LOBO HEROES OF YESTERYEAR ARE STILL STARRING

Athletes Who Brought Glory to Cisco in Past Add to Laurels at State, A.-M., T. C. U. and Tech

A review of the Lobo football teams of the past few seasons shows that a large percentage of the athletes after leaving Cisco high school have made good on college and university teams. At Texas university an ex-Lobo star, Garland Sheppard, has the distinction of being the high jump champion of the Southwestern Conference for the past season, and in 1927 tied for the national inter-collegiate high jump championship with a jump of six feet, five and one-half inches. In the recent Olympic trials Sheppard narrowly missed placing on the team and but for a back injury sustained while pole vaulting in the early spring, would probably have been on the Olympic team.

The outstanding star of the freshman track team at the university during the past season was Wilbur Westerfeldt, former track and football star with the Lobos.

At Texas A. & M. "Pinkie" Alabrook, all-state fullback with the Lobos in 1923 and all-state end on the 1924 team, made a star fullback in '27 and was only a sophomore the past season and will probably make the all-Southwestern conference team before he finishes school.

At T. C. U. big Felix Reynolds, end on the Lobo team of 1925, made a regular track. Felix starred in several big games and was a tower of strength in the Horned Frog line.

Texas Tech has had several of the Lobo stars in its ranks. Ernie Wilson, who played five seasons with the Lobos and was given all-state positions his last two seasons with the Lobos, made a star halfback for Tech in 1925 and the following season was half for Randolph college. Raymond Westerfeldt, one of the Lobos' greatest stars and a star in Tech, has lettered Tech for the past three seasons.

Red Smith, another great tackler with the Lobos, made Tech regular linebacker. Gilbert White, Cisco boy, was one of the outstanding college ends of the state with Tech and a great basketball player. Gilbert is captain-elect of the Matador basketball team. "Red" Moore, former Lobo quarterback and star pitcher in baseball, lettered this past season with the Matadors in baseball.

Lincoln Memorial university in Tennessee drew three former Lobos. "Chick" Browne, that famous halfback who made the touchdown that defeated the Abilene Eagles in 1924 and gave the Lobos their first victory over these great rivals of the Lobos, a star guard in basketball and a great outfielder in baseball, who was mourned for by all Cisco and the Oil Belt when he met death when a truck load of nitrolycerin, which he was driving, exploded, made a star for this school in Tennessee. Frank Turner, one of the greatest forward passers ever seen in the Oil Belt and a Lobo star for years, was captain and quarterback at Lincoln Memorial. Charles Hale, husky lineman, made the Tennesseans a good man until forced out of the game by an injured knee.

"Honk" Irvin, one of the greatest high school football men that ever played in Texas, a marvelous punter and the outstanding tackle of the high school teams of the state in 1925, played at Schreiner Institute in 1926 and in 1927 made a regular on the Davis-Elkins university team in West Virginia. Davis-Elkins had on their schedule such teams as West Point, Annapolis and Georgetown.

Many of the former Lobos have made stars on the Randolph college eleven. Among these are Coach Carothers, Blanton, Wilson, Coats, Perdue, C. McCord, Yeager and Stubblefield.

Several Lobos of the past year are planning to enter college and universities this fall and no doubt several of them will letter and make stars in this higher class competition.

COLLUM REHEARSES MORAN BAND BOYS ON TUESDAY

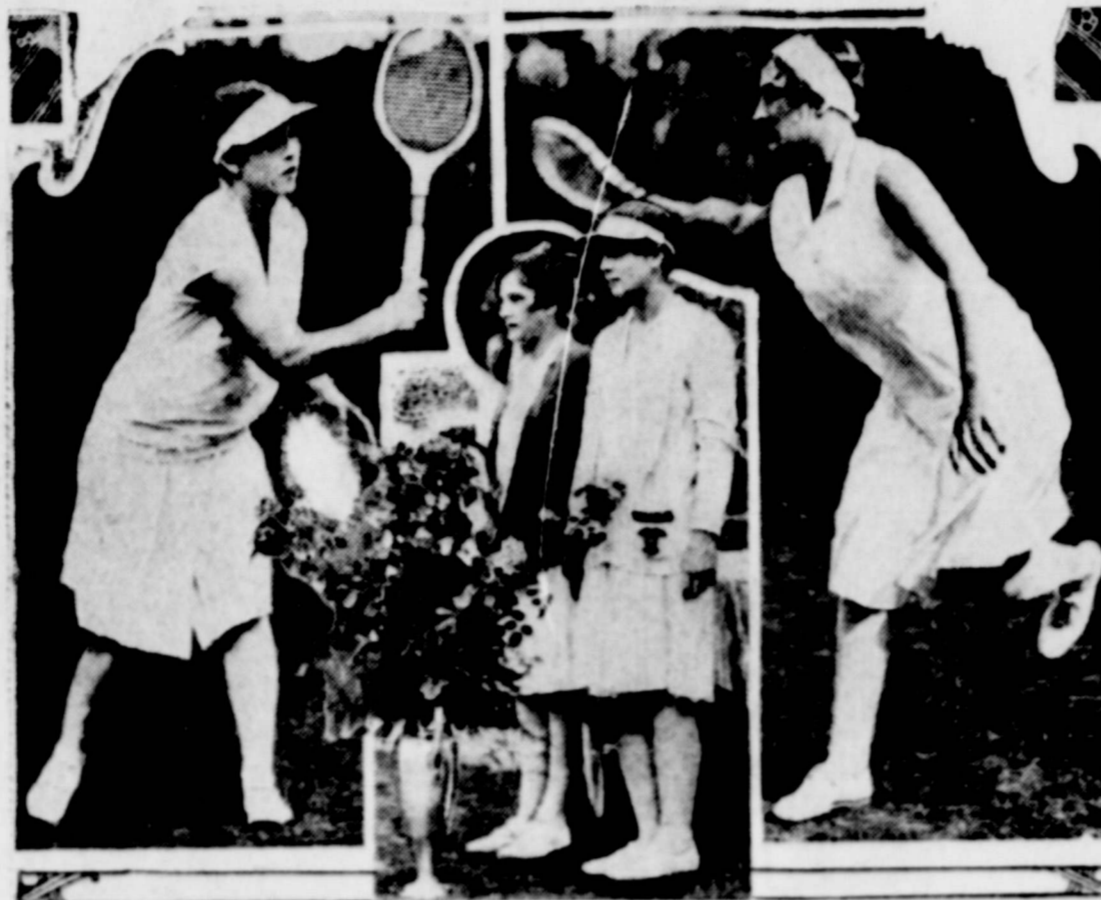

MORAN, Sept. 1.—G. W. Collum, of Cisco, has reorganized the Moran band, and met for the first time Tuesday evening. Collum will come to Moran each Tuesday and spend the day rehearsing the band members and will rehearse the band at night. Officers elected are as follows: President, M. R. Kendrick; secretary, Isaac Chism; assistant director, J. H. McGaughey.

The members of the band are: Isaac Chism, C. C. Scott, Judson Wise, Frank Raymond, J. H. McGaughey, J. V. Randolph, Charles Sullins, Oscar Smith, Bob Taylor, T. F. Pettus, Jim Parrish, Ocie Chism, Leslie Royal, Shelton Royal, Bob Feamster, H. V. Kirby, James Terry, Willie Williams, Hal Price, Lucien Brooks, J. C. Dyer and M. R. Kendrick.

The Moran band has been organized for three years, but during the past few months has not played. The band will be whined into shape for concerts this fall, and will play for various attractions. They expect to have a good program ready for the Moran poultry show in November.

PRES. WILSON WET AS SMITH, SENATOR SAYS

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 1.—Declaring the wet and dry issue is not a test of true Democracy, Thomas P. Gore, former United States Senator from Oklahoma, told a gathering of farmers at Williams Grove, near here, that "Woodrow Wilson was as wet as Al Smith."

"Wilson," he said, "not only vetoed the Volstead act, but sent a wet plank to the San Francisco convention with the hope that it would be incorporated in the party's platform. While Governor of New Jersey he also sent a letter to the head of the Anti-Saloon League of the state refusing to be a party to the league's activities."

Gore launched an attack against Herbert Hoover and blamed him for the present farm depression in the country as well as charging the Harding and Coolidge administration with parading a pro-temperance "myth" before the voters. He described President Coolidge as "the greatest scoundrel" we have ever had in the White House.

FISH, CHICKEN VIE FOR HONOR ROLE TUESDAY

A fight between a fish and a chicken is deemed well nigh impossible in many circles. However in Cisco this fight has been staged but in an unusual manner. The committee on arrangements for the speaking of Senator Joe Robinson, candidate for the vice presidency of the United States, has been unable to decide whether to serve chicken or freshly cooked fish from the waters of Lake Cisco. Numerous dealers of fish and chicken have presented their claims for relative merit of these two delicacies to members of the committee. The chicken ranchers of whom there are a number in the Cisco territory, are convinced that fresh chicken should be served to the senator and the dinner party.

However, there are others who object to chicken and declare that fresh fish caught at Lake Cisco should be the fare for the dinner here. The chicken fanciers seem to have the advantage as friends of Robinson declare that fish would be no rarity to a man from Arkansas. This is due to the fact that Arkansas is numbered among the greatest fishing states in the country. Therefore it is thought that the senator might prefer other fare at the banquet.

DEGREES ARE CONFERRED AT McMURRY COLLEGE

ABILENE, Sept. 1.—Fifteen bachelor of arts degrees were awarded Thursday morning at the closing exercises of the summer session of McMurry college. Twenty diplomas from the academy department also were given. Rev. Frank Barrett, for four years presiding elder of the Chickasha, Okla., district, delivered the baccalaureate address and a degree of doctor of divinity was conferred upon him by the college.

CROSS PLAINS SQUAD BEGINS WORK MONDAY

CROSS PLAINS, Sept. 1.—Nat Huggins, new coach from Daniel Baker college of Brownwood, will be here Monday to start the gridiron of the Cross Plains Buffaloes. He succeeds Pat Murphy. The Buffaloes are eager for practice and anxiously awaiting the coming of the new leader. The local squad will be managed by Capt. Earl (Switzer) Webb and Art (Black) Carmichael. Webb star halfback, who sustained a broken arm in a car wreck last week, will be out of the lineup for some time.

17TH WOLF CAPTURED NEAR CROSS PLAINS

CROSS PLAINS, Sept. 1.—E. Brumblow, government trapper, captured another grown wolf last Saturday night bringing the total number he has caught in this locality within the past few months to seventeen. The catch was made in Jim Pinkston's peanut patch, on the A. A. Jones farm, about three miles southeast of Cross Plains.

What the candidates would like to know is whether they will lose them in November as they did in June.—San Bernardino Sun.

Is an Asset

It spurs one on to bigger things and helps one to do the smaller things better. The biggest thing about responsibility is to know where to place it. Andrew Carnegie once said: "The ability to place responsibility makes the difference between success and mediocrity."

This store feels keenly the responsibility placed upon it as a sort of a guide post in fashion, with which automatically goes the responsibility of quality rightness and price rightness.

We accept willingly this responsibility, knowing that our success as a representative merchant and public servant depends entirely upon faithful service, individually and collectively. Responsibility is, therefore, an asset and not a liability as many seem to think.

LABOR LEADERS WIDELY DIVIDED OVER PRESIDENTIAL RACE

Outwardly Neutral, Dissension Is Smouldering; Indorsement of Either Candidate Would Split Organization

Air Egyptian Envoy

Mrs. Mahmood Samy Pasha, wife of the envoy extraordinary to the United States who herself is an ambassador of sorts. She represents her newly-franchised countrywomen before the bar of American womanhood.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—Picture two strings and normally pacific huddles circling around each other and maintaining strict neutrality because they are uncertain where a fight once started would end, and you will have an idea of the brand of neutrality which dominates the leading United States labor organizations in the present campaign, according to labor leaders here.

While the leaders of both the American Federation of Labor and the railway brotherhoods have placed their organizations in the neutral column during the present campaign, it is asserted that it is the very absence of neutrality in their ranks that makes this necessary.

They are split into Smith and Hooper camps from top to bottom and leaders here assert that an organizational endorsement of either candidate by these organizations would precipitate serious internal rows.

"It is not lack of interest that is keeping so many labor organizations out of the fence in this campaign," he said. "It's rather too much interest."

Some leaders of the "neutral" labor organizations already have expressed their personal preferences in the presidential campaign, and more are expected to do so as the campaign advances. David Robertson, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, has announced that he personally favors Hoover, as has William N. Doak, vice president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen.

President William Green of the equally "neutral" American Federation of Labor has indicated marked personal sympathy with those who intend to vote for Al Smith.

COTTON PEST IS FEARED IN FLOYD COUNTY

LOCKNEY, Sept. 1.—The fear of insect infection holds the attention of the Floyd county farmers, unless hot weather prevails, cotton pests may be reduced considerably. After receiving rainfall for more than four inches a month, the cotton has taken unusual growth and planters say the plant is now "very sap." Fall damage has been reported in several sections of this county but the area covered was small, however, the loss was feared as being heavy due to small acreage planted this year. Sorghum prospects were better and the plant is due to mature earlier than the previous year. The acreage is reported to be 75 per cent normal. Wheat and grass have covered wheat stubble in many fields plowing for the fall planting proceeding very slowly. A large percentage of wheat planters have been unable to harrow their fields and the preliminary plowing to be done in order to kill volunteer wheat. The wheat acreage, according to grain dealers, is reduced about 10 per cent the acreage of last year.

BRICKENRIDGE, Sept. 1.—Miss Viola McKenzie, county demonstration agent, reports that many plans are being made for the 4-H clubs in this county for the fall.

Among these is the boys and girls educational excursion to be held during the Dallas State fair in October. The boys' excursion will be October 9-10, and the girls October 10-12. Five or six girls and as many boys will probably make the trip from this vicinity.

Representatives will be chosen at a later date. Miss McKenzie stated that the local club will pay the expenses of the boys and girls making the trip.

The excursions are under the supervision of the department of extension of A & M college and the U. S. Department of Agriculture, cooperating.

COTTON GAINS STYLE FAVOR FOR FABRICS

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—Fine cottons returned to favor as a fashionable fabric this summer according to the Cotton Textile Bulletin, which has been published by the Association of Cotton Textile Merchants of New York.

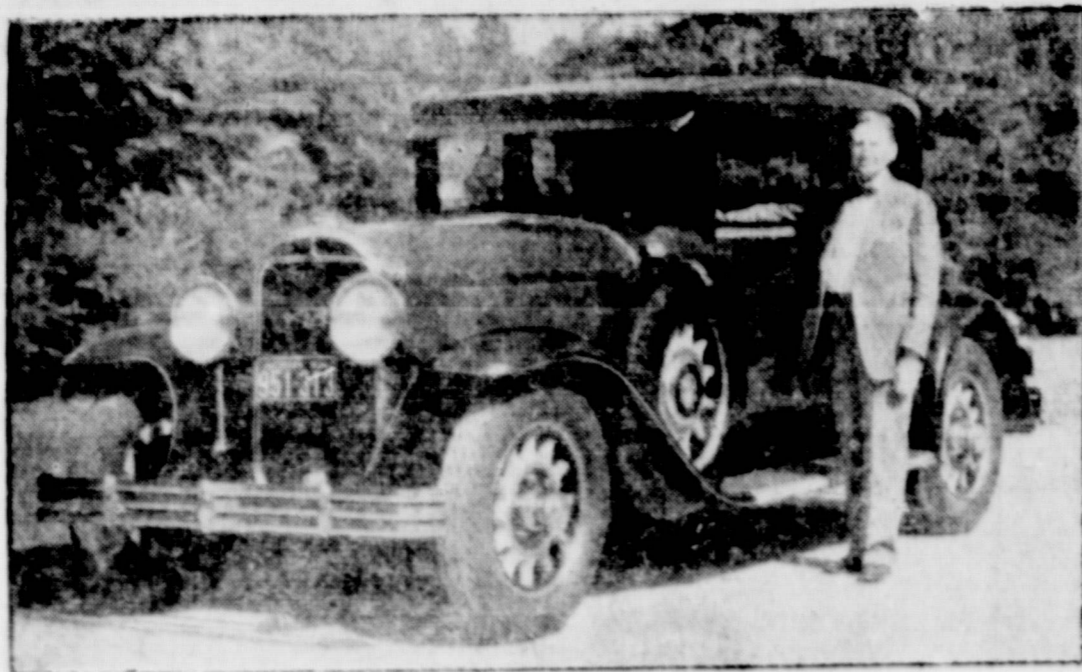

"To those whose interests are centered on goods that are subject to the fluctuations of style demand," the Bulletin states, "it has been most encouraging to note the new response to summer cotton fabrics."

The attention which fine cottons have received in some of the more important style centers has been responsible for much of the present popularity. They have been featured as the smart fabrics in a number of exclusive shops that make a special effort to be in the van of style leadership. Fashion magazines have cited the name with unusual enthusiasm.

It is suggested that several factors have contributed to the new interest in cotton.

"For one thing," the Bulletin states, "it is probably true that the greater emphasis which has been given to fine styling and design has been a helpful factor. The increasing popularity of outdoor sports and summer recreation has been another tendency in favor of fine cotton, because women have found that many of these fabrics were made for just such purposes. They also know that fine cottons are particularly adapted for summer apparel because of their comfort."

"13" HIS LUCKY NUMBER

John C. Hicks, President of the St. Johns National Bank, St. Johns, Michigan, and his 'thirteenth Buick, a five-passenger coupe.

Thirteen unlucky? No, not for John C. Hicks, president of the St. Johns National Bank at St. Johns, Mich. Hicks is buying his thirteenth Buick, one of the new Buick Anniversary models, delivered by him Monday, August 13, on the date of the delivery. And he added to that number "13" as the last two digits on his new license plate.

How could one imagine it being in any connection with a car of such striking appearance? Mr. Hicks said: "Why, I would have bought black cars and every other conceivable color of motor cars from the radiator to the trunk on the rear. If necessary, I had one of the models that has a new mode in motor car design."

Hicks has served me well," he continued, "and in the new model they have far surpassed anything they heretofore have attempted in beauty of design and individuality."

Mrs. Hicks and their daughter, Marjorie, were equally enthusiastic. "Who would be afraid of '13' or anything else with such a fascinating car?" Miss Hicks questioned. "And it is so easy to handle. Mother and I adore it! We're happy to be 'linked' with the number '13'."

Republican Unity in Mid-West Is Greatest Now in 30 Years, Hoover Feels; Pleased with California

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—Herbert Hoover is greatly pleased with the apparent unity of western and mid-western Republicans and the absence of factional differences.

Not in 30 years, in his opinion, has there been so great a degree of unity among Republicans as now. The situation in his home state of California is a particularly pleasing example. There Republican leaders are working more harmoniously than in years.

Hoover's pleasure over the fact that he will not be handicapped because of intra-party differences among Republican candidates, Taft, Hughes and Coolidge, was disclosed at his first conference with newspaper correspondents since his return from California.

Plans Few Visits.

Unless there is a change in his present program, many Republican leaders are going to be disappointed because the candidate will not personally visit their states. Hoover's speaking program now contemplates only three or four formal speeches before he leaves for California, to take place October 25. Where those three or four speeches will be delivered and when has not been decided.

A speech in New England and another speech in New York appear certain, but all others are problematical. Nothing has been decided concerning a speech in Ohio or elsewhere in the middle west or in the South or in one of the border states. There will be a nation-wide radio hook-up on the formal speeches.

On his return to the Pacific coast Hoover hopes the number of speeches he will be required to make will be kept at a minimum.

Hoover is well satisfied it was decided, with the program made in setting up his campaign organization. He thinks Dr. Robert Work, national Republican chairman, has established an effective modern organization.

States Responsible.

It is the Republican campaign plan to decentralize activities in Washington as much as possible and more so than in previous campaigns. Major responsibility will be placed with the state organizations. The Washington headquarters will be responsible for nation-wide publicity, radio broadcasting and election of speakers.

The Republican budget is being worked down to nearly $2,000,000. It is Hoover's idea that campaign expenses be kept to a minimum and there be no extravagance.

NEWLYWED IN JAIL OVER NEED OF MORE CASH

RANGER, Sept. 1.—A young farmer's plans to raise some "extra money" to take home to his bride of a month were shattered Tuesday when Wade Smith, policeman, placed the man in the local police station after he had tried to cash a forged check at a local bank.

In his cell at the police station, the man told Chief of Police Jim Ingram that he just wanted some extra money. He gave Ingram three checks that he admitted he had forged. The checks were in denominations of $12, $15, and $14, and were signed by J. E. Stokes, L. E. Bonds and W. B. Stokes, respectively. They were made payable to R. L. Patterson, J. E. Clark and H. J. Foster. Crudely made out on a Commercial State bank check, the signatures of all were nearly identical. The man gave his home as Carbon and said he lived on a farm between there and Eastland. "I married a month ago," he told Ingram, "and I thought I would raise some money. We had groceries and a little money and I wanted some more."

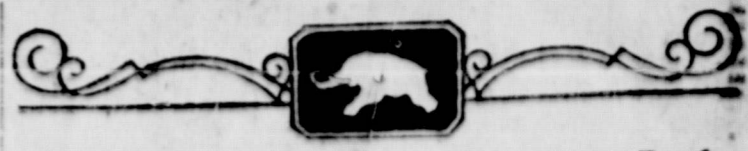

Tuesday night he called a friend at Carbon. "Tell my wife I'm busy in Ranger and won't be home," was the message he delivered.

2 NEW WELLS IN EAST CROSS CUT PRODUCING

CROSS PLAINS, Sept. 1.—Two additional producers have been added to the East Cross Cut extension, a third test in on the sand, and several locations are reported as having been made.

After having drilled approximately 23 feet of sand, which was given a 20 quart shut, Pete Hustman's No. 2 Armstrong has been placing 100 barrels daily into the pipe line with but a slight show of a decrease. The rig is being skidded to a third location which will be drilled 300 feet south of this producer.

Joe D. Harris et al. are finishing up on their No. 4 J. P. Newton which adds an additional 100 barrels production to this field. Young Bros. & Alexander are on the sand on their No. 10 A. B. Newton and indications are that a well will be obtained. Two locations have been reported by these operators but as yet have not been confirmed.

In the Cross Plains West field the Prairie Oil & Gas Co. has completed its No. 2 E. B. Gilbert after giving it a light shut and it is considered good for a 50 barrel bumper. The same company has given the W. T. Wilson test a light shut with but little effect and it is thought that the well will be a very small producer. The Prairie has announced a new location which will offset the No. 2 Gilbert producer to the West located on the W. R. Ely land.

GAS TAX DROP TO HAVE ATTENTION OF NEXT LEGISLATURE

Lawmakers May Be Asked to Raise Levy to 4 Cents But Funds Will Remain Problem

AUSTIN, Sept. 1.—With today's drop of one cent, a million in the state gasoline tax, the problem of financing road construction to Texas has been brought to the front. That will face the 41st legislature.

The return from a three-cent tax is approximately $6,650,000 annual revenue. One-fourth of this tax, however, goes to public schools. Highway funds are reduced $1,662,500.

The tax is levied as an occupation tax on wholesale dealers in gasoline. They set that they can't go on to the consumer. Prices are paid with the tax separate. Whether today's reduction is voted upon as a saving to the state or as a saving to the highway fund, the result upon highway funds is the same.

Would Raise Tax Again

Proposals to raise the tax again—perhaps as high as four cents—are being made by some legislators. Even this, Chairman E. S. Sterling of the highway commission believes would not meet the state's road needs.

The method of financing road building in Texas differs from that in most states. It is done here by combined action of the state, its counties and the federal government. The federal road bureau does not recognize the counties, dealing only with the state. The state, however, gets the county to supply a share of the funds before making its agreement with federal officials.

Under this system counties that would and could vote road bonds get road construction. Others went without. The result is that numerous unimproved gaps are left in highways that are main arteries of traffic.

Remedy Attempted

An attempt to remedy this condition was made at the last session of the legislature. Counties containing large cities agreed to remit to the highway commission all of their share of motor registration fees. By doing so, they were to help the state pay its share in the road building.

Another on the road is Corporal Clark and the Lower Rio Grande Valley. Summer tourism can bring this money many will receive.

Now the proposal is to have all highway building financed by the state with federal aid on a surplus. Several plans in finance such a system have been suggested. Sterling suggests $300,000,000 to 500,000,000 of state bonds to be issued as work progresses. While announcing it has not yet reached a definite plan, the Road Texas chamber of commerce looks favorable on an issue of $100,000,000 immediately.

Two Plans Proposed

Such bond issues will bring up the question of the status of counties that have already issued road bonds. Two plans have been proposed to care for them. One is to retire their bonds with part of the state bond issue, the other is for the state to buy the roads they have built. The method of appraisal has not been given by advocates of the latter plan. In some counties the roads are already practically worn out. Such counties should still be retained because by acting as purchasers they have enabled the whole state to profit by their road experiments.

Clarence Oulley, who was engaged by the East Texas chamber of commerce to study the road problem, makes the suggestion that whatever is done about a bond issue, road taxes should be levied on the road users and not on the land owners.

At first this seems unanswerable. But take a glance at any recent map showing late highways and those under construction. They show long stretches of road built and being built in sparsely settled country. The question can then be raised when such roads aid most—the users or land owners. For with the assistance of the roads and irrigation these tracts are being opened to homeseekers and being turned into developed farms.

Two Many Highways

All members of the highway commission agree that the state has too many highways. It has been loaded up with 20,000 miles to be maintained. One thousand-mile highway would take traffic across the state from east to west, another of equal length would run from north to south. Three thousand more would reach all big population centers. The state has four times that. Most of this excess mileage has been piled up at the insistence of counties and groups of counties that have been willing to aid in building roads.

In seeking money to improve them, the motor buses and commercial trucks are likely to receive attention from the legislature. Taxpayers should not be required to furnish more roadbed for freight and passenger service than a road passenger service of the East Texas chamber of commerce. A rail official recently said Governor Moore that if someone else would pay the expense "under the wheels" the railroads could drive out motor competition.

Still Another Side

But there is another side to that side. Railroad roadbeds were not established entirely without state help. Numerous railway surveys failed to abstract recall the large land grants for early building. Not more than a decade ago newspapers were telling of the "bonus drive" of communities to get rail lines built. Cities kill in one side by railways because they would not raise bonuses are scattered over the map. Jefferson probably would have been raised a bonus at such a time.

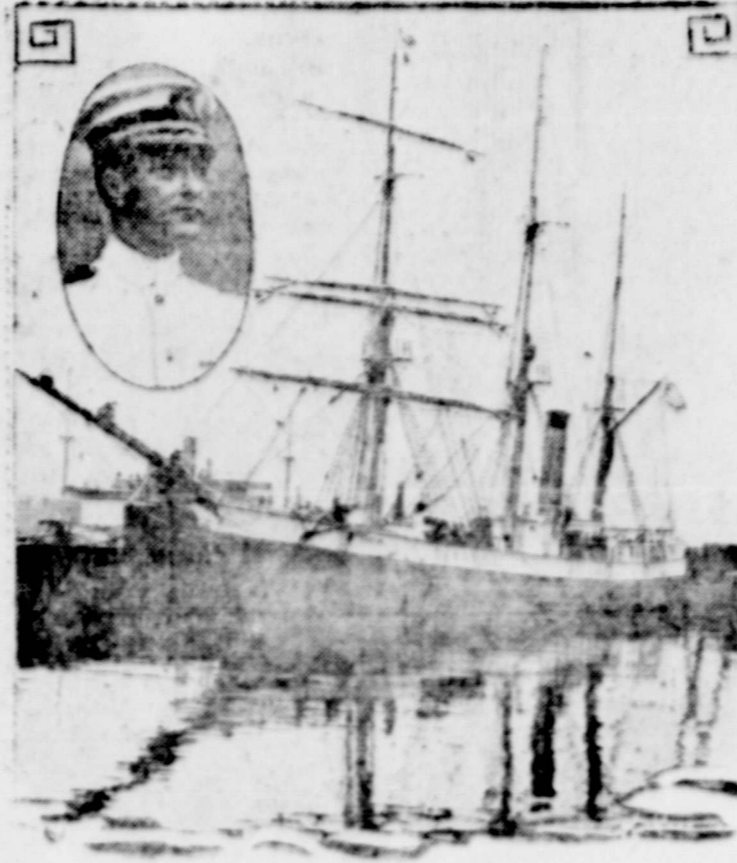

Lack of road markers, another thing criticized by tourists almost as much as the breaks in paving, is now being remedied. Markers have been contracted for and roads are being leaped to determine the markings.

YATES POOL TO GET HIGH LINE FROM W. T. U.

ARILENE, Sept. 1.—To serve the Mid-Kansas Oil & Gas company for drilling and pumping 125 locations in Yates county, the West Texas Utilities Co. today approved a work order for the erection of 8,500 feet of 12,000 volt high line extension in the Yates Pool.

The extension will be of No. 4 standard copper wire hung on 36 foot poles. The 125 locations are to be brought in as prorated agreements of the oil companies permit, it was announced. Work order also has been approved for the building of 1,900 feet of 12,000 volt high line to serve two central power and lease houses in the Creek oil field near Albany. This line is in a location to serve all of the potential oil field business in that locality. It was pointed out by company officials.

CROSS PLAINS FORESEES BIG COTTON CROP

CROSS PLAINS, Sept. 1.—Prospects for a big cotton crop in the Cross Plains trade territory were never more promising than they are at the present time. The plant has remained healthy and growing the usual crop and should the reverse of the set normal, and lead work will reward the field to a great extent. Another reason why crop can safely be expected. While some of the pods have made their appearance in a few localities, no serious damage has yet been reported, and a few more weeks of frost-free weather will take the maturing crop over danger period. Of course the price of cotton has fallen and winter, regardless of the size of supply and demand, it seems, will be governed.

by the total damage reports are inadequate estimate, but set in the agricultural department.

At present the seed crop is selling around 17 cents, but expanded at any time during the period that the bulk of the crop to come places on the market will automatically bid it down to a very low amount compared to the present price. However, should the outlook clear when it is indicated by the present condition of the plant, he made together with the abundant food and all other farm products crops that are usually as promising as a cotton crop in the state of the state will mean a big fall and winter season in Cross Plains, which has good reputation of being the best cotton market and leading town in this part of the country. Likewise it will arrive properly throughout the entire Cross Plains trade territory. The two local gas have been in fine shape for handling the big crop and turning out a clean staple.

All work and no play would greatly improve prospects.—Louisville Times.

HE USED TO SHUCK CORN HERE

placed in Germany near which was found the ancient remains of one of those supposed links in the evolution of man. The poem represents the wonder with which one might approach such a find rather than the conclusion with which one might attempt to domesticate upon it.

I have just had an adventurous experience in living a day or two in the house of an Indian of the James Pueblo, eating Indian food, listening to Indian conversation, the subject and meaning of which I was wholly in the dark, and observing Indian ways. On the table every meal was still, made of green chili pepper, green tomatoes, and onions, all ground together. It had to be tempered by my admixture with bread or potatoes before I could eat much of it. Seeing the awkward way I was making of transferring food from bowl to mouth by means of a corn-cob implement, than a piece of bread, they handed me a spoon. I was given the only bed room with a sewing machine, a cooking range, a dresser or two, and a square of linoleum gave a modern touch to the single adobe room, while the family slept on the floor, or on a sort of shelf. The room was very close after one who had been sleeping three weeks in a tent and consequently I did not sleep the night through. Imagine the emotion one would experience being awake in the night in an isolated Indian hut in the same room with a family of Indians listening to an Indian father trying to soothe his fretful child by singing drowsily in his ear an old Indian lullaby. It took my mind back to the share I had in like experience with my own youngsters and gave me a sublime fellow-feeling with these darker-skinned and cruder-colored people.

Coming back to camp I accepted the suggestion of my host (who is one of the Indians assisting in our excavations) to ride with him in the wagon behind a team of giant looking ponies. The only catch I heard him say—unless it was while he was taking in his own tongue—was when he stopped the team suddenly and exclaimed, "I've got a flat tire." "Where's the pump?" "It was only the wagon tire slipping from the axle and a couple of stones from the roadside quickly readjusted it. But his clever manner of coming to the reality of a situation which he was only pretending was all too uncomplimentary of his white brothers.

Our camp will break up Thursday and Friday as the students begin to go back to their respective homes in Massachusetts, California, Texas, and several states outside of New Mexico, which of course has the largest representation. It has been a unique experience and many have been the expressions of delight for the four weeks of study and recuperation that we have spent in what might be called an outing school. W. F. BRUCE

Number of World War Veterans in Hospitals Greater Now Than at Any Other Time Since 1918

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—Although the last shot in the World War was fired almost ten years ago, the number of veterans being cared for in United States hospitals is steadily increasing, according to the report of the federal hospitalization board, made public today, and supplemental figures from the veterans' bureau.

According to the hospitalization board report, 26,284 veterans were obtaining hospital treatment from the veterans' bureau on June 30. This was an increase of 692 for the year, and a larger total than since 1923, the first year for which consolidated figures on veterans' bureau hospital service are available.

In 1923 the total number of persons receiving hospital treatment on June 30 was 23,331, according to veterans' bureau figures. It dropped to 21,430 in 1924, but jumped up to 26,284 in 1925 on account of congressional extension of hospital privileges to veterans. Last year the total of hospital cases being handled on June 30 was 25,662 but this year it climbed to the record level of 26,284.

According to the hospitalization board report, the veterans' bureau is at present utilizing the facilities of 59 government controlled hospitals, with a total of 79,002 beds. Additional facilities of about 1,600 beds are at present under construction, according to the report, and funds have been provided for construction of hospitals to contain about 2,302 beds.

Of those at present in United States veterans' bureau hospitals approximately 56 per cent are afflicted with nervous disease, according to the report, and about 25 per cent are suffering from tuberculosis. The balance are general medical and surgical cases.

"GLORIOUS BETSY," starring Dolores Costello, is a Warner Bros.
production of this novel. Based on the play by Rida Johnson Young.

SYNOPSIS
Captain Jerome Bonaparte, brother of Napoleon, falls in love with the beautiful Betsy Patterson on a visit to America. Against the advice of his wife he marries her. They sail for France to brave the anger of the Emperor. Betsy is refused permission to land and while Jerome is about to leave the ship to plead once with his brother a small tug comes alongside. The Emperor has come in person to command Betsy to give up Jerome. Napoleon tells of his ambitious plans for Jerome's future which will be ruined unless she renounces him. Betsy pleads desperately for her love.

"Get to give him up for another," Betsy sighed brokenly.
"That other is France," Napoleon returned quickly. "No other woman will wrest your image from his heart, and when he understands your sublime sacrifice there will be a halo cast about your memory that not even the glory of his brilliant destiny can dim. In years to come when he looks back upon your sacrifice, he will realize your true worth and your greatness. And is not that far better than to have him forever recalling what might have been had you not given up everything for his sake? More and more he will come to love you with the love that is far stronger than

"What has happened?"
"Which now exists. You will be the most perfect woman in his life."
Betsy bowed her head and sighed. "Betsy, pity me." She reached out her arms in a pathetic last appeal. Napoleon shook his head. "You are a warning."
"Only a memory," Betsy sobbed despairingly. She looked at the stern face before her. She gazed out over the water, where she could see the little lights of the coast line just beginning to appear in the foxy dusk—the coast line of the country which she would never know.

CHAPTER XV
For a long time Betsy stood staring out towards a country that she had come to conquer and that she now knew would never be hers. Slowly it seemed to recede from her—that broken coast line, with its harbor so faintly outlined in the dusk. Back there where each lit light twinkled was a home where happy people dwelt beneath soft French sunlight. Now she would not see that sunlight, would never know those vivid little French ports, the gay capital, Paris, inland.
Ribboned against the light, coming between her and the out-jutting land, that dark muffled figure persistently obtruded itself. The symbol it stood, never cut her line of vision, keeping her from that country. Beneath that hat she could faintly see the gleaming eyes, the heavy overhanging brows, the long sensitive nose, the short upper lip and full, defined chin.
And so, at last, she called out, "Jerome! Oh, Jerome! I—I—" He waited, motioning for her husband to come to her.
At the first sound of her voice Jerome started forward eagerly, behind him followed St. Pierre and Dufrene with Betty's father. At the approach of the three men Napoleon moved back toward the rail of the boat and stood leaning against a bit, as though to suggest that he had left the entire matter in Betty's hands.
"Betty, dear, what is it?" Jerome caught her hands, and looking into her eyes, noted the tear-stained cheeks. "What has happened? You have been crying?"
"No, no, it's all right," Betty smiled, a waa little smile. "Jerome, dear, do you remember how in our old tutor days back in Sweet Springs you said that we should build our own country, as the Rom-

BROWN LEADS FOR WINTER SPORT WEAR

PARIS, Sept. 1.—Brown with a little leaning to grey beige, will certainly be predominant for sports costumes next winter, judging from the smart clothes appearing at the chic French dress-makers these days.
A large number of them are in tweeds, but there are also many jersey and cashmere, sometimes combined with the tweed. Angora woolsens and velours de laine are used with leather belts and inlay treatment. Hip-length jackets of fantasy woolsens have the blouse of the same material.
Patou is striking a new note with the use of embroidery instead of incrustations of cloth on jersey sweaters and the leather belt is placed a bit higher than last season. Many of his sport costumes are shown with a long, plain strictly tailored coat of the same fabric as the skirt. A very smart one has a long skirt and coat of gray tweed and pearl-gray jumper embroidered all over in motifs of gray wool, with a band of the tweed at the edge and a gray leather belt. Another interesting sport ensemble consists of a circular cape of plaid grey tweed, with a checked back-ground, worn over a skirt of the plaid and refter of plain checks.
Worth favors red and navy-blue for his sports costumes this winter. One in navy-blue and white is especially striking with the pleated skirt of plain blue and the jumper wide stripes of two shades of blue. There is an extraordinary kerchief in the two colors knotted at the neck.
Cheruit puts little "cuties" of crepe de chine in matching tone under all of her sports costumes, with a narrow band of the woolen material and a row of little buttons at the side.

LONG SKIRTS SHOCK COUTURIERS

Photo of Helen Wills in the recent national championships, showing the modest costume which she herself designed. The skirt hangs just below the knee, while the abbreviated sleeves come mid-way to her elbow. Superimposed are two cartoons from an English periodical, contrasting the long-skirted tennis girl of '98 with the bounding court queen of today.

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—When Helen Wills appeared on the tennis courts at Wimbledon, Eng., to battle for the women's championship of the world, there were shocked cries of disapproval from the eminent French couturier who created the styles in court costumes.
"Her skirt is wide and there inches too long," they exclaimed. "And her blouse is loose and comes over her shoulders, instead of being tight and cut out around the armpoles, like a bathing suit. It isn't chic!"
When Helen of America was told of the criticism she gave her partition. It will likely be five dollars with a ribbon awarded also for each of the first three places.

Special Horts will be made in have booths or demonstrating manufactured articles and committees were appointed on securing such a place as well as a variety of demonstrations.
There will also be worked out a plan whereby a good prize will be offered for either a community or an individual exhibit according to a score card to be furnished later.

COUNTY FARM CLUB WORKERS HOLD MEETING

E. H. Varnell, vocational superintendent of the Cisco high school and chamber of commerce, and J. E. T. Peters, commercial secretary, were hosts Friday afternoon in the agricultural vocational teachers' conference and joint demonstration school of the semi-annual session, who were here to discuss problems in which they were interested. At the conclusion of the program the visitors were taken to Lake Chen where they enjoyed the bathing in the swimming pool, and after a supper served on the porch of the Cisco County club, the party enjoyed a moonlight boat ride on the lake.

TWO AWAIT GRAND JURY ACTION FOLLOWING FIGHT

As a result of a recent affray at Romney, Delmar Bowles and Jeff Johnson, both of the Romney community, are at liberty under their own personal recognizance to await the action of the grand jury. According to Bowles the difficulty started when Johnson was abusing Bowles' father, a merchant at Romney. Bowles stated to Justice McDonald that Johnson first had a rock, and later a hammer, while threatening his father, whom he requested to come out of his store. Failing to drop his weapons, Bowles stated that he opened his knife and grabbed Johnson, at the time commanding him to drop the hammer which he still held, but did not drop until he placed his open knife under Johnson's chin. In the scuffle Bowles scratched as he threw his head forward. Both were charged in justice court with an affray, and Bowles paid off.
