Without FEC aid

Some presidential hopefuls 'broke'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Most of the presidential candidates, cut off from federal matching funds for nearly a month, are in various stages of financial desperation and some of them are just plain broke.

The flow of federal matching funds, which had pumped some $12 million into the various campaigns since the first of the year, ended abruptly on March 22 when the Federal Election Commission lost its power to pay out taxpayers' money because of a Supreme Court ruling.

It was up to Congress to meet Supreme Court objections to the makeup of the FEC and put the commission back in business. But the bill to do that is just now being put in final form, and it faces a possible veto by one of the candidates — President Ford.

Ford's campaign is one of the few that remains financially healthy, despite the lack of federal matching funds, and in fact is reporting figures that show it is the most solvent campaign.

In the latest report on campaign funds, Ford's election committee told the FEC last week it has a cash balance of $777,232 on hand.

On the Democratic side, only former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter and Sen. Henry M. Jackson have reported to the FEC that they are financially sound. Carter told the FEC he had $273,232 on April 1. Jackson, who started the year as one of the richest candidates with more than $1 million, said in his latest report he has $154,015.

The financial situation faced by Alabama Gov. George Wallace is somewhat fuzzy. Wallace has been known to have been cutting back, closing headquarters and dismissing paid campaign workers, but his aides maintain his campaign is solvent.

Among the other Democratic candidates, five have ceased active campaigning, some of them because of the cutoff of federal funds.

Ford's Republican opponent, former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, is staging an intensive campaign in Texas but has been borrowing money from banks to finance his campaign. Reagan's last report to the FEC showed he was close to $1 million in the red.

"Inaction by Congress on a simple bill to reconstitute the commission has thrown a monkey wrench into the whole process," said Rep. Morris K. Udall, a Democratic candidate whose Pennsylvania primary campaign is plagued by debts that now total some $215,000.

Udall said Wednesday his campaign has "financial laryngitis," although he says the FEC now owes his campaign $300,000.

There were these campaign developments on Wednesday:

—Udall, Carter and Jackson failed to appear to speak to the American Society of newspaper editors, refusing to cross a picket line thrown up by the National Association of Broadcast Employees and Technicians outside the Washington hotel where the session was held. The union is striking NBC and had hoped to keep the network from covering the meeting. The three candidates addressed the meeting by telephone.

—The office of Ford's press secretary, Ron Nessen, said he plans to attend a rehearsal in New York today of the NBC "Saturday Night" show, on which he is to be a guest, although it means crossing the union picket line.

—Udall called on the other Democratic candidates to debate him before the Pennsylvania primary April 27, saying voters "deserve to know who the serious candidates are, what our records have been and what we propose to do about the serious problems America faces. Instead, what they may get is not just a secret ballot, but a secret campaign, if the availability of money is left to make the difference."

Udall later flew to Louisville, Ky., scene of violence last fall over school busing orders. He maintained his support of busing if that's what it takes to integrate classrooms, but he said his desegregation proposals would keep busing to a minimum.

"Candidates who tell you they're going to stop busing are just blowing in the wind, because they can't do it," he said. "The federal courts have ruled that the Constitution requires busing in some situations. The only way to change it is to amend the Constitution."

—Reagan said in Texas that potential enemies should never hear

U.S. leaders say there is any weapon in the nation's arsenal that would not be used. His statement responded to a news conference question on whether he would rule out a first strike with nuclear weapons.

—Wallace was campaigning in Texas, where he downplayed Reagan's chances of persuading pro-Wallace voters to cross over to vote against Ford in the GOP primary. Wallace also took aim on Carter, saying the former Georgia governor would make cuts in the defense budget that would weaken the Navy to pre-Pearl Harbor levels, while cutting out programs that supply Texans with thousands of defense-related jobs.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Greece today initialed a new four-year military base agreement calling for a U.S. assistance pledge of $700 million to that strategic country.

Scramble for presidency

War casualties increase

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Casualties in Lebanon's civil war today climbed toward the level before the cease-fire, with 75 persons reported killed and 120 wounded, as politicians jockeyed for the presidency and debated Syrian military intervention.

Presidential hopeful Raymond Edde claimed that the toll in the year-long war is now 20,000 dead and 60,000 wounded, about 25 per cent more than previous estimates.

The heaviest fighting during the night was in Beirut and the suburban hills where Moslem leftists and right-wing Christian forces continued to battle with mortars and artillery for control of key points. Several large fires were burning in downtown Beirut.

Another fierce battle was reported around Zagharta, hometown of Christian President Suleiman Franjeh. The town is at the northern tip of a Christian enclave of 800 square miles running north along the Mediterranean coast from the Christian half of Beirut.

Today was the day on which other Christian leaders said they expected Franjeh to sign a constitutional amendment adopted by Parliament last week to terminate his term five months early. But there was no indication the president would sign, and the amendment cannot become law for a month without his signature.

Right-wing Christian leaders were meeting at Franjeh's temporary headquarters 12 miles north of Beirut. They were believed trying to agree on a successor who would uphold their conservative views and some of the rights of the Christian minority but would also be acceptable to the Moslem side.

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger told a Senate subcommittee in Washington that "neither we nor Israel believe that Syrian action in Lebanon is a threat to the security of Israel." But he said Syrian troop movements may be getting "close to the borderline" of Israeli tolerance.

Kissinger said Syria has introduced some military forces into border areas but "has not made a major military movement into Lebanon." He said published reports that there are 13,000 Syrian troops in Lebanon are "grossly exaggerated."

Authoritative sources in Lebanon estimate that Syria has moved at least 15,000 armed men into Lebanon — 6,000 army regulars, most of them in frontier areas controlling the three main highways from Syria into Lebanon; 7,000 Palestinian guerrillas of the Saiga organization which Syria finances and controls, and several thousand Palestinians of the Palestine Liberation Army based in Syria.

Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin said this week that Israeli forces would move into southern Lebanon only if the Syrian troops posed a "direct threat to Israel's security." Israeli analysts interpreted this to mean the Syrians would have to cross the Litani river, a natural boundary about 15 miles north of the Israeli-Lebanese frontier.

Syrian President Hafez Assad is trying to pressure the leftist Moslem Lebanese headed by Kamal Jumblatt into accepting a political agreement that would preserve a sizable role in the government and the economy for the Christian minority who dominated Lebanon until the war. Jumblatt wants majority — meaning Moslem — rule.

Action/reaction: 11th Place status

Q. What is the status of the 11th Place Extension?
A. The funds have been approved at a state level and are now submitted to the federal level for final approval. Locally, action is awaiting the highway department, which will conduct a public hearing on the project. If the route remains the same after the hearing, work will begin. If the route is changed, the funds might be lost, according to Harry Nagel, city manager.

Closing efficient bases called 'false economy'

Wallace condemns military cuts

By MARJ CARPENTER

"These cutbacks in our military are very serious. It is really ridiculous to cut out bases where you have almost 12 months of sunshine for flying hours and call it savings," Alabama Gov. George Wallace, candidate for President, said in Midland Wednesday.

He elaborated on the dangers of defense cutting, stating, "It's pure and simple. We are becoming second to Russia as a world power and it is frightening. I have maintained for years that we should have a strong defense to keep our position of strength in the world."

The candidate pointed out that many of his early ideas have been borrowed by other candidates and placed in their platforms after it became apparent in the 1972 primaries that the people liked them.

Wallace added, "If I became the nominee for President, the platform would bear a heavy defense plank and there would be no talk of false economy by closing efficient bases such as the one you have here in West Texas."

When one of the reporters at the press conference took a jab at the candidate by informing him that Ronald Reagan's crowd was larger at the airport on the previous day, Wallace answered with a smile, "I arrived at 1:15 p.m. which is a terrible time for working people and I planned no rally — only a press conference. I will say this. I have a better chance to be the nominee of the Democrats for President of the United States than Ronald Reagan has to be the Republican nominee. I am not criticizing Mr. Reagan, but when you are running against an incumbent President, you have a problem."

The Alabama governor pointed out that at this point he has the second to the most popular votes of any Democrat nominee and "I am still a viable candidate."

"The Texas primary is an important one, but not a crucial one," he added.

Wallace also commented on the busing furor in Massachusetts and said, "In the South and West, the races love each other and even when we have problems, the love is there. Up there, there's not much love."

Wallace, in discussing oil regulations, emphasized that "something should be done to give the wild-catter and the independent oilman a better chance. We need to get the pioneering spirit back in the industry." He also emphasized that we need to utilize our coal.

The candidate commented on Jimmy Carter's statements about "ethnic purity." "I can't figure out what he meant," Wallace said and turned to the reporters, "Does anybody know what he meant? I believe that all people should have freedom of choice and live where they want to and go to school where they want to. I think we should have only voluntary busing when somebody wants to attend another school."

The governor spent a full hour with the press, carefully answering each question at the press conference at KMD-TV.

He was wheeled in and out the back entrance in his wheelchair by aides, and like all Presidential candidates, surrounded by Secret Service.

More subdued than he was in 1972 prior to the shooting incident, Gov. Wallace still will get a snap in his eye and a sharp tone to his answer if anybody criticizes Alabama or tries to indicate that he is not a realistic candidate.

"I speak for the people," Governor Wallace claims.

Abolition of ad valorem tax at state level supported Base closing reviewed by Realtors' chief

By DANNY REAGAN
In 1967, Waco was faced with the closing of two Air Force installations. Today, that city is in a far superior position economically, and "they are not dependent on the federal government."

So stated state president of the Board of Realtors Frank Nix this morning at a press conference at the Big Spring Country Club.

Nix discussed many areas of public interest in the field of land use. The hardest hitting subject he touched upon was the closing of Webb AFB.

He said the two closings he was personally touched by in Waco did not have a devastating impact on the community at all. "They (the bases) were a sizeable segment of the Waco economy," he admitted.

"and there was a period of change," but he knows that the community is "a great deal more diversified" now, it "weathers the peaks and valleys of the economy better," and it could have been "a blessing in disguise."

The visit to Big Spring was part of the annual visit of Nix to all the local boards, briefing them on pending legislation and bringing them up to date on current state items under consideration.

Nix said the biggest problem affecting Real Estate in Texas today was the "encroachment of the federal government." He stated that there was entirely too much over-regulation, bureaucracy, and over-lapping of powers.

"The various federal agencies are scrapping among themselves." The interdepartmental squabbling is evidently to see which agency gets to interfere the most.

Nix commented that each time the Federal government imposes rules on the use of land it costs the consumer more. As an example, Nix detailed an instance that he and his board feel very strongly about — the Federal Water Pollution Control Act of 1972 in which a federal judge rendered a judgment that the Army Corps of Engineers could assume control to regulate the filling materials used in all U.S. waters.

The far-reaching dark implications of this mandate, to be completely phased in by July 1977, is that the corps of engineers can require everyone who wants "to do anything, anywhere" on a lake in the United States to make application for a federal permit to do it.

Nix was adamant in his denunciation of this as "Judicial Usurpation."

There is one ray of hope. Largely through the efforts of John Tower and other representatives of Texas, an amendment to Senate Bill (no. 1878) has been introduced to Congress, and if passed it will negate the judge's ruling.

Nix said that the states and local communities are receiving "unbelievable pressure by the federal government" in controlling what has normally been the right of the local citizens in deciding the use of land and properties.

The Mandatory Energy Conservation Act in Congress at this very moment is another example of government imposition into the use of state and local lands. Nix made sure to emphasize that he does not object to energy conservation, but he stated that "the federal government should not be imposing the same controls on Big Spring as it does on New York. They are two different economies."

Nix seemed to envision a 1984esque predicament where the federal government would be controlling everything "down to the last little farm building."

One other subject Nix elaborated on that should be of interest to all homeowners is the ad valorem tax. "We support the abolition of the ad valorem tax at state level," Nix emphasized.

"Ad valorem is an area of tax that should be left to the local communities." The tax at the state level is being phased out over a period of several years and presently committees in Austin are holding conferences to determine concepts of raising new funds for public use.

In the area of long-range planning, Nix said he is concerned about the voice of the realtor being heard more strongly at the national level. He stated that the legislative year of 1975 was a successful one, and new legislation this year is pending concerning more land use control on the county level.

Jeff Brown, local Realtor and state chairman for the long-range planning committee, attended an in-depth session in Austin April 3, and discussed ways in which to educate realtors more and improve the new state licensing law which is already the model for all other states and "is second to none."

Nix and his entourage of Realtors staff and state vice president of the Texas Association of Realtors (TAR), and Erwin W. Luedtke, the executive vice president from Austin will continue their tour of the major cities of Texas after today's luncheon and briefing.

Government plans to require vacuum-assisted vapor recovery devices on gasoline pumps as a clean air measure came in for criticism, marketers contending that it would cost $20,000 a station to install them and that the amount of vapors recovered would not stretch the expense.

Roger Strelow of Washington, D.C., assistant administrator for air and waste management of the Environmental Protection Agency, was a convention speaker and explained vapor recovery regulations and plans, especially for acute areas around Houston, San Antonio and Dallas.

Besides Smith, new officers elected were: Bill Wright of Abilene, senior vice president; George Lokey of Amarillo, second vice president; Truman Arnold of Texarkana, secretary-treasurer, and the following regional vice presidents: Willis Reed of Beaumont, Jerry Bolin of McKinney, Bill Burns of Sweetwater and G. N. Forbess of Lubbock.

Other board members include Charles Blocker, Don Tollison, Bob Deavenport, Jimmy Stallings, Terry Neill, Sorley, Mathis and Bill Coggin.

Cure will face murder charge when released from BSSH

When Elmo Cure Sr., is released by the Big Spring State Hospital, Taylor County officials say he will be arrested and charged with the Feb. 12 murder of his wife.

Cure, an Abilene resident, voluntarily committed himself to the local hospital from Hendrick Memorial Hospital March 27. He was hospitalized in Abilene for more than six weeks with gunshot wounds he suffered the same day his wife was killed.

State hospital officials say a voluntary commitment at the facility is for ten days. A court commitment extends for 90 days.

Abilene Police Detective Jack Dieken said the facts suggested that Cure, a 61-year-old businessman, shot Marguerite Cure and then attempted to take his own life. Mrs. Cure was 56 at the time of her death.

The semi-retired Cure had worked for a life insurance firm since 1962. Prior to that, he had owned an athletic supply company for several years.

Finalizing plans for Sunday School training congress

L. B. Adams of Fort Worth is in Big Spring today finalizing plans for a June 8-11 Sunday School training congress, which will headquarter in the Lakeview school building here.

Adams is associated with the Texas Baptist Convention and the Southern Baptist Convention and spends much of his time on weekend trip to Midland.

It was also learned that 150 children attended an Easter egg hunt on the West Side playground April 9. This event was sponsored by the Church Women United.

Mrs. John Hogan announced that instructors are needed at once to coach teenagers in tennis, basketball and volleyball. Adults who can coach these sports for three hours a week are asked to contact Mrs. Ben Boadle.

Four Big Spring oil marketers return from San Antonio meet

Four Big Spring oil marketers have returned after attending the annual convention of the Texas Oil Marketers Association in San Antonio, which ended Tuesday night.

They are Merrill Creighton and Doug Stelter, both of the Creighton Oil Company; Tommy Gage of the Gage Oil Company, and H. B. Stanaland of the Bill Wilson Oil Company.

They reported that major discussion at the convention centered on price control, government over-regulation of the oil industry and unreasonable gasoline vapor control rules.

A near-record crowd of nearly 1,200 oil jobbers, petroleum products marketers, commissioned agents and suppliers were on hand.

Kenneth Peeler, retiring president of the Association, told the convention that governmental controls over gasoline have outlived their purpose and should be put in moth balls; it was reported. He said that the "massive bureaucratic burden imposed on the oil industry" was costing automobile drivers an extra five cents a gallon.

Ford Smith of Austin, incoming president, called for a sensible national energy policy, saying it was time for the government to "stop playing political football with energy and the oil industry." Smith said the Federal bureaucracy should be concerned with a long-term energy program, rather than worrying about the size and growth of major oil companies.

C. J. "Pete" Morrison of Bartlesville, Okla., vice president for marketing for the Phillips Petroleum Company, said extended petroleum price controls and government over-regulation were the two major things that encouraged a greater use of petroleum by consumers, discouraged exploration and production and set the U.S. on a course that will increase dependence on

Two hurt in wreck

Two Big Springers were involved in a major accident 8:17 a.m. today at the corner of 21st and Runnels. A car driven by Eulalio Baca Rodriguez, 2203 Runnels, and traveling south, collided with a car driven by Mrs. Judith Forshee Horner, Gail Route, heading west on 21st. Mrs. Horner's four-year-old daughter was an occupant of her car.

Following the collision, both cars were forced onto the front yard of a residence at 2100 Runnels. The cars broke through a four-foot shrubbery lining the yard, causing approximately $100 worth of damage.

Rodriguez was admitted to Hall-Bennett Hospital, and Mrs. Horner and her daughter were taken to Malone and Hogan Clinic. All were treated for minor cuts and abrasions and released.

NEW YORK (AP) — Cotton futures No. 2 were lower in midday dealings today on the New York Cotton Exchange.

Rain in the Texas High Plains region of the cotton belt prompted selling of futures contracts, brokers said. The area had been in need of moisture to allow farmers to begin planting operations.

The average price for strict low middling 1 1/8-inch spot cotton advanced 18 points to 56.49 cents a pound Wednesday for the 10 leading markets, according to the New York Cotton Exchange.

Midday prices were 30 cents to 52.60 a bale lower than the previous close. May 59.55, July 60.30, and Oct. 59.75.

IT HAPPENED LIKE THIS — Marine Gunnery Sgt. George Benter explains a historical exhibit to some young visitors in the Marine Corps Bicentennial van. This exhibit will be on display in Colorado City at the new high school parking lot from 1-7 p.m. Tuesday.

'It is not a recruiting program' Armed Forces Bicentennial Caravan to stop in Cee City

Tuesday, the Armed Forces Bicentennial Caravan will arrive in Colorado City and be on display at the new high school from 1-7 p.m. Army Capt. Ken Colucci, officer in charge, emphasizes, "This is a concerted effort, by the Armed Forces, to bring the American Revolution Bicentennial closer to people of Colorado City and surrounding communities. It is not a recruiting program."

The mobile museums, which represent the four major military services, and illustrate the Bicentennial theme — "The History of the Armed Services and Their Contributions to the Nation," will be on display Tuesday. Admission is free to the public.

Capt. Colucci says the vans use audio-visual techniques to depict not only contributions each service has made toward the freedom we enjoy today, but also contributions the services have made toward the civilian community. These include such areas as technology, economics, education, environment and social services.

The Air Force van features a multi-image slide presentation of such quality that it was awarded the Gold Medal for best multi-media documentary, at the International Film and TV Festival of New York. Fifteen projectors and more than 700 slides are used simultaneously in the 17-minute show to highlight the Air Force's role in aviation in its early stages, during the two world wars, in space research and in today's world.

The Army, Navy and Marine Corps vans, built on a different premise than the Air Force van, each feature walk-through style patterns where visitors enter the van and follow the exhibits through the van.

The Army van relates the Army's history and contributions to the Nation in six areas: Wartime Role, Civil Actions, Community Assistance, Technology and Medicine, Exploration, and Contributions to the Nation.

Exhibits in the Marine Corps van depict the "Heritage of the Corps," by illustrating the Corps' History and its contributions to the Nation in five sections: Revolutionary War, the Century of 1798 to 1898, the Marine Corps Band, the Twentieth Century, and Marines Today. Artwork by Marines, active, reserve and retired duty status, are featured throughout the van.

The Navy exhibits portray the Navy's role in America's first two hundred years through selected historical events which illustrate their contributions to the Nation. Exhibits concentrate on the Navy's contributions to knowledge and Navy-developed items and processes which have improved the quality of life for the average American.

All the vans have identical exterior designs except for the individual service name and seal.

Capt. Colucci says the vans, which are 40-foot long and 14-foot wide when in display configuration, can accommodate up to 100 visitors per van, per hour.

He says the caravan which began its journey on July 4, 1975, will travel more than 1,500,000 square miles by Dec. 31, 1976.

will be in Ira Cemetery. Born Feb. 24, 1904, at Cuthbert, he was a farmer and had worked in the oil fields. He was a Methodist.

Survivors include a daughter, Peggy Bruce of California; a son, Milton Ray Hardee of California; three sisters, Mrs. Ed Strain of Colorado City, Mrs. Delo Clark of Colorado City and Lena Johnson of Carlsbad, N.M.; and two grandchildren.

Palbearers will be Backie Reagan, Morris Patterson, O.S. Womack, Clayton Bettle, Harold Hall and R.L. Heith.

Services for Mrs. Gladys Stephens, age 69, who died at home 8:30 a.m. Tuesday will be at 10:30 a.m. Friday at Nalley-Pickle Rosewood Chapel with interment at Mount Olive Memorial Park.

Palbearers will be Don Holman, Bob Tarbit, Bruce Willborn, Bill Hyden, J.B. Lilly and Jake Banks.

Cure will face murder charge when released from BSSH

When Elmo Cure Sr., is released by the Big Spring State Hospital, Taylor County officials say he will be arrested and charged with the Feb. 12 murder of his wife.

Cure, an Abilene resident, voluntarily committed himself to the local hospital from Hendrick Memorial Hospital March 27. He was hospitalized in Abilene for more than six weeks with gunshot wounds he suffered the same day his wife was killed.

State hospital officials say a voluntary commitment at the facility is for ten days. A court commitment extends for 90 days.

Abilene Police Detective Jack Dieken said the facts suggested that Cure, a 61-year-old businessman, shot Marguerite Cure and then attempted to take his own life. Mrs. Cure was 56 at the time of her death.

The semi-retired Cure had worked for a life insurance firm since 1962. Prior to that, he had owned an athletic supply company for several years.

Finalizing plans for Sunday School training congress

L. B. Adams of Fort Worth is in Big Spring today finalizing plans for a June 8-11 Sunday School training congress, which will headquarter in the Lakeview school building here.

Adams is associated with the Texas Baptist Convention and the Southern Baptist Convention and spends much of his time on weekend trip to Midland.

It was also learned that 150 children attended an Easter egg hunt on the West Side playground April 9. This event was sponsored by the Church Women United.

Mrs. John Hogan announced that instructors are needed at once to coach teenagers in tennis, basketball and volleyball. Adults who can coach these sports for three hours a week are asked to contact Mrs. Ben Boadle.

West Side Community Center board adds new director

The monthly meeting of the West Side Community Center board of directors was held Tuesday night at the center building.

James H. Parks Jr. was added to the board as a new director. The West Side Day Care Center also received a new director in Mrs. Glenn Allen.

It was announced that the AAA Rent-All Co. will lend a trailer to the West Side Boy Scout troop for their

Harrises charged

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — With Patricia Hearst recuperating from a collapsed lung, two of her underground escorts have been charged with kidnaping her. Miss Hearst was reported "mildly improved" at Sequoia Hospital in nearby Redwood City on Wednesday, the day she had been scheduled to enter a plea on state charges in a joint Los Angeles court appearance with William and Emily Harris. The Harrises were charged Wednesday with kidnaping Miss Hearst from her Berkeley apartment on Feb. 4, 1974, beating her former fiance and committing other violent crimes.

Civil rights heroes

BOSTON (AP) — They sat in their academic robes — Rosa Parks, the black woman who 21 years ago refused to move to the back of the bus, and Linda Brown Smith, whose father did not want her to go to the segregated schools of Topeka, Kan., 22 years ago. They were honored by Boston University, alma mater of the late Rev. Martin Luther King on the eighth anniversary of his assassination. But in this city torn by strife over school integration, fewer than 50 people came to pay tribute Wednesday to 15 heroes and heroines of the civil rights movement.

Environmentalists win

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Environmentalists rejoiced over the shelving of plans for the country's largest coal-fired electricity plant in the scenic Kaiparowits Plateau in southern Utah. But some supporters of the project reacted bitterly, saying the nation's bid for energy self-sufficiency was seriously hurt by the move. Sen. Jake Garn, R-Utah, said Wednesday after the announcement of the postponement that "radical environmentalists have won their victory."

Indian envoy to China

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — India announced today it is sending an ambassador to China for the first time in 15 years, restoring full diplomatic relations with its longtime foe. Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's government named a top career diplomat, K.R. Narayanan, to the Peking post. It said China was expected to reciprocate by sending an ambassador to New Delhi.

Libya refuses asylum

BENHAZI, Libya (AP) — The Libyan government has refused asylum to the three Filipino Moslems who surrendered in Benghazi Wednesday after the longest aerial hijacking in history, the official Libyan news agency reports. The Arab Revolutionary News Agency said the three young men were under interrogation but gave no indication what President Moammar Khadafy's government might do with them. The hijackers' 12 hostages, all employees of Philippine Airlines (PAL), flew their PAL DC8 to Rome Wednesday for a night of rest before returning to Manila.

For war against crime

Briscoe asks legislature for wire-tap okay

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Legislators will be asked next January to approve court-ordered and court-supervised electronic surveillance in the war against organized crime, Gov. Dolph Briscoe said Wednesday. "Texas will never know the full extent of its organized crime or be able to adequately and effectively combat it until electronic surveillance is allowed," he said.

The governor said in a speech before a district convention of Rotary International that battling crime would be the No. 1 legislative priority of his administration during the next session.

"There is no debate as to whether organized crime has penetrated into Texas," Briscoe told the Rotarians. "The question now centers on the extent of this invasion and how it can be controlled and repelled."

Briscoe said his organized crime legislation package would: —Define organized crime and make engaging in organized criminal activities a felony.

—Allow court-ordered and supervised electronic surveillance in investigation of organized crime.

—Permit a defendant to be tried for all organized criminal activities at one trial.

The governor said his staff was drafting legislation to reduce non-organized crime as well, including a measure on repayment of victims by convicted criminals and tougher parole laws.

His suggested legislation would be aimed mainly at habitual offenders and those who commit certain serious crimes.

Gov. Briscoe said he would recommend also that juries be permitted briefings on parole laws before sentencing. "It's time to take the blindfold off the jury and give them the same information a judge has when he sentences a criminal," he said.

Another proposal would require supervision of offenders released from prison, regardless of whether they had served their full time. Currently only parolees receive supervision on release while those who finish their sentences are totally freed, Briscoe said. "Yet these are the inmates who need supervision the most, since they are the ones who serve their full time because they are not considered a good enough risk for parole," Briscoe said.

Resolution emphasizing Webb importance voted "The operation of Webb Air Force Base is a fundamental and necessary part of the economy of the entire Permian Basin" the Permian Basin Planning Council board of directors emphasized in a resolution to the Secretary of the Air Force.

The board, which met for the first time Wednesday since the day the announcement was made of the possible closure of the base, passed a strong resolution backing the keeping of the base.

The resolution stresses the importance to national defense of the operation of an economically and efficiently operated base such as Webb. It also stresses that the closure of the facility would have a traumatic and irreparable effect to the economy of Big Spring, the Permian Basin and even Texas and the nation.

Directors also stress the natural environment, terrain and climate of Howard County which provides favorable economic conditions for flight training exercises in the United States.

The resolution is signed by Harold Hall of Big Spring, chairman, and Willie Hammond of Odessa, secretary-treasurer.

Big Springer completes course in management

STILLWATER — Eleven middle and upper management personnel, destined for leadership in tomorrow's top management positions, are this week completing the third part of a management development course at Oklahoma State University.

They have completed one-week sessions in "The Fundamental Nature of the Management Process" and "The Functions of Executive Management." This week, the topic has been "Decision Strategies and Techniques for Managers."

Sponsored by OSU's School of Industrial Engineering and Management of the College of Engineering and the College of Business Administration, the course has had a great amount of appeal to the person in middle management in the large companies, as well as the small companies not having highly specialized managerial training programs.

The course is taught in three one-week sessions to allow for the participant to attend without requiring long absences from the job.

Those completing the 22nd annual Management Development Course include J. C. Chennavert, Warren Petroleum Co., Houston, Tex.; Marie Hamra, Public Service Company of Oklahoma, Henryetta; R. F. Johnston, Continental Oil Co., Houston; Alfred H. Medley, Fenix & Scisson, Inc., Tulsa; Douglas Peet, Soil Conservation Service, Ft. Worth.

What a difference a rain makes

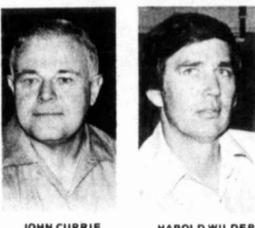

There is a nervous condition that sets in on West Texas about this time every year if the weather turns up the least bit dry.

It's called the "will it rain in time to plant" phobia, and it strikes most everyone.

I THINK it has been particularly infectious this year because of the dry winter and the talk that has started up about the American Midwest and southwest going into a drought cycle that comes every 22 years.

I've spent 21 of my 33 years here in West Texas, and it seems to me that every time a season turns dry, someone in the quasi-scientific field of weather watching decides that we are entering a sunspot-induced drought cycle.

This "scientist" claims that every X number of years back through our weather records, which don't even date back a century, there have been X number of dry years. The figures are always true except for X and Y periods when the "dry periods" were plagued by flooding.

JOHN CURRIE HAROLD WILDER

What they have proven to me is that nobody, least of all the U.S. government's National Weather Service, knows very much about what makes our weather like it is, and when it comes to forecasting, a dart board is almost as good.

With the dry winter and the talk of a 22-year-cycle drought, the rainy spell at the first of this week was welcome.

Howard County Agent Bruce Griffith said that the middle portion of the county received, on an average, more than two inches.

The rain came in several fallings, so the soil had maximum time to absorb it. For most of the county, it was a good rain. Combined with the subsoil moisture, it should mean a cotton crop can go in the ground this year after all — despite the cloud of the alleged 22-year cycle.

Griffith said the edges of the county did not fare so well. Ackerly, for example, only got .3 of an inch through Wednesday. More rain is still needed there.

THE COUNTY agent said that the best thing for the farmers would be to have another good rain in early May. The best planting time is mid-May, and the seed could go in the ground as soon as the land dried.

John Currie, president of State National Bank, told me that the farmers have a pretty good shot at a crop until mid-June or even until late June if the fall weather conditions turn out right.

Griffith says that the only crop that area farmers have missed badly in recent years was the 1974 one which produced only 11,000 bales — and was lucky to do that.

Howard College Athletic Director and basketball coach Harold Wilder was in the newspaper on Monday taking credit for the rain.

He is in the middle of his spring recruiting effort, and he had lured a fine athlete out from Mississippi for a visit with talk of sunshine.

"Everytime I bring out an athlete from Mississippi, it rains night and day," he happily complains.

SO IF WE need rain, we'll ask Wilder to bring out another swamp athlete. Why not? It's probably as likely to be right as the scientists who predict the weather.

We may yet have a long dry spell, but I hope the recent West Texas rains caught the meteorologist who postulated the 22-year theory outside without his umbrella.

I'd say the odds are 50-50 he's all wet.

Egg hunting time

Around the rim

Marj Carpenter

It's egg hunting time again. In this column during another Easter, I commented on the fact that to some children, Easter egg hunts are a delight, while to others they are a disaster.

ALL CHILDREN simply are not endowed with the same abilities in hunting Easter eggs. At our house, the eldest, Cathy, who is working on her Ph.D. in London and writing a book, just could not find Easter eggs.

At the school hunts, she often got the prize for finding the least and at home, after Carolyn and Jim Bob had found two-thirds of the eggs they would sit down and wait for Cathy to find hers.

I'm afraid that in that respect she took after her mother. I can remember chasing my brother around the yard while he found all the eggs. I would go look in the exact same place he had just looked and the whole family would laugh at how dumb I was. It was terrible.

I decided to ask around the news room and see if everybody else was a great Easter egg hunter, but I found out some startling things.

J. Tom Graham, our publisher, said he had trouble with his eyesight and didn't do too well. He did say that he could run fast and if he finally spotted an egg, he'd run in a bee-line to grab it up.

Tommy Hart, our formidable editor, could not recall ever having hunted Easter eggs. Walt Finley, on the other hand, recalls that he could find eggs easily at Northside park in Durant at a hunt sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce. He said the story that they hunted cow chips in Oklahoma was unfounded.

Danny Valdes, the Cuban flash, said he had trouble at egg hunts. "In Cuba, they had lots of candy eggs because of the sugar industry. When I would find one, I would stop to eat it, and forget to look for the rest of the eggs."

TROY BRYANT, wire editor, said that at home he was the biggest kid and did pretty good, but at school he was one of the littles and didn't fare well at all. Fred Brewer, the sports editor, said that he and his brother were instructed to help the baby during Easter egg hunts. "We'd help them until they could crawl and then they were on their own," he recalled.

Danny Reagan, alias Starbuck Wolf, recalls that he didn't like boiled Easter eggs and if he found one, he'd put it back. He liked the candy eggs. The new cub reporter has shed his pseudonym and joined the news side at the Herald.

Jamie Werrell remembers that he was kind of a middle-class egg hunter . . . not too fast and not too slow. He does recall that the Easter bunny hid sugar eggs in the grass in the early morning hours when there was dew on the ground and the eggs turned into a soggy mess.

John Edwards claims that he did real well as an egg hunter. I can just see him leaping around the yard scooping up all the eggs. Julie Simmons, the society editor, said she can recall her brothers pointing to one for her, when she was standing right beside it.

It's not surprising that I couldn't find Easter eggs. I can't find anything on my desk now. Editor Hart says, however, that this is not due to poor eyesight or lack of intelligence, but simply due to a messy desk.

This is really just a lengthy plea to parents who play Easter Bunny. Be kind to the poor Easter egg hunter. He may turn out to be the President of the United States.

So, here comes Peter Cottontail . . .

friends

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — In 1973, then-President Richard Nixon made a multibillion-dollar decision, keeping it as quiet as possible, to sell off strategic metals from the national stockpile.

We have now established that the decision was followed by pressure from the White House to sell valuable minerals to Nixon's friends and contributors.

OFFICIALLY, THE White House explained in 1973 that the huge strategic stockpile was no longer needed for the nation's security. There is now reason to believe Nixon's real motive was to reward his friends in the metals industry.

Following Nixon's orders to reduce the stockpile, the General Services Administration (GSA) has sold more than $3 billion worth of metals. Most of the scarce metals have gone to the industrial giants such as Alcoa, Bethlehem Steel, Englehardt Industries, General Electric, Kaiser, Reynolds Metals, U.S. Steel and Westinghouse.

The sales came at a time when strategists were warning that the United States will run short of many vital minerals in another decade. At the same time, the countries that own the mineral deposits, taking their cue from the oil potentates, have been forming cartels to jack up the prices.

The alarmed strategists have charged that the national stockpile is dangerously depleted. This has resulted in a top-secret study, at the direction of the National Security Council, to determine whether the stockpile should be replenished.

Although the secret, interagency task force hasn't completed the study, we can report they have tentatively concluded that stockpile levels should be raised for certain critical materials.

The United States is dangerously short, for example, of chromium, which is a critical alloy in high-strength steel. Yet the United States is dependent for its chromium on such uncertain suppliers as Rhodesia, Russia, South Africa and Turkey.

The $3 billion sale of strategic minerals, meanwhile, has the sour smell of scandal. At least some of the minerals, which were sold to U.S. corporations at bargain-basement prices, will now have to be repurchased at premium prices.

The winners were the companies; the losers will be the taxpayers. And for some companies, it appears that more than luck was involved.

WITNESSES HAVE told us that Nixon aides called former GSA chief Arthur F. Sampson, pressuring him to sell materials from the GSA stockpile to White House friends. Sampson "filtered the word" to his stockpile officials, according to our sources, that "the White House was very interested" in making certain their favorite companies could buy the critical materials.

Footnote: Sampson denied receiving calls from the Nixon White House or pressuring his subordinates to give special favors to Nixon's friends. Brooks told us all stockpile sales were made on merit, pursuant to GSA procedures. We have evidence of the White House pressure, however, if any Congressional committees are interested.

Rest assured that your friendly IRS will continue to give each and every taxpayer a fair shake!

No part of tot's diet

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: We enjoy your column so much, and we would like some advice on a very important and touchy subject which has caused my husband and me much concern.

We have a 10-month-old baby girl — our first. We also have an uncle who visits our home once or twice a month when he comes to town. He is a lovely man, but he has the bad habit of asking for a cold beer before he gets planted in his favorite chair. We don't mind him having his beer, but what we do mind is when he puts our little girl on his knee and feeds her beer. If he is given a cocktail, he does the same thing.

When we suggest that a baby shouldn't be given spirits of any kind, he simply says, "A little drink won't hurt her." We believe our uncle is pretty close to being an alcoholic, if he isn't one already. What can we do to prevent him from possibly injuring our baby? — W.B.

Of course, your uncle is trying to be nice to the little tike in his own way. But the child is much too young for alcohol. Your uncle should be given a stern ultimatum — no spirits.

At 10 months, this child's digestive system is just beginning to adjust to an amazing array of new tastes and foods as she gradually works toward an adult food intake. No need to introduce an unnecessary and potentially harmful substance. We know the effects on metabolism alcohol can have in adults. Little ones, like your daughter, are much less capable of coping with this.

Quite apart from the harmful effects on her health, the exposure to the beer and cocktails is dangerous from another aspect. She might lose a natural aversion to other "strange-tasting" and dangerous liquids as common household cleaning fluids, etc.

Knock it off, uncle.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is there a stroke club in Connecticut? My husband had a stroke in January and is still paralyzed. I think it would give him a lift to talk to others in the same boat. And perhaps people who have recovered would be there. — Mrs. L.T.R.

I'm sure there are several in the state. You are from a relatively large city, where there must certainly be a stroke rehabilitation center. Check with the local hospital or a local unit of the American Heart Association.

You are on the right track. Such clubs are great morale boosters, and they do make a habit of having recovered victims in to give talks. It might do your husband a world of good. Incidentally, my newest booklet, just back from the printer's, is called "Stroke — Hope and Help." If you want a copy, send 25 cents to me in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband had my original engagement ring repaired this past Christmas. It was gold. My finger turned black after wearing it. Is there any medical cause for this? — Mrs. H.R.

If the ring was replated, then you might suspect the plating material. Often, nickel, which is used in such procedures, can produce an allergic response. The discoloration is due to a reaction of certain substances in the perspiration to the metal.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: When a woman has had her female organs removed, and when she and her mate have relations and he comes to a full climax, should the woman douche or not? — J.H.

Douching is a matter of personal preference. Having had a hysterectomy has no bearing on the matter. No harm either way.

To learn of the many factors involved in the treatment of hiatal hernia (which concerns the esophagus), write to Dr. Thosteson, in care of the Big Spring Herald, for a copy of his booklet, "Hiatal Hernia and Eight Ways to Combat It." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Please tell me what is the history of marriage, and what minister or rabbi would have performed the first marriage. — J. P. D.

DEAR J. P. D.: The first marriage was ordained by God. The idea is almost as old as creation, for as early as the second chapter of Genesis it is stated: "A man leaves his father and his mother and cleaves to his wife, and they become one flesh" (verse 24, Revised Standard Version). Marriage can be seen as all part of God's original plan in creation, in that He made the first humans male and female.

The first marriages would have taken place simply by the coming together of a man and a woman to live in union, without any religious ceremony or any legal formalities to complete. It later became an occasion for celebration and thanksgiving, and so a wedding feast was held. Christ attended such a feast and performed His first miracle there (John 2). Wedding services were introduced as people sought God's blessing upon their unions, and desired to make their promises to one another in God's name. Such services also helped to emphasize the solemnity of marriage and the seriousness of the marriage vows. Christ taught that a union, once made, should not be broken: "What therefore God has joined together, let not man put asunder" (Mark 10:9, Revised Standard Version). The teaching of Paul still further added to the seriousness of this step as he likened it to the union between Christ and the Church: "Husbands, love your wives, as Christ loved the church and gave himself up for her" (Ephesians 5:25, Revised Standard Version).

Now there are legal obligations attached to marriage which stipulate the wording of the promises made by the bride and groom. The important thing to remember is that marriage was ordained by God, and not by man, and is a picture of the union that exists between Christ and His Church. It is clearly not something to be entered into lightly or without due awareness of all that it signifies in the eyes of God.

Staunch defender

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — My good friend William Safire is a very rare bird in Washington. He is the only columnist in town who still is willing to defend his old boss Richard Nixon. Last week Mr. Safire raged at all the Nixon-haters for snickering at the story in the Woodward and Bernstein book when President Nixon asked Henry Kissinger to get down on his knees and pray with him. Then the President broke down in tears and cried like a baby.

MR. SAFIRE, who constantly points out the excesses of Presidents Kennedy and Johnson to show that Mr. Nixon was guilty of no more wrongdoing, accused the Georgetown set of ascribing the praying and crying of Nixon to mental instability.

As spokesman for the Georgetown set, I wish to assure Safire that not one person in the area snickered when they read the story. The reason was, according to Woodward and Bernstein, Mr. Nixon had not only been praying and crying — he had also been drinking. It is perfectly all right with the Georgetown set for a President to pray, even with Henry Kissinger. But it's another thing for the President of the United States to drown his sorrows in booze.

The reason is obvious. The President of the United States, as everyone is aware, has his finger on the BUTTON. The fear of all of us that a drunk President might decide in his stupor that if he had to go, he was going to take Georgetown with him.

WE HAD A nightmare of Mr. Nixon staggering through the White House mumbly. "Where's the button? Gotta push the button. I'll show those (expletives) that they can't push the President of the United States around. Pat, where's the BUTTON?"

"I hid it. Go to bed, Richard." "You had no right to hide the button. It's my button and I can push it if I want to." "Please, Richard, you've had too much to drink. I'll tell you where the button is in the morning." "I want to know where it is now. As Commander-in-Chief, I order you to tell me where the button is. If you refuse, I'll have to assume you're one of THEM."

"Please, Richard. Tell me again about China."

"Don't want to talk about China. I want a drink, and then I'm going to find the button."

"RICHARD, WILL you stop throwing all my clothes out of the drawers! It's not in any of them. I didn't hide the button on the medicine cabinet either . . . No, it's not under the bed. Now why don't you go to sleep?"

"It's gotta be somewhere in this house. I'll bet you Al Haig knows where the button is . . . Operator, get me Haig . . . Al, you have any idea where Pat hid the button? . . . Yeh, THAT button . . . What do you mean why do I want to know? . . . Don't argue with me . . . Where the hell is it? . . . You don't know? . . . Well, is there another button around? . . . There's only one? . . . Dammit, there should be a spare one . . . Suppose it got lost or something. Al, the first thing I want you to do tomorrow morning is put a button in every room in the White House . . . When I want to push it, I don't want to have to go looking all over for it . . . You wanna come up and have a drink with me? . . . Ah, you're no fun. I don't know why I keep you around."

"Operator, get me Kissinger. Henry, you got any idea where Pat hid the BUTTON? . . . You don't, huh? . . . Well, I think you're lying. As a matter of fact, I know you're lying . . . I want to tell you something, Henry. I don't like you. I never liked you. I don't like any Krauts and when I find that button and push it, you're going to be the first to go . . . I don't care if you prayed with me or not, you got no guts. If you did you'd help me find the button . . ."

IT PROBABLY didn't happen this way, but I have to tell you, Safire, that's what we in Georgetown thought was going on in those days and that is why we aren't snickering now. We were scared stiff!

As President Ulysses S. Grant once said at a party in Georgetown, "An administration that prays together stays together — but one that drinks together sinks together."

Attempting to produce artificially

Natural cancer-curing chemical discovered

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — A chemical with the power to change cancer cells back to normal cells has been extracted from human urine and may explain why some cases of cancer cure themselves, a Baylor University researcher says. If the naturally occurring substance can be made artificially, Dr. S.R. Burzynski said Wednesday, it could be valuable in cancer therapy because it does not seem to affect normal cells. But the work is in its early stages and has not even been tested in animals, he said. The abnormal, out-of-control growth of cancer cells is believed to be the result of an "error" in their genetic mechanism that controls development. The substance which Burzynski calls antineoplastin apparently detects cells that are getting out of line and feeds them new information that returns them to normal. The substance is so named because it works against neoplasms, or abnormal growths.

The study carried out by Burzynski and associates at Baylor, the M.D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute and New York Medical College was reported to the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology. Burzynski said he studied 180 cases in which cancer disappeared for no apparent reason. This happens only in about one in 80,000 cases, he said, "or about four patients in the United States each year." The spontaneous regression must have been due to the same mechanism that routinely corrects genetic errors in the body, theorized Burzynski. Cancer-causing forces are continuously triggering abnormal cell growth and would soon kill a person were it not for such a correction system. Burzynski actually found three kinds of antineoplastins which he said are probably formed in body tissues and pass into the blood and urine. The research team extracted a few micrograms of the substance from more than 100 quarts of urine. When the antineoplastins were mixed with human cancer cells grown in the laboratory, they halted the cancerous development by up to 97 per cent, Burzynski said. They had almost no effect on normal cells. The cancer cells that the substances were effective against included those of leukemia, osteogenic sarcoma (a type of bone cancer) and cervical cancer, he said.

Nine tornadoes skip over Texas

By The Associated Press
It's tornado season again in Texas for sure. No less than nine twisters spun across the Panhandle-Plains sector as violent thunderstorms raged through the night and into today. Surprisingly there was no word of injuries or extensive damage, and the turbulence gradually subsided. Official observers looked for more storms to break out toward the end of today and spread toward the middle of the state. State police reported a tornado which dipped to earth near Spur, 65 miles east of Lubbock, wrecked some small farm buildings and toppled trees.

Visual sightings and radar detected funnel clouds also near Brownfield, Childress, Dickens, Levelland, Lubbock, Post and Smyer. Several touched down in open fields. There was so much turbulence that several areas stayed under tornado watches as late as 3 a.m. today. Gusty winds, considerable hail and briefly heavy rains accompanied the storms, which swept across much of West Texas from the Rio Grande into the Panhandle. A Bailey Circus tent collapsed in the wind at Clarendon, southeast of Amarillo, and trapped about 100 occupants briefly. "It was just a scare," Deputy Sheriff Eddie Hammons said. "There were some bruises and everybody just crawled out of the tent. The winds were up to 50 miles per hour."

Some of the biggest hail pounded the area around Post, where chunks of ice two inches thick fell. Winds topped 40 m.p.h. through Guadalupe Pass in the far West Texas mountains and blowing dust dropped visibility to zero in places. The wild weather erupted as a Pacific cool front moved slowly eastward. Early today its forward edge lay along a line from the Oklahoma Panhandle to the Big Bend country in West Texas. At the same time moist air billowed inland from the Gulf of Mexico, setting up ideal conditions for turbulence. Storms broke out as a day of summery heat ended. Thermometers soared to 98 degrees at Presidio in extreme West Texas. Readings near dawn today ranged from 73 at Brownsville on the south tip of the state down to 49 at Amarillo and Dalhart in the Panhandle.

Hughes said 'very sick' for eight weeks
HOUSTON (AP) — An aide to Howard Hughes has been quoted as saying the billionaire recluse was very sick for eight weeks before his death. The Houston Chronicle in its Tuesday edition quoted Clarence Albert Waldron of Sun Valley, Calif., as saying Hughes had a kidney infection which kept him in bed or in a wheelchair during the eight-week stay in Acapulco. Hughes, 70, died on an April 5 flight from Acapulco to Houston. An autopsy April 6 attributed his death to kidney disease.

The Chronicle also quoted Waldron as saying Hughes bled slowly for several days from a head infection caused by a fall before leaving the Bahamas Feb. 10. Waldron said Hughes "had been very sick since leaving the Bahamas. Hughes and a number of his aides flew from Freeport in the Bahamas, where he had been living since 1973, on Feb. 10 and took up residence on the top two floors of the Acapulco Princess Hotel.

Cost of operating 'ugly' Electric auto shocking

By DANNY REAGAN
Gene Currie, assistant Big Spring High School band director, has a machine that he frankly admits has "a terminal case of uglies," but it has cut his driving expenses from over $100 a month to somewhere between $3 and $4 a month. The machine is called the Vanguard "Citicar," and it is an intown electric automobile which gets more "weird looks", kids laughing, and dogs chasing it than an aqua-colored Edsel. The car was made in Florida and runs on eight batteries. As far as Currie could discern, the only moving parts in the car are the wheels and the driveshaft.

Currie and his wife are both teachers, and the driving between home, high school and the junior highs was making his conventional car eat gas like an oilwell fire. So at the beginning of the school year, Currie bought the "Citicar" for $3,000, total tax and tags. Even though it "won the international prize for ugly, and is practically nothing but a street legal golf cart," Currie was immediately impressed with it.

The cruising speed of the automobile intown is about 38 m.p.h., and one charge to the batteries is good for 50 miles. The charger plugs into a regular 110v outlet and the life of the batteries depends on the quality of the battery, but at least three years.

The car can be charged from one to 12 hours and there is no other upkeep on the vehicle.

While most people have to worry about running out of gas, oil, water and moving parts, the only problem Currie has to face occasionally is running low on charge.

"I carry a long extension cord with me," Currie admitted. If he ever does find himself short on "juice," he pulls into the nearest service station or good Samaritan-looking establishment and plugs in for a while.

The only unconventional aspect of the car that was hard for Currie to get used to was the windows. They pull in and out, instead of rolling up and down. One rare rainy day Currie saw a car coming toward him throwing up a sheet of water as it moved nearer. He reached down for the non-existent handle to roll up the window and before he could correct himself he was covered with water.

So if you see a very ugly automobile driving around town, laugh if you will, but realize that Currie himself is laughing all the way to the bank.

UGLY BUT CHEAP CAR — Assistant Band Director Gene Currie leans against his Vanguard "Citicar," an electric car that runs on eight regular size batteries, and has a monthly upkeep of $3 to $4.

Local gasoline prices picture still 'unclear'

Gulf Oil Corp. has hiked its prices for gasoline by one cent per gallon, and similar hikes are planned by other major firms, a petroleum industry analyst says. The effect locally has evidently not been felt. All major gasoline distributors, excluding Mobil, who were contacted early this morning, have heard nothing whatsoever about gas hikes at their pumps.

A Mobil spokesman stated that Mobil has raised its wholesale gasoline prices. But he also added that all local dealers are independent, "and they could give the gas away at the pumps if they wanted to." So the local situation is still unclear at this time.

Annual GPA Compressor Roundup May 6 at Odessa

The annual Gas Processors Association Compressor Roundup is set in Odessa for Thursday, May 6. Registration will begin at 8:00 a.m. in Building "A" in the Ector County Coliseum complex located at 42nd and Andrews Highway in Odessa. Discussion sessions will begin at 9:00 a.m. A registration fee of $4 will be charged at the door.

Purpose of the Roundup is to provide a forum for free interchange of knowledge and techniques related to operation and maintenance of compressors, engines and associated equipment. Seven topics will be presented for discussion. They are 1) Ignition, 2) Compressor Cylinder & Valve Maintenance, 3) Centrifugal Compressor and Gas Turbine Operation & Maintenance, 4) Maintenance of Reciprocating Engines, 5) Engine Auxiliary Systems, 6) The Engine Analyzer and 7) Balancing Rotating Equipment. Discussion and resource leaders are recognized authorities in their fields.

The Compressor Roundup is sponsored by the University of Oklahoma Continuing Education Department. The sessions will be held in small groups to provide for discussion where experience can be reviewed and examined in detail.

The local chapter of the Gas Processors Association has invited all area compressor or engine operation and maintenance personnel to take advantage of this opportunity to discuss mutual problems and solutions.

Goliad pupils visit Alamo

A group of tired and happy seventh grade history students at Goliad Junior High returned to school this week with first-hand knowledge of the Alamo.

The group held bake sales, garage sales and many other projects to raise money for their trip. They had studied Texas history and decided they wanted to see the Alamo. The Jaycees added the local $150 to their fund collection, according to Corky Smith, instructor.

GORDITAS

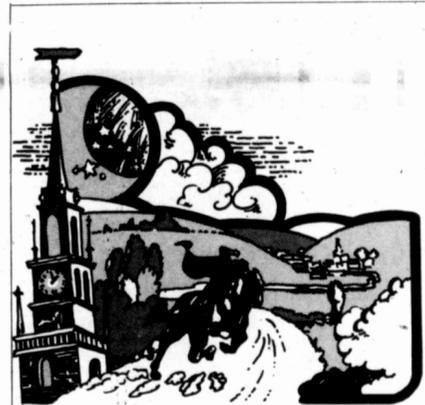

By Odila Morales

bag of Masa Harina
fresh chopped tomatoes and onions cooking oil
Make tortilla dough by following directions on bag. Pat out dough in hands until tortilla is 1/8 inch thick. Place tortilla on grill, cook only on one side, when almost done score the tortilla on the uncooked side while on the grill. So the oil will soak through, pour small amounts of oil on top of the tortilla, enough to cover. But not overflow.
Put chopped tomatoes and onion on top and continue to cook until tomatoes and onions are hot.

FRUIT SURPRISE

By Sally Jean Martin

1 pkg. strawberry Jello
1 pkg. frozen strawberries
1 large can pineapple (drained)
3 bananas, mashed
1/2 c. chopped walnuts
1 pkg. sour cream
1 1/2 c. water
Dilute water with Jello, mix all ingredients together, except for sour cream. Pour half the mix into a bowl. Let set until firm. Spread sour cream over top of jelled mix.
Pour the rest of the strawberry mix on top of the jelled mix. Let set until jelled. Serve.

Paul Revere's Midnight Pie

3 egg whites
Dash salt
3/4 cup Imperial Granulated Sugar
3/4 cup coarse chocolate cookie crumbs
1/2 cup coarsely chopped walnuts or pecans
1/2 teaspoon vanilla or peppermint flavoring
1/2 cup whipping cream, whipped with 2 tablespoons Imperial Powdered Sugar

Beat egg whites and salt until soft peaks form; then gradually beat in Imperial Granulated Sugar until stiff peaks form and sugar is dissolved. Fold in remaining ingredients, except cream. Spread in lightly buttered 9-inch pie pan. Bake in 325°F. oven about 35 minutes; cool thoroughly. Spread with whipped, sweetened cream. Chill several hours before serving. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Should 'other woman' help bury his wife?

DEAR ABBY: I am a happily married woman. I've had a very close relationship with a man who is also happy with his wife. We are both in the same type of business, and we see each other frequently to discuss business matters or just to have a friendly get-together. We have been to bed together during business trips, but neither of us thinks of it as any great love affair. We are just friends who enjoy all sides of our relationship.

About a year ago, his wife found out about us and got all uptight. (I don't blame her.) After that, we stopped seeing each other socially, but when we meet on business, the close romantic feeling is still there.

Now I've heard that this man's wife has a terminal illness and hasn't much longer to live.

When she dies, should I attend the funeral? If my husband were to die, I'd want this friend of mine to attend the funeral, but I don't know if he would feel the same way. Should I ask him? That seems so crass. Please advise me.

OLD FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: Don't ask him. And don't attend the funeral. I think he'll probably appreciate your absence.

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow in my mid-50s, and I live in an exclusive high rise apartment. Last month a bachelor moved into the apartment next to mine. This man has an electric organ, that I can hear him playing nearly every evening.

I don't mind that, but he also has a Boston bulldog that "sings" while he plays the organ. The dog's "singing" consists of a howling sound, but very often hits the right note, begins at the beginning of every song and finishes at the end. (Sometimes the man "harmonizes" with the dog.)

The man is very attractive, and appears to be in his 60s. I understand he is a retired physician.

I suppose he is lonely, but I'm sure he could do much better than a singing dog for company. How do I meet him?

THE LADY NEXT DOOR

DEAR LADY: Invite him over for a T-bone steak dinner and tell him you'll save the bone for his dog.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are in the process of seeking an inexpensive way to get a divorce. We are already living apart and are in total agreement on everything, including the custody of our child and the visitation rights. All we have to do is get it all down in writing and make it legal.

We inquired at the Legal Aid Society but were told that we don't qualify for low-cost legal aid because we are both gainfully employed.

The other alternative is a "divorce kit," which is a kind of "do-it-yourself" divorce, costing $95 for papers plus a $3 fee for filing.

As we see it, the $3 fee is the only necessary action to be taken by us. Isn't it possible to write up our own legal papers and have them notarized?

Why do we have to go through with the expense of having a lawyer write up the papers when we are in complete agreement on all the terms?

FRIENDLY PARTING

DEAR FRIENDLY: Regardless of how "friendly" and "in agreement" you two may be, I would still recommend legal counsel. Some of those "do-it-yourself" divorces are more expensive in the long run than the regular kind are.

College Heights PTA 76-77 officers installed

Funds for detox center, HC police expansion granted

Funds for another year of operation of the city's detoxification center and funds for campus police expansion were among the projects approved by the Permian Basin Regional Planning Council when its board of directors met Wednesday afternoon at Terminal.

Harold Hall, Big Spring councilman who is chairman of the board, presided at the meeting where a number of projects in the area were given the nod of approval necessary for the grants to be forwarded to state and federal agencies.

The city of Midland's request for $576,000 in community development funds, was approved. Midland College had a request for $50,493 for a pre-retirement service project; Pecos County got $26,846 for a community action agency in Fort Stockton; Midland received $41,250 for a similar Community Action agency program, and Upton County was approved for a $467,900 federal highway project.

Other grants included $50,000 for the Big Spring Detox center, $23,328.35 for the expansion of the police system at Howard College; $105,000 for the Permian Basin Planned Parenthood program, which includes an office in Big Spring, and $24,500 for the Texas Tech University School of Medicine predoctoral medical preceptorship and $364,000 for TTU School of Medicine family training program.

Odessa received approval for $1,234,043 for sanitary sewer extension; the Permian Basin Law Enforcement Academy at Midland received $35,234 and the regional Office on Aging was designated for $35,234.

Among the area county judges attending were Judge Leslie Pratt, Lamesa and Judge Jimmy Mathis, Stanton.

Oklahoma Senate okays 65 mph limit

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Measures to repeal a state law requiring Oklahoma motorcycle riders to wear helmets and to boost the speed limit on limited access highways to 65 miles per hour were passed Wednesday by the Oklahoma Senate.

The helmet repealer measure, already approved by the House, now goes to Gov. David Boren for his signature.

The bill to raise the speed limit, also passed by the House previously, must be returned to that body for consideration of Senate amendments.

The House gave tentative approval Wednesday to several Senate bills, but adjourned for the day without taking final action. The measure will be brought up for a final vote today.

The law requiring motorcycle riders to wear helmets was passed by the Oklahoma Legislature last year under a threat by the federal government to withhold $5 million in federal highway funds.

It drew heated protests from motorcycle clubs across the state.

The bill to repeal the helmet requirement was introduced this year after a federal court ruled that highway funds could not be withheld from California because that state failed to pass helmet legislation.

The Senate removed from the bill a provision which would have required motorcycle headlights to be turned on during daylight hours. It passed by a vote of 33-8.

Oklahoma lawmakers also passed last year under federal pressure a bill setting speed limits on state highways at 55 miles per hour.

The bill to raise the limit to 65 miles per hour was introduced this year. It would not go into effect unless 29 other states also adopt the 65 mile per hour limit.

Supporters of the higher speed limit claim it will result in lower gasoline consumption, if it becomes effective, because large trucks operate more efficiently at higher speeds.

Celebrate the bicentennial. Secede from the union.

The economists say that 1976 won't be a bad economic year. On the other hand, it won't be a good economic year either.

That means you're going to have to be careful with your money. You're going to have to put it where you can get the most out of it.

That's why it should be in First Federal instead of a credit union. Look at the advantages.

Guaranteed Interest. Every passbook and savings certificate account pays a specified, guaranteed rate of interest. You know how much your money is going to earn. In a credit union, you don't. You have to wait and see how efficiently the credit union has operated during the dividend period.

Better Choice of Plans and Better Rates. We have a variety of plans, including both Passbook accounts and Certificates of Deposit.

The interest on all of them is compounded daily. So, you actually earn more interest than the quoted standard rate.

A Passbook account can be opened for any amount, and it will earn interest for every day it's open. There's no penalty or loss of interest for withdrawing any or all of your funds.

There are also several longer-term, higher-rate Certificates of Deposit. You can choose any one of these:

Maturity Period	Minimum Deposit	Standard Rate	Effective Annual Yield
90 day	$ 500	5 3/4 %	5.92%
1 year	$1,000	6 1/4 %	6.72%
2 1/2 years	$1,000	6 3/4 %	6.98%
4 years	$5,000	7 1/2 %	7.79%

Fund Transfer. You can save a little each month by arranging an automatic fund transfer from your checking account. Or, use our TELE-TRANSFER system to transfer funds from your checking account to your savings account, or vice versa with one phone call to us. You get your deposit or drafts made in one day.

Personal Loans and Instant Credit. If your family is buying a car, boat, appliance, or needs another kind of loan, we can help you. It doesn't make any difference whether you have an account with us or not. However, if you do have a First Federal account, you automatically have instant credit up to the amount of your account. You don't even have to wait for a credit check.

Special Interest in Big Spring and Howard County. When you save at First Federal you're contributing to the growth and prosperity of your community. We're deeply involved in financing the housing and construction industry. So, First Federal is committed to the progress of this area, and your deposits are committed to that same progress.

Do the most for yourself. Do the most for your community. Secede from the union.

Wood decked by Twins

When you only win a game every April or so and you've suffered through the kind of 12 months Joe Decker has, it's tough to feel sorry for your opposing pitcher just because his infield commits five errors and costs him the ballgame.

"It didn't bother me. It's just nice to get a win," Decker said Wednesday after hurling 7-1-3 impressive innings — two runs, five hits, three walks, four strikeouts — in the Minnesota Twins' 6-2 victory over Wilbur Wood and the Chicago White Sox.

Wood yielded eight hits but all the Minnesota runs were unearned. Second baseman Jack Brohamer and shortstop Bucky Dent committed two errors apiece while third baseman Jorge Orta had one.

Meanwhile, Decker blanked the Sox until the eighth when he needed relief help from Bill Campbell. It was the 28-year-old right-hander's first triumph since April 9, 1975. Two weeks later he was felled by a virus that virtually wiped out his season.

Elsewhere in the American League, the Texas Rangers completed a three-game sweep of the Oakland A's 4-2, the Cleveland Indians came from four runs behind to edge the Boston Red Sox 6-5 and the California Angels posted their first 1976 triumph by shattering the Kansas City Royals 7-6.

Indians 6, Red Sox 5
Rick Manning doubled to trigger a six-run sixth inning against Ferguson Jenkins that erased a 4-0 Boston lead as the Red Sox pounded Jim Bibby. Manning scored on Duane Kuiper's single and one out later a walk and Boog Powell's single made it 4-2.

Rico Carty doubled a run home and, after an intentional walk, Jenkins balked the tying run across. Alan Ashby then delivered a two-run single.

Angels 7, Royals 6
Ed Herrmann homered twice and drove in four runs to lead the Angels to their first 1976 victory. With Kansas City leading 5-3 in the eighth inning, Dave Collins and Bruce Bochte walked and a single by Bill Melton brought Collins home. Then Herrmann unloaded his second home run of the night, a shot over the right field fence off reliever Marty Pattin.

Kansas City jumped to a 3-0 lead with a second-inning outburst against Frank Tanana on singles by Jim Wohlford, George Brett, John Mayberry, Hal McRae and Al Cowens plus an error by California right fielder Lee Stanton.

Ackerly athlete

Possible Olympian

By DANNY REAGAN
ACKERLY — Mike Coleman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Coleman of Ackerly, has a better than average shot at being in the 1976 Summer Olympic games in Canada.

During the weekend of April 3-4 in Ft. Worth, Mike participated in the Zone 5 International Trapshooting preliminary tryouts for the Olympic games.

The 17-year-old easily outclassed competitors from Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana, and Arkansas and won the champion's gold medal. There are seven zones in the United States and hundreds of hopeful shooters compete for a chance to go to the final tryouts in St. Louis on May 17th.

Mike was 17 "birds" ahead of his nearest challenger at Ft. Worth, and he expects to compete against approximately 50 zone champions and past Olympians in St. Louis.

Participation in the final tryouts can only be realized by a personal invitation from the Olympic Committee. Mike received his invitation by phone.

Out of the field of prospects in St. Louis, only three will go to the Olympics, two winners and one alternate. The competition is keen, but Mike has given a tremendous amount of time and effort to hard practice.

Mike shoots at least a hundred clay "birds" a day in practice. At his home in Ackerly he has two trap machines, one for American trapshooting and one for International.

International trapshooting, the kind that is an Olympic sport, consists of shooting 200 "birds" thrown erratically at high speed and low trajectory from a trap blind. Two shots are allowed for each "bird," and in case of a tie the contestants will keep shooting until one misses.

Last year young Coleman was the United States Junior All-American Champion for the American Trap Association. He won 10 trophies last year, and in one meet shot 199 out of 200 "birds." His trophy case is packed with trophies, medals, belt buckles and awards of all shapes and sizes in recognition of his prowess with the shotgun.

From a pitching standpoint, the three-game sweep by the Astros was a team effort, as Houston Manager Bill Virdon used three pitchers in each of the three

Mike started trapshooting when he was eight years old, and considerable dedication has gone into building the skills for this possible member of the Olympic team.

There is no monetary reward in International trapshooting, no side bets, no promotions or paid circuits. There is only the pride of wearing the United States flag on one's Olympic jacket and representing one's country in a series of sporting events that spotlights U.S.-World relations to the utmost.

Perhaps Mike will not be one of the three lucky shooters who makes it to the games. He has a tough Army team to compete against, as well as all the other champions. But being invited to the national finals to try for the team is quite an accomplishment in itself.

Dierker is David against Goliaths

HOUSTON (AP) — Larry Dierker calls his 20-8 lifetime record against San Francisco a mere coincidence.

Chance or not, the Houston Astros rolled to a 5-3 victory, their third straight over the Giants Wednesday night, with Dierker gathering his first victory of the season.

"Having a good record against a team over the years is purely coincidental," said the winning pitcher in Astros history. "Not only have the players on the Giants changed over the last 13 years, but I've changed as a pitcher."

It took the tall righthander less than one week to improve his pitching. Dierker failed to retire a batter in his first start of the season, but he managed to turn things around against the Giants with a little luck.

"In Cincinnati, when the Reds hit the ball hard, they were hitting it," Dierker said. "Tonight, when the Giants hit the ball hard, we turned it into a double play. We just got the breaks."

Houston used four double plays and a four-run second inning to hand the Giants their loss. Roger Metzger's double and Enos Cabell's triple drove in two runs, and a Larry Milbourne single and a Giants throwing error brought home two more runs.

The Astros added another run in the fifth on an infield error, a stolen base and Bob Watson's single to centerfield off loser Mike Caldwell.

San Francisco touched Dierker for two runs in the sixth on an error by Cabell and Gary Matthews' RBI single.

The Giants' final run came in the eighth on two singles and a fielder's choice.

From a pitching standpoint, the three-game sweep by the Astros was a team effort, as Houston Manager Bill Virdon used three pitchers in each of the three victories.

"I'm not going to hesitate to bring someone in from the bullpen," Virdon said. "The starters haven't had enough work yet, and I like the way our relievers have been coming in out of the pen."

Jose Sosa, the victim of San Francisco's final run and Larry Hardy, who earned a save, finished up for Dierker as the Astros reached the .500 mark for the first time in more than a year.

Running start

Rangers in 1st

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — Texas Manager Frank Lucchesi and Oakland Manager Chuck Tanner agreed on one thing: the surprising Rangers are in first place in the American League West because they got a running start in spring training.

The Rangers received their fifth complete game from a pitcher in six outings Wednesday night as Texas swept the A's in a three-game series thanks to Gaylord Perry's six-hitter in a 4-2 victory.

"Our team created its own togetherness in spring training," crowed Lucchesi after the Rangers had defeated Oakland's Vida Blue.

The Rangers were chastised in reports to the AL office because of their not so secret drills while owners and players differed over a contract in spring training. The New York Yankees and several other teams complained about the Rangers, particularly after Lucchesi drove by an impromptu practice session in a 1958 Plymouth and dumped a carton of baseballs on the road.

"They were busting their tails down there to be a team so that's the least I could do," said Lucchesi. "Our pitchers were out getting ready. They paid the price. Replacing old shag balls

Cooper downs Abilene

ABILENE — The Abilene Cooper Cougars rallied for three runs in the bottom of the fifth Wednesday and went on to beat the Abilene Eagles 8-5 to win a share of the 5-4 first half championship along with San Angelo Central which beat Big Spring on Tuesday.

Rodney King (6-1) was tough when he had to be on a day when he did not have his best stuff. He allowed seven hits and gave up eight walks. Mark Allen went 4-for-4 in the game for the Cougars including a home run and a bases-loaded single in the fifth. Cooper's rally which culminated with Allen's clutch hit started after the first two batters had been retired.

Paul Morrison singled. Ricky Lewis doubled him to third and Rusty Hamrick walked to load the bases. Allen drilled one up the middle to drive in Morrison and Lewis. The center-fielder tried to nail Hamrick at third, but his throw got away from the third baseman and Hamrick scored.

King walked the bases full in the sixth and then struck out the next three.

Central, which handed Cooper its only loss, travels there to open up the second half Saturday. Abilene, tied with Big Spring for the first half with a 5-2 record, opens the second half at Steer Park Friday, game time 4:00 p.m.

Tanner, asked if he thought the long Ranger spring training was of help, snapped: "You damn right ... that didn't hurt them a bit to be there from the start as a unit."

He added: "The Rangers are definitely an improved club and you have to tip your hat to Perry. But you can't tell about pitching depth early in the season, you can't tell in a week or a month, but over a season."

Texas is 5-1 and is ahead of Chicago, 2-1, by percentage points.

Oakland is 3-3 and Tanner said: "I am very happy with that. You play 500 ball on the road and win big at home and you're going to take the pennant. We are going home now and it has not been all that bad a start."

Lucchesi said he thought Oakland missed slugger Reggie Jackson, who was traded, but has yet to report to Baltimore. "Jackson will make a difference on any club," he said. "We have a lot of respect for him. But Oakland is still the club to beat."

Oakland came into the Ranger series after defeating California in a three-game sweep scoring 21 runs in the process. The A's got only four runs against the Rangers.

Blue, now 1-1, uncorked a wild pitch to score Lenny Randle from third base in the seventh inning to give Texas a 3-1 lead.

The 37-year-old Perry, 2-0, had brief lapses in the fifth and ninth innings. He surrendered an RBI single to Phil Garner in the fifth frame and a single to Don Baylor and Sal Bando's RBI double in the ninth.

Howard SGA sponsoring All-Sports banquet

The Student Government Association of Howard College is sponsoring an All-Sports Banquet on Monday, April 19, at 7:00 p.m. in the college cafeteria.

Mr. Bobby Menchaca, director of Student Activities will serve as master of ceremonies. The coaches of each sport will present his or her respective team members and make any special awards. Also, Mrs. Evelyn Anderson, cheerleader sponsor, will present the college cheerleaders. Dr. Charles Hays, president of Howard College will give the welcome and Ms. Carol Hart, president-elect of the Student Government Association will word the invocation.

This annual all-sports banquet is held each year in the month of April to honor those who have participated in athletic competition at Howard College.

Coaches making presentations are: Ms. Wanda Ferguson — women's athletics; Harold Wilder — men's basketball; Jerry Dudley — golf; Jack Himes — rodeo; Bobby Menchaca — tennis.

Solons opposed to larger military spending due tiff

OMAR BURLESON, M.C.
17th District, Texas

WASHINGTON, D.C. — At intervals during the last year or so, attempts have been made to call attention to the new budgetary process under which the Congress is now operating. We have commented that the legislative machinery is now in place to get control over spending but that it will take real determination on the part of Congress to make it work.

The resolution setting ceilings on expenditures for various programs and estimates of revenues to pay for them has now been voted out of the Budget Committee in both the House and the Senate. The Resolution really pleases no one. The liberals object mainly because the recommendation provides defense spending more than they like and they claim curtails social programs too severely. Conservatives are unhappy because the recommended outlays are too high and the deficit too big.

The liberals contend that more spending and larger deficits are needed to create jobs and sustain a strong economic recovery from the recession. Conservatives warn that severe inflation may be triggered again unless the budget is tightened more.

The resolution will be up for debate, tentatively the week of April 26. It will be a hard and long fight from both sides.

For the 1977 fiscal year starting next October 1, the Resolution calls for a ceiling on spending of $413.7 billion with estimated revenues at $363.1 billion. This leaves a deficit for next year at $50.6 billion whereas the latest Administration estimates for the 1976 fiscal year project a deficit of $76.9 billion.

Although the spending totals recommended by the Budget Committee were substantially above President Ford's budget, they are about $11 billion below the amount which

Midland to host regional stamp meet April 24

The Permian Basin Stamp Club is sponsoring a regional meeting of the High Plains Philatelic Society in Midland April 24. The meeting will be in the basement meeting room of the Commercial Bank & Trust Co., 2300 West Wall Street, Midland, from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m.

There will be a few dealers and "swappers" in attendance to serve the stamp collector. Everyone interested in stamp collecting is being invited to attend. Admission is free.

If one desires, he or she can donate a stamp or set of stamps to the High Plains group which will be sold at auction, since that is the only way to finance these meetings.

There will be a "Show and Tell" exhibit. Four pages of any material one desires to exhibit will be judged and an award will be given for the best presentation.

Also, there will be an auction of sets or stamps.

The Permian Basin Stamp Club will furnish refreshments.

Center offers music special

An old fashioned musical, the Kentwood Country Western Special, will be held at Kentwood Older Adult Center Saturday, April 17.

The Vandoye Murphree band will start the strings humming promptly at 7:30 p.m. The Tom Castle band will present a varied program, including several vocal numbers. Other musicians have been invited to attend.

All persons who enjoy the country western sound are invited to the Kentwood Country Western Special, according to Marshall Brown.

Grady Boosters hold banquet

GRADY — The annual Grady Athletic Banquet will be held at 8 p.m., Thursday, April 29, in the old school gymnasium.

would be required to pay for existing programs to keep up with inflation and population growth.

Social programs were increased significantly above the Administration's budget recommendation but, even here, they were restrained some as compared to immediate past years. The Committee held defense preparedness pretty near what the military requested.

By pulling together the present practice of fragmented spending, this process is intended to set deliberate budget policies and gain fiscal control over the Government's huge operations. As stated earlier, it remains to be seen how the Congress makes the process operate. Those of us who feel that the spending limits set are too high and that the deficit is too great, will attempt further reductions in certain programs by amending the Resolution when it is up for debate. The liberals will want to add more to social programs and to create make-work schemes to reduce unemployment. There is already $2.2 billion in outlays in the Resolution for this purpose. It was adopted by a one-vote margin and an effort will be made to remove it by amendment later on.

Another amendment adds $100 million for preliminary work on National Health Insurance which has not been enacted into law. This amount is included in anticipation that such legislation will be passed.

Those opposed to larger military expenditures will attempt reductions. Allowing for inflation, the amount for national defense barely keeps us where we are now and should be increased but we will do well to hold the figure as approved by the Committee.

amending the Resolution when it is up for debate.

The liberals will want to add more to social programs and to create make-work schemes to reduce unemployment. There is already $2.2 billion in outlays in the Resolution for this purpose. It was adopted by a one-vote margin and an effort will be made to remove it by amendment later on.

Another amendment adds $100 million for preliminary work on National Health Insurance which has not been enacted into law. This amount is included in anticipation that such legislation will be passed.

Those opposed to larger military expenditures will attempt reductions. Allowing for inflation, the amount for national defense barely keeps us where we are now and should be increased but we will do well to hold the figure as approved by the Committee.

March of Dimes Tennathon might be smashing success

Twenty-four hours of tennis will get under way Friday, April 30 when players volley off in the March of Dimes Tennathon.

The Tennathon rounds off two March of Dimes spring marathons against birth defects. The events kicked off with last Saturday's Walkathon which brought out walkers including an 87-year-old gentleman for the 13-mile trek. Participants solicited pledges to the March of Dimes from more than 500 sponsors.

Walkathon winners will be announced as soon as all pledges are turned in. Sponsored by the Women's Tennis Association, the Tennathon is open to all tennis buffs.

Debbie Stephens, wife of local tennis pro Barry Stephens, is chairman of the Tennathon which will run from 5 p.m. April 30 to 5 p.m. May 1 at the Figure Seven Tennis Center.

The Women's Tennis Association will donate 75 per cent of the Tennathon proceeds to the March of Dimes. The remaining 25 per cent of receipts will be used for improvement projects at the tennis center.

Gun bill to House floor

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill to outlaw manufacture of cheap handguns called "Saturday night specials" cleared the House Judiciary Committee Tuesday. No date was set for the House debate, but Committee Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., said he had been assured by some House Republicans that they would work with Democrats to pass the bill.

Rodino noted that President Ford had proposed handgun control legislation that contains provisions similar to this bill and that a version awaiting action by the Senate Judiciary Committee also has many similarities.

The committee's 20 to 12 vote came only a few weeks after it tabled a more restrictive gun control bill. In previous years, gun control bills always died in the committee.

The new measure would set mandatory jail sentences for persons convicted of using a pistol to commit a crime. It would increase license fees for wholesale and retail gun dealers and require pistol purchasers to wait 14 days before taking possession of their handgun.

WAITING FOR BEN — Vietnamese refugee Doan Thi Meang Anh and her four children await the return of her claimed 4-year-old son Ben who is living with a Forest City, Iowa, couple seeking to adopt him. A court ruled Tuesday that the boy will remain in Iowa during the court proceedings.

Cowboys pay for their lumps at schools of hard knocks

DENVER, Colo. — Time was, when a cowboy with rodeo aspirations learned his lessons via the school of hard knocks, getting on broncs and bulls at rodeos, and after hundreds of tries, finally learning how to ride, or rope, or wrestle steers.

It's not like that today. The knocks are still there, but they're incorporated into formal schooling, where young aspiring contestants can learn from top rodeo cowboys just what it takes to compete in big-time rodeo.

Every spring, during a lull in rodeo competition, many top hands find time to run a school, complete with practice rodeo stock, mechanical bucking machines, first-hand advice and instant replay video machines, so bruised and battered students can see for themselves "just where they went wrong" on the last rides they made.

Naturally, the students pay for their lumps. Tuition runs anywhere from $100 to $350 per student, and most of the schools last from three days to a week. A week at rodeo school is a long time.

Some cowboy instructors even round out the curriculum with written examinations, with questions dealing with rodeo safety (what's the best way to get off a bull that's spinning "into your hands" when you've heard the whistle blow?); or questions about the purchase and care of rodeo equipment (what's the best way to carry a bareback rigging?).

Answers to the above — Reach down and "grab the dally," jerking the tail of the rope from the palm of the hand, then jump off the bull in the opposite direction of the spin; carry a bareback rigging by its base, not the handle, saving wear and tear on the handle for the actual ride.

A total of 33 rodeo schools are scheduled throughout the western states and Canada from now through June. The schools are advertised in the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association's newspaper, the Rodeo Sports News.

There's only one drawback for the instructors. Some of their former students begin competing against them at the rodeos, and often wind up winning.

Court rejects cancer suit against doc

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Supreme Court rejected today a woman's attempt to collect $1.8 million from a Houston doctor who allegedly hid from her and her husband knowledge that the husband probably was dying of cancer and encouraged them to have more children.

Beatriz Finkel of Mexico City said she needed the money to raise the two children born after Dr. John Stehlin allegedly told her husband, Boris, in 1969, "You had cancer, but now you are just as any human being."

Records in Mrs. Finkel's malpractice suit against Stehlin show that her husband had lymph nodes removed in Mexico City in January 1968 and was told that he had cancer. He was also told to go to Houston, where Finkel was referred to Stehlin.

After hearing in Mexico that Finkel had cancer, the couple, who had one child, decided not to have any more.

Mrs. Finkel testified, however, that Stehlin was "very optimistic" in 10 visits Finkel had with him for checkups. After each checkup except the first, she said, Stehlin would examine Finkel and say "perfecto."

She said Stehlin had looked at slides of a biopsy made in Mexico and he thought Finkel had metastatic melanoma, but he never informed the couple of his diagnosis or the implications.

Medical evidence showed that such cancer was fatal to 80 per cent of its victims within five years, she said.

The doctor, she said, asked Finkel about his family planning and it was then that he told him he was "just as any human being."

Mrs. Finkel said she asked the doctor if he was telling the truth, and he assured her that he was.

After two more children were born, Finkel died in November 1971.

The trial court denied Mrs. Finkel's claim, and the appeals court affirmed that decision. It noted that courts have consistently refused to allow anyone to recover damages for the birth of a "normal, healthy child."

The Supreme Court upheld the ruling without writing its own opinion.

Five killed in Fort Worth

FORT WORTH (AP) — Five persons, including four members of an Oklahoma family, have been killed in the crash of a pickup truck and a van on Interstate 35 in Fort Worth.

Authorities said Charles Bennett, 36, his wife Linda, and their 12-year-old daughter Kelly were dead at the scene of the Tuesday collision. Another daughter, Stacey, 9, died today in a Fort Worth hospital. The family was from Oologah, Okla.

Also killed was J.T. Atchison, 55, of Fort Worth, driver of the pickup truck.

The only survivor was Lisa Kelley, 12, who was riding with the Bennett family in the van. She was reported in good condition.

Police said the pickup went out of control, hit a guard rail, sailed over the median fence and landed on the van.

Witnesses said the van was thrown from the truck and onto the median fence.

Billionaire's estate Search for will continues

HOUSTON (AP) — Sources here and in Los Angeles say they believe an effective will executed by the late billionaire recluse Howard Hughes exists and a search for it will continue.

Meanwhile, an aunt of Hughes and her son were named temporary administrators of the Hughes estate that has been estimated to be worth $1.5 billion to $2 billion.

William T. Miller, a lawyer with the Houston firm of Andrews, Kurth, Campbell & Jones, filed the application Wednesday on behalf of Mrs. William R. Lummis, Hughes' aunt, and her son, William R. Lummis, both of Houston.

Lummis is a partner in the law firm which filed the application. Mrs. Lummis is a sister of Hughes' mother, the late Mrs. Howard Hughes Sr.

Harris County Probate Judge Pat Gregory set bonds of $200,000 for the administrators.

Without elaborating, the application filed by Miller said the estate has debts and tax matters that need immediate attention.

Miller said a search will continue for a will and that the Texas Commerce Bank of Houston will be the custodian of certain unspecified Houston assets of Hughes.

In Los Angeles, the Summa Corp., reported in a formal statement that it is believed Hughes executed a will although so far none has been found.

The Summa Corp., of Los Angeles and Las Vegas, Nev., parent firm of the widespread Hughes interests, released a prepared statement through Arelo Sederberg of the public relations firm of Carl Byoir & Associates Inc. in Los Angeles.

Sederberg said the order was entered by Gregory, acting on an application filed at the request of Hughes' interests.

"Officials of the Hughes organization and members of Mr. Hughes family believe Mr. Hughes executed an effective will but it has not yet been found," the formal statement by Sederberg said.

The statement said the temporary court-supervised administration was sought to insure continued operation of all Hughes enterprises until the will is found.

"The search efforts since the April 5 death of Mr. Hughes have not revealed where the will is located," Sederberg said. "The continuing search will be assisted as the result of the Houston court action."

Sederberg said he could not elaborate on the prepared statement.

As expected, the Lummisses designated representatives in Nevada and California to oversee Hughes holdings in those states.

In state court at Las Vegas, Mrs. Lummis nominated the First National Bank of Nevada as special administrator for Hughes' Nevada interests.

In Los Angeles, Richard C. Gano Jr., was appointed special administrator for Hughes' California interests.

The will, if one is found, must be filed for probate in the state where Hughes called his official residence. There was indication it would be Houston but Gregory said "there has not been testimony to that effect as yet."

Hughes was dead on arrival April 5 in Houston on an emergency plane flight from Acapulco, Mexico. An autopsy performed the next day attributed death to kidney failure.

CORPUS CHRISTI
Thirteen men who were rescued from a saucer-like survivor capsule after an oil drilling platform was whipped Gulf of Mexico when the capsule was launched today.

"There were no survivors," said a Coast Guard spokesman.

The fiberglass capsule, which was aboard the aircraft carrier USS Intrepid, was launched Thursday through 15-foot sea swells that reached 60 feet.

Other crew members were rescued, but the capsule was swamped and sank.

Navy divers had discovered the capsule and larger craft Lexington, stood about 40 miles north of Corpus Christi.

"It's just a free official of the company, Ocean Drilling & Production (ODECO) of New Orleans," said a spokesman.

"We don't know what happened. These
