Caddo Experiences Mild Revival of Oil Boom as Crowds Gather to See Gusher Just Brought In

CADDO, May 16.—This prosperous little city in Stephens county is teeming with greater activity than it has known in a long time. The reason is that magic word: Oil!

For just a mile from Caddo is the biggest gusher that has been completed in the oil belt in months. And a visit to the town Wednesday revealed that the business district was packed solidly with cars, the sidewalks were thick with people talking about the new well and there was a rush of business in the stores, even greater than the usual Saturday trade when people are accustomed to come in from a radius of 15 miles to shop.

FAIL TO GET JURY TO TRY MRS. ROGERS

LA GRANGE, May 16.—The story of Rebecca Bradley Rogers' daring robbery of the Farmers' State bank of Buda two years ago will not be told for some weeks to come due to inability to secure a jury at her trial here.

When it became apparent Wednesday afternoon that a jury could not be found in this community to hear the evidence against the pretty young defendant, Judge M. C. Jeffrey ordered a change of venue to another county. He said he probably would announce the place for the next trial today.

Two panels of over 250 men had been examined since Monday with only eight jurors selected to try the girl. Most of the veniremen were excused on the grounds of having formed opinions. Some were disqualified because they could not read, write or understand English and others objected to the death penalty, the maximum sentence imposed in Texas for robbery with firearms.

Defense counsel, headed by Otis Rogers, husband of the accused girl, objected to the change of venue as sentiment in La Grange was believed favorable to the girl. The charge against Rebecca, former Texas university student, says she used a pistol to force two bank employes into the vault while she perpetrated the robbery. At her first trial she drew a 14-year sentence but the case was reversed by the higher courts.

EVENT WILL TAKE PLACE AT 8:15 P. M.

Their Majesties to Be Attended by Large Court.

A brilliant Turkish court room of maroon and silver, with stained glass windows, Oriental rugs, divans, and incense burners, will be the scene at 8:15 o'clock tomorrow evening for the coronation of King and Queen Lobo V.

The girls say they did not know their companions were dry agents.

Belva Oil Company's Stinnett No. 1, Drilled Three Years ago, Jumps Production After Being Deepened

The Belva Oil company's No. 1 Stinnett, formerly known as the Braden Oil company's well and located 19 miles northeast of Cisco in the Eastland-Stephens county line, is making better than 1,000 barrels per day after having been drilled deeper.

This well, drilled three years ago by the Braden Oil company, is one mile west of the Ramsower pool and approximately one mile from production. It was on this well that Lucian Shook was a pumper when he was murdered by Clyde Thompson on September 7, 1928. Leon Shook, brother of Lucian, who was visiting him at the time, was also murdered. The Shook bodies were found three days after the murder in the brush near the oil field cabin where the elder Shook lived. Thompson and Woodrow Davis, Eastland county youths, were indicted for the murders and were given the death penalties in trials that followed. Their cases are on appeal.

LIMITS NOT YET DEFINED

Col. Robert D. Gordon, who drilled the discovery well in the pool north of Cisco which has just been extended considerably by the Davison well, owns 90 acres adjoining the Davison lease to the northwest.

Gordon has always had faith in the northwestern part of the county, putting down the discovery well under difficulties several years ago when most oil men felt that the Ramsower would be dry or, at best, a small well. It proved to be one of the finest wells drilled in Eastland county in years, making several hundred thousand dollars worth of oil and gas and causing the drilling of 30 or more wells.

Death Toll of Cleveland Explosion Reaches 125

CLEVELAND, May 16.—The finger of tragedy rose and fell over Cleveland today, counting off the dead in the explosions and fire that turned its famous clinic into a honey-comb of lethal chambers. One hundred and twenty-five in morgues.

Scores of other victims lay in hospitals, some with poison fumes in their lungs and by no means out of danger. Hours after the calamity, four firemen who helped in rescue work were stricken by gas poisoning. Blood transfusions were resorted to at Mt. Sinai hospital in an effort to save their lives.

A tri-fold investigation was underway to determine how the $500,000 clinic was transformed so suddenly yesterday noon into a charnel house of poison gas, flames and panic. Gov. Myers Y. Cooper announced all state agencies had been ordered to join in the investigation. Coroner A. J.

Pease was to confer with all county officials to ascertain cause of the blast and fire. An official commission was named by City Manager W. R. Hopkins to begin a hearing before noon.

Authorities agreed that the blame lay in the X-ray storage room in the basement of the four-story brick structure and that the deadly fumes sprang from ignited X-ray film. But they disagreed as to whether the clouds of dark yellow gas that snuffed out so many lives were nitrous peroxide or a bromide and iodine vapor.

Twelve bodies, seared and yellowed by the gas, were found in the X-ray room. Twelve other bodies, equally discolored, were taken from the roof. Between those points were many sprawled bodies of dead and injured, surrounded by cracked walls, broken pipes, shattered windows and overturned tables.

Patients first heard a muffled roar from the X-ray basement room. All fire doors immediately closed. Poison gas, generated from the explosion, was forced through the ventilator shaft by the heat.

EXCEPTIONAL CAST SEEN IN "WEARY RIVER"

An exceptional cast supports Richard Barthelmess in his newest starring vehicle, "Weary River," which comes to the Palace theater tomorrow.

The First National star once again has Betty Compton as his leading woman, having had her previously in "Scarlet Seas" and a list of male character actors that reads like Hollywood's Who's Who. The men in the cast include such names as William Holden, prominent in New York stage presentations both as actor and author; Louis Natheaux, one of the deepest-dyed williams on the screen; George Stone, the screen heavy who weighs less than 125 pounds; Raymond Turner, the colored actor who made such a favorable impression in "The Patented Leather Kid"; Robert O'Connor, who appeared as the detective in "The Noose"; and Gladden James.

The producers resolved to make the film with an eye to both plot and musical accompaniment and the result was what is billed as a musical film extravaganza designed to give the effect of a Broadway opera.

Spy Helped Lee Trap Union Army

ELECTRA, Texas, May 16. When veterans of harrowing experiences during the Civil War start swapping yarns at the Confederate reunion at Charlotte, N. C., in June, few of their stories will equal that of Major Ed. C. Wilson, Jr., of Electra.

For Major Wilson believes he is the last of the spies attached to General Robert E. Lee's staff and according to available records, he is the only survivor of those present at Lee's death.

Promoted to the rank of major at the beginning of the war and placed on Lee's staff as a spy, Wilson's duty was to stay within the Union lines, find out the enemy's plans and report them to Lee. To be caught meant death. But Wilson recalls how, by use of his wits, he not only saved his life, but indirectly was responsible for the victory Lee won in the fall of 1862 over the forces of the Union general, N. P. Banks, near the Rapidan river in the vicinity of Spotsylvania, Ky.

Disguised as Negro According to Wilson, he entered Banks' camp disguised as a negro girl, selling butter and eggs. For a while, all went well. Then, Wilson says, a Union officer accidentally brushed his sleeves across the spy's face, revealing the black-face make-up.

Court-martial followed and Wilson was sentenced to be shot by a firing squad the next morning. Meanwhile, Wilson recalls, he learned Banks intended to attack Lee in two days. To fail to report to his general meant the Confederate forces probably would be taken by surprise, and it also meant Lee's chance to take Banks' army by surprise would be lost. So that night, after his guards were asleep, Wilson started digging a hole underneath the board walk surrounding the tent which served as a makeshift prison. He dug for hours with his fingernails his only tools. Then he clambered out and dashed for his horse, pocketed in the thickets nearby.

The guards were aroused and the chase began. Wilson made it to the river and plunged in astride his horse. The Yankees followed, firing, forcing Wilson to abandon his mount and swim the remainder of the distance under water. Joined Lee After War Wilson says, he reported to Lee about surprise and Lee, armed with the spy's information, ordered an attack that evening. The Federals were taken by surprise at their evening meal and the victory was Lee's. When Lee was made president of Washington college after the war, he summoned Wilson to Lexington, Va., and gave him the position of college clerk, a post he held until Lee's death in 1870. Wilson lived at the Lee homestead and was with the group of mourners at Lee's side when death came. Major Wilson is an aide-de-camp on the staff of General A. W. Goodwin, commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans, and is also sergeant-at-arms of the organization. He was active in planning the organization of the veterans late in the twenties. He is the sole survivor of his regiment, the Third Louisiana Infantry commanded by his father, Col. Ed. C. Wilson, Sr., which was virtually annihilated at Gettysburg. Major Wilson's father and four of his brothers were killed in that engagement. Major Wilson is known as the "Grand Old Man of Electra," and has served in various capacities as a city official here for 20 years.

Aladdin's Lamp Has Part in This Story as Deserted Boom Town Is Made to Boom Once More

ALEXANDRIA, Ind., May 16.—(United Press)—Literally and figuratively, Aladdin's lamp has been found in this little town.

Once deserted store rooms and dwellings have been rehabilitated and many of the workers in local mills are fore to live in near-by cities because of the housing shortage.

Back in the eighties, Alexandria was a boom town. The discovery of natural gas turned a crossroads village overnight into a city of 12,000 inhabitants.

Wooden dwellings ignorant of beauty of architecture, were hastily constructed. Dozens of saloons and gambling houses gave the business district a "wild west" appearance. There was wanton waste of the natural gas. Large jets of it spurted from the tops of well-casings and was allowed to burn continuously, just for the sheer joy of lighting things up.

The day of judgment came. Gas gave out. As suddenly as the town developed, it collapsed. Two-thirds of its population departed. Houses were torn down to get building material for other "boom towns." Its big steel and glass mills—dependent on gas—went out of existence. Most of them are obliterated. Weeds grew over them.

But underneath, the weeds was a stratum of stone. It was despised in boom days because it was too soft for building purposes. There was at least one man in Alexandria, C. C. Hall, a scientist, who retained his love for the city and looked upon the soft stone as a means of rehabilitating its past glories.

For years he worked patiently with the rock. It had peculiar chemical properties which enabled it to be melted and spun into mineral wool—one of the best insulating materials. Modern refrigerators are kept cold with this product from Alexandria. It is being made into sheets and boards to keep houses warmer in winter and cooler in summer. It is said Alexandria has the only known large deposits of the material.

First efforts of Hall to market the mineral wool were doomed to failure. There was no market for the product and capitalists would not invest in the "wild scheme." Then the war came. The government needed the insulating material and plenty of it. This gave the mineral wool mills new momentum which has carried them over the top. Alexandria's mineral wool became an important factor in American commerce.

Johns-Manville, Banner Rock Products and General Insulating and Mig. Co. invested millions in the town. It was estimated the population jumped from 4,000 to 6,000 within a short time. It soon will pass 7,500.

So far the story deals only figuratively with Aladdin and his Wonderful Lamp. Recently, however, the Aladdin Industries, Inc., one of the largest manufacturers of lamps and other products, moved its giant plant from Chicago to Alexandria and the allegory was complete.

THIS HAS HAPPENED MILDRED LAWRENCE falls in love with STEPHEN ARMITAGE, who is lured away by PAMELA JUDSON when she tells him Mildred is trying to marry her brother, HAROLD, for money. Harold fears HUCK CONNOR, who blackmails him over a forged check. Huck is infatuated with Pamela, and when she announces her engagement to Stephen frames him for the theft of an auto and causes his arrest. Pamela drops Stephen, but Mildred tries to get him out of jail. Harold had once told her he feared Huck, who had threatened to get rid of Stephen to keep him from marrying Pamela. Mildred determines to force Harold to help her, and is shocked to hear of his death—apparently accidental. She tells Stephen her suspicions but they have no proof and it seems hopeless. Finally she goes to MR. JUDSON, who takes her to headquarters to tell her story. Judson baits Stephen out and Pamela begs forgiveness. On the way from the jail to the hotel, Stephen narrowly escapes a shot from a thug in a passing taxi. He reports to Mr. Judson and learns that Mildred was also wounded slightly by a gangster shot. Her concern over her leads the elder man to doubt Stephen's love for Pam, and he tells her the man is trying to marry her for money not love. She taunts him by saying that his money had bought two step-mothers for her and disposed of the first and that he has no right to keep her from buying her man. Believing she really loves Stephen, the father gives in to her pleading.

was instigated but Stephen was not located. The inquiry at the switchboard revealed that he had made one outside call on the telephone. Mr. Judson's face grew thunderous when the operator told him the number Stephen called was Mildred's. Had she listened to the conversation? Certainly not. Mr. Judson was unconvinced. The operator and Mildred probably were friends, he reasoned. "Call the number," he directed, "and say Mr. Judson wishes to speak to Mrs. Lawrence." It was Connie who answered the call. "Can't talk to Mr. Judson?" she asked. "Mother is with Mildred. I don't like to disturb her." The operator repeated her words to Mr. Judson. "Very well," he said impatiently and stepped into a booth. Connie thought him unnecessarily sharp when he asked if Stephen Armitage was there. "No, he isn't," she said, and was perverse enough to withhold the information that he had been there. She thought Mr. Judson would ask, but he said, "Thank you," quickly and hung up. "Well, if you hadn't been so short I'd have told you," Connie said to herself, trying to placate a troubled conscience. She was remembering the things Mildred had said about Mr. Judson's kindness to her after her "accident" in the subway. Mildred hadn't explained just how he came to be so interested in her and Connie was eaten up with curiosity. But Mildred told them Stephen was out on bail so they weren't surprised when he telephoned. He was told Mildred was sleeping but he went up anyway, thinking she might waken before he got there. "I'll drop in tomorrow," he said when Connie was speeding him at the door. "Do," she drawled, "but don't happen along when Mildred's regular is here. He's frightfully jealous." Little loyal trouble maker. She just wanted to give Stephen something to think about. She did. "I don't suppose she wants me hanging around," he concluded with a "lost" feeling that he did not understand, and but for Pamela he might not have gone back. Mr. Judson met him in the lobby of the hotel when he returned and took him to task at once for his recklessness. "Connor isn't a master mind," Stephen returned unemotionally. "But I went out a back door." "I suppose you mean he couldn't guess that you would leave Pamela this evening?" Mr. Judson retorted. "After all, Armitage, you're engaged to her." "I didn't consider what Connor would think," Stephen declared; "but now that you speak of it I guess that's how it worked." "You weren't considering the fact that he knows my daughter isn't going out socially?" Stephen looked straight at him. "I'm not scared to death of Connor," he said. "And I wanted to see for myself that the man you've hired to guard Miss Lawrence is on the job." "Oh, so you went to see Miss Lawrence? Was my man there?" "Right outside in the hall, I've an idea Miss Lawrence hasn't told her mother and sister what happened. The girl spoke of it as an accident." "Yes, Miss Lawrence wanted to keep it from them," Mr. Judson said. "I instructed my driver and the plainclothes man not to reveal anything to the family. How is Miss Lawrence?" He looked at Stephen closely as he asked the question, his doubts of Stephen's love for Pamela again made active by Stephen's conduct. "I didn't see her," Stephen explained. "She was sleeping." "She's an exceptionally fine girl," Mr. Judson remarked. "She will make some lucky man a splendid wife." Stephen nodded. "I understand she's engaged," he said, thinking of what Connie had said to him. A "regular" with Mildred was the same, to Stephen, as a fiancée. Mr. Judson was taken completely unawares. He said nothing and Stephen started to walk away. "Pamela is waiting for you upstairs," Mr. Judson found voice to say before he got out of hearing. Stephen paused. "Please make my excuses to her," he said. "I'm all in." Mr. Judson nodded. "Good night," Stephen said and went on. Mr. Judson looked after him. "I don't believe he's ever been in love with either one of them," he told himself suddenly. "Pamela hooked him and he'll stick because he's the sort to tilt at windmills." "Your man has gone to bed," he said to Pamela when he joined her in his suite. "And I can't say that I blame him." "Where in the world has he been?" "Calling on Miss Lawrence." Pamela got up quick. She didn't want to discuss what she'd just heard until she'd talked with Stephen about it. "Why, of course," she said.

"Wasn't that thoughtful of him?" But her father knew, when she left the room, that she wasn't so calm about Stephen's call as she appeared to be. The next day she arose early and breakfasted downstairs at an inconspicuous table, hoping to see Stephen, but he was not about. Later she telephoned his room and he told her he was unpacking. "Bother," she exclaimed; "I'll send up a valet. Have you had breakfast?" Stephen said yes. "Then get ready and come down to the mezzanine in 15 minutes. We're going for a drive." Stephen assented and Pamela rushed upstairs to get her hat and a light wrap. "I'll tell the operator to have my car sent around right away," she ordered the maid. When she met Stephen on the mezzanine he was of a different mind about going out with her. "I don't think your father would like it," he said. Pamela argued. Stephen didn't want to tell her that he thought it was unsafe for her to leave the hotel in his company, so he simply refused to go. "If you hadn't gone out last night I might think you were afraid," she said crossly. "Perhaps I am," Stephen replied. "You're not; you're just stubborn," Pamela retorted. "Well, I'll ask dad. If he doesn't object you'll go, won't you?" Stephen did not expect her father to consent when he said yes. But Pamela returned after leaving him for a few minutes and told him her father said it was all right if they would be careful. Stephen had no idea that she lied. There was a plan in her head and she did not mean to let parental dictates stand in the way of carrying it out. Stephen saw no glory in the beautiful day. He ought to have been feeling exuberantly happy, tingling with the joy of his freedom; instead he was conscious of a dull depression lying heavily upon him. Pamela's radiant spirits did not endure in his blue company. She fell into a gloomy silence before they had gone ten blocks. Time and again she started to say something and checked herself before the first word was out. Stephen was pleased not to talk. That made it easier for Pamela to hold her silence. Inwardly she was fuming, but she didn't want to spoil what she was going to do by prematurely quarreling with Stephen over his visit to Mildred. Stephen wondered, as they drove along, if her father had told her about Huck's attempt to have him shot. If so she was either very brave or very reckless, he thought. "You're not going to the club, are you?" he asked with a touch of misgiving as Pamela took the route they had followed so many times up to Westchester. "Oh, no," she said. "I'm going to pay a call." The idea did not appeal to Stephen. He saw himself being set on by Pamela's friends to tell them what it was like in jail. Even Pamela's recent bereavement would not deter them from being fresh, Stephen knew. He dared a suggestion that they go on and enjoy a drive in the country. "We won't be long," Pamela replied. A few minutes later she turned off in the direction of Mildred's home. "Where are you going?" Stephen inquired, vaguely distrustful. "To see Mildred Lawrence," Pamela told him. Stephen said nothing more until they came to a stop before the shabby building, faced with clinging fire escapes, where the Lawrences lived. "I'll wait here if you don't mind," he said then. "Of course I mind. I've only been here once before, but you know the apartment. Come along," Pamela snapped. Stephen reluctantly escorted her to Mildred's door. Connie answered their ring and regarded them in undisguised surprise. Pamela stepped through the door she held open without waiting to be asked in. Stephen hesitated. "Come in," Connie said to him most ungraciously. She was boiling, as she told Mildred later. "We've come up to see Mildred," Pamela said brightly. "Please tell her." (To Be Continued)

The satisfaction of owners is proof of its reliability . . .

Through the fine things said about it by its owners . . . through their complete satisfaction . . . their freedom from annoying disorders . . . their enthusiastic recommendation to their friends. In this way the world is coming to know the New Oakland All-American as a remarkably good and reliable automobile.

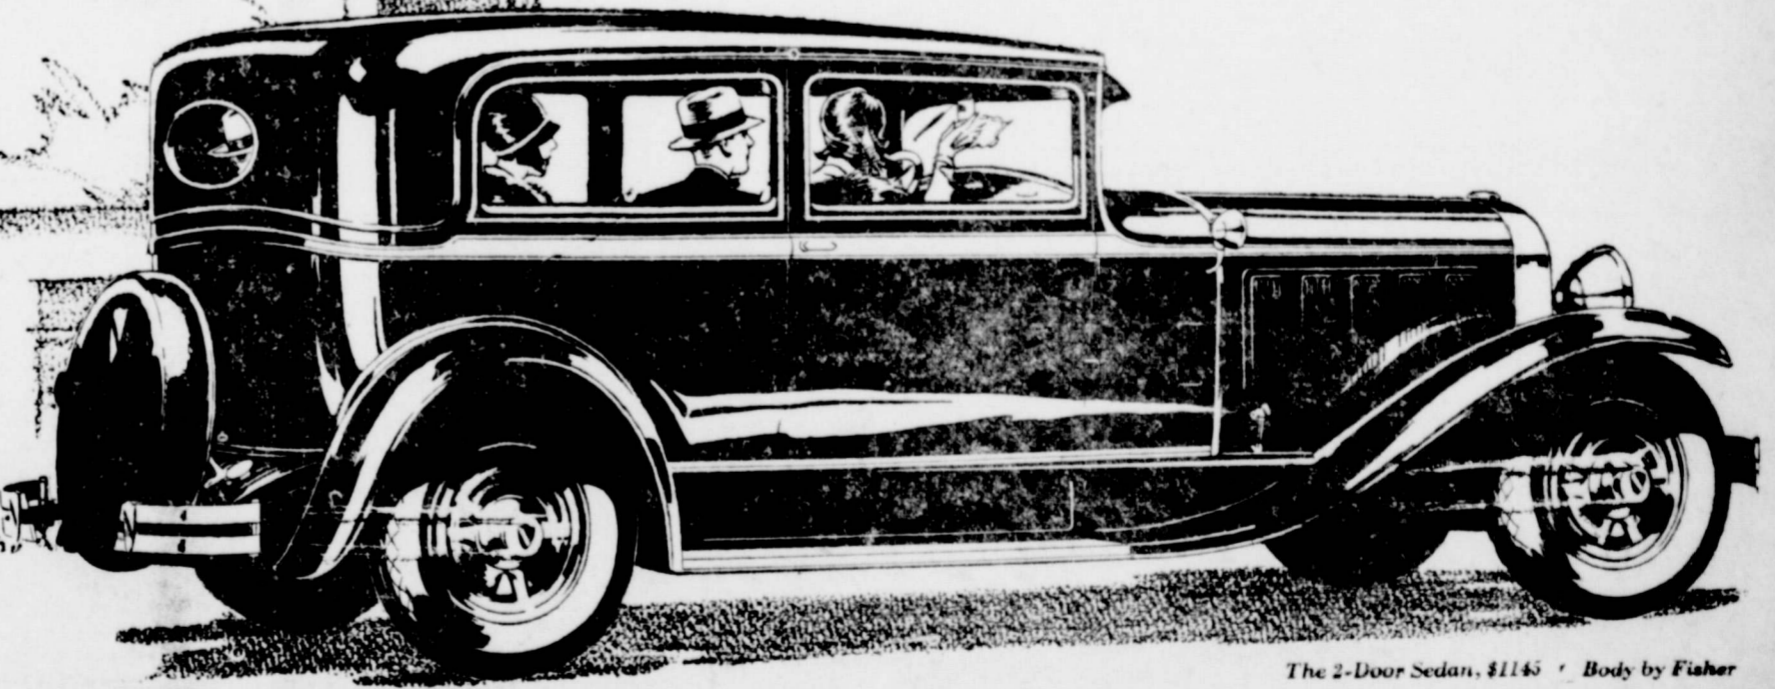

It's no accident . . . this dependability which is winning so many friends for Oakland. Rather it is the result of All-American design and construction . . . as exemplified by numerous features new to the moderate-priced motor car field.

Such features as Oakland's one-piece cylinder block and crankcase construction which increases the sturdiness of the engine and holds main bearings in line . . . its crankcase ventilating system which keeps water out of the crankcase, preventing scored cylinders and insuring better cold weather operation . . . its Harmonic Balancer which counteracts ruinous crankshaft vibration . . . its big, rigidly cross-membered frame.

Reliability itself cannot be demonstrated. But the reason for it are shown in a special demonstration which we have arranged. Ask any owner of a New All-American about its reliability. Then come in . . . and we will show you why this car is so dependable.

OIL NEWS OF SOUTHWEST

HOUSTON, May 16. — Raccoon Bend in Austin county, being developed by the Humble Oil & Refining company and the Valley Oil corporation bids to become the most active of any of the coastal fields. This week eleven locations for new wells were made.

Production of the field is running approximately 5,000 barrels daily with all wells except a small pumper on choker.

No. 2-Urban, an old gas well, is being cleaned out preparatory to working over.

TULSA, Okla., May 16. — The Houston Oil company has widened the St. Louis pool in the north-east extension of the Pearson area and the company's No. 1 well yesterday was swabbing at the rate of 85 barrels an hour.

Gas low in No. 1-Stamper well of Sinclair Oil & Gas company in Oklahoma City south field caught fire at 6 a. m. yesterday and was burning out of control several hours later. Forty men were fighting the flames that were increased by added gas flow during the night.

Operators of British American Oil company and N. M. Valerius company yesterday believed their No. 1-McCarthy in Edwards county, Western Kansas, would be completed as a gasser. The gas output has increased to 15,000,000 cubic feet a day.

EVIDENCE DETONATES.

COVINGTON, Ind., May 16. — When Sheriff Charles A. Robinson heard what appeared to be shots as he was taking Mrs. Nellie Beer, arrested during a liquor raid, to jail, he prepared to resist attempts of bootleggers to rescue her. It developed, however, that the "shots" were merely the explosion of several bottles of beer seized as evidence, which had been shaken up by the jolting of the sheriff's automobile.

HAMILTON ONCE HORSEWHIPPED NOTED EDITOR

WACO, May 16. — The recent jailing of R. H. Hamilton for the alleged slaying of his son-in-law, Tom Walton, Jr. recalled to alumni of Baylor University here how he once horse-whipped W. C. Brann, then editor of the Iconoclast.

Brann had published an article said to reflect on the character of young women attending Baylor. Hamilton and a group of friends appointed themselves a committee to "right the wrong" capturing the editor, they forcibly took him to where a crowd of students were meeting and made him in the presence of the group, sign a retraction to the article.

Soon afterward Hamilton and two other students encountered the editor on a street corner where Hamilton delivered a horse-whipping to him.

In April of the following year, Brann and one of Hamilton's friends shot each other to death on the post office steps.

Hamilton was a professor of economics and history at Baylor from 1901 to 1919. It was after that he became an assistant attorney general of the state and a member of the supreme court commission of appeals.

Immediately after leaving Baylor, he became president of Howard Payne at Brownwood, serving there for one year before moving to Port Lavaca to practice law until called to the high state offices.

Hamilton made an enviable record as a student at Baylor from where he took his A. B. degree in 1899.

BOSTON, May 16. — It would take 1,000,000 dentists five years to repair the damage already done to the teeth of American people, the Massachusetts Dental society was told in a speech by Dr. E. Melville Quinby, editor of the society.

Reunion Held in "Ghost Village"

TRAVER, Cal., May 16. — One of California's best known "ghost" towns returned to life here with a population of approximately 500 citizens for one day, when visitors came from as far north as Sacramento and as far south as Los Angeles.

"Citizens" is the proper word to describe the returning population, for all of the 500 persons were former residents, gathered in reunion. It was the 45th anniversary of the founding of Traver, once a 3,000 population center of a great grain and horticultural area.

Every building in the town has disappeared. The last to go was the Del Zante hotel, burned to the ground last year, together with a little store.

Alkali was responsible for Traver's demise as a municipality. The chemical came to the surface with irrigation, killing grain, orchards and vineyards.

Cattle now roam over sparse "salt grass" where once a prosperous community existed. The 500 reunionists picnicked beneath the great eucalyptus trees that border what once was the Traver school yard.

HE'D NEVER SEEN IT'S LIKE BEFORE

Abilene Contractor Was Sometimes in Bed for Days at a Time on Account of Bad Health.

"If I could speak with everybody personally who has stomach trouble and gall stones I would tell them to take Orgatone for I have tried it myself and have never seen anything like it," was the statement made by G. W. Matthews, residing at 774 Merchant St., Abilene, Texas. Mr. Matthews, who is a well known contractor and has been for the past twenty years is now constructing a new church school in Abilene.

"About thirty years ago," he continued, "I began suffering from stomach and gall bladder trouble, and kept getting worse in spite of all I could do. I would have headaches and dizzy spells that would almost drive me crazy. Some times pains would strike me in the small of my back and I would have to be in bed for days at a time. I also suffered agonies from gas, which seemed to affect my heart, felt tired, worn out, and no account all the time. I simply got to where I had to be as careful as a baby about my eating, in fact, food sometimes acted just like poison in my stomach.

"A few weeks ago some of my friends began to tell me about Orgatone and recommended it very highly and I decided to see if it would help me as others said it had. My stomach soon got in shape to where I could eat just anything I wanted without the slightest trouble afterwards. So I kept on taking Orgatone and when I finished my second bottle, my gall stones and all other troubles had disappeared and I haven't a pain in my body. I feel better than I have in thirty years. No doubt there are lots of people today suffering like I did before I took Orgatone and if I can show them the road to health I think it is nothing but right that I should do so."

Genuine Orgatone is not a so-called patent or secret remedy but a new scientific bile treatment sold in Cisco exclusively by the Dean Drug Co., under the personal direction of a special Orgatone representative.

DAIRYING IS DEVELOPING IN CALLAHAN

BAIRD, May 15.—The dairy industry is growing rapidly developed in Callahan county and the farmers are showing considerable interest in building up herds of pure blooded stock.

Last week two registered Jersey bulls were purchased by representatives of two communities to go into the two blocks of a "bull circle" that has been recently organized by County Agent A. M. Cooper. Both bulls purchased have an exceptionally good record behind them of approximately 600 pounds of butter fat. County Agent Cooper is not only interested in placing pure blood registered bulls but insists that a satisfactory certified record of butter fat production be behind them. It is his aim to aid the farmers in building dairy herds that will produce the most money for the amount of investment.

Arrangements are being made whereby the farmers interested in building up their herds can obtain assistance for the purchasing of registered stock.

Approximately $7,000,000 will be expended by Rock Island railroad in the construction of new lines in this state—Dallas, Texas.

Time for Reconvening of State Legislature in Second Special Session Left to Members' Wishes

By GORDON K. SHEARER, United Press Staff Correspondent.

AUSTIN, May 16.—Time for reconvening the state legislature which must end its second session of the year by next Tuesday will be left to the wishes of the members.

Governor Dan Moody is willing to let them decide whether to come back at once or to take a rest between sessions. Members generally seem to want from one to two weeks between sessions to go home and look after private business.

When this session adjourns next week, the legislature will have been in session 90 days this year. The regular session was 60 days. The first special session apparently is going to run the full 30 days, the maximum for a special session.

The second special session may not last so long. There is no minimum time limit. The only provision for special sessions is that they must not last more than 30 days.

If the governor submits only taxation revenue and appropriations, as many members desire, the second special gathering may be short. The finance committee of the senate has appropriation bills ready. The house will have its bills ready either at the opening of the session or a few days later. The only task will be to make the two agree.

The chief difference in the tentative bills is that the senate has made larger appropriations in some instances and has made lump sum appropriations for the educational institutions. Where the senate appropriates a lump sum for operation of a school, the house bills specify so much for a professor of economics, so much for another professor, and so on through the list.

Can Eliminate. The governor can eliminate any item in the house bills. In the senate bills this cannot be done. The house bills may be made still more explicit if a plan proposed by Rep. W. E. Pope, Corpus Christi, is adopted. This plan is to cancel the appropriation for a position that is not filled. In the past, institutions have been allowed to use all of the appropriations for several instructors in a department by paying higher salaries to a less number in the same department.

Rep. T. N. Maurice of Granado plans to re-introduce his income tax, gas tax, intangible tax, insurance tax, and increase sulphur tax bills at the next session. If defeated again, he will seek to get a popular expression on them. Adjustment of highway funds promises one of the big fights of the second session. While imposed as a registration fee, which properly should be the amount only necessary to pay the cost of registration, number plates and keeping records of motor vehicles, the registration fee is in actuality a big part of the fund used for highway maintenance. How much of the highway funds should come from this and how they should be divided between the state highway commission and the county commissioners court have been fought over in recurring sessions of the legislature.

If the legislature is called back for the second special session within 24 hours of final adjournment of this session, it will save the state the mileage allowed members for returning home and coming back to Austin. If more than 24 hours elapse before the next session, they are entitled to the mileage costs.

A second special session is not unusual. There were four in 1910, the 31st legislature, and four for the 35th and 36th legislatures. Three extra assemblies were called during the 35th and 36th legislatures. The present body is the 41st.

COLEMAN, May 16.—An experimental laboratory for perfecting apparatus for the de-sulphurization of West Texas oil has been opened at his home here by Howard Samuel, geologist.

The first plant for operating the proposed apparatus will be opened at Midland with a capacity sufficient for treating 50,000 barrels daily, Samuel said. The plant will be opened following a trip to Washington to obtain patents to be made by Samuel and J. B. Dibrill, Jr., attorney.

EARLY TIMES ABOUT CISCO

(By ISHAM LAMB)

Eastland city in 1878 gave little promise of being the splendid city it is today. Yet its founders were men of broad vision and perhaps of dreams of the future. No doubt these dreams have been more than realized.

In 1878 the town did not contain more than 150 inhabitants. There were but one general store, operated by E. B. Jones, who moved from Phenixville. He carried a general stock of dry goods and groceries. J. Stuart had a small stock of groceries. Caleb Terrell had a small stock of drugs. Stuart and Jones were located on the west side of the square. Terrell on the south side. E. W. Jones, brother of E. B. Jones, later opened up a store on the north side but did not stay long. Judge Lawrence had a small house on the east side of the square and the center of the block. Charley High had a blacksmith shop on the northeast corner of the square. On the northwest corner was a stone building owned by the founders of the town, the upper story of which was used as a court house. The lower floor was empty.

The officers of the county were: The Lawrence, county judge; the Smick county and district clerk; S. Schimek, sheriff; William Jones, county treasurer. The names of the others I have forgotten.

How the officers made a living I do not know. District court seldom met over three days.

Among those who lived in Eastland at that time as I remember them now were: C. U. Connellee, the founders of the city; A. Lawrence, J. R. Stuart, J. H. Everling, Charley High, Mr. Aldridge, Mr. W. D. Durham, Dr. Ludlow, William Day, Mr. Truley, Sr., Mr. Murphy, J. H. Davenport, John M. Gore, Bob Truley, Judge Truman Lamer, Frank R. Stanley, J. H. Shoun, C. K. Martin, Mr. Brown, W. Fair, Dan Boone.

Mrs. Nanny Dowdy moved to Eastland from Stephenville and opened up a hotel in 1879. John Beddy lived two miles east of Eastland. Sandy Martin, the Martins and Johnsons lived two miles east of Eastland and D. B. and Dowdy lived south of the town. John Middleton lived west of the town. W. Sweet and his father, Rev. W. Fair, Dan Boone.

Eastland was the trade center for the western part of the county at that time. There was neither court nor jail. In fact, we did not see them at the time. Methodists had an organization there presided over by Rev. G. W. Fair. The Baptists had a small organization but no pastor.

There was but little farming going on then. C. U. Connellee was the leader of the community. He was active in inducing immigrants and was a bureau of information. He never lost faith in the county and always worked hard for Eastland city and the county. He was active in politics. I did not always agree with him but I admired his steadfastness and his zeal.

It was at a picnic at old Merritt in 1878 which brought together most of the people who lived in the country. There were also people from Palo Pinto and Stephens counties. The prospective officers were there in full force ready to head up the people's patriotism by telling them of Valley Forge and Bunker Hill, to commend the gallantry of the men present and to praise the beauty of the women. They did this well. After speaking and dinner were over the people formed in groups for their favorite pastime—swapping.

There were no drunk men present because there was no whisky sold. We all had plenty to eat and plenty of good water to drink.

Eastland was not blessed then with much water. The next year we had the picnic at Eastland near where the Range bridge is now. There had a good attendance, good talking and a fine dinner. But we depended for water on a well near the creek. The day was warm and we were all so thirsty that we drank the well dry and had to go home early.

Those were great days. We met, got acquainted with each other and had a good time.

There was a story told on one prominent young man who made love to his girl on the day of the Eastland picnic that occasioned much amusement. It was said that he had made up a fine speech of proposal something to the effect that if he had her bright eyes and beaming countenance to go along with him they would shed a halo of light and joy all the way. Being thirsty he stilled when he got to the word "shed" and he could go no further. After saying "would shed" two or three times the girl became impatient and told him "not to mind the word shed" but to go on with his pretty talk. Which he did later and they were married and lived happily together. He had great confidence in her because she helped him past the "word shed."

People then had more time for romance than now. They did not move so fast and had more time to think. They knew less of what was going on in the world but knew more of each other. Their friendship was of a less selfish nature.

Caddo Witnesses Mild Revival of Oil Boom Activity

Hart well is visible from the highway.

These two new wells mean that Caddo will witness some of the most intense activity that has been seen for a long time in this part of Central West Texas.

A feature of the Manning well is the thickness of the producing stratum. The line has been drilled into for 98 feet and the bottom of the pay has not yet been reached. Total depth is 3,293. The oil is 41 degrees, an exceptionally high gravity for the oil belt in general.

Fabris—Active work has been started on the mile and a half of concrete paving which will be put down in this vicinity at once.

Bigger and Better Receptions Needed, Says Dallas Mayor

DALLAS, May 16.—Mayor J. Waddy Tate feels that what Dallas needs is bigger and better receptions for notables.

As the smiling mayor, who rode into office recently on a "hot dog" ticket puts it, the city has been too "stiff and formal."

"You see, the mayor explained to others, "we've been too stiff and formal here. Before I got through the formal men's and police bands will have sore feet meeting and parading the notables who come to Dallas."

The mayor also announced a series of dances to "make the farmers come into Dallas and feel welcome." Entrance fee will be ten cents, hot dogs will be served at a nickel apiece. Overalls will be at fat for the men and gingham house dresses for the women.

Cisco Rotarians to Have Annual Ladies Night Event This Evening; Program for Session Kept Secret

The nearest that an ordinary diggited Rotary club ever comes to making "whoopie" will take place this evening at 8 o'clock on the roof garden of the Laguna hotel.
 But the danger that there will be any unrestrained outburst of overindulgent spirits has been pretty well guarded against—in fact about as effectually guarded against as the army and navy can make it.
 The wives will be along.
 The event is the annual "Ladies Night" of the club. At this time the club dispenses with its noon luncheon and adopts for the day the more formal institution of the banquet for the evening. The program, however, is not shackled with formality but baistles with ~~serious~~ and good humor.

 This program, of course, is kept a secret until the hour set for its participation. J. E. T. Peters is in charge for this time.
 Between 1926 and 1925, 75,000 new farms were brought into cultivation in the United States. Thirty thousand of them were in Texas.

 farmers of Caro Springs, Jasper perts at a fish fry.

NEW MOTOR OIL INDORSED BY ENGINEERS

The modern high-speed, high compression automobile motor has brought into requirement an entirely different lubricating oil. In the olden days when motors turned 1,800 revolutions per minute, it was not necessary to give great attention to lubricants. The moderate heat generated had no deteriorating effect on the oil, and there was no excessive wear either on pistons, cylinders or bearings. Today it is all changed—high speed has doubled the revolutions per minute, and terrific heat is generated throughout the motor. The old time oils have been found wanting.
 The Gulf Refining company have always endeavored to keep pace with the times, and their large corps of chemists have spent time and money in experiments looking towards improvements in lubrication.

 Taking best quality of paraffine base and best naphthene base crudes, they have perfected a blend of twobase oil which possesses the combined characteristics of both.
 Greater resistance to heat is one of the outstanding features of this new Gulf Supreme Motor Oil. A tough viscous body insuring well-sealed piston rings and a protective film over bearings. Motors are kept in better condition if this new oil is used and careful attention given to oil level in the crankcase and periodical changes made when long trips are given the motor.

AT LAST... a blended two-base motor oil

SOME motor oils are made from Sparaffine base oil, others from naphthene. Each has good qualities not shared by the other.
 The perfect oil for the modern motor is an exact blend of oil made from the best paraffine and the best naphthene bases. This ultimate oil we have produced in grades suitable for any motor in any climate.

Do you like your motor?
 If you have that regard bordering on affection for your motor, drive to the nearest Gulf
 Dealer and try this Gulf
 Supreme Motor Oil. It lubricates perfectly, resists high temperatures, minimizes knocking, seals piston rings and does the utmost that oil can do to give you a smooth-running, quiet motor.

Modern motors demand it
 The high compression, the speed and power of the modern motor demand a two-base oil with the maximum stamina, the sealing qualities, the resistance to heat and wear that is only obtainable by combining the qualities of paraffine and naphthene base oils.

British Ryder Team Captain Beats Hagen

DUNCAN PLAYS INSPIRED GOLF FOR VICTORY

Wins With 60 Foot Putt For Birdie Three.

MOORTON, Eng., May 16.—

George Duncan, captain of the British Ryder cup team, defeated Walter Hagen, captain of the American Ryder cup squad and newly crowned British open champion in the first round of the Yorkshire Evening News 1,000 guineas tournament here today, one up.

Duncan climaxed a thrilling round in which the two stars battled for 17 holes on a nearly even rating, by sinking a 60-foot putt on the 18th green for a birdie three to win the match.

Hagen duplicated the 69 he scored in the first round of medal play Tuesday but even this was not good enough to stop Duncan who played inspired golf. The British captain finished in 68, going out in 33 and coming home in 35. Hagen's Tuesday 69 stands as the course record for medal play, however.

The cards: Duncan in—543-434-543-35-68. Hagen in—553-434-444-36-69.

WICHITA FALLS—Four members of the Wichita Falls baseball team were enroute to new jobs today, after their release by officials here. Bob Snyder, catcher, was made a free agent. FORT WORTH — With William Bridevell, Arkansas champion, the favorite to win individual honors, golf teams of the Southwest conference teed off today for their annual championship flight. The 16 low scorers this morning will start championship play this afternoon.

Shires Suspended; Attacks Manager

CHICAGO, May 16.—Charles Arthur Shires, "Bad Boy Rookie" of the White Sox was reported today enroute to his home at Italy, Texas, while his erstwhile manager Lena Blackburne nursed a badly blackened eye and lacerated right ear.

Incensed at an indefinite suspension and $100 fine placed on him earlier in the day, the rookie attacked Blackburne in the Sox clubhouse after yesterday's game.

Swinging rights and lefts viciously, Shires knocked Blackburne to the floor, when the fight was stopped by other players, and the youngster escorted from the park by a policeman.

The fight was culmination of a series of incidents in which the nettling Texan has figured since he won and lost the team captaincy during spring training as well as the regular first baseman's job.

Lemon was expelled.

The Personality of Your Check

This is the BANK that SERVICE is Building

A mute, inanimate scrap of paper in the physical sense, your check is nevertheless something more than a lifeless medium for the exchange of money.

By suggesting the institution on which it is drawn, it reflects a familiar spirit and thereby acquires a personality of its own.

Your check on the First National Bank conveys to the person who receives it an impression of stability, strength and lofty purposes, and thus lends dignity to a simple act in the routine of business life.

Why Many Women Never Bother to Go to "Sales"

It is often inconvenient to leave their work at the advertised hour.

The "special bargains" are usually the wrong shade or size.

They know that they can find what they want, exactly when they want it in our store without fighting "bargain crowds."

Experience has taught them that our Everyday Low Prices are as low, and often lower, than so-called "sale prices."
