CISCO FREE OF TYPHOID FROM JAN. 1 TO OCT. 1

According to the reports of Dr. John H. Brice, city health officer, there was not a case of typhoid originating in Cisco between January 1, 1928, and Oct. 1. There were only three cases of typhoid developed in Cisco during that period, and each of these was contracted elsewhere and developed after the patients came to this city. In this connection, there were only a very few contagious diseases of all characters reported in this city, though no record has been kept.

Four Undefeated Oil Belt Teams Will Fight among Themselves at Weekend; Dope Already Is Spilled

OIL BELT STANDING.

Cisco	1	0	1
San Angelo	0	2	0
Brownwood	0	2	0
Eastland	0	3	0

There will be much weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth and what have you when this week of gridiron play is ended in the Oil Belt league. In fact, there will be about twice as much of it as there was in the week ending Saturday when most of the weeping, wailing, etc., was in Cisco. Of course, if San Angelo had kicked that goal for the extra point after their second touchdown in the fourth quarter in the Lobo-Buckaroo game—well, there is no telling just what would have happened. Perhaps the Lobo bus would have headed toward El Paso.

WATER SUPERINTENDENT BACK FROM CONVENTION

R. E. Scott, superintendent of the city water department and daughter, Miss Jerry, returned home Saturday night from Dallas, where they attended the Interstate Water convention. They also visited the Dallas fair. There were representatives from seven states attending the convention. Mr. Scott stated, besides engineers and technical men from nearly all of the principal cities of the nation. Many interesting papers were heard relative to the problems of water and sewage disposal plants.

DEATHS OF 2 RICH BABIES TO BE PROBED

New York, Oct. 22.—Inquiry into the tragic deaths of Terrence and Benjamin Waldman, baby boys who were instantly killed when it was under way here today on the initiative of Dr. Charles Norris, chief medical examiner, who announced that he had decided it would be the best for all concerned to determine officially the facts in the case. The children were believed that they slipped from their mother's arms from the roof of the Hotel Surrey several days ago. Mrs. Waldman is in a sanitarium suffering from shock.

Death Sentence for Companion of Clyde Thompson to Be Taken to Appeals Court if Overruled

A formal motion for a new trial will be filed in Judge Ben's court today in the case of Thomas Davis, who was given the death sentence Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock for the murder of Lucius Shook, at LeRoy, September 7, according to James S. Grisham, of the firm of Grisham & Grisham, who defended Davis in his trial in the 88th district court.

Verdict Heard by Few

Some 25 spectators were in the court room, including the father and young sister of the defendant. When the jury filed in there was a murmur of expectation.

Defense Has Ray of Hope

In the trial of the case the issues raised by the defense included that the signed statement introduced as evidence by the state was obtained under duress; that Davis had taken no part in the actual killing of Lucius Shook and that he was mentally subnormal. These facts will doubtless be further stressed in the defense motion for a rehearing. The fact that Judge Ben charged the jury that "if from the evidence the jury should find that Davis took no part in the slaying, and was found not to have acquiesced in the murder, he should not be found guilty" gives the defense a ray of hope that a new trial will be granted when Judge Ben hears the motion for a rehearing. Judge Ben indicated that he would set an early date on which this and the motion for a new trial would be heard.

A WELL-EARNED PARK.

A year ago a public-spirited woman opened her large and beautiful estate to the public, stipulating only that people who picnicked there should behave as self-respecting people and not as vandals. She didn't want fires built, wildflowers picked or rubbish scattered about.

Friends told her she was crazy. Her experiment would never work. The public had no real appreciation of such generosity as hers. It would abuse the privilege.

After a few months the owner of the property, gratified by public response to her act, put up a sign on the grounds which said:

"You have proved that I was right and that they were wrong. Your use of the property has been a careful one, and you are invited to continue to use it indefinitely."

Recently she has announced her decision to deed the whole 275 acres of lovely woodland and valley to the park board of a near-by city to be used for a public park.

Here is prompt and generous reward of decency. May that park always remain free of vandalism and may it stimulate the movement for protection of natural beauty everywhere.

LUNCHEON SPEECHES.

The luncheon speech, says an observant publicity man, is declining in popularity. Listeners still patronize the noonday lectures in small towns, but in the larger towns the ranks are thinning. The boys will not turn out now except for entertainment luncheons, scientific stunts or football coaches. They resent being stuffed with information along with their food. What to do? The publicity man suggests more emphasis on questions and answers. Dialogue is always more interesting than monologue. And the audience itself wants to talk. It's human nature to enjoy telling other people things instead of being talked to all the time. Any child proves that.

THE MARATHON FLOAT.

Another record has been broken by that enduring mother of two children, Mrs. Lottie Moore Schoemmel of New York. Her latest feat in patation is impressive and also entertaining. Mrs. Schoemmel is now the world's champion non-stop floater. She achieved the proud distinction of remaining afloat in a swimming tank in a metropolitan hotel for 72 hours, 2 minutes and 40 seconds. Her ambition was to beat the record made by the Count Zeppelin on its flight to America, but floating proved to be a trying pastime even for such a buoyant person as Mrs. Schoemmel. Well, now that's done, anyway. And inasmuch as the hectic lady will be looking for new worlds to conquer as soon as she gets the grease off and gets back to normal weight, we venture to suggest two more exploits: First, let her suspend herself from a stationary balloon and see how long she can float horizontally in the air at the end of a well secured rope. Second, let her seek a world's record for sitting in a bathtub full of water.

So many card players have died or fainted recently from drawing lucky hands that we venture to suggest to manufacturers of playing cards that they include a restorative with every pack.

AMERICAN MUMMIES.

Here is something that makes the New World seem older. An expedition which has been exploring up around Bering Sea for the American Museum of Natural History is on its way back to New York with "three mummies ascribed to the Stone Age." They were found in a granite tomb in northern Alaska, enclosed in wood, grass and otter skin. So there were natives in the far Northwest long ago—how long, nobody knows—who buried their dead formally in tombs and mummified them. It seems to connect America strangely with Egypt, though there is probably no connection, either racial or cultural. Those ancient Alaskans might have been ancestors of our Indians; or more probably, of our Mound Builders.

It's getting so that the person who has never ridden in an airplane feels something like the citizen who has never been to Washington.

STUDIOUS COMMUTERS.

Adult education has gone so far in Los Angeles as to promote the establishment of a Commuters' School. Educators, university departments, public libraries, electric railway officials and oculists are cooperating in carrying out the plan. An announcement reads: "The plan is this. You enroll in the Commuters' School, a non-profit organization sponsored by leading educational institutions of southern California. You study as you ride the Big Red Cars to and from your work." Nineteen courses are now offered. There may be more later. They range from home gardening and art appreciation through chemistry and psychology to speed-writing and investments. Eighteen dollars pays for the whole course, though a student pays only $6 at a time. He registers with any electric railway agent, pays the six dollars and receives a coupon book entitling him to personal interviews with his instructor, to class room visits and other privileges. He receives within 48 hours a study outline and textbooks. These are loose-leaf, pocket-size books, adapted to easy reading while riding. That is where the oculists come in, no doubt. Also they give these commuting students free examinations to safeguard them in the amount of reading to be done each day. In some ways, of course, this is not a new thing. A good many people have studied while riding on trolley cars or railroad trains. Yet creating special courses for straphangers and commuters is new. If the idea spends it should mean better use of many half-hours and hours that at present are wasted so far as mental activity, spiritual refreshment or physical recreation are concerned.

GAMBLING CONCESSION IS PLANNED BY PANAMA

PANAMA CITY, Oct. 22.— The Panama government is planning a gambling concession similar to that at Havana and is assured of the national assembly's approval by a big majority on the project. 84TH BIRTHDAY IS CELEBRATED BY BAIRD MAN

BAIRD, Oct. 22.—R. A. Williams celebrated his 84th birthday Sunday, October 14, and his daughter, Mrs. Ed Lambert surprised him with a birthday dinner at her home near Chautauque. All of his children were present on this happy occasion except his youngest daughter, Mrs. Mattie Hooker of Dallas.
 The table was beautifully decorated for the occasion and when all were seated his two little granddaughters, Tiny Lambert and Kathleen Williams, dressed in pink with pink caps, on which tiny candles were burning, entered the dining room bearing a large pink birthday cake with the 84 burning candles on a tray. They stood by the side of their grandfather while Mrs. Lambert returned thanks.
 R. A. Williams, Bob as he is familiarly known to his many friends, moved to Baird more than 45 years ago and lived here up to some 10 or 12 years ago, when he went to work with his son, Louis Williams, who is foreman of the bridge building department of the Texas & Pacific and Mr. Williams, who is a carpenter, has made many forms for the concrete work on the road, all the way from Baird to Marshall. Mr. Williams is remarkably well and strong for one of his age. We wish him many more happy birthdays.
 Members present on this occasion were: Mr. and Mrs. Louis Williams and little daughter, Kathleen of Putnam; Mr. and Mrs. Earl Williams and son of Ranger; Mr. and Mrs. Ed Lloyd and daughter, Miss Gladys, of Big Spring; Mr. and Mrs. E. Lambert and family, and the honor guest.

The picture is a story of love, sacrifice, and redemption.

"I had a great deal of fun watching the minutes go by, sometimes flying and sometimes crawling, when she felt that she had got this episode over with the better. Then she thought of what was to happen to a very dear boy who had been so kind to her. She had almost flow to open her eyes, but she restrained herself and waited for the girl to enter the room and go out to the little hall to get the coffee. She had been looking at the girl who was standing by her side and was wondering how she had done so well. His face was so bright and happy."

"Perhaps, perhaps not," Adele chose to be mysterious for the moment. "But it doesn't matter, Harry, whether or not there is another life. The fact remains that I'm tired of playing this little game with you. For that's all it has been—a game. And I'm used to controlling my own life, so that when I say that I'm tired—I am tired."

"But Adele, I came all the way from London, just to find you," Harry exclaimed childishly. "You can't realize how much you mean to me. I can't live without you. Adele—I can't—I can't. You're the most glorious thing I've ever seen. I've read about you. I love you—I love you—I've tried to show you how much I do love you. Would you please say that you're only playing with me, now?"

"Playing with you—my dear boy, I've perfectly serious," Adele laughed sharply away and looked into his eyes. "Don't you understand that I have my work—and it comes first—before everything else. After that—love, if one can call it that, she struggles her shoulders. I don't believe in it, myself. It's all such a passing, futile sort of thing. I'm not actually sorry for you Harry, because this is going to teach you a lesson. It will make you less trusting and more sophisticated—and you need that."

"Adele, I can't understand why you're sending me off this way. Can't you give me some explanation?" Harry could not comprehend Adele's meaning, for he saw only the woman who flared like a scarlet flame against the white of the mantelpiece. "I thought you were interested in me—in my work—in what I wanted to do. If nothing else."

"Your work?" Adele smiled lightly. "Harry, the best thing I can tell you is that you'll never write. You haven't got it in you. But you were entertaining for a change, and that was all. I can't say anything more than that. I liked you Harry, but it's only a waste of time to go on and on, talking about it."

Harry slumped down on the lounge, his head in his hands. Adele had delivered the final blow, so he thought, when she told him so heartily that his work was negligible and that she had merely been amused for the time being. He looked so disconsolate, so pitiful, that the actress was tempted to comfort him. She stretched out her arms, but as quickly let them fall to her sides. She must go on playing the game—play it with a smile, when it was almost breaking her heart. She turned her back and stared into the fireplace, her eyes hot and dry.

"Adele," Harry called to her across the room. "Is there nothing I can do—nothing that will change you?" He got up and walked towards her. "Don't you see I can't let you go like this. You mean too much to me. If you'll only just see me now and then—I promise I won't bother you. I won't intrude."

Scandal Threatens

FASHION MAKERS TO INSIST ON 'TIERS'
PARIS, Oct. 22.—After a long "terrible" summer, fashion-makers in Paris are predicting no let-up and it is most likely that tiers are going to prevail through the winter.
There are tiers of all cuts and sizes on every kind of costume except the real sports one. They give the added trimming which is much used this season and make for the irregular hemline, which continues to be very popular.
Worth puts side-laced tiers on a charming violet evening-scarf. They are flat at the back and flare at the sides, the two lower ones flaring in rather pronounced fashion. It makes a novel "pine-tree" silhouette and there is discreet silver bead embroidery on the tiers.
Tiers are also to be seen on a lovely black satin model with short princess bodice. The skirt has many of them drooping to an extremely low point at the left side where three golden ostrich tips are substituted for the usual flowers.
One of the dressmakers is using two tiers which stand out stiffly beneath the straight effect above on some of her gowns for afternoon. It gives a delightful "tierful" result. On other models the tier starts in the center at the back and moists in front leaving a plain space at one side. The spiral tier is used on some, giving the popular back decoration which will be much in vogue this season.
Lucien Lelong uses a tier dipping in the back to break the silhouette of a charming ensemble called "Domino" in black and white velvets.
Dunet uses a lovely spiral tier, starting at the left shoe of violet wool-crepe and going to a point below the hem.

Gil Boag, husband of Gilda Gray (above), the famous dancer, is suing for an annulment of their marriage in London. At present he is awaiting the arrival there of documents from his attorneys in Los Angeles, which are said to contain charges of a scandalous nature. Miss Gray had previously begun divorce action in Wisconsin.

So That's How It Happened?

Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the great Graf Zeppelin, and his son, Knut Eckener, a member of the crew, were too busy with the details of landing the dirigible to pay much attention to the spectacle they were creating. So they read about it the next day over their breakfast coffee in the Hotel Warwick, where they are making their residence in New York City.

BYPU'S ARE ATTENDED BY 134 PERSONS SUNDAY NIGHT

There were 124 young people present in the BYPU of the First Baptist church Sunday evening. At the senior assembly plans were put in motion for securing a large delegation to attend the state BYPU convention which meets at San Angelo for three days beginning November 29. Announcement was made of a meeting of all general officers of the BYPU's to be held at the church this evening at 7:30 for the purpose of forming plans to take care of the enlargement of the young people's work.
A full house heard the pastor's morning message on "The Divine Energy" from the text, "Work out your own salvation with fear and trembling; for it is God who worketh in you both to will and to work for his own good pleasure." In the development of the theme, the speaker discussed the practical side of the Christian life.
"The world is not so much concerned with what Christianity is as it is with the question, will it work?"

CHURCH SERVICES ARE PRECEDED BY CONCERT

Rev. C. O. Slagart, presiding officer, presided last night at the First Methodist church to a large audience. The Ely orchestra delighted the congregation as usual with a 20 minute concert. The choir directed by Professor Reid sang two special numbers and Mrs. F. Bernard Webb played the evening program. The first of the four League Sundays was very gratifying to the pastor and officials of the church.
All boys and girls from eight to twelve years of age are invited to meet at the church each afternoon at 4 o'clock. The first 20 present in place this afternoon promptly will be especially rewarded.
The board of stewards will meet tonight at 7:30 and the entire Missionary society will meet in the basement of the church Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock.
Rev. P. T. Stantard closed a very successful young people's revival last night at Henderson. The young people of the entire community cooperate in the meeting.

CAMPAIGN TACTICS OF HOOVER TO CHANGE IN CLOSING WEEK

"Gladhand" to Be Extended from Front Porch in Washington While Gov. Smith Keeps Busy on Stump

FEW CISCOANS GO TO NIMROB CLUB PROGRAM

Only a few Cisco people took advantage of the opportunity of cultivating a closer relation with their rural friends and customers when the club women gave an entertainment at Nimrob Friday evening which was held for the benefit of the club house that is near completion at that place. The entertainment was given in the club house and was a success in every respect. The money realized from the entertainment was also donated to the club house fund. The club women were assisted by Mrs. M. M. Herron, representing the Herron-Owen Shiping Shop; J. E. Raynor, representing the Cisco Building & Loan Association; with Mrs. Raynor and E. H. Varwell, representing the Cisco National Bank. The money realized from the entertainment was also donated to the club house fund. The club women were assisted by Mrs. M. M. WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—President Hoover will change his style of campaign in the last two weeks before election to provide more public appearances.

This will keep him in the public eye during the critical closing days when his Democratic opponent, Alfred E. Smith, will be continually on the stump.

Plans are being made for a "front porch" campaign at his Massachusetts avenue headquarters here this week, after his return from his New York speaking engagement and before his departure for California to vote early the following week.

Hoover is expected to receive and to address a number of delegations from states in this area and in the east. Several requests have come in the last few days for such receptions.

Hoover is expected to make more than "Hoo-do-you-do, glad-to-see-you" addresses and touch upon campaign issues.

Hoover plans to make many important addresses on this trip, as well as one major radio speech, which will be either at St. Louis, Minneapolis, Chicago or Milwaukee.

Hoover was highly pleased with his Massachusetts reception. As a result of the enthusiasm which he stirred among the crowds which saw and heard his impromptu speeches, some friends expressed the opinion that he should get out among the people more.

Hoover's day in Smith's home town will have nothing of the "sidewalks of New York" atmosphere about it. He will participate in no parades. He will spend most of the day far above the sidewalks in hotel room conferences with Republican leaders, getting down to the business of organizing the campaign for its final stages.

Alger Hero, Youthful Financial Wizard and Millionaire at 32, in Charge of Hoover Funds on Coast

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 22.—Meet amazing "Bill" Marvin, financial chairman of the Hoover campaign committee.

Marvin is almost unrelentingly a flesh and blood status of success, a Horatio Alger hero. When he was a lad in Dayton, Ohio, working to support his widowed mother, he got out a pencil and wrote on a piece of paper: "I am going to be a lawyer. I will go to New York, make a pile of money, and then come back to California and live like a gentleman." He put the paper in his pocket as a sort of talisman. Then he grimly set out to live by it, undaunted except his own will.

His Achieved Goal

In 17 years he had achieved his goal. He had become a star crack traveling salesman. University of California "fat" man and debater, teacher, lawyer, was aviator, Wall Street financier, foreign trade specialist, world traveler, organizer and president of the biggest firm of international lawyers in the world, a millionaire, and received an honorary degree from the University of California.

Marvin's way of crashing the gates of Wall Street is typical of this Hooverite's short life story. Back from the war with only his discharge and law degree, for credentials, he brushed by undisturbed and knocked boldly at the office door of Frank Vanderlip, president of the National City bank, and asked for a job.

Asked About Knowledge

"What do you know about banking?" Vanderlip asked the young ex-war captain.

"Nothing," answered Marvin. "That's why I want a job here."

"The worst job you've got," was the answer.

Manufacturing firms were doing business with foreign countries in a clumsy, expensive way.

One Firm for All

If a big firm was operating in 13 countries it had to employ 13 separate legal firms. He determined to offer them one firm for fifteen. Reorganizing he organized the firm of Marvin and Pendants, took a world trip and "hooked up" his firm with law firms in all parts of the globe.

At the age of 30 he was master of international law and head of the biggest international law firm in the world. He had invested wisely, he had a family of three children and he was ready to retire. Two years ago he reorganized his law firm and retired to California.

Young and Energetic

Handsome, boyish-looking, eager and active, he heads the Foreign Trade club, lectures on education, plays golf and works at politics. An ardent admirer of Herbert Hoover, whom he knows intimately, he is a potent force in the Hooverite Hoover campaign here.

"There's no impediment to success," he says. "I have had two mottoes to guide me. One is 'Self denial is the price of strength.' The other is 'Things don't just happen, they're brought about.' If I could write the law of success in one word it would be 'Stick.'"

CARNIVAL EMPLOYEES SOUGHT IN KIDNAPING

DALLAS, Oct. 22.—Armed with a warrant calling for the arrest of Bill Morgan on a kidnaping charge, Constable W. R. Lynn of Carrollton, near Dallas, today was seeking Morgan in connection with the abduction of Buddy Ross, 5, from his Dallas home Saturday. Morgan, the constable was informed, is with a carnival now at Carrollton. The missing boy's mother said that Buddy was playing in the yard at his home when Morgan drove "up" in an automobile. He put Buddy in the machine and drove off. Irene, Buddy's sister, said, Mrs. Ross said that Morgan is related to her former husband.

DEMOCRATIC CHANCES TO WIN ILLINOIS UNUSUALLY BRIGHT

Downstate Farmers Displeased with G. O. P., Smith Popular in Chicago; Wisconsin Claimed Too

CALLAHAN CO. PAYS $1250 FOR WOLF SCALPS

BAIRD, Oct. 22.—A call meeting of the Callahan County Wolf club was held recently for the purpose of starting the fall membership campaign.

President W. P. Strang, president and Secretary A. M. Cooper reported that some 375 wolves had been killed and bounties amounting to about $1250 had been paid by the club since it was organized last April. The club has some money left in the treasury but committees were appointed to raise enough funds to take care of the bounties which will be required as soon as the trapping season opens. One cent per acre for land owners and those leasing or occupying lands in this county is the customary assessment, however, they are volunteer contributions and in not a taxation as some seem to think when the club was organized. The membership to those who do not control or own land is $1 and many people interested in the welfare of the farmers and ranchmen have sent in their dollars to help the cause. The club voted to pay bounties to land owners, tenants and members of the club who support the organization. Many of the largest land owners in the county are now members of the club, and the cattle, sheep and poultry men are exceedingly well pleased with the work the organization is doing.

OIL MAN GOES TO HOSPITAL BY PLANE

LAREDO, Oct. 22.—Edward Stahara, vice president of the Kiewit-Lewis Oil corporation of Laredo, who has been in a critical condition at his apartment at a local hotel the last three days, was taken to San Antonio Sunday afternoon in an ambulance airplane that came here from San Antonio.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—Chances for Democratic success in Illinois are exceptionally bright according to Louis J. Malm, former judge of the Virginia Islands, who is in Washington en route to New York from the three day convention of the Civic League at Huntington, West Virginia.

"We are convinced," he said, "that Governor Smith's majority in Chicago, where I live, will not be less than 100,000 and it may run as high as 200,000. Governor Smith's visit and speech there will greatly stimulate the enthusiasm of the Democrats and I am convinced the vote in Chicago will be materially deviated."

"Never in my recollection have there been a better spirit displayed by the Democratic organization in Chicago and Cook county. The utmost harmony prevails. There is no party jealousy, the leaders are united and the workers are up on their toes determined to roll up a greater majority for Governor Smith than has ever been returned for any candidate by the voters of that city."

"Although the downstate section of Illinois usually is Republican, the dissatisfaction of the farmers coupled with admiration for the conduct and courage of Governor Smith is working a great change in that section. We will carry counties in Illinois which have been Republican since the Civil War and I am confident the best the Republicans can hope for this year, outside of Chicago, will be an even break. Judge Floyd Thompson, who is making the race for governor on the Democratic ticket, is himself a tower of strength and there is every reason to believe he will be elected."

"Out in the Middle West, we Democrats are sure of carrying Wisconsin; believe we have better than an even chance to carry Minnesota, the two Dakotas and Nebraska and the 29 electoral votes of Illinois, which I believe we will get, will insure the election of Alfred E. Smith as the next president of the United States."

Bride of Death

In her honeydew chemise and her luxurious dressing gown, pretty Ethel Blum, 23, and an artist, was found dead in her boudoir Brooklyn apartment—the bride of death instead of handsome Jimmy La Magna, the man she loved. Lack of money and objection of fiance's family to her religion were given as reason in a note left behind her.

U. S. FACTORIES ADD 8 MILLIONS H. P. IN 7 YEARS

During the past seven years the factories of the nation as a whole have added eight million new horse-power to turn the wheels of production. This increase has been entirely in electric motors. In 1927 alone there was an increase of 1,250,000 horse-power, or 7 1/2 per cent, in electric motors installed. Many industries are 100 per cent electrified, and confining all the factories in the United States, electricity is the power mover for 75 per cent of the horse-power. Installation of boilers and engines locally as a means of power supply has come to a standstill.

This substitution of the electric motor, driven by power from the central station, for the old steam boiler and engine has released enormous sums of money to factory operators and has greatly facilitated the establishment of new factories. With interconnection making power generally available almost everywhere, more advantageous location of factories has been possible. Industry at last has the opportunity to move out into the country where improved living conditions are attractive to labor, and also where it is possible to more completely adjust factory location to markets, raw materials and transportation facilities.

As the power lines have extended more and more into rural territories, new industries, as well as old industries expanding their operations, have shown a marked tendency to avoid congested cities. This movement, described as decentralization, does not imply the closing of existing plants or their shifting from one section of the country to another, or their disintegration into a large number of small units. The general movement indicates that present industrialized sections are keeping their industries while new factory expansion is permitting rural sections and bringing about a better diffusion of industry and agriculture.

The electrification of industry has been an important factor in the enlarged output per worker characterizing our industrial performance since the war. The real wages of our workers have risen to new high levels. "Increased productivity is essential to permanent increases in the standards of living," says William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor. "On the other hand," he continues, "workers must have wage increases if there is to be a sale for the increased output of industries and agriculture." The industrial worker of today is no longer a laborer; he is a director of power. There is available more than four horse-power, or the equivalent of forty man power, for every worker in the United States.

3 VICTIMS OF CAR ACCIDENT ARE IMPROVED

The victims of an automobile accident that occurred last Tuesday near Putnam, on the Bankhead highway, are still in the Graham sanitarium where it was reported they are gradually being nursed back to health. Reports this morning from the hospital stated that all three are doing as well as could be expected, though their injuries were rather serious.

The injured are Fred Gilliam, of the Dallas Athletic club, of that city; Miss Zeta Lynn, also of Dallas, and Mrs. Vera Hazelwood, of Long Beach, Cal. It was rather an unusual accident that necessitated these people being sent to the hospital. They were driving through enroute from Dallas to California, and near Putnam passed a car carrying a trailer. Just as the two cars passed, the trailer became detached and sped on in front of the Dallas car, and wrecked that machine.

Gilliam has a broken rib, while Mrs. Hazelwood, perhaps the most seriously injured, is suffering from an injury to her back. She was returning home from a visit to the eastern states, and had stopped over in Dallas, where she joined Gilliam and Miss Lynn for the trip west. Miss Lynn's injuries are not so serious.

They were brought here by an ambulance from the Baird Undertaking company.

FORD SERVICE

AN IMPORTANT ITEM AND IT'S FREE

THE service obligation of the Ford Motor Company and its dealer organization is now growing at the rate of 5000 cars a day. It is to these new car owners that this message is addressed.

The new Ford is a remarkably fine car for one that costs so little. It is simple in design, constructed of the finest materials, and built to unusually close measurements.

These are the reasons it performs so wonderfully. These are also the reasons its service requirements are so few and the up-keep cost so low.

When you receive your new car, the dealer will explain the simple little things that should be attended to at regular intervals to insure the best performance. He will also tell you something of his own facilities for doing this work promptly and at small cost.

With the purchase of your car, you are entitled to Free Inspection Service by your dealer at 500, 1000 and 1500 miles. This service is due you and we urge you to take full advantage of it. Proper care during this breaking-in period means a great deal to the life of your car.

Included in the Free Inspection Service is a check-up of the battery, the generator charging rate, the distributor, the carburetor adjustment, lights, brakes, shock absorbers, tire inflation and steering gear. The engine oil is also changed and chassis lubricated.

No charge whatever is made for labor or materials incidental to this inspection service, except where repairs are necessary because of accident, neglect, or misuse.

The labor of changing the engine oil and lubricating the chassis is also free, although a charge is made for the new oil.

We believe that when you see the good effects of this inspection you will continue to have it done regularly throughout the life of your car.

You will find the Ford dealer very helpful in keeping your car in good running order for many thousands of miles at a minimum of trouble and expense.

He operates under close factory supervision and has been specially trained and equipped to do this work promptly, thoroughly and economically.
