

GOP fight grows hotter

Ford seeks comeback in Indiana

By The Associated Press

President Ford is campaigning for a comeback in Indiana while Ronald Reagan seeks to turn the momentum his way in a Republican presidential contest that may be raging long after the Democrats settle on their White House nominee.

Ford said he remains confident that he will win the GOP nomination, and ranking politicians in both parties agree.

But he won't win it quietly, not now that Reagan has scored a surprising wipeout in the Texas presidential primary election. It was a victory that virtually guaranteed that the former California governor will be campaigning all the way to the Kansas City convention that begins Aug. 16.

By gaining all 96 delegates elected in Texas Saturday, Reagan cut into Ford's lead in nationwide delegate strength. But the President is still ahead, and by a comfortable margin when uncommitted delegates who are really on his side are tallied.

In the Democratic primary, former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter scored his own sweep, and cemented his dominance in that campaign. He captured 89 delegates, leaving only nine for Sen. Lloyd M. Bentsen, who ran as a favorite son in an election he engineered to serve his own presidential campaign. Bentsen quit the presidential race early. He won renomination for the Senate, to run against Rep. Alan Steelman of Dallas.

Carter said Sunday that he plans to spend more time now contacting party leaders, making sure all Democrats "feel welcome in the Carter camp," in an effort to unite the party he expects to lead.

"I think now my time would best be spent two or three days a week on the phone," said Carter, who now has 447 of the 1,506 delegate votes needed for nomination. Nobody else is close to him.

Indeed, the man in second place, Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, quit the race Saturday for lack of campaign money. That leaves Carter virtually unchallenged in the Democratic primary in Indiana.

His active rivals now are Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona, who said Sunday he'll stop Carter; Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace; Sen. Frank Church of Idaho; and Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. of California.

Carter now has won eight primaries. Udall and Wallace haven't won any. Church and Brown haven't run yet; their first tests come in mid-May.

Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe, who opposed Carter in the primary, said the victory there assured the Georgian of the Democratic nomination.

While that may have been an overstatement, there is no one in sight now to stop Carter, with Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey determined to stay out of the race, and Church and Brown untested.

So, ironically, the Democrats who began with a census of a dozen candidates have seen their race steadily narrowed, to the point that it could be all but settled before convention time. They meet July 12 in New York.

And the Republicans, the party in the White House, face the long campaign — with the likelihood that it will become increasingly bitter.

President Ford has won six primaries, and Texas was only the second for Reagan. But the victories came when he needed them, in North Carolina to dampen talk that he ought to drop from the race, and in Texas to prove that he can win big in the South and Southwest.

It means that he'll be running all the way, through the primaries that end on June 8, and the summer weeks before convention time. It also points to an escalating campaign debate, since Reagan has scored his victories in states where he took a hard line against Ford on foreign and defense policies, denouncing Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and charging the administration has let America slump to second place militarily. What worked for him twice is certain to be the formula for the rest of the race.

Ford, on his part, has retorted with sharp words, saying that Reagan is glib, superficial, inexperienced. That, too, is likely to continue.

As a result, the Republicans could face increasing stress and divisions before they are able to align behind a single candidate for the autumn campaign.

Ford campaigned today in Indianapolis and in Montgomery, Ala. Reagan was at work in Indiana. They meet in those states and also in Georgia on Tuesday.

Ford was described as disappointed at the results in Texas, but White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said "he remains confident that by the time of the August convention in Kansas City, he will have enough delegates to assure the nomination."

That would be 1,130. Ford now has 283 committed delegates, Reagan 236. But there is substantial Ford strength in the bloc of 329 formally uncommitted candidates; at least 254 of them, from New York and Pennsylvania, are aligned with the President.

Nessen said Ford will not alter his campaign strategy. "He's just going to go out and continue to explain and describe his policies," Nessen said. "We're less than halfway through the primaries and the President feels his policies are best for the country."

He said Ford's strategists believe a big crossover by Democrats who used to support Wallace had contributed to Reagan's Texas primary victory. Sen. John G. Tower, Ford's Texas chairman, said so, too.

The numbers pointed to a massive crossover. There were 350,000 GOP votes in the Senate primary in Texas, more than twice as many as normal in that party. More than 1.4 million Democrats voted in their Senate race. There was no statewide presidential vote to assess.

Defense chief Rumsfeld orders recruitment probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld says he has ordered a review of recruit training practices throughout the armed services in the wake of the controversial death of a young Marine in a close combat drill.

"I've indicated that I personally am interested in this subject with respect to all services," Rumsfeld said in an interview.

"What I want to do is assure myself that the practices and approaches that are being used within the various services are satisfactory," he said.

In December, Marine Pvt. Lynn McClure of Lufkin, Tex., suffered fatal head injuries during "motivation" training using padded wooden sticks. Fellow recruits have said they were ordered to pummel McClure even when he was unable to defend himself. McClure reportedly was mentally retarded.

Last week, the Marine Corps ordered courts-martial for three drill sergeants and a captain on charges growing out of McClure's death. Two other officers, including a colonel, were assigned administrative punishment.

"I certainly was deeply concerned about the very tragic death of the young man in San Diego," Rumsfeld said.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Blowing with the wind

Q. Why does the wind blow so hard out here in West Texas? It seems to blow harder than any place I've ever lived. Are there reasons relating to climate?

A. Bill Fryrear out at the U.S. Experiment Station said "There is more wind in this part of the country because there are no large mountain ranges that tend to slow it down." Also he said that the increased wind movement is directly related to the meeting of the West Coast high pressure fronts and the Gulf Coast low pressure fronts, that just happen to meet often around this part of Texas.

Offbeat: Get me to the church on time

When Rev. Harland Birdwell, pastor of St. Mary's Episcopal Church arrived in the choir room shortly before services on a recent Sunday morning, he noticed a new woman in the choir. Later, while he was reading one of the lessons, he noticed that she quietly got up and left. After services, he learned the full story.

The young woman introduced herself to the organist before services and said she was to sing in the choir. The organist found her a cassock and surplice, thinking she was a new choir member.

After the service started the new member leaned over to the soprano and asked, "When do I do my solo?" When she got the answer, "What solo?" she said that she was to sing a solo and that Mrs. Simms would accompany her. The soprano then told her that there was no Mrs. Simms in that church... that this was the Episcopal church... and where did she think she was?

It seems the soloist was supposed to be at the First Christian Church across the street.

Rev. Birdwell said that if he can locate the woman, he'll invite her back to sing a solo for the St. Mary's congregation.

ENDORSEMENT — Democratic presidential contender Jimmy Carter greets a worker at the Western Electric plant in Indianapolis this morning, aided by Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind. Bayh, who had been a candidate for the Democratic nomination for president but withdrew after poor showings in the New Hampshire and Massachusetts primaries, endorsed Carter this morning.

Birch Bayh endorses Jimmy Carter campaign

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Sen. Birch Bayh, one of Democratic presidential hopeful Jimmy Carter's early rivals for the nomination, today endorsed the former Georgia governor.

As Carter began his last day of campaigning for Tuesday's Indiana primary, Bayh told reporters that although he is more closely aligned philosophically with U.S. Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona, Carter is the only Democrat who can win in the fall.

"It is becoming increasingly apparent that there is one candidate who has the opportunity to appeal to a broad cross-section of the American people, one candidate who has the opportunity to win the nomination through the primary and state convention process and thus avoid the divisiveness and bitterness which results from a brokered convention," Bayh said. "In my judgment, that candidate is Gov. Jimmy Carter."

Bayh dropped out of the presidential race after poor showings in the New Hampshire and Massachusetts primaries. He had criticized Carter on several issues, mainly economic, saying Carter appeared to be espousing a Republican rather than a Democratic philosophy. Bayh said today that he and Carter discussed their differences Sunday night in Indianapolis and he was convinced "that Gov. Carter and I share a deep and common concern on most issues that face our nation."

Bayh said he would accept the vice-presidential nomination if offered but he thought the chances were remote. Carter said Bayh certainly would be considered, along with all other candidates for the presidential nomination, for the No. 2 spot on the ticket.

London paper says Kissinger hurt President

LONDON (AP) — A conservative British newspaper suggested today that U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's support of black rule in southern Africa hurt President Ford in the Texas primary.

"President Ford may have been unlucky in the timing," said the Daily Telegraph. "This made him face the voters just as his secretary of state was making that speech last week urging the whites of southern Africa to be good, middle-of-the-road boys and accept black majority rule—not, to put it mildly, a theme calculated to win the heart of Texas."

The Telegraph also commented that "Texas is a special case. A rogue elephant among states, it may simply have a fellow feeling for a rogue elephant."

New fighting in Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Savage fighting raged across Lebanon today amid reports of a new Syrian attempt to negotiate an end to the year-long civil war.

Police reported 271 persons killed since the expiration of the 35th ceasefire Friday and the postponement of the election of a new president by parliament until next Saturday.

The right-wing Christian Phalange party said "a surprise Syrian move is imminent that may change the whole complexion of the situation."

The statement did not elaborate. But reports in the local press said Syrian President Hafez Assad planned to end another high-powered delegation to try to patch up his feud with Moslem Socialist leader Kamal Jumblatt and his leftist alliance and mediate a new basis for a settlement of the war.

Assad wants to replace the Christians' prewar dominance of Lebanese political and economic life with an equal division of power between the Moslem majority and Christian minority. Jumblatt wants a Moslem Socialist state.

Palestinian guerrillas mediated a cease-fire at dawn, but the new agreement failed to get off the ground. Heavy artillery shells smashed into high-rise apartment buildings and rockets flashed overhead. Police reported hard fighting in northern, eastern and central Lebanon as well as in Beirut.

He said Christian militias were blocking food shipments to the two camps again.

Error changes runoff picture

HENDERSON, Tex. (AP) — An error in transmission of Rusk County figures Saturday in the 1st Congressional District election was discovered today, changing the candidates who will be in a June 5 runoff for the vacancy, county officials said.

District Clerk Calvin Barber said inadvertent wrong figures had been supplied the Texas Election Bureau Saturday night, making it appear Sam B. Hall of Marshall and Welby Parish of Gilmer would face each other in the runoff. Barber said today, however, that Dr. Glen Jones of Jacksonville will face Hall in the runoff.

Hall led the election with 27,460 votes while Parish had 22,816 and was, it appeared, in second place. But, Barber said today, Jones had been credited Saturday night with only 323 votes from Rusk County when he should have been credited with 3,224 votes, raising his district-wide total to 24,761 and thus pushing him into the runoff with Hall.

Fireman charged with arson death

EAST LANSLOWNE, Pa. (AP) — Fear ran high in this Philadelphia suburb of 3,200, scene of 150 suspicious fires in the past five years.

"People frankly admitted to me that they were afraid of their own fire company," said Mayor William Smyrl. "It turned out they were right."

One member of the fire department has been charged with arson in connection with the suspicious fires, officials said, and three others charged with perjury. And now, the town's fire chief is accused of lying and tampering with evidence in an arson case.

An 85-year-old woman died in one of the 150 arson cases reported in this community since 1971. Officials said the number of apparently deliberately set fires had increased in the last two years.

Last June, after the arson fatality was recorded, an investigation was begun by the Delaware County district attorney's office.

As a result of that investigation, Albert Pinner, 19, a volunteer fireman, was charged with arson. Fire Lt. Paul Fisher and firemen John Fisher and Stephen Ryan were charged with perjury relating to an arson trial last November.

Fire Chief Edward Joines was charged last Thursday with perjury in connection with the investigation. He was also charged with tampering with official documents being used as evidence in one of the arson cases.

Now, the 30-member volunteer department has been disbanded.

Officials have not said why they believe the fires were set, but "the usual motive in cases like this is the thrill of it," said Dist. Atty. Frank Hazel.

Joines has said he is innocent of the charges against him and that the accusations are politically motivated.

Meanwhile, fire departments in neighboring communities have agreed to protect East Lansdowne.

Reagan glad they switched

Where did the Republicans come from?

DALLAS (AP) — Where did all those Republicans come from? Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan does not really care. All he knows is that they voted for him and gave his challenge to President Ford a much-needed boost in the first of the Western battles for the Presidential nomination.

"I'm still stunned. We certainly had not anticipated anything like a clean sweep," Reagan said following his victory. He added he believed the victory was a matter of voters beginning to understand what he was talking about — detente, defense, the economy.

There were nearly 420,000 votes cast in the Republican primary. Election officials had estimated about 300,000 in a good day. "All those people who had always called themselves Democrats wanted to vote in the Republican primary, but were afraid their grandmothers would roll over in their graves if they switched to the GOP," said Harold B. Green, chairman of the Republican Men's Club of Dallas. Meanwhile, the Democrats were pulling a surprise of their own, turning their backs on U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, a favorite-son candidate, to embrace the candidacy of former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter.

Carter took 92 of the 98 convention delegates. Three Bentsen delegates were elected in the Rio Grande Valley, and one each came from San Antonio, Corpus Christi and Houston. Bentsen, however, salvaged his state prestige easily taking his party's nomination for the Senate.

'Water hole' assailed Dam, sand triggers torrents of words

By JOHN EDWARDS First, the sand was blown in drifts on Rockhouse Road. Then, the rains came and flooded the county road. This morning, a local lawyer suggested that County Commissioners Court ask a landowner to remove a dam or obtain an injunction through district court.

They "brought the entire operation to a screeching halt," Barnaby said, because of objections from a landowner and county commissioner. R. V. Fryar, who appeared with attorney R. H. Weaver this morning, said he wants the water drained as land contours would permit were it not for Iden's dike.

Weaver indicated that failure to have the dam removed could cause problems of precedent in other drainage areas. The commissioners court hoped to confer with Iden and Fryar both this afternoon. The court also approved paying $441 monthly more to the Howard County Council on Aging effective Oct. 1 when a federal grant is to be discontinued.

Bentsen faces a tough challenge in the fall when he goes against former Rep. Alan Steelman of Dallas who captured his party's nomination.

Today, and worked on the case throughout the morning. Three spent shells and one live shell from either a .44 Magnum pistol or rifle were discovered in the street in front of the house following the incident. It was also discovered that fire from a .25 cal. automatic pistol had been returned from inside the residence.

President should face problem

President Gerald Ford's contention that the cutbacks in military bases and manpower, including the proposed closing of Webb AFB in Big Spring, are the fault of Congress was true at the beginning of 1976.

But I think that copout is holding less and less water every day.

WHEN FORD was in Abilene Friday, I had a chance to ask again about Webb, as Herald Editor Tommy Hart had done a week earlier when he was at the White House.

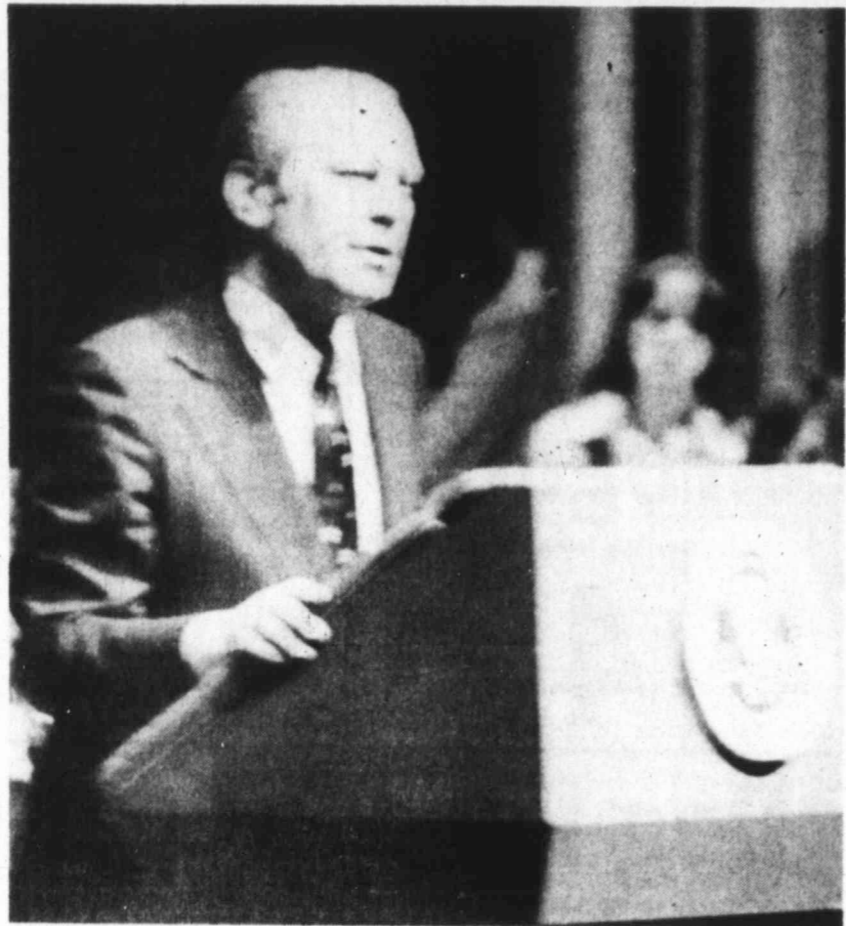

The President's answer was basically the same. The Webb closing is because Congress mandated by law a reduction in military spending, and the executive branch had no choice but to comply.

I was unable to ask the follow-up question that Ford should answer. That is, Ford asked for $112.7 billion for defense this year. Congress is in the process of giving him virtually everything he has asked for, yet the conventional military capabilities reduction continues, cutback at proven cost-efficient bases such as Webb proceeds unabated.

If the problem is only money from Congress, I believe that it is a solvable problem. Big Spring and West Texas have enough friends and votes in the Capitol to restore money in the budget for Webb. The American people favor keeping a strong defense posture, and the mood of Congress has changed as lawmakers sense this grassroots feeling.

Congress was the problem at the beginning of 1976, but Congress is not the problem now.

As Col. Robert Owens, wing commander at Webb, told the Big Spring

PRESIDENT FORD SPEAKS IN ABILENE

Rotary Club two weeks ago, there is a danger in relying completely upon quality. The Yom Kippur war taught a different lesson.

BUT THE FORD Administration continues to take the approach of the Eisenhower Administration of drawing down U.S. conventional forces to the point where our response will have to be either World War III or nothing. If this trend continues, this nation's foreign policy will be back to cold war brinkmanship within a few short years.

In answering the question on Webb, Ford "categorically denied" that the U.S. was behind the Russians in conventional weapons, but he was unconvincing.

Indeed, as Abilene Reporter-News staff writer Robert Campbell noted in Saturday's newspaper, the President looked uncomfortable in that answer, and it might not have been just because of the cool wind and misty rain.

He knows that a Library of Congress study just out says that the "quantitative military balance since 1965 has shifted substantially in favor of the Soviet Union."

Even Ford's own secretary of defense, Donald Rumsfeld, warned only last week of adverse trends running against the U.S. because of steady Soviet weapons gains.

The Wall Street Journal noted last week: "The U.S. may be equal to the Russians in strategic nuclear power, but most analysts believe the Soviets lead in the other important military categories."

EVEN THE MOST conservative weapon and forces count show the Russians four or five-to-one ahead in most conventional weapons areas.

Yet Ford stands right out here in West Texas and "categorically denies" this. He is using the big government technique of completely denying the obvious, the same technique which has caused so many credibility problems for the last two presidents.

The responsibility for this conventional weapons gap and any return to the dangerous policy of brinkmanship which must inevitably follow might have once belonged at the feet of Congress, but it is increasingly a burden that President Ford must bear.

Even in a political year, the President of this country should face the problem, not duck it.

Around the rim

Danny Reagan

If you recall, a couple of weeks ago the president of a large country granted an interview to a number of reporters.

Unknown to anyone at this paper, I have a secret source ("Deep Heat"), whom I shall call the John Doe, who carried a hidden tape recorder with him and was granted a private interview.

THE FOLLOWING is the actual transcript from the tape of the conversation that took place between the two. I offer it here as a public service.

Doe: "Well Mr. President, I see the place on your head is healing."

Pres: "What?"

Doe: "The cut."

Pres: "Where?"

Doe: "On your head."

Pres: "When?"

Doe: "When you were eating bar-b-que in Dallas and stuck the fork in your forehead."

Pres: "Oh yes, what did you say your name was?"

Doe: "Doe, John Doe."

Pres: "Doe John Doe? That's a strange name. Have you had it long?"

Doe: "Mr. President, could I just ask you a few questions?"

Pres: "What?"

Doe: "Some questions."

Pres: "Who?"

Doe: "You."

PRES: "OH, OKAY... well let me get you a pen..." (crash, break, fumbling noises) Here, let me take the top off... (bump, slash)

Doe: "Wow, that looks like a pretty bad cut on your hand, sir."

Pres: "I don't think it'll need stitches, but I better walk down to the infirmary, just in case."

Doe: "Better take the gum out of your mouth first, sir."

Pres: "Good idea, Doe John Doe."

Doe: "Mr. President, there's just one Doe... at the end."

Pres: "Well, bring him in too!"

Doe: "Sir?"

Pres: "We'll put all our DOUGH into this interview. Ha! Get it!! Ha! Ha! Ha! (crashing and breaking sounds.) Oops, got a little carried away there."

Doe: "I'm sure they can fix the chair, Mr. President, but your head is bleeding again."

Pres: "Where?"

Pres: "What?"

Doe: "Where it's bleeding."

Pres: "Who?"

Doe: "You, sir, (phone rings) Aren't you going to answer it, Mr. President?"

Pres: "I'm still chewing gum, Doe John Doe, you answer it."

Doe: (answering phone) "President's office, Doe John Doe speaking (pause) Oh, okay... it's for me Mr. President, it's my city editor. He wants to know if he should hold space for the interview story or run something else. He has a great story on curfews in Alaska."

PRES: "HERE, LET me talk to him."

Doe: "Be careful, Mr. President."

Pres: (taking phone and sticking it in his mouth) "Umm-umph... mumble, mumble, mumble... ummm, ummm!"

Doe: "Let me help you, sir, (tugging sounds) It seems to be stuck, Mr. President. Should I call the Secret Service?"

Pres: "Umph... ummm... umm!"

Doe: "Does this mean our interview is at an end?"

Pres: "UMMM, umm, umph... umph!"

Doe: "Thank you, Mr. President."

Pres: "Ummoor Umphelcomph."

Unsex me now

William F. Buckley, Jr.

What do Mary McCarthy, Joyce Carol Oates, Muriel Spark, and Joan Didion have in common?

Ans. They are first-class writers. If you like, you can say they are "first class women writers." But it must be somewhere along the line communicated that by that you mean they are first class writers who are women. Otherwise there is a patronizing residue, as in "he is a first-class junior skier." Ironically, one of the reasons these ladies (patronizing? All right, these women) are first-class writers is that they would shun like the plague such exhortations as are being urged on all writers by the National Council of Teachers of English, in the name of eliminating sexism.

AS A RATHER agreeable surprise, the latest bulletin from the Anti-Sexist League is itself fairly literate. We are told that "The man who cannot cry and the woman who cannot command are equally victims of their socialization." The trouble is that by the time they are through with their recommendations, they make everybody cry, who cares for the mother tongue.

Unhappily, there is no way in the English of Shakespeare, Milton, Pope, and Faulkner, to get rid of the synecdoche, "man," which, as in "mankind," means man and woman. Clifton Fadiman wrote years ago that the English language is wonderfully resourceful, but that "there are some things you just can't do with it." One of them is to replace "man" in some of the situations in which it is indispensable. Consider some of the efforts of the NCTE.

The common man becomes the 'average person,' or 'ordinary people.' Try it out... "The century of the average person." No. Why? If you don't know, I can't tell you. Ditto for "The century of ordinary people." Here, at least, you can point out that ordinary has several meanings and that whereas common does too, the conjunction of common-man instantly excludes all but the Henry Wallace use of the word common; whereas the conjunction of ordinary man does not exclude such a sniffy remark as, say Lucius Beebe might have made about vulgar people. Clarity is one of the objectives of good writers, which is why Mary McCarthy would never write about "the century of ordinary people."

The bulletin offers you a typical sexist slur: 'The average student is worried about grades.' There again, you will note a difficulty. The two sentences do not mean exactly the same thing.

Rhumatic fever is complication

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: At age 42 I had rheumatic fever. I have had a long history of upper respiratory infections and strep infections. I've been told that the same strep germ causes both bronchitis and rheumatic fever. If so, is it possible the attacks of bronchitis could have been responsible?

Since the attack I've had much trouble with my joints, especially in the wrists, knees, hands and fingers. Can this develop into arthritis or rheumatism? Can I have another attack of rheumatic fever? This last one left me with heart damage. — W.D.P.

I don't think you have a complete understanding of rheumatic fever, so let's clear that up first.

In the average strep infection, as of the throat, the symptoms are usually localized there and the condition can be remedied with antibiotics. No real problem. However, in rheumatic fever there is an abnormal response to the infection. There is, for example, the production of antibodies which not only react against the strep organism but also against normal heart muscle and joint membranes. Thus the name "rheumatic" fever.

So rheumatic fever can more properly be called a "complication" of an infection by the strep organism. The association, however, is not immediately enough to say that rheumatic fever is a strep infection.

Arthritis can result if the joint involvement is extensive. But it is the heart damage that is the most dangerous complication.

It is not common for rheumatic fever to occur in one year age. It is usually associated with childhood upper respiratory infections. It can recur, though, and it is possible your recent attack was a recurrence. Some childhood infections with slight fever can be overlooked.

You have probably been told to take special care to avoid future strep infections, and to attend to it immediately should one occur. In some cases benzathine penicillin-G is given in monthly injections to prevent this. If you have a penicillin sensitivity, other antibiotics can be used. This may also suppress your upper respiratory infection.

You should inquire further about some new do's and don'ts in your lifestyle to avoid weakening your natural resistance.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: If I don't read the Bible and don't preach the Word all the time, will I still enter Heaven? I love God and want Him to live in me, but I suffer from bad thoughts in my mind. — J. T.

DEAR J. T.: A person receives the gift of everlasting life by his faith in Jesus Christ. This life is a gift, and we cannot do anything to earn it or deserve it. John 3:16 (Revised Standard Version) states, "Whoever believes in Him should not perish but have eternal life." The only way that you will come to believe this and other great promises, and so remove any doubts from your mind, is by reading the Bible. If you do not read God's Word you will never fully believe or understand God's promises to you.

Another important reason for reading the Bible is connected with the problem of bad thoughts. The Word of God has a cleansing effect upon the mind, and the more we hold that Word in our minds, the less room there will be for harmful thoughts. Paul tells us how Christ cleanses His Church, meaning all Christian people: "Having cleansed her (the Church) by the washing of water with the word" (Ephesians 5:26, Revised Standard Version). Christ uses the Word to cleanse our minds. Elsewhere (Philippians 4:8) Paul makes a list of the kinds of things about which a Christian should think. Fill your mind with good thoughts from God's Word and you will find this the surest way to conquer bad thoughts.

Finally, you say that you love God. Remember, "This is the love of God, that we keep his commandments" (1 John 5:3). The test of your love for God is the extent to which you obey Him, and God commands us all to go into the world and proclaim the Gospel (Matthew 28:19, 20).

Whither HHH?

Robert Novak

WASHINGTON — The mood in Suite 202A of the Shoreham Hotel here one day last week was buoyant, with Robert Short, longtime political confidant of Sen. Hubert Humphrey, putting final touches on the breakfast meeting scheduled for Wednesday which would finally bring the Humphrey candidacy out of the shadows.

BY NIGHTFALL, Short had cancelled the pro-Humphrey breakfast on orders from Humphrey himself, orders that dramatized the ambivalence of Hubert Humphrey and sharpened the dilemma which has dogged him ever since Jimmy Carter started winning presidential primaries.

With Carter's stunning triumph in Pennsylvania, showing anti-Carter labor barons to be paper tigers and the entrenched political leaders of the Democratic party only marginally more potent, Humphrey now stands alone between Carter and the presidential nomination.

That leaves the Senator in a far more exposed and delicate position than before Pennsylvania, when Sen. Henry M. Jackson was still viable as the candidate perceived by anti-Carter forces not as a possible nominee himself but as the candidate who could stop Carter, deadlock the convention and prepare the way to broker Humphrey into the nomination.

Jackson lost that viability somewhere between the unbossed steelworkers of Pittsburgh and the coal miners in Wilkes-Barre — but just as big a loser as Jackson was Hubert Humphrey.

Indeed, the dilemma that has dogged Humphrey's role as a non-candidate is now leading him into ever more agonizing procrastination. Thus, Short truly believed that under pressure from anti-Carter operatives assembled here for that big pro-Humphrey breakfast meeting Wednesday, Humphrey could be persuaded to enter the June 8 New Jersey primary election (with an April 29 filing deadline).

THE REVISION of Short's plans downward from that peak was abrupt. Instead of an active Humphrey race in New Jersey, Short was forced into a retreat which left him this alternative to nothing at all: persuade Humphrey to sign a letter authorizing formation of an exploratory Humphrey-for-President committee. That would permit Short and anti-Carter forces to start raising money — and to hope that the Senator would formally announce his candidacy sometime next month.

That Humphrey, even though under pressure from his family and some close friends to keep out, will sign Short's drafted letter is probable. But even if he does, and then later declares his candidacy without actively campaigning in New Jersey or any other primary, the likelihood of stopping Carter is remote at best and the prospect of deep bitterness within the Democratic party is certain.

That became clear in the immediate aftermath of Pennsylvania. For example, Douglas Fraser, top political activist of the liberal United Auto Workers union and until now quietly but determinedly anti-Carter, believes that if Carter has 1,000 delegates (out of 1,505 needed to nominate) when he gets to Madison Square Garden in July, any effort to block him could be disastrous for the party.

"The rank and file of labor spoke out pretty clearly in Pennsylvania," Fraser told us. "That voice will be ignored by the party at its peril."

A SOMEWHAT similar concern about the stop-Carter battle has been privately but strongly voiced by Rep. Peter Rodino of New Jersey, who (with Sen. Pete Williams) is co-chairman of the uncommitted delegate slate in the New Jersey primary.

Rodino has threatened not to enter the New Jersey primary at all because his uncommitted slate has now become so inextricably identified as a stop-Carter movement. He has warned Humphrey that only a clear and unambiguous Humphrey candidacy will keep Rodino on the New Jersey ballot; that he will not "front" for any shadow candidate.

But Humphrey, the target of growing pressures both from politicians who are for Carter and from Carter enemies begging Humphrey to jump into the race, has shown signs of bewilderment and of not knowing what to do. His extraordinary statement last Sunday that if he was asked he would campaign for the Rodino uncommitted slate in New Jersey — even though not an active candidate himself — appalled perceptive politicians, including Rodino.

Given Carter's sweeping momentum and Humphrey's refusal to run the risks of all-out battle, Bob Short's task in trying to galvanize Humphrey now seems almost as formidable as Humphrey's will be if — a big if — he finally does go all out to trip up Jimmy Carter between here and Madison Square Garden.

Arizona adobe preservation

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Arizona State University researchers are trying to perfect a process called electro-osmosis to help preserve adobe structures.

Their primary concern is treating ruins that have not yet been excavated. The treatment does not change the appearance of the structures.

In a project funded by the National Park Service and directed by Dr. Charles O'Bannon, ASU associate professor of civil engineering, two graduate students are working on a chemical which, when driven into adobe walls, will stabilize clay into a permanent material.

Historic sounds

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Visitors to the new Living History Center here can lend an ear to some of the famous speeches and sounds of America.

As one of the center's 30-odd attractions, strollers along the History Promenade can pick up one of 20 "hearphones" strung along the wall and listen to Patrick Henry's "Give Me Liberty Or Give Me Death" speech made in 1775; a short excerpt from the Lincoln-Douglas debates 1858; William Jennings Bryan's "Cross of Gold" speech 1896; and an excerpt from President Roosevelt's "We Have Nothing To Fear But Fear Itself" speech 1933.

Bentsen wins senate nomination, to face Steelman

By The Associated Press
U. S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, a favorite son candidate in the Democratic presidential primary, was treated more like a poor relative by Texas voters, but the South Texas politician managed to win his party's nomination for the Senate and lead ten incumbent congressmen into the Nov. 2 general elections.

One of the hottest battles of Saturday's scramble was for the congressional seat of the late Wright Patman in District 2 and resulted in a runoff June 5.

In that Northeast Texas race, college professor Dr. Glen Jones of Jacksonville, who finished second, will go against Marshall lawyer Sam B. Hall.

Hall had 27,387 votes to lead the field of ten candidates in the race. Lawyer Welby Parish of Gilmer, who conducted an expensive campaign with generous contributions from labor unions, ran a narrow third. Hall described himself as a moderate who agrees with some Patman's populist ideas.

"I agree with the way Patman took care of the people of the district," Hall said.

Bentsen, whose candidacy for the Democratic nomination suffered an early collapse several weeks ago, had stayed on as a favorite son candidate in a primary designed by supporters in the Legislature to favor him. Delegate votes were based on district elections and not so much on the popular vote.

But Bentsen too was crushed by the steamroller of former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter who took 92 of the 98 delegates up for grabs. Bentsen's six delegates came from three in the Rio Grande Valley and one each in San Antonio, Corpus Christi and Harris County.

In his Senate race, Bentsen turned back handily a spirited bid by Texas A&M economist Phil Gramm, compiling 62 per cent of the vote. Gramm had less than 30 per cent and two others shared the rest.

Bentsen will face a tough challenge in the fall from Republican Alan Steelman, a two-term congressman who had little trouble securing his party's nomination for the Senate.

Ten Democratic incumbents and two Republican representatives survived challenges while former State Rep. Jim Mattox stopped former Dallas Mayor Wes Wise's first attempt to run for Congress in the Democratic primary contest for Steelman's vacated seat.

The 10 Democratic incumbents capturing nominations were Reps. Charles Wilson of Lufkin, Ray Roberts of McKinney, Olin Teague of College Station, Bob Eckhardt of Houston, Jake Pickle of Austin, Bob Poage of Waco, Eligio De la Garza of Mission, Richard White of El Paso, Dale Milford of Grand Prairie and Bob Kreuger of New Braunfels.

The GOP primary winners were Reps. Jim Collins of Dallas and Ron Paul of Lake Jackson.

Paul, a physician, won a special election earlier this year to serve out the unexpired term of Rep. Bob Casey of Houston, who resigned to accept a presidential appointment.

He will go against former State Sen. Bob Gammage of Houston who captured the Democratic nomination.

Five congressmen were unopposed in either the primary or the general election. They were Democrats Jack Brooks of Beaumont, Omar Burleson of Anson, Henry Gonzalez of San Antonio and Abraham Kazen Jr. of Laredo and Republican Bill Archer of Houston.

Creighton leads undecided race

By The Associated Press

Sen. Tom Creighton of Mineral Wells and his opponent, Parker County Dist. Atty. Alex Tandy, each claimed a primary election victory Sunday evening, with only a few hundred votes apparently separating them.

Creighton, a 16-year legislative veteran who chairs the Senate Economic Development Committee, said his figures showed he had defeated Tandy, 42,490 to 41,678, in Saturday's Democratic primary.

But Tandy said he had double checked county-by-county totals showing him to be the victor.

Two other checks with each candidate's campaign office and election officials in the 17-county district have Creighton leading by a small margin.

Unofficial but decisive totals indicate Sen. Mike

McKinnon of Corpus Christi will be in the June 5 run-off primary against liberal Rep. Carlos Truan.

Truan polled 12,000 more votes than McKinnon, a television station owner who is in his first four-year term. Republican James T. Smith of Ingleside will meet the winner in the November general election.

Sen. A. R. Schwartz of Galveston also must go into the run-off. He is opposed by former Rep. Dean Neugent of Texas City.

A third senatorial run-off will match Rep. Carl Parker of Port Arthur, a leader of House liberals, against first-term Rep. Chester Slay, D-Beaumont for the seat from which Sen. Roy Harrington, D-Port Arthur, is retiring.

First-term Sen. Grant Jones, D-Abilene, won a hard-fought race with Joe Gibson of Waco.

Sen. Ron Clower, D-Garland, easily defeated Joe Woods of DeSoto and will meet Republican Donald A. Lucky of Hutchins in the general election.

Sen. Glenn Kothmann of San Antonio won over C. W. Sanford of Elmendorf. His Republican opponent is Romulo A. Munguia.

There was no discernible common thread that linked the defeated House members.

Rep. Ben Bynum of Amarillo, chairman of the House Insurance Committee, fell to lawyer Danny Hill, who attributed his victory to personally knocking on 6,000 doors.

Hill's early campaign cast Bynum in a "playboy" image. He played up an Austin incident in which an apartment house neighbor—female—sprayed Bynum with "Mace" and told police he had tried to force his way into her quarters.

Also defeated was Rep. E. L. Short of Tahoka, chairman of the House Intergovernmental Relations Committee. He fell to Jim Rudd of Brownfield. Short's friends said organized teachers had singled him out for defeat.

Former Rep. Charles Fennell of Holliday, who dropped out in 1974 to run unsuccessfully for the Senate, defeated Rep. Tom Cartledge, D-Henrietta.

Other representatives who failed in their re-election bids were W. C. Sherman, D-Fort Worth; A. C. Dramberger, D-San Antonio; Camm Lary, D-Burnet; and Al Koriath, R-Carrollton. All were ranked as conservatives.

Greeting cards
old limited return

AR ABBY: Since January 1, 1974 I have sent 911 greeting cards—not counting Christmas and Easter cards. I mean get-well, sympathy, birthday, wedding, anniversary and new baby cards. I go through our local newspaper to be sure I haven't overlooked a birth, engagement, accident or death. I am on my toes and can't afford to send presents, but I do as much time shopping for appropriate cards as most people do in the selection of gifts.

Question: Aren't people supposed to acknowledge cards? Only 32 out of the 911 people I sent cards to bothered me to let me know they received them. I am listed in the phone directory. Am I wrong to expect thanks?
IGNORED

AR IGNORED: Well-bred people acknowledge cards with a telephone call, a note or a verbal "thank you"—should they see the giver before they have the opportunity to call or write. However, the giver who is motivated by genuine thoughtfulness will send the card and it will be received.

keep a ledger on "thanks receivable" suggests that the giver is unduly interested in placing the burden of gratitude on the recipient. Still, the laziness and boorishness of those who fail to acknowledge a thoughtful gesture is inexcusable.

AR ABBY: I don't understand what you mean when you say "Save yourself for the man you marry." Does a girl know WHICH man she's going to marry? I have gone with five different guys at different times, and I don't know which one I'm going to marry all of them, but I'm still single. I would like you to please explain what you mean?
STILL SINGLE

AR SINGLE: I mean, save yourself for the man you love—not the man you MAY marry.

AR ABBY: Saw the letter in your column from the complaining bachelor in the next column who snored so loud he kept her awake nights. Is there a single lady looking for a nice single man. If the man who snores is between 45 and 60, please send me name and phone number because I'm lonesome, easy to get along with and very hard of hearing.
RITA IN RICHLANDS, VA.

AR ABBY: Will you please tell me the difference between a maid and a housewife? My husband says there is no difference. Thank you.
RICHMOND HOUSEWIFE

AR HOUSEWIFE: If you have a maid, you'd better watch your eye on your husband.

Jackson plays, May loses all

Rudy May threw a curve ball and Luis Tiant tried a changeup. The former wound up in the left field corner and broke up a no-hitter; the latter landed in the left field stands and broke up a ballgame.

Amos Otis ripped May's curve for Kansas City's first hit, a leadoff double in the bottom of the ninth inning, and eventually scored the tying run as the Royals edged the New York Yankees 2-1 in 11 innings.

Jeff Burroughs blasted Tiant's eighth-inning change-up 20 rods deep into the seats at Arlington Stadium for a tiebreaking three-run homer that enabled the Texas Rangers to beat the Boston Red Sox 3-2 and sweep a four-game series from the defending American League champs.

Elsewhere, Reggie Jackson saw his first action as the Baltimore Orioles nipped Oakland 4-3 after the A's won the doubleheader opener 6-2 and the California Angels shaded Cleveland 5-4.

Little League—Hawks rake Oilers

The Hawks of the American Little League dealt the Oilers their second consecutive defeat Saturday, 7-2.

The winning pitcher was Steve Rodricks, (2-0) and the loser was Darren Lamb (0-2). Four Hawk players had doubles: Steve Rodricks, Greg Franklin, Terry Bordsche, and Blake Russon.

Players with two or more hits were Steve Rodricks, Greg Franklin and David Shanks. Good defense highlighted the contest and the Hawks' season record now stands 3-1.

Longhorns, Aggies qualify for NCAA

By The Associated Press Texas has earned a shot at defending its national collegiate baseball title and the Texas Aggies also will represent the Southwest Conference in the NCAA playoffs.

The Longhorns clinched their 13th consecutive title and 51st in 61 years Saturday by defeating Texas Tech 14-5 in the second game of a doubleheader.

At Fayetteville, the Texas Aggies earned second place with a three-game weekend sweep over Arkansas. Texas A&M was invited to the playoffs as the SWC runner-up in 1975.

Texas A&M has the best overall record in the SWC at 34-8 and Coach Tom Chandler of the Aggies again expected his team to be placed in the Midwestern Regionals where they played a year ago.

JUST SLIPPIN' IN THE RAIN — Chicago White Sox fan John Costello gets in a little sliding practice on rain-soaked tarp covering infield at Chicago's White Sox park, Sunday. Rain forced postponement of doubleheader between Chicago and Detroit Tigers.

Scott makes difference Celtics dump Braves

BUFFALO (AP) — Not everybody agreed about the effectiveness of Boston's Charlie Scott in the Celtics' playoff series against the Buffalo Braves.

But after Sunday's game, everybody agreed it was Scott who made the difference as the Celtics won 104-100 and eliminated Buffalo from the National Basketball Association playoffs.

The Celtics, winner of the best-of-seven series by four games to two, now advance to the Eastern Conference finals against Cleveland.

Scott and Dave Cowens were the key players in the nationally televised Sunday game. Scott scored a game-high 31 points, 13 in the final quarter when he brought the Celtics from behind and led them to victory.

Cowens, the Celtics' high-scoring center, grabbed 16 rebounds. The Braves held him to only 10 points, but concentrated so much on him that it left Scott open for jumpers and scoring drives down the lane.

JoJo White tallied 23 points for Boston. Scott's 18-foot jump shot well for less than two minutes gone in the fourth quarter put Boston in front to stay at 81-80. Later in the quarter, he hit for nine points without a miss to give Boston a 10-point lead at 98-88.

Later in the game, Buffalo closed to within three, but only 12 seconds were left. Scott then made sure of the victory by sinking a free throw.

Boston Coach Tom Heinsohn said Scott played well for the Celtics all season. Heinsohn said everybody thought Scott would play like he did for Phoenix when he was that NBA team's top scorer. "He's part of a ball club now and he did a heckuva job for us," Heinsohn said. "I'm sick and tired of people misjudging him."

Bob McAdoo led Buffalo with 28 points. Boston led 30-27 after the first period, but Buffalo went ahead in the second quarter and was leading 55-50 at halftime. Jim McMillian, who had 12 points in all, got a hot hand in the third quarter and helped propel the Braves to a nine-point lead.

The Celtics closed to within one point at 78-77 at the end of the third period, then went ahead to stay early in the fourth quarter.

MARIETTA, Ga. (AP) — Veteran golfer Jo Anne Carner is grateful caddie Billy McKenzie isn't very generous with his bad luck.

"I've won five out of 10 tournaments with Billy as caddie," said Mrs. Carner after capturing the $7,000 top prize in the $50,000 Lady Tara Golf Classic.

The six-year veteran from Palm Beach, Fla., won by three strokes over Argentina's Silvia Bertolaccini in shattering the tournament record with a 54-hole total of 209, 10 under par.

She won it Sunday by firing a 70 to Miss Bertolaccini's 73. McKenzie, whom Mrs. Carner calls "my good luck charm," broke several ribs Thursday during a car accident which knocked two golfers, Jrielyn Britz and Kathy Postlewait, out of competition with minor injuries.

But McKenzie, a University of Georgia graduate assistant, was on the job all three days, trailing Mrs. Carner in a cart.

Mrs. Carner, a six-year veteran of the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour, who played as an amateur for 20 years, won her second tourney of the year on the 14th hole. She has won 12 tournaments over-all.

Let's just say Larry and I were both in the right place at the right time," said Milbourne. "But Wilbur really made the play by getting to third on that fly ball."

To which Howard replied, "Let's just say Larry and I were both in the right place at the right time."

In the second game, the Mets again scored in the second, this time on Garrett's homer. The Astros tied it 1-1 in the sixth on singles by Cesar Cedeno and Bob Watson and Leon Roberts' RBI grounder.

Then the Mets jumped on Gilbert Rondón, 0-1, and chased him with a four-run sixth. "I had a few friends out here watching me," said Rondón, a New York City youngster making his first start in the majors.

"Don't tell me about history. That's all it is—the past."

"But frankly," he added, "I'm kind of happy about splitting this one," he said after the Mets lost the opener 5-4 before rebounding to take the nightcap 7-4. "We almost lost both of them."

In the first game, New York took the lead with a second-inning run on a throwing error by winner J.R. Richard, 4-1, and made it 3-0 in the fourth on run-scoring singles by Wayne Garrett and Ron Hodges.

But the Astros struck for four runs and chased Mickey Lolich in the fifth, two of the runs scoring on Enos Cabell's double.

The Mets tied it in the sixth on Ed Kranepool's homer, then lost it in the ninth when Greg Gross singled and pinch-runner Wilbur Howard came around on a bunt, Ken Boswell's flyball to deep left-center and Larry Milbourne's single, a poke off Bob Apodaca, 1-1, that sailed just over shortstop.

"It was a fastball, away. It just happened to hit my bat. It was just in the right place," said Milbourne. "But Wilbur really made the play by getting to third on that fly ball."

Let's just say Larry and I were both in the right place at the right time," said Milbourne. "But Wilbur really made the play by getting to third on that fly ball."

Horton has decided to go with Frank Rubio (4-1) Tuesday against Odessa, there, 4:00. Dick Battle (8-2) will go against Cooper Wednesday. Horton said he will start Battle against San Angelo Central in the season's final game Saturday in Steer Park, 2:00.

To have any chance for the second half championship in District 5-4A the Steers (3-1) have to win all three games and hope either Midland Lee (on Tuesday) or Cooper (on Saturday) beat undefeated Abilene (5-0).

Mets manager is happy they split with Astros

NEW YORK (AP) — Welcome, Joe Frazier, to the New York Mets School of Futility.

Frazier, in his rookie year as manager, discovered on Sunday what his predecessor, Yogi Berra, painfully learned through the previous three seasons—that the Mets have this thing about doubleheaders.

They can't win them. They took a seven-game winning streak into the twinbill against the Houston Astros. One of the games should have been played Saturday, but rain forced a one-day postponement. With two single games that streak might have remained alive. But with two games on one day, the Mets, history showed, were goners even before the first pitch.

In the previous three years, the Mets had played 45 doubleheaders. They'd swept a mere five of them. They'd lost both ends of 22. They'd managed to split the remaining 18. And last year alone, in 14 doubleheaders, they'd lost the openers in 12 of them.

"Oh, yeah?" Frazier mused after being apprised of that negative bit of trivia. "Well, I didn't know about that. I was used to winning most of my doubleheaders in the minors. And as far as I'm concerned I plan to get used to winning most of them up here."

"But frankly," he added, "I'm kind of happy about splitting this one," he said after the Mets lost the opener 5-4 before rebounding to take the nightcap 7-4. "We almost lost both of them."

In the first game, New York took the lead with a second-inning run on a throwing error by winner J.R. Richard, 4-1, and made it 3-0 in the fourth on run-scoring singles by Wayne Garrett and Ron Hodges.

But the Astros struck for four runs and chased Mickey Lolich in the fifth, two of the runs scoring on Enos Cabell's double.

The Mets tied it in the sixth on Ed Kranepool's homer, then lost it in the ninth when Greg Gross singled and pinch-runner Wilbur Howard came around on a bunt, Ken Boswell's flyball to deep left-center and Larry Milbourne's single, a poke off Bob Apodaca, 1-1, that sailed just over shortstop.

"It was a fastball, away. It just happened to hit my bat. It was just in the right place," said Milbourne. "But Wilbur really made the play by getting to third on that fly ball."

To which Howard replied, "Let's just say Larry and I were both in the right place at the right time."

In the second game, the Mets again scored in the second, this time on Garrett's homer. The Astros tied it 1-1 in the sixth on singles by Cesar Cedeno and Bob Watson and Leon Roberts' RBI grounder.

Then the Mets jumped on Gilbert Rondón, 0-1, and chased him with a four-run sixth. "I had a few friends out here watching me," said Rondón, a New York City youngster making his first start in the majors.

"Don't tell me about history. That's all it is—the past."

Steer coach kicking self

When Big Spring Steer basketball Coach James Griffin presented his letterman for the 1975-76 season at the Spring Sports Banquet Saturday he inadvertently forgot to mention Mike Harris.

Griffin says he regrets the oversight and he wants to correct it now — Harris did earn his letter in basketball.

He was also awarded a letter in baseball by Coach Larry Horton.

Bob McAdoo led Buffalo with 28 points. Boston led 30-27 after the first period, but Buffalo went ahead in the second quarter and was leading 55-50 at halftime. Jim McMillian, who had 12 points in all, got a hot hand in the third quarter and helped propel the Braves to a nine-point lead.

The Celtics closed to within one point at 78-77 at the end of the third period, then went ahead to stay early in the fourth quarter.

MARIETTA, Ga. (AP) — Veteran golfer Jo Anne Carner is grateful caddie Billy McKenzie isn't very generous with his bad luck.

"I've won five out of 10 tournaments with Billy as caddie," said Mrs. Carner after capturing the $7,000 top prize in the $50,000 Lady Tara Golf Classic.

The six-year veteran from Palm Beach, Fla., won by three strokes over Argentina's Silvia Bertolaccini in shattering the tournament record with a 54-hole total of 209, 10 under par.

She won it Sunday by firing a 70 to Miss Bertolaccini's 73. McKenzie, whom Mrs. Carner calls "my good luck charm," broke several ribs Thursday during a car accident which knocked two golfers, Jrielyn Britz and Kathy Postlewait, out of competition with minor injuries.

But McKenzie, a University of Georgia graduate assistant, was on the job all three days, trailing Mrs. Carner in a cart.

Mrs. Carner, a six-year veteran of the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour, who played as an amateur for 20 years, won her second tourney of the year on the 14th hole. She has won 12 tournaments over-all.

Energy Pete Banks retires from Cosden plant

Pete R. Banks, who recently retired from Cosden, is one of those Cosden veterans who has helped start up some of the operating units. His tenure began March 20, 1940 on the refinery yard.

It was interrupted for three years while he served in the Navy Seabees, both in the Atlantic and Pacific.

He worked at the old No. 1 Dubbs and in 1949 was on the startup crew at the cat cracker, which was built on the side of the burned-out Dubbs. Meanwhile, he had been at the poly plant and at the crude unit in 1946.

The month of June in 1958 marked the debut of the polystyrene plant and Banks was there, in the dry section. He took early retirement as an operator in the packaging and loading section there, under foreman Elton Carlile.

It's in that section that the final sample is taken of polystyrene prior to shipment to customers. Carlile and his men surprised Banks at his recent retirement party with a package of dollars stamped "Final Sample from Polystyrene."

Banks, who is a transplanted East Texan, is an avid fisherman and pool player. A group of his friends presented him with a rod and reel which he will likely break in at Lake Brownwood. They also gave him a special pool cue. Typically seen with a cigar in his mouth, he was also presented a box of his favorite brand.

He and his wife, Myrtle, reside at 401 Central in Coahoma.

She works at Malone-Hogan Hospital. They have two daughters, Judy and her husband, Baron Bloomer, who is a Fina pipeline employe, have a daughter, Brandy, 12 and a son, Barret, 9 and they live in Crane. Donna resides in Sand Springs with her husband, Asa Reifschneider and their two-year-old daughter, Amanda.

The Banks are members of the Coahoma Church of Christ and he is active in the Coahoma Lions Club.

Ridin' fence FBI, Estes rehashed

with Marj Carpenter

His name is John. And he is the Federal Bureau of Investigation agent for this part of the state.

Doesn't that sound thrilling? If so, you've seen too many television programs, with appropriate background music, about the FBI.

A good 90 per cent of FBI work — in West Texas anyway — is tedious. Some of the things that the agent gets to do when he wanders through Big Spring are checking out backgrounds on possible federal appointments. One time recently he got to do another fun thing. He had to take lawmen along to break in a storage building — they had the old search warrant — and look and see if a person, who had declared bankruptcy, had possibly hidden some items listed as stolen in the storage.

That doesn't sound like too much fun. They have a high education requirement. They are very intelligent men. And every now and then they get to do something exciting. But they also do a lot of the tedious.

I was trying to remember cases where the FBI was involved that I was directly familiar with and, the first one I think of, is of course, Billie Sol Estes.

His official arrest was also made by an FBI agent named John. He had a different last name from the John that comes to Big Spring several times a month on FBI duties.

That John was John M. and the night that he arrested Estes there were a group of women at the house planning a hospital auxiliary luncheon the next day.

One upset doctor's wife said to the FBI agent, "Are you going to be standing around here in the way tomorrow when we are trying to have this luncheon?"

She really thought that the entire arrest was a miserable mistake and that it would all be over by noon the next day. But that turned out to be the understatement of the year back in 1962.

I can remember another

FBI agent out of El Paso whose name was Pickens. One of the many thankless tasks they assigned him in Pecos was checking on a fire at the old Pecos Independent newspaper. It had happened right during the time that the articles exposing the Estes tank transactions were being published — and right before the time that the arrest was made.

Somebody poured a little old can of gasoline at the back door and struck a match. It was interesting in those days. Pickens also was around when they questioned the men who were supposed to have witnessed the $50,000 transaction between Estes and Ralph Yarbrough.

I also remember an FBI man that came into one town and arrested a banker who had been putting a few of the funds over in his farm account.

Let's see what else do FBI guys get to handle? Oh yes, three youths in one town swam the old Rio Grande with a bunch of that grass. And when you go across that international border, you are in extra trouble.

Or when you take a stolen car across a state line — or remove some kind of mortgaged property across a state line or send something ugly through the mails.

What I'm trying to say really, is that the FBI agent has a job... just like the rest of us. Sometimes it's really a rotten job. Most of the time, it's a tedious job. And usually it's a difficult job.

I'm glad John is around and comes over to Big Spring regularly. It's always kind of comforting to see his face here and there, when I'm out ridin' fence.

Fast thinking saves home

CHESTER, S.D. (AP) — An 8-year-old farm boy who had seen a fire prevention cartoon on television called for help on a citizens' band radio and then grabbed a garden hose to save his family's farm west of here.

Firemen credited Jeff Muller with saving the homestead.

Jeff arrived home on the school bus to find the chicken coop and bales of straw on fire. His two older brothers were in church and his parents were away.

On the CB radio he called for his father but reached an oil truck driver who called the fire department.

Jeff's mother, Mrs. Darrell Muller, said the boy had learned about fire safety from a television cartoon and a school pamphlet. She also said he knew the CB was a lot faster than a telephone.

Bicentennial town crier

Marvin Johnson, Howard College round-baller, needed a red wagon to lug home all his awards at the recent Howard College annual all-sports banquet. This year the theme was bicentennial, and Jerry Rogers, outgoing student government president, Carol Hart, incoming president, and Bobby Menchaca, student activities director, organized a lively affair. Coaches presented volleyball, basketball, golf, rodeo and tennis awards, and we could see the fine hand of Dean Anna Smith in the background. Evelyn Anderson, cheerleader sponsor, even received a gift in red, white and blue foil to match the decor. A round of applause for all those dedicated HC athletes!

Our condolences to those who missed the Bicentennial Band and Chorus! Those kids are real pros — and the show was polished from start to finish. J. W. King, former Steer band director, came all the way from Canyon to visit with the musical King daughters, Nancy and Mary Karen. In fact, numerous relatives of bandmen were on hand, and we were honored to have them. The crowd responded warmly to the medley of Texas songs, and the Webb folks could be heard loud and clear during the Air Force March. We all went home with a warm glow of pride — what an evening!

Fermin Florez is our man of the hour for his help backstage at the band concert. Dennis Smiley was everywhere with his camera and flash bulbs.

Jack Buchanan, Bicentennial Steering Committee members, has an eagle eye out for patriotic colors. Just as we finished our sumptuous meal at the 4-H Club Annual Picnic, he pointed with pride to the red, white and blue bleachers in the Howard County Fair Barn. Actually, the paint was added several
