ILL ROADS LEAD TO BRECKENRIDGE

Frank J. Huey Stricken, Condition Grave

Prominent Ciscoan Unconscious After Suffering Hemorrhage of Brain in Hotel at Breckenridge

MAN IS FOURTH WHITE MAN ACCEPTED BY CHIPPEWA TRIBE

TACO, Oct. 26.—Robert Emery, hotel owner here, says claims membership in ancient tribe of Chippewas of Lac Du Flambeau. His name is Ga She Qua or "Flying Cloud."

He was named in accordance with Indian ritualism. Fast three days, his first vision on the third day a deep hank of swiftly moving clouds. He was therefore Ga She Qua Unt.

"Flying Cloud" was presented a headdress, beaded leggings, an apron, moccasins, a bone vest, and a string of beads. He was therefore Ga She Qua Unt.

After reaching Breckenridge B. S. Huey called Dr. E. L. Graham in consultation with other physicians attending the sick man, who spent most of Thursday night with Mr. Huey, returning home at 2 o'clock this morning. Dr. Graham stated that his condition was very grave with about an even chance for his recovery. During the night Mr. Huey was relieved of some of the blood from his spinal column. Dr. Graham stated, which seemed to partially ease him but has not regained consciousness. A report from the Westside hospital at Breckenridge at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon stated that he was still unconscious with very little change in his condition.

Mr. Huey was stricken Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock and became unconscious almost immediately. He was removed to his room at the hotel where he was treated until conveyed to the hospital as he failed to rally from the stroke. News of his serious illness was not generally known in Cisco until this morning, and his numerous friends were greatly shocked when learning of the seriousness of his condition.

Mr. Huey, whose home is in Cisco, several months ago became associated with the Burch hotel in Breckenridge, where he is vice president of the company with the business department of that hotel under his management.

An interesting program was had by the Rotary luncheon Thursday, when Rotarian C. P. Cole, program chairman. As one of principal Rotary guests Whitelock Montgomery, native Texas, entertained the Rotarians and with several selections of his poems from his latest book, "Corn Silks and Cotton Seeds." These readings were enjoyed, the compositions showing the ability of the talent.

Montgomery came to Cisco with Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Robertson from Rising Star.

The latter, whose pen name is Dean Robertson, is also one of Texas' most gifted writers of verse, and whose first book is now on the press.

Montgomery is a charter member of the Texas Poetry Society, and his wife, Vada Stewart Montgomery, is also a talented poet of verse and short stories, an assistant editor for the third consecutive year of the year book of the Texas Poetry Society.

ADVERTISING & BUSINESS FOR TEXAS

BRECKENRIDGE, Oct. 25.—"My ambition is to see the 17th congressional district become the leading diversified farming district of Texas."

Such was the sentiment that rang out time and again Tuesday night in the address of Congressman-elect R. Q. Lee in speaking to a crowd of business men and poultry fans at the Breckenridge city hall.

Introduced by Curtis Hancock, who said that Congressman Lee was here to talk turkey—meaning poultry—to this people, Mr. Lee, who came over late in the afternoon from his home at Cisco, for the occasion, spoke for an hour in the interest of a diversified farming program, with poultry, pigs and good milk cows on every farm in Stephens county.

His address liberally bulged with statistics showing the opportunity that awaits the community that will pioneer in these several industries in this section.

The romance of figures would be a good title for what he had to say, as he cited instance after instance, fact after fact, and figure after figure, stressing the need and value of turning the lowly hen, the dairy cow and the pure-bred hog for permanent prosperity which petroleum has failed to distribute in the oil belt where he has lived throughout the active years of his manhood.

The enthusiasm resulting from the meeting was such that it pointed to a poultry show for Breckenridge "open to all the world" in the near future, the date to be determined in the near future.

"I am as much opposed to the idea of raising poultry alone as I am to the one crop idea applied to cotton," Mr. Lee said. "Every Governor Smith has been convinced that a southern farm should raise a little cotton, and he may pick up a state or two out there. We still believe, however, that his best prospects are in the Barleycorn belt."

He urged that every farmer should immediately rid his premises of the "borderer type" of cow, meaning the one that costs more to upkeep than her production justifies.

His remarks were interestingly illustrated by references to experiences and observations which have been written into the progress of this campaign of education were placed end to end and they would reach approximately to the point where they started from — Columbus (Ohio) State Journal.

AIR INVESTMENT.

Dr. Hugo Eckener and his associates want to interest American capital in building more Zeppelins. Their plan, it is said, calls for five such ships for a trans-Atlantic air service to carry passengers and mail between the United States and Europe. Four ships would be expected to maintain a weekly service each way, with one kept for replacement duty in case of any of the other four were laid up for repairs. In view of the proved merits of such craft, the plan can hardly be called impractical. Trans-Atlantic air service on definite schedule like that of ocean liners cannot be expected for some time yet, if ever, but a fair average might be maintained. There will probably be no difficulty in raising the money. American investors are already pouring funds liberally into domestic aviation and will doubtless be ready to risk a few millions after the spectacular advertising afforded by this maiden voyage. Dirigibles are obviously in demand. They cannot carry many passengers, but rich travelers, of whom there are plenty, will pay high fares. Investors in this or any other form of air development, however, should be warned that they may need patience. They must not expect returns too soon.

HOOVER'S PLEA PLEASE EAST BUT DISLIKED IN WEST

New Yorkers Take to Nominee's Stand on Keeping Government out of Business; to Hurt Elsewhere

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—Herbert Hoover's New York speech attacking Governor Smith's proposals on the three issues of prohibition, farm relief and water power as being a state doctrine of "State Socialism" is regarded as the best speech he has made in the campaign, and in New York it fell on friendly ears. The speech was intended by the Republican nominee to be a direct appeal to the business man to avoid what he had declared as the policy of Governor Smith is preparing. It was Mr. Hoover's intention to deal with the issues only as they applied to business and to give assurance that a Republican administration would keep government out of business.

The Republican nominee was far more pleased with his New York speech than the one he delivered in Boston. While he was being showered with congratulations he let it be known that he thought the nomination had been driven home.

In New York, where all idea of government being in or interfering with legitimate business is abhorrent, Mr. Hoover's speech is looked upon with great interest, particularly in the banking and financial sections. In the main they, together with the business elements, lean more strongly to the Republican view of government. The speech expressed their collective opinion almost down to the last word, but whether there was a sum of votes other than which might come through missionary movements, and which the Republican managers look for, is yet a question. Some Democrats incline to the idea that Mr. Hoover struck the vital points in the Smith campaign, and that it constitutes the first attack of the Republican nominee in this direction.

Report West Not Please

Gains thus made in the East may be offset in the West, according to the opinion of leading Democratic Early To-day morning while messages of congratulations were coming to Mr. Hoover in Washington, Western Democratic leaders were advising national headquarters that the speech had definitely aroused the progressive elements to resentment. The things which Governor Smith has stood for in the matter of farm relief and water power, according to the western leaders, has given the Democratic nominee what hold he has in that section of the country.

Not only the reports coming by long-distance phone to the headquarters, say that Governor Smith was wholly misrepresented in his position, particularly on farm relief and Western Republican progressives are already expressing their disapproval. On the prohibition question there was little comment, owing to the widespread understanding that Governor Smith's personal views will not be approved by the country. The reports came from Minnesota, Nebraska, Wisconsin and Missouri where the speech was heard by radio. Some surprise in a shifting of support to Smith. Democratic leaders say, may be looked for.

The official view of Democratic Chairman Raskob is that Hoover is misleading the people into believing that Smith is for some Socialistic state.

Raskob Makes Statement

"Governor Smith's whole life replicates the thought and his utterances in this campaign do not warrant any such conclusion," said Mr. Raskob.

Governor Smith believes that one of the difficulties about the federal government is there is too much intervention with private operations. Take water power. The government owns the river beds and controlling the forces of that water do not mean government operations. To improve the navigationability of streams and harness the power would enable the government to deal with private individuals who have the use of that power, converting it into electricity and distributing it.

Nothing has been said by Mr.

Governor Smith that advocates putting the government into the business of purchasing farm surpluses.

In fact, it has been clearly stated that the Democratic belief is that the farmer is not acting a government authority but for laws that will enable him to operate in a way that will permit him to mobilize his surplus crops and distributing the same to the crop benefited. There is no tax whatever on any else.

Governor Smith's statement are a strong recommendation of state rights. He is confident in the belief that if there was ever a time in the history when the eman-cation of state rights was of paramount importance it is now, and that it will become increasingly so as the country grows in population. With that growth you get more questions that make more use of police power, which is a local rather than a federal action, necessary.

The New York Republic, an organization staged an anti-seaboard reception for the nominees when better than 20,000 persons, many of them women, joined Madison Square Garden and the fire chiefs closed the doors to avoid crowding. Two bands played their tunes. "Dixie" received the largest applause. In the audience there was a "horn section" and a "bell section."

Government kept up such a racket that it was made to subside, but the bells went on until the demonstration.

FOX FUR IS KING IN PARIS STYLES

PARIS, Oct. 26.—The fox is king of the furs in Paris this autumn and this means practically every one of the 37 varieties on the market. Fox hunting is now the most important sport for Mademoiselle for she must suit her fur to her complexion as well as costume.

The very smartest one of the season is a slate-blue fox which flatters a fair, fresh skin and looks very well with navy-blue and black costumes. Jean Patou is showing them with chic slate-grey tailcoats which he makes to match.

Premet is showing some white foxes with tufts of black peppering them in a fascinating pattern.

They are ideal to wear with black or navy-blue.

Blue ones which are a kind of mauve boîte-de-rois tint are favorite.

Verdins with the brunette or rosy blonde. They give a bright touch to black and dark red-brown costumes.

Cross foxes mingling tones of black and grey with fox-red, give a great variety of choice. They are best with rich brown or black.

Silver foxes are best on mature women. Red foxes are reserved for the lucky auburn-haired and those with a golden tan in their skin.

Turquoise—blue, green and beige foxes are the perfect complement to certain complexions, hair and costumes.

MOODY SAVES MURDERER SILVER FROM DEATH PENALTY

Governor Changes Sentence to Life Imprisonment after Having Kept Condemned Man in Suspense

AUSTIN, Oct. 26.—J. R. (Bob) Silver, after penitentiary officials at Huntsville, where he is confined, said he is alive today. After keeping the man sentenced to die for had completed their preparations participation in the robbery and for electrocution, order of Roscoe Wilson, Fort Worth theater cashier, his mother, wife and sister, Wilson's mother, balance of his natural life.

The communication of the death sentence to him for the following reasons: This is not an incident in which one of the two guilty parties has been apprehended, tried and convicted while the other party escaped, but in this instance both parties have been apprehended, tried according to law for the same offense upon the same facts, and one received the death penalty while the other received life imprisonment.

Petitions from Fort Worth asking

that the condemned be carried out and petitions asking for commutation of the death sentence to life imprisonment "for the sake of the public in general in suspense until virtually the last minute." Governor Moody late Thursday commuted Silver's sentence to imprisonment.

Petitions from Fort Worth asking

for commutation of the death sentence to life imprisonment

"for the sake of the public in general in suspense until virtually the last minute." Governor Moody late Thurs-

day commuted Silver's sentence to

imprisonment.

Statement of Moody.

Governor Moody's proclamation follows:

"Whereas J. R. Silver was convicted in Criminal District court of Tarrant county at the February term, 1927, on a charge of robbery by assault committed upon the person of Roscoe Wilson and his punishment assessed at death, the death sentence was commuted to life imprisonment. The reasons assigned by Governor Culberson and Governor Neff seem to my mind to apply in this case.

Unequal Penalty Is Reason.

"If there was any miscarriage of justice, it may have been in the one case and not in Silver's," the governor wrote in his proclamation, explaining that "nothing can be said in mitigation of the crime committed."

Mooty's Fourth Action.

The proclamation was issued in Austin 30 minutes before the time Silver was scheduled to be measured for his death garment and
