CURTIS WARNS NEW ENGLAND AGAINST SMITH

BOSTON, Sept. 5.—Declaring that a Democratic presidential victory would lead to a downward revision of the tariff and a resultant economic disaster in the United States, Curtis, Republican vice presidential nominee, today speeded the usual Republican guff by declaring the tariff into the heart of new England's protected industrial area. He warned New England industries that Governor Al Smith, Democratic presidential nominee, by endorsing the Underwood tariff bill, had demonstrated that American labor, industry and agriculture will receive no tariff protection from the Democrats. Any downward revision of tariff would mean economic ruin of the country, Curtis said.

BOTH HOOVER, CURTIS ASKED INTO TEXAS

DALLAS, Sept. 5.—Herbert Hoover, Republican presidential nominee, and Senator Charles Curtis, his running mate, may speak in Texas on their wayward trip to October. If efforts being made now are successful, it was announced today by Leonard Willington, secretary of the Associated Hoover clubs of Texas. He is also attempting to obtain Senator William Borah of Idaho and Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant United States attorney general.

It was to take from me the only man I've ever truly loved. He did so my hand and said that he was and to honor me, but that was because I was brave, and I don't cry when I saw my husband die. "Betty, Betty, my poor, dear Betty," Mary stroked her cousin's hair, the tears welling up in her eyes. She sat thinking of what Betty must have endured in prison, a proud, disdainful girl who had never in her life had to give up anything at all, being forced to ask the world that she knew was a lifetime of unhappiness, perhaps Betty, after a while you'll forget him. There are so many others who would be honored—"Ah, no, no, Mary, that can never be," Betty put her arms about her cousin's neck. "I haven't told you anything yet, Mary, I'm going to have a child—a little baby—come a baby." She buried her head on Mary's shoulder. "Betty, oh my dear, dear Betty," Mary put her arms about her cousin's neck. "I haven't told you anything yet, Mary, I'm going to have a child—a little baby—come a baby." She buried her head on Mary's shoulder. "Betty, oh my dear, dear Betty," Mary put her arms about her cousin's neck. "I haven't told you anything yet, Mary, I'm going to have a child—a little baby—come a baby." She buried her head on Mary's shoulder.

ed how hurt she had felt when she thought that Jerome had forgotten her. How little that hurt had compared to this dragging pain that agonized her now. "Oh, Mary, Mary, I want it all, my hope, my happiness, my life, my love," she pleaded. "And I guess, I'll never feel that way again. I have grown old, ages old, yes, Mary, I'm a woman now." She put her arm about Mary's neck, as her cousin came and stood beside her. "It almost seemed as though just for a second I was myself again when I came into the room and saw all my old friends sitting there for me. But it was only for the second, because every one brought up some reminder of the past."

Construction Foreman John Dunn, of the West Texas Utilities Co., and his force of workmen, are making progress on the shoes and ware rooms, the first unit of the West Texas Utilities Co. new lodge in Cisco. The steel frame of the building is in place, and one of the walls is several feet above the ground. The building is being constructed of brick and hollow tile.

GOVERNOR OF WISCONSIN IS LOSER IN RACE

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 5.—For the first time in 38 years Wisconsin today had apparently denied a second term to a governor. On the basis of incomplete returns Governor Fred Zimmerman was overwhelmingly defeated in yesterday's Republican gubernatorial primary. Walter J. Kohner, manufacturer, was maintaining a slight lead over Congressman J. D. Beck, LaFollette candidate, with Zimmerman a poor third. Senator Robert M. LaFollette, Jr., apparently has won an easy victory over Mayor George Mead, manufacturer, by a majority of two to one.

CROWD HERE FOR SPEAKING IS ORDERLY

There was no new business in the police court this morning. Despite the fact that there were several thousand visitors in Cisco Tuesday and Tuesday night, police reported the crowd was the most orderly and the day and night were the quietest of any fete day ever held in Cisco. There was not a new case docketed.

FORT WORTH, Sept. 5.—Miss Amelia Earhart, the first woman to fly the Atlantic Ocean, landed here at 12:20 o'clock this afternoon en route to the Pacific coast. She was flying alone. She declined to reveal her next stop as she wishes to avoid publicity.

ROBINSON'S SPEECH HERE IS ENJOYED BY FOLKS BACK HOME

Senator Joe Robinson's "home folks" heard his address here Tuesday night by radio and they appreciated it as much as did the West Texans. The following telegram telling of its reception in Little Rock was received here this morning:

TEXAS PLANES TO TAKE PART IN BIG RACES

EL PASO, Sept. 5.—The third attack group comprising 13 airplanes, left Fort Bliss today for Los Angeles, where they will participate in the national air races. They arrived here last night from San Antonio.

SENATOR ROBINSON PAYS VISIT TO SICK CISCOAN

Illustrative of the character of the man, Senator Robinson, while a guest at the home of Judge and Mrs. Eugene Lankford Tuesday, insisted upon paying a visit to A. G. Dabney, who has been confined to his home for several weeks on account of illness. Mr. Dabney is a neighbor of Judge Lankford, who spoke of Dabney's illness to his guest, and Senator Robinson, despite the weariness and fatigue of the day, augmented by many matters that required his attention, insisted on visiting the sick. The two enjoyed a delightful visit, which perceptibly aided the sick man and proved an inspiration to the distinguished visitor. Mr. Dabney was reported considerably improved this morning.

SMITH IS SURE HE WILL CARRY HIS OWN STATE

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 5.—Governor Al Smith is absolutely certain that he will carry New York in the presidential election, he said in an interview with newspaper men. He scoffed at Republican claims that Smith Republicans and independent voters who have supported him in the past for governor would desert him in the presidential campaign.

Jacobs at the controls and Sam Gordon as passenger hopped from here at 6:43 o'clock this morning the first of the 38 class A planes in the national air derby in the transcontinental air race to Los Angeles. Career of Governor Proves He Is Capable and Nothing to Fear from Church, Senator Tells West Texans Glowing tributes to Governor Al Smith as a man and as a public servant formed the gist of the address at Lobo stadium Tuesday night of Senator Joe Robinson of Arkansas, running mate of the New York executive in the Democratic national ticket. Some 15,000 persons—perhaps more—packed the stadium and cheered the Arkansian repeatedly and left no doubt that they were with him. Characteristic of the man, Senator Robinson at no time dwelt on his own qualifications but he lauded his friend and fellow nominee, Al Smith, as the "most magnetic American of the generation" because of his honesty and his battles in behalf of the common people. However, the speaker who exceeded Robinson's praise him as highly as he did Smith.

EX-PRINCIPAL OF CISCO HIGH DIES IN TULSA

A message received Monday by Mrs. O. B. Langston, from Tulsa, contained the announcement of the death of her brother, Charles B. Smith. He was a former principal of the Cisco high school and one of his children was born in this city. The funeral will be held in Tulsa this afternoon if his children reach Tulsa in time. He is survived by his widow and six children. He was a great church worker and for several years was principal of one of the schools in Muskogee.

THE RADIO ZONE PLAN.

The difficulties of radio regulation are suggested by the fact that the chairman of the federal radio commission refused to sign the finally completed zoning plan.

Under the new allocation, effective October 1, 235 radio stations will be cut to part time. The nation's radio facilities are now divided equally among five zones and the total number of full time broadcasting stations reduced from 545 to 310.

The 62 assignments in each zone are divided into eight full time positions for stations of 5,000 watts and above; 24 for 500 and 1,000-watt stations and 30 for 50 or 100-watt stations.

Chairman Robinson of the commission believes the new allocation too drastic. There will be others who agree with him. Yet it must be recognized that this business of untangling radio snarls and dividing up the ether fairly is a very difficult one.

THE DAWES PLAN'S NEW STAGE.

Beginning September 1, the Dawes plan for getting Germany to pay her reparations obligations reached a new stage. During the past four years its operation has been more or less experimental.

Nobody is quite sure yet whether she can do it. Economists are least sure of all. They realize that in order to make these heavy payments Germany must do one of three things to establish the "outside" credit she needs.

She must sell to the world $600,000,000 a year more goods than she buys; Or, she must borrow that sum from foreign nations;

Or, she can use a judicious combination of these two things.

Sending out her gold to meet these reparations obligations would pay her world debts, but would at the same time demoralize her internal finance.

It is easy to recognize that this is a just debt and to say that Germany must pay it. It is not so easy to accomplish that end. The plain people of all the countries involved need to understand the many-sidedness of the situation, if it is to be met with fullest satisfaction to all.

NEW LIQUID FOR COMPASS.

For some time pure grain alcohol has been considered the only liquid suitable for the compasses of the navy's aircraft. Now, after long and careful experimentation, alcohol has been discontinued and mineral spirits substituted.

BOOTBLACKS.

Apparently there are still bootblacks of the old type, though their race is almost extinct. The children's bureau of the department of labor, making an inquiry into their work and environment, finds a handful of them in Atlanta, Columbus, Omaha, Newark, Wilkes-Barre and a few other cities.

gators say the survivors work under many of the disadvantages of newspaper selling, without the newsboys' advantages.

NEW LAWS TO ALLOW BETTER BIRD HUNTING

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—An increase in the number of woodcock is expected as a result of new open season game laws for the bird, according to experts of the biological survey of the agricultural department.

Last year it was feared this fowl would become extinct, and a number of changes were agreed on for this year in the migratory bird treaty act. A general readjustment in federal seasons on the bird has resulted. Changes were worked out so that there would be a minimum of conflict with state laws.

Season Limited The hunting period on woodcock throughout the country this year will be limited to one month. The new schedule for open season on woodcock is as follows:

MARSHALL, Sept. 3.—Two new giant locomotives of the Texas type, Nos. 900 and 906 of the five locomotives recently ordered by the Texas & Pacific railroad company for passenger service, have arrived on Marshall and been made ready for the road.

These locomotives are practically the same as the 900 class the company had in service and differ only slightly in appearance, the feed water reservoir being on the inside of the boiler instead of the front end on top of the boiler.

The new engines cost practically $100,000 each delivered in Marshall.

GLORIOUS BETSY

NOVELIZED BY ARLINE DE HAAS

Copyright, 1928, Warner Book Co., Inc.

"GLORIOUS BETSY," starring Dolores Costello, in "Warner Bros. picturization of this novel. Based on the play by Rida Johnson Young.

SYNOPSIS Captain Jerome Bonaparte, brother of Napoleon, falls in love with the beautiful Betty Patterson on a visit to America. Against the advice of his wife he marries her. They sail for France to escape the anger of the Emperor. Betty is not permitted to land and while Jerome is leaving the ship to fight Napoleon, she returns to Baltimore with her father to face the eyes of her father and the suspicion of her friends.

CHAPTER XVI—Continued "Oh, so that's what brings them," she whispered back to Sir Harry. "Betty, dear, you mustn't wear yourself out." Miss Massenbend calmly shouldered several women out of the way. "If you like, we'll see them all home. You really should not talk any more this evening."

"Stand back, everybody."

great Emperor himself came to the ship for an audience with Misses Betty Patterson and her— "and she clasped her hand to her head; she swayed slightly. "Oh, it is nothing, it's only the journey. We have ridden so far, so far."

The Major caught her and held her close. "The crowd," she cried, "is coming. They must hear all I did and said, and the homage paid me—the homage! And how the

"A little sherry," he called, "stand back, everybody, stand back, give her some air." Sir Harry began chafing her wrists and Misses Massenbend, came running in with the glass of wine. She poured it between Betty's closed lips.

Betty stirred. "I am tired, so tired," she murmured. She leaned on her cousin Mary, who led her gently through the line of people that opened up for them to allow her to pass. The two disappeared up the winding stairway.

Once in her room Betty paced up and down wringing her hands nervously. She sobbed hysterically, and catching in her throat the choking little noises, she gasped for breath, back and forth, as though she would never be able to breathe. Mary watched her, so near to stop this mad unceasing sobbing that seemed to hold the lovely girl so tightly in its grasp.

"Ease, Betty—Betty, dear, do not look her cousin's hands and feet. They are lovely."

"No, no, Mary, I can't, I can't!" Betty pulled her hands away as though she could not bear Mary's touch. She must walk and walk, clenching her fists until the nails cut deep into the white flesh. "I shall never rest again. Don't look at me like that. I can't bear to be pitied, even by you. I don't want pity."

"Why, Betty, I—I didn't mean," Mary began, but she could not keep the pathos from her look. She struggled to hide the tears that welled from her sympathetic heart. To her, Betty's pain was the same as though it were her own.

"Oh, I know how changed I am," Betty turned to look at her cousin. Her white face even whiter in the

TAILORED COSTUMES SMART THIS AUTUMN

PARIS, Sept. 5.—Trotteur tailors will be as busy as French couturiers can make them this fall and winter, whether made of fine black satin, broadcloth, tweed or the lighter woollen fabrics.

The jacket with full back and four vertical rows of inverted pleats which are sewn down at the waist forming a tight band around the hips is the favorite. The skirt is usually very simple having only the uneven hemline for trimming.

A striking trotteur mode consists of a skirt of faint plaid design in red and green on black background and worn with a smart broadcloth jacket. There is another with a plain skirt of black satin and a black velvet refter with flat brass buttons. Corduroy is used for several models, a refter coming in lacquer red with bright steel buttons and worn with a skirt of the same material and blouse of red crepe de chine with four-in-hand tie in bright blue.

Almost green corduroy is used for the blouse worn with a skirt of dark green satin with a jacket of the same material in white has a belt of black silk and jet embroidery.

A very trim trotteur is of deep emerald green with plain rounded jacket and skirt with full pabot and frills at the wrist of soft white lace. Another powder blue has a coat of soft duveton with a gray fox collar and skirt of the same shade with jersey jumper of two shades of wide diagonal stripe.

Golf is making a high bid for popularity, to be sure, but it never will supplant baseball until putters are compelled to beat or just ahead of the ball. — Fox Worth Record-Telegram.

MEMORABLE LOBO-EAGLE GRID CONTEST OF 1924 IS RECALLED

Cisco Victory over Mighty Abilene Shifted Interest in Oil Belt Play to Eastland and Stephens Counties

(By BOYCE HOUSE, Ranger, Tex.)
 Inasmuch as the "modern era" of football in the Oil Belt district dates from that historic September afternoon in 1924 when the Cisco Lobos shattered the Abilene tradition, a series of spot-lens on "gridiron thrills of the past" could not find a more appropriate starting point than the Lobo-Eagle battle of four years ago. Until that time, Abilene had been monarch of all it surveyed in West Texas and its right there was none to dispute. Other teams of this region considered the Eagles as a "super-team" that was invincible.

But Cisco's victory shifted the center of football interest to the Oil Belt proper—Eastland and Stephens counties—and it resulted in a season of the greatest excitement that the sport has ever witnessed in the district. Interest and attendance have steadily increased year by year, and the level of competition has become higher and higher.

It was a brilliant throng that witnessed that great game in 1924 on the Fair Park field in Abilene. Five thousand people filled the stands—a record crowd for intra-district games, up till that time. It was a battle that brought together teams filled with rivalry—Abilene, state champion of 1923, and Cisco, the only club to have the Fair Park field in that great season. It was the first official game of the 1924 season, too, for each team. The victor doubtless would go on at least to the West Texas championship. The vanquished would see all hopes vanish for the year.

"The Big Parade" shortly before the game was to start. It took a wonderful hour to get the 11 back-wounded Eagle warriors treated on the field. As they came around in single file, the Abilene fans cheered. Just as the wheels had almost completed a circle of the field, 11 teams in black came out in the time of leader choice. They came another full hour—and still another. Finally the 11th squad of 11 ran out—and was apparently hurt badly for they were the first team. Fifty-five such as Abilene, who were playing around in a line that completely enclosed the field.

It was a wonderful piece of organization that Coach Lee Jones had planned. The parade of gridiron soldiers demonstrated, as could have been seen, the story of the great reserve strength of Abilene. High, proudly defending its hard-earned state championship. The teams lined up. Cisco kicked off. On the first play from scrimmage, Campion, a well-stepping tackle fullback, went around right and for 40 yards. Hearts of Abilene fans grew faint, but little fields brought him down and averted a touchdown. Ernie Wilson, veteran Lobo end, tore off his helmet and lunged to the ground—for it was second his end that Compton had held. And throughout the remainder of that game, the Abilene tumbled hair of Wilson was like the plume of Navarro in the thick of the battle. There were no more sallies around Wilson's zone.

When that first spectacular spirit of Compton was halted, more than one Cisco fan thought, "There's the state champion, our boys just can't hold them."

But the Abilene drive was stopped right then and there. Bryan, the hero, went back to punt. Cisco failed to advance the ball and punted in return. And the remainder of the half was the struggle of Abilene without backfield but not so brilliant line being counter-balanced by Cisco's mighty line but not so mighty backfield.

It was in the third quarter that the "hero" came. Cisco fumbled and Abilene recovered in the latter end of the field. Three plays failed to make headway and Bryan, if memory is correct, was called back. He kicked a beautiful field goal from midfield and the rout was on. Abilene 3, Cisco 6.

"Chigger" Gets It
 Cisco now had to resort to a more aggressive game as better a team that is behind when previous moments are flying. But they could not gain consistently and the exultant of Cisco continued. It was Abilene's ball on their own 30-yard line. Bryan was called back to run with the ball.

If Abilene had only played safe and kicked instead of the wall of any a fan afterward.

But probably it was sound football to try to advance the ball. Three points is not a safe lead. Furthermore, by retaining possession of the ball as long as possible, the Eagles would reduce the time that Cisco would have to carry the ball.

The pigskin was snapped to Bryan. The big fellow—who was the star of the game for Abilene—fumbled. Out of the blurred group of figures, there flashed a form clad in gold. It was "Chigger" Brown. Without slacking speed, the Cisco halfback scooped up the bounding ball and with two men moving down those who sought to clutch him, Chigger raced 25 yards for a touchdown. The kick failed and the score stood: Cisco 6, Abilene 3.

We have had a number of old men leaving land in this community the last two weeks.

Beuca Curry is cleaning off a home site on the Breckenridge-Cisco highway on which he intends to erect a modern home. We regret very much to lose Mr. Curry and family but we wish them much prosperity and happiness in their new home.

The people are to meet at the community hall and place and arrange their new seats in the hall.

The school will open the first day of October. Miss Curry and Miss Cook will be the teachers.

Numerous cars pass up and down the road since the bird season has opened carrying hunters who shoot most all kinds of birds. CISCO BANDIT IS RECAPTURED AFTER ESCAPE

BRAZORIA, Sept. 3.—Three of six convicts who escaped from the Clemens state farm near here late Monday afternoon had been recaptured Tuesday night by posse of guards with bloodhounds. The other three are believed to have made good their escape.

Robert Hill, serving a 99-year term for robbery of a Cisco bank, was the first convict recaptured after the men slipped away from a gang cutting wood at Camp No. 3. Hill was trailed to a negro church several miles from the farm and slightly bitten by the dogs before guards arrived.

Wayne Clay, serving two years for burglary, was freed by bounds a short time later and recaptured, but guards gave up the search for the other fugitives later Monday night when a hard rain blotted out the trail.

Early Tuesday night Carl Ahner, serving four years for forswery, was recaptured near Brazoria.

SMALL STATES ARE ALL-POWERFUL IN ELECTORAL O

Nevada's 77,000 May Turn Tide in Election; Minnesota Decided by 392 in 1916; Reapportionment Is Needed

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—The 77,000 citizens of little Nevada will have as much to say about who shall be president this fall as the 4,500,000 citizens of California, her great neighbor.

New Mexico's 240,000 persons will exert as much weight in the electoral college as the selection of a president as will the 7,620,560 citizens of the state of New York.

Indiana's estimated population of 3,138,000 will have exactly as much to say in the college as will the 4,490,000 persons in Michigan.

Few Voters Make Change

And it is technically possible to throw these great weights to one presidential candidate or another by the margin of a few votes in the state, as for instance when Minnesota's 12 electoral college votes in 1916 were thrown to Hughes over Wilson by 392 out of a total vote of more than 58,000.

Had those 12 votes been needed to decide which candidate would get the 286 needed to elect, 392 Minnesotans votes might have decided which should be president for four years.

These are some of the quirks in the present constitutional electoral system which are being studied by politicians. Progressives headed by Senator George Norris of Nebraska are expected to begin a fight to amend the constitution to provide for popular election of presidents.

Constitution Responsible

For Nevada's comparative great weight in the college, the constitution is responsible. It guarantees to each state a minimum of two United States senators and one representative, and each state is given electors equal to the total number of senators and representatives.

For the disparity among the larger states, however, blame is laid upon the failure of congress to reapportion the house membership following the census of 1920, as the constitution directs, when some states would have gained and others lost.

Twelve congressional districts would have been taken from some states and added to others, after 1920.

California's 2,377,000 citizens of 1910 gave her 13 votes in the college, the same number she now has for 4,500,000 people. Michigan had 7,300,000 persons represented by 15 votes in 1912, and 4,500,000 in 1927.

The candidate of the future will perhaps declare that he started life as a pedestrian. — Louisville Courier-Journal.

OPERA STAR AND HER NEW BUICK

Miss Florence Easton, soprano with the Metropolitan Opera Company, is one of the many proud owners of the new Silver Anniversary Buick. In Chicago for the Havana Park opera season, Miss Easton viewed the new Buick at the time of its introduction, and ordered one immediately, explaining "I was captivated by its beauty I knew at once I must own one."

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—One of the proud owners of the new Silver Anniversary Buick is Miss Florence Easton, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera company, who is here for the Havana Park opera season. Though Miss Easton herself did not know she was in the market for an automobile when the new Buick came out, she capitulated instantly at sight of the new Buick line and bought the four-door five-passenger close-coupled sedan.

"I had not intended to buy an automobile while in Chicago," said Miss Easton. "But when I saw the new Silver Anniversary Buick, my resolution fell. I was staggered by its beauty, its power, its speed, and its harmonious colors that I knew at once I must own one. My beautiful new Buick has been a constant source of delight ever since I bought it."

"While it was the car's distinctive beauty that first made me want one, I was captivated by its speed, its power, and its harmonious colors, as well. The adaptable driver's seat and steering column accommodate the car to my personal requirements perfectly. I have never driven a car which was so easy to operate. And the supreme endless pleasure touring England and the continent at the wheel of this perfect automobile."

STAGE ARTISTS ARE SALES GIRLS

PARIS, Sept. 5.—The foreign invasion of stage stars into France has forced some of the better known of the native players into sordid trade. Complaining bitterly that managers refuse to pay them anything like the salaries being paid to American and other alien artists, French actors and actresses have been forced to adopt solutions to bolster up their earnings. Among the first to see the harsh writing on the wall was Mistinguette, she of the "million-dollar legs." Her reign on the French revue stage was broken by the advent of the Dellys sisters, and the reign of Dellys of other invader and her partner, have dimmed the light of Mistinguette. Taking the money which she had met in the halcyon days, she has been able to invest in the fashionable Rue de la Paix. Since then she has invested in several other "hot" places where her name can still be found. These include a hair salon, a beauty parlor and a movie theatre.

She doesn't worry any more, for her income from these varied interests is greater than she could possibly earn in her theatrical work.

Ganna Walska is another of the foreign artists. In private life the wife of Harold F. McCormick, American multi-millionaire, and therefore accustomed to luxuries far beyond those of many stage divas, she nevertheless established herself as a means of being independent. Here the opera singer and noted beauty relaxes by waiting on her fashionable trade. In addition to such profits as she makes from her "retail" sales, the fish Mrs. McCormick enjoys countless other revenues from the articles of commerce to which she lends her name.

Others of the elect of "tout Paris" who have gone into trade include Maurice Chevalier, James Cagney, and Julian Carette, a painter and sculptor.

Republicans Anxious to Win Maine State Election; Superstition as to National Barometer Is Often Upset

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—The Republican speakers of note are being hurried into Maine to make sure as far as political oratory goes that the state will be Republican in the state election which is chosen on Sept. 10. State elections in Maine are held on the second Monday of September for the reason farmers are better able to vote at that time, when harvesting is over, and before bad weather sets in for the winter. In presidential years the elections are chosen on Sept. 8. In state elections, or this year on Nov. 6. For many years a political slogan throughout New England has been: "As Maine goes so goes the nation."

Up in Maine they will tell you that the state's motto is "Dixie—1860 or lead." Generally speaking, the horoscope has been accurate; that is, when it is figured from the standpoint of Republicans carrying the country, for Maine almost uniformly is Republican.

Just why the attitude of the voters of Maine in September should be an index of how voters in other states will perform in November has always been one of the political enigmas. Yet the Republicans play up the superstition about this time every presidential year.

In the very early days of the government, the Maine election, coming in advance of the presidential voting, probably was accurate in showing the trend of popular feeling. The country was small, but has since expanded as far as the Pacific. The state has been fairly steady as a Republican state since organization of the party in 1855. In seventy-three years it has had only five Democratic governors.

The state has slipped on its record as a political barometer many times. In 1876 Maine elected a Republican governor by 15,400 majority, which is spoken of as a fairly normal outcome, yet Tilden was elected. He was unopposed by the electoral commission in Washington. Four years later a Democratic governor, as the result of a fusion movement, was elected; however, in November, Garfield, a Republican, was elected president. In 1884 the Republican candidate for governor had a plurality of nearly 30,000, but Cleveland was elected president. In 1900 the state's opinion was supported by the election of a Republican governor, to be followed by election of Harrison (Dem.) president.

GOV. AL SMITH IS PRAISED BY SEN. ROBINSON

Religious freedom guarantee in the national constitution."

A rip was taken by the speaker at preachers who charge that Smith would turn the government over to the Catholics.

"In Smith's cabinet as governor of New York there are nine Protestants, two Catholics and one Jew," Robinson said. "The proportion in his appointments is about the same."

"Despite the searchlight that has been turned on him and despite the spies that have hounded him in public and private life he has stood the test and no one can point to a single dishonest act in his life."

Religious Freedom Guaranteed.

After declaring that the clause guaranteeing religious freedom was just as much a part of the constitution as any other section, Robinson took a parting shot at the backers of the national ticket on account of Smith's religion with this statement:

"Anyone who is against Al Smith because he is a Catholic is unworthy to be in the party of Thomas Jefferson."

The ceremonies at the Lobo stadium followed a dinner at the Cisco Country club at which Robinson was the guest of honor and which was attended by newspaper men and Democratic leaders of West Texas, Mayor J. M. Williamson introduced R. Q. Lee, congressman-elect, who presided as master of ceremonies.

Mrs. Sevier Sees Big Majority.

Mrs. Clara Driscoll Sevier, Democratic national committeewoman, predicted that the Smith-Robinson ticket would be given the largest majority in the history of Texas. She said that Texas would prove itself as true to the principles of Smith as to the principles of Sam Houston and the heroes of the Civil War.

"In the carpet bag days after the Civil War the women of the South looked to the Democratic party for salvation. The party did not fail them. Today they are looking to the Democratic party for relief from the most corrupt administration in American history. The Democratic party will not fail them in 1928," Mrs. Driscoll said.

Tom Connally, senator-elect, followed Mrs. Driscoll. He too predicted a tremendous majority for the Smith-Robinson ticket in November.

Connally Raps Republicans.

"The Democratic party was founded almost with the beginning of the American nation," he said. "It is the only party to survive the shocks and battles of the years. The Democratic party has been national in scope in all things and that is why it has survived. That and redeeming the people from the hands of the guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Frazier, at the Frazier Poultry farm.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Roberts of Cross Plains were guests of Miss Alberta Parsons Tuesday. Roberts is manager of the Texas Water Utilities ice plant in that city.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Ramsey and family returned yesterday from a vacation trip to Florida.

government for the American people.

The Republicans say they will enforce the law but they don't. The Democrats say that they will enforce the law and they will. Why, the Republicans haven't even enforced the law against common theft. If they did, their main supporters would all be in jail. They have not enforced the law against bribery. If they did they could not have a cabinet meeting. They have not enforced the law against conspiracy nor against robbery. If so, they would have prevented the exploitation of the people by predatory interests during the last eight years. They haven't enforced the anti-trust laws because they have approved the biggest mergers in our history.

"In 1920 Hoover did not know whether he was a Democrat or a Republican. Today we don't know whether he is wet or dry and neither does he."

South to Return Past Favors.

"Senator Robinson is bringing to Texas the message to do its duty but Texas will do it any way. In the days after the Civil War the Democrats of the South looked to the Democrats of the North to fight their battles and they did not look in vain. Today the Democrats of the South shall not prove untrue to the Democrats of the North. The Democrats of Texas will help to throw out the unscrupulous persons in high places."

The Gypsy Girls of Sweetwater, who were one of the hits at the Country Club dinner, proved a hit with the stadium audience. The audience rose when the girls sang "The Eyes of Texas Are Upon You."

The final speaker before Robinson was Eugene Lankford, Cisco lawyer and boyhood friend of the nominee, who introduced him.

Robinson lauded by Lankford.

"Joe Robinson has won the confidence of his colleagues and of the people by always doing his duty," Lankford said.

He drew a laugh from the audience when he said that the nominee naturally expected Senator Robinson would visit Cisco if he were to visit Dallas.

"The people knew if he visited one of the two leading cities in Texas, he would visit the other because of the rivalry between them," he said.

Lankford told of the boyhood home of Robinson, paid a personal tribute to him and said that while Smith, "the happy warrior," had the success habit, Robinson had the habit just as much.

Next Address in Nashville.

The Robinson party left Cisco Wednesday morning on the 2-49 eastbound Texas & Pacific train. It goes directly to Nashville, Tenn., where the senator is scheduled for an address Thursday afternoon.

Thyse accompanying Senator and Mrs. Robinson, in their special car to Cisco, included Grady Miller, brother of Mrs. Robinson; Carey Martin, secretary to Senator Robinson; Charles K. Bothwell, general passenger agent of the Missouri Pacific, in charge of publicity; Walter Chamblin, representative of the Associated Press; Gordon K. Shearer, representative of the United Press; Milt Saul, of the Dallas News; and W. H. Kittrell, Jr., of the Democratic headquarters, at Dallas.
