COOLIDGE COUPLE BURNED TO DEATH

TWO PERISH IN FLAMES OF THEIR HOME

Negro Being Held for Questioning by Officers.

COOLIDGE, May 3.—Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Davidson, about 60, burned to death last night in their farm home three miles northeast of here and George Simmons, negro, is being held by Sheriff A. McKenzie. No charges have been filed.

The negro told officers that he heard screams shortly before midnight and saw someone run from the Davidson home with a flashlight. He said he became frightened and ran to his cabin nearby and locked the door. About an hour later he looked out and saw the Davidson home in flames.

This morning Simmons notified neighbors who went to investigate. Davidson's body was found in the ruins of the bedroom and his wife's found near a trunk in an adjoining room.

An oil can usually kept in the back yard was found in the ruins of the house. Another oil can was found in Davidson's bedroom.

Mrs. G. G. Hutson of Fort Worth, who had been visiting with her parents, the Davidsons, for a week, had gone to an uncle's home in the Davidson's were alone at the time of the fire.

Mrs. Hutson, a son-in-law, and a sister, Mrs. J. Vaughn of Waco, Tex., the Davidsons were ten farmers and had lived in this county 15 years.

The investigation of the fire was being conducted by County Attorney Tom Cannon.

Little Cordelia Mellon Scaife, believed to be the richest baby in the world, is shown as she was taking an airing the other day near her home in Pittsburgh. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Mawse Scaife, and is a granddaughter of R. B. Mellon, and grand niece of Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the treasury. Some day she may be heiress to the Mellon millions, of which there are many.

Two Boys, Apprehended Here in Possession of Car, Admit Theft of Automobile at Sweetwater

Two youths, arrested by Police Officer B. B. Poe in the possession of the Buick coupe here shortly before noon, are being held for state authorities after they admitted to municipal authorities that they stole the car in Sweetwater last night. The boys, one 19 and the other 16, said that their homes are in California and one exhibited a driver's license made out in the name which he gave officers and issued on March 22, 1929.

The boys after first telling conflicting stories to the effect that the car belonged to an uncle of theirs and that they were brothers, admitted under questioning that they stole the car from a man by the name of Andrew Urban. A letter addressed to Mrs. Andrew Urban was found in the door pocket of the upholstery.

A call to the sheriff at Sweetwater revealed that a car answering the description of the one in the possession of the two boys had been lost there last night. The motor number on the car—1958134—corresponded with that given by the Sweetwater officers. The car when found here bore a California license numbers, which the boys admitted that they had placed on the car themselves. Texas number plates were found to have been tossed into the rear of the vehicle. These numbers were 178-056, issued in Coleman county. The California numbers on the car were 23-45-73.

The boys were taken in custody shortly after they had parked the car on Ninth street just opposite the Southwestern Motor company. Their actions aroused the suspicion of people in the district who notified officers. Mr. Poe went to the scene and questioned the youths who told conflicting stories and finally admitted the theft. The younger one attempted to run but was captured.

They were brought to the city hall where they are being held. No charges had been filed shortly after noon. The boys probably will be held for Sweetwater officers.

E. M. LITTLE REPORTED TO BE IMPROVED

A report from Abilene shortly after 1 o'clock this afternoon said that E. M. Little, injured night before last in an automobile accident on the Bankhead highway, two miles west of Baird when his car crashed into the rear of a truck, was improving today. Mr. Little, Cisco automobile dealer, was returning from Abilene to Cisco with W. W. West at the time of the accident. Mr. Little sustained a fractured right arm, his jawbone was broken and the left side of his face crushed while there were deep cuts on his temple.

A traveling man was driving behind Mr. Little and Mr. West at the time of the accident. When he reached the scene both men were unconscious. The impact of collision had been so great that the engine was driven back under the cowl. The salesman with difficulty extracted the injured men from their car and hurried them in his car to the Alexander hospital in Abilene. Mr. West escaped with deep lacerations on his face and right arm.

THREE 1,000 BARREL TANKS ARE EMPLOYED

Underground Tunnel Connects Three Receptacles.

Discovery of what is described by officers as having been one of the largest and most complete whiskey manufacturing plants ever operated in this section was made Wednesday by Sheriff Foster of Eastland and members of his force.

The plant, which the officers say appeared to have not been used for three or four months, was located a few miles west of Eastland and only a short distance south of the Bankhead highway.

Three 1,000-barrel oil tanks were used. These were connected by an underground tunnel large enough for a man to pass through and were piped for gas and water. One of the tanks had a door cut in the side with the piece replaced so neatly that one had to notice carefully to detect that the metal was not solid. At the end of the tunnel leading from underneath one of the tanks, was a trap-door covered over with dirt so as to conceal it from view from the outside but which could be easily opened from the inside.

The officers believe one of the large tanks was used for storage of mash, one for a still and the other for liquor storage. Sheriff Foster says the plant had evidently been used for a year or two. The still had been removed.

Five stills captured. Five large stills have been located and taken possession of by Sheriff Foster and his men within the past four months. One of these, located five miles northwest of Cisco, was found by the officers Thursday while it was in operation. It was an old still and is believed to have been in operation for more than a year.

SERIOUS RIOTS AGAIN BREAK OUT IN BERLIN

BERLIN, May 3.—Fatal rioting broke out again in the Neukölln district of southeast Berlin this afternoon, despite the proclamation of a state of siege and the presence of a powerful force of police.

Two women were shot and were believed to have been killed. Three workmen employed on subway construction were wounded. Fellow workers went on strike in protest against the shooting of the three subway laborers.

Police were using airplanes to find the position of snipers who were firing on the officers from roof tops.

Entire San Benito Police Force Fired

SAN BENITO, May 3.—The entire police force of San Benito, consisting of four men, was discharged by the city commission here following acceptance of the resignation of Chief of Police J. A. Goolsby.

J. L. Waters, formerly deputy sheriff, was appointed chief of police to succeed Goolsby and will name a new force.

Meeting of Municipal Heads at Eastland Thursday to Consider Utility Bill Is Without Action

Due to an apparent lack of interest on the part of the majority of municipal executives in the three counties to which invitations were sent the conference called to take place at Eastland yesterday afternoon in connection with the proposed utilities regulation measure now before the state legislature failed of action. It was the purpose of the conference to study the proposed measure, with special reference to its influence upon the control of municipally-owned plants, and to convey to the legislators representing the three counties the attitude of the executives present.

The counties were Eastland, Callahan and Stephens. Only four cities were represented, one in Callahan county and three in Eastland county.

What action the officials of the cities concerned will take in the premises will probably be left up to individual determination. It was said this morning. Cisco, it was said, will take steps necessary to make its own attitude known and other oil belt cities will probably do the same thing.

The bill now before the legislature provides for control of utility rates and operations through a state commission.

SIX STATES SUFFER FROM BAD STORMS

ATLANTA, Ga., May 3.—Six southern states east of the Mississippi shivered in unreasonable temperatures today, as count was taken of storm damage and toll of dead and injured.

The mercury in the 24 hours ending at 9 a. m. today dropped at Atlanta from 79 to 46. Similar decreases were reported from all southern states, bringing frost in Tennessee, and snow in Appalachian regions.

Sympathetic interests turned particularly toward the little consolidated school at Cove, Va., where 15 young lives were snuffed out when the building was demolished by a tornado yesterday afternoon. More than 100 children were injured and seven were missing. Some of those who yet live will die, physicians said.

Another storm center was Woodville, Va., where a school boy was killed and a dozen other persons including teachers and several children were injured when extreme high winds razed a school house, two churches and four homes.

Okla. Ala., reported one death and several seriously injured by another wind of cyclonic proportions, and a youth was killed and his companion seriously injured by a falling tree uprooted by high winds at Lafayette, Georgia.

The death list in Virginia, Tennessee, Georgia and Alabama stood at 20, while the injured were placed at upward of 150. Property damage was extensive.

The Rye Cove catastrophe came shortly before 1 o'clock when 125 students and teachers were in the two-story frame building. Of this number, few, if any escaped death or injury of some sort.

The eight-room school was attended by children from a radius of 10 miles from kindergarten age to high school seniors. The building struck with sudden and shattering force, collapsed in a twinkling as the roof was torn away.

The children were trapped in the wreckage, some being killed outright. Others were pinned helplessly under heavy timbers. Unable to move, their groans and screams rising above the storm were heart rending.

SONORA IN POSSESSION OF FEDERALS

MEXICO CITY, May 3.—The Mexican government claimed possession of the state of Sonora today, two months after it first was seized by insurgents when the present revolt broke out.

The government admitted, however, it did not know the whereabouts of Gen. J. Gonzalo Escobar, rebel commander in chief, and of Gen. Roberto Cruz and Gen. Marcelo Caraveo.

Escobar and Caraveo last were reported fleeing towards the United States border, but whether they had succeeded in crossing the international boundary was not known.

Broken Collar Bone Didn't Stop Her

DENTON, May 3.—A little thing like a broken collar bone did not stop Mrs. Tom Butler, of Graham, from attending the third annual short course for women at the College of Industrial Arts here.

Mrs. Butler stopped just long enough to have the broken bone set and then hastened to the campus for the short course.

The accident occurred when the automobile in which she was riding to town overturned, 12 miles south of here. She caught a ride into town with a passing farmer.

LONG HAS AN ALIBI Gov. Huey P. Long has produced an alibi. It was an old-fashioned alibi. He radioed the news to his friends and his enemies that the "corporations couldn't buy him so they found him."

To be exact the governor insists that the oil kings and the paving company kings are after his scalp and are responsible for the impeachment indictments returned against him. Gov. Long is a politician. He has been a political scamp for more than 10 years. He has the editors on his neck; he has the lawmakers on his neck.

Is it possible that the oil kings and the paving contractors control the newspapers as well as the voters in Louisiana?

An excellent copy would traverse would be asked to grant right of way for a 16-foot road free to the federal government. The Texas representative has let it be known that the proposed highway is a purely military proposition of national defense and from the standpoint of State or individual would be of no great amount of monetary value to Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and California.

States and counties through which the proposed highway would traverse would be asked to grant right of way for a 16-foot road free to the federal government. Why not a 4-foot highway? That is, if it is to be built.

McCluskey for the Farm Bill Rep. Augustus McCluskey of Texas, elected as a Democrat, is not a partisan when it comes to voting for farm relief. He is for the House farm relief plan and voted for it. He predicts if the bill becomes a law it has wonderful possibility of affording genuine relief to the farmers. This is his viewpoint.

Effective results, however, can only be obtained by the wholehearted cooperation of the farmers of the country with the board to be created by the provisions of the bill. McCluskey handed this bouquet of promises to the man in the White House: "The vote on the bill was one of which Pres. Hoover should be proud and it showed the wonderful amount of confidence the House has in his ability and fairness, for it places in the hands of the president the entire handling of the matter and at the same time the entire responsibility for its success."

And he could have added "and the entire responsibility of its failure," if the wheat growers and cotton raisers of the United States find themselves with large surpluses on hand and cheap prices for their product.

Hudspeth as a Prophet Texas is a great producer of meat stuffs and hides. Cont. Hudspeth predicts that tariff duties on wool, mohair, and livestock would not be lowered in the new tariff bill. He looks for an increased duty on canned meats and a substantial duty placed on hides.

Now the judge may return to the bench, but like the bird with the broken wing, he will never fly high again.

POT SHOTS -AT- POLITICS -By- Col. Hugh Nugent Fitzgerald. -AUSTIN-

Hudspeth as a Road Builder Rep. Claude Hudspeth is on the job. He has introduced a bill granting authority for the secretary of war to spend $18,000,000 for the construction of a military highway paralleling the Rio Grande border between Texas and Mexico and that portion of the United States between Mexico and New Mexico and Arizona and California.

States and counties through which the proposed highway would traverse would be asked to grant right of way for a 16-foot road free to the federal government. BRECKENRIDGE WTCC CAMPAIGN IS SUCCESSFUL

BRECKENRIDGE, May 3. - The local drive for membership in the West Texas chamber of commerce was recently completed and the quota of 125 members renewed 100 per cent.

F. H. Whitehead, publicity manager of the regional organization, and L. B. Campbell, field representative, were assisted by J. E. Thompson, M. E. Daniel and Jake Sandefer, committeemen.

Sandefer is president of the Breckenridge chamber of commerce, president of the Breckenridge Lumber company, and is interested in business investments and the loan business. He is an independent oil operator, formerly connected with Walker-Caldwell Oil company, one of the largest independent oil companies to come to Breckenridge for operations during the boom days.

The company was owned by the late B. S. Walker of Fort Worth, and Judge C. M. Caldwell of Abilene.

Daniel was last week elected president of the First National bank, is a lieutenant-colonel on Governor Moody's staff, and came to the Dumas City from Fort Worth several years ago to become B. S. Walker's secretary. He handled the affairs of Walker and his company then, and is now senior member of the firm of Daniel & Trammell Insurance company. He is president of the executive students association of T. C. U.

Thompson is vice president of the West Texas chamber of commerce, and is active vice president of the First National bank, and is, like Daniel and Sandefer, a prominent business man, and staunch supporter of the West Texas chamber of commerce.

NEW PECAN INDUSTRY AT CARBON

An industry that has reached important proportions was launched in Carbon several months ago when Dr. L. Wilson, one of the most active merchants of this section, opened a pecan cracking plant.

Eighteen women and girls are employed in the plant, which means a sizeable payroll. The industry also means that a good market is provided for the pecans of the Carbon territory. And as the quality of the Carbon pecans will develop such an extent that no one can foresee how great it may prove.

During the season Dr. Wilson purchases 21,000 pounds of pecans, paying an average of eleven cents a pound.

The plant has a machine which ingeniously cracks the pecans and then the nuts go through an insulating process preparatory to being shipped out. The pecans are put up in packages as well as being shipped in barrels.

"Mother Hill's Foods" is the brand chosen for the pecans and the trade mark is artistic and attractive, with a landscape design. It is Dr. Wilson's plan to place on the market a number of foods including mayonnaise, pepper sauce, peanut butter and other peanut products. His plan has great possibilities and as it becomes, step by step, a reality, it is sure to make Carbon a real manufacturing center.

Stahn is losing his grip, but still has machine guns enough to down the Sunday schools.

AMERICA TOO COMMERCIAL, SAYS ARTIST

ROSALINDA MORINI, the world's greatest coloratura soprano and who is to appear here tonight at the College auditorium under the auspices of Randolph College of fine arts, says that America is too "commercial, materialistic" that art will suffer so long as it is made secondary to the "almighty dollar." In America, she was reminded, millions of dollars are being given by philanthropists for the promotion of music and other cultural activities. "Ah, but where is the result?" was the reply; "that is all that matters—the result. And where is it? Do you see and real strides being made?" American singers with talent and ability are to be found aplenty, if only they are sought for, called for and supported by the public, it was said; and with this, the interesting after thought—there is many a singer with a large operatic company who could be replaced by a far better one had the financial backing to place her in the limelight where her talent could be seen. Especially qualified to speak on that phase of singing because she, herself, is an American born songstress, Morini emphasized the responsibility resting upon the public for the development of music, declaring that there is now an increasing and stimulating interest throughout the United States in the opera as evidenced by the many companies touring the country, whereas formerly, the large cities were the chief centers.

DEBATE RAGES OVER "EYES OF TEXAS"

AUSTIN, May 2.—Warm debate rages at the University of Texas over the "Eyes of Texas," official university chant.

Athletic coaches claim it has a bad effect on the university teams. Not the words, but the dirge like note to which they are sung.

Athletic teams need something snappy. Coach Fred Walker of the basketball team, said. Walker believes the customary playing just before an athletic contest "slow up" the men involuntarily, especially as it is the custom to drag out the final "till Gabriel blows his horn."

Even the yells that follow cannot offset the effect. Walker said. Snappy tunes are being used on phonographs to speed up typing in the commercial school. Those who deplore "The Eyes of Texas" as an athletic team think the same effect would be had on athletes.

But it will be a hard battle to supplant "The Eyes of Texas." The old grads believe it has inspired many a team in time of peril and steadied the men to better effort.

Mexican Revolutions Have Come and Gone at the Rate of One Per Year for the Past 19 Years

By GESFORD F. FINE
United Press Staff Correspondent
MEXICO CITY, May 3.—As the Sonora-Chihuahua revolution nears its end, a glance back over the files shows the outline of Mexican history since 1910 as follows:
Nineteen revolutions in nineteen years.

Two hundred thousand lives lost. An unestimated toll of hundreds of millions of dollars damage to property. The recapitulation (ground by round) as compiled by El Universal Grafico:

1.—Francisco I. Madero heads the first movement of a revolutionary nature against the government of General Porfirio Diaz, triumphing after six months of fighting; President Diaz flees from Mexico; Francisco Leon de la Barra becomes provisional president to be succeeded by Francisco Madero. (Began Nov. 20, 1910.)

2.—A revolutionary movement headed by the Liberal Party in Baja California, Coahuila, Vera Cruz and Chihuahua gets under way in September, 1911. At the end of three months the rebels are destroyed in Chihuahua.

"Social Agrarians" Fall
3.—The "Social-agrarian" revolution headed by Andres Molina Enríquez and Alfredo Robles Domínguez is demolished in fifteen days by President Madero (1911).

4.—Pascual Orozco undertakes a rebellion against Madero, starting in the north of the republic. The movement was "suffocated" by General Victoriano Huerta at Bachimba, Chihuahua. General Jose Gonzalez Salas, Secretary of War, one of the rebels, committed suicide following this defeat (1912).

5.—The Maderista government crushes another outbreak begun by General Bernardo Reyes, also in the north (Nuevo Leon). General Reyes' troops refuse to second the movement and Reyes is captured and sent to Mexico City (1912).

6.—General Felix Diaz captures the port of Vera Cruz by surprise. Two weeks later the Madero government has again triumphed over its enemies (1912).

Zapata's Long Revolt
7.—General Emiliano Zapata begins a movement in the south of the republic which is almost constantly under way for eight years. The Zapata rebellion lasts from 1912 to 1920 when the Zapata chiefs finally agree to the Plan of Agua Prieta.

8.—The rebellion which costs the life of Madero is started by Generals Felix Diaz, Bernardo Reyes and Manuel Mondragon in Mexico City, February, 1913. It is victorious within ten days and its victory is followed by the election of General Victoriano Huerta (by the congress) as president.

9.—General Venustiano Carranza after one year of bloody combats, beginning February, 1913, overthrows the government of Victoriano Huerta.

Bloodiest of All
10.—General Francisco Villa, at the head of a powerful army in the north, revolts against Carranza. One hundred thousand are killed in this, the bloodiest of all Mexican revolutions. Villa at times controls the majority of the country but in the end is beaten by the Carrancistas led by General Alvaro Obregon.

11.—General Felix Diaz in 1919 again leads an army against the Carranza government. After two years of fighting, Diaz is compelled to flee the country.

12.—Generals Obregon and Plutarco Elias Calles (present minister of war) win the government from the hands of Carranza in a two weeks' long revolution in May, 1920. The rebellion ended with the killing of Carranza in Tlaxcalalongo, V. C.

13.—General Pablo Gonzalez rises against Obregon and Calles in Monterrey, N. L., in 1920. He is expelled from the republic after being arrested by the federal forces.

14.—General Francisco Murguia organizes a movement against Obregon which spreads to Durango, Sinaloa and Coahuila in 1921. Murguia is captured and shot in the state of Durango.

15.—In 1920 General Manuel Peñalaz initiates a rebellion in the states of Puebla and Oaxaca against Carranza. It culminates in the acceptance of the Plan of Agua Prieta.

De la Huerta Crushed
16.—Obregon in three months crushes the rebellion started by Adolfo de la Huerta in Vera Cruz, Jalisco and Oaxaca in 1923.

17.—With the promulgation of the religious laws in July, 1926, which is followed by the closing of the Catholic churches, the so-called Catholic rebellion set under way in Jalisco, Colima, Michoacan, Guanajuato, Queretaro and San Luis Potosi. This movement still continues intermittently.

18.—The Calles government destroys the Gomez-Serrano rebellion of September, 1927, in four weeks. Both Gomez and Serrano are captured and executed.

19.—The Escobar revolution, organized in the states of Vera Cruz, Chihuahua and Sonora, begins March 3, 1929.

HOOVER TO GET WTCC INVITE NEXT MONDAY

STAMFORD, May 3.—According to a wire from Senator Morris Sheppard at Washington to Manager Homer D. Wade of the West Texas chamber of commerce, the invitation to President Hoover to attend the eleventh annual convention of the regional organization and the commemoration of the 75th anniversary of the Gadsden Purchase will be presented Monday morning.

The invitation will be formally presented by the senators and congressmen from the three states, New Mexico, Arizona and Texas, whose governors have signed it.

A copy of an air mail letter from the Corsicana Airport to President Hoover extending greetings on the occasion of the formal opening of the airport April 27 contained a paragraph in which Mayor R. L. Wheelock, C. L. Jester, president of the chamber of commerce, and P. Mayer, postmaster, going heartily in the invitation.

Notice has come to the regional organization headquarters that other towns are taking this means of letting the president know they desire his presence at this annual event of the West Texas chamber of commerce.

KEEPING THE NAVY PURE.

LYNN, Mass., May 3.—Gordon Smith wanted to join the navy. He passed the mental and physical examinations, but during the latter process, recruiting officers discovered the tattooed figure of a made woman on his arm. Before approving his enlistment papers they forced him to have a dress tattooed on the offending picture.

COXEY BACK IN NEWS.

PORTLAND, Me., May 3.—General Jacob S. Coxe of "Coxey's army" fame will campaign in New England this summer against Congressman Carroll L. Beedy of Maine and Robert Luce of Massachusetts. They were members of the house banking committee which voted down his bill to enable municipalities to borrow money from the government without payment of interest. General Coxe has written Beedy warning him to the effect that he is a "verbal offender."

POLICEMAN SHOCKED!

QUINCY, Mass., May 3.—Policeman Patrick Coyne had a shocking experience when he tried to deposit a letter in a mail box in Norfolk Downs. It was later discovered that because of the proximity of the mail box to an electric high pole a short circuit had occurred.

CHAPTER XXXII

As Harold opened his mouth to yell for help Huck viciously clapped a hand to his lips. The boy fought desperately but ineffectively. It was too late to save himself now.

The rest of Huck Connor's murderous act was quickly carried out. Holding and silencing Harold with one hand, Huck dealt him a stunning blow with the other.

There was not even a cry as the hurtling body hit the window and crashed through space to death below.

Then, almost instantly, Huck set himself to follow the dictates of his rapidly working brain.

He flicked out his handkerchief and ran it over the woodwork of the window to remove any fingerprints he may have left on it. A quick survey of the room assured him that little was amiss. A chair overturned. He righted it in one swift movement.

His glance then fell upon the table that held the ash tray with the butt of the cigarette he had smoked. Huck was too wise to smoke a special brand by which he could be traced, but he knew that Harold did.

Quickly he spread his handkerchief on the table, took up the tray with a corner of it and emptied the contents on the floor. He ran his cigarette over the table, and then, satisfied that he had destroyed all signs, turned to leave the room.

At the door he stood listening for a few seconds while he held it slightly ajar and wiped off his fingerprints. Hearing nothing, he opened it wider and peered into the hall. There was no one in sight.

Then, as silently and smoothly as a shadow, Huck stepped out and made his way to his own rooms.

Harold's body was discovered soon afterward. A guest on a lower floor had glimpsed a falling object as it passed his window and instantly called the office to report his belief that it was a body. Mr. Dazel himself rushed to the roof of the adjoining building after a glance from the nearest window. But first stopped to send word to the house physician.

The assistant manager had several other hotel attaches followed. They found the body lying face downward. But enough of the showed to make its identity recognizable.

"My God! It's Harold Judson!" Mr. Dazel cried and went down on his knees beside the body. He reached out his hands.

Someone touched him on the shoulder. "Have to leave it as it is for the medical examiner, sir. He's done for."

Mr. Dazel sprang to his feet. "All the police," he ordered his assistant. "And you, Cummings, fetch some blankets."

That was all they could do. The house physician arrived on the scene shortly afterward and pronounced the boy dead.

It was dark, a glorious sapphire darkness, before the medical examiner gave permission for the body to be moved. It was taken to a funerals director's establishment and Pamela was not allowed to view it.

Up in Harold's room the hotel detective and the police had been making their investigations. Nothing aroused their suspicions that it was more than a suicide case or an accident until they came to their scrutiny of the window.

Rather mysteriously they went over the floor, the baseboard, the window sill and the frames. Then, suddenly, when they had finished inspecting the woodwork their superficial air vanished. They looked at each other gravely—there were three of them—and passed a single opinion in a single word.

"Queer."

How could Harold have thrown himself or fallen from the window without leaving a finger mark there? In falling he would have clutched something. The curtains, perhaps, caught them, would have been torn. And had his fingers slipped from the woodwork the marks would remain. That just about settles the accident theory, the house detective said.

One of the men regarded the window speculatively. Then he stepped forward, threw it up, and claimed to the sill where he crouched as though preparing to throw himself out.

When he let himself down again they all agreed that Harold could hardly have jumped from the window without touching the woodwork with his hands.

"It's a safe guess he didn't slip," the third man remarked, looking at the thick carpet under the window.

"And it's just a safe to bet that he didn't go out of that window on his own power," the man who had climbed to the sill declared emphatically. "Look like murder, boys."

Their task became grim from that moment. The room was searched again but nothing to support their theory was found except the fact that in going over the window a second time they could see that the woodwork had been recently wiped. The second window in the room, which was closed, showed a slight accumulation of coal dust on the sill.

It was obvious that an open window would have collected a greater amount of dust had it not been removed. And the removal was too thorough to have been done by the dead boy's clothing as he was sped to his death.

"How about the door?" one of the officers asked of the hotel detective. "Did Flannigan find it locked when he was put on guard?"

"No," the hotel man said, "but that doesn't mean much. I've had to warn the boy and his sister time and again about leaving their doors unlocked."

"Well, we can't do anything more here," the officer stated. "Come on, Bill, we'll make our report."

When the report was filed it established a theory of the case that was in direct disagreement with the popular belief that Harold Judson had died a suicide's death or been the victim of a fatal accident.

But the police preferred to keep their theory to themselves. They did not want to put the murderer, if such there really was in the case, on guard.

A man was sent in haste to the funeral director's establishment and arrived before Harold's clothing had been removed. A minute inspection of his belongings was made and all metal or hard objects taken for possible fingerprints.

Shortly thereafter all doubt that Harold had met a violent death at the hands of an assassin vanished from the minds of those who learned that on the boy's silver belt buckle was a clear thumbprint that did not belong to the belt's dead owner.

The funeral director was summoned and avowed that he had not touched the belt in his establishment, to the best of his knowledge. To avoid working on a misleading clue the police obtained thumbprints of all persons who might have touched the belt after the tragedy. None corresponded with the print on the belt.

"The man who left that thumbprint was the last man to see young Judson alive," Inspector Markerson said in assigning men from the homicide squad to the case. "It looks like a tough job, boys, but I want you to clear it up. Good luck to you."

The investigation immediately centered in and around the Judson Hotel. It was not long before Huck knew that the hotel servants and employees were being questioned in regard to Harold's habits and associates.

Word was brought to him by one of his own henchmen, the waiter who was on duty for room service during what he called the "milk wagon watch."

The information was more casual than it would have been had the man known what the police believed. His orders from Huck had been to see that as little was known of Harold's attendance at his poker parties in the hotel as possible.

"Thought you'd want to know that a couple of John Lawes are pussy footin' around for dope on the kid, sir," he said, having been trained by Huck not to forget that he was a waiter serving a guest.

Huck asked a few questions and convinced himself that the police were still on a false trail. With everyone saying the boy had killed himself it was but natural the police should seek for a motive.

But he knew that Mr. Dazel had received a cable from Amos Judson, saying he was flying from London to Cherbourg to catch the first boat sailing from that port to New York.

This was common knowledge about the hotel. Huck had no difficulty in learning of it. It served to heighten his determination to carry out his plans as quickly as possible.

He sent urgent messages to Pamela, asking to see her. She did not answer. For the time being Huck was as entirely outside her world as though he'd never known her. Even the flowers he showered upon her brought no word of acknowledgment.

Apparently she was plunged into grief but Huck knew that a number of her friends had been admitted to her rooms, which she had not left since the tragedy and he suspected that she was not so crushed as her seclusion would indicate.

His failure to reach her compelled him to notify Ras Poberlin of a delay in the plans they had made on his recent visit to the man's "poultry farm."

Poberlin's wife complained over the letter. She said she'd been to a lot of trouble carrying out Huck's instructions. She damned him up one side and down the other for his "swell" ideas.

Pamela, beautifully recumbent upon her lacy pillows, where she wept fitfully and pitied herself for having lost her only brother, would have been amused at the result of Ras Poberlin's attempt to create an atmosphere fit to receive her.

Her amusement would have been short-lived, however, if Huck's determination to introduce her to the Poberlins had been known to her.

Knowing nothing of either Ras Poberlin or Huck's plans, she busied herself with selecting her coming morning garb.

Baffled in his efforts for the time being, Huck set himself to devise some way of breaking down the barrier she had erected between them. He was still unsuccessful when he received a message that sent him in haste to see Duke Brogan.

SPELLED WRONG.
AUSTIN, May 3.—Since 1888 the name of Zalla Counts has been spelled wrong. The error was discovered and corrected yesterday by a bill passed by the house of representatives. It makes the official spelling Zavala. This corresponds with the spelling used by Lorenzo de Zavala, signer of the Texas declaration of independence, for whom the count was named.

Municipal power plant being installed in Teague at cost of more than $100,000.

FRESNO YOUTH TO BE HANGED DUE TO HUNCH

FRESNO, Cal., May 3.—When Allen Ellis, Fresno minor, is hanged in San Quentin prison Friday, May 17, it will be testimony to the worth of a "hunch."

The hunch was that of Police-man Dana H. Tullis.

Ellis shot and killed Charles O. Weisert, Fresno automobile firm accountant, when the latter scornfully refused to raise his hands at the bandit's command. William Kreiger, 19, drove the light roadster used by Ellis and Lowell Davis, 18, in the holdup job.

The murder took place about 10 o'clock at night in one of the best residential districts of Fresno last June 5.

And within two hours the city of 75,000 persons was fairly aflame with indignation. Weisert was widely and well-known. The city had suffered a recent plague of boyish bandits—later established as the Weisert murder trio—preying upon gasoline service station operators, small store owners and occasional residential pedestrians.

All of the city's 175 policemen were turned out for the midnight man-hunt. And not a single clue was developed.

Tullis Brought 'Em In.
Then came Dana H. Tullis, typical heavy-bodied "flat-footed" beat man, with a hunch!

"Give me a car and another man," he told Police Chief J. W. Walker, "and I'll bring those boys in."

Walker did. And Tullis brought them in! The boys were still drowsy with sleep when they were hauled into police headquarters in the early morning hours. They had but fallen asleep in their beds at Sanger, 13 miles east, when Tullis, a second Fresno officer and a Sanger constable, roused them.

Tullis had seen the youths riding aimlessly about the city's streets earlier in the evening. He had known of them as irresponsible characters.

A curious sequel followed Tullis' feat. Officials thought to reward Tullis by a promotion to detective sergeant.

Tullis failed to pass the civil service examination! He couldn't read and write well enough!

Kreiger pleaded guilty, and received a life sentence. Ellis and Davis stood trial. Ellis, as the "triggerman," was sentenced to the gallows. Davis got life. Kreiger and Davis both are in San Quentin prisons.

Ellis' attorney, W. A. White, used every resource in attempting to free the youth from the gallows' threat.

He appealed to California appellate and supreme courts, and all without avail. He rested his case on the assertion that Ellis lacked four days of being 18 years of age—the minimum age subject to capital punishment in California—at the time of the murder. All appeals failed.

White since has carried his fight to Governor C. C. Young, in an effort to obtain executive clemency. No apparent softening in the gubernatorial breast has been made apparent, though, and the hanging is expected to be carried out as scheduled.

White has repeatedly asserted he could prove Ellis to be four days younger than 18 years at the time of the crime. He has shown affidavits of witnesses in Texas, where the youth was born, and of the youth's parents, but to no avail. All California school, court and community records show the boy to have been but four days lacking of 19 years at the time of the Weisert slaying.

HAD SUFFERED FOR 20 YEARS

"I had suffered with chronic stomach trouble twenty years, and tried lots of different medicines without getting any permanent relief, but three bottles of Sargol gave me so much good I feel like a man made all over."

W. B. LONG

"For years it seemed nothing I agreed with me, and I suffered much with indigestion. I was forced to eat only the lightest foods, these gave me a lot of trouble. I suffered continually with pains across my back, and my kidneys seemed to be badly out of order. I was bilious and my skin was yellow and sickly looking.

I could tell a big difference in my condition as soon as I began taking Sargol. I could eat anything I wanted without the least trouble. My stomach came back, my skin cleared. I am full of pep and feel well and strong in every way.

For years my liver had been out of order, and I believe this had a lot to do with my poor health, but Sargol Soft Mass Pills soon had it stimulated so I threw off all poisons. My biliousness disappeared, and I feel better than in years. I'll always say a good word for this wonderful Sargol treatment."

The above statement was made recently by W. B. Long, 3426 Millet St., Fort Worth.

Sargol may be obtained in Cisco at Scott Drug Store and Corner Main Store.—A.D.

FARMERS ARE BEING URGED TO ORGANIZE

The recent message of President Hoover to the special session of Congress should be read by every farmer of Eastland county and studied in connection with the formation of the Eastland County Farm Bureau. This organization is striving to do for farmers and agriculture what the Chamber of Commerce is striving to do for the business man in town, improve conditions through organized effort, working for better legislation, better marketing conditions and in many other ways. In fact in any way it can find to be of service.

In his message, Pres. Hoover throughout stressed the necessity of building on existing farmer organizations, and in part he says "The most progressive movement in all agriculture has been the upbuilding of the farmers' own marketing organizations which now embrace nearly 2,000,000 farmers in membership and annually distribute nearly $2,500,000,000 worth of farm products. These organizations have acquired experience in virtually every branch of their industry and furnish a substantial basis upon which to build further organization. Now all these organizations are farmer owned or farmer controlled. In order to strengthen and not undermine them, all proposals for government assistance should originate from such organizations, and be the result of their application. Moreover by such bases or organization the government will be removed from engaging in the business of agriculture."

Slow Process

The difficulties of agriculture cannot be cured in a day. They cannot be cured by the government alone. But farmers and their organizations can be assisted to overcome these inequalities.

In other words it is going to be hard for the unorganized farmer to get the benefits of government aid. The present dumping of goods at harvest time when the market cannot be relied upon to absorb them without strain must be changed to a more orderly marketing of our products through our own organization at such time as the market wants them.

We have a serious surplus in this country except at harvest time. Eastland county farmers can do their share to help in this great problem but not by working alone. It is especially fortunate that organization of farmers is being taken up at this time.

But not alone can we benefit by marketing our products, at the same time and by the same organization, we can save a profit by cutting the cost of production. Small groups of farmers are already doing this on a small scale. One community by buying their grain sorghum seed cooperatively saved the community $80. There are at least 36 communities the size of this one in the county and if each had done as well, it would have meant a saving of $2,400 on this one seed alone. There are dozens of things that we must buy that we can get similar savings on by cooperative effort. When it is handled on a county-wide basis, we can effect more savings.

The man who buys a carload of anything gets a price concession that the small buyer cannot get. This puts a burden on the smaller farmer or in many cases the beginner, men in debt, and those least able to stand this unfair price discrimination. Through cooperation, all farmers become the same size. They all get on the same price level and the small farmer has the same price concession as the big farmer. The farmer is not discriminated against, and all benefit.

The Eastland County Farm Bureau will be ready to take advantage of any relief that the government can render but the un-

MEMBER OF EASTLAND BAR IS AUTHOR

EASTLAND, May 3.—The American Law Review, one of the most famous publications in the field of law in the world, contains a scholarly article by Judge Thomas J. Pitts of Eastland. The subject is "The Rise and Progress of the Roman Law," and the article occupies twice as much space as any other in the magazine.

Judge Pitts summarizes the entire history of the Roman empire in concise fashion and traces the development of Roman law, concluding in an eloquent statement: "Long ago, Emerson said that institutions are but the lengthened shadows of men and if this be true, the shadows of Justinian have been ever extending since the publication and promulgation of the Roman laws originated by the most illustrious of the emperors and have now become entrenched in the jurisprudence of all nations and civilizations, and the principles and practices embodied in the laws of the ancient Romans are becoming more generally adopted by the legal institutions of modern times."

There is more than history left in the Roman Civil Law. Can it be said that an institution that has impressed its influence upon the civilization of the nations of the earth like the Roman Law, has only historical value for us in the twentieth century? That this cannot be truthfully said is quite apparent when we come to examine the laws of modern times which have been founded upon this system of jurisprudence. It still exists among us and its influence is ever increasing.

"From the edifice of the Roman judicial system has come the doctrine of equity jurisprudence, the administration of estates, the decedents, the abolition of the law of primogeniture, the allodial tenure of land, the authority for the creation and duration of corporations, the establishments of trusts, the enforcement of equitable liens, the right of a party litigant to testify in lawsuits, the writ of injunction, and many other legal concepts developed from the Roman Civil Law."

He Started Rushing Business All Right

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., May 3.—Business was bad for Harry Mays one morning. Lots of customers passed his office but none stopped.

An idea to stir up some occurred to Mays.

He tossed a stick of dynamite out of his office window, leaned back in his swivel chair and waited for customers.

They came—all of them dressed in blue and carrying clubs.

Mays finished his business day in jail. The front of the superior court building was damaged considerably by the blast. x xxxxx

FORMER DALLAS TRY-OUT GETS HIS REVENGE

Licks Steers After Two Regulars Sent to Showers.

By United Press.

Neal Baker, a former Dallas try-out wasn't considered good enough to stay, stepped into the box for San Antonio yesterday after two moundsmen had been sent to the showers. Baker showed Dallas the stuff while his mates overcame a three-run lead to defeat the Steers 11 to 7. It was Dallas' sixth straight defeat.

Houston narrowed their margin between it and the league leaders in defeating Wichita Falls 7 to 6, while Waco lost Jordan's liner to center field scored Benson with the winning tally in the ninth inning.

Benson went a costly 11 to 4 game from Fort Worth yesterday when Lamb, right fielder, crashed into the fence after a ball and sustained a sprained ankle that will keep him out a week. Easterling, another outfielder, already is laid up with a sprained ankle. The Exporters made 16 hits, nine for extra bases, in taking the victory.

Holding his former teammates, the Waco Cubs, for seven innings while his teammates pounded out a 1 to 9 victory for Shreveport, Oscar Tuero was slated as "winning pitcher" despite his being knocked out before the game was over. It was the third loss of the season for Waco.

SCHOOL WITH 15 PUPILS ONE OF THE BEST

BAIRD, May 3.—Seven miles east of Baird on the Broadway of America Highway there is a little school house known as the Jackson school. This little school, with only a very small enrollment, is one of the best in the county. The present teacher, Mrs. R. L. Alexander, has taught here for several years and her ability was reflected today when her entire school, 15 pupils, rendered the program before the Lions club at their regular weekly luncheon. The Jackson school closed last Friday and by special request the songs, readings and the old-fashioned school scene was put on for the Lions. This unique program was one of the best ever presented at the Lions luncheon since the club was organized and those present were delighted with the entertainment and the efficient way it was rendered. Mrs. N. M. George, wife of one of the trustees of the school, played the accompaniment and assisted Mrs. Alexander in putting on the program.

Coming to the large membership of the club the dining room was crowded and a special dinner was served at the Quality Cafe for the entertainers. The students of the Jackson school are: Susie Boutwell, D. S. McGee, Annie Catherine McGee, Jewel Lawrence, Charlie Frank Lambert, George Lambert, Vestina Lambert, Johnnie Mae Hughes, Mike Hughes, Kenneth George, Norman George, J. C. McGee, John Willis McGee, Robert Skinner and J. B. Skinner.

TRIED FORCE WAY INTO THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Clark D. Brown taken in custody by white-tuss police Thursday when he attempted to force his way into the executive offices during the noon-time public reception.

Seating himself in the public reception lobby he wrote with a pencil on a tablet, until 11:30. He was then asked to leave. He complied without demonstration or protest but returned in about an hour when a group of about 500 persons had gathered to shake hands with the president.

Brown attempted to force his way through the outer door of the executive office. He had a message in his hand which he insisted be delivered to President Hoover. Three white house policemen took him into custody and he declared he intended to deliver the message himself.

He was sent to a psychopathic hospital.

PARENT SHOTS DEFENDANT IN ASSAULT CASE

SWEETWATER, May 3.—Enraged because a jury in district court failed to reach a verdict in the trial of B. J. Frost charged with criminal assault, E. P. Wampler, father of the 3-year-old girl against whom the offense is alleged to have been committed, shot and critically wounded Frost in the court house here.

After the shooting Thursday evening Wampler surrendered to Sheriff Jess Lambert and was held for examining trial.

The jury had deliberated on the case 36 hours and was discharged by the judge. Wampler met Frost in the hallway leading out of the court house and pumped four shots into him. Doctors held little hope for his recovery.

Frost's trial started Monday and the case went to the jury Wednesday afternoon.

Frost's home is in Roscoe, nine miles west of here, and Wampler lives in Merkel.

ABILENE, TEXAS, MAN ENDORSES ORGATONE

"My son was in a very run down condition—Orgatone Proves to be a good system builder."

Mr. J. A. Stowe of 2417 S. First St., Abilene, Texas, makes the following remarkable statement regarding his son's health, and what Orgatone did for him.

"My son has been in a very poor run down condition for several years. He has been bothered with stomach trouble and had to be very careful with what he ate or it would disagree with him. He was nervous and restless and didn't seem to have any energy at all or didn't take an interest in anything. He was gradually growing weaker and took all kinds of medicines and treatments but nothing seemed to do him any good. We realized that he needed a good tonic and strength builder but couldn't seem to find the right medicine for him."

"We read so many local statements in the newspapers about the benefits people had derived from Orgatone and decided that he should try it. It seemed to be the right medicine for him. He is in much better health now than he has been for several years. His general health is improved greatly. He can eat most anything he wants now and seems to be stronger and have more energy than he did. Orgatone has proven to be a mighty good system builder and tonic in my son's case and it has helped him more than anything else and we both are glad to recommend it."

Genuine Orgatone is not a so-called patent or secret remedy, but a new scientific bile treatment and is sold in Cisco exclusively by Dean's Drug Store, who are direct laboratory agents—Adv.

JAY TOBIAS TO BE HERE NEXT MONDAY

Reserve seat sale for the Cisco chautauqua will start tomorrow with headquarters at the chamber of commerce office instead of the City Drug store as first announced. The chautauqua, bringing to Cisco the best program that has ever been here by the Redpath-Harner organization, will open its week's engagement here Monday afternoon with a program at 3:30 p. m. Jay Tobias and his friends will be the feature of this first program. This program is called by the chautauqua the "Cocktail of the Feast" and those who are privileged to hear Mr. Tobias were two years ago agree that the title is well put.

In the evening Jay Tobias will present "Fads and Fancies of 1929" featuring beautiful music, gorgeous costumes, beautiful staging and lighting effects. Tuesday another wonderful offering in a Swiss troupe, "Flechts' Soelding Tyroleans" will be presented. This troupe will appear at both the afternoon and evening programs. At the evening program Chester M. Sandford, one of the outstanding lecturers before the American public, will be heard.

Succeeding programs more than maintain the high standard set by these initial offerings. One will hear rare music by one of the most unique organizations on the stage, "Elsie Pata and the Vienna Cymbalom Symphony"; a lecture by William Rainey Bennett, a lecture by Broadway, that set fourth in terms now humorous, now full of deep pathos, the thing we call "Life". That they are entertaining to the "nth" degree goes without saying. If they met the demands of audiences so skeptical so insured to the stage, as are found on Broadway they are bound to be good.

to get some "beans" for my wife and children," the man in charge of the still told the officers when they surprised him at the still, which was located in a dense thicket in a deep canyon.

"Why did you locate your still a mile away from your house?" the sheriff asked. "Because I wanted to get it away from my family," the man replied. A 12-year-old son of the man was at the still with his father when the officers arrested him, Sheriff Foster stated.

Number of Arrests Made Sheriff Foster's collection of whiskey and liquor manufacturing paraphernalia captured by him since he went into office on January 1 of this year, consisting of five large copper stills with large quantities of copper coils, three or four hundred pounds of sugar in sacks, and more than 100 gallons of whiskey in bottles, jars and kegs. This is kept in a fire-proof vault in the sheriff's office in the Eastland county court house.

With each of the stills the sheriff has captured he arrested one or more men charged with operating them with the exception of one, which had been abandoned.

Charges of violation of the state liquor laws were filed yesterday.
