WILMINGTON, DEL. Aug. 17.—Lament Du Pont, president of the E. I. Du Pont de Nemours Company, Inc., in a formal statement addressed to employees, warned them that the chemical company is "not in politics," and that they are expected to vote as their judgment dictates.

WILMINGTON, DEL. Aug. 17.—The department of commerce has just completed its biennial census of manufacturers, and announces three figures for automobiles for 1927: 2,872,380 passenger vehicles included in the total production last year, and 35.5 per cent of these were closed cars. In 1921 only 21.6 per cent of all cars made were glass enclosed.

WILMINGTON, DEL. Aug. 17.—Last year nearly three and a half million motor vehicles were manufactured in this country and put on the market here and abroad.

Jogging Mr. Jiggs

George McManus, creator of "Bringing Up Father," arrives in New York City after Jiggs' Corned Beef and Cabbage Week journey from his home in Hollywood, Calif. The famous cartoonist's frequent trips across the United States have earned him the title of "The Transcontinental Commuter."

GRANDFATHER DIES TRYING TO SAVE BOY

AUSTIN, Aug. 17.—James Manners, 85, was fatally burned here this morning when he attempted to recover the charred body of his grandson, Forrest Edward Hooker, 3, when flames consumed his home. Mrs. Manners, John, 19, and Velma Hooker, infant sister of the dead boy, narrowly escaped death.

PLANS BEING WORKED OUT FOR SCHOOL

R. S. Glen, architect, who was employed by the Cisco school board as architect for the new West Ward school building, and J. E. Spencer, member of the school board, are now working out plans for the new building. As soon as their plans are complete members of the board will inspect them, and these or other plans will be adopted for the new building. These men are also working out the details of the improvements and repairs contemplated for the grammar school building. Work is expected to start on these repairs in a few days, as it is necessary to have the grammar school ready for occupancy in time for opening of the fall term of school.

CALLAWAY TO FOLLOW R. Q. LEE AT BALLINGER

BALLINGER, AUG. 17.—Oscar Callaway will speak in Ballinger Saturday night, immediately after his opponent, E. Q. Lee. A similar joint speaking in Abilene Monday night drew one of the largest crowds that ever heard a political discussion in that city.

Sen. Robinson to Open Campaign in Dallas Sept. 3, Coming Next Day to Cisco; Smith Unable to Visit South

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—Senator Joseph T. Robinson, Democratic nominee for vice president, will open the national campaign in Dallas at Fair Park auditorium Sept. 3, and the following day will speak in Cisco. From Texas the nominee will go to Tennessee, later swinging back to Oklahoma. He will make a complete tour of the South and West, extending probably as far as the Pacific coast.

National headquarters will make no extended announcement of the engagements of either of the nominees until after the notification of Governor Smith next week. Senator Robinson is coming for that event and will spend several days at headquarters.

Former Smith's engagement will not permit him to go into the South as indicated several days ago. Chairman Rankin, said Thursday that Texas wanted Governor Smith very badly but that time would not permit him to accept even a small portion of the requests. Then, too, it is understood the managers now mapping out the tour felt that if the presidential nominees went to our Southern state others would feel they had a right to have him also.

Both Smith and Robinson will go into Tennessee and Kentucky, which are border states each party hopes to carry. The Oklahoma situation was discussed with Chairman Rankin and the advisory committee by former Senator Thomas P. Gore of that state, who spent much of the day at headquarters. As viewed here the party will have to work to carry the state.

TENANT HELD IN KILLING OF FARM OWNER

WEATHERFORD, Aug. 17.—Murder charges have been filed against W. E. Rail, tenant farmer of near Aledo, in connection with the fatal shooting Thursday evening of Richard Tills, Fort Worth, at Rail's home. Rail, who is being held in the Parker county jail, claims self defense following an argument over the conduct of the farm which Tills owned.

MOTOR BOAT STARTS ON 3,200 MILE TRIP

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—The 32-foot motor boat Banfield, with three men aboard, chugged away from the Columbia Yacht Club pier, Hudson river, Thursday afternoon on an attempted trip to Spain, 3,200 miles away. Her crew comprised George V. Brothers, 25, owner; John A. Brothers, 21, and Charles A. Banfield, 28.

State Recovering after Loss of Six Lives and Immense Property Damage; Georgia County Isolated

RALEIGH, N. C., Aug. 17.—With the loss of six lives and property damage estimated at millions of dollars, North Carolina today was recovering from floods and storms which have swept the state during the past few days. Two persons were killed in a tornado which struck Ashley Heights near Southern Pines yesterday and four others were drowned in western North Carolina.

The most acute situation appeared last night near Lake Lure, N. C., where a dam across the lake of that name was reported to have broken through which virtually the entire county was threatened with a flood of water behind it. The dam is 100 feet high and backs up millions of gallons of water which would be loosed into the Broad river should the structure give way. A crew of men was laboring feverishly to save it.

Nearly half of the state of Georgia was affected, with one county, Wilkes, entirely isolated because of washed out highways and railroads. Asheville, N. C., had no service and only limited traffic was moving from Macon and Thomasville, Ga., where, with the floods rapidly receding, no further damage was expected if rains cease.

RETENTION OF PARK FAVORED BY ROTARIANS

Dr. E. L. Graham was program chairman at the Rotary luncheon Thursday, and arranged an interesting program, introducing two new youthful maintainers, Jack Strickman and Percy Taylor, employees of the Continental Oil Co., who favored the Rotarians with several instrumental selections.

Rotarian Raymond Tval, of Ranger, always a most welcome and popular visitor, was present and made an interesting talk. A motion by Philip Pettit, introduced by E. P. Crawford was introduced to the effect that the Cisco Rotary club endorse the movement to perpetuate the Katy park, but no final action was taken on the motion as Forrest Wright, who insisted that he was as strong for the preservation of the park as anyone, stated that the matter was not worked out by the city commission and called upon Mayor M. Williamson. The mayor stated that the matter was not settled by any means, but that the city commission had begun negotiations by which he believed an amicable adjustment could be reached. However, it was evident that the entire membership of the Rotary club wanted the park as a permanent playground and preferred that it be not commercialized.

SULPHUR COMPANY PAYS STATE TAX OF $86,924

AUSTIN, Aug. 17.—The Texas Gulf Sulphur Co. of Bay City today paid the state $86,924 representing gross receipts tax for the quarter ending June 30. This does not affect the suit pending in the courts wherein the state seeks to collect a tax of nearly $1,000,000 based on sulphur at $20 a ton. Today's payment is based on $10 a ton.

DRY LEADERS SMILE AFTER LEAVING ALBANY

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 17.—Governor Al Smith today was winding up a week of conference with Democratic dry leaders by having a heart-to-heart talk with Senator Walsh of Montana at the executive mansion. The governor is understood to have talked from the shoulder to Southern dry leaders regarding prohibition but all left the conference smiling. Indications are now that Smith will conduct one of the most picturesque campaigns the country has ever witnessed, carrying the battle to his opponent's doorsteps.

PLOT TO BOMB OUTER PRISON WALL FOILED

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—A desperate plot to bomb the great outer wall of Sing Sing prison and create a break through which virtually the entire prison population could dash to liberty was revealed for the first time today. It caused Warren Lewis E. Lewis to throw extra guards into the enclosure and to double the watch tower vigilance.

BOAT HOUSE IS BEING BUILT AT COUNTRY CLUB

Members of the Cisco Country club are building a boat house on Lake Cisco, which will be most additions to the accommodations at the lake. Work on this building commenced this morning, and it is expected to be completed by the last of next week.

The boat house will be located in the canyon back of the club house, and will be 25 by 100 feet in dimensions, containing 12 compartments for boats, and will be owned by the Country club members participating in its construction. The building will be constructed of iron, supported by steel buoys, and thereby will be adjustable to the rise and fall of the waters in Lake Cisco.

Each of the compartments will be sufficiently large to accommodate the average motor boat, and will be supplied with lock and key. A walk will extend along one side of the building, with an opening into each compartment, and there will be a walk around each boat space with sufficient space left to take care of fishing tackle and other paraphernalia. On the opposite side the building will have doors for entrance and exit of boats onto and from the open waters of the lake.

A landing pier will be arranged at the water's edge, which will be reached by a walk and steps from the club house. This pier and walk will be beautified and made attractive. This new boat landing and boat house will relieve the congestion at the present boat landing of the amusement company, and is certain to make the lake more attractive for boating and picnic parties.

Boating is becoming more popular at Lake Cisco all the while. If those living in Cisco who have not been out on the lake since the late rise should do so—it will prove interesting. Those who have explored the waters up near the western limits of the lake say there is nothing like it in Texas.

CONDEMNED SLAYER IS GIVEN REPRIEVE OF MONTH

AUSTIN, Aug. 17.—Tom Ross, scheduled to die in the electric chair August 27 for the murder of Dave Patterson, today was given a stay of execution until September 21 by Governor Moody following recommendation by the board of pardons.

COULDN'T BUY HIM.

What would you do if you were an under-college professor with a large family and a certain social position to maintain, and somebody should offer you $1,500 to write 1,500 words on a subject with which you were thoroughly familiar? It would be a hard proposition to turn down, wouldn't it? Yet one such professor did flatly turn down one such offer.

Some years ago a prominent publisher sent a representative to New England to see a certain college professor who was on his vacation there.

"Get a signed article of 1,500 words from him," said the publisher to his representative, "and pay him whatever you have to. Give him a dollar a word if necessary."

So the publisher's representative hopped a train and in course of time reached the little New England town and laid his proposal before the professor. Of course he didn't offer a dollar a word at the outset; he kept something to fall back on.

The professor refused to write the article. "I cannot contribute to your periodical," he said. "Your employer is a character assassin. I do not consider his principles wholesome. I do not wish to be identified with his enterprises or to lend him any small influence I may possess."

Then the publisher's representative sprung the dollar a word proposal.

"That's a lot of money," said the professor with a sigh.

"It is fourteen hundred and seventy-five dollars more than I shall get for the same article elsewhere. However, I cannot accept your proposal."

The publisher's representative then laid his proposition before the professor's wife.

"We need the money," she said regretfully, "but it is useless for you to press the question; my husband will never write the article for you."

So the representative returned to his publisher, who fluently cursed persons who could not be bought.

So many persons are open to financial persuasion that commonly it is said that every man has his price, which may explain some strange jury verdicts and court decisions. It is wonderful to find a man who will stand by his convictions even though it costs him money or prevents his getting money.

Oh, yes, we almost didn't tell you the name of the poor college professor who refused to write the 1,500 words at a dollar a word. He was Woodrow Wilson.

WEALTH IN FARM WASTE

A remarkable opportunity for agriculture, involving a revolution in American industry, was opened up in a recent address by Prof. O. R. Sweeney of Iowa State College. He points to farm waste as the greatest unused resource of this continent, and urges new, rational ways of using it. Energy comes from the sun. The Corn Belt, he says, is a great sponge for absorbing solar heat and storing it in a form suitable for human use. There is no such "energy trap" anywhere on earth, he declares, where white men can live and thrive. In this he repeats the doctrine long taught by Columbus Austin Bowsler of Philadelphia, the "Philosopher of Americanism." But he goes further, pointing out a practical application. It is in the mid-west, with its prolific production of farm crops and immense present waste of useful products, he says, that American industrialism should be located. Factories today are in cities because the men building them live there. The eastern seaboard is over-populated, far from the source of raw materials, and subject to unnecessarily expensive living conditions. Industry is overcentralized and geographically lopsided. He would spread industry around the country, especially through the great farming sections. Hundreds of millions of tons of industrial raw materials go to waste every year in the Corn Belt. Altogether, in corn stocks, corn cobs, oat chaff, straw, cottonseed hulls, peanut hulls and other farm waste full of precious cellulose, from which chemistry already can make 30,000 known industrial products, there is a yearly output of 1,000,000,000 tons of unused raw stuffs, equal to twice our total tonnage of soft coal. From it can be made whatever can be made from coal, and many thousands of products besides. If all this is true—and evidently it is—American industrialists have something to think about, and a future awaits American agriculture which will bring it the riches now poured into the cities. Farming will come into its own, as the great feeder of industry—feeding alike factory workers and factories. And if this is true, farm values are going only in one direction, which is up.

TREATY RESULTS.

If the American treaty "for the renunciation of war as an instrument of national policy" is signed by all the important nations, as is expected, and is ratified by the United States senate, as also expected, what then? Will it make any difference? Whether anything will really prevent war is something no man can say. But it may be guessed with considerable sureness whether any move helps in that direction. Two results are expected to follow soon from this treaty. One is a naval reduction, which all the major powers, including the United States, could stand. That would save money and, if equitably worked out, so as not to put any nation at an unfair advantage should lessen the chance of war. The other is "a change in methods of world diplomacy." Diplomacy could stand quite a little changing in the direction of friendliness and frankness, which work for peace.

DISMAY IN LONDON.

It has happened again. Every once in a while even the best of royalty will go and do some dreadful thing. This time it is the Prince of Wales—God save 'im, an' hall the ryal family!—who has taken the unprecedented liberty of wearing a suit without a vest. It would be almost as bad if His Royal Highness wore no suit at all. The British nation is overwhelmed by the news. It appears to be the first instance in history of British royalty going without a vest. Monarchs and princes may have done unconventional and reprehensible things, but not that. Charitable subjects shamefacedly try to mitigate the prince's offense by recognizing that it was a very warm day, and besides H. R. H. was not in formal costume. One authority goes so far as to concede that "under certain conditions," the same being unspecified, it may be permissible to follow the crude American custom in this regard. The tailors are placed in an especially embarrassing position, for how can they accuse the Prince of Wales of a breach of sartorial fashion and taste, when they have always followed the established principle that he is the authority who makes fashion and taste? But they cannot follow in this. "General neglect of weskits is hardly likely to follow the Prince's lead," they say. So all the tailors of Tooley street rebel. British precedent must stand. Even royalty can go just so far, and no farther.

MORE BUSCOMBE.

(Star-Telegram.) Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, the assistant United States attorney general who is in charge of prohibition enforcement, delivered a radio broadcast address for the League of Women Voters. Her subject, strangely enough, was prohibition, and among other things she had this to say: "Theodore Roosevelt once stated that a party plank must be regarded as a contract with the American people by the party which adopts it. The Republican party has always so regarded it. We do so again this year on the subject of prohibition. The Republican party pledges itself and its nominees to the vigorous enforcement of the provisions of the platform. It pledges its nominees to the observance of the law. That is a new contract. It is a pledge against hypocrisy."

General politics at this moment than the attitude and record of the Republican party in the matter of prohibition we should like to know where to find it. Here is a Republican administration which has been in power for eight years to spend the admittedly inadequate sum of $30,000,000 a year on enforcement, a Republican administration which has not dared to risk the cost of a real effort at enforcement, and a Republican administration whose present chief enforcement officer testified when he took the office one year ago, "There are many incompetent and crooked men in the service. Bribery is rampant."

"This is the 'vicious' enforcement," Mrs. Willebrandt is talking about, and both wets and dries know that it is humbug. Queen Tobacco is certainly the reigning belle in Southeast Georgia right now. And she pays her own way.—Savannah Press.

GLORIOUS BETSY

NOVELIZED BY ARLINE DE HAAS

Copyright 1928, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
"GLORIOUS BETSY," starring Dolores Costello, is a Warner Bros. production of this novel. Based on the play by Rida Johnson Young.

SYNOPSIS
Betsy Patterson is staying with her father at "Spring Inn" when they are called to Baltimore to enter the Bonaparte, brother of the man who is to marry her. While at the Inn she is attracted to her French friend, Georges, who is a French officer, however, she is to marry the man who is to marry her. When La Bonaparte, who is to marry her, she is picked and in-duced to accompany Betsy to Baltimore. Elaborate preparations are made for the wedding. But Betsy is thinking of La Bonaparte's friend, Georges, and she tries to tell her mother of her love for him.

CHAPTER IX—Continued
"And then it would depend—how would you like to live in France?" Preston asked.
"Oh, George!" Mary breathed.
"But her words were lost in a quick embrace that caused her at its conclusion to smooth her hair and try to refrain from blushing.
"Oh, George, now listen, do," she pleaded, stepping back out of arm's reach. "You know M. La Vert? Well, Betsy was so angry—so chagrined by his having refused to accompany her to Baltimore that she thought of little else since. She talks half the night about him and of how she will have her revenge upon him, and, oh, dear—fear she is in love with him."
"What?" Preston exclaimed. Then he paused. "Can you keep a secret?" he asked finally.
"Oh, yes, I love them too well to give them away," Mary breathed, her eyes round and bright.
"I told you La Vert was on Bonaparte's staff," Preston reminded her. "And he is coming here tonight."
"Oh, dear, I must run right up stairs and tell her," Mary started for the window. But Preston caught her arm.
"Is that the way you keep a secret?"
"Oh, but you'll let me tell her," Mary begged. "Won't you, George? She must be prepared."
"Listen, Mary," Preston drew the girl with him to the garden gate, his arm about her slender waist. "He'll be waiting outside the garden in a few minutes, and Mary, dear Mary, do contrive some way that he may see her alone. Leave the garden gate unbarred—like this," he lifted the latch. "Get Betty through on some pretense, in to the garden—and—leave the rest to fate."
"Oh, I dare not," Mary gasped, frightened. "Why does he wish to see her alone?"
"There is something he wants to tell her, Mary," Preston patted the girl's hand. "Something she must know before she meets Captain Bonaparte—something I wish her to know. Believe me, dear, it is urgent."
"Oh, well, if you really want," Mary hesitated. "If you really want Betty—Tch! She's coming," she pointed to the verandah. "Let's go this way—if she sees us together, you know, George—she's such a tease—oh, George—come—"
The two disappeared into the garden as Betty stepped out onto the verandah, followed by a bevy of admirers.
"Who called?" Betty looked about questioning. "Didn't you hear my name?" she turned to the men.
"Glory be to God," exclaimed Sir Henry. "Of course we did. We hear nothing else—waking—in our dreams—but Betty—Betty Patterson."
"Oh, law, Sir Harry," Betty turned towards the garden gate as though in search of something. But the dark shadows offered no revelation of hidden secrets. "You're foolish tonight. But you must come and admire the garden."
"Mary and I designed the decorations ourselves, you know. Well, to be perfectly honest Mary did all the work while I sat about and—"
"Inspired her, as you do every one," Calhoun finished the sentence for her.
"Oh, do I?" Betty replied vaguely, still looking towards the garden, and edging nearer the gate each moment. "Well, now, I'm going to sit right here, she chose a seat alongside the open entrance, and inspire you all—to go back and bring out some girls. Law! You're all too good." She waved the men away. "You spoil me, and there are hosts of ladies in there who would like to see the garden. Now, go, all of you. I mean it," she commanded.
"God help us all," Sir Harry sighed. But he turned, with the others, to obey the wishes of their Queen.
Betty watched them disappear, and then sighed with relief. She looked around, still searching. Then from her reticule she drew forth the scraps of paper, laid them on her lap, and tried to piece them together. She sighed again. She could make out the words: "The rose garden at eight" and "One last lesson." Why, oh, why, had she allowed herself to get into such a foolish temper, she argued. She must see La Vert—la! to him once more—she must meet him. So she drew further back into the shadows and out of sight.
Now there came a sound of the rumbling of wheels and the clatter of horses' hoofs. The negro servants ran frantically to their posts, as one of their group came tumbling into the room, breathless, and announcing: "Dar's a carriage comin' wiv some go'mmem ridin' in front!" Immediately all heads turned toward the doorway, and the ladies put on their best and most simpering smiles. It looked like a Rogers group caught in a moment of intense expectancy. Major Patterson craned his neck.

George! Mary breathed.
Watch her ink lines 'round her eyes and her hand take a firm grip. "Mystery Betty takes off'n dem all!"
"I had reached the bottom and now she curtained and held white gloved hand to her face, smiling her fingers lightly on her cheek. With dignity and pride she escorted his daughter to the main salon, and like a ship she was swallowed up in a masculine form.
"Laid a mazy!" Little sigh-ingly. "Hist! Some-thing," she warned as a voice rose clearly.
"Dear Mary," Preston at-tempted to embrace the girl, but she eluded his arms, laugh-ingly. "I brought you Betty's dress. He reached in his hand and brought out the exact one which had caused the trouble. "Sweet Springs. I had in-terfered it to you at the time, but unfortunately when I did it closely I found that one setting was loose and I re-ally had to have it attended to." "Thank you," Mary took the dress and put it in her reticule. "It is Betty for her birthday. I know, you know, and the dress always seemed loose."
"I breathed a sigh of relief at her lack of questioning. He particularly care to expose the incident of the Springs and was thoroughly ashamed of it. The girls had followed the at-tempt to return the dress to the "nurse," which he had had to have repaired for and now it was over.
"I'm sure that you've been taken all your Jerome Bonaparte," she was saying. "So much so that you had time to think of this one."
"Betsy!" Preston laughed. "I know I think of none else. It's true—I have been busy with Bonaparte and his affairs. I really impossible to get to any he's taken a great hand-ful." Mary avoided the hand-ful, and she smiled. "I'll say he wants you to go back with him. Will you go?" "I'll go on Wednesday next," she leaned closer to the soft figure. "We shouldn't have surprised you."
"Mary questioned with surprise.

ZEBRA STRIPES ON SUMMER STOCKINGS

PARIS, Aug. 17.—Zebra stockings or none at all are the latest cry in leg covering in Paris and at the smart French summer resorts this season.

Bare legs are treated with skin cream and powder so delicately that they appear to be encased within the finest silk that shows no pleat or crease. They are dividing honors with the zebra variety which is of course much more original, but more costly as well. The silk is striped exactly like the gentle animal itself, and although it causes a big sensation wherever it is seen, one can only admit that it makes a shapely leg look much more so.

For those who do not go to one or the other of these extremes, the thinnest chiffon stockings possible sunburn show through. To have the best effect in this line, reddish tones should be avoided. Pale tones and yellow beiges are the very best.

Chiffon weight hose stockings are being shown for wear with wool or chiffon silk stockings as worn dull texture silk sports dresses, with chiffon afternoon gowns and this means chiffon all the way up and no lisle stops to show through a thin gown.

Extra sheer hosiery have lace clocks that are very wide at the base and tapering into a very elongated arrow-shaped motif at the top. Small lozenges placed in a row or else in small circles are also smart.

PIANO-ORGAN DUO, VIOLIN SOLO AT CHURCH SERVICE

The musical offerings at the First Presbyterian church Sunday include Dr. G. C. Morris and Miss Ora Howell in a piano-organ duo, "Yesterday" by Shur, Miss Josephine Robinson in violin solo, and organ selections by Dr. Morris at the 11 o'clock period, and Mrs. Ben McClinton and Rev. B. C. Boney in vocal solo, the choir in special music, and Dr. Morris in "Melody in F" Rubenstein, and "Melody" Schubert at the evening service which will be inside. Two messages will be brought by the minister.

PRESIDENTIAL GUNS WILL BOOM IN EARNEST NIGHT OF AUG. 22

While Smith Is Accepting Party's Nomination, Senator Moses Will Be Attacking Tammany Hall at Buffalo

PALO ALTO, Cal., August 17. — Opening guns of the presidential war will ring on the night of Aug. 22 and both Republicans and Democrats believe will thunder their message to the voters in a Smith's political back yard.

While Smith is delivering his acceptance address on that night in Albany, Senator Moses of New Hampshire, U. S. P. nomination chairman and assistant campaign manager in charge of the East, will touch off Republican artillery from Tammany Hall at Buffalo.

Insurgents of the Hoover battle in the East is in line with reports and demands made at the conference of Republican national committee with Hoover Work national chairman, in San Francisco after the convention convenes. It was generally agreed that Republican strategy should aim at holding northeastern states where Smith is supposed to be strongest.

Moses After Smith

Moses is expected to avoid Smith's well worn and his fourth of July defense of Tammany Hall's record. Judging by his comments here, the New Hampshire senator will give the nation a sample of the party which has made him one of the senate's most feared rough-and-tumble debaters.

"Smith," said Moses, "declared that Tammany Hall has existed for 145 years and therefore must be all right. Will ever in Smith's Hall have existed for 400 years, and by the same methods."

Moses, incidentally, returned completely pleased by Hoover. On his arrival here, received by several confidants on cordially with Work, Moses had friends he planned to withdraw from the campaign and go to Europe. But after talking with Hoover, who made clear to Moses that the party must and that titles would not mean much, Moses was mollified. He was told that the party looked to him to hold the East.

Northeast for A

From Hoover down, Republican leaders feel Smith's only chance of victory is to sweep the northeastern territory, including Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New York and New Jersey.

Other states they believe he must get to make a real fight are Missouri, Kentucky and Tennessee. But the general fears are for the northeastern states, from which have come some disquieting reports.

With the northeastern territory and the solid South Smith would have about 300 electoral votes. The election would then depend on the outcome in doubtful sections like the border states, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Arizona, Maryland, Delaware, Nevada, Montana, Wisconsin and the Dakotas. These states have more than 80 electoral votes.

The Republican say they are not being deep over the possible loss of border territory, Wisconsin or the Dakotas, but there are so many uncertain elements in the campaign that Hoover's chief to his departing headquarters was: "Take nothing for granted."

Strategy Planned

So the plan is to make the heaviest work in the northeast fairly early in the fight, and cut Smith down from the rear.

If present hopes are realized, New Jersey, New York and New England will see and hear the most illustrious army of G. O. P. leaders and orators that has ever appeared in this normally Republican territory. It is hoped to have Coolidge deliver one speech, and that Hoover will make two, one in New York and one in Maine or in Boston.

Secretary Mellon and other cabinet members, including Attorney General Sargent and Secretary of Labor Davis, will also be called on. Then it is hoped to use Vice President Dawes, Charles Evans Hughes, Senator Johnson of California, Senator Bacon of Idaho, Col. William J. Donovan of Buffalo, assistant attorney general, and O'Brien L. Mills of New York, candidate for governor against Smith in 1906 and now under secretary of the treasury.

HAROLD LLOYD PUTS COMEDY ON HIGH PLANE

Harold Lloyd is one comedian who has elevated slapstick to such a high plane that even the most hardened critic can find no objection to it. And he has done it by giving his action a sincere twist that takes away from it any flavor of "hokum." Take a look at "Speedy" for example, now showing at the Palace Theater. This is his latest picture and one of the fastest moving in his lexicon of great comedies.

Lloyd has broader action in this picture than in any he has attempted for some years, but he lifts it to an elevation of the highest merit because he has motivated every single piece of business with plausibility and sincerity.

The bespectacled comedian has gone more for the comedy art than any other performer before the camera. He does not throw a bit of business into a picture just for a laugh. Unless it is part and parcel of his story, it does not break into the picture. Lloyd discards more gas than most comics use, because they are illogical, and as he says, "dragged in without rhyme or reason, and intended to get a laugh, regardless of their bearing on the further development of the plot."

"Speedy" is full of these laugh situations. Restricted to this one, for every one else's audience will be lacking in the list of "best sellers" Lloyd has been producing through these

HIS CAUSE FOR GRIP

BRIDGING THE GAP
Between the Gas Fields and Your City--To Serve You!

Lone Star Gas Company

Men Understood that Advertisement

And women will understand this one

"Bridge-ing" the Gap

What an age we live in! So many things to do--so many places to go. Sometimes you wonder how some women do it. But with natural gas delivered right into the kitchen you can safely sit at the bridge table until a bare half hour before dinner time.

YOU women nowadays enjoy yourselves far more than your mothers did. Pleasant afternoon bridges, matinees, or shopping tours are easily accomplished with all the modern conveniences that you have to help you.

Consider natural gas, for instance. It's always ready for you to use. To fully appreciate natural gas, just imagine your consternation if you were to walk into your kitchen, turn the handle, and find no gas there! It just simply doesn't happen, does it?

But if it were not for the Lone Star Gas Company, you would not know the marvelous, taken-for-granted service that your local gas company renders. You would have the hardship of handling a more cumbersome and dirty fuel. And much time would be spent in waiting to heat the stove (and incidentally, the whole kitchen), before you could cook.

We've built huge pipe lines that bring clean and economical natural gas to your community. We maintain costly pumping stations so the pressure will never lag. And part of our army of employees is always on the job so that the service shall not fail.

Bridging the gap, as we said it to the men--or "Bridge-ing the Gap," as we have just told you--when we say our service means less work and more leisure for women, you'll know what we mean.
