of a concrete highway, extending from finished from Laredo to the Duval county line, a distance of over 47 miles. This will be the longest concrete county highway in the state. Incidentally, this statement shows that Webb county has the area and the wealth of a small state.

OLD GRAY MARE BAND.—Brownwood's Old Gray Mare Band is making a reputation for itself at the National convention at Houston. It was the first band to invade the hotels, taking "The Old Gray Mare" with it, mounted by one of Brownwood's most beautiful daughters. The band secured for itself and its town the first paragraph in many a news report throughout the country, and every convention visitor will go home with pleasant recollections of its music and its appearance. Even the delegation from Tammany Hall that wanted no music and noise will long remember its unexpected rendition of "The Sidewalks of New York." It pays to be distinctive in whatever one undertakes.

THOSE AT HOME.—When one reads the newspapers this week he gets the impression that everybody but himself is at the Houston convention and that perhaps he is a piker for not being there. The convention has drawn a large crowd and is an important event, but only a few thousand of Texas' 5,000,000 people are there, and most of those at home have not been reading much more than the headlines in the news stories, and these are all written by the stay-at-home newspaper workers.

VALDE'S GOAT CONVENTION.—Valde is having a convention this week that is attracting but little newspaper attention, but that ultimately may be worth more to the progress of Texas than the big pow-wow at Houston. The Texas Angora Goat Raisers' association is in session there. All the Texas goats are not at Houston. The four-legged Angora goat has become an important personage in this country. Mohair is in demand. Angoras thrive in Texas. Little does it matter to them which party is in control of the national government.

FLYING DELEGATES.—Many delegates and visitors have gone to Houston this week by airplane, thus saving time. Senator George West, of Colorado, aged 70, made his first airplane trip, leaving Denver at 5 a. m. and reaching Houston at 3 in the afternoon. In 10 hours he accomplished what would have required months in his youth.

'THROW RASCALS OUT' IS CRY OF DEMOCRATIC KEYNOTER

Privilege and Pillage of Past Two Republican Administrations Flayed by Bowers in Opening Convention

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

HAM HOUSTON HALL, HOUSTON, June 27.—A ringing call to "throw the rascals out" was sounded here Tuesday night by Claude Bowers in his keynote speech opening the Democratic national convention. It was accompanied by a slashing, scathing, savage attack on the privilege and pillage of the last eight years under two Republican administrations. He lashed them by innuendo and he scourged them by name.

War of Extermination
His first sentence was a clarion challenge: "The American Democracy has mobilized today to wage war of extermination against privilege and pillage."
His last sentence was an appeal to the Democratic unity in the great undertaking: "The predatory rascals before us seek to triumph for the sake of sacking. Their shock troops are the Black Horse cavalry whose hoofbeats have made hideous music on Pennsylvania avenue for the last eight years. In the progress of such a foe He who dares is a giant and he who doubts is a giant." In this connection he said: "The battle has come. The battle has struck. Then to your tents, O Israel!"

Bowers clearly marked out for the Democrats the path they are to follow in the oncoming presidential campaign: "Throw the rascals out!"
'Carnival of Corruption'
In the face of the oil scandals, the veterans' bureau scandals, "the most shameless carnival of corruption that has ever blackened the reputation of a decent and self-respecting people" in the "packing of commissions" in the face of "unholy government for privilege" on every hand, "in the contemptuous being of the farmer"—in the face of all this, and more, he asserted, the duty of the Democracy becomes crystal clear to sink its own differences and petty quarrels and "throw the rascals out!"

Bowers did not confine his attacks to these Republican officials whose names he brought them up against the courts of criminal charges. He went after the leaders of the Harding-Coolidge administration from the highest to the lowest and he named names in the process.
"Shameful as these (scandals) are," he asserted, "more shameful has been the silence and indifference of the high functionaries of state to whom the people had a right to look for protection of the nation's prosperity and the nation's honor. We submit in no spirit of political flubdubbery that it is a shocking thing that we have waited vainly for seven years for one word, one syllable, one whisper of the mildest criticism of these criminals to come from a single representative of the administration."
"Silence is Golden"
"They heard Lafollette's denunciation of Teapot Dome—and were silent. They saw the various processes in the alienation of the nation's prosperity—and were silent. They heard the gossip of the capital that buzzed for weeks and months—and were silent. There was not a man among them with enough will power, or lung power, to blow a police whistle."
"Sometimes silence is golden—for the thief."
Why he demanded, were the leaders of the administration silent, and he answered his own question thus: "Because of the organization of

Mrs. Ed Robinson entertained the Junior League of the Methodist church Friday afternoon. The children spent a most delightful hour playing games and having contests of various kinds. They were served punch and cake.

Fundamentals at Stake
The conflict between the Republicans and Democrats this year, Bowers declared, goes back to the very fundamentals of government—the question of whether the Hamiltonian philosophy "government for wealth and privilege" or the Jeffersonian concept of "equal rights" shall prevail for the next four years. It was in this connection that he dwelt upon the controversial question of agricultural relief. He asserted that for eight years "big business" as represented by highly protected corporations had profited enormously while unprotected agriculture had languished and sickened.
"Thus," he said, "while the little group represented by Mr. Mellon has found fine plucking in the vineyard of the state, there has been nothing left but thorns and thistles for the tillers of the soil."
He declared there has been a thirty billion dollar depreciation in the value of farm property in the last eight years, and "two million farmers have been driven from the paternal acres within the year."
"The result is a condition of ruination that is a disgrace to our civilization."
"When business profits from legislation," he asserted, it is described as "patriotic statesmanship;" when the farmer demands his share "they denounce him as a radical and a crank."
"One day the head of the state by a scratch of the pen increased the tariff loot of the pig iron industry by 50 per cent, and the next day he delivered a homily to the farmers on the wickedness of expecting profit from a governmental act."
The Democrats," he said, "do not ask paternalistic privilege for the farmer but we do demand that the hand of privilege be taken from the farmers' pockets and off the farmers' throats. We do not propose that the most basic of all our industries shall forever be a door-mat for all the others to wipe their feet on as they enter the "Temple of Privilege."
On prohibition, Bowers was silent. Save for a laudation of the Jeffersonian doctrine of state's rights, there was nothing in his epochal speech that referred even indirectly to the most controversial problem here at Houston.

His speech was a classic of attack, a masterpiece of invective and assault on the party in power, and with it always the fervent plea to Democrats not to quarrel, not to fight, but to unite against the common foe.

Smith Wears 4-Leaf Clover in Coat Lapel While He Goes About Work; Ignoring Omen, He Accepts 13 Fish

ALBANY, N. Y., June 27.—Wearing a bunch of four-leafed clover in his coat lapel, Governor Alfred E. Smith goes about his state duties paying but occasional attention to the Texas convention considering his suitability as the Democratic candidate for the presidency.

The governor showed impartiality even toward omens, for though he were the boutonniere of four-leafed clover presented him by a woman in the state department of purchase, he also accepted a string of 13 brown trout from John J. Burns, Monticello.

When the convention opened he was attending a meeting of the state building sites commission and he shut the door of the conference room so that he would not be disturbed by the report of the convention coming in on an emergency radio set in the executive building.

Radio in Offices
 The new set was installed after a particularly fancy outfit especially put in his office for the convention refused to pick up anything more distant than the rumbling of the elevators.

After the building sites meeting was over the governor entered his office and sat down for a moment before the radio.

"That's some band," was his only comment on what he heard of the brief opening session.

After the convention adjourned until evening the governor completed some state business and then left for the golf links with two friends for a game before dinner. Although he had a luncheon of nothing but crackers and milk sent into his office from the capitol restaurant, the governor made arrangements for no more than a hasty dinner between his golf game and the reconvening of the convention for the keynote speech, which he was anxious to listen to over the radio set in the executive mansion.

New Brown Derby
 The governor saw newspaper men in his office but he steered the conversation far from political paths to deplore the perversity of his new brown derby just come to him from an admirer by mail and put it on for the edification of the reporters.

The brown derby has been the Smith war bonnet in his campaigns of the last quarter century and as the likelihood of his being the Democratic standard bearer in the presidential race has increased he has been receiving gifts of several every day.

"But most of them aren't wearable," he said. "This one is good; this is official."

A state trooper has been assigned as personal bodyguard to the governor to stay with him wherever he goes. No announcement was made as to the reason for this action.
