child, and had seemed to come escorting her until she had left her home town and George behind her. Now she just happened to remember that George had followed his father into the business.

"Why, you don't mean to tell me you know that old fossil," Harry cried in amazement at the actress.

"No, I don't think you are," Adele admitted, although she had expected to hear once more that very story. Evidently this young man was sincere.

"But I do think that if I got right into the center of the game, and found my market, and knew just what was happening every minute—why, do you know we never get a decent play here. Our only opportunity is Chicago, actually. I mean, to really see anything. And what are you going to do if you can't follow the present trend of plays?"

"You've never been around Broadway, then?" Adele questioned. "You don't know anything about the struggle that people go through before they actually land. You don't know the hard grinding work—"

"But I'm not afraid of work," Harry assured her. "I want to work—but I want to get into the environment that I need. I'd like to do something really good. Of course, I'll admit that a lot of people have got started from a small town—but don't they always end up on Broadway—I mean, after they've landed their first play. And, actually, how many people who are not on Broadway really do land there?"

"Perhaps you'd tell me about me of your ideas."

"He's in Chicago on business. But I say, how ever did you mean to know him?" Adele asked. "Harry's answer raised Adele to her feet at the young man, and then she ran away out the window for Harry to be given her 30 seconds.

scripts, if that's what you mean." He looked at Adele, pleading for sympathy. "Oh, please don't think I'm just an idler who has an idea he wants to do something, and that because he's so much better than everyone else, or the managers don't give a newcomer a chance, he can't get anything through. I'm not that way."

MOODY DENIES THAT HE WILL BACK HOOVER

AUSTIN, Sept. 25.—Governor Dan Moody today emphatically denied that he would support Herbert Hoover for the presidency.

Moody wired the editor of the New York Herald-Tribune that a story credited to his Austin correspondent is not to the effect that the governor has undergone a change of heart and will back Hoover.

"The statement attributed to my paper that while I had declared at the recent Democratic state convention I would vote for the Democratic ticket, a change of heart has come over me since that time, is completely untrue and I am supporting and shall continue to support the Democratic ticket," said Moody's telegram.

WILL C. HOGG'S VISIT HAS BEEN PROFITABLE TO PEOPLE OF CISCO

This week witnesses the closing of the Will C. Hogg evangelistic revival, which has been in progress during the past three weeks. With its closing many people will mark the going from our midst of a truly great preacher and a remarkable man—remarkable in many ways.

Mr. Hogg has had a life rich in experiences, out of which he has, by his own observing nature, learned many of the philosophies of life. An experience in the World War has added to a fine rich in human impulses, a fuller sympathy for the tragedy of misdirected lives and activities.

He is a great dramatist. He acts out his sermons in such live, realistic dramatizations as to bring the story and scenes depicted clearly before the eyes of his audience. Some say he has said that one reason that a few thousand years have intervened since the actual characters of his stories have lived and played their parts in the great drama of sacred history, so vivid is his portrayal that it seems these characters might be before our very eyes now. Others have remarked that a man with so great ability as an actor could, if he so desired, command a tremendous salary on the American stage or the lecture platform.

As the revival has progressed through his series of sermons, each one unique and seemingly better than the former, and is impressed with his knowledge of life in its complex phases, and his deep insight into human motives and impulses. A seemingly casual phrase, the Bible is made to stand out as one of the great supports pointing to the eternal truth of this inspired book when read out by him in his matchless way.

But Dr. Hogg shows his true greatness of soul when he preaches loving tolerance to his faithful wife who has been the inspiration and directing influence that has kept his feet steadily toward his life mission. Audiences have been convulsed with laughter and a quicky brought to tears, and then, in turn, exalted with the thrill of youthful love's memory, as he has brought before them some of his courtship scenes. And it is all for a purpose—part of his plan of gaining the hearing and hearts of those who might not otherwise lend themselves to his influence leading toward God.

"The Hogg party is somewhat different from most others who often go about the country," said a man in Cisco today. "They will leave a wave of influence for the good of every man and every phase of the town's life. They have preached no gospel of hate of one man or combination for another. They have not called attention to the shortcomings of any man or any stumbling Christian who may be having a hard time keeping in the straight and narrow path on account of ignorance not known to his associates. Their gospel has not been destructive but constructive instead. Dr. Hogg has said what you should do, rather than what you should not do. It is the DOING man rather than the DON'TING man that interests him."

And so with the close of the week, with all expenses of the meeting paid without being a burden to anyone, this great character will move on to other communities to continue his work to which destiny has assigned him—a destiny ruled over by God in His infinite wisdom—but every thinking man and woman will have received an inspiration that will result in a higher spiritual plane for Cisco church life. Already the doctrine of DOING has been felt and many inactive Christians have allied themselves with organized church work of the city.

Again we are reminded that the little wave set in motion on the great ocean of life will beat upon the other side of eternity's shore and the force of its pounding will not be diminished but rather be augmented by the multiple of the miles and years through which it has traveled in reaching that other shore, which is God.

B. S. HUEY IS INSTALLED AS ELKS' DEPUTY

B. S. Huey has returned home from Chicago, where he attended a meeting of the grand lodge officers of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks for the purpose of installing the district deputy grand ruler for the United States. He was one of those installed, having been appointed district deputy grand ruler for West Texas. This district, under his jurisdiction, comprises Cisco, Eastland, Ranger, Breckenridge, Abilene, Sweetwater and El Paso.

The first day's session was held in the Elks' national memorial building. Mr. Huey said, "This wonderful structure is considered the finest building of its kind in the world. It was constructed at a cost of $3,600,000, and required three years for its completion. It is a poem in marble, granite and bronze. It was dedicated in 1925 in memory of the 1,100 dead and 30,000 Elks who participated in the World War. To see this masterpiece of architectural art is worth a trip to Chicago."

The appointment of this prominent Cisco citizen and leading Texas Elks as district deputy grand ruler for West Texas is a distinct honor to Cisco lodge of Elks and to Cisco as well.

NOT GUILTY, IS PLEADING OF HIGH NUN

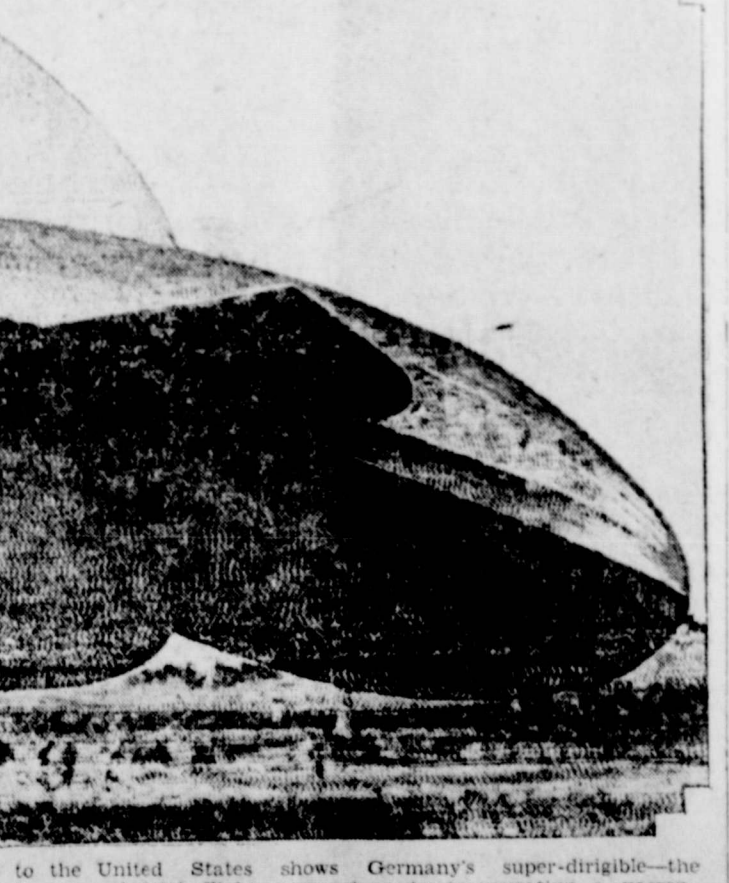

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 25.—Charges with complicity in the assassination of President-elect Alvaro Obregon on the night of July 17, Mother Superior Concepcion Acevedo Delalata was arraigned today and pleaded not guilty.

U. S. WILL NOT JOIN NEW PACT ON DISARMING

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—With the delivery of notes to the French and British governments within the next few days, the attitude of the United States toward further limitation of naval armament will be made known to both powers in no uncertain fashion, the state department announced today.

That the United States will not join in a tri-partite conference with Great Britain and France was made clear at the white house. President Coolidge is represented as having taken the position that whatever proposals this government has to offer as a substitute for the Franco-British agreement on light cruisers and submarines will be made before the preliminary commission on disarmament of the league of nations if and when such a conference is called.

COMPANION OF EX-CONVICT WILL BE HELD

AUSTIN, Sept. 25.—Louise Magness, companion of Jack Smith, former convict and football star who was killed by Oklahoma City police last week, will be held in Houston until she makes bond or charges against her have been disposed of. Sheriff T. A. Buford of Houston said today. Mrs. Magness has been taken to Houston.

TEXAS PEACE OFFICERS MEET IN CONVENTION

AUSTIN, Sept. 25.—Approximately 250 sheriffs and former peace officers were here today attending the 50th annual convention of the Texas Sheriff's association. The meeting was called to order by Albert Lauer of Maverick county. Governor Moody is scheduled to address the gathering tomorrow.

LAREDO ASKS CISCO ENVOYS VISIT THERE

Ray Lehman, manager of the South Texas chamber of commerce, has extended the Greater Cisco committee, through A. D. Anderson, chairman of that body a cordial invitation to be present at the next meeting of the South Texas chamber which convenes at Laredo, November 19-20. Unfortunately this is the date on which Chairman Anderson anticipates taking the Cisco boosters away from Cisco on their South Texas itinerary and they will not be able to reach Laredo in time to be guests of the South Texas chamber. The tentative plans for the South Texas trip do not include Laredo, but definite plans have not yet been adopted. However, it is expected that the final details and plans for the trip will be perfected when the Greater Cisco committee meets Thursday at this meeting representatives of the Katy and Southern Pacific railroads will be present when the route to be taken, the cities to be visited and all details are expected to be worked out.

LITTLE DANGER AT CAVEIN ON HOTEL WORK

J. J. Taylor, construction superintendent of the new hotel at under construction, states that the story in Tuesday's Daily News was liable to create a wrong impression, inasmuch as some might think precautions had not been taken to safeguard the lives of the workmen. He says there was "only a minimum of danger during the progress of the work of this excavation, as everything was carefully watched, and there were four men constantly on duty at the top of the hole." Mr. Taylor said that the statement regarding the cavein causing an expenditure of three times the amount necessary was more erroneous than entirely erroneous. He stated that the laborers on the excavation who gave out the information were irresponsible.

The Daily News has no desire to magnify any mishap that might occur on this or any other building under construction in Cisco, and realizes that accidents are liable to happen even when every precaution has been taken as is being done on the construction of this building. The details regarding the cavein were furnished by laborers on the job, and they merely stated that when they returned from getting refreshments the hole had caved, and there was about six feet of earth in the bottom of the hole.

Prisoner to Be Taken to Amarillo on Another Charge; Companion to Stand Trial for Carbon Robbery

Guilty and assessing his punishment at confinement in the Texas penitentiary for 99 years was the verdict of the jury trying F. S. Hyden in the 88th district court at Eastland in connection with the robbery of the First State bank of Carbon last December. The verdict was returned in open court this morning at 9:30 o'clock, according to County Attorney Sparks, who stated that Hyden is wanted in Amarillo on a federal charge for the robbery of a post-office in a town near that city. Mr. Sparks stated that he would probably be delivered to federal officers tomorrow.

The case of E. V. Allen, also indicted in connection with the robbery of the Carbon bank, will be called for trial immediately.

Judge J. R. Stuberfield is assisting County Attorney Sparks in the prosecution, while J. Lee Carver, of Cisco, is in charge of the defense by Attorney Mather, of Oklahoma City.

E. R. Trimble, cashier of the bank and his son, W. L. Trimble, a bookkeeper in the bank, testified to the hold-up of the bank, December 13, 1927. Both said that the defendant, Hyden, had threatened them with a pistol and told them to "stick em up." The cashier testified that $5,676 in currency and about $130 in silver was taken, but the silver was found a few days later buried in a pasture several miles from Carbon. The insurance company had paid the bank's loss. They testified to being backed against a wall together with Dr. S. P. Rumph, president of the bank and several customers who had come into the bank including three Johnson boys, Lon Reed and Frank Beatty. They testified to being thrust into the bank vault and the door closed on them, but the lock did not work easily and the door was not securely closed. In a little while they had it opened, but the defendant and his companion had disappeared. They had seen a car parked near the bank before the hold-up and that car was gone. They testified to the defendant, entering the vault and getting what money he could find there before they were thrust in.

SMITH IS HOT ON TRAIL OF INDEPENDENTS

BILLINGS, Mont., Sept. 25.—Governor Smith swung into the heart of the progressive Northwest today, still hot on the trail of the Laborite independent vote of 1924. North Dakota stops today are scheduled at Mandan, Bismarck, Jamestown, Valley City and Fargo.

MUSIC, TALKS ON PROGRAM OF LIONS ENJOYED

The Lions luncheon program Wednesday was in charge of Ed Wagoner and Dr. C. C. Jones with Wagoner acting as chairman for the day. The features of the program were vocal selections by Mrs. Ben McClinton, accompanied by Mrs. S. E. Hittson at the piano, and a talk by E. H. Varvel on vocational agriculture. The music was exceptionally entertaining and brought forth repeated applause, while the discussion by Mr. Varvel was both instructive and interesting.

Coach W. B. Chapman gave some interesting sidelights on the progress of the football team. He said among other things that the Lobos were very likely to be under dogs in the El Paso contest to be played at Cisco Oct. 5. Rumors reaching here are to the effect that El Paso has a much stronger team than last year and that they are determined to avenge the defeat inflicted on them last season.

Harry Schaefer and L. P. Kunkendall will have charge of the program next week.

LOBOES BEING DRILLED FOR CLASH FRIDAY

Coaches Chapman and Oelghty are daily sending their proteges through break workouts to prepare for the coming game with Stamford Friday afternoon. The head of the pugskin and the cutting of signals can be heard every afternoon at Chesley field until nearly dark, because the Lobo mentors are expecting some stiff competition from the Stamford Bulldogs. The Lobos are coming to Cisco with blood in their eyes, for the Lobos barely nosed out with a 6-0 win over the Bulldogs in their last engagement, and the Stamford aggression has not forgotten this slugging defeat in 1927.

The Lobos are being heavily drilled on new plays which are expected to add power and vigor to their offense. The line, which has been to date the outstanding weakness of the Lobo eleven, is showing marked improvement under Stamford Friday afternoon drilling, and an improved stone wall can be expected to take the field against Stamford. The Lobos are pointing to their game with El Paso, and are not letting up practice, but are instilling more pep enthusiasm into the workouts. An able punter is at last thought to have been found in "Curley" Kellogg, heady little quarter, and as equally an efficient passer in "Eric" Van Horn.

DEFIANT, MRS. WILLEBRANDT WON'T BACK UP

CHICAGO, Sept. 25.—Mrs. Mebel Walker Willebrandt, assistant United States attorney general and center of one of the bitterest controversies in the Republican presidential campaign today vigorously denied that she had any explanation or apology for anyone regarding her campaign speeches in which she assailed Governor Alfred E. Smith. She stated emphatically that she would continue making speeches but refused to discuss the repudiation by western Republican headquarters of her Ohio speech in which she was quoted as telling a group of Methodist ministers that their church had 300,000 members who should help the Republican ticket. She said that she was leaving today for Washington to continue her fight against prohibition violators.

GEARED TOO HIGH.

Last summer a party of vacationists were touring a certain section of the United States. "Hold on!" said one of the group to the one at the wheel. "Let's stop here and get something to drink."

"Better go on to the next village," said the driver without slackening speed. "These folks here charge you a dime for a nickel drink. They stung me when I was up here last season. About five miles down the road there's a place where they don't rob you. Let's go there if you don't mind."

The avariciousness of some human beings is constantly causing them to do as did the greedy dog with a bone in his mouth crossing a stream over a log. Seeing his reflection in the water and thinking it another dog with another bone, he grabbed for the other bone and dropped the bone he had.

Sometimes you find whole communities who believe the best way to make money is to high-price everybody. If they can stick 50 per cent or 100 per cent on their cost price, and get it, they are greatly gratified. They think when they are charging all the traffic will stand they are doing something keen. They fail to realize that they are killing the goose that lays the golden eggs.

Money is the most timid thing in the world and has the most sensitive skin. Scrape money's skin and it is going to stay away from there, wherever that is.

O. O. McIntyre, who has a way of picking up vital facts about cities, declares that the phenomenal growth of Los Angeles is largely due to the fact that the people of that city have sense enough to make it a cheap place in which to live. A town where living cost is low is particularly attractive to persons who want to retire—who already have enough to live on, and wish to settle down in a spot where they can get the most for their money.

An economical place appeals also to the folks who want to take a vacation, and haven't more money than they know what to do with—there are such folks.

It is a short-sighted policy that impels the people of any community to gouge everybody. And that gouging propensity is very apt to be characteristic of the tourist town.

"We'll never see him again, so let's get every cent we can" is not only the attitude, but the expressed purpose of some resort sections. And probably they don't see him again. He has better sense than to come back. He stays away, and tells his friends and acquaintances to stay away.

It is the steady flow of business that counts. It is the repeat business. It is the volume that figures up big in the long run. Henry Ford proved that principle with his little old dinky tin Model T. It is the tourist who comes year after year, or comes and stays, and who brings friends and acquaintances, that makes the tourist town. And nothing will bring people faster than the phrase, "It's a cheap place to live in."

The first thing the industrialist wants to know when looking for a location is about the cost of living, for he knows that that cost must be reflected in the wages he must pay. He further knows that low prices mean more food for his workers; plenty of good food means more contentment. And the sensible industrialist seeks contentment for his employees.

What common sense is there in charging a man ten cents for a five cent article or two dollars for a dollar proposition and sending him away to knock your town? That is destructive publicity. And it has a nullifying effect on any advertising effort of your chamber of commerce.

PUBLICITY FOR SCIENCE.

Why should cigarettes, tooth paste and face powder have all the publicity? The American Chemical Society appropriates $250,000, contributed by 118 industrial concerns, to bring scientific facts to the attention of the public. The facts, to be observed, will have no necessary connection with the business furnishing the money. The purpose is philanthropic—yet practical in the long run. This is the richest era of science. New scientific discoveries in chemistry, physics and other branches, are being made right along, at a rate never known before. The general public misses most of the new stuff. Even experts miss a good deal of it, though applicable to their branches and immensely valuable for modern industry. A fact in print on a library shelf gathering dust does nobody any good. Facts are valuable only in people's minds. Knowledge that is not used is as if it did not exist. Scientists are tired of wasting their time. They want prompt, practical results. So they are going to use the ordinary agencies of publicity to make the public acquainted with the wealth of new scientific data available. The money appropriated is a mere trifle compared with the funds that might well be used for such a purpose. Scientific minds are the greatest resource of this industrial age, and their discoveries and conclusions are the most valuable output. The progress and prosperity of the future depends on utilizing their work.

AIR SAFETY.

An impressive fact about the air races recently concluded in Los Angeles is their general safety. One pilot was killed while doing some reckless stunts which many authorities agree should not have been permitted. Two others had a narrow escape when they insisted on using a plane which had been declared unsafe by experts. On the other hand, many planes, of many different types, size, weight, cost and speed, crossed the continent, passing over two mountain ranges, going through some pretty bad weather, and did so with few serious mishaps, though none of them succeeded in the big, non-stop race. Partly this safety was achieved by ground precautions—well-marked courses and emergency landing fields. Excellent planes and excellent pilots were other causes of safety and success. There are frequent airplane accidents, still. There have been too many in recent months. But they are rapidly becoming fewer in proportion to the total amount of flying done.

OIL FOR RAILROADS

Railroad fuel experts, studying "conservation in railroad management," have been considering the substitution of fuel oil for coal. This change has been made already to a considerable extent on some lines. There is no question of the superiority of oil over coal, in many ways, as a transportation fuel. Its value has been tested fully on ships and pretty well demonstrated on locomotives. Nevertheless it is hoped that the trend toward oil on American railroads will not go much further. As the fuel supervisor of one of the oil-burning roads observes, "the United States has already used up three-fourths of its estimated oil supply." Why hasten the process? The coal supply, while not inexhaustible, is incomparatively greater. Moreover, the oil industry can make a living readily enough, by using judgment in its production, while the coal industry has been in the slough of despond for several years and still lacks an adequate market. While conserving, why not conserve fuel resources by making better use of coal, instead of hastening oil exhaustion?

JURIES AND JUSTICE.

What is the supreme test of a nation? Its administration of justice, says an American judge. What is the greatest obstacle to the administration of justice in this country? Inability to obtain good juries. What is to be done about it? The judge suggests that business men serve more on juries, for business reasons as well as patriotic reasons. "While the average business man is not interested in a theoretical discussion of the constitution," His Honor observes, "he is interested in the proper administration of justice, guaranteed by the constitution." Constitutional guarantees, like others, are no good without guarantors.

The Baffler

Governor Smith is a better baffler than Secretary Hoover. We need a good baffler for President. Hoover never baffled anybody, but you ought to see Al Smith's baffling muscles. He has been Governor of New York State for eight years and all during that time he has kept in shape the way...

Smith has won out four state legislatures simply by outbaffling them. He just spends an hour a day with them on the baffling mat in the State Capitol following which the Governor and the legislature have brisk run downs and the State Capitol is given a thorough sand blasting.

Just think! If Smith should be elected President and there happened, by some odd quirk of fate to be a Republican Congress he could wear it out by baffling them there would be no Congress and, as President Coolidge always says, any Congress is best when exhausted.

A President also has to be able to baffler slick foreign diplomat who try to outwit our country, ma she always be right or wrong? mean the way Roosevelt baffled the Kaiser's creatures in the Venezuela crisis. Or was that Cleveland?

For instance, suppose the Italian ambassador came to President Smith and suggested that Senator Heblin of Alabama be ceded to Italy so that the Italian Government might be able to keep the Pope a continual state of alarm and indignantly by having Tom Heblin continually make speeches, stir a breeze around the Eternal City which gets very hot when it is very hot. Now, President Smith would have to be able to baffler the Italian ambassador by getting the very best price possible for Tom. Let us say, about two dollars.

POWDER MY BACK, starring Irene Rich, is a Warner Bros. production of this novel.

SYNOPSIS Adele Dayton, famous musical comedy star playing in "Powder My Back," has numerous photographs... One of these pictures appears in her home town paper...

CHAPTER VI—Continued "You said that you were with the Brookton National Bank," Adele encouraged the conversation.

"No, I don't think you are," Adele admitted, although she had expected to hear some more that very story.

"He's in Chicago on business," Harry answered. "I don't know when he'll get back."

"You're right," Adele admitted. "If you want to sell a certain brand of goods, you have to go to the market where those goods are sold."

"Perhaps you'll tell me about some of your ideas," Adele suggested. "No one can promise help, but of course, if I can offer any suggestions, I'd be glad to do that."

"I don't suppose, after all," Harry was pursuing his argument, "that there is anything so actually new along the lines of plot, but I think that there are some new ways of presenting ideas."

GAMBLING WITH SOUL AS STAKE VIVIDLY TOLD

Risking of Eternal Welfare for Temporal Pleasures Is Decried by Evangelist Hogg Dramatically

A dramatic and gripping presentation of the tremendous uncertainty of life and the tragic consequences incident to a person gambling his eternal welfare against the paltry lure of temporal things was heard by the usual large audience last night when Dr. Will Hogg delivered his sermon on "The Gamble with Death."

The size of the audience last night was not at all diminished by the fact of the cooler weather nor the counter attraction and the service was one of the best in the series.

Dr. Hogg presented one of his souvenir Bibles to Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Fee, hosts to Mr. Rodgers of the evangelistic party.

Not a sane business man will run his business in an unwarmed building, but the same business man has not the same sense of insurance on his soul.

There are easily 1,500 people in your fine little city in nobody's church. There is only one reason—they are running after the bait of pleasure and selfish ambition to the dead fall of life.

Sidelights On Union Revival

Morning services of the campaign are largely attended each day and are proving the most inspiring and helpful service of the series.

This afternoon the women of the city are conducting sectional prayer services throughout the city in the interest of the campaign.

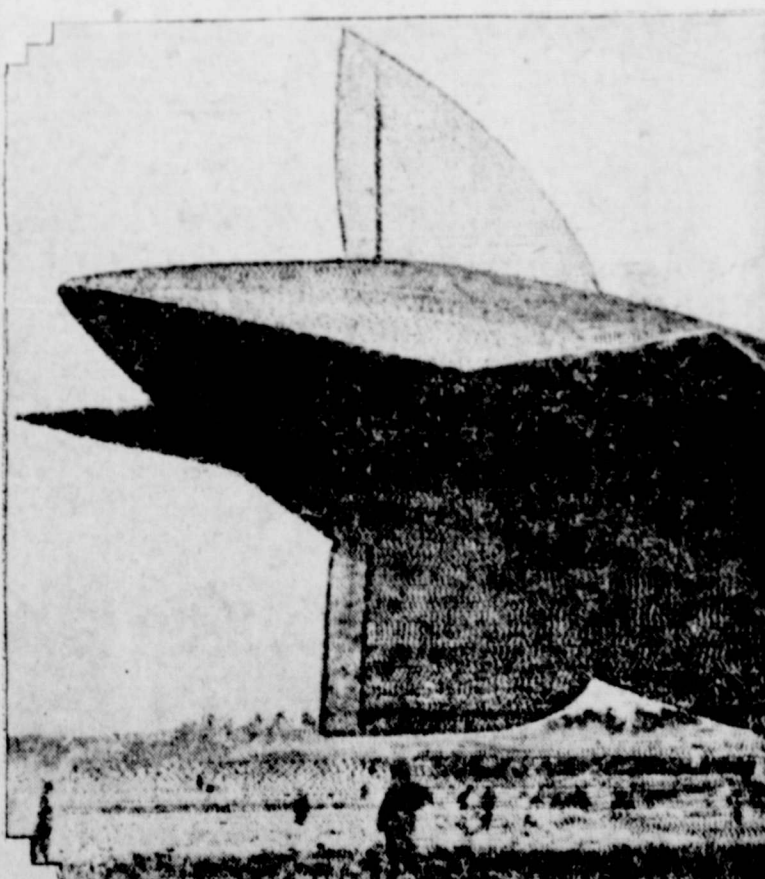

A special musical program will precede the evening sermon tonight. Mrs. Edna Beck White of Mineral Wells and others will assist the splendid local choir in special numbers.

PITHY PARAGRAPHS FROM HOGG

The problem of our young people, I again assert, is the problem of Bible-less, careless, prayerless homes. Card playing, pleasure, exciting games are not producing modest, reverent, Bible-loving children.

The tragedy of our life today is that many indolent, ease-loving, careless parents, filled with social and temporal ambition for their children, who themselves once knew the inspiration and discipline and standards of the family altar, are some day going to return to

Rev. E. L. Springer, Baptist minister of Brownwood, led in the opening prayer last night. Rev. E. L. Mayne, pastor of the Central Methodist church at Brownwood, was a visitor in the service yesterday morning.

Dr. Hogg forcefully illustrated the trusting faith necessary to salvation last night when he called a little girl to the platform and without any instruction placed her on the high speakers' platform and took his stand on the ground in front of the platform and asked her to jump in his arms.

The audience last night was rejoiced to note the return of Mrs. G. M. Stephenson, one of the talented members of the choir, to her place on the platform.

The big usher crew at the tabernacle got a rest last night so far as passing pans for an offering was concerned.

NATION-WIDE WAR ON RODENTS WAGED BY HEALTH SERVICE

Best Methods of Extermination Are to Eliminate Hiding Places and Keep Food Away from Rats

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—A war to exterminate the rat which is estimated to cost the American people about $400,000,000 annually in food consumed and property destroyed, is being waged by the United States Health Service. Conservative figures, the health service says, place the rat population of the United States at 120,000,000, or one rat for every person. In certain places the ratio is believed to be much higher, while in localities where rodents are systematically fought, the rat population has been considerably reduced.

Spreads Rapidly
If the prolific breeding of rats were not controlled by disease, natural enemies and extermination of the animal, the world would soon be overrun and man himself forced to fight a losing battle for scraps of food, it added.

"The general unweariness of a condition which has assumed the proportions of a grave national problem," the health service declared, "is proof of the marvellous resourcefulness and cunning of the rat. What other organisms and destructive animal could have lived so long and in such close proximity to man without having made itself so venially objectionable as to excite a wave of movement leading to speedy extermination?"

"In the war-aid fight for survival, the rat has learned lessons of sagacity, patience and audacity that fit it well for a contest in which man must exercise his ingenuity to the utmost if he would win."

Plan of Attack
Direct measures of attack, the health service believes, have been limited hitherto in the hands of the public, but suggestive measures offer the best means of exterminating the rat. The most effective measure is to separate the rat from its customary food supply and the health service recommends that food be kept in rat-proof containers wherever foodstuffs are stored. Elimination of hiding places also makes life more difficult for the

CAVE MEN OF KENTUCKY GO BACK TO WAR

BOWLING GREEN, Ky., Sept. 26.—The "cave men" of Kentucky are now resorting to the chief pastime of their ancestors—war. And Andy Lee Collins, brother of Floyd Collins who died in Sand Cave three years ago is one of the first casualties of the warfare.

Collins, who is one of the first casualties of the warfare, is a member of the various united cavers of Kentucky for the tourist trade has become so keen that respect is being bestowed, according to evidence in the case of Collins, who was tried for destroying signs of vital signs along the Dixie highway. Collins has been bound over to the grand jury.

John B. Higginbotham, chief warden under Collins, testified that Collins, who has been manager of Collins Cave, killed as the discovery of Floyd Collins, paid him two dollars for each road sign of a vital sign he would destroy. In addition, the witness said that Collins offered him $10 if he would burn the Diamond Cavern Co.'s mine at Glasgow Junction.

Andy Collins was one of the thousands of remote party members that tried to save Floyd Collins from his tragic death while the world looked on.

TEXAS PROHIBITIONIST URGES SUPPORT OF GOVERNOR SMITH

Democratic Nominee Has Shown He Keeps His Word While G. O. P. Is Mellon's Tool, Hatcher Says

Declaring that as an uncompromising prohibitionist he prefers to trust Governor Smith with enforcement of the prohibition laws to Herbert Hoover, Republican presidential nominee, W. Gregory Hatcher, Texas state treasurer, has issued a statement setting forth reasons why he intends to vote for the Democratic national ticket in the general election. Governor Smith, who admits dissatisfaction with present prohibition measures, has said that he would enforce the prohibition laws and he has shown that he keeps his promises, Hatcher says, while Andrew Mellon, secretary of the treasury and claimed to be the largest distiller in the world, head of the prohibition enforcement forces, dictated the nomination of Hoover by the Republicans.

Hatcher's statement follows:

To the Democrats of Texas:

The hour for straight shooting on the part of candidates, as well as individual Democrats in my opinion, is at hand. The Democratic party in this state is not facing the greatest crisis in its history and no man can or ought to be permitted to dodge the issues involved in the coming November election.

Personally, I am a Democrat, who next to his God and his country, loves his party and who because of his love for his God and desire to best serve his country, is loyal to his party, whether I agree with all that my party stands for or not.

Next to my Democracy comes the cause of prohibition, and wherever, and however I can serve that cause within my party, I shall do so to the utmost of my ability.

I stand squarely behind every prohibition measure that has been enacted into law in this state, and I support the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Act, and am opposed to any change whatsoever being made in the Constitutional amendment and national law, and any change being made in the state law, except to tighten it up to the extent that the same can be done under the constitution of Texas and to have it enforced, which is not now being done.

The national Democratic convention recently held at Houston did not name for president the candidate of my choice but named another, Governor Alfred E. Smith, whose views of prohibition are diametrically opposed to mine in every respect, except that he promises to enforce the Eighteenth Amendment and Volstead Act, and in this particular only does his view on the prohibition question agree with mine. However, he is unquestionably a man of his word and I sincerely believe that he will keep his promise to enforce prohibition to the best of his ability, and that all I ask of any executive, The amendment and I know that they will not do so at least during this generation, and congress alone can change the Volstead Act, and the president in neither instance has any voice in these matters.

Contrasted with the promise of Governor Smith to enforce prohibition we have eight years of non-enforcement with attendant crime waves that have swept over the nation under the Republican party.

Eight years of bootleg rule and debauch under Republican administrations which constitute the blackest pages of American history.

Eight years with Andrew

Mellon, Republican secretary of the treasury prohibiting enforcement officer, reputed to be America's largest distiller of alcoholic liquors and by many thought to be the bitterest enemy of prohibition in America, enforcing prohibition and the United States being pointed to as the bootlegger's paradise.

That, together with the prospects of four more years of bootlegging and debauch if Herbert Hoover, the Republican candidate, is elected is the inducement the Republican party offers Texas Democrats to have them bolt their party.

Mr. Mellon named Herbert Hoover the candidate of the Republican party in 1928, as truly as did Mark Hanna name William McKinley the candidate of that party in 1896, and of course we know the formula of convention, etc. were gone through with but it is Mellon's voice that spoke the magic words and if Mr. Hoover should be elected president, Mr. Mellon if not continued as the secretary of the treasury, will at least name his successor. With this prospect and second before me, I have inclined to put prohibition ahead of my party, which I am not, then and in that event, for the good of the prohibition cause alone, I would vote for Governor Smith in preference to Mr. Hoover.

I am opposed to the nullification of the Eighteenth Amendment. I have examined carefully into the records and speeches of Governor Smith, and I am convinced that he in no wise favors or has favored the nullification of this amendment. On the other hand, I favor the nullification, to the extent that they have been nullified for the preservation of our white civilization in this Southland of the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments.

Not until after the election of a Democrat, and New Yorker, for president of the United States, did the South get out from under the negro domination that was placed over it by the Republican party, and I am one who joined in nullification parties held in my home county after Grover Cleveland was elected president, and helped to drive away from the ballot box negroes who had controlled the elections in that county for years.

From the Eighteenth district of Illinois (Chicago) there has been registered on the Republican ticket and in November that district will elect to the congress of the United States a negro, the first of his race to sit in the American congress since the days of reconstruction. This negro has already announced that if Mr. Hoover is elected, nullification of the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments

Chevrolet Passes Five Millionth Milestone

Chevrolet's rise to leadership was again indicated on Sept. 8 when the five millionth car rolled off the assembly line at the Flint, Mich., plant. The milestone car was a standard coach—one of the most popular models in the line. Below is the first Chevrolet built in 1913.

as practiced in Texas and other Southern states, will cease, and the word has been passed on to the negroes of the doubtful states to insure their voting, as they have always done, the Republican ticket.

In addition to this Mr. Hoover since being named secretary of commerce issued or permitted to be issued an order the like of which was never before issued by any government official white or black, Republican or what not, placing negro men at desks in department areas from white girls.

These are facts which cannot be denied and constitute some of the reasons why I believe that the white people of the South, in any great extent, will not, and should not, vote for Mr. Hoover, or vote the Republican ticket, for another generation at least.

There are numerous affirmative reasons why Governor Smith should be elected, which I shall go into later, but it is sufficient for me to know that he is the nominee of my party to insure my support. I have been signally honored by the Democrats of Texas, many of whom are now swaying in their loyalty to the Democratic candidate, and some of whom will vote for the Republican candidate in the coming general election, or refuse to vote at all, and not only would it be unbecoming but it would be unjust for me to say one unkind word about any such, and I shall not do so.

While this is true, it is also true that I feel that one unqualified allegiance to the party of my choice, and of my fathers' back to the days of Thomas Jefferson, and I am but exercising my unquestioned privilege, and discharging what I believe to be my sacred duty in declaring my party loyalty, and calling upon the Democrats of my beloved state to stand by the party of their fathers, as well as mine, in the November election and vote the Democratic ticket SPREADIT—from president to candidate.

Heifer, Traded to West Texas Pioneer for Pound of Coffee in 1876, Netted Him $1,000 Profit

ALPINE, Sept. 26.—W. E. Proett, now of Santa Rita, N. M., one of the first settlers of the Texas section west of the Pecos, is in Alpine trying to find old friends and acquaintances of 50 years ago. He says there are very few left. There are only two people in Fort Davis who were mature in 1876 when Mr. Proett first came. He has found only a person here and there who lived in the Big Bend country in those pioneer days.

Mr. Proett tells the very interesting story of the first Missouri head of cattle driven over a thousand miles in 1876 to Ben Ficklin, Tom Green county.

Mr. Proett, before 1876 came on the train from White county, Arkansas, to Trinidad, Colo., as far west as he could travel at that time by rail. As well as I remember it was the Santa Fe we came to Trinidad on. Anyhow, it was the end of the rainy season and the men and teams at Trinidad and moved down to Santa Fe N. M. in 1876. In the fall of 1876 father bought 90 head of Shorthorn Missouri cattle. We left Santa Fe in the winter time so that we could have the snow, which was necessary as drinking water for our party of eleven people and the horses. There were four men, two women and five children, and each evening we melted snow for the people and horses.

Arrived at Ben Ficklin. We drove over a lot of wild, unexplored land, but reached Ben Ficklin, Tom Green county, on New Year's Day, 1877. Ben Ficklin was then the county seat of Tom Green county, which joined Prentiss county. Both were immense counties. Ben Ficklin was about eight miles north of San Angelo. It was washed away by a flood in 1882 and was never rebuilt.

"After our long and perilous journey all of our herd died of the Texas fever except four dogs, calves and one 2-year-old heifer, which my father traded a pound of coffee for about December 23, 1877, on the drive.

"While we were camped near the falls on the north side of the Pecos river, close to where Pecos City now is, a Mexican from the Torres farm rode up on horseback and offered father a 2-year-old heifer for one pound of coffee. Father told the Mexican that he had no saddle horse and that the heifer was wild and that he couldn't keep her with the bunch, but would lose her. Then the Mexican told my father that he would deliver the heifer next morn-

CROSS CUT TO BE SERVED BY ELECTRICITY

Keeping pace with the growth of West Texas another extension of the copper highway of the West Texas Utilities company electrifying the town of Cross Cut is announced. Construction work has been started on a 60-000 volt line beginning at the Dutch lease in the Blake oil field, extending the line west for a distance of six miles to the town of Cross Cut. Extension of this line will provide light and power to this rapidly growing community. At the same time it was announced by company officials that the Nevada House oil field line would be extended from the Roberts Oil company well to the Foster-Prudhoe company well to serve three drilling wells and for pumping of water.

CALUMET AND POSTUM FIRMS FORM MERGER

CHICAGO, Sept. 26.—A $22,000,000 business merger has just been consummated with the combining of the Calumet Baking Powder company and the Postum cereal company, according to an announcement of Warren Wright, president of the Calumet Baking Powder company. The deal, one of the largest commercial mergers of the year, was effected through an exchange of capital stocks. It was stated, Mr. Wright will continue as head of the baking powder company and will also act as a director of the Postum company.

Both concerns are leaders in the food field. Calumet is one of the largest selling brands of baking powder in the world, while Postum cereal products have for years had an international distribution. W. M. Wright, founder of the Calumet Baking Powder company, who is now retiring as chairman of the board of directors, started in the baking powder business here 35 years ago. His factory was a hut, but drew a plank runway across the top of a barrel. Today the Calumet Baking Powder company has large manufacturing plants in Chicago and East St. Louis and a gigantic material factory at Joliet, Ill. Acting as chief counsel for the Calumet Baking Powder company in the merger was Sydney S. Gorham.

ANALYSIS OF COLOMBIAN PETROLEUM IS ORDERED

BOGOTA, Colombia, Sept. 26.—The secretary of industry ordered a detailed analysis of Colombian oil to be made. This information will be sent to the world's petroleum markets. The measure resulted from reports that Colombian oil of excellent quality was being hoarded with inferior grades in American markets to make the low grade oil saleable. It was also announced that a treaty commission on the petroleum field had held several meetings to study the proposed commercial treaty with the United States.

Ocean Fliers Not Dare-Devs But Torches of Progress, Says Junkers; Compared to Martyrs

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—Trans-oceanic aviation, whether they fly into space to return no more or sail into renown, are brilliant torches in the march of progress, not simply dare-devils, in the opinion of Professor Hugo Junkers, world famous German airplane manufacturer.

Professor Junkers, who made known his views during a recent visit to America, declared that to call these men suicide aspirants or reckless stargazers for fame was unjust and incorrect.

"History has too often made dare-devils into martyrs of an idea and of great discovery," he said. "Columbus and Magellan were the scatter-brains and useless dreamers of their day. They did not wait for the development of the twin screw steamship. They used the best boats at hand."

Built Hurricane Plane

It was the big Junkers organization which built the plane in which Baron Huenefeld and his two companions flew from Germany to this country. The Junkers machines are known for their stability and general air worthiness. Their maker, disclaimed all financial or organization connected with any aviation flight, but declared heartily in favor of those who attempted trips over water.

He emphasized the argument that present day aviators should wait until a more suitable machine is developed for ocean flying.

"Provisionary as this argument appears," he pointed out, "it is correct. It lies in the nature of every development of communication that the intermediate stage of pure venture cannot be skipped."

Junkers declared American air traffic would soon outstrip European. He said he welcomed the recent transfer of the endurance flying record from German to American hands, inasmuch as this would be a stimulant for German aviation.

It is wrong to deny practical value to long flights, the veteran flying machine maker asserted. Problems resulted from them which could be got in no other way, and which resulted in progress, he declared.

"It is always the great problem that produces the exceptional accomplishment," he added. "The development of aviation would not have been possible without the type of men who takes risks. The first development will also not be able to do without the cultivation of courage and resolution. A step for an ideal object has never yet been in vain, even if the one or the other did not gain a name by the history of development complete, but the movement itself is driven forward by those ready-to-venture men who do not flinch at danger."

"We can distinguish the action of two fundamentally different but independent types of men in all fields, the conservative and the pioneer, the man who stakes all on one card, the man of great risks. This is the man of progress. Such as he broadens the boundary of human energy and action. Such men create tension urge and tradition, in a word, development."

Praises Venture

The manufacturer denied, however, that to every venture could be attributed a moral value simply because it was a venture.

"That would be too far reaching a conclusion," he said. "It goes without saying the venture is also subject to criticism, and one must condemn every venture where the object is not great enough to justify the risk, or where the degree of probability of success is too small."

This measure is somewhat excessive, however, and history has revealed many a judgment that contemporaries passed. When we look back from the standpoint of our stage of technical development, we may say with good reason that the history of development consists at first only of attempts with unsuitable means."

El Paso Tigers, Defeated Year Ago by Lobos by Slim Margin, Appear Stronger in '28 Edition

The Lobos of Cisco high school are not going to be over-confident when they meet the El Paso Tigers here Friday, October 5. True they defeated the El Pasoans in the border city last year but it was only by a margin of one touchdown and they had to fight hard from beginning to end.

The Tigers appear to be stronger this year than they were last—at least, Bud Roe, sport writer in the El Paso Herald thinks so. Their 35-0 victory over Austin, N. M., would indicate it.

Commenting on the Tigers prospects, Roe had the following to say in print:

"There's going to be some high-class football played by the high school Tigers this year, and you can lay to that, my betters." City Water, during the past few weeks, that was on hand to bid welcome to the affable young mentor.

In that squad there is material for a winning football team, and Ole and Walter are the two boys who are capable of whipping it into shape. The two mentors, both just out of school themselves, went along in their first year here last season. Since then each has attended a coaching school and with the practical experience picked up last year, they should be able to develop an undefeatable outfit this season.

That is their one aim, and don't be surprised if they accomplish that ambition.

To start off with, they will have 14 lettermen, including two captains and two co-captains, with which to form a nucleus for the combination. Included in the 14 are some mighty likely prospects, but with the added wealth of new material, the old-timers are promised some stiff competition for every position on the team.

The host of newcomers will be a decidedly valuable asset for the young coaches, as it means that no player, be he a letterman or not, is assured of a place on the lineup. That should tend to make the players try hard all the time, as a man fighting for a place works harder than one who can rest on his laurels.

Players of the caliber of Art Boehle, captain of the Tigers two years ago; Louie Railston, last year's captain; Nic Osborne, co-captain this year; Bill Sullivan, Osborne's running mate; "Wee Willie" Schreffler, the clever little quarter, and several others are included in the list that will have to compete—and compete hard—for positions this year, and hard competition makes a football team.

Among the new arrivals who are reasonable for the lack of experience this season are "Half Pint" Gillenwater, a husky young fellow who hails from Arkansas, where, it is said, he won all-state honors last year. He is a backfield man, tipping the scales at 220 pounds, and said to be able to turn the century dash in 11 seconds.

Another likely newcomer is "Red" Lookadoo, carrot-topped, freckled, young piekinner who comes from Gillenwater's home town.

Dick Stark from St. Louis, also looms as a prospective regular. While not showing much form during the opening workouts, he has a good build and seems willing to work.

Another who has been drawing plenty of attention is young Don Thomas, who played on the Austin junior high school team last year. I pick him to be in his class—the Tiger comes this year, despite the fact that he is young and has but little experience. He is built from the ground up and has plenty of pep and drive.

B. P. Brown who last year attended the New York Military Institute, is also making a bid for the team.

Several other newcomers, some of whom have had experience, are expected to join the squad before the end of the week, and, with one of the best squads seen here in years, it will be well worth the time of football fans to keep their eyes on the Tigers this season.

Apartment is so scarce in the larger German cities that thousands of young married couples are condemned to live for years in boarding houses or with their parents.

"We can distinguish the action of two fundamentally different but independent types of men in all fields, the conservative and the pioneer, the man who stakes all on one card, the man of great risks. This is the man of progress. Such as he broadens the boundary of human energy and action. Such men create tension urge and tradition, in a word, development."

Praises Venture

The manufacturer denied, however, that to every venture could be attributed a moral value simply because it was a venture.

"That would be too far reaching a conclusion," he said. "It goes without saying the venture is also subject to criticism, and one must condemn every venture where the object is not great enough to justify the risk, or where the degree of probability of success is too small."

This measure is somewhat excessive, however, and history has revealed many a judgment that contemporaries passed.
