COLLECTION PANICS.—Business is frightened. At least that is the opinion of those who lend money, borrow money, or invest money in industries. It is admitted that while there may be slight differences in the fundamental principles of the leading political parties, the differences in their practical execution of government are so slight as to be almost negligible, yet every year business shudders at the prospect of a change of government and political control. It becomes frightened to a standstill and awaits the result of the approaching election. When it is over and it is found that the government moves along with a fair degree of smoothness, business picks up its cars, and starts on its way again. But much valuable time is lost and nothing is gained by the cause in progress. The point I am trying to make is that there is no need to wait until after the November election to start upon that business enterprise you have in mind. The country is going to be run with either party in charge, and business will move along. When fluctuations there may be in prices and demands will be only temporary and will be about as likely to occur under one administration as another.

CAUSE OF COTTON SLUMPS.—H. H. Wolfe, a veteran Dallas cotton buyer, says that he has been watching the cotton market for 43 years, and that year after year the farmers of the South commit financial suicide by rushing their cotton to market at the time of gathering. He thinks the fault is not so much with the farmer as with the banker, and that it is brought about by the system of short credits in practice over the country. Much cotton turning is done on credit, with prices maturing at the time the crop is ready for market. The banks become anxious for their money, and the farmer sells at whatever price he can get in order to settle with the bank. Mr. Wolfe says that when Southern bankers and cotton farmers lose their heads they also lose profits that should come from cotton growing.

VALLEY CITRUS CROP.—With citrus fruit shipments from the Lower Rio Grande Valley this season reaching 2,500 cars as compared with 1,300 last year, it is expected that the crop next year will approximate 4,000 or 5,000 cars and be worth $10,000,000. Texas can produce all the citrus fruit for which it can find a profitable market, and the greatest danger now confronting the Texas grower is over-production. A late census shows that there are now 3,419,157 citrus trees in the Valley. In every branch of farming, fruit and vegetable production, and allied industries, the Texas farmer has only to fear an over-creditable market. Collin county growers are plowing under their citrus crops because they will not pay for the gathering and crating. California grape growers are leaving half their grapes on the vines in order to maintain prices. Citrus tugs have been allowed to fall from the trees. Many other crops are allowed to waste. The tillers of the soil everywhere are in need of special help in solving their many marketing problems.

TEXAS TOMATO CROP.—Smith county alone has shipped more than 1,000 cars of tomatoes this season. Last year the shipments totaled 730. Smith is only one of many localities growing tomatoes for export shipments. There are at least a hundred others in Texas where vegetables of almost all kinds can be grown about as successfully as in Smith county. The price paid for tomatoes this year has ranged from 4 1/2 to 2 cents, which the growers regard as unsatisfactory. Consumers in Texas cities have been paying from 8 to 12 1/2 cents, which they consider too high. There is need for some agency to take a hand in adjusting the prices of farm products to go away with the disposition in prices from producer to consumer.

GETTING NATURAL GAS.—Cameron is happy that it has natural gas and well it may be if its consumption proves as economical as it is convenient. Uvalde is now getting gas mains. San Marcos has made it a proposal for natural gas, and the gas mains will have been placed above these, the gas which must await the completion of the water plant. San Marcos shows wisdom in their proceeding. Many other places have not been so careful. Progress has been made in granting public utility franchises to the first persons applying for them.

GOLIAD'S OIL SEEPAGE.—There is no guessing where oil is to be found in Texas. Oil seepage is injuring a Goliad swimming pool, as the swimmers don't want to move the oil from their heads after taking a plunge. But they are led to plans for tracing the

PLANE OUT 40 HOURS ON TRIP OVER ATLANTIC

LONDON, Aug. 4.—An anxious world tonight was waiting for news of the trans-Atlantic plane Marzalek Plaudski, more than 40 hours out on its flight toward the United States. Thirty-six hours were allotted for the flight. A plane, presumably the Polish one, was sighted by vessels at sea, three dispatches said. Possibilities that the plane turned back toward Europe were suggested here. The fliers carried no radio equipment and hence reports from ships afforded the only means of ascertaining the plane's whereabouts.

SCION OF OLD FAMILY OF TEXAS IS CISCO VISITOR

Horatio Durst, of Crockett, grand nephew of W. H. Kitchell, Sr., was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Kittrell for Stephenville on official business. Durst is Texas appraiser for the National Farm Loan bank at Washington, and is a son of Horatio Durst, Sr., of Crockett, now 85 years of age and the only survivor of 12 children of the late Col. John Durst, who came to Texas in 1811. Colonel John Durst's wife was Miss Harriet Jamison, daughter of Colonel Jamison, commander of United States troops in Louisiana when that state was a territory.

Collins Noses Out Mrs. Burkett for Runoff, Miss Speer Fails to Get Majority, Final Count Shows

Few changes were shown in the standing of candidates in the Eastland county Democratic primary of July 28 when the returns from 29 precincts were canvassed by the county executive committee at Eastland Saturday forenoon. The main upset was that J. Elmer Collins finished second in the four-cornered fight for tax assessor after early returns had indicated that Mrs. Fanny Burkett would go in to the runoff with George Bryant. Another upset from early returns was the county superintendent's race. Miss Speer appeared at first to have a safe majority over her two opponents but the final tabulation showed her to have 2,951 votes against 2,945 for the two men. Virge Foster finally finished ahead of John S. Hart, incumbent, in the sheriff's race after the two had switched back and forth in the lead. Loss Woods was a poor third but received enough votes to throw Foster and Hart into the runoff. The other county contests were in keeping with early indications.

On the state ticket Thomas L. Blanton received a clean majority in Eastland county and ran better than three to one over Tom Connally in second place. R. Q. Lee had a substantial margin over R. N. Grisham of Eastland in the congressional race. Moody led Wardlaw for governor but failed to get a majority. State Treasurer Hatcher, seeking re-election, got the largest majority for any contested office.

The official returns were as follows:

QUARREL ENDS IN TWO DEATHS AT SANTONE

SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 4.—Mrs. Ida Wilson, 28, and W. A. McArthur, 34, salesman, are dead following a shooting in the heart of the business district here this afternoon. More than 200 shoppers witnessed the tragedy. Mrs. Wilson was shot twice through the heart, dying instantly. McArthur shot and killed himself a few minutes later. According to Miss Pearl Warren, sister of the dead woman, McArthur approached them while they were looking into a show window and shot Mrs. Wilson and then himself.

Eastland Co. Republicans Pick Ticket of Candidates and Name Delegates to Next Conventions

Eastland county Republicans, in response to the call of P. A. Blankenbecker, chairman of the Republican county executive committee, met in county convention in the 91st district court room in Eastland Saturday afternoon, to elect delegates to the state and various district conventions, and to certify the precinct chairmen elected at the precinct conventions held July 28. They also nominated a county ticket to be voted on in the general elections in November.

County judge, A. L. Agate, Eastland; district clerk, Wallace Wagner, Ranger; county clerk, Thomas C. Bennett, Carbon; county school superintendent, Mrs. Ethel Triplett, Cisco; sheriff, Gomer S. Williams, Cisco; tax collector, H. L. Cooner, Gorman; tax assessor, J. F. Driehoffer, Ranger; county attorney, W. H. Taylor, Eastland. The following delegates attended the convention from Cisco: P. A. Blankenbecker, Mrs. J. W. Triplett, Mrs. Ida Kenyon, R. C. Hilgenberg, G. E. Lennox and J. W. Triplett were interested attendants.

Callaway to be in Runoff Against Lee

Among the industries, potential industries and other opportunities that will be stressed will be that of dairying, looking toward the location of a milk plant, and catering to the agricultural, oil, fuel and commercial activities. The advantages to the homebuilder will also be presented. The information and data will be in comprehensive form.

The edition will come within a few weeks after the close of a circulation campaign that has added several thousand readers to The Daily News in the Cisco Country. It is the first time that such an edition, covering the entire section, has been attempted. The information in it will be such that the regular readers will want to preserve for their own reference and likewise to send copies of it to friends in other parts of Texas and other states.

Rainfall in Cisco Friday Night and Saturday Totals Inch; More Precipitation May Damage Crops

There was six-tenths of an inch of rainfall in Cisco Friday night, according to the gauge at the city hall, and farmers coming in from the country surrounding Cisco report that a nice rain fell over this section just sufficient to moisten the surface of the ground which had begun to bake where the lands had not been broken since the rains of the previous week. Saturday's precipitation brought the total up to around an inch.

"We had a nice rain," said O. P. Weiser, who lives out this side of the German community, "but we do not want any more right now. We were not needing the rain particularly, but it was just sufficient to soften up the surface of the ground and to hold the moisture already in the earth. Many of the farmers have feed stuff shocked in the fields, and if the rains continue much of this will spoil."

"Everything is growing nicely, and unless there is too much rain to prevent harvesting the crops, there will be a large yield of feed-stuff."

Will Allen, of the Seranton community, who was one of the farmers who came in to attend the meeting of the Cisco Livestock Cooperative association Saturday, said that only a light shower fell in the Seranton section, but all that was needed, as the ground was in fine shape from the previous rains, and all crops are growing fine.

"We have a few boll weevils," Allen said, "but so far they have done little or no damage. But if the rains continue there is danger of the boll worms putting in an appearance. I have 18 acres in cotton but I am not so much concerned about that crop, as I try to make a living without cotton.

PLAY HOOVER'S FITNESS UP IS FISHER ADVICE

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—The fitness of Herbert Hoover for the presidency was the keynote of the approaching presidential campaign sounded here today by Governor John S. Fisher of Pennsylvania, at a conference of middle west Republican leaders called by Dr. Hubert Work, chairman of the Republican national committee. Fisher declared that there should be nothing of a personal nature held against Governor Al Smith, the Democratic nominee, but that the question will revolve around Smith's attitude on great public questions.

Lee declared that he will conduct his runoff campaign along the same lines and on the same high

FERGUSON TO AID MAYFIELD, ONE TIME FOE

AUSTIN, Aug. 4.—Former Governor James E. Ferguson today announced that he will support Earle B. Mayfield in the runoff primary for the senatorial nomination.

"Between the two evils I have decided to vote for Earle B. Mayfield as his election will be the least harmful," Ferguson said.

Ferguson and Mayfield were opponents in the Democratic runoff for the senate six years ago and the campaign was one of the most virulent on both sides in Texas annals. When Mayfield received the nomination Ferguson threw his support to the Republican-union candidate, George E. B. Paddy, in the general election.

RESOURCES OF CISCO AREA TO BE PUBLISHED

The resources of Cisco, the Cisco Country and the other towns and cities in it will be presented in a full trade edition which The Daily News is planning to issue early in September. Business men of one other city have already indicated that they would patronize such an edition which would set forth the resources and opportunities of the entire section of West Texas.

Among the industries, potential industries and other opportunities that will be stressed will be that of dairying, looking toward the location of a milk plant, and catering to the agricultural, oil, fuel and commercial activities. The advantages to the homebuilder will also be presented. The information and data will be in comprehensive form.

plane which characterized his race in the first primary. He expressed the hope that the runoff would afford no more occasion for petty personalities than was found during the first race.

"The people of the district by now are fairly well acquainted with the platform and the policies on which I am seeking the high office of congress," said Lee. "However, it is my intention to make a thorough campaign and visit every county in the district during the runoff campaign."

He continued that he has the utmost confidence in the business judgment of the voters in the district, that he is firmly convinced that they want a sturdy, staunch Democrat in congress, one who has always been in sympathy with the policies of the Democratic party and that he looks with confidence for a big majority in the runoff.

"I am very thankful for the support I have received from every section of the district," said Lee, "and I trust the sound judgment of a progressive democratic people for a big majority on August 25."

FINNS MAKE NEARLY SWEEP IN DECATHLON

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 4.—The American athletic invaders concluded a day of intermittent sniping at the enemies' fortresses in the Olympic games this afternoon by losing the only two finals on the program, the decathlon and the 2,000 meter steeple chase. Both events went almost completely as sweeps for Finland, two representatives of that country finishing one-two in the all around competition in 19 events.

The best the Americans could do in this was third place for Ken Dougherty, Detroit, and fourth place for Jim Stewart, Los Angeles. Tom Churchill, Oklahoma City, also came home with two points for America by placing fifth.

Martha Norell, Mrs. ... broke all listed world's and Olympic records in winning the 400 meter free style heat. The Americans' four man relay team of Wyko'l, Quinn, Borah and Russell won its heat impressively in the 400 meter relay race, only a fifth of a second slower than the Olympic record. The American women's 400 meter relay team also won its heat.

Baird, Spencer, Bartoli and Alderman, Americans, won an easy victory in the first heat of the 1,600 meter relays.

WILL CERTIFY STATE RUNOFF ON AUGUST 13

A meeting of the state Democratic executive committee, to canvass the vote in the recent primary and to decide what names shall be certified in the runoff election will be held at San Antonio August 13. Notification for the meeting has been made by D. W. Wilson, of Georgetown, chairman of the committee.

One of the most important questions that will arise will be the matter of naming the candidates in the runoff for the nomination of a candidate for lieutenant governor. Senator Thomas B. Love of Dallas, barred from the ballot in several Texas counties because of his opposition to the party presidential nominee, Governor Al Smith of New York, pulled more than 150,000 votes and was second to Barry Miller, who is running for renomination. Cameron county, which barred Love's name in the first primary, has announced that it will not print his name on the runoff ballots. A legal battle is expected to follow any attempt to leave Love's name off the ballot.

FILM CONCERN HOPES TO SIGN LINDBERGH UP

HOLLYWOOD, Cal. Aug. 4.—A motion picture featuring Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh loomed as a possibility today with the revelation that the United Artists, a film producing concern, has been negotiating with the famous aviator for the past two weeks. Officials of the concern admit that they are hopeful of securing Lindbergh's signature to a contract for a picture dealing with his trans-Atlantic flight.

LEARNING TO LEARN.

"When I was first married," said a young wife, "I had a great semi-altruistic idea. I decided that whenever I engaged a servant I would teach her how to cook and keep house so that when she left me she would go on her way better prepared for life than when I found her."

"So as I engaged my girl, I would tell them enthusiastically just be willing to learn I should be good cooks and housewives when they responded emphatically that they wanted."

"But I soon found that of them wanted; I soon saw very welcome; that they were learning how to cook and keep house and their wages Saturday night were really interested and they were really interested."

"Then as an incentive to the better cooks and housewives the more money they could didn't help much. In short, I hadn't learned to learn, and that they didn't learn."

Learning to want to learn, self to learning are the first knowledge. And there are persons who have never grasped the truth that more knowledge should have more knowledge that they need to know things at a realization that they are incompetent. The truth that more knowledge is valuable; increase their intelligence; place them more brightly, more interestingly."

The person who goes through the first stopping along, or plodding along, or blundering through, doing only what absolutely has to be done, doing it no better than he is compelled to, taking no pride in his work, making no effort to climb, aiming at no goal, reaching for no star, is exactly in the same fix as old Dobbin between the shafts, jogging a dusty road, pulling an uninteresting, uneventful load, doing that day after day, and year after year, and getting out of it only his bed and fodder. That's all right for Dobbin, because Dobbin doesn't need anything but bed and fodder.

But the human being is intended to rise and shine; is expected to go up, up, up; and when he isn't going up, up, up, he is uncomfortable, though he may not know why; he may not realize what ails him; he is dissatisfied with life, because consciously or unconsciously he is not playing the game as it should be played.

The most disgruntled employes are those who slight their work; who slip over everything that can be slipped over. The happiest employes are those who do their work the best it can be done, slipping over nothing. They have the wholesome feeling of work well done.

TWO QUIET ELECTIONS.

Nicaragua at last is considered pacified. Sandino, the rebel leader, is said to have fled. The task of the American marines is simplified. They now expect no trouble in supervising the national election; and if any does arise, they feel able to cope with it easily. So Nicaragua apparently is to have as quiet and lawful election as the United States. But not an uninteresting one. In both countries the contest is regarded with more interest than any held for many years—our own for the men and domestic interests involved, Nicaragua's for the part played by our government and the international interests represented.

GERMANY IN THE AIR.

If America is air-minded, so is Germany. The latter is going ahead in air development more energetically in some ways than our own country. German engineers and transportation men are visioning the aircraft industry in a big way, boldly planning pioneer passenger and trade routes and devising craft to navigate them. Much has been said regarding the big German dirigible now being completed, intended to carry 100 passengers and serve a new travel route between Europe and South America. That is meant merely as a starter in the dirigible line. Along with it, according to recent reports, are ambitious plans contemplating an airplane liner service between Germany and the United States far beyond anything previously suggested. We are told of a concern building eight planes each capable of carrying 50 passengers, planes powered with a dozen motors apiece and able to lift 50 tons. The explanation of this and other activity is that Germany wants to get the jump on other nations in air transportation just as she sought to do in water transportation before the war. She may do it, too, in spite of American and British competition. Germany has a double motive for the effort. She wants leadership in this field because she believes it will be profitable, and because, humiliated by the outcome of the war, she seeks a new path to glory and prestige. If imagination and daring suffice, she will succeed.

SUMMER PERILS.

A Swiss writer observes that most of the world's great calamities happen in the summer. He doesn't refer especially to heat prostrations, snake bites and vacation engagements. The man is quite serious. He refers to things like earthquakes, floods, landslides, cyclones, volcanic eruptions, fires and tidal waves. A month-by-month tabulation of historical records seems to show that such events are about twice as likely to occur in the summer as in any other season. He is at loss to explain. Summer heat is probably responsible for a good many of the catastrophes, but by no means all. July, according to this account, is the most dangerous of all months. Fortunately it's over now for this year, and we can breathe more freely—though free breathing in August isn't always easy.

CONSERVATIVE MAN.

Leaders of a "clothes revolution" begun in Paris are extending their propaganda to this country and urging more comfortable and colorful male attire. Their efforts are probably commendable, even though one of them urges for daily business wear a "Russian" house with bishop sleeves and low-attached collar and for negligence, a "one-piece frock revealing the rib and the knee." But as a regular fashion expert remarks: "Man is a shy and conservative animal in matters of dress, and it is impossible to bring about sudden revolution. The thing must be accomplished gradually. We have done away with the starched collar and the stiff bosom of the shirt. We have jazzed up the sport clothes of the conservative animal and we have put a touch of color into his business suits. Next we might advocate a low and looser attached collar, with a loosely tied flowing scarf. But go slowly, brothers and sisters, lest the animal take fright and kick over the traces." For real innovations in dress, men must rely on that social conservative but sartorial revolutionist, woman.

SUPERFLUOUS WORKERS.

Great Britain, facing a serious unemployment situation, is considering moving a large block of workers bodily to some of her dominions. The dominion will welcome that, particularly Canada and Australia. Britain has more potential jobs than can be made whereby, through and favorable land terms, these starving British subjects are not wanted in the cities more than the Old World, them. They are likely to have as city folks always do; but to the land and probably then to the Mother Country emigration, the strength of Great Britain grows and more to its distant dominions. It is like a tree; the live wood is on the outside. One finds in forests occasionally a monarch fallen from age, and around its dead stump a cluster of sturdy new trees growing—its children. Will it be so with Great Britain? Such a fate is strongly suggested when that industrial country cannot provide a living for its industrial population.

HOME POWER.

C. W. Frick of Albemarle County, Va., isn't worrying about heat, light and power. Though in a rural district, he has city comforts. He has merely harnessed a stream on the place, about a foot deep and 15 feet wide, and made it work for him. With his little hydro-electric plant he produces and uses about 10 kilowatts in winter and five in summer, which suffice to heat the house, operate an electric range, light the house and outbuildings and run a feed cutter. One use he makes of it is, by extra lighting, to increase his poultry output. There is vast hydro-electric development in this country, but very little of it has to do with falls. Many a farm or city site could make use of such a site could make use of it.

NUMBER 122

RUNOFF FIGHT FOR U. S. SENATE TO BE BITTER

Ferguson, Old Foe of Mayfield, May Back Him Against Connally; Colquitt May File as Independent

AUSTIN, Aug. 4.—Connally or Mayfield. This runoff race for United States senator promises to cause more interest and activity than all the races of the first state Democratic primary.

Supporters of each can give you seemingly good reasons why their man cannot fail of victory.

For Connally the two principal arguments are that the approximately 450,000 who voted for Connally, Blanton, Oswald, Cunningham and McLemore were voting against Mayfield and that in political races the first primary leader has usually been defeated in the runoff.

For Mayfield it is to be pointed out that he starts in the race with a considerable number more of known supporters than Connally.

If they voted for Mayfield in the first primary with a large body of choice from they are not likely to quit him in the runoff.

Knows Weak Places

Mayfield has also the advantage of knowing where to center his runoff campaign activities. If the votes for other candidates were really votes against him he has only to look at the returns, find out where he got few votes and patch up the difficulties in those places.

On the second proposition that a leader in the first primary loses in the runoff, records on senatorial races are neutral. In 1916 O. B. Colquitt led the first primary and was beaten by Calhoun in the runoff. But in 1922 Mayfield led both the first primary, the runoff with Jim Ferguson and the general election, when George E. B. Paddy was put up as a combination candidate for both Democrats and Republicans.

Colquitt May Run Yet

That Colquitt might yet be pitted against Mayfield or Connally is not an impossibility. At any time within 30 days after the runoff, Colquitt's name can be placed on the ballot as an independent or non-partisan candidate. When Colquitt withdrew from the primary race on the ground that Smith would be the party nominee for president and he could not support Smith, the way became open to Colquitt to run as an independent.

Incidentally, the Texas election laws make it much easier for Colquitt to get into the general election than it was than by staying in the primary. In the primary it would take at least 200,000 supporters to be a candidate. He can become an independent or non-partisan candidate with 2,655 supporters. The Texas election law permits the filing of such a candidacy on petition of 1 percent of those who voted in the last preceding general election. In that election the conclusion was no foregone that only 265,507 votes were cast. One per cent is 2,655.

If such a petition is presented the secretary of state would have no choice but must include Colquitt's name on the general election ballot.

Ferguson Watched

Much speculation has been had over Jim Ferguson's attitude in the runoff. His race with Mayfield was one of the most bitter ever fought in Texas, yet there are some who believe Ferguson will be for Mayfield. Congressman Claude Hudspeth of El Paso has come out for Mayfield and it is recollect that Hudspeth was a strong Ferguson supporter in his days in the Texas senate. Also one of Mrs. Ferguson's private secretaries holds a similar position now with Hudspeth. Ferguson supported Owsley in the first primary, publishing his speaking dates in a box opposite those of Louis J. Wardlaw, defeated candidate for governor. Hudspeth also supported Owsley.

Barry Miller probably will not inherit the usual enmity incurred by a leader in the first primary. J. D. Parnell, who ran third against Miller for lieutenant governor, was prompt to pledge his aid to Miller. The race is so sharply divided over the question of supporting the national ticket that it is more likely Thomas B. Love, Miller's opponent in the runoff, cast his maximum vote in the first primary than that Miller got his maximum.

Garner Surprises

The race that put W. F. Garner of Nacogdoches in a runoff with State Superintendent S. M. N. Marrs was the bar and only surprise of the first primary. It is no secret that Marrs and practically all of his department figured that the race would be between W. E.

James and Marrs. Marrs' defense was principally against James.

One reason that James' strength was over-estimated was because the Bexar-San Antonio machine instructed the Bexar county vote to him. The machine instructions, which were not carried out, had been given on the supposition that James was the strongest man against Marrs. It was intended to punish Marrs because San Antonio authors were thought not to have received enough consideration in selection of school texts. Marrs said himself that he had expected if he had a runoff it would be with James.

Many New Senators

With 13 new senators assured and a possibility of a fourteenth, there is much speculation about the attitude of that body of 31 in the forty-first legislature. This is probably the most general change in membership that has marked any single election. The fourteenth new face will be added if the Democratic nominee beats Republican Senator Julius Real in November. W. A.

Williamson and T. B. Moorhead, both members of the house from San Antonio in the fortieth legislature, are in a runoff for the chance to meet Real in the general election.

John Henry Kirby and Walter Woodhall are reported to be applicants for Senator J. W. Hall's place from Houston and George Kemble and Arthur Beck for Senator Bob Stewart's place at Fort Worth. Both Stuart and Hall have been elected to other offices and special elections will have to be called to name their successors.

NEZ PERCE WOMAN, 112, DIES IN IDAHO

LEWISTON, Idaho, Aug. 4.—She-ther Li-Shei-Kin-My, 112, believed to have been the oldest Nez Perce Indian, is dead at her home near Kootana, Idaho. She was a distant relative of Chief Joseph, and was with him during the famous Nez Perce retreat in the Indian war of 1877. While the red men fell back before a column of United States soldiers, Esther, with several other Nez Perce women, swam the Clearwater river with papooses on their backs.

TEXAS JUDGE PUZZLES EAST WITH SYSTEM OF LIQUOR FINES

Atwell, Sitting on Brooklyn Bench, Assesses One Cent Against Youth in Jail 45 Days But Bears Down on Liar

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—A modern Solomon from Texas is giving New York a judicial education.

Federal Judge William H. Atwell, whose native haireck is Dallas, but who is doing vacation relief in the federal court in Brooklyn, metes out a form of justice that is a constant puzzle to the native bootleggers.

"What can you expect when he fines one man $500 for doing the same thing for which he fines another one cent?" they ask.

The answer is only, says the judge, a white-haired, dignified settler, who is not a Democrat and admits that he was an anti-prohibitionist before the eighteenth amendment was adopted.

"I fit the punishment to the man," he explained today.

Opposes Interviews

The judge was asked what difference he finds in the attitude toward prohibition here and in Texas. He said he doesn't like to give interviews on such subjects, explaining that they may be construed with a political purpose, and a judge has no right to make political utterances, but he answered in a judicial, slightly enigmatic way.

The first is this: There is a difference between enforcement and advocacy," he began. "Enforcement is judicial; advocacy is political. Enforcement is a duty; advocacy is voluntary.

"I detect another difference. The journalist is not an apologist in my district for any man who breaks the law, whatever it may be. "If the journalist misrepresents the enforcement of a law to those who do not have an opportunity themselves to see it enforced, then it creates a false set of facts, so that the reader necessarily will draw a false conclusion."

Judge Atwell was an anti-prohibitionist and used liquor before the eighteenth amendment was adopted.

"Enjoyed a Drink"

"I took a drink and enjoyed it," he said. "But I haven't taken a drink in ten years, either at home or abroad. I can lean over the bench and tell the man down there before me: 'I'm no hypocrite.'"

The Texas judge studies those who come before him and when the trial is over he knows his man thoroughly. He renders his judgments accordingly. He is strong on the truth. He gave an old man who had been selling liquor a light sentence because he told the truth. He gave another a heavy sentence because he lied.

A young man came before him for selling a quart of liquor to factory employes. He had been in jail 45 days, unable to get bail. "You've been punished enough," the judge said. "One cent fine." Judge Atwell fined a grocer who sold liquor $125.

Doubts Honesty

He explained that if the grocer was breaking this law, he might not be quite honest in other matters. "You might not give me 10 ounces for a pound," he said.

He talks in a kindly way to those whom he sentences. The Texas judge said he often visits the jails in the district and corresponds with many men whom he has sentenced. It was a lawyer for a long time and does not hesitate to criticize that profession.

"I really think the public disgust in the administration of law is traceable to the unethical conduct of lawyers," he said.

BOYS RAID MELON SHIP CLASH WITH SEAMEN

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 4.—Disorder ensued at the Carrollton crossing of the new basin canal here when a band of approximately a dozen school boys clashed with a crew of a watermelon laden schooner after they had been repelled in their efforts to raid the craft of its luscious cargo.

GIRLS' SCHOOLS NOT NUNNERIES, TEACHER SAYS

OAKLAND, Cal., Aug. 4.—Girls' colleges of today are no longer nunneries, sending out the sweet, unsophisticated graduates unprepared to battle the stern realities of a remorseless world.

"On the contrary," says Dr. Ethel Sabin-Smith, chairman of psychology department of Mills College, "problems of living are attacked with utmost freedom and frankness by the students themselves with the full cooperation of the faculty."

In Mills classes in social psychology, every problem of the relation of the sexes is frankly discussed and the students in symposiums bring up questions which would have amazed an earlier generation, she explains.

"The college today is not organized on the theory of celibacy for the women students, even if she intends to be a professional woman. Nor are they any longer without the necessary equipment to fight the stern realities of life."

Thus she takes issue with Dr. Annie Louise McLeod, director of eugenics at Vassar college, who stigmatizes colleges, particularly women's colleges as "failing to keep pace with the development of civilization."

"We are not putting young women into a four years chrysalis from which they emerge to find adjustment to routine living difficult," Dr. Sabin-Smith declared.

TRICK SHOT MAN IS WOUNDED, WIFE SLAIN

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Aug. 4.—A 15-year vaudeville partnership between husband and wife was broken here Friday in a tragedy. Nellie Wood, wife of Jack A. Wood, trick shot artist, was shot and killed with the rifle her husband had used so long on the stage. Woods also was wounded and physicians said he probably would not recover.

Henry Ford, who is getting together pharmacy antiques for his museum to show what the drug stores of other days were like, might include a couple of drugs in the list of exhibits.

KENNEDY TO BE PRINCIPAL AT CROSS PLAINS

CROSS PLAINS, Aug. 4.—At a meeting of the school board last week M. F. Kennedy was selected as principal of the Cross Plains school for the ensuing term. Kennedy has notified the board that he would accept the position. The principalship was made vacant the recent resignation of E. Priest, who is now with the T. Bryant insurance agency. Kennedy was with the school during the term, and has proven himself capable and well experienced in teaching. He will do a valuable work in the school.

CHIROPRACTIC IS RIGHT

Always keep in mind the HEALTHY person. The condition which keeps the HEALTHY person HEALTHY, is that condition which will make the sick person well.

All the HEALTHY person puts inside his body is food, water and air. That is all NATURE demands from the "outside world" to keep the person HEALTHY. And, upon proper examination of the HEALTHY person it will be learned that his or her spine is in such normal adjustment that there is no CAUSE for sickness; that there is only CAUSE for HEALTH. The HEALTHY person's spine is in normal adjustment and remains that way. The sick person's spine needs adjusting so that NATURE can produce HEALTH. Look you to your spine and be sure.

SECOND WELL IS BROUGHT IN BY HOLLIDAY

ALBANY, Aug. 4.—W. C. Holliday, drilling on the F. W. Alexander ranch, brought in the second producer this week which has been making 40 barrels per day since completion. This well is located in section 19, lunatic ashram survey, and flows the No. 1 Alexander 360 feet, which is also making 40 barrels per day. Both of these wells have been brought in from the 350 foot sand. Finding production in these two wells and in close proximity, goes far toward establishing a rich holding in this acreage. Holliday has moved over to start work on another offset and operators are watching this result with interest. The Crockett Oil corporation is drilling its No. 1 Brown on the Brown ranch, section 47, lunatic ashram survey. This drilling is in a comparatively new territory and is creating some bit of excitement. Jodie P. Harris is drilling on the northeast corner of the southwest quarter, ETRR survey, Joe B. Matthews ranch on an acreage recently held by the Sun Oil Co., of Dallas, for the past ten years. This well is located one-fourth mile south-west of his No. 1 A Matthews which is making ten barrels of pure pipe line oil per day with no water. This pay comes from the Upper Tannehill sand of 1021 to 1027 feet. This test is being watched with much interest for it presents reasonably good chances for production from the Cook sand, although the Upper Tannehill has not yet been penetrated.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Suit for an injunction against the Federal Reserve Bank of New York was begun Friday in the United States district court by Frank G. Raubie of Buffalo, N. Radio Audiences Are Putting Curb on Microphone; Dramatic Effect on Air Necessary Now

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Radio audiences today are more keenly critical and have better taste than a few years ago, according to owners of broadcasting stations who come here from all sections of the country to attend hearings before the federal radio commission.

Gone are those halcyon days when a broadcaster had only static to worry about, then he was safe as long as there was plenty of music on his program.

In the first place, they say, this is the dramatic age, and they don't mean the age of drama as interpreted on the stage. They mean that everything which goes through the microphone must be carefully planned with an eye to dramatic value.

Applied to Advertising

"This applies especially, but not exclusively, to radio advertising. One illustration was given of a company arranging a prize fight and having it broadcast, so that between rounds, listeners could be heard over the radio calling the trade name of the company's ice cream. Dramatized advertising, they call it.

Dramatics apply to all other forms of broadcasting, however. Even the educational lecture and sermon must be dramatized. That does not mean that academic subjects or treatment are unpopular; the operators declare. The radio public doesn't mind being informed, but it must be entertained instead of instructed.

In modern stations the announcements are written out before the program starts, and little extemporizing is allowed the announcer. The announcements must be interesting, and this point cannot be left to chance. The public likes humor, but not "wacwacks."

Some operators predict that the day will soon be past of the announcer using his name for the present tendency is to keep him in the background. He must announce his subject, not himself.

Many of the famous announcers are losing ground because of their habit of talking about themselves or each other, the operators say. They want announcers who have good radio voices and a sense of humor, but who are content to conduct a good program without meddling with it.

Public Taste Improves

The public taste for music has been greatly improved by radio programs, the station owners proudly claim. Radio audiences still like jazz but they like it subdued, the trumpets and saxophones muted.

Howard R. Miller, owner of Station WIAD at Philadelphia, claims to be the first man to broadcast an entertainment program in the United States, declares that the preference for kinds of music has not changed, though appreciation of good quality has increased enormously.

Jazz, he said, has not lost an inch of ground, though the radio audience no longer likes the "hot stuff," loud instrumental gymnastics. Classic music, on the other hand, has gained only a little, because the tired fan likes "light stuff" after a day's work.

"But jazz or classic, it must be good," Miller insisted. "The public critical sense for all kinds of music has become much sharper. Radio programs have made it better—and now it is turning out on us and making us hustle to produce programs which it approves."

"A poor radio program of any sort quickly discards the listener who are not slow in letting us know, and in particular terms—just how displeased they are."

The station owners all agree that not even fine quality will save a program if it's dull.

DEATH AVERAGE HIGH AMONG DIVORCED MEN. GERMAN FIGURES SHOW

BERLIN, Ger., August 4.—Divorce means flirting with death. This is proved by German statistics just published.

For each 100 married men that die between the ages of 30 and 35, death takes no less than 235 divorced men between the same ages. The corresponding mortality figure for bachelors is 197 and for widowers 226.

On the other hand, marriage is dangerous to women. For each 100 women that die between the ages of 30 and 35, the mortality rate for women is as follows: single, 72; widowed, 66; divorced, 79; married, 121.

GLORIOUS BETSY

NOVELIZED BY
ARLINE DE HAAS

Copyright 1922, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc. "GLORIOUS BETSY," starring Dolores Costello, is a Warner Bros. production of this novel. Based on the play by Rida Johnson Young.

SYNOPSIS
The morning sun is the scene of Betsy Patterson. Her husband, the French tutor, La Vert, with the aid of the miniature from President who boasted that Betsy had it to him. Struggling in the La Vert meets Betsy, who been reading in the stream on shore. He is silent while she looks for his unwillingness and ambition. Returning to the barefoot, Betsy is scolded by aunt and father for her unbecoming behavior. She replies only as her father tells her to her boxes.

"Did you hear that?" Massenbird turned in horror to the Major.
"There, now, we'll have no more such talk, Miss," Patterson said. "There is nothing more to be said. Back to Baltimore you go. We leave the Springs today."
"I know, but papa, haven't I told you that packing ruins my things?" Betsy coaxed. "And every time you vacillate like this, all my gowns have to be packed, and that's just money out of my pocket."
"Where, did you hear that, Ellen?" the Major questioned, sinking down into a high backed Windsor chair, his face scarlet, and

CHAPTER V
The living room of the Patterson suite was fast filling with morning callers. The beaus of Sweet Springs were attending to the far-famed beauty of "Glorious Betsy." Hearing bouquets edged round with paper lace, they presented themselves at the door. High crowned hats piled up on the hall table. Padded shoulders lent a contrasting slimness to many a tightly encircled waist with gaily colored vests and darker coats cut short in front and buttoned closely about. Slender coat-tails swung gracefully against tight knee breeches. Eager eyes turned always towards the French windows that led to the balcony. Anxious ears awaited the slightest sound.

Standing apart from the others as though he patiently bided his time, Monsieur La Vert, too, waited. His black-clothed arm rested upon the low mantel piece; his dark eyes moved lazily over the room and returned to the open windows; now and again his lips parted in a smile as some sally of wit was bandied about. But whether it was because of his position as tutor, or whether he were merely disinterested that he held himself so aloof, only he himself knew.
"In the midst of the general hubbub of talk there came a lull. All eyes turned expectantly towards the window.
"Ah, Mistress Betsy!" With one accord the greeting rose from all throats; figures bowed low; bouquets were extended.
"Good morning, gentlemen," Betsy Patterson lingered for a moment, lightly poised on the sill of the long, low window that framed an exquisite picture as Sally ever painted. Silhouetted against the bright sunlight, a golden glow that seemed to emanate from the rich red glory of the high piled hair softly outlined the symmetrical figure. It cast into eternal darkness all before her, as though the sun itself had suddenly alighted on the earth and made black by contrast everything about it. Even Mary, pretty in her soft pink and white fairness, seemed only a part of the background as she stood demurely behind her lovely cousin.
But even as she halted there, Betsy glanced quickly about the room. Then she saw La Vert. She colored faintly, nodded, and turned quickly away, stepping into the room with the grace of an Empress greeting her subjects. A short train of creamy white followed the young girl, who had paced the carpet so deftly. A knee length tunic of dull blue, edged with a finely pleated ruff at the bottom and the highest of high waists at the top, turned the large eyes to a melting blue. Long white sleeves, gathered into little puffs, fell into ruffles over the slender hands.
But Betsy's eyes were searching for the familiar figure in black, even as she talked, and when she glimpsed him, watching her she nodded slightly. "But I see my instructor is here," she smiled, and waved the men aside. "It is time for my French lesson. I must beg you all to excuse me, sirs."
"Oh, just a few more moments—"
"Monsieur will wait—"
"You have only just arrived—"
Everyone pleaded.

Good morning, gentlemen.
"Good morning, gentlemen," Betsy said as though his chubby cheeks were about to burst. "I vacillate. She says I vacillate!"
"Well, you know you do, papa," she moved cautiously towards her father until she stood beside his chair. "Now don't you? In my heart of hearts you know my well I'll coax you, and then you'll have little unspoken things. Won't he, Aunt Ellen?"
She patted her father's cheek and looked solicitously down upon him. "I'm quite certain that your dear knows his own mind, Miss," and Ellen nodded her head demurely.
"I do, indeed," the Major pounded his fist emphatically on the top of his chair. "I shall not change my mind. This time my dear is final. I'll have no more of those rascally French tutors and no more running about the countryside barefoot. Haven't had a moment's peace since we arrived here. And this morning—disturbed at my breakfast."
"Now, there, papa," Betsy smiled and smoothed the bristling hair of her irate parent. "I know that was the matter. You don't had your breakfast, and you're just as cross as a bear." Ellen, you should never disturb father before he's had his breakfast. It's very bad on his digestion—to say nothing of his temper."
"Don't disturb your father!" Miss Massenbird threw up her head as if of having been highly offended. "It was you, Miss—"
"Who disturbed him. If you don't go on traipsing about, I don't should have had to call him, indeed!"
"Now, Auntie, you know I didn't disturb him," Betsy turned with an assumption of innocence that would have completely disarmed any other person save Aunt Ellen. Always like father to have his breakfast before I talk to him," she bent over her father as though she had just won a battle for him. "You come downstairs and Eph will mix you a julep and you shall finish breakfast in peace, and then I'll talk about going back to town." She twined her arms about his neck.
"Child of mine shall accuse

MAN SIZE HANKIES NOW USED BY WOMEN
PARIS, Aug. 4.—Women's handkerchiefs which are men's size in pale shades of chiffon and georgette to match the evening gown, are one of the most popular fads of the moment. Some are quite plain with a tiny rolled edge, others with corners of deep ecru lace and some with a deep border of lace applied in fine button-hole stitches on the chiffon.
Black chiffon comes trimmed with the same ecru lace and are very smart with the black lace evening gown. Very attractive ones have a wide border of printed black dots.
Handkerchieves were probably never more to the front, back and in fact everywhere in women's fashions. They are draped about the neck and hips and fall down feminine backs with great persistence. At Deauville and Le Touquet, one sees them on every kind of frock and costume, including the popular pajamas. They carry spots and floral designs which often make the only bit of trimming.
Necklaces in round half-beads which lay flat around the neck are worn but only with evening frocks but light afternoon ones as well. There are some charming ones in turquoise matrix and pale pink which look like coral and earrings to match. An Egyptian necklace comes in triangular pieces of turquoise with a tiny crystal bead between.
Neckties in irregular heads of blue crystal with flat cylindrical beads in black and white are very original. They come in all the fashionable shades and are very smart for simple morning wear.
Emeralds which are very popular this year, are appearing in heavy slave bracelets. Pendants of jade, opal and onyx come in extremely large sizes, almost like plaques. A beautifully carved piece makes the central and most important piece which is encircled in onyx or enamel in different designs.

Highway 23 about 15 miles north of Cisco is reported to be impassable due to a washout on the dip at the Katy crossing, according to Secretary Peters, of the Cisco chamber of commerce. Peters stated that arrangements have already been made to repair this dump the first of the week, and the road would be open again for traffic in a few days. Commissary Britain has been doing some good work grading highway 23 north of Cisco the past week including the three mile strip of road that crosses the corner of Cellahan county, which is "no man's land" so far as maintenance is concerned. Mr. Britain has graded this stretch of roadway for which the Cisco chamber of commerce is paying the cost. The road from Cisco to Pueblo, and back to the Bookland highway, via the W. L. Farmer farm, has been entirely graded and is now in road passable condition. The rains during the past week had caused these roads to get in pretty bad shape, and... Just as well as the washout north of Williamson dam has been repaired the public will be advised, and traffic may again be diverted over the shortest route out of Cisco to the north.

RED CROSS LIFE SAVING AS BEING TAUGHT HERE

Swimming Course to Close Today Presentation of Awards and Tests; Many See Demonstrations

McCue, water safety expert, will officially close the life-saving course conducted under the auspices of the Eastland County Chapter this afternoon at the Lake... demonstration of life-saving methods will be given by... McCue will feature his own... how life should be...

demonstration by showing how important it is to know how to handle a patient correctly, particularly when lifting one from the ground and transporting him to the doctor. The feature of the lecture was a special demonstration of the prone pressure method of artificial respiration. "Save the seconds and save the life" said McCue as a plea for a more intelligent understanding of the principles of artificial respiration. "Resuscitation without a knowledge of how the respiratory system functions and responds to strangulation is almost useless. Every person should for his own safety learn how to use correctly the prone pressure method."

NUN TO GO ON TRIAL AS TORAL CONFEDERATE

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 4.—The trial of Jose De Leon Toral for the murder of President-elect Obregon will begin August 16. It was announced by the prosecuting attorney, Juan Correa Biezo, this afternoon. Concepcion De La Lanza, a Catholic nun, will be tried immediately afterward as an accomplice before the act.

The city's walls are decorated with posters openly accusing Luis Morones and the laborites with the intellectual authorship of the crime. They intend to name people because of their work—such as Farmer, Miller, Baker, Smith and Mason. It is a good thing they have changed that system. The workers would get clogged up with Chauffeurs, Chiropractors, Automobilemen, Aeronaunts and Trafficops, while the Manicurets would never get a foot-lick—women still changing their names at marriage. —Fort Worth Record-Telegram.

that the number of cases of cattle theft is increasing and urged cooperation on the part of the public, butchers and other persons who buy slaughtered animals in curbing the practice.

The grand jury report was as follows: "We, your grand jury, have been in session at three different intervals during your present term of court, and now desire to make our final report and beg to be discharged:

"We have examined 137 witnesses in 67 different cases, and have voted 43 true bills in felony and one misdemeanor case.

"We find that for the past several months quite a number of cattle have been stolen in this county, and we have spent considerable time investigating this character of crime, and we recommend that the succeeding grand jury continue diligently in an effort to rid the county of those who thus deprive upon the particular industry among our citizenship. We believe that the strict compliance with Article 1452 to 1455 inclusive, will greatly assist the officers in suppressing this particular crime, and we are urging that all butchers and market men cooperate with the officers in the matter, and that these requirements of the statutes, which have heretofore been treated as obsolete, be strictly enforced. We wish to remind our citizens that all the butchers are required to keep a record and all purchasers of slaughtered animals to an inspector or any magistrate, whose duty it is to inspect the hides and ears, and make a record of the description thereof and place the same on file with the county clerk.

"We have inspected the county jail, and find the same to be in good condition, and the report of the prisoners as to the management is most gratifying. "We wish to sincerely thank the court for your consideration and assistance during our deliberation, and we appreciate and commend the cooperation which we have received from the county attorney and the sheriff's department during our labor. We wish to say that we find the officials doing all in their power to enforce the law and suppress crime of every kind within the county, and we bespeak for them the cooperation of the citizenship in their efforts.

"Having completed our labor, we respectfully ask to be discharged until our further services will be required."

The grand jury was discharged. A new grand jury will be organized by Judge Elzo Ben of the 8th district court at the September term of his court. Until that time there will be no grand jury in Eastland county unless it should be necessary for Judge Ben to organize one for some special purpose.

GOOE LUCK OMEN BRINGS OWNER FINE FOR CRUELTY

POTTSTOWN, Pa., Aug. 4.—A "good luck" omen cost Joseph Guardiani $12.50. An agent of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals saw that the horse driven by Guardiani was limping and investigation revealed that the animal wore only three shoes.

The fourth shoe was found hanging in Guardiani's home. A hearing and fine followed.

TRAGIC FACE Two faces were close together, the hardware salesman's grim and tense; the other face was small and white, with two slender hands pressed tightly against it. It was those frail hands that riveted the man's horrified gaze. "Heavens!" he said, still staring, and his voice was tragic, for that other face was the face of his watch, and those little hands told him that he had missed the last train home.

FEMALE MATE OF BIG GRAY WOLF IS CAUGHT

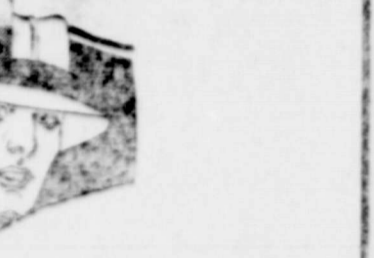

CROSS PLAINS, Aug. 4.—E. Bromlow, federal trapper, has succeeded in capturing the female mate of the big gray wolf, which he caught in a steel trap on the north side of the Harrell ranch a few nights before. The age of wolf or dog is usually judged by veterinarians and trappers by the worn condition of the animal's teeth, and the teeth of this last catch indicated that the wolf was about eleven or twelve years old.

Sanitation was the main feature sought in selecting these fixtures, though safety and convenience have not been lost sight of in the new equipment. The pure white marble topped nickled lunch counters, with porcelain base and seats, following out the general scheme of white and mahogany through- out the building. The walls are finished with mahogany wainscot- ing topped with mirrors, the full length of both sides of the room. The back counters and fixtures, pastry cabinets, etc., are also done in colors harmonizing with the general scheme. A feature of the new equipment in which the management takes special pride is the nickled refrigerator and cooling device, in the center of which is the water fountain. From it ice- less water is served at freezing temperature. This is cooled by the Frigidare process.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4—Stations to repair silk stockings "while you wait" are to be installed and operated over the country, a New York hosiery concern has announced.
