BADGERS TAKE CAMERON INDIANS INTO CAMP BY 26-13

and Banks Are Outstanding Stars in Randolph's Second Win; Oklahomans Held by Stone Wall

By DICK WEST.

Badgers took their second straight win as many starts, the Randolphs scalped the highly Cameron Aggies Friday, 26-13. Cameron, otherwise known as Aggie, gave many thrills to the fans that saw the game every time. Randy offset operations by a brilliant run-back. The Badger band, composed of some 20 peppy musicians, hand to urge their team to continuous fumbling by the Oklahomans. The first half of the Randolph line, reinforced by the Howard Brown. Lobo of 26 and last year a mainstay of the S. M. U. freshman showed up to expectations. Bill Smith and Mays were the stars. Coach Carter said what he wanted it to be. Those brilliant work in the game won him the laurels. Randy, also played a whole game. In the backfield, Wax, who was the outstanding performer making three touchdowns, also gained great yardage and a touchdown. Coach said the sidelines most of the game, playing a steady and a game, was taken out to second string man obtain some rest.

Banks for the extra point, making the count 13-7. Badgers.

Early in the last quarter Wax intercepted a Cameron pass on the Aggie 25 yard line. After two plays, Banks went around left end for a touchdown and Banks added the extra point. With only a few minutes remaining, Cameron added another tally on a pass. Johnson to Conway. This was a lucky break for Breckner, playing defensive half for Randy, knocked the ball down and apparently thought it safely out of the way, but it fell into the hands of Conway. Attempt to kick goal failed.

The starting lineups were:

Randolph	Position	Cameron
Mayer	Center	Wolfe
Chapman	Right Guard	Mays (Capt.)
Nard	Right Tackle	Hardy
Wax	Right End	Johnson
Banks	Quarter	Meika
Couch	Left Half	Sargeant
Yeager (Capt.)	Right Half	Sullivan
Substitutions—Randolph—Harrison for Beard; Potter for Couch; Crist for Nard; Breckner for Potter; Cameron—Potter for Sargeant; Conway for Milligan; Smith for Conway; Barrett for Sullivan.
Officials—Chapman (Austin) referee; Nigro (Baylor) head linesman.

RANGER NOSES OUT EASTLAND BY 26-25 SCORE

EASTLAND, Oct. 13.—A marvelous rally in the final quarter enabled the Eastland Mavericks to give the Ranger Bulldogs the scare of their lives Friday, but when the Mavericks were off side on the last try for the extra point, the Bulldogs were able to win their opening official game, 26 to 25. With Connie Smith, midget quarterback, hurling, and Chestnut, end, receiving, Eastland flashed brilliant aerial attack. Chestnut scored all four of Eastland's touchdowns. Garland Hinman starred for the Bulldogs.

BUCKAROOS GO WILD AGAIN TO WIN BY 75 TO 0

BRECKENRIDGE, Oct. 13.—The biggest score ever run up on the Buckaroo field was put over here Friday when the Breckenridge Buckaroos rode like champions to down the hefty John Tarleton reserve crew, 75 to 0. Shotwell's feet backfired stars ran touchdowns across the goal at will. The visitors fought gamely but were outclassed in every department. There were no individual stars. No man made more than two touchdowns. Coach Shotwell used every reserve he had available.

VIRTUAL LAST HOPE GONE FOR J. R. SILVER

AUSTIN, Oct. 13.—Like Edward Hickman, Los Angeles murderer, virtually the last hope to escape the death penalty has vanished for J. R. Silver, sentenced to the electric chair for his part in the robbery of Roscoe Wilson, Fort Worth theater cashier, which ended in the latter's death. Governor Moody said Friday night that he was going to in the case and that, if there were any more delays in carrying out the penalty, they would come from court order. Unless Moody changes his mind or the courts do the unexpected, Silver will die in the electric chair in the Huntsville penitentiary shortly after midnight on the morning of Friday, October 26. Two reprieves have been previously lent hope to Silver's fight to live. One was through his application to the court of criminal appeals, which automatically stayed the sentence. The other came less than 24 hours before Silver was to have been executed on September 28 when the governor granted a reprieve that the appeals court might consider a second motion for a rehearing.

HISTORIC HOME OF 'LAW WEST OF THE PECOS' STILL STANDING

Colorful Judge Bean Handed Out Beer and Justice in Combination Court-Saloon for Quarter Century

LANOTRY, Oct. 13. — A two-room house, fenced and guarded, stands here as the historic reminder of the "Law West of the Pecos."

Here it was that Judge Roy Bean—self-styled "Law West of the Pecos"—dispensed liquor in one room of the building and justice in the other.

In his Jersey Lilly saloon, Judge Bean was recognized as a drink-mixer without peer; in the courtroom section of the house, Judge Bean dealt out justice according to his own liking.

In no section of Texas history has there ever been a more colorful character than Judge Bean, whose sovereignty over the picturesque "Big Bend" country was undisputed for nearly a quarter of a century.

House Still There.
The house occupied by Judge Bean is a stone's throw from the Rio Grande, near where the Pecos river empties into it. About 12 miles from Langtry across the Pecos is one of the highest railroad bridges in the world. To the west, was the domain of "the law west of the Pecos."

Judge Bean came to the "Big Bend" section in the '50s or '60s. He declared himself justice of the peace, later being reelected again and again.

His history prior to that is little more than legendary. His parents are thought to have been well-to-do people, high in social circles. He was born in Kentucky and came to Texas during the days of '48 when he "freighted" between San Antonio and California in a prairie schooner.

Then Built Town.
Judge Bean's sojourn in California is said to have ended when he killed a Mexican officer in a duel. The Mexican forced a sentence to marry him, and Judge Bean resumed the girl, the story goes. After he returned to Texas, he conducted a dairy business in San Antonio. His next venture was with a construction gang on the Southern Pacific railroad, after which he founded the town of Langtry. An admirer of the actress, Lillian Langtry, Judge Bean named both the town and his saloon for the popular operatic star. His saloon was the "Jersey Lilly"—the actress stage name.

"Roy Bean's opera house, town hall and seat of justice" a sign on the house proclaimed. Stories of happenings within the building are both humorous and interesting. Legal decisions were made entirely to his own whims.

The story is told—with some difference as to details—how a traveling man stopped between trains in Langtry after the Southern Pacific line was finished from Del Rio to El Paso. The long ride made him thirsty and he sought refreshment in Judge Bean's saloon.

Judge Bean happened to be in the courtroom—and not at the bar. The stranger or "tenderfoot" rapped on the bar and Judge Bean responded. The first drink called for a second, and the stranger laid down a $20 bill in payment.

High-Handed Law.
"That the best you got?" Judge Bean demanded. "The 'Law West of the Pecos' was quick in making decisions."

"Well, the price of drinks is just 50 cents, but you disturbed the peace of the court and I'll fine you just $19.50 for that. Now get out," the judge ordered.

On another occasion a Chinaman, enroute from California to the Lower Rio Grande Valley, stepped off the train at Langtry. A show-birder either didn't like either his looks or his cooking (the accounts vary) and shot the Chinaman.

A court of inquiry was assembled. Judge Bean served as judge and jury.

He made his legal inquiry learning with little difficulty that the Chinaman met death through gunshot wounds inflicted by the show-birder.

"I have looked this book through and I find that it is against the law to kill a man, but there isn't a word said about killing a Chin-man, so I will dismiss this case," was his decree.

Governor Challenged.
There is one—and only one—true recounted by old-timers when Judge Bean's rule was questioned by the governor of Texas. The governor sent him word that he was exceeding his jurisdiction.

"You just run things at Austin and remember that I am the 'Law West of the Pecos,'" Judge Bean informed his rival executive.

Another story is typical of Judge Bean's character. A man was found dead on "his" side of the Pecos river. There was no marks of identification on the man, but search disclosed a good 45 Colt and a $50 goldpiece on the man's body. It was a new problem for Judge Bean to solve.

He fined the deceased $50 for carrying a concealed weapon and appropriated the gun as part of his state armory, hanging handsly near the whiskey keg on his bar.

Worked for Friend.
Judge Bean's rule ended in 1900 or 1902, when he was defeated by a Mexican. He campaigned every ranch in the Big Bend country to defeat the Mexican at the next election, and had his friend W. H. Dodd, elector. Dodd served for 17 years as justice of the peace, almost equalling the record of Judge Bean.

Another interesting "side" of the picturesque judge was his love for wild animals as pets. He kept a large bear chained to his bed most of the time. A panther, wolf, fox and eagle were other pets. "Boy Bob" was the favorite expression of Judge Bean, who consulted his legal rulings with those words.

Judge Bean died suddenly in 1902, in his two-room home.

DEMOCRAT'S WIFE SUPPORTS HOOVER

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13. — When Maymie Hamrahan of St. James, Mo., married Dr. Edward Ousley, a Democrat, she took her husband's name, but not his political affiliation.

MRS. MAYMIE H. OUSLEY.

She retained her Republican loyalties to such an extent that she is running for state senator in the 24th district on the Republican ticket and is an active Hoover-Curtis campaign worker. Mrs. Ousley at one time was mayor of St. James.

Each time the Democratic party has been in power," Mrs. Ousley says, "our tariff wall has been torn down. The farm and industrial products of foreign countries have poured into this country at such a ruinous rate that our farmers and manufacturers were not able to compete with them. The Republican tariff policy offers protection that every American needs whether he earns his livelihood from the soil, in a factory, in business or in commerce. More jobs and better jobs for the men mean happier homes, equipped with the comforts that every woman has a right to expect."

STYLE HINTS

By ALICE LANGELIER, International News Service Staff Correspondent.

STYLES OF 1880 ARE REVIVED IN PARIS

PARIS, Oct. 12. — If Rip Van Winkle came to Paris today, he would certainly rub his eyes and think it were no other year than that of 1880. French dressmakers have revived the elegant eighties in charming frocks modified to the modern figure and life of today.

Naturally the tiny waistline of that romantic period has gone forever and the old style swaying effect of the bustle is very much softened and flattened to meet the demands of the woman of this age. But the general silhouette is recognizable and once more proves the truth of the old, old saw about history repeating itself.

The lovely satin frock of gold and silver brocade which is infinitely more supple than it was forty years ago. Its front is moulded loosely so that it flows over the body and the draped skirt is caught up in the back in regulation 1880 drapery.

The bustle is a mere reduction to a soft fold and end of the material from underneath which circular flounces cascade to the hemline. Yvonne Davidson recalls the elegant Eighties in the drapery and lifted ruffles of a lovely black satin afternoon model. There is a turnover collar at the V neckline and tie of self material in the front.

Another afternoon dress of light and bright navy ottoman has a surprise bodice attached to the left side by a jeweled buckle and the skirt is four flat tiers at the back decreasing in width toward the hemline.

An original touch to the old-fashioned style is given by fitting the skirt line to one side of the back instead of directly in the center. Sometimes two more pleated flounces at the back of the skirt follow the up curve of the initial one.

American Colonists Left Europe Escape Persecution by Other Protestants, Judge Wilson Says

WORTH, Oct. 13. — It was not colonized by Protestants in efforts to escape persecution in Europe but by Catholics who had fled from the persecutions of Protestantism.

Declaring that the churches should be stripped and kept clear of any government power, Judge Wilson read excerpts from the articles of federation and the constitution of the United States in order to show how the designers of those documents sought to safeguard religious freedom. He read from the declaration of independence the words "but no religious test shall ever be required as qualification for any office or public trust under the United States."

Judge Wilson declared that a superintendent or board of public education is guilty of violating that principle of the constitution when requiring the religious test in selecting teachers in the public schools.

No Backward Step.
"America never will take a backward step into the dark ages on the subject of religious tolerance," Judge Wilson declared. "The church never will control the state because the people have learned too much from reading European history."

"It is a pity that a similar fight is not being made on the part of Protestants. This religious intolerance will tend to solidify your church and you Catholics need not worry. It will turn out to be a blessing to you. No religious sect ever was stamped out by unfair treatment. Such treatment has the effect of driving the sects of rain and will make the sect grow."

"All churches, including yours and mine, are paying too much attention to non-essentials by splitting hairs on things people must believe or go to hell. Instead of the non-essentials we should be living up to the fundamentals of loving each other. It seems that for one human being to punish or persecute another is an encroachment upon the powers of God. As an elder in the Presbyterian church I would be ashamed to vote against a Catholic. If I thought he was a good man for the office, I would vote for him. The Catholics should not vote for Al Smith because he is a Catholic, nor should Protestants vote against him because he is a Catholic."

Great Expect.
"We are here to celebrate probably the greatest exploit the world has ever known," declared Judge Lattimore in opening his address on Columbus Day. "I have been unable to think of any man who was during equalled that of Columbus."

Here Judge Lattimore reminded his audience of the popular conception held by scientists just before Columbus started on his voyage. Giant monsters of the ocean, a huge precipice over which Columbus' ship would fall, were in the general conception of truth that Columbus faced when he set out on his voyage.

"Columbus had a great purpose," declared Judge Lattimore. "He believed he had been appointed by God to carry Christianity to India. I don't know but there is one report that Columbus was a Catholic Jew. A friend of mine said a while ago that he must have been practicing witchcraft. Certainly it can't be said that you Catholics have been burning witches."

Maryland was settled by Catholics who left England because of religious persecution by Protestants.

Wilson, with District Judge S. Lattimore, the other speakers before a group of Catholics who had gathered in the amphitheater of Christopher Columbus on Oct. 12, 1492, was held exactly 436 years after the date Columbus was sailing at that hour starting his night toward America. Many other practically the same time Columbus took on his voyage.

Judge Lattimore continued to the daring voyage of Columbus, Judge Wilson criticized present day religious intolerance to the flight of Columbus in Santo Domingo. Judge Wilson declared that the present campaign of intolerance is a moot question. He made it plain from that he would not discuss from a partisan standpoint.

Which you Catholics were "stamped out" declared Judge Wilson. "You Catholics are not being persecuted. You have been more tolerant than a Quaker and a Jew in the race for President. Now they are in accord with me."

Speaker referred to the fact that Hoover and Smith, from Hoover's state religious questions have in the present campaign. Hoover gave assurance that he would not ever nominate a Republican nor Democrat. Hoover said he believed in the way the two presidents have been whittled down. He backed the Catholics because they came to America to escape persecution by Catholics.

History Cited.
Wilson pointed out the various American colonies to show the colonists did not come to America to escape religious persecution of Catholics. The colonization of Virginia was government enterprise, he stating that the colony established only 10 years after the first settlement. All colonists to attend church out of fear of being punished for failure to do so. That civil war among Protestants in Virginia almost destroyed that the situation did not change.

Quakers fled from England, Wilson said, "to escape persecution in that country. The Quakers are and broad guaged people. The Protestants arrived in Mass. It was but 60 years after they were burning people they were accused of Irish for no one else would have started on such a foolish voyage," Judge Lattimore referred to Columbus as a man who had broken loose from the old world and learned to think straight. He declared there is a great need today for pioneers as there was in the days of Christopher Columbus. He declared the need is for pioneers in mental research and not physical.

NATIVE TEXAN FIGHTING FOR CITIZENSHIP

FORT WORTH, Oct. 13. — The United States government will for deny the right of citizenship to a native born Texan when the United States court of civil appeals convenes here for two week term November 5.

Mrs. Mary Humphreys married a Canadian in 1909 and moved to the dominion, automatically cancelling her right to United States citizenship and becoming a British subject.

Mrs. Humphreys was born and reared in Palo Pinto county. Her father is county clerk of Palo Pinto.

Mrs. Humphreys' husband died a short time after they moved to the dominion and she remarried another Canadian.

Since the second marriage she has made numerous visits to her parents. And last year decided to again resume her residence in Texas. Immediately upon arrival she made application for her first papers under which a year's residence in this country is required.

Mrs. Humphreys' contends that the visits constitute a year, and that upon this point the case hinges.

The immigration department refuses to recognize the visits and declares them inapplicable to the year. It appealed to the district court for a decision and last February Judge James C. Wilson ruled against it.

Mrs. Humphreys was happy to be upheld by the court and to know

ACTUAL BENEFIT OF RADIO FOR CANDIDATES IS STILL IN DOUBT

10,000 to Be Spent by Political Parties in Broadcasting; 15,000,000 Near Smith, Hoover Each Chance

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13. — As known only to New York voters, the campaign enters its final stage. Republican and Democratic parties are taking stock of their efforts and wondering if they are proving effective. The extensive use of the radio presents an entirely new in vote-seeking and as a democratic national committee leaders frankly confess "no precedent by which future broadcasters." The Republican and Democratic national committees and nearly $150,000 this year in political broadcasting. It is money well spent, they say. All Stations Included. The campaign ends every station in the country. It is a big-time station with either the National Summa's broadcasting complaints or merely a "local" with less than 100 watts will have had political programs in the air. Many managers believe that Herbert Hoover, and Governor Smith go on the air every day that can possibly be turned in on some station that, therefore, upwards of 10,000 people hear the personality, heretofore of ed too fast. His sentences were confused. Senator Borah, like Smith, injects his personality—and humor—into his speeches. Harrison Colorful Among the Democrats Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi is full of pep and personality. Texas to Remain Democratic But G. O. P. Will Pile Up Record Vote; Smith Majority Placed at 200,000

HOUSTON, Oct. 13. — Texas will go Democratic, as usual. The Smith electors will win, but Hoover will get the largest vote ever cast by this state for a Republican nominee. Strange to say, the strongest Hoover following is in the cities like Houston, Dallas, San Antonio and Fort Worth, despite the fact that these cities also are strong for a change in prohibition enactment. This is the consensus of leaders of both parties, some expressed publicly and others privately. In the country districts, where the people talk little and think much, voters have been trained to vote for whatever and whoever is labeled Democratic, the ballot will be overwhelmingly for Smith's Many Beliefs. There has never been a campaign in this state which has caused more defections of Democrats than during this presidential contest. Many well known politicians have left the party and will take the stamp of the intense prohibition sentiment, some of it to religious prejudice and a little to the desire to climb into what they think is the national band wagon. Practically all the party abandonment has been on the part of Democrats. The bolters have used prohibition as an excuse to join the Republicans. Very few Republicans have jumped into the Smith camp because of the Hoover attitude. Many Women Change. The defections from Democracy has been especially noticeable on the part of women voters. They seem to have far more religious prejudice than the male Democrats and there are so strong for prohibition that they refuse to vote for any candidate who dares suggest the slightest modification of the Volstead act. They listen to no appeals, they respond to no reasoning, and they care little for party if they think that prohibition is at stake. The strength of Smith in this state is mainly with that "quiet stay-at-home crowd" which constitutes the bulk of the population. They are being encouraged by the attitude of Senator Sheppard and Governor Moody, both strong prohibitionists, who are standing by the party's nominee. "Gits" Oppose Smith. The politicians who are opposing Smith are mainly the "used-to-be crowd," a former governor, former political leader, and many of the disappointed and somewhat discredited politicians. West Texas will remain Democratic by a small majority, but Hoover will carry El Paso county. To sum it up, it is estimated that Texas will go Democratic by not less than 200,000 majority. The turbulent Balkans are expected at last. Poor razor blades sold to the unsuspecting natives are explanation enough.—Lansing State Journal.

Air Capital of United States Is Claim of Wichita, Kansas; Leads Nation in Plane Making

WICHITA, Kan., Oct. 12.—Wichita is the Air Capital of the United States, is the claim of all Wichitaans.

That claim is based upon what they term 23 facts. The first and most indisputable of these is the fact that 36 per cent of the airplanes which were issued licenses during the week ending August 18 by the Aeronautics branch of the United States department of commerce were of Wichita manufacture, according to statistics as compiled by the government authorities at Washington, D. C.

Travel Air manufacturing company led the field with 32 per cent of the total number of planes while the Swallow and Stearman companies trailed their illustrious leader with two per cent of the total accredited to each.

Many Licenses Issued

A total of 61 licenses were issued, 14 of which were renewals of licenses previously issued; 4 were re-issued to new title and 42 were issued to owners of planes not formerly licensed.

Of the list, 33 planes were from Travel Air, 5 Ryan, Eaglebrook, Waco and Standard each had four, Challenger with 2 and the remainder of the list with one plane each.

The other 22 reasons the Wichitaans point to in claiming the title "The Air Capital of America" are:

- 6 airplane manufacturers
- 2 airplane motor manufacturing companies
- 4 airplane transportation companies

- 1 propeller factory
- 4 airplane service shops
- 1 aircraft steel company

Increased Output

Wichita factories are now turning out about 32 planes per week even with this large production the factories are behind with their orders and are constantly adding more facilities to turn out more planes.

Herewith Mother Nature smiling on the industry with climate permitting all year around flying with no fogs and rare touches of unfavorable weather. It is not entirely illegal that Wichita, under the leadership of air-minded persons, largely the financiers of the oil industry who have been placing their funds into the new industry because of the chance and opportunity to resume their gaming spirit in yet another field.

In Wichita it has been found by aviation officials ideal weather conditions for flying, natural resources, strategic continental location, pioneer air leaders, ready money when the time for action appears.

The time when Wichita's aviation history started was in 1919 with the organization of the Wichita Aircraft company, later known as the Swallow Airplane Manufacturing company, the first commercial airplane company in the United States.

New Factories.

Other factories followed in rapid succession: Travel Air in 1920; Canosa in 1920; Stearman in 1920; Laird in 1927; Swift in 1927.

Wichita planes have proved their excellence. They are to be found in daily mail service on routes that reach from New York to Los Angeles and Seattle. Many of them are being shipped to foreign countries. They have triumphed in the longest overseas flight and in reliability tests.

During 1927, when only two of its now seven airplane factories were in operation, Wichita produced more than one-fifth of the total number built in the United States.

The largest of the factories is that of the Travel Air Manufacturing company, manufacturers of biplanes and monoplanes, which company is also the largest commercial manufacturer of airplanes.

That Wichita's claims upon the leadership are not idle boasts is attested to in the following statements of Colonel Paul Henderson, vice president and general manager of the National Air Transport, Inc.:

Pushes Its Claim

"Wichita is certainly entitled to its claim of being the Air Capital of the United States.

With its busy airplane manufacturing plants and hundreds of skilled workers, Wichita alone would be a greater asset in national defense if we were plunged into another war than could have been mustered in the whole nation at the beginning of the last one.

"Those of us in the aeronautical industry look on Wichita as one of the most important centers of activity and its importance should increase as times goes on.

"If you continue to progress as you have done in the last few years, I see no reason why Wichita will not become the Detroit of the air."

Yale Noted for Great Ends But None Greater on Defense Than Charley Gould, Star of 1900-01

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—Speak of football ends in football and automatically you think of Yale university. For in the shade of those sheltering clims have flowered and bloomed the very immortals of end play since the beginning of football and it isn't surprising, therefore, that one must go to New Haven for the man many claim to have been the finest defensive end ever to play the game.

What is surprising about it is that the end in question doesn't happen to be Frank Hinkey or Tom Shevlin. Kilpatrick and Bonessier were among the greatest of Yale wings, too, but neither is the man referred to.

He is Charley Gould. Never heard of him? That proves that your football doesn't go back very far beyond the modern generation. Charley Gould was the star end on Gordon Brown's 1900 team at Yale, hailed in many quarters as the best that ever wore the blue. He also was captain of the 1901 eleven which were Hogan, Glass and other names one can't easily forget.

Supreme in One Way

Gould wasn't the all-around man that Hinkey was. He lacked the power and personality that Shevlin brought to the game. But in one respect, he was supreme or nearly so. No wing in history ever was more successful, they say, in stepping plays directed at his position and, according to old timers, that just about goes for Hinkey, too.

Perocious Frank's record was that nobody gained around his position in four years of Yale football. But they say of Gould that if statistics were available, they might show an average loss through the years he played the game.

"As great a defensive end as ever appeared on a football field," the late Walter Camp was quoted as saying in reference to Gould.

Why is it then, that his name doesn't ring down through the ages, echo for echo, with those of Hin-key, Kilpatrick and Shevlin? Well, for one thing defensive genius alone never yet has culled a headline.

One has to go no further than Yale football of five years ago to find the excellent example afforded by Bill Mallory. A great man behind the line for two years, he had to kick a few field goals and run the ball occasionally before he was able to crash the All-American in his final year at college.

Was Great Player

Gould also was an All-American in his day but that alone doesn't make for immortality. Do you remember Higgins of Penn State and Carney of Illinois? Not? They were great less than ten years ago. It doesn't take long to lose touch with these heroes of the past unless there was something conspicuous about them to supply a tangible link with the present.

It was Gould's misfortune probably that there was nothing particularly conspicuous about him, at least not as a personality. In baseball they speak of a ball player's ball player in identifying unaccommodated genius. From all one can learn Gould was to football what those great but comparatively obscure men were to baseball.

In brief, he was the end rush's end rush.

The interior department compiled figures which show that of the retired civil service employees, 12,173 are inactive because of age and 3,210 because of disability. There are 4,202 persons drawing the maximum annuity of $959.96 a year.

It only takes one skid—one emergency in which brakes fail to hold—to cause an accident. It might be slight—perhaps a jammed fender—and it might cost a life. Why gamble with chance? POWDER MY BACK NOVEL BY ARLINE DE HAAS

Copyright 1927, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc. MY BACK, starring Irene Rich, is a Warner Bros. production of this novel.

SYNOPSIS Irene Rich, star of "Powder My Back," photographs made of powdering her back to publicity. One of these years in her home town of Iowa, Miss Irene Rich, sees it. Horribly she invites Adele to visit her to "reform" her. Amused, accepts, and her niece's beau, and her own childhood sweetheart, both fall in love with her. Adele, who is a widow, accuses her of wickedness, and she goes leading and stocking, Adele retracts their hypocrisy and leaves.

TER XII—Continued "But—Adele, I was angry because of what you said about me—and I know it's not true, and I don't want you to see me like that." "I shouldn't worry a bit about it," Mother said about me. "Because, it doesn't matter, and you believe all that you hear." "But mother said that I should see you—ever again—because there was a very bad woman here who couldn't even say good-be sad darling." Mildred's sob started now. Adele dipped a handkerchief in some cologne and dabbed it to Mildred's eyes. "There, there, my dear, you can come to see me any time you want to do so. And I want you to do so for me."

Mildred dried her eyes, and to do anything for her aunt. "Can I help you?" "I've been sitting here thinking all about my own life and yours so busy. What can I do for you?" "This, Mildred," Adele looked at her niece. "First, I want to see the first train out of here that will get me to town, and then I'll have to get out of here so I can get these bags to you. I don't suppose you will be particularly pleased to see me, so we'll have to call at the garage—is that what you mean here?"

"It's much easier than that," Mildred exclaimed. "I'll call Harry, come and help us with the luggage and everything." "It's a dear," Adele smiled. "If you can do that, all Harry to find out about the train and be here in time to see, that will be perfectly all right." "I can get to the phone booth in the closet under the stairs, and they'll never hear all. They're still discussing it now."

"I'll check all these large pieces through for you," Mildred said. "It'll save you a lot of trouble, and the trip isn't so very long. You won't find another nice young man like me to help you," he laughed. "I'm sure I shan't," Adele called to him as he made off with the luggage. She turned to her niece. In the semi-darkness she could see big tears rolling down Mildred's cheeks. "Don't be sad, darling," she kissed the girl fondly. "Always be happy—don't be hypocritical—and you'll always be young and beautiful. Look, that's the train now, isn't it?"

Through the rain they could see the big headlight cutting into the mist, and then they heard the dismal sound of the whistle. "I'll get out and see you on the train, Adele," Mildred offered. (To be continued)

Preston presiding. Reports were heard, new committees appointed, after which a very interesting program was given, covering the development and electrification of the oil fields in West Texas, notably Iran, McCamey, Rankin, Big Lake and the oil fields of District B. The difficulties attending the development of Iran, which is the center of an oil district 25 miles square, the largest known oil field, were told by Mrs. P. P. Shepard. H. A. Williams explained the building of power lines and substations, the use of electricity in bringing in and pumping the oil out of the wells, the cost of operations, the becoming of fire hazards gained by the use of electricity, and he told of the plans for building powerplants, extension lines and substations, requiring the outlay of $1,000,000. Mr. Williams also explained the relative cost of electricity from the consumers' point of view, showing how four wells could be operated more cheaply in proportion to the price used than three wells. He also explained the valuation and selling basis of oil wells and leases.

Mr. Hogg and Mr. Williams have just celebrated their fourth anniversary. It being just four years ago since they entered the evangelistic field. CISCO TRADE ASSOCIATION IS ORGANIZED

With the objective of increasing and extending Cisco trade territory a small but enthusiastic number of Cisco business men met at the city hall Friday evening and formally organized the Cisco Trade Extension Association. The meeting was called to order and its purposes stated by A. B. O'Flaherty. During the progress of the meeting many of those present spoke enthusiastically on the possibilities of extending the trade territory of Cisco, and some of the methods by which this could be done. Nor were shortcomings overlooked by some of those who made talks told of some of the reasons why the city is not enjoying a larger trade, especially from the people living in the rural districts. One of these was the lack of proper markets in Cisco for farm products, and the failure of Cisco merchants to extend a welcome to rural folk when they visit Cisco.

"There is only one store in Cisco where the farmers feel free to make themselves at home by sitting on the counters while discussing their problems. And there is not a store in Cisco where the country woman can go and read while shopping here," one speaker said.

After formally christening the organization the following officers and board of directors were elected to direct the organization: A. B. O'Flaherty, president; E. O. Elliott, vice-president; Miss Leitha Maude Egan, secretary and treasurer. The board of directors elected was W. J. Leach, Fleet Sheppard, J. B. Cole, J. J. Collins, C. O. Pass, H. S. Drumwright and E. B. Gule. The directors were authorized to draft by-laws for the guidance of the organization, which will be considered at an early meeting to be called by the president.

Many of those present made talks on the good of the town, and emphasized the necessity of putting forth increased efforts to hold the present trade now coming to Cisco, and extending present boundary lines. That others living beyond trade limits, might know of the advantages to be gained by trading in Cisco, where large and varied stocks of merchandise are handled by our merchants. Better markets with more buyers of country produce, the manifestation of greater interest in out of town customers by the extension of greater personal welcome on the part of business men, the cultivation of a more friendly relation with the rural folk, the inauguration of trade days and the exhibition of more concern in just such meetings as this by the business men of Cisco were stressed. It was pointed out that 33 business men had signed the call for the meeting Friday night, but among the 30 or 40 present there were only six or seven of the signers. This one speaker stated, showed a lack of interest of the business men in matters that pertain to their own welfare. "Meetings of this character" are as much the business of the merchant, the doctor and lawyer as that of his own store or office. And nothing should interfere with the business of professional men being present and aiding in making such gatherings a success.

J. M. Williamson, in reply to a speaker who suggested that trade extension might be a part of the function of the chamber of commerce, stated that there was a tendency to shunt everything over to the chamber of commerce, but it was not the province of that body to draw trade to the individual merchants, but to work for the interest of the city as a whole, to locate new industries and other enterprises, new citizens and assist them in securing homes in which to live, and thereby expanding the business for the entire town.

"Right now," he said, "the chamber of commerce is attempting to find desirable residences for about 40 families that the Humble Pipe Line company is locating in Cisco, and wants to get in touch with those who have houses or apartments to let at reasonable rentals."

Among those who spoke favoring the objectives of the organization included W. H. LaRoque, D. J. Moss, A. B. O'Flaherty, E. O. Elliott, R. F. Joiner, M. D. Paschall, Sr., W. H. Kittrell, Sr., Dr. W. I. Chormley, R. A. St. John, P. E. Shepard, L. J. Preston, J. E. T. Peters, W. J. Leach, R. L. Herston and others.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH TO RECEIVE NEW MEMBERS

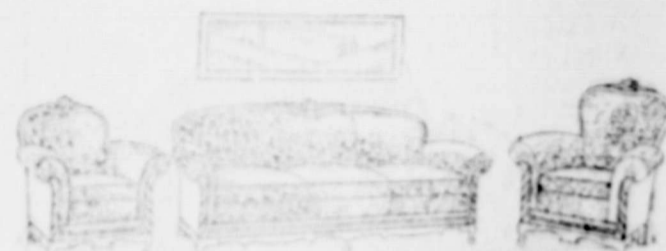

The First Baptist church in Cisco is expecting another big day today with the reception of several new members in prospect and another national service at the evening hour. Last Sunday six were received and six others were baptized. The Sunday school attendance was 452 and the young people's meetings were enthusiastic and well attended. The Sunday school workers announce they will observe what is known as "Home Cooperation Week" during the month of October. The parents of children in the school will be expected to cooperate and closer cooperation and better religious training will be secured. A great profit will be made at the church on Sunday at the church.

San Antonio is by no means the only place in Texas where boxes and crates are manufactured for the use of Texas gardeners and fruit growers and that Flatonia has an industry of that kind starting an extensive business. RANGER SAND IS TOUCHED IN WENTZ WELL

MORAN, Oct. 13.—The Wentz Oil Division touched the Ranger sand the first of the week. Indications are that the sand is in the same sand found in the Deer field several miles to the south of the Wentz well. The well is located in the edge of Stephens county six miles east of Moran, on the Rose Hill tract.

Several weeks ago the Wentz people hit the Caddo lime at the depth of 2,300 feet, which looked like a well for a few days. However, the sand was passed up and the hole drilled down to the Ranger lime. It is reported that the well is making between 4 and 5 million feet of gas. The company shut down immediately when the sand was touched, and is setting casing. When the casing is down the well will be drilled in.

People of this section have shown considerable interest in this well as a new territory will be opened up if oil and gas in paying quantities are found there. Some large oil companies have holdings in the vicinity of the Elliott lease, and it is believed that if the Wentz well is a producer, a number of deep wells will be drilled in the near future.
