Bank robbery trial continues

Patty—princess or rebel?

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — With the focus again on Patricia Hearst in the upcoming fourth week of her trial, the conflicting portraits of victim and volunteer are being drawn with increasing detail. Before long, it will be up to a jury to decide which picture is the better likeness.

In the federal courtroom that serves as the theater for this bizarre drama, U.S. Attorney James L. Browning Jr., portrayed Miss Hearst as neither princess nor pawn. She was, he said, defendant and bank robber — a gun-toting young woman who walked voluntarily into a busy bank one spring morning and, in foul-mouthed terms, threatened to blast anyone who got in her way.

"She said she was a willing participant," a teen-ager remembered of the boastful bandit he recognized as Miss Hearst.

But the most powerful weapon in Browning's arsenal of prosecution evidence was the electronic confession of the 21-year-old enigma who once called herself "Tania."

"On April 15, my comrades and I expropriated $10,660.02 from the Sunset Branch of the Hibernia Bank," she said in the April 18, 1974, tape recording played once again in court. "... My gun was loaded and at no time did any of my comrades intentionally point their guns at me."

In the end, the seven women and five men charged with the task of judging Miss Hearst's guilt will have to explore the subtleties of two women — the princess called Patty and the blatant bank robber "Tania."

In the three weeks of arguments and testimony, neither Miss Hearst nor her lawyers have denied she robbed the bank. They simply say she was forced. The crucial word is "intent."

To complicate matters, jurors so far have heard only part of the evidence aired before judge and spectators. But Miss Hearst's protracted appearance as star witness — scheduled to continue Tuesday — should fill in the missing chapters.

An examination of the court transcript of Miss Hearst's jury selection showed that all of the panelists were familiar with facts of the Hearst saga. But all promised to be objective and consider only the facts presented to them.

Already, they have heard enough to color their conceptions of the woman they will come to judge.

Victim or volunteer? The evidence tells both stories.

Browning, all but ignoring Miss Hearst's odd status as political kidnaper victim, used his opening statement to lay out a straightforward case — five bandits robbed a San Francisco bank on April 15, 1974, and one of them was Miss Hearst.

There were no surprises in the government's 32-witness lineup, but the question of intent did arise.

Jurors were sent back to the hotel where they are sequestered. And, in a prelude to her eventual appearance before them, Patricia Hearst stepped up to the witness stand and swore to tell "the whole truth and nothing but the truth."

Without tears, Miss Hearst quickly washed her hands of the SLA, denouncing both living and dead "soldiers" of the brigade, incriminating a long list of outsiders who helped in her fugitive flight from the law. Mostly, she denied the words of "Tania."

"I was told I would be killed," she said of her motivation to rob a bank, claiming four other SLA bandits would have shot her if she flinched.

"She was the defiant speaker in the crucial tape recording, she said, but 'I didn't write those words.' They were fed to her, she said, by the SLA's poet laureate, Angela Atwood.

Weeping bitterly, she recalled her violent abduction. She said she was slugged unconscious, gagged and blindfolded, thrown in the trunk of a car and rushed away as sounds of gunfire and screams faded behind her.

In a gasping voice, she told of her darkest fears — that she would be buried alive by her kidnapers. Instead, she was thrown in a tiny, hot closet where she endured threats, denunciations and physical torment.

After she performed as ordered on a forced tape recording, she said her chief captor, Donald "Cinque" DeFreeze, wasn't satisfied. He punished her, she said, by pinching her in the breasts and "private parts."

As she left the witness stand Friday, red-eyed and sniffling, she had told only half of her story. But her defense was clearly outlined.

The jury, which will be taken on a tour of key trial sites — including the closets of Miss Hearst's captivity — returned to the hotel for the holiday weekend.

A PRIZE ON EACH SIDE — Peter Mueller, right, Mequon, Wis., hugs his fiancee, skater Leah Poulos of Northbrook, Ill., as he shows off the gold medal presented him Friday for his first place victory in men's 1,000 meter speed skating competition in the Twelfth Winter Olympic Games in Innsbruck, Austria. Leah won a silver medal for the United States in the women's 1,000 meter speed skating event. The pair helped the U. S. win ten medals, including three gold medals in the Olympics, ending today. Other gold medal winners were Dorothy Hamill in the women's figure skating competition and Sheila Young in the women's 500 meter speed skating competition. USSR led the medal race with a total of 27 and East Germany was second with one event left. The U. S. was tied with West Germany for third.

Contempt of Congress?

Schorr leaked CIA report

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Rep. Samuel S. Stratton, D-N.Y., said Saturday that he will move in the Congress to cite CBS Correspondent Daniel Schorr for contempt for arranging newspaper publication of a secret House intelligence committee report.

"It is time for us to stop talking about protecting our nation's key intelligence secrets and procedures and start doing something about it," Stratton said in a telephone interview.

Asked for reaction, Schorr said: "I do not understand the constitutional basis for Congressman Stratton's action. I have tried to fulfill what I consider my constitutional obligation. I hope he will fulfill his."

Schorr contended it was his duty as a newsman to arrange for publication of a secret House Intelligence Committee report.

Schorr described on Friday "the inescapable decision of journalistic conscience" that he said faced him when he learned he might be the only person outside government with a copy of the report.

The television newsman confirmed his role in the publication of the report in the Village Voice.

A CBS News spokesman said, "As we said yesterday (Friday) we will have no comment on any federal action until it is resolved or becomes clearer. At the same time, as we said yesterday, we will fully support Mr. Schorr against any action to force him to reveal his sources." He had reported on material in the report.

Stratton, a member of the Armed Services Committee and its intelligence subcommittee, told The Associated Press that he would take the action Tuesday, after the holiday weekend.

Viet Catholics rebel in Saigon

TOKYO (AP) — Hanoi Radio said Saturday that Roman Catholic rebels led by a priest staged an uprising for 15 hours in a Saigon church and killed a member of South Vietnam's security forces before being captured.

Quoting a statement by Saigon's Revolutionary Committee, the broadcast said an unspecified number of rebels including the curate of Vinh Son church were overpowered Friday morning.

It said the rebels had "political motives" connected with the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency.

The broadcast described the rebels as "reactionaries" and "intolerable renegades of the Christian faith." It identified the priest as Nguyen Quang Minh but did not identify any other rebels.

A new column (no, not this one) starts in The Herald today. Entitled "A Little Lower," it is written by Wilfrid M. Calnan, director of the Howard County Family Service Center and will appear once a week. Calnan has been a very busy person since he opened the agency, which has its offices in the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center building at 306 W. 3rd St., a little over a year ago.

The column will highlight the various aspects of family life and offer helpful comment but will not respond to requests for help with individual problems presented by readers.

It will, however, invite comment and suggestions for consideration of broad topics concerning family life. It will not offer "bromides" that promise quick solutions to deep-seated problems.

Calnan says he anticipates that, at times, the column will make controversial statements and he does not always expect editorial endorsement. He wants, however, to provoke thinking and questioning on what he regards as one of the most important subjects of contemporary American life, the American family. Why the name "A Little Lower?" It sprang from the text in the Eighth Psalm: "What is man that thou art merciful to him? And the son of man, that thou visitest him? For thou has made him a little lower than the angels, and has crowned him with glory and honor."

Candidates campaign for Florida primary

By The Associated Press

Three Democrats and two Republicans, including President Ford, campaigned Saturday in Florida, where less than a month remains before the South's first presidential primary.

President Ford, trying to stave off challenger Ronald Reagan's attempted rout in traditionally conservative Florida's March 9 primary, toured the central and southern portions of the state Saturday.

Reagan, whose state campaign manager has predicted a "clean sweep" of all 66 Florida delegates, stumped across the Central Florida citrus belt Saturday, carrying his Republican presidential campaign against big government to small town fans and big city spenders.

Reagan went to rallies in Eustis and DeBary and then to a $50-a-ticket Orange County GOP Lincoln Day dinner at Disney World.

Ford began his campaign swing in Orlando and then Fort Lauderdale, where he answered questions Friday night from about 500 local officials. On the President's itinerary were St. Petersburg, Fort Myers and Miami.

Ford on Saturday called for use of the death penalty in many federal cases involving sabotage, murder, espionage and treason.

In an apparent effort to counter campaign speeches on crime by Reagan, Ford said in the text for his principal address of a long day of travel in Florida:

"I favor the use of the death penalty in the federal criminal system in accordance with proper constitutional standards. The death penalty, in appropriate instances, should be imposed upon conviction of sabotage, murder, espionage and treason."

Ford flew to Miami from Ft. Myers, Fla., where many thousands lined downtown streets as he drove to a municipal exhibition hall for a "citizens news conference" that even drew questions from children.

Ft. Myers police estimated the total turnout at more than 60,000 — by far the biggest crowd Ford has seen anywhere this year.

Nigeria ruler killed, new one takes over

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — Another military man took power Saturday in Nigeria as black Africa's richest and most populous country went into seven days of official mourning for assassinated chief of state Murtala Muhammed.

Unofficial sources put the death toll in Friday's abortive military uprising at 32, but the Supreme Military Council made no official announcement.

The ruling council said Muhammed, 38, had been replaced by his defense chief, Lt. Gen. Olusegun Obasanjo. The body of the slain ruler, who took power in a military coup last July 29, was flown to Kano, his birthplace in northern Nigeria, for burial.

The council said the latest uprising was led by Lt. Col. Musa Dimka, director of physical training for the armed forces. Nothing was learned of Dimka's fate.

Witnesses said Muhammed was ambushed and gunned down by dissident army troops Friday morning as he was driven to work at his Dodan barracks headquarters, seat of the Nigerian government in Lagos.

The council said that Lt. Col. Musa Yar'Aduah would replace Obasanjo, who had been Muhammed's No. 2 man, as chief of the defense staff with the rank of brigadier.

It declared seven days of national mourning for Muhammed and ordered all flags flown at half staff across Nigeria, a nation of 65 million to 70 million people.

Convention delegate candidates named

AUSTIN (AP) — Local politicians tried something new in Texas politics Saturday and Sunday as they selected candidates who want to be delegates to the national party conventions.

In previous years, in both the Democratic and Republican parties, national convention delegates have been chosen at the state conventions, usually by the faction that won the first test vote.

This year, and this year only, the new presidential primary bill requires at least 75 per cent of the national convention delegates to be selected in the May 1 primary. They will appear on the ballot as supporters of particular presidential candidates, or uncommitted.

Delegate selection committees for Democratic candidates met Saturday afternoon in each of the 31 state senate districts to make their choices.

Each presidential hopeful who has qualified in a district will be represented on the ballot by three or four candidates for delegate. Uncommitted slates also will be on the ballot in some districts.

Republican selection committees meet at 2 p.m. Sunday in each of the 24 congressional districts to name four delegate candidates for each presidential aspirant.

According to declarations made Feb. 2, the filing deadline, Democrats Lloyd Bentsen, George Wallace and Jimmy Carter will field delegate slates in each of the 31 senatorial districts. Fred Harris delegate candidates will be selected in 14 districts, Sargent Shriver in six, Elen McCormack of New York, an antiabortion leader, in five, and uncommitted slates in 18 districts.

The two GOP presidential candidates, President Ford and Ronald Reagan, will be represented by delegate slates in all 24 congressional districts.

The primary law, called the "Bentsen Bill" by many because backers of Bentsen pushed it through the legislature, says each delegate selection committee must have at least 10 members and must hold a "free and open" meeting.

However, anyone attending can be forced to pledge themselves to the committee's presidential candidate or uncommitted status.

Not later than March 1 the head of each district delegate selection committee must file the names of delegate nominees with the secretary of state. These will be forwarded to the state party chairman and in turn to the party chairman in each county for placement on the ballot, after a drawing for place. The national convention delegate nominees will be at the top of each ballot.

On the ballot, the delegate candidates will be listed as:

"John Doe delegate for JOHN SMITH" (with the presidential candidate's name in capital letters).

Or for an uncommitted nominee:

"Jane Doe, UNCOMMITTED DELEGATE."

Any vacancy among the delegate nominees can be filled by the respective delegate selection committee chairman until March 31.

March 31 also will be final day for a presidential candidate to refuse, by written notice, to be represented by any nominee.

Wholesalers are concerned

'Gas war' lowers prices

Big Spring gasoline wholesalers are experiencing a dip in gas prices along with jobbers across the country. All local dealers contacted reported a drop in prices of from one to two cents within the last six weeks.

Retail prices for gas at the pumps in Big Spring now range from 57.9 cents to 49.9 cents for a gallon of regular. The cheapest gas is usually found at self-service stations.

One wholesaler attributes the drop in prices to a "gas war" across the country. He reported seeing gasoline for sale as low as 44.9 cents for a gallon of regular in Odessa. "Most wholesalers are now distributing gas for about the same price. The discrepancy in prices occurs at the station itself," he said.

"The surplus of gas is available because people are just driving less. January and February are always bad months, but the way things are going, a lot of stations will change hands."

The same wholesaler reports that business for the industry as a whole has dropped about 25 per cent in the last year.

Gasoline wholesalers at some stations in the Midwest are in "a state of near panic" because retail prices have fallen below the 50-cent mark for regular brands, says a prominent oil industry analyst.

Herb Hugo, senior editor of Platt's Oilgram, revealed that retail gasoline prices at some stations have dipped to their lowest level in nearly four years.

Hugo added that the trend appears to be nationwide and that there is little immediate prospect that gas prices will rise much.

The oil analyst said the Oilgram, an industry publication, will report today that a price of 47.9 cents a gallon for regular plus 2 cents tax is common at independent stations in the Chicago area — a price "awfully close to cost."

While Hugo called the lower retail prices "a great piece of news for those of us who drive a car," he said the lower prices are a problem for the industry.

He said the average price for major brands has declined steadily since Labor Day, when it peaked at 65 cents a gallon.

At that time, said the editor, almost everybody associated with the oil industry expected the price to keep rising. Hugo said he predicted that it would go to 70 or 75 cents a gallon, while others predicted $1 to $1.25.

"Nobody thought it would go down," he said. Hugo said the current major brand price in the Chicago area is 58 to 59.9 cents a gallon, including tax. However, he said, that price is under great pressure to come down.

Lower prices being offered by some dealers are having a "snowballing effect. Nobody knows where it's going to end," he added.

EISENHOWER HURT IN FORD MOTORCADE — President Gerald Ford leans over to look at motorcycle police escort James Eisenhower after he lost control of his bike Saturday during Ford's campaign rally in Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. The President ordered his driver to stop after he noticed that Eisenhower fell off his vehicle.

Big Spring girl still critical

Betty Looney, 21, a Big Spring coed at Vanderbilt University, remains in critical condition in a Nashville, Tenn. hospital after she was hit while crossing a street last Friday.

The driver of the car who hit her left the scene and has not been located.

She was struck as she was crossing a street in front of the campus at 5:37 p.m.

A second vehicle driven by Doug Mize, 27, of Franklin, Tenn., narrowly missed running over her where she fell. He and Marine Corps Major Donald Gardner, ROTC instructor at the University, were among the first to give her aid.

She suffered a fractured skull, broken back, scalp lacerations and is paralyzed from the waist down. She underwent emergency surgery the first night.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jess Looney are at her bedside. Her father told a newspaper in Nashville that "She seems unable to grasp the situation. She is worried about falling behind in her grades."

Grady pacts extended

GRADY — At its regular February meeting recently, the Grady school board approved Exhibits I and III as amendments to the National School Lunch Program and extended the contracts of Supt. Bill Baker through June 15, 1978, principal Gary Harrell through June 15, 1978 and the collector-assessor Jimmy Stallings through March 1, 1977.

Hazel Hamm was named judge of the school board election, which will be held April 3. Tillie Pribyla was named the alternate judge while Doris Stephenson was appointed absentee clerk.

The trustees accepted a bid on a new car from Neal-Echols Ford Co., appointed H. D. Howard as delegate to the 1976 TASB-TASA Convention in San Angelo, with Eddie Odom as the alternate. The financial supplement for the extra-curricular activities was also approved.

CBer help asked by React team

Channel 9, a CB radio channel operated in emergencies throughout the United States, now monitors 24 hours daily by an Alert React team in Big Spring, is encountering severe listening problems as a result of bleedovers from other channels.

The problem results primarily from linear operations and power-assisted microphones adjusted to a much higher level than could conceivably be necessary for local transmission and reception.

Local CBers are being asked to acquaint themselves with the problem and lend cooperation by operating their equipment in such a manner that it will keep to an absolute minimum the interference on Channel 9.

Cotton markets

NEW YORK (AP) — Prices of active cotton futures in the domestic market moved higher this past week.

At the close of trading Friday, No. 2 contracts on the New York Cotton Exchange were up 5 to 36 points, following a loss of 173 to an advance of 12 points in the preceding week.

Volume of trading for the week was estimated at 1,678,700 bales for a daily average of 335,700 bales. In the week before, volume reached 1,544,000 bales, an increase of 59,300 bales from the preceding Friday.

WEATHER FORECAST — Forecast includes a band of showers and rain from Texas to the Great Lakes, where precipitation will change to snow. Snow is also predicted for North Dakota. The Pacific Northwest can expect rain, and showers are forecast for parts of Colorado and New Mexico, according to the National Weather Service.

Flu cases jump from 50 to 440

The city-county health unit counted 440 reported cases of flu Friday, up from 50 for the previous week.

"We're running right at 10-per-cent absentee," Harold Bentley, director of personnel for Big Spring public schools, said.

This percentage, which includes absentees for all reasons, is above the normal of 6.5 per cent, Bentley said. It seems teachers suffering from the flu have stayed home longer, the administrator observed.

Sister Janice Jolin, R. N. of the city-county health unit recommended staying away from crowds and people known to have the flu.

Flu shots are available, she said, but may not be totally effective because of the many strains of the virus.

Physicians suggest getting flu shots early in the fall, the public health nurse said.

"It can be really dangerous for the elderly and babies, too," Sister Janice Jolin said.

Mrs. Myrtle Lee, our resident artist who works decorate and beautify the town, recently received a nice letter from Tom Landry, coach of the Dallas Cowboys.

Landry was acknowledging a painting Mrs. Lee did featuring Cowboy Tom and Roger Staubach prior to the Cowboys' recent Super Bowl game with the Pittsburgh Steelers.

In the letter, Landry promised that the Cowboys, if they live up to their potential, will be back knocking on the Super Bowl door again after the 1976 season. Mrs. Lee and a host of the Cowboy friends here have no doubt but that Tom, never prone to overstate his case, will march down the glory road again.

O. E. McNeese, who marshals the George Wallace forces here, has had miseries in his back for some time. He thinks his problems date back to the time he was marching through Germany with American troops when a bomb exploded near him and he caught shrapnel in several parts of his body.

Directors of the Big Spring Rodeo and Cowboy Reunion have yet to sign a celebrity for the 1976 show, which will be in June. They might just settle for one each night. In the past, such show business personalities as Michael Landon, Jim Ed Brown, Ken (Festus) Curtis and Barbara Fairchild have appeared here.

Big Spring gets $37,201 check

AUSTIN — Big Spring received $37,201.31 when Comptroller Bob Bullock mailed monthly city sales tax rebate checks totaling $11.3 million to 741 cities and towns Friday, bringing to $22.7 million the amount rebated to cities so far this year.

Colorado City received $4,251.94; Lamesa got $19,551.73 and Stanton got $2,321.87 in this month's payments.

At the same time, Bullock issued a word of caution to the hundreds of organizations formed to celebrate the nation's bicentennial.

"Many of them don't realize that if they sell trinkets or souvenirs, they've got to have a sales tax permit and collect and remit the sales tax," he said.

The Comptroller said the confusion may exist because the legislature exempted from the sales tax certain purchases made by Bicentennial groups.

"No tax is due on items they buy and actually use themselves in commemorating the country's 200th birthday," Bullock said. "But the things they sell to other persons — belt buckles and hats and flags, for example — have got to be taxed."

He said sales tax permits are easily obtained at any of the Comptroller's 36 district offices around the state.

Also running unopposed is Democratic party chairman Mrs. Judy Kingston.

Big Mama's washer quits

MCKINNEY, Tex. (AP) — Big Mama White bought her Maytag washer back in 1932 but the daddurned motor burned out the other day. And her repairman says he can't find a new one. Shucks, says Big Mama, 87, a body can't count on anything nowadays. "Our serviceman said he might be able to find a used motor for the machine but he wasn't certain," Big Mama said. Her husband, "Daddy Bob", 92, rested a wrinkled paw on the old-fashioned washing machine and recalled how the "new fangled" gadget got a workout in the old days. "You can imagine how dirty his clothes would get after a full day of work. He'd come home sometimes after 10 o'clock at night from delivering milk. I'd have to go out and wash them and really work to get them clean. I thought when I got that machine I really had something...and I did," Big Mama said. The Whites purchased the machine from a local dealer but "I can't remember who that was". Mrs. White doesn't recall either what she paid for the washer but "the years have taken a toll. It's got a broken leg and I'm afraid to move it because the leg might come off."

The old washer squats in a ramshackle washhouse out behind the Whites' home in this small, slow-paced North Texas town. The motor on the washer burned out years ago and was easily replaced but this time Mrs. White says the old machine may be doomed. But upon learning of the elderly washing machine, a Maytag spokesman in Dallas said Saturday, "You've got to be kidding! Give me their name and address. We'll take care of it."

(AP WIREPHOTO) HAS SEEN BETTER DAYS — Mr. and Mrs. Bob White, McKinney, Tex., stand by their Maytag wringer-type washing machine they purchased in 1932.

Pet rock center offers wholesome activities

ALLEN, Tex. (AP) — Grady Wright says he has two firm rules at his day care center for pet rocks: no fighting and no running in the swimming pool area.

Wright, 27, manager of a Plano, Tex., pizza parlor, has hired an adult rock named Coach Clark to serve as a supervisor.

"We're coeducational and nondiscriminatory. Every pet rock has a right to quality day care," he said.

The center was opened a week ago with a two-inch deep wading pool, a four-inch deep swimming pool equipped with a diving board and a football field.

Allen said the pet rocks would receive "plenty of wholesome activities."

He came up with the idea after a hard day at the pizza parlor near Dallas.

"I figured there just had to be a better way to make money than working 12 to 14 hours a day," Wright said.

Before you break up laughing or feeling sorry for poor Grady Wright, consider the fact he's already made a profit of $250 from customers who want to see their rocks get the best in day care facilities.

Marriage reproduction in miniature of world

By WILFRID CALNAN
DIRECTOR
MC FAMILY SERVICE CENTER

A few years ago, when I was counseling in another city, a gynecologist called me. Could I help one of his patients who was having trouble in her marriage? She was having trouble with herself. She had a weight problem. Her "libido" was decreased. Indeed, she was anesthetized from the waist down. Although concerned about what he told me, I could not withhold a laugh as I said, "You are referring tough situations to us! I hope that you expect no greater success from us than you would of the medical profession!"

A day later Margaret appeared at the agency. She was tall, big-framed and too heavy. Her face was intense and puzzled. After a beginning diffidence, she began to relate well.

I asked her to bring me up to date on her problem. She began to tell me of her childhood, speaking of a domineering father with high expectations of her mother, her sisters and brothers and herself. To make matters more difficult, her mother allied with the father in her expectations of Margaret.

Although she loved her husband, marriage for Margaret had been difficult from the beginning. She was never comfortable in the bedroom. The fact that her first-born child was a boy further frightened her.

One could perceive the discomfort of the husband as Margaret told of his long absences on the week-end golfing. Yet, one could also detect his concern for her as she quoted him as criticizing her for trying to be perfect.

I assured Margaret that, given her childhood history, it was natural that she would have her difficulties in marriage. She seemed to draw confidence from the assurance that she was human.

The third time I saw her, she came in smiling, and told that she had a wonderful time with her husband on Saturday night. Feeling had returned below the waist.

One day she mentioned again that her husband had complained because she expected to be perfect and above criticism. I sat back in my chair, took a long look at her, and said firmly and instructively, "Margaret, Angels don't marry. Human beings do." She looked startled, as if it had never occurred to her that a human being is fallible.

A week later, Margaret bounced in and in ecstasy exclaimed, "He got mad at me this morning!" I smiled and said, "You are both human." There is a lesson in this story that must become the message of this column. Human beings can never be perfect. They make mistakes. They become angry. Sometimes, they are even ugly in their behavior. We all need to strive for improvement, but we will never reach perfection.

This is a simple truth that we must know and accept if we are to have a successful marriage and family. Marriage, although it has its precious high moments that may lift us off our feet, is not a fairyland, a state in which we live "happily ever after." It is real because the human beings who enter it are real. It is a vehicle for the expression of joy and happiness, it is true, but also for expression of erring humanity. The husband and wife must know that. The children must learn it.

Marriage is a reproduction in miniature of the world itself, with all the joys, the happiness, the pain, the sorrow, the grief, the anger — yes, even the hate — that characterizes the rest of the universe. What makes it different from the rest of the world is the intimacy of relationships between and among those involved, the sharing and the joining. This intimacy helps us come to grips with life that is themed by the fallibility of humankind.

Outlook for 1976 is good

A depression has best been described as a situation where you're not working, whereas a recession occurs when your neighbor is not working.

From all indications, some of your neighbors have gone to work recently because the latest recession, longest and most severe postwar recession ever, is just about over.

At least that is the judgment of the economists of the Prudential Insurance Co., writing in the company's recently released Annual Economic Forecast.

Furthermore, the economists foresee continued improvement in the business world this year, although expansion will probably be less vigorous than after previous post-war recessions.

The article says that real growth should average 5.5 per cent as a "modest and hesitant" improvement in consumer durables and housing are joined late in the year by an upsurge in capital spending.

The unemployment rate will continue to diminish, dipping to a level below 7.5 per cent before 1977 is ushered onto the scene. When the recession was at its worst, the figure hit 9 per cent. The jobless figure will still be high, uncomfortably so, but the decrease by 1.5 per cent means that millions more will be working than before.

The experts also expect more progress in the progress to harness inflation. The rise in prices likely will approach 6.5 per cent but will be nothing like it was in 1973-74, when inflation was at its worst. Materials were in short supply and American products were in demand the world over.

Over-all, say the fiscal experts, "economic performance in 1976 should make a positive contribution to the nation's Bicentennial celebration."

Sexy sounds from whistle

At times, the Lock Ness monster must feel as conspicuous as a fish out of water. Someone is forever expressing curiosity about him (or her).

Comes now an electronics firm in London which proposes to bring the monster into the open with sexy sounds from a sonar whistle.

Hearing the siren's wail, reasons a spokesman for the company, the creature jolly well might swim up the canal at the neck of the lake where he (or she) could be trapped.

How do you lure a monster like Nessie into a trap? Easy, says the company. Fish are attracted to the surface by Beethoven's Fifth Symphony.

Would Elton John's musical gyrations do it? Probably not, although John has been known to excite the women. But if either Beethoven or John would do it, why not Buck Owens and his Buckaroos or the dulcet tones of Perry Como?

Some people will tell you that fish can't hear, that vibrations attract or startle them. Nessie might be different, however, and may even have an ear for music. He (or she) may be cold to romance, on the other hand. Who can tell.

LIGHTNING RODS

Roof tops of the finer, more stately homes used to be adorned with lightning rods. The specific purpose of the rods was to protect the structure from the devastation of bolts of lightning. I am told that our own Benjamin Franklin (you might know) thought up the idea and it became fashionable during the early 1900's.

Metal rods about four to six feet tall were fixed to the high points of the roof. Several were used, depending upon how many gables or ridges the particular house had. Heavy wire cables led from the rods down to rods driven deep into the ground.

Some folks believed the rods would keep lightning away but actually the opposite was true. The rods actually attracted bolts of lightning. The theory was that the electrical charge would strike the rod instead of the structure, pass through the cable and discharge harmlessly into the ground. The systems were apparently useful because there were government booklets and guide lines available which told exactly how to install them.

An interesting thing about lightning rods, though is that most people didn't install them for lightning protection at all but rather to be in style. The rods added character, grace and beauty to the homes in those days. The rods came in many different ornamental styles. The designs included straight or twisted rods, rods with weather vanes and roosters attached, owner's initials, names or brands were sometimes used. Some rods had special insulating glass balls incorporated into their design which added color and looked pretty.

Not many lightning rods can be seen today even though the houses they once adorned are still around. I suppose that when shingles and other roofing materials had to be replaced the rods were removed and not reinstalled. It is a pity though, for something so beautiful and even more functional to be done away with just because they were a little trouble to put back in place.

REMEMBERING...

By BILL D. BROOKS

LIGHTNING ROD

Your greatest need right now is to turn over your life completely to the lordship of Jesus Christ. He will bless you if you commit your life to Him.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: My boyfriend and I are planning to get married. He is not a Christian and wants us to have sexual relations now. Is this wrong, since we are planning to get married anyway? — Miss N.M.R.

DEAR MISS R.: I'm afraid you are not going to like my answer to your question, but the Bible has some explicit things to say about your situation.

First of all, if you are truly a believer in Jesus Christ yourself, you have no business marrying someone who is not a believer. The Bible says, "Be ye not unequally yoked together with unbelievers: for what fellowship hath righteousness with unrighteousness? And what communion hath light with darkness?" (II Cor. 6:14). I am convinced you can trust God to give you a Christian mate who will be far better than anyone you can imagine right now. I could recount countless instances of people like yourself who thought everything would work out but who discovered that marrying someone who is not God's choice inevitably brings unhappiness.

Second, the Bible is quite clear that it would be wrong for you to have sexual relations before marriage. Even though such teaching is not popular today, the Christian is called to purity.

Working wife

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — Although Ms. Marion Javits has resigned from her job as public relations consultant for Iran Airlines, the question of whether or not a wife should be allowed to work at a job that may conflict with her husband's has not been resolved. It has become a Women's Lib issue, and some of my best friends who are Women's Libbers maintain if Jack Javits really cared about his wife he should have resigned from the Senate instead.

THIS IS NOT the easiest case to strike a blow for Women's Lib because the big question is not whether Ms. Javits should have quit because her husband was on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, but whether she was hired by Ruder & Finn at $67,500 a year for her talent or her connection with her husband.

The problem arises every day in the PR business, which is one of the oldest professions in the world.

FOR EXAMPLE, the other day a lady applied for a job with Softsoap & Armtwister, one of the leading public relations firms in Washington. Among Softsoap & Armtwister's accounts is the country of Bogeyland, a friendly dictatorship whose main income comes from exporting rings which are used in TV for "ring around the collar" commercials.

"I would like a job," the lady said to the personnel manager.

"What is your name?"

"Sheila McGillicuddy."

The manager wrote it down. "Any relation to Sen. Hedrick McGillicuddy of the Senate Armed Services Committee?"

"He's my husband."

The manager was flabbergasted. "Just a minute. Don't go away." He returned in 15 minutes. "Mr. Softsoap and Mr. Armtwister want to see you in their office."

"We understand you want to work for us?"

"Yes, but I'm not very experienced. The children have grown up, and I thought I should do something. I was hoping you might need a receptionist."

"A receptionist?" Softsoap chuckled. "We wouldn't think of making someone with a talent a receptionist."

"How would you like to be the chief executive in charge of the Bogeyland account?"

"I don't know anything about Bogeyland."

"THAT'S WHY we want you in charge of the account," Armtwister said. "You could bring a fresh mind to it. You wouldn't be prejudiced because it's a dictatorship with a corrupt government and a president who throws everyone in jail that doesn't agree with him."

"The job pays $75,000 plus a lavish expense account, and a free pass on Bogeyland Airlines," said Armtwister.

"Well, I guess it's better than being a typist."

"Sheila," said Softsoap. "I hope you don't mind us calling you Sheila, this has been our lucky day. We've been looking for someone for months to head up the account, and you seem to have all the qualifications."

"There isn't a doubt in our minds," said Armtwister. "By the way, before you take the job, we think you should talk it over with your husband."

"Oh, I can't do that."

"Why not?"

"We're getting a divorce. He's going to marry some young chippy in his office."

Softsoap got his composure back first. "You know, on second thought we do need a receptionist more than we do an account executive. Would $200 a week be all right to start with?"

End is in sight for W. T. Grant's Week's business

NEW YORK (AP) — After several years of multimillion-dollar losses and four months of court-protected voluntary bankruptcy, W.T. Grant agreed to end its 70 years of existence this past week.

In the final act of the troubled retailing chain's struggle to survive, a federal judge ordered Grant on Thursday to close or sell its remaining 359 stores within 60 days.

They were all that remained of the giant chain — once the nation's fifth largest retailer with 1,074 stores.

On Friday, a company spokesman said that 222 of the remaining 359 stores were closed permanently. The remaining 137, also closed as of Friday, will reopen March 4 through March 26 for a "going out of business sale" in which all of Grant's inventories will be on sale.

The total value of Grant's assets — the stores and the remaining inventory — is $512.1 million, according to the creditors' committee.

Grant's debts totaled $1.1 billion, however, and the chain's bank lenders already have taken expected loan losses into account in the past quarter.

With 50,000 workers already laid off, the chain had 24,000 still on hand when final liquidation was ordered last week.

As of Friday one of the still unsettled questions was employee pensions. A Grant spokesman said that in all likelihood, employees will have the option of keeping their pension cash in their pension plan and receiving monthly payments by check, withdrawing their cash immediately in a lump sum.

The spokesman said the employee pension plan is independent of the company and will continue to exist and operate after Grant is liquidated.

Grant's fortunes already were souring in the late 1960s when the company, in search of a definite image, opened numerous giant Grant City outlets in the suburbs and shopping malls, but ran into tough competition from both local and national discount chains.

In the first half of the latest fiscal year, the company's loss was put at $111.5 million. In all of 1974, Grant lost $177.3 million. The company has issued no profit-loss statement since entering voluntary bankruptcy Oct. 2.

According to company officials and industry analysts, what doomed Grant's efforts to survive under court protection in the past four months was the unwillingness of its merchandise suppliers to fill Grant's orders. Almost all wanted hard cash for their goods.

Adrenal insufficiency

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would you comment on the cause, treatment and prognosis of adrenal insufficiency? Is there any connection to Addison's disease?

I am 73 and I had my gall bladder removed two years ago. Since then I have come down from 118 pounds to 84 pounds. Now the diagnosis of adrenal insufficiency has been made. I am on corticosteroids. I am putting on weight, but my symptoms remain the same. Food makes me ill. — C.P.

Chronic adrenal insufficiency and Addison's disease are the same. Today, with the new drugs of the type you mention the outlook for the patient is quite good. The adrenals are located just above each of the kidneys. The insufficiency lies in the outer layer (cortex) of the glands. The cause is unknown in about 70 per cent of the cases. An infection (as tuberculosis) can lead to it, as can defective circulation to the glands or an invasion by tumors.

The glands are essential in production of substances that influence food metabolism and regulate water and mineral balances. The blood pressure becomes low, blood sugar drops, and sodium (salt) levels are reduced. The corticosteroid drugs help take over, and restore proper balances. Sodium supplements are usually prescribed also. The treatment is for life.

Anorexia (loss of appetite), fatigue, nausea and weight loss are common symptoms. Your gall bladder problems may have been involved also. Digestive upset is one of the early symptoms of this. While you have gained back some weight (a sign of the effectiveness of the drugs) you still report the same symptoms. A relatively small amount of the drugs can be effective. You should report your continuing symptoms. There may be need for an adjustment of dosage.

With carefully adherence to your therapy, you can live many years in reasonably good health. There are dietary matters also, which you should inquire about. Frequent feedings are usually recommended.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please comment on postmenopausal spotting and whether this is a usual occurrence for most women.

I am 55 years old and in excellent health. I ceased menstruating about a year ago and never experienced any menopause problems. However, about two weeks ago I began to feel the physical symptoms of the onset of a menstrual period, the same as I had felt them in the past (tiredness, a funny feeling in my stomach, tenderness in the breasts, etc.). Then I began to spot and I had a period that lasted five days. — Mrs. M.V.

Menopause results when the production of the female hormone diminishes to a point below normal. After this the adrenal glands take over the duty to some extent. It is possible, therefore, that you had, at least temporarily, sufficient postmenopausal estrogen to produce the same results as when your ovaries were producing at maximum.

The spotting alone would have represented a feeble response to this. The five-day period indicates a full response.

However, this explanation should not lull you into complacency. Spotting of any degree after a year of no periods can be an important symptom and it should be investigated. Have a Pap smear taken. Your physician may suggest a D and C.

This is discussed in more detail than space permits here in my booklet, "Make Menopause Easier." It's available by sending 35 cents to me in care of the Big Spring Herald, along with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

How's that again?

Around the rim

Walt Finley

I think it was one of my leaders, Joe Pickle, with the help of other Latin lovers who constructed this interpretation of a very well-known saying in the United States:

"Duo fragmenta absolute bubulae, condimentum peculiare, lactuca, caseus, salsurae, caepae, in sesami-semine pane!"

Ex-neighbor, Brenda Miller, says, "When you are beyond medical help, it could be that you are laid up with a cold."

Nearly everyone wants to communicate these days.

Remember when we used to just talk? Proof-positive Sitty Landers, Herald word chaser, has a definition:

Ajar: How the little boy left the door, so he could get at the jamb.

Sensational Sid Beale writes:

"ALTHOUGH I'M accustomed to wall-to-wall music in elevators, the dentist's office, and grocery stores, I now discover its presence even in the operating room."

"I felt like a character in a Charles Addams cartoon recently during surgery on my right hand under local anesthetic."

"I couldn't help but giggle, probably to the doctor's surprise, because just as he began to make the incision, the orchestra struck up 'Time on My Hands.'"

I suppose they've gone through carefully and eliminated any songs such as "I'll Be Glad When You're Dead, You Rascal, You!"

File labeled "Miscellaneous" says, "To make one pound of attar of roses you must have 3 million roses."

Frank Gonzales, alias "The Coahoma Kid," reveals:

FORMER OUTFIELDER Jackie Brandt persuaded a teammate to drive him 35 miles to an ice cream parlor that had 31 flavors.

When he got there, Brandt ordered vanilla.

Ex-Duncan Banner flash, Joe Awtry, says: "A good way to surprise your wife on your wedding anniversary is to remember it."

Capsuled Comments quotes Helen Keller: "The one resolution which was in my mind long before it took the form of a resolution is the keynote to my life."

"It is this: Always to regard as mere impertinence of fate the handicaps which were placed upon my life almost at the beginning."

Meanwhile, I know a blooming philosopher in Big Spring. He's an amateur photographer who has two slogans posted in his darkroom. One reads: "Art is Art and everything else is everything else."

"I am the artist
"I create illusions
"And the biggest delusion
"I create is that I am the Artist."

Quoting People Magazine quoting Jonathon Winters, who is one-sixteenth Cherokee: "If I had a nosebleed, I'd be out of the tribe."

The answer to the first item in this column is: Two all beef patties, special sauce, lettuce, cheese, pickles, onions, on a sesame-seed bun!

Are you human?

William F. Buckley, Jr.

Occasionally a newspaper carrying my words will mistakenly ascribe them to Mr. Art Buchwald, even furnishing a picture of him (most recently this brought from Buchwald a note, "Bill: how do you manage to stay so young?"). I wish to record that what follows is not a column by Art Buchwald. It is a column by me, WFB, and it features a communication by the Attorney General of the State of Wisconsin. So far as I know, it is not a hoax. The communication is entitled, "Employment Application Form Questions Which May Lead to Discrimination."

THE COMMUNICATION is designed for employers in Wisconsin who desire not to break the law, especially Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, which some of us will remember as the law Senator Barry Goldwater voted against on the grounds that it was unconstitutional. Perhaps it isn't unconstitutional, but it is certainly a lot of other things.

The Attorney General's office wishes every Wisconsinite to know that "when he inquires into any of (the enumerated) factors" — i.e., in interviewing or soliciting information from a prospective employee — "he is running a risk of encouraging unlawful discrimination." This is so even when you don't act on the information — the mere asking of the questions might tend "to discourage women or minorities from even applying for jobs."

Here's a list of what you can't ask.

1. "Age? Date of birth?" You might find yourself violating the laws that prohibit age discrimination.

2. "Arrest?" Absolutely not. An arrest is no indication "whatsoever" of guilt, and "historically minorities have suffered proportionately more arrests than others."

3. "Available for Saturday and Sunday work?" No. You see, some people "belong to religious sects that prohibit work on Saturday or Sunday." For some reason, the Attorney General appears to show no concern for people who belong to religious sects that prohibit work on Wednesdays; or, for that matter, to sects that discourage any work at all.

4. "Children under 18? Number of children? Age of children? What arrangements will you make for care of minor children?" No sirree. "The purpose of these questions is to explore what the employer believes to be a common source of absenteeism and tardiness. But why explore this area in such an indirect way, and in a way which applies only to women for all practical purposes?" The Civil Rights Act of 1964 forgot to make men mothers.

6. "Convictions?" "Probably unlawful. See Carter v. Gallagher, 451 F 2d 315 (8th Cir. 1971). This is because some minority groups in our society have conviction records substantially in excess of the average..."

7. "Credit Record?" (Charge account? Own your own home? Own your own furniture? Own a car?) No. "Because minority persons are far poorer on the average than whites, consideration of these factors has an adverse effect..."

8. "Eyes? Hair?" "Eye color and hair color are not related to the performance of any job and may serve to indicate an employee's race or religion." What if you want a natural blonde to advertise a lipstick that goes with natural blonde hair?

10. "Friends or relatives working for us?" No. You may have a disproportionate number of non-female, non-minority friends.

11. "Garnishment record?" "Minorities suffer sage garnishment substantially more often than do whites."

12. "Height? Weight?" No. Such questions might have "the effect of excluding above-average percentages of women and members of certain nationality groups," Milesians and Hottenots, one supposes.

Numbers 14-18 are anti-sexist, proscribing, "maiden name?" "marital status?" "Mr., Miss, or Mrs.?" "... simply another way of asking the applicant's sex..."

The list closes with 21, "widowed, divorced or separated?" "Recent statistics show that many more black than white persons are either widowed, divorced or separated..."

WHAT I WOULD LIKE to do, if I lived in Wisconsin, is file a citizen's suit against the Attorney General for sponsoring a document that is itself sexist and racist in its implications. I would have him tried and convicted, and sentenced to eat his communication, all six pages of it, in public. One wonders what questions one would be permitted to ask a prospective juror at the Attorney General's trial. If you asked, "Are you bright?" and the answer was affirmative, then clearly the AG would not be tried by a jury of his peers.

A devotion for today

"I will bless the Lord at all times: his praise shall continually be in my mouth."
(Psalm 34:1)

PRAYER: Dear Lord, folk around us are hungry for love. Help us to share Your love and concern freely each day. May we be the kind of Christians that lift the world from despair. May we be full of praise. Amen.

WHILE MOST SLEEP — The beauty of East Big Spring is depicted in this night photograph by the Big Spring Herald's photographer Danny Valdes. Close to one-tenth of the total population work at least part of the night in this complicated society which puts more and more people to work after dark.

A tenth of population works at night

Night is 'day' for many Big Springers

By MARJ CARPENTER

A police dispatcher said, "The night gets long on a police dispatch desk, unless there is some excitement," in a casual interview at about 6 a.m. one day this week.

She yawned, "But it's nearly time to go home. When there's something big going on, the time passes swiftly." She paused to answer the phone. "What is that address? Who is this please?" She hung up and notified a patrolman of a barking dog that was keeping somebody awake.

But there are many people already awake. About one person in ten in Big Spring works a part or all of the night.

To some, this seems unbelievable. But the number of night people in Big Spring and all over the country, as our society becomes more and more complicated, steadily increases.

Most of the people who work at night do not want it made public. Husbands who must work on night shifts worry about wives and children at home.

Young women who work night shifts worry about leaving their apartments, unattended.

NO NAMES

For these reasons, names are not to be included in this article, although all quotes are from real Big Spring 'night people' who wait until dark to go to work.

Because the criminal element of the community also moves at night, everybody is a little bit cautious. Ironically, the criminals are busier on nights when the weather is good. There are more burglaries, more thefts, more prowlers, more domestic battles, more vandalism, and more criminal mischief then.

A cab driver said, "People want to go home a lot of times when they call night cabs. But not always. Sometimes, they want to get out of the house and go honky-tonking or something. We get lots of strange calls at night."

"We do more business in the daytime, but we do lots of cab business at night. For instance, I have one nurse who is a regular customer. I have taken her to work and back home at night for years," the cabbie added.

Nurses are the largest number of local females that work at night. All local hospitals have night crews for nurses and some of the larger hospitals have large shifts during the night hours.

"There's never quite as many nurses at night as there are on the day shift," one hospital administrator explained. "We do surgeries during the day, not at night unless there is an emergency. But the emergency room is open 24 hours and all floors have nurses on duty," he added.

"Of course, we always hope that the patients will rest well during the night. But pain is not always a respecter of the hour," one nurse said.

GOES FASTER

Then, in a similar thought to the dispatcher's, she added, "The nights when there is a lot of activity go faster than the smooth-running nights."

Men have various jobs in the community during the night hours. The Cosden Oil and Chemical refinery keeps about 200 men working on the night shift because its work must continue 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Workers alternate on these jobs in weekly shifts. Midway in the eight-hour shift, they have a lunch, early breakfast or a late, late supper break.

Men plan their family activities around their shifts and learn to live with them, adjusting to the rotation.

The oil fields also have early "morning tower," as they call it.

Colorado River Municipal Water District has men at each of its pump stations.

Other facilities which must be constantly manned keep one or two persons on duty. Some large facilities have night watchmen.

"I don't mind being a waitress at night, because there are more young people out at night," one young woman said around 2 a.m. one morning at a local all-nighter.

"There are more young up at night than old, and I'm young," she laughed.

EARLY START

She said the tone changes during the night hours at the all night cafe. "First we get the people that come in after programs and sporting events. They want a late supper."

"Later we get the people in after a night of partying or dancing. They want an early breakfast. Last of all we get the people who get up early for various reasons. They want an early start for their day. Everybody wants coffee."

There are many people who get up early and work part of the night. Among these are the people who deliver morning newspapers, the people who deliver morning groceries, the people who deliver milk, and the people who open up businesses.

This group are just partly night people. At the police station, the early arrival runs up the flag at dawn. Flags on other public buildings get put up a little later in the day.

There are also the people who work the first part of the night. "When dark comes, things liven up," one gum-chewing employe of a local 'hot spot' stated.

SAD FEELING

Added to the list of the early night people are custodians who work inside the high school or other public buildings and spend the first part of the night mopping floors and emptying trash.

the night spotters, the custodians, the deliverymen and others the machine says about a tenth of the population works at least part of the night.

The night is as long as the day. To a mother with a sick child, it has always seemed longer.

To a nurse caring for very sick patients, to a policeman patrolling the streets, to a waitress serving coffee or a dispatcher answering the telephone, the night can get long.

Wait until dark becomes wait until dawn for those people. The city has a certain beauty and lonesome appeal at night that disappears as the sun comes up.

The street sweeper hums down the street near the curb. A merchant sweeps off his sidewalk. The flags go up. The heavy traffic begins to hum and people hurry to their daily tasks. It's morning.

One tenth of the population is headed home for bed, while the rest gets up. They got us safely through another night.

BIG NIGHT EMPLOYER — Cosden Oil and Chemical Co. refinery plant employs at least 200 persons on its night shifts, adding to the number of night people in Big Spring.

Now, even if you live in the desert you can

Surround your home with the cool shade and fragrance of a real pine forest!

Sound unbelievable? Just wait 'til you see how fast this amazing tree grows. In 7 years, with nothing but an occasional watering, it will tower 10 feet higher than the average house!

That's the kind of lush, green results you can expect from the incredible Mondell® Pine, a real 'Christmas Tree' that actually prefers living in the desert!

Just imagine what several tall, stately pines would do for your home and garden. Year round you'll enjoy the shade, color... and the envious glances of your neighbors!

Now, homeowners and landscape architects can grow this extraordinary tree.

For 2,500 years, the Mondell Pine was known throughout the desert regions of the Middle East as the "Tree of Royalty." Only the gardeners of sheiks and princes were allowed to plant out the seeds—magically creating dense forests and green arbors in parts of the world few other trees could even survive.

Since the renowned forester Mondell Bennet imported the seeds in 1970, word of the pines' hardiness and almost unbelievable rate-of-growth has spread far and wide.

Forestry experts of the Federal Government, professors at the University of California and the Mexican Government's reforestation people have all asked for Mondell Pines for their experimentation and study programs.

As advertised in "Sunset"

Vital statistics of the world's fastest growing conifer.

Mature growth size: 35-40 feet.
Climate: Semi-arid, Southwest (Below 5,500 ft.)
Growth rate: An 18" seedling will grow to 3 ft. in the first year, and an average of 4 ft. a year for the next three years. The Mondell Pine (Pinus edularis) grows at least 30 feet in 7 years. An Aleppo pine takes 10 years to grow 8 ft. and the Southwest's familiar Japanese Black pine barely 4 ft.
The Mondell Pine grows better and faster in a desert than any other tree in the world. Yet it's so lush and green it looks like it belongs in an Oregon rain forest!
Soil: The Mondell Pine naturally adapts to the soils of the Southwest.

Look at the difference—after only 7 years!

Right now is the ideal time to plant the Mondell Pine.

Whether you order three trees or a hundred, now is the perfect time to get your order in. By next fall the 18" high trees will have grown to an amazing 4 feet!

What about cost?

At your local nursery you'd expect to pay at least $10 for ordinary, slow maturing trees half the size of these Mondell Pines. But, you buy direct from America's exclusive grower of these incredible trees so you pay only $4.95 each! And less than that if you order in quantity (see coupon). And remember, every tree we ship is covered by our full, money-back guarantee—so you can order as many as you need right away with complete confidence.

Satisfaction Guaranteed!

You must be completely satisfied with your Mondell Pine trees or return at any time within 90 days for a full refund of the purchase price.

'I prayed God would stop this punishment'

Guatemalan nightmare continues

CHIMALTENANGO, Guatemala (AP) — The whole world shook; his ears filled with the din of houses falling and people screaming. Juan Rumpich Chay, 37, held tight to his wife Juana in their tiny adobe bedroom beside the corn crib in their home in this village 20 miles northwest of Guatemala City.

COOKING OUT — This young resident of Guatemala City cooks some beans over an open fire amid the rubble left by an earthquake that struck the city Wednesday morning leaving thousands dead. Food and fresh water are in short supply.

The children huddled on the mats. "I prayed in the dark, eyes wide open, that God would stop this awful punishment," Juan recalled later.

It was 3 a.m. Wednesday, Feb. 4. At that moment the earth shifted along the Caribbean fault, dealing death and destruction to much of Guatemala and shaking a region from Mexico through Guatemala and into Honduras and El Salvador.

In an instant, thousands upon thousands of Guatemalans died. No one knows yet exactly how many, but the official estimate of the dead approached 19,000 last week. An estimated 62,000 persons were reported injured and more than 200,000 homes collapsed or were damaged beyond repair, leaving an estimate one million homeless.

"I ran to the door and it was blocked," Juan said. "The earth shook violently for a full minute before I could open the door, using all the strength of my body. My father was crying for help down the corridor, past the kitchen. I ran to his room, crawling and climbing over the debris that had been my home."

Juan found his father. One of his feet was buried under mud bricks when his bed had been; the other was on the floor of the now roofless room.

Juan tried to find help. But so many other neighbors were shouting, dogs barking, cows bellowing that he could not make himself heard. He worked furiously in the dark, pulling asphalt roof tiles and mud bricks off his father.

"It took nearly half an hour to free him. His leg was broken," Juan said.

Then Juan rushed to the rubble of his mother's room next to his father's.

It took the help of a neighbor and a half-hour to find her broken body at the bottom of a three-foot pile of debris. Her body was bent double by the terrible weight, her head bowed between her knees, as in prayer.

In the early morning darkness they freed the body, carried it to the courtyard and placed it on the damp ground.

So ended the first hour of punishment.

Juan's town lost more than 3,000 lives at last count. About 10,000 died in the department (state) of Chimaltenango, population 195,000, a region west and northwest of Guatemala City. This was where the quake's full fury hit.

Whole villages were leveled, their rooftops resting on flattened buildings. Houses crumbled all across the countryside, at Indian villages with ancient names such as Tecpan, Patzicia, Putzal, Zupangon Joyabaj, San Martin Jilotepeque and dozens of others.

Guatemala City was not as badly hit, although the damage and casualties were high in the working class neighborhoods, where houses fell, water lines were broken and electricity was cut off for several days. Most of the central business district was open for business a while later.

When the first aircraft flew over the rugged mountains and canyons of the western region, following the quake, it was clear that much of Guatemala had been destroyed on that first day, Feb. 4.

Juan gathered his family in the courtyard. He and the others, his four children, a sister and her child, held each other in a tight group, in the dark, dusty hours until dawn.

"We stayed there because the earth still shook strongly. My throat was bitter," he said. "We expected another earthquake. We tried to talk to God because we knew he was punishing us, not just us but everyone. Because everything comes from God, the good and the bad."

At dawn Juan hitched a chair to his back and loaded his father into it. Straining against a rope hooked to the chair and wrapped around his head, he walked to the hospital. Others were arriving with similar burdens.

His brother Jose went to the police station to see what to do with the body lying in the courtyard.

Later that afternoon they built a crude coffin from the splintered wood of their house and buried Juan's 55-year-old mother in the town cemetery, alone, without a priest.

"That night at about 8 o'clock they buried hundreds of others in a common grave," he said.

The family went to bed with empty stomachs that night, trying to sleep on the ground beside the livestock. "We hadn't eaten because we were not hungry. I lay next to my wife and some of the children and asked God not to touch our land again. I couldn't sleep," Juan said.

The next day, Thursday, Feb. 5, Juan built a sleeping shelter in the courtyard out of sheet metal, matting, burlap sacks, pieces of boards and topped it with a conestak roof.

"I will never again build another house of adobe brick," he said.

By Friday Feb. 6th, the rest of the world began to realize that damage outside Guatemala City was more extensive than at first believed.

Juan went out in the morning to look for wood and saw his shattered village.

"Everyone had similar problems and we had to make do by ourselves," he said.

The strongest aftershock — there had been hundreds of them since that Wednesday — hit Friday afternoon. Juan and his family again clung to each other in the yard, wondering when it would all end.

The women washed clothes at the community washroom Saturday, Feb. 7th. On Sunday, Feb. 8, Juan took the livestock to the nearby hills to graze.

They didn't even try to go to Mass Sunday. The main church in the central plaza, built in the 1500s when the Spanish priests first came to Guatemala, was destroyed.

Later the faithful removed a glass crib containing an effigy of Christ wrapped in a velvet robe and wearing a crown of thorns. They would place it and some pews beside the plaza.

Juan's wife went to the plaza Monday, Feb. 9, and firemen gave her some food.

PRAYER SESSION — Guatemalan Indians from the Village of San Pedro de Zacatepeque, near Guatemala City, pray for their salvation as strong tremors rocked the already ravaged area.

One tamale and three small rolls for the entire family. Juan estimates he has enough food to last the rest of the month, mostly dried corn, black beans and some mashed avocados. No fruit or vegetables.

"We don't have any money," he said. "I had been working in Guatemala City at a soap factory but lost that job two months ago."

He continued to clear the debris, hurrying to build a new home of splintered wood beams and conestaks before the spring rains begin, usually about May 15.

He hopes to earn money by hiring out as a carpenter to help reconstruct the town.

"My friends are helping me now and I'll help them when we get the yard clean. Then, when the house is done, I'll try to look for work. Maybe I can get a job at a clothing factory in Guatemala City."

By Tuesday, Feb. 10, a relief operation coordinated by the National Emergency Committee was in full swing. Many governments sent aid, including the United States.

Huge American helicopters delivered food, water and medical supplies throughout the stricken area. Water purification experts surveyed the country.

The U.S. Army had set up a completely equipped hospital near Chimaltenango. Juan doesn't know where they took his father.

Many people waited in line at the public cemetery. Some relatives helped dig the graves or placed their dead in small crypts honeycombed in 300-yard-long walls.

Many of the churches throughout the city are severely damaged. While helicopters flutter overhead and long lines of more desperately affected Guatemalans gather at key distribution centers in the countryside, Juan and his family stoically accept the wrath of God and bend their backs to the task ahead.

Gas production near Garden City

J. C. Williamson & D. W. Underwood, Midland, No. 1 Gladys Clark, Glasscock County Fusselman gas discovery, was finalized.

Absolute open flow was calculated at 3,390,000 cubic feet of gas daily, with gas liquid ratio of 4,053-1. Gravity of the condensate was 51-6 degrees.

The well is 1 1/2 miles southwest of Fusselman production in the Garden City (Fusselman and Strawn oil) field. It is six miles east of Garden City.

Location is 660 feet from the south and east lines of 12-33-4s-T&P.

Production was through perforations at 9,678-698 feet, which had been acidized with 1,000 gallons.

Also in Glasscock, ABU Exploration Co., Odessa, No. 1 Echols, was finalized to pump 18 barrels of 29 gravity oil, plus eight barrels of water daily. The well is the eighth producer, and a 1/4 mile west extension to the Zant (San Andres) field, 10 miles south of Stanton.

Production was through perforations at 3,774-783 feet which had been acidized with 500 gallons.

Location is 330 feet from the north and 990 feet from the east lines of 34-36-2s-T&P.

Barron Kidd, Dallas, No. 2 Mary Womack, second producer and a 1/4 mile southeast extension to the northwest extension area of the Westbrook East (Clearfork oil) field was finalized. It pumps 94 barrels of 23 gravity oil, plus 137 barrels of water, with gas-oil ratio of 141-1. The well is one mile east of Cuthbert.

Production was through perforations at 3,127-165 feet which had been acidized with 3,000 gallons and fractured with 40,000 gallons and 60,000 pounds of sand.

Location is 330 feet from the north and west lines of the northeast quarter of 60-97-H&T.C.

The initial portion of the field, 1 1/2 miles to the southeast, has eight wells and a 4 1/4 mile south extension to that portion recently was completed.

Cities Service Oil Co. No. 13A-B Ferguson, in 29-7-H&T swabbed four barrels of oil, along with 47 barrels of load water, in 2 1/4 hours from the Dean-Wolfcamp. The well is a recently completed Sterling County Canyon oil discovery. It is 3 1/4 miles northwest and three miles south of production in the Sterling County portion of the Probandt (Canyon oil) field. It is 18 miles south of Sterling City.

Recovery was through perforations at 6,154-159 feet which had been washed with 500 gallons of mud acid. Operator was continuing to swab to test.

Drilled as a wildcat to 8,800 feet, it was finalized Feb. 11 for 8.5 barrels of 37.9 gravity oil, with gas-oil ratio 9,412-1, through a 24-16 inch choke and perforations at 7,171-251 feet.

Amoco Production Co. will re-enter and plug back from 10,010 feet to wildcat depth of 6,900 feet, apparently for tests of the Clearfork, at its No. 1 Edith Hyatt, confirmation to the Glass, North (Wolfcamp) field of Martin County, 10 miles southwest of Patricia.

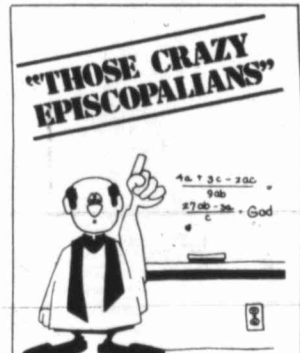

It was finalized July 18, 1975, to pump six barrels of 37.6 gravity oil plus 69 barrels of water through perforations at 8m126-9,713 feet. Location is 6,100 feet from the south and 6,200 feet from the west lines of Ward CSL No. 254.

RK Petroleum Corp., Midland, will drill two projects in the RK (Devonian) field of Martin County, 3 1/4 miles north of Tarzan.

Both are scheduled to 12,000 feet.

The No. 2 Baldwin Heirs, a 3/4 mile south and slightly west outpost on the west side, is 1,980 feet from the south and 1,320 feet from the east lines of 129-A-R. M. Montgomery.

The No. 1 Ann, one location southeast and southwest, is 660 feet from the north and west lines of 3-37-2n-T&P.

do they really "go to school" before joining the church?

As much as anything else, the Confirmation (or Inquirers) Classes are for the "joiners" own protection... so that he knows exactly what he's getting into. This simple, interesting set of instructions from the minister assures complete understanding of the church's tenets. Attendance at these classes carries no obligation to become a member.

Episcopalians don't discount the sudden revelation of God's presence. They do, however, believe that a more deliberate initiation into church membership may be less likely to wear thin in subsequent years.

They have some pretty good reasons for believing the Christian faith involves both the heart and the head. They don't mind being joshed about their "thinking-man's religion." Christ, they say, demanded simple faith—but not blind faith.

Periodically, your nearest Episcopal church offers a series of inquirers' classes. Here's an excellent opportunity to learn, without obligation, if the Episcopal Church offers something you've found missing in your previous religious experience. The minister—if you call him—would be delighted to discuss it with you.

Confirmation and Inquirers' Classes begin Sunday February 15, at 6:30 p.m. in the Parish Hall. You are invited

Sales over $1 million Store manager honored by company

By JOHN EDWARDS
"We have a definite business philosophy, which is best summed up in 'the right merchandise at the right price and a pleasant place to trade,'" the president of C. R. Anthony Co. said.
"The Big Spring store has done that to perfection, no question about it," Guy M. Anthony said.
Anthony and other executives flew from Oklahoma City to Big Spring Friday afternoon to recognize the store here for making more than $1 million in sales in 1975.

ONE OF 14

The Big Spring outlet, managed by Cuin Grigsby, is one of 14 out of 310 stores in the chain to pass the mark.
"We really came out here to find out how they're doing it," Anthony said.
Tom Aldridge, a retired executive with the firm, offered one explanation.
"He (Grigsby) has a knack of picking, selecting and inspiring the most loyal, dedicated employees in the C. R. Anthony chain," Aldridge said.

RESPECTED

"When Cuin Grigsby recommends somebody to us for higher promotion, we don't question it," Aldridge said.
Grigsby has trained 29 managers, Kenneth Sweet, personnel manager, said.
"As one of the original stockholders and founders of C. R. Anthony Co., I just wish we had 310 old codgers like you," Aldridge said.
Grigsby started work for the firm in Cleveland, Okla., in 1929. In 1935, Grigsby was promoted to manager of the C. R. Anthony Store in Cleveland, Okla.

Again in March 1941, Grigsby was promoted, this time to open a store in Big Spring. His career as manager here was interrupted only once by a two-year stint in the Army during World War II.

Aldridge remembered celebrating Grigsby's return by buying a dozen tamales at a small cafe here.
"Mr. C. R. and I came down and the store was just a mess," Aldridge said, referring to the time when Grigsby returned.

They worked hours cleaning out the basement and held a sale, Aldridge said.
"From then on, Cuin Grigsby was one of the leading managers in merchandizing in the C. R. Anthony stores," Aldridge said.
The retired executive remembered Grigsby buying $5,000 in jewelry in Dallas.
"I was sure I'd get fired over that jewelry," Aldridge said, "but he sold it all."
Grigsby pushed the chain to open stores in Lubbock, Midland and Odessa. Now, the president said a second store is to be opened in Odessa soon.

Guy Anthony outlined the firm's history for employees gathered for steak dinners Friday night.

FAMILY COMPANY
Charles Ross Anthony, Guy's father, was a Tennessee farm boy orphaned at the age of 13.
"It was soon apparent to him that he had to make his own way in the world," the president remarked before the dinner.

YMCA drive tops goal Rain badly needed

The YMCA participating membership drive went over the top here Saturday with $23,113 turned in, according to Frank Hardesty, drive chairman.

This topped the goal of $22,500. Hardesty expressed appreciation to everyone who responded and to all of the workers who have helped with the drive.

The sustaining membership drive is also close to its goal. Mrs. Edna Womack, chairman, has $10,125 of the set goal of $11,000 with some worker's quotas still out.

In the participating drive, Al Valdes captained the team with the highest collection, with an individual total of $3,605. He was in the division called the 8th Pennsylvania Regiment headed by Ben Bancroft.

This division topped all of the others with $6,397 over a division goal of $5,625.

Some of the quota busters this week in the participating were Mrs. Gayle Little, Mrs. Susan Chambers, Mrs. Paula Talbot, George Fierro and Ronnie Smith.

COLLEGE STATION, TEX. (AP) — Cotton and sorghum planting will start soon in South Texas and along the Coastal Bend but farmers statewide are still looking for moisture, Dr. John Hutchison, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, says.

Stockmen are particularly concerned as cattle conditions continue to decline, supplies of hay and feed are being depleted, and water is getting short, Hutchison said.

Without moisture soon, there will be little growth on pastures and ranges once spring weather returns, he said.

The state's small grain crop is in poor shape in most counties except where fields are being irrigated, Hutchison said. Many fields are either dying or dormant from the prolonged dry weather.

Gardening activities are increasing in central, eastern and southern areas, he said. Commercial vegetable plantings are under way across East and South Texas and coastal areas.

District agricultural agents gave these reports: Panhandle: Wheat remains in poor shape. Livestock are in fair condition but are losing weight. Supplemental feeding of cattle is heavy.

South Plains: Irrigated wheat is making some growth. Dryland wheat farms are at a standstill. Farmers are applying herbicides for spring crops. Some preplant irrigation is under way.

Rolling Plains: Wheat continues to suffer from the drought and greenbugs. Spraying for greenbugs is active in some counties. Stockmen are feeding their herds because of short grazing conditions. Hay supplies are decreasing.

Far West: Land is being prepared for cabbage and chili crops in El Paso County. Lambing and calving are in full swing. Supplemental feeding of livestock is under way.

West Central: Small grain crops are being plagued by dry weather and insects. Land is being prepared for spring crops. Some livestock are losing weight. Feeding of herds remains active. Lambs are being marked and docked. Grass fires are a severe threat.

Southwest: The outlook for small grain production is poor. Winter vegetables are still being harvested. Strawberries are making good growth. Livestock are in fair condition.

SALES LEADER RECOGNIZED — Guy M. Anthony, president of C. R. Anthony Co., recognizes Sara Rubio for selling $154,000 in merchandise during 1975. She sold more than all but five other salespersons in the chain of 310 stores in 21 states. Mrs. Rubio sold $120,000 in goods during 1974.

Handle aerosol products properly

By SHERRY MULLIN
COUNTY EXTENSION AGENT

Convenience-seekers are usually button-pushers, and what's handier than the button on an aerosol can? It's the ultimate in fingertip convenience for about 300 varied contents under pressure. Aerosol cans don't spill or drip, and their contents don't dry up. Small wonder that most families use nearly 50 cans a year.

However, certain everyday responsibilities go along with these sophisticated helpers:

Use as directed for your own safety. Before you use any aerosol can, read the directions.

Often, manufacturers print them in red to flag your attention.

Hold can at suggested distance and suggested angle. These have been carefully tested by the manufacturer for best results.

Make sure you ascertain direction of spray before you push the button; a face-full of certain sprays, such as insect killers, could be damaging. If directions on the can say to use only in a ventilated room, open a window. Because some contents are flammable, don't smoke while using any spray.

Don't place the can on a very hot surface or store near heat such as in the sun, near registers, radiators, or furnaces. These cans can explode.

Always keep cans that contain food products separate from cleaning product containers, and make a practice of identifying a spray can before using it. Don't go by the color of the can. Read the label.

Do not let children play with or use aerosol cans. At least 150 children and young people have died in the last three years as a result of inhaling contents of spray cans. Sometimes the inhaling is accidental, sometimes intentional. What may start out as "sniffing" can end in sudden death. It can be caused by freezing of the larynx, heart arrest, asphyxiation, or anoxia, the acute lack of oxygen. Death comes without warning and it may happen the first time a spray can's contents are inhaled.

For a free pamphlet of information, write the Aerosol Education Bureau, 300 East 44th Street, New York, NY 10017.

Dispose of the can according to instructions. Do not puncture, do not toss in fire — propellants are explosive. Do not put into trash compactor. Your safest disposal method is putting the can, emptied of all contents and gas, into the non-burnable trash for garbage pickup. If you live in an apartment, check with the manager about putting aerosol cans in with trash.

Consider the alternatives. Many liquids which come in aerosol cans are also available in manual spray form, or liquid, or cream. It's a good idea to read the net contents figures and see exactly how much convenience costs.

Aerosol spray cans are so perfected that their performance is generally good. They're factory-tested for leakage and heat-resistance.

Use as directed for your own safety. Before you use any aerosol can, read the directions.

Often, manufacturers print them in red to flag your attention.

Women learn about North Sea drilling

Desk & Derrick Club members met Monday evening in the Coden personnel conference room.

Members viewed a film showing some of the enormous challenges encountered in drilling for oil in the turbulent North Sea.

Viewing the action film "Bold Engineering," the women saw steps taken in developing the Ekofisk Field, in the Norwegian sector of the North Sea. Petrofina, S.A., of which American Petrofina is a part, holds a 30 per cent interest in this project. The film also showed the uniquely built structure which is capable of storing a million barrels of crude oil from Ekofisk and related fields.

At the end of 1975, crude oil was being delivered from Ekofisk through a 220-mile pipeline to terminal facilities at Teesside, England, at the rate of 300,000 barrels a day. A 274-mile gas line from the field moves gas to Emden, West Germany.

Mrs. John Rains, president of the local Desk and Derrick Club, announced that the 25th anniversary of ADDC will be celebrated at the Region V meeting scheduled for April 23-25 in Abilene.

Mrs. W. H. Kay won the attendance prize.

Teenager lists desires for questioning adults

DEAR ABBY: I am a teenager, and because so many adults keep asking us "ungrateful" teenagers what we want, I have finally found an answer that I think says everything:

I am a teenager and this is what I want:
 I want time to be alone—alone with my thoughts.
 I want to be accepted for what I am.
 I want to be loved by those who brought me into this world.
 I want a home that is rich in honesty, sharing and caring.
 I want to be heard; I just might have something to say that you need to hear.
 I want to know more about myself—my sexuality, my desires, my goals.
 I want to know God and worship Him in my own way.
 I want to live my life one day at a time; for only then will I know its fullness.
 And as I would live my life for me, so would I have you live your life for you.

A TEENAGER

DEAR TEENAGER: Good. Did you write it? If not, I would like to offer my congratulations to the author.

DEAR ABBY: First there appeared in your column a letter from a woman who complained because her husband bought a myna bird and taught it to say dirty words and phrases. Then, John D. Maybe wrote in suggesting that the wife threaten her husband with arrest for contributing to the delinquency of a myna.

Now, I have a message for John: Dear John, why don't you myna your own business?"

JAKE SMITH, SAN DIEGO

DEAR JAKE: You're funnier than John (maybe).

DEAR ABBY: I met a young lady about six months ago. Our romance progressed to the point of marriage. After some uneasy times between us, things got so bad that one night I lost my temper, and in a fit of anger, I hit her.

She had been married before, and she told me that her ex-husband used to beat her up. She promised herself that she would never let another man lay a hand on her.

Now that I have hit her once she thinks it will happen again and has therefore refused to see me again.

Abby, I love this girl with all her heart and am willing to do anything to make up with her, but she won't budge. How can I get her to give me another chance? I have promised it would never happen again, but she doesn't believe me.

LOST IN HOUSTON

DEAR LOST: Sorry, I'm with her. Who knows when you'll lose your temper and in a fit of anger hit her again? Better start over with a new girl and a fresh slate.

DEAR READER: Today is St. Valentine's Day, so be a sweetheart and call someone who's alone and say, "I'm thinking of you." Take some flowers to someone in a nursing home. Put all your discarded clothes in a box for Goodwill. Laugh at an old joke. Donate some blood. Do your exercises. Pay your dentist bill. Listen to your teenager. Tell your parents you think they're great. Tape a love note on his (or her) mirror. Forgive an enemy. If you love someone, tell him (or her) now! And don't wait until next Valentine's Day to be a sweetheart again.

Love,
 ABBY

BETSY ROSS-EAST AND WEST STYLE—Two young contemporary versions of Betsy Ross stitch the standards of the United States and Japan at the U.S. air base at Misawa, Japan. Deaths, injuries reduced

STEP program nets 1,199 tickets

The Big Spring Police Department's six-month Selective Traffic Enforcement Program (STEP) was completed December 31. "We feel the statistics will show a need and justification for the continuation of a concentrated traffic program," announced Capt. Sherrill Farmer.

During the six months the program was in effect, 32 officers drove 8,386 miles, worked selected intersections, and DWI Patrol for a total of 2,523 hours. They issued 1,199 traffic citations and made 33 arrests for driving while intoxicated.

Twenty-four intersections with the highest accident ratio were selected for special enforcement. These intersections had a total of 119 accidents during the last six months of 1974. For the same period of 1975, the accidents were reduced to 95, which amounts to a reduction of 24 accidents or 20. Injury accidents in the same locations were reduced from seventeen to twelve for a total reduction of 30 per cent. One fatality occurred in a STEP location in 1975 with none in 1974.

"This seems to indicate that concentrated or selective traffic enforcement does reduce accidents since the city-wide accident rate increased 13.7 per cent. Even with a city-wide increase of 117 accidents during this six months, we had one less injury accident and eleven fewer people injured," Farmer said. There were six fatalities last year and only two this year.

IRS may probe porn and prostitutes

DALLAS (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service reportedly plans a major investigation of prostitution and pornography in the Dallas area.

The Dallas Morning News said today the IRS will try to build tax evasion cases against men who recruit prostitutes and share their profits, against the owners of a chain of X-rated theaters and producers of hard core pornographic films.

The News quoted informed sources as saying, "The IRS isn't after the prostitutes."

Flu deaths on the rise

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The number of deaths from pneumonia and influenza in New England has passed the "epidemic threshold," the National Center for Disease Control reports.

The center said 81 deaths related to flu or pneumonia have been reported from the six-state region of Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Vermont.

Influenza outbreaks in other parts of the country remain at expected levels, the center said.

Working with figures from previous years, the center establishes an expected number of pneumonia and flu-related deaths from 121 cities in the nation. The epidemic threshold is crossed when such deaths rise above the expected number by 50.

A spokesman said the flu in New England has been concentrated in Connecticut and Massachusetts, but a breakdown by cities was not available.

Birth honored on wrong day still

By REBECCA TAYLOR
 REFERENCE LIBRARIAN

This coming week is notable in the history of the American Revolution because the birthdays of two famous American patriots are celebrated.

George Washington's birthday is Feb. 22; however, the Monday holiday law has placed the celebration on the preceding Monday, Feb. 16.

The variation in the date observed is not new. The first written record, in 1782, indicates that Washington's birth was celebrated on Feb. 11 because of inaccuracies in the calendar then in use.

One thing is rather unique about this holiday. Washington was still living when the celebration of his birthday began.

Therefore, he had the privilege of being honored in person many times at celebrations of the new nation's most conspicuous holiday.

The Howard County Library has several works about Washington and his birthday celebration. We also have a 39-volume set of the complete writings of Washington. This set includes his personal correspondence and his writings as President.

The other famous American is Benjamin Franklin.

Although no official holiday is declared for Feb. 17, Franklin's birthday is remembered in schools and civic displays.

Manycared, Jack Benny

JACK BENNY: An Intimate Biography. By Irving A. Fein. Putnam. 319 Pages. $8.95.

Early in what was to become a very long and successful career, Jack Benny appeared on a radio program and announced, "This is Jack Benny. There will be a slight pause while everyone says, 'Who Cares.'"

A lot of people cared, enough to make the comedian's long-running radio show one of the biggest hits of its day as well as to remain a loyal following long after Benny's radio, and later, television programs were gone from the air but certainly not forgotten.

As Bob Hope said at Benny's funeral late in 1974, "When Benny Kubelsky was born, who would have imagined that 80 years later at the event of his passing, every television program, every radio show would stop... and that every magazine and newspaper would headline it on their front pages. The millions of people who had never met him, who had only seen or heard him, would feel the pain of a very personal loss."

Irving A. Fein, the author of this "intimate biography," served as Benny's personal manager and producer for nearly 30 years.

Having been so closely associated with Benny for so many years, Fein does a fairly good job in summing up the facts of Benny's life: the highs, the lows, the dates, etc.
