DOCTORS WANTED.

The cry is raised again that there are not enough physicians in the United States, especially in the rural sections. In many places, according to Dr. William J. Mayo of Rochester, Minn., small towns are left without trained physicians, or must depend on untrained practitioners wedded to cult or dependent on appeal to the emotions.

STUNT WEDDINGS.

That Chicago wedding in which the minister and the bridal couple were 20 miles apart and the ceremony was performed with the aid of radio and television leaves the normal reader singularly unimpressed. Perhaps it demonstrates the success of radio and television, but neither of those scientific developments needed further demonstration.

A MURDERER'S MIND.

Edward Hickman, executed for the horrible murder of a child, was formally declared sane, and so legally responsible for his acts. So he was put out of the way for the safety of society and an example to others. With that, few will quarrel.

At the same time it is permissible to inquire whether in reality, as well as in law, the young man really was sane. Sanity is a vague, broad term.

Hickman always had a strong desire to attract attention to himself. He wanted the center of the stage, something like the historic youth who burned the temple at Ephesus to make himself remembered.

Hickman's mother was a religious fanatic, subject to uncontrollable rages, who often threatened to kill her children and spent some time in an asylum.

Obviously it was a bad heritage. There was a stream of mental abnormality. The stock was defective. It was a family of social misfits, extending through three known generations.

Scientists do not know enough yet to explain people like Hickman, or help them much. Some day society may be able to do more than merely protect itself from him and his kind. So far we are not even doing that very well. Too many of these birds escape.

EAGLES AT HOME.

A two-reel movie drama now in the cutting and titling stage has for its actors a family of eagles. Francis H. Herrick, professor of biology at Western Reserve University, has long been famous for his careful observations and reports on the ways of eagles. Some of his descriptions have been considered exaggerations by skeptical listeners who are not very good nature students.

NOVEL BY ARLINE DE HAAS

Copyright, 1927, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
"POWDER MY BACK," starring Irene Rich, is a Warner Bros. picture of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

George helped Adele back into her chair and threw the rug over her. "Don't you ever get tired of sitting in this chair?" she asked. "I don't know," she answered. "I'm sitting in it now I can pose in my chair. And yet, at the same time, it gives me a thrill to think of the matter where I go someone might recognize me. I'd die if I didn't have a certain amount of my business, my salary—well, I'll never forget how I was the first time I saw you in a paper. I watched everything that was written in me, and I posted it all up."

Strained Relations, Distrust Between France and Italy Cause Alp Frontier to Be Fortified

PARIS, Oct. 24—The fortification building race that is going along on both sides of the lofty French-Italian frontier in the Alps testifies to the extent of the strained relations that have existed between Paris and Rome ever since Premier Mussolini came to power.

prevent the passing of any armies Gun for Gun. M. Painleve declared France will keep up with Italy and will match the Italian fortifications gun for gun. Thus the Alps race is on, at a cost of millions of dollars to the taxpayers of the two countries.

Our plan of border fortifications which includes the building of a defense system from the Channel to the Mediterranean, makes provisions for the protection of our Italian frontier," M. Painleve said.

Our only ambition is to rest master of our Alpine valleys, for this frontier is far easier to defend than the eastern borders with Germany. Certain works have already been started to protect the region of Nice, which is one of the nerve centers of that border."

PARTY BOLTING IS GREATEST THIS CAMPAIGN SINCE 1880

Many Former Leaders Join Ranks of One-Time Enemy; Hoover Seems to Have Slight Edge in Migrating

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—Bolting of the Republican and Democratic parties by life-long adherents has become the most sensational and disturbing factor of the Smith-Hoover campaign.

Party lines may not be cracking under the strain, but thousands and thousands of individuals are becoming "bolts" will eventually become a nation-wide voting canvass or another. But at both headquarters here there is vague uncertainty as to the factors on which surface signs indicate—and they are being sought.

That is why there is talk of Hoover on the prohibition issue carrying such Democratic strongholds as Virginia and North Carolina, and Smith as a wet, winning such G. O. P. Gibblers as Pennsylvania and Massachusetts.

Regardless of the wholesale descriptions in the present campaign, many believe it will have a far-reaching effect in the future. Hoover leaders in the South predict that the readiness of their constituents to vote the Republican ticket will mean the emancipation of the old Confederate states from the Democratic party. This note is reflected in southern newspapers and discussions by southern Hooverites—with hope by some, with fear by others.

Prohibition Chief Cause
Prohibition is the chief cause for the many migrations. Smith is the man around whom the movements surge. His outspokenness in his telegram to the Houston convention has shaken the determination of many drys to remain loyal to their party even in the face of the nomination of a wet and a Tammany man.

Democrats are abandoning ancient affiliations because they regard Smith as a "nullificationist," and his modification attitude as a repudiation of the platform upon which the presidential nomination was based. But many Republicans are turning to him because they think he has the cure and the cure and vision he has shown. "If this (Smith's record) is Tammany," concludes Jerome Davis Greene of New York, an associate of the Rockefeller, "let's have more of it."

And so the topsy-turvy exchanges go. Perhaps no presidential election ever saw so many headings plunged from one party to another. They undoubtedly outnumber even the shiftings of the famous mugwump campaign of 1884, and dwarf the abandonment of party lines which marked the closing days of the bitter 1920 battle around the League of Nations.

There is a sharp and amazing contrast in the kind of people switching to Hoover and those forsaking their Republicanism for Smith. Hoover's Democratic followers consist chiefly of southern and western drys. A few include an outstanding Democrat as Carl Voneman of Missouri, assistant secretary of agriculture under Wilson back Hoover, because of his farm views.

Big Business Turns
These turning to Smith contrasted with wealthy bankers, business men, manufacturers, railroad presidents and other figures dominant in the industrial, financial and commercial fields. John J. Raskob, who quit the chairmanship of the board of General Motors to become national Democratic chairman, and not the pace for the newsmen, is the shining example, but there are many others. Charles H. Sahlin, head of the Guaranty Trust company, and Samuel M. Ross, former president of the Pennsylvania railroad, are others.

Speculation on which candidate is profiting more from the exchanges may be futile, but it would seem that Hoover has the advantage. For one thing, those joining his banner are politicians and prohibitionists of experience and wide acquaintance. They know how to get votes and handle political campaigns. They are regulars who need no training. All they need is to be sold what to do—and not much of that.

There is a more important consideration. Their example in quitting their traditional party, especially in southern states, emboldens Hooverites to declare themselves. This is an incalculable factor below the Mason and Dixon line, where one is looked on as a fallen angel if he or she supports the party so long held in anathema.

Definite Asset for Smith
But Smith's new-won friends bring him a definite asset. The willingness of big leaders in industry and business to take for him may tend to dislocate the general belief that good times are the exclusive possession of the Republican party. It gives Smith a hold, perhaps, on those who vote their pocketbook—and their number is legion.

Hoover has the more imposing list. His Democratic group includes such figures as Vance M. Carmick, former Democratic national chairman; Henry Breckenridge, assistant secretary of war under Wilson; Senators Simmons of North Carolina and Heflin of Alabama; ex-Judge Benjamin F. Blewett of California; ex-Governor William E. Sweet of Colorado and ex-Attorney General Wayne Williams of the same state; ex-Governor O. B. Colquitt of Texas and Thomas B. Love of the same state, former state chairman; ex-Representative William D. Washburn of Florida; secretary of the Democratic national committee under Bryan; Dr. Jennie M. Calves of Nebraska, present Democratic national committeewoman; Bert Martin, resigning secretary-treasurer of the National Farmer-Labor party; Judge William R. Patterson of Maine; ex-Governor Eugene Noble Foss of Massachusetts; ex-Senator Owen of Oklahoma.

Quite Temporarily
Besides these party wheelhorses, Hoover's reinforcements include numerous Democratic state committeemen and women of other years, former federal office holders under Wilson and at least a dozen former members of Democratic legislatures in Alabama, for instance, the Hoover electors are said to have been Democrats until now, and they don't admit that they have left the party except temporarily.

Smith has comparatively few Republicans active in politics now or in the past. They can be counted on the fingers of two hands. The most outstanding is Senator Blaine of Wisconsin, a La Follette Republican. Others who were once due-paying G. O. Ps. in good standing are Uzal McCarter, former attorney general of New Jersey; Magnus Johnson, Minnesota, ex-United States Senator; H. C. Handshorough of South Dakota; Henry H. Curran of New York, formerly Republican president of the Borough of Manhattan; and George Alexander of South Carolina, who resigned as vice-presidential candidate on the Farmer-Labor state to stump for Smith. But Smith has many relatives and in-laws of once prominent and powerful politicians. Spencer Penrose of Colorado, brother of the late Boies Penrose, Pennsylvania, boss and senator, is for him. So is Richard Quay, son of the late Senator Matt Quay, once ruler of Philadelphia. He also has the support of Mrs. Curtis L. Guild, widow of the Bay State governor. In Smith's corner, too, are Charles and William Kendrick, brother and nephew respectively of the former Republican mayor of Philadelphia.

Humorous Aspect
There are some humorous aspects to this otherwise serious business of rewording lifelong associates and affiliations. Edna Ferber, the short story writer, for instance, will vote for Smith because she was recently held up by G. O. P. customs men on her return from Europe. Dan Marquis, humorist and author of "The Old Book," will back Hoover because of the latter's "tone, manner and essential character."

Ex-Senator Owen of Oklahoma who drew Smith's fire and inspired the famous religious tolerance speech at Oklahoma City, is for Hoover, but his mother-in-law, Mrs. G. P. Hester, is said to be supporting Smith.

The feverish activities of Republican and Democratic press seems in establishing the rolls of deserters—or "accessions," as they are known—reveal the rapid growth of the business. Each office of the national committee here but an empty shell whose sole work is to keep track of the mugwumps. And their statements, with all the whys and wherefores of their action, are given intensive and immediate publicity.

Eastland county retained its lead in activities in deep producing counties of this part of Texas last week with 40 activities being reported. Twenty-six tests are going down in Stephens county and 13 in Palo Pinto county. With 77 employees whose sole work is to keep track of the mugwumps. And their statements, with all the whys and wherefores of their action, are given intensive and immediate publicity.

AUDIENCE IS GIVEN LAUGHS BY 'ARABELLA'

A fair-sized audience at the high school auditorium last night was kept laughing from the time the curtain went up on the first act of "Here Comes Arabella" until it went down on the finale. The characters did more to provide the folk out in front with laughs than did the play itself.

The actors themselves ed to get as much enjoyment from the situation as did the audience.

HOOVER IS BEST QUALIFIED CANDIDATE, HUGHES DECLARES

Party Differences Are Few But G. O. P. Nominee More Competent Than Smith, Ex-Colleague Says

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Oct. 24. — Passing candidates, rather than party issues, Charles Evans Hughes in his first speech of the presidential campaign here last night urged the election of Herbert Hoover on the ground that the Republican nominee is "better qualified" to head the national government than Governor Alfred E. Smith.

agitation, much confusion, increased demoralization and no better, but I think, less actual enforcement of prohibition. "Meanwhile, the constitution would stand inexorable in its requirements and subject to amendments only by the action of 36 states."

The Iron Chancellor

Interesting study of Dr. Hugo Eckener, Germany's "iron chancellor of Lakehurst, N. J., to watch progress of repairing damaged stabilizer of Graf Zeppelin.

Hughes, who was governor of New York when Smith was a member of the legislature, gave the Democratic presidential nominee "full praise for his knowledge of the government of the state of New York" but as to national and international affairs, he declared:

"If Smith were elected, it would take him years to learn what Hoover knows now."

Hughes spoke at a Republican rally at the municipal auditorium and then repeated his speech in the studio of Radio Station KFEQ over a looking of the National Broadcasting company's chain. Due to last minute arrangements of the Republican national committee for the broadcasting of the speech, it was impossible to pick up the program from the hall, so Hughes agreed to make his speech again for the benefit of a wide radio audience.

Many of those in the audience were from border counties in Kansas, as well as from neighboring cities in Missouri.

Hughes was applauded when he paid a tribute to the policies of the Coolidge administration, which he said had contributed to a degree of prosperity which has excited the anger and envy of the world.

Reviewing Hoover's work as an engineer and as a relief worker in foreign nations, Hughes brought a burst of cheers when he declared "nobody in Europe has any doubt as to the intense Americanism of Herbert Hoover." Hoover had always maintained his home in the United States while working abroad.

Hughes declared it would not be necessary for Hoover to appoint a commission in case some difficult situation should arise threatening a continuation of prosperity.

"Hoover," he said "would be about as good a commission as we could get, already organized and in action."

Taking up what he described as the few party issues in the campaign, Hughes said, "We have a shon battle over prohibition." He said it would "take the votes of 36 states to change the eighteenth amendment" and that "no scientific definition of intoxicating liquor can be framed which will permit investing honors to be made and sold in this country contrary to the constitution."

With Smith as president, Hughes contended there would be "much

7 NEW HOMES IN ALBANY ARE BEING BUILT

ALBANY, Oct. 24. — Building seems to be booming again here in Albany, and the erection of seven new residences will attest the fact. Some of these homes are being expensively equipped, beautifully located, and handsomely furnished.

These homes are scattered about in different sections of the city, but four of them are being built in the northwestern part of town. This section is a fair bid to become a large residence section of Albany, and is ideally located for homesites.

The business district is also changing appearance. Several houses completely remodeling and enlarging their stores. John F. Sedwick has just finished remodeling two buildings on Main street, and J. L. Castiberry is also about through with his remodeling. The Castiberry building in which will be located a furniture store presents one of the prettiest brick fronts in the city.

A pretty brick pattern has been worked out and with its large show windows and vestibule entrance this building will be second to none in West Texas.

VOTERS IN LINE AT 6 P. M. MAY CAST BALLOTS

ALBANY, Oct. 24. — Voters in line outside the polling places at 6 o'clock on election night must be permitted to cast their ballots under a formal ruling today by Attorney General Albert Ottinger, Republican candidate for governor.

This ruling, it was said at the capitol, will preclude the possibility of Governor Smith's calling a special session of the legislature to pass a special act keeping the polls open until midnight if necessary so that enrolled citizens can vote. State and city officials were alarmed over the greatly increased registration and feared that it would not be possible for all voters to cast their ballots if the polls closed at 6 o'clock.

FOREIGN HELP TO STOP BOOZE FLOW FIZZLES

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24. — Foreign cooperation with the United States in prohibition enforcement has been of little avail, it was admitted at the treasury department today. After a practical breakdown of the agreement with England owing to clashes of authority in Bahamas and Bermuda, the main vendor which Canada was informing the United States of its clearance of liquor from the dominions was collapsed. Prohibition Commissioner J. M. Moran admitted.
